

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

—

—

MEN AND WOMEN OF THE TIME

A DICTIONARY OF CONTEMPORARIES

FIFTEENTH EDITION

REVISED AND BROUGHT DOWN TO THE PRESENT TIME

BY

VICTOR G. PLARR, M.A. OXON.

LIBRARIAN OF THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF SURGEONS OF ENGLAND

LONDON

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE AND SONS, LIMITED

BROADWAY, LUDGATE HILL

1899

CT
103
.M53

Printed by BALLANTYNE, HANSON & Co.
At the Ballantyne Press

THE EDITOR'S PREFACE

TO THE FIFTEENTH EDITION

THE Fifteenth Edition of "Men and Women of the Time" contains 1560 new biographies. Very many of the old lives have been re-written or greatly extended, and the volume is longer than its predecessor by nearly three hundred pages. It is, therefore, no exaggeration to speak of it as almost one half new.

The Editor in his long labour of love has had much encouragement from his many correspondents, notably from experts in biography, whose candid estimate of "Men and Women of the Time," especially in its connection with the "Dictionary of National Biography," has been in the nature of a vote of confidence in the book. He desires to offer his sincere thanks to these gentlemen, and to couple with them all those who have assisted in the work of production. Especially is the Editor indebted to the late Mr. Edmund Routledge, whose sudden and pathetic death occurs on the eve of publication, and who in 1898 gave him much advice and assistance, particularly in the compilation of lists of new biographies, and allowed him to make use of his well-known "Book of the Year," and the materials employed in its compilation; to his venerable friend Sir John Simon, K.C.B., for permission to use a privately circulated pamphlet; to Mr. Auberon Herbert, ex-Governor Eyre, Dr. Haffkine, Mr. James Knowles, and a number of others, for important but hitherto unpublished matter; to Mr. Mackenzie Bell for a revision, from personal knowledge, of the life of Mr. Swinburne; to the Rev. R. C. Fillingham for personally interviewing Count Okuma on behalf of the book; to his American Editor, Dr. Winkelmann, for Transatlantic memoirs and additions; to Mr. Payen-Payne, and his collaborator, Mr. Holford Knight, for undertaking all lives, both new and old, of foreign celebrities; to Mr. C. R. Hewitt, of the Royal College of Surgeons' Library, for memoirs of soldiers, sailors, and such statesmen as Lords Salisbury and Rosebery, of Mr. Cecil Rhodes, Dr. Jameson, and leading members of the Royal Family; and to Mr. F. W. Walton, M.A., Librarian of King's College, London, for various biographies and considerable sub-editorial assistance.

The book has necessarily been long in the press, and it has therefore been found impossible to note some of the changes of the last nine or ten months in their proper places. Among these mention should be made of Mr. Justice Bucknill's elevation to the Bench, and Sir Joseph Russell Bailey's elevation to the Peerage as Lord Glanusk, under which title he should properly appear. Sir Henry Hawkins also should be under "Baron Brampton," Sir L. Alma-Tadema, R.A., should appear as a Knight, and Prof. Sir Michael Foster as a K.C.B. (both created June 1899). Sir David Barbour's recent services and honour should have been mentioned, as also Sir Godfrey Lushington's G.C.M.G. (June 1899), and the G.C.B.'s of General Sir Robert Biddulph, Admiral the Hon. Sir E. R. Fremantle, and Admiral Sir John Ommaney Hopkins (June 1899), while to the name of Sir F. M. Hodgson the birthday honour of K.C.B. should have been added, and Earl Beauchamp's appointment to be Governor and Commander-in-Chief of New South Wales in succession to Viscount Hampden (January 1899), and his creation to be K.C.M.G. should also have been recorded. Dr. William Selby Church became President of the Royal College of Physicians, London, in March 1899, Dr. Lewis-Lloyd of Bangor is deceased, the young Duke of Albany, as heir-apparent to the Grand-Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, was taken by his mother, H.R.H. the Duchess of Albany, to complete his education in Germany (August 1899), and Maître Labori was dangerously wounded on his way to the daily sitting of the Rennes court-martial (August 15).

A short Appendix at the end of the book contains lives unavoidably omitted in the body of the work, in which the memoir of Jules Ferry should not, of course, appear. The List of Assumed Names has been doubled, and the Classified Index has been entirely re-cast, care having been taken to repeat individual names under all the necessary categories. A Subject Index, such as that attached to Mr. Boase's dictionary of deceased celebrities, would undoubtedly have added to the value of a work which is a storehouse of historical details as well as of biographies. The Editor sometimes thought of compiling such an Index, but found that even a scanty one would have proved inordinately long. The reader who is in search of movements rather than of men will doubtless know under what names to look for his facts, e.g., for "Lancet Commission" see "Twining, Louisa," and for "Jamaica Revolt" see "Eyre."

During the passage of "Men and Women of the Time" through the press the following have died:—Latimer Clark, F.R.S. (Oct. 30, 1898), Prof. George James Allman, F.R.S. (Nov. 24, 1898), John Barrow, F.R.S. (Dec. 1898), William Black (Dec. 10, 1898), Sir William Anderson, K.C.B. (Dec. 11, 1898), General M. Annenkow (Jan. 22, 1899), Harry Bates, A.R.A. (Jan. 30, 1899), the Rev. C. A. Berry (Jan. 31, 1899), Count Caprivi (Feb. 6, Deauville (April 30, 1899), F. R. C. L. Buchner (May 1, 1899), Emilio Castelar (May 25, 1899), Prof. W. G. Blaikie (June 11, 1899), H. Wollaston Blake (June 27, 1899), Victor Cherbuliez (July 1, 1899), Sir William H. Flower, K.C.B. (July 1, 1899), Sir Alex. Armstrong, K.C.B. (July 4, 1899), Prof. Banister Fletcher (July 5, 1899), Richard Congreve (July 5, 1899), P. C. Chesnelong (July 1899), the Right Rev. C. Graves (July 17, 1899), and the Right Rev. Daniel Lewis-Lloyd (Aug. 1899).

Mention of these names will be found in the Obituary, which has been brought down to the end of July 1899. Some 370 biographies have, in fact, lapsed out of Edition Fifteen. But though the average of distinguished mortality in the period 1895-99 has been less than in that between 1891-95, scantier losses have been well-nigh counterbalanced by the importance of those lost. One need only cite at random such names as Bismarck, Gladstone, Alphonse Daudet, Lord Leighton. The death of Mr. Gladstone, whose biography was the lengthiest in the book, removes one of the survivors of the 1st Edition of "Men of the Time," published in 1852. These survivors now only number seven. They are Queen Victoria, the Emperor of Austria, the Prince de Joinville, the Duke of Argyll, Mr. T. Sidney Cooper, R.A., Mr. Frederick Goodall, R.A., and Mr. Philip James Bailey, author of "Festus."

KENSINGTON, August 1899.

KEY TO ASSUMED NAMES, &c.¹

Pseudonym.	Name.	Pseudonym.	Name.
Madame	Madame Gye.	Enotrio Romano	Giosuè Carducci.
der, Mrs.	Mrs. Annie Alexander Hector.	Fane, Violet	Lady P. W. Currie.
	Frau Alice Liebling.	Farren, Nellie	Mrs. R. Soutar.
son, Mary	Mdme. Antonio de Navarro.	Garrett, Edward	Isabella Fyvie Mayo.
	Jules Claretie.	Glouvet, Jules de	Jules Quesnay de Beaufrepaire.
d, Arsène	William Schwenck Gilbert.	Goddard, Arabella	Mrs. Davison.
	Lady Broome.	Gould, Bernard	Bernard Partridge.
; Lady	Jeanne Julia Regnault.	Gray, Maxwell	Miss M. G. Tuttielt.
, Mdme.		Green, Anna Katharine	Mrs. Charles Rohlf.
an, Kate	Mrs. George Crowe.	Greenwood, Grace	Sara Jane Lippincott.
phine		Gréville, Henry	Alice Marie Céleste Durand.
Marie	Mrs. Lowndes.	Guilbert, Yvette	Madame Schiller.
laide	H. Labouchere.	Gyp	Comtesse de Martel de Janville.
ed Resident	C. H. Cook.	Historicus	Rt. Hon. Sir W. Harcourt.
dyke, John	Thomas Alex. Browne.	Hobbes, John Oliver	Mrs. Craigie.
wood, Rolf	Sir Theodore Martin.	Hope, Anthony	Anthony Hope Hawkins.
aultier	Mrs. John Maxwell.
on.	Charles Godfrey Le-land.	Hyacinthe, Father	Père Loyson.
	Henrik Ibsen.	Ignatius, Father	Rev. Joseph Leycester Lyne.
lf Bjarme	Karl Emmerich Robert Bayer.	Ik Marvel	D. G. Mitchell.
obert	Emanuel Poiré.	Iota	Mrs. Mannington Caffyn. d'Ache	Victorien Sardou.	Iron, Ralph	Olive Schreiner (Mrs. Cronwright-Schreiner).
iva	Elizabeth, Queen of Roumania.	Istria, Princess Dora	Princess von Koltzoff.
-Duran	Charles Auguste Emile Durand.	d	Massalsky.
tion	Sir Graham J. Bower.	Jaff, Pierre	P. F. de Rodays.
, Fanny	Mdme. St. Leon.	Jopling, Louise	Mrs. Rowe.
us Clear	Dr. Robertson Nicoll.	Kendal, Mr.	William Hunter Kendal Grimston.
L. L. S.	Mrs. Kingscote.		Mrs. Kendal Grimston.
	J. F. H. Fouquier.	Kendal, Mrs.	W. P. Ryan.
	Benoît Constant Coquelin.	Kennedy, Kevin	Mme. Edmond Adam.
lin Cadet	Ernest Alexandre H. Coquelin.	Lamber, Juliette	Violet Paget.
di Bassetto	George Bernard Shaw.	Lee, Vernon	Julien Viaud.
et	George Robert Sims.	Loti, Pierre	Mdme. Wallhoffen.
l	George Macdonald.	Lucca, Pauline	John Leighton.
ic.	Louis F. Austin.	Luke Limner	Ada Ellen Bayly.
my	Sir Douglas Straight.	Lyall, Edna	William Abraham.
. Ashi	Mrs. Russell Cook.	Mabon	Henry Arthur Blake.
nie	Mrs. Norman.	M'Grath, Terence	Mrs. Smith-Williams.
		M'Kensie, Marian	Rev. John Watson.
	Mrs. Everard Cotes.	Maclaren, Ian	Mrs. Frederick Martin.
	Mme. Emma Eames Story.	Macleod, Mrs. Alick	Mrs. Humphry.
m, George	Mrs. Clairmonte.	Madge	Mrs. Francis Lean.
, Isabel Wini-	Mrs. Cyril Maude.	Marryat, Florence	Mrs. Henry Reeves.
	Albert Dresden Van-dam.	Mathers, Helen	Mrs. Armstrong.
		Melba, Nellie

This list contains only such assumed names, &c., as are mentioned in the text of the work.

Pseudonym.	Name.	Pseudonym.	Name.
Merriman, Henry		Robertson, Mary F.	Mme. Darmeste
Seton . . .	Hugh S. Scott.	Robins, Elizabeth	Mrs. C. E. Raim
Miller, Joaquin	C. H. Miller.	Rochester, Mark	William Charles
Murray, Alma .	Mrs. Alfred Forman.		Kent.
Nauticus . . .	Wm. Laird Clowes.	Rorke, Kate . .	Mrs. James Gard
Nauticus . . .	Owen Seaman.	Ross, Adrian . .	Arthur Reed Ro
Neillson, Julia	Mrs. Fred. Terry.	Samarow, Gregor	J. F. M. O. Med
Néruda, Mme.		Schreiner, Olive	Mrs. Cronwright
Norman . . .	Lady Hallé.		Schreiner.
Nestor . . .	F. F. H. Fouquier.	Showman . . .	John Latey.
Nilsson, Christina	Countess of Miranda.	Scrutator . . .	Canon Malcolm
Nordica, Mme.	Mme. Doehme.		coll.
Novello, Clara	Countess of Gigliucci.	Sigerson, Dora	Mrs. Clement Sh
Ogilvy, Gavin .	J. M. Barrie.	Silent Member, The	John Latey.
O. K.	Mme. Olga Novikoff.	Spectator . . .	Arthur Bingham
Oldcastle, John	W. Meynell.		Walkley.
O'Rell, Max . .	Paul Blouët.	Sterling, Antoinette	Mrs. John MacKi
Oscar Frederick	Oscar II. of Sweden	Swift, Benjamin	William Romain and Norway.		Paterson.
Osman Digna . .	Osman Ali.	Sylva, Carmen	Elizabeth, Quee
Ouida	Louise de la Ramée.		Roumania.
Patti, Adelina	Baroness Cederström.	Terry, Kate . .	Mrs. Arthur Lev
Pen Oliver . . .	Sir H. Thompson.	Thackeray, Anne	Mrs. Richmond
Petit Bob . . .	Comtesse de Martel	Isabella	Ritchie.
	de Janville.	Theodorus . . .	James Bass Mulli
Phelps, Elizabeth	Mrs. Herbert D.	Thomas, Annie	Mrs. Pender Cuc
Stuart	Ward.	Toby, M.P. . . .	Henry W. Lucy.
Phyllistine, The	John Alfred Spender.	Twain, Mark . .	Samuel Langho
Poel, William .	William Pole, jun.		Clemens.
Réjane, Madame	Madame Porel.	Vanbrugh, Violet	Mrs. Arthur Bou
Q	A. T. Q. Couch.		chier.
Q. E. D. . . .	Lady Colin Campbell.	Vasili, Count Paul	Mdme. Edmond
Rapier	Alfred E. T. Watson.		Adam.
Redspinner . .	William Senior.	Warden, Florence	Mrs. James.
Ristori, Adelaide	Marquise del Grillo.	Winter, John Strange	Mrs. Arthur Stan
Rives, Amélie .	Mrs. Amélie Chanler.	Woolgar, Sarah Jane	Mrs. Mellon.

MEN AND WOMEN OF THE TIME

ABBAS PACHA, Khedive of Egypt, K.G.C.B., is the eldest son of the late Tewfik Pacha. He was born on July 14, 1874, and succeeded his father in January 1892, when he was eighteen years of age. He had previously studied with his brother, Mehemet Ali, at the Theresianum Academy, in Vienna, and was still there at the time of his father's death. He studied law and politics, for which he displayed great aptitude. Prince Abbas Pacha was made Hon. K.G.C.B. by the Queen in 1892. His attitude towards Great Britain is not considered a friendly one, he having early in 1893 substituted statesmen of anti-English sympathies for those appointed by England. Lord Cromer remonstrated with him, and the Khedive was persuaded to compromise; but he is still not really friendly towards England. In July 1893 he paid a visit of homage to the Sultan of Turkey. In 1895 a daughter was born to him in his harem, and he afterwards married the mother.

ABBE, Cleveland, born in New York City, Dec. 3, 1838, is the son of George Waldo Abbe and Charlotte Colgate, both natives of the United States of America, and of purely English ancestry. The earliest American ancestry of this family was John Abbey, of Salem, Massachusetts, in 1637. Mr. Cleveland Abbe graduated in 1857 at the College of the City of New York, studied astronomy under Brünnow at the University of Michigan, 1859-60, also under Gould at Cambridge, Massachusetts, 1860-64, and under Struve at Poulkova, 1865 and 1866. He took the degree of A.B. 1857, A.M. 1860, LL.D. (Michigan University) 1889, Ph.D. 1892; was Director of the Cincinnati Observatory, 1868-74, Professor of Meteorology in the Signal Service, and Assistant to the Chief Signal Officer, 1871 to 1891, and is now (1893) Senior Professor of Meteorology in the "Weather Bureau of the Department of Agriculture." He is a Member of the National Academy of Sciences, and of numerous other scientific societies in America and Europe; author of "The Weather Bulletin of the Cincinnati Observatory," 1869; "Annual Summary and Review of Progress in Meteorology," 1873 annually to 1889; "Report on the Signal Service Observations of the Total Eclipse of 1878"; "Treatise on Meteorological Apparatus and Methods," 1887; "Preparatory Studies for Deductive Methods in Storm and Weather Predictions," 1890; "The Mechanics of the Atmosphere," 1891; and numerous smaller memoirs. He was Delegate to the International Convention of 1893 in Washington on Prime Meridian and Standard Time; and to the International Conference of Meteorologists in Munich, 1891. As Meteorologist to the United States Scientific Expedition to the West Coast of Africa, 1889-90, he made the first extensive set of accurate observations at sea of the movements of upper and lower clouds—using a marine nephroscope devised by him for this purpose.

ABBEY, Edwin Austin, R.A., R.I., was born April 1, 1852, at Philadelphia, U.S.A., and was a pupil of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. In 1871 he began drawing for the publications of Harper Brothers. In 1876 he became a Member of the American Water-Colour Society. In 1878 he removed to England. He has illustrated the following works: "Selections from the Hesperides and Noble Numbers of Robert Herrick," 1882; "She Stoops to Conquer," 1887; "Old Songs," 1889; "Sketching Rambles in Holland," 1885 (in conjunction with G. H. Broughton, A.R.A.); "The Quiet Life," 1890 (in conjunction with Alfred Parsons). The following are his principal water-colour pictures: "The Stage Office," 1876; "The Evil Eye," 1877; "The Sisters," 1881; "The Widower," 1883; "The Bible Reading," 1884; "An Old Song," 1886; "The March Past," 1887; "Visitors," 1890. His oil-paintings are as follows: "May-was "Kueung," exhibited at the Royal Academy, 1891. "Pametta's Song," Lays of the Sea, 1891. "Richard III. and the Lady Jane," Royal Academy, 1894; "Kianan," 1897. "King Lear," "The Angels," and "Katherine and Rowena," 1899. Mr. Abbott was elected an Academician in July 1899. He was elected Member of Royal Institute of Painters in Water Colours in 1899, and received a medal of the Royal Society at the Munich International Exhibition in 1903, and a first-class medal at the Paris Exposition Universelle, 1904. Addresses: Morgan Hall, Parkes, Grosvenor-street.

ABBOTT, Lyman, D.D., son of the late Samuel Abbott, was born at Roxbury, Massachusetts, Dec. 12, 1835. He graduated at the University of New York in 1854; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1856. After practising that profession for a short time he abandoned it for the study of theology, and was ordained a Congregational Minister in 1859. He was pastor of various churches until 1863, when he was appointed Secretary of the American Union (Freemen's) Committee, a position retained by him until 1868. For a portion of this time he was also pastor of the New England Church in New York, but he resigned in 1869 to devote himself to literature and journalism. He had charge of the "Literary Record" in Harper's Magazine for several years, at the same time conducting the Illustrated Christian Weekly. Subsequently he was associated with Mr. Beecher in editing the Christian Union, now called The Outlook, of which he later became (and still is) the senior editor. On Mr. Beecher's death he was invited to fill temporarily the pulpit of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, and in 1889 was settled permanently over that church. In conjunction with his brothers Austin and Benjamin he wrote two novels, "Cone-cut Corners," 1866, and "Matthew Caraby," 1868, which were published under the pseudonym of "Benauly," formed from the initial syllables of the authors' names. He is the author also of "Jesus of Nazareth, His Life and Teachings," 1869; "Old Testament Shadows of New Testament Truths," 1870; "A Dictionary of Bible Knowledge," 1872; "A Layman's Story," 1872; "Illustrated Commentary on the New Testament," 4 vols., 1875-87; "Life of Henry Ward Beecher," 1883; "For Family Worship," 1883; "In Aid of Faith," 1886; "Signs of Promise," 1889; "The Christian Workers," "Illustrated New Testament Commentary," 1895; "Christianity and Social Problems," 1896; "The Theology of an Evolutionist," 1897; in addition to which he has published a number of pamphlets among them "Results of Emancipation in the United States," 1867; and has also edited volumes of sermons of Mr. Beecher, a selection from Mr. Beecher's writings entitled "Morning and Evening Exercises," as well as "The Soul's Quest: God." The degree of D.D. was conferred upon him by the University of the City of New York in 1876, and by Harvard University in 1890.

ABBOTT, The Rev. Edwin Abbott, D.D., son of Edwin Abbott, Head Master of the Philological School, Marylebone Road, N.W. Born on Dec. 20, in London in 1838, he was educated at the City of London School (1850-57), and at St. John's College, Cambridge, of which he became a Fellow (B.A., 7th Senior Optime, Senior in the Classical Tripos, 1861; 1st class in Theological Tripos, 1862; 1st, 1864). He was Assistant Master in Edward's School, Birmingham, from 1864 to 1866, and subsequently at Clifton College till 1865, when he was appointed Head Master of the City of London School. This school was at this time in Milk Street, Cheapside; it now possesses sumptuous new buildings on the Embankment, Blackfriars, and under the Head Master's guidance has taken a position as one of the most efficient day schools in England. Dr. Abbott was twice Select Preacher at Cambridge; Hulsean Lecturer in 1876; also Select Preacher at Oxford, 1877. The Archbishop of Canterbury conferred on him the degree of D.D. in 1872. Dr. Abbott has published the following theological works: "First Lessons," 1872; "Cambridge Sermons," 1875; "Through Nature to Christ," 1876; "Oxford Sermons," 1879; the article "Gospels" in the ninth edition of Encyclopædia Britannica; and (in conjunction with Mr. W. G. Rushbrooke) "The Common Tradition of the Synoptic Gospels," 1884. His other works are "Shakespearian Grammar," 1870; "English Lessons for English People" (written in conjunction with Professor J. R. See), 1871; "How to Write Clearly," 1871; "Latin Prose through English Idioms," 1873; "The Good Voices; or, A Child's Guide to the Bible," and "Parables for Children," 1875; an English Grammar in two parts, entitled "How to Tell the Facts of Speech," and "How to Parse," 1876; an edition of Bacon's "Essays," 1876; "Bacon and Essex," 1877; a First Latin Book, entitled "Via Latina," 1880; "Home Teaching," 1883; "From Bacon, an Account of His Life and Works," 1885; and a First Latin Translation Book, entitled "The Latin Gate," 1889. Other works published anonymously, but su quently acknowledged by Dr. Abbott, are "Philochristus," 1878; "Onesimus," 1882; "Flatland; or, a Romance of Many Dimensions," 1884; and "The Kernel and the Husk," 1886. Dr. Abbott resigned the Head Mastership of the City of London School in 1889, and received a pension from the Corporation in 1890; since which he has published "Philomythus," 1891; "The Anglican Career of Cardinal Newman," 1892; a First Latin Construing Book, entitled "Dux Latinus," 1893; and "The Spirit of the Waters," 1897. Address: Wellside, Well Walk, Hampstead, N.W.

ABBOTT, The Rev. Professor Thomas Kingsmill, M.A., B.D., Litt. D., Librarian of Trinity College, Dublin, was born in Dublin on March 26, 1829, and educated at Trinity College, of which he became a Fellow in 1854, where he has held successively the Professorship of Moral Philosophy from 1867 to 1872, of Biblical Greek from 1875 to 1888, and, since 1879, of Hebrew. He is the author of various theological and philosophical works, having published, amongst others, "Sight and Touch; an Attempt to Disprove the Berkeleyan Theory of Vision," in 1864; "The Elements of Logic," in its third edition, in 1895; "Essays chiefly on the Original Texts of the Old and New Testaments," and "Short Notes on Some Epistles of St. Paul," in 1892; a "Commentary on Ephesians and Colossians," 1897; and a translation of Kant's "Ethics," with a Memoir and Kant's "Introduction to Logic." In 1880 he published a bibliographical work, "Par Palimpsestorum Dubliniensium." He married in 1859 Caroline, daughter of the Rev. Joseph Kingsmill. Address: Trinity College, Dublin.

ABD-UL-HAMID II., Sultan of Turkey, was born Sept. 22, 1842, being a younger son and the fourth child of Abd-ul-Medjid, the Sultan, who died in 1861. On August 31, 1876, he succeeded his brother, Mourad V., who was deposed, on proof of his insanity, after a reign of three months. Abd-ul-Hamid was solemnly girt with the sword of Othman in the Eyoub Mosque, Constantinople, on Sept. 7. He is a Turk and a Mussulman of the old school, and though without allies, he fought Russia rather than submit to any conditions which should bring about a disintegration of the Ottoman Empire. On April 21, 1877, Russia declared war against the Porte, and in February 1878, after the fall of Plevna and the passage of the Balkans, the Turks were compelled to sue for peace. Since the Treaty of Berlin, in 1878, the Sultan has shown no great anxiety to carry out the reforms, either in Europe or in Asia, which were therein stipulated, though in regard to Bulgaria and Eastern Roumelia he has been fairly loyal to that treaty. He was often praised by Lord Beaconsfield for his courage and ability; but of late years he has been given over to the fear of assassination, and his distrust of his ministers is proverbial. He has been at various times under English, German, and Russian influence; the last seems to be now prevailing, although his conduct towards Sir Philip Currie has been most flattering. The Sultan has never ceased to protest against the proceedings of England in Egypt, and is believed to have secretly stimulated the rebellion of Arabi. His treatment of his Christian subjects in Armenia and Crete during the past three years has stirred up against him an almost universal feeling of contempt and execration. In August 1896 an outbreak took place in Constantinople itself, which resulted in the murder of thousands of Armenian Christians in the city. The Sultan was directly accused by the ambassadors of the Powers of having instigated the perpetration of this massacre. No further steps, however, were taken, and he succeeded in emptying the city of nearly 30,000 Armenians by expulsive measures. Amongst his own Turkish subjects the successful issue of the war with Greece, in the early part of 1897, has placed him on a more secure footing. On the occasion of the marriage of his daughter, the Princess Naime, in March 1898, the Sultan arranged that dinners should be given at his expense at different points throughout Constantinople, in order that rich and poor should share in the festivities.

ABDULRAHMAN or ABDUR-RAHMAN KHAN, Ameer of Afghanistan, is a Barakzai, and was born about 1830. He is the eldest son of Afzul Khan, and nephew of the late Ameer Shere Ali. During the civil war in 1864 Abdurrahman played a leading part on the side of his father against his uncle, and gained several battles. The great victories of Shaikhabad and Khelat-i-Ghilzai were mainly due to his ability. He was entrusted with the Governorship of Balkh, where he made himself popular by his moderation, and by marrying the daughter of the chief of Badakshan. In 1868 he was unable, however, to offer a successful resistance to his cousin, Yakoub Khan, son of Shere Ali, who defeated him at Bajgah, near Bamain, and also finally at Tinah Khan. Abdurrahman then fled from the country, ultimately reaching Russian territory. General Kaufmann permitted him to reside at Samarcand, and allowed him a pension of twenty-five thousand roubles a year. He remained in Turkestan until 1879, when he slowly made his way through Balkh to the Cabul frontier, and in July of the following year he was formally chosen by the leading men of Cabul, and acknowledged by the British Indian Government, as Ameer of Afghanistan. It has been pointed out by an eminent orientalist, "that he not only occupies the throne by right of heredity and national election, but that he is also a religious Sunni ruler, who reigns over a 'God-given' country by the consensus fidelium." He has still further strengthened this strong position by the firmness and vigour of his administration. From the British Government he receives a regular subsidy of £160,000 a year, with large gifts of artillery, rifles, and ammunition to improve his military force. On Dec. 26, 1888, he was shot at by a Sepoy at Mazar-i-Sherif, but without injury. In September 1893 the Ameer cordially received a British mission headed by Sir Mortimer Durand. His sympathies are British rather than Russian, and in letters written both before and after the Durand mission, to his friend Dr. Leitner, and published by the latter, he has expressed warm friendship for England. He suffered from a serious illness in the autumn of 1894, which caused considerable anxiety in England and India. He was made a G.C.S.I. in January 1894, and was invited by the Queen to visit England. Being, however, unable to come himself, he sent his second son, the Shazada-Nasrullah Khan, who received a warm welcome, in 1895. He was suspected of conniving at the rising of the tribes along the Indo-Afghan frontier in July 1897, and he was requested by the Indian Government to prevent his subjects from participating in these revolts. His answer showed him to be thoroughly friendly to the British Government, and he gave further proof of this disposition when he refused in September to receive a deputation of Afridis which had set out for Cabul in order to beg for his aid against the English.

ABDY, John Thomas, LL.D., son of Lieut.-Colonel James Nicholas Abdy, was born July 5, 1822, and educated at the Proprietary School, Kensington, whence he proceeded to Trinity Hall, Cambridge, where he graduated as Senior in the Civil Law Tripos in 1844. In 1847 he took the degree of LL.B., and was created LL.D. in 1852. In 1850 he was elected a Fellow of his college, and in January of that year was called to the Bar by the Inner Temple. For a short time he went the Home circuit, but subsequently chose the Norfolk circuit. In 1854 he was appointed Regius-Professor of Civil Law in the University of Cambridge, and he held that office till the close of the year 1873. He is Lecturer on Law at Gresham College, London. In 1870 he was appointed Recorder of Bedford, and in the following year was promoted to be County Court Judge of Circuit No. Judge Abdy has published "An Historical Sketch of Civil Procedure among the Romans," 1857; and an edition of "Kent's Commentary on International Law," 1 In collaboration with Mr. Bryan Walker, M.A., he edited, translated, and annotated "The Commentaries of Gaius," 1870, and the "Institutes" of Justinian. He has retired from his judgeship, and in June 1898 was succeeded in the Recordership of Bedford by Mr. W. Russell Griffiths.

A BECKETT, Arthur William, youngest surviving son of the late Gilbert Abbott à Beckett, the well-known metropolitan police magistrate and man of letters (a descendant of an old West country family), by his wife Mary Anne, daughter of the late Joseph Glossop, Esq., of the Hon. Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms, was born at Portland House, Hammersmith, Oct. 25, 1844, and educated at Honiton and Felstead schools. He entered the War Office, but left the Civil Service after three years' experience of it to become, at the age of twenty, editor of the Glowworm, a London evening paper. In ten years he edited with much success several weekly periodicals and monthly magazines. In 1870-71 he was special correspondent to the Standard and Globe during the Franco-German War. For the next two years he was private secretary to the Duke of Norfolk. Since 1874 he has been on the staff of Punch, to which periodical he has contributed, among other series, "Papers from Pump-ha Court, by A. Briefless, Junior"; published in a separate volume in 1889. From 1881 to 1894 he was the editor of the Sunday Times. In 1897 he accepted the editorship of the Naval and Military Magazine. After serving for two years as Vice-President of the Newspaper Society, he was elected President for 1893-94 in succession to Sir Algernon Borthwick, Sir Charles Cameron, and Sir Edward Lawson. In 1898 he was elected Chairman of the London District of the Institute of Journalists. He is a Member of the Council and Committee of Management of the Society of Authors and an Hon. Member, "for distinguished services to journalism," of the Foreign Press Association. He is also a Capt. (retired) of the 4th Battalion (Militia) of the Cheshire Regiment. Mr. à Beckett is author of several novels and of two theatrical comedies, "L. S. D." and "Abbot Town"; a domestic drama in one act, "Strike"; "Faded Flowers"; and "L

the session of 1876 he disagreed with some of the principal measures of his party, and in 1878, when the Earls of Derby and Carnarvon resigned their offices, Lord Aberdeen heartily supported the views of these statesmen. In the debate on the Afghan war he voted against the government of Lord Beaconsfield. In 1875 he was a Member and subsequently Chairman of a Royal Commission to inquire into the subject of Railway Accidents. In 1877-78 he was a Member of the Committee of the House of Lords on Intemperance. In 1880, having by that time become a recognised member of the Liberal Party, he was appointed Lord-Lieutenant of Aberdeenshire, and High Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland in 1881 and four succeeding years. In 1885 he was Chairman of the Royal Commission on Loss of Life at Sea. In January 1886 he was appointed by Mr. Gladstone Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, with the mission of carrying out the Home Rule policy of the Government. In this capacity he was immensely popular in Ireland, and the scene in Dublin on the occasion of the "leave-taking" after the fall of the Gladstone Cabinet in July, is said to have been such as had never been witnessed there before, at least not since the departure of Lord Fitzwilliam in 1795. He was sworn of the Privy Council in 1886. Subsequently Lord and Lady Aberdeen made a trip round the world, visiting India and the principal British Colonies. In May 1893 Lord Aberdeen was appointed Governor-General of Canada. Lord Aberdeen has been largely connected with various religious and philanthropic associations, and is president of not a few such societies. Since 1891 he has been Vice-President of the Royal Colonial Institute. He was married in 1877 to Ishbel Maria, second and youngest daughter of the 1st Lord Tweedmouth, and has four children. Lady Aberdeen is well known for the interest she takes in all movements affecting the welfare of women and of the Irish peasantry. In July 1898 his retirement from the Governor-Generalship was announced. Addresses: Government House, Ottawa; Haddo House and Tarland Lodge, Aberdeenshire.

ABERGAVERN (Marquis of), Sir William Nevill, K.G., was born in 1826, and is the son of the fourth Earl of Abergavenny. He succeeded as fifth Earl in 1868, and was created Marquis in 1876. He is Lord-Lieutenant of Sussex. He married in 1848 Caroline, daughter of Sir J. V. B. Johnstone. Addresses: 64 Eccleston Square, S.W.; and Bridge Castle, Tunbridge Wells.

ABNEY, Captain William de lealie, C.B., D.C.L., F.R.S., was born Derby on July 24, 1844, and is the son of Canon Abney. He was educated at Rossall, and privately, and at the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich. He was appointed lieutenant in the Royal Engineers in 1861, and captain in 1865. He was formerly Instructor in Chemistry to the Royal Engineers, Chatham, and now Director for Science in the Science and Art Department. He was President of the Royal Astronomical Society from 1895, and of the Physical Society, 1895 to 1897. He was one of the scientific observers of the transit of Venus in 1874. His works are: "Instruction in Photography," 1870; "Treatise on Photogrammetry," 1875; "Colour Vision, Colourment and Mixture," 1893; "Thoughts on the Five Greater Temples," 1876; "The Pioneers of the Alps," written in conjunction with C. D. Cunningham, 1876. He is the author also of many papers in the Philosophical Transactions, and the Proceedings of the Royal Society and the Philosophical Magazine. He obtained Rumford Medal of the Royal Society in 1883 for his researches in photography and spectrum analysis. Address: Measham Hall, Leicestershire; Ratcliffe Lodge, Bolton Gardens, South, S.W.; and Athenæum.

ABRAHAM, Miss M. See TENNAN MRS.

ABRAHAM, William ("Mabon" M.P. for the Rhondda Valley Division, Glamorganshire, was born in 1842, and son of the late Mr. T. Abraham, a workman, miner, collier, and copper smelter. Educated at Carnarvon village school, he has been a miners' agent from 1873 onward and in 1885 was returned to Parliament for the Rhondda Valley, retaining his seat ever since. He is Vice-President of the Monmouth and South Wales Mining Association, J.P. for Glamorganshire, and Member of the Royal Commission on Labour and Mining Royalties. He is prominently identified with Labour questions, especially as they affect Welsh miners, and is a warm supporter of the Eistedfodd and all that implies in the literary and social life of the Welsh. "Mabon" is Mr. Abraham's bardic name. Addresses: 6 Llewellyn Street, Pentre, Pontypridd; and 8 Suffolk Street, S.W.

ACLAND, The Right Hon. Arthur Herbert Dyke, M.A., M.P., late Vice-President of the Council of Education, is the third son of the late Right Hon. Sir Thomas Dyke Acland, Bart., and was born in 1847. He was educated at Rugby and Christ Church, Oxford, matriculating at the University in May 1866, and taking his B.A. degree in 1870 and his M.A. in 1873. He was ordained about this time, but afterwards retired under the Clerical Disabilities Relief Act of 1870. At Oxford he was for long a prominent don, having been appointed successively Hon. Fellow and Senior Bursar of Balliol and Steward of Christ Church. His interest in economic questions and politics was always keen, and when at Christ Church, he gathered round him a group of similarly-minded dons and undergraduates, who were known as "The Inner Circle." From 1875 to 1877 he was Principal of the Oxford Military School at Cowley. In 1885 he entered Parliament as Liberal member for the Rotherham Division of Yorkshire, and has, since 1886, continued to represent that constituency as a Gladstonian. He has been very prominent, in Parliament and out of it, in promoting the cause of Intermediate and Technical Education, and in August 1892 was appointed Vice-President of the Council of Education, a position which he held till the change of Government in 1895. He is author of a "Handbook Political History of England" and of "Working-men Co-operators." He married, in 1873, Alice Sophia, eldest daughter of the Rev. Francis Cunningham. Addresses: 28 Cheyne Walk, S.W.; Westholme, Scarborough; and Athenæum.

ACLAND, Sir Charles† Thomas Dyke, M.A., son of the late Right Hon. Sir Thomas Dyke Acland, 11th Baronet, was born July 16, 1842, and succeeded to the baronetcy in May 1898. He was educated at Bradfield, Eton, and Christ Church, Oxford, where he obtained third-class honours in Classics in 1866. He is a barrister, a Deputy Warden of the Stannaries, and was formerly Lieut.-Colonel of the 1st Devon Yeomanry Cavalry. He sat in Parliament as member for East Cornwall from 1882 to 1885, and represented North Cornwall from 1885 to 1892. He was appointed a Church Estates Commissioner in 1886, and was Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade from February to August of the same year. He is a Justice of the Peace for Devon, Somerset, and Cornwall, is an Alderman of the Devon County Council, and has been Chairman of the Technical Education Committee of the Devon County Council from its beginning. He is besides a Vice-President of the Bath and West of England and Southern Counties Agricultural Society, and has acted on various occasions as chairman of the different committees of this society. In 1879 he was married to Gertrude, daughter of Sir John Walrond Walrond, Bart. Addresses: Holincote, Taunton;

Killerton, Exeter; 50 Lennox Gardens, S.W.; and Athenæum.

ACLAND, Sir Henry Wentworth, Bart., K.C.B., F.R.S., Emeritus Regius-Professor of Medicine in the University of Oxford; Radcliffe Librarian, Oxford; Hon. D.C.L. of Cambridge, Edinburgh, Durham, and Hon. M.D. Dublin, C.R. Empire of Brazil, Member of various Medical and Scientific Societies in Athens, Christiania, and the United States, is the fourth son of the late Sir Thomas Dyke Acland, tenth baronet. He was born in 1815, and educated at Harrow and Christ Church, Oxford, and was elected, in 1841, to a Fellowship at All Souls. He took the degree of M.D. at Oxford in 1848, having been appointed Lee's Reader in Anatomy in 1845. In that capacity, with several able assistants, especially Professors Beale, Victor Carnus, Melville, and Mr. Charles Robertson, he made the extensive Christ Church Physiological Series, on the plan of John Hunter, now in the Oxford University Museum—an institution to the foundation of which Dr. Acland's labours contributed not a little, his aim being to lay the foundation, on the widest basis, of a complete study of the Kosmos in the old classical university. He published, in 1859, with Mr. Ruskin, a short account of the aims of the Museum in "The Oxford Museum," republished in 1894, with additions by Mr. Ruskin and himself. He became Regius-Professor of Medicine in 1858, and Radcliffe Librarian, and is Curator of the Oxford University Galleries and of the Bodleian Library. He was appointed a member of Mr. Gathorne Hardy's Cubic Space Commission in 1866, and of the Royal Sanitary Commission from 1869 to 1872. He represented the University of Oxford on the Medical Council from 1858 to 1875; has been President of the British Medical Association, of the Physiological section of the British Association, and of the Public Health section of the Social Science Association. He published a treatise on "The Plains of Troy" in 1839, with a large careful drawing made on the spot in 1838. He has written several works on medical, scientific, and educational subjects, including an important sanitary work under the title of "Memoir on the Visitation of Cholera in Oxford in 1854," and another, called "Village Health," in 1884. He accompanied the Prince of Wales to America in 1860, and on his return was appointed honorary physician to his Royal Highness. Sir Henry Acland was also Physician to H.R.H. Prince Leopold during his Oxford career. From 1870 to 1872 he was member of the Sanitary Commission, was President of the General Medical Council from 1874 to 1887, and was made en. Amongst her other works are Les Mandarins, "Mon" 1859; "Le Mandarin," "Mon" 1860; "Récits d'une Paysanne," "Voyage autour du Grand-Père," "Récits du Golfe Juan," 1865; "Les Alpes," 1867; "Saine et" 1870; "Laide," 1878; "Painne," "Poètes Grecs Contemporains," "La Patrie Hongroise; Souvenirs" 3rd edit., 1884; "Le Général" 1886; "Jalousie de Jeune" 1889. She is also credited with written the studies of foreign — Berlin, Vienna, London, St.urg, Madrid, and Rome—published the pseudonym of "Count Paul" which appeared within the years . In 1879 Mme. Adam started la Revue, which she continues to ; with great ability, and personally ates the fortnightly articles on politics. Her "Mémoires," begun are promised us. Her address in 190 Boulevard Maiesherbes, where, he Empire, she kept up her famous salon.

AM (Lord), James Adam, Judge Court of Session and Commissioner ciary, Scotland, was born in Edin- on Oct. 31, 1824, and is the son of adam, S.S.C. He was educated at demy and University, Edinburgh. Advocate-Depute from 1858 to 1859, 36 to 1867, and in 1874. In the latter was also Sheriff of Perthshire. In rose to the Bench. Addresses: 34 'lace, Edinburgh; and Athenæum.

MS, Charles Francis, great- n of John Adams, the second t of the United States, born in May 27, 1835, graduated at l College in 1856, and admitted to in 1858. At the breaking out of r of the Rebellion in 1861 he the army, in which he served une 1865, attaining the rank of e of Cavalry. At the close of the was breveted Brigadier-General. ently he identified himself with s connected with the development railroad system, and in 1869 was d one of the Board of Railroad sioners of Massachusetts, which he resigned in 1879. In June became President of the Union ilway Company, resigning there- November 1890. He has contri- number of articles to the North s Review, and in connection with ject of railroads is the author of ter of Erie, 1869; "The Railroad," 1875; "Railroads, their Origin blems," 1878; and "Notes on Accidents," 1879. He delivered at Cambridge, in 1883, the Phi Beta Kappa oration, entitled "A College Fetish." Since resigning the Presidency of the Union Pacific he has devoted himself to literature and historical research, publishing the "Life of Richard Henry Dana," in 1890; "Three Episodes of Massachusetts History," in 1892; and "Massachusetts, its Historians and its History," in 1893. In addition to the above he has contributed a number of papers on historical topics to the Proceedings of the Massachusetts Historical Society, of which society he is a Vice-President.

ADAMS, Charles Kendall, LL.D., was born at Derby, Vermont, Jan. 24, 1835. A.B. (Univ. of Michigan), 1861. He was appointed Assistant Professor of History and Latin at the University of Michigan in 1863, becoming full Professor in 1868. In 1881 he was made Non-Resident Professor of History at Cornell University, where, in July 1885, he succeeded to the Presidency on the resignation of President White. While at the former university he reorganised the methods of instruction in history substantially in accordance with the German system, and in 1869-70 founded an historical seminary, which was very efficient in promoting the study of history and political science. He was also made Dean of the School of Political Science on its establishment at the University of Michigan. In 1890 he was elected President of the American Historical Association. In 1892 he resigned the Presidency of Cornell University and accepted the Presidency of the University of Wisconsin. He has published "Democracy and Monarchy in France," 1874; "Manual of Historical Literature," 1882, 3rd edit. 1889; "Representative British Orations," 3 vols., 1884; "Christopher Columbus: His Life and Work," 1892; and in 1892 became editor-in-chief of "Johnson's Universal Cyclopædia." He is also the author of a large number of pamphlets and papers on historical and educational subjects.

ADAMS, William, F.R.C.S., was born in London Feb. 1, 1820, his father being a surgeon in Finsbury Square. He was educated at Mr. W. Simpson's, Hackney, and afterwards at King's College, London. He was appointed in 1842 Demonstrator of Morbid Anatomy at St. Thomas's Hospital; in 1851 Assistant Surgeon; and in 1857 Surgeon to the Royal Orthopædic Hospital; in 1854 Lecturer on Surgery at the Grosvenor Place School of Medicine; in 1855 Surgeon to the Great Northern Hospital; and in 1874 Surgeon to the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic. Mr. Adams was elected Vice-President of the Pathological Society of London in 1867; President of the Harveian Society of London in 1873; and President of the Medical Society of London in 1876. He is the author of "A Sketch of the Principles and Practice of Subcutaneous Surgery," 1857; "On the Reparative Process in Human Tendons after Division," 1860; "Lectures on Pathology and Treatment of Lateral Curvature of the Spine," 1865, 2nd edit. 1882; "On the Pathology and Treatment of Club-foot," 1866 (being the Jacksonian Prize Essay of the Royal College of Surgeons for 1864), 2nd edit. 1873; "Subcutaneous Division of the Neck of the Thigh Bone for Bony Anchylosis of the Hip-Joint," 1871; "On the Treatment of Dupuytren's Contraction of the Fingers; and on the Obliteration of Depressed Cicatrices by Subcutaneous Operation," 1879, 2nd edit. 1890; "On Congenital Displacement of the Hip-Joint," 1890; "Congenital Wry-Neck," in the Trans. of the Amer. Orthop. Assoc., 1896, &c. Address: 7 Loudoun Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.

ADAMS, William Davenport, author, critic, and journalist, son of the late well-known author W. H. Davenport Adams, was born in 1851, and educated at Merchant Taylors' School and Edinburgh University. He contributed to boys' magazines at an early age, and began regular journalistic work in 1870. He has been editor of five newspapers, daily and weekly, and since 1885 has been on the editorial staff of the Globe as head of its Reviewing Department, besides contributing much to the press at large. As a literary and dramatic critic he is well known. His chief publications include "A Dictionary of English Literature" and "English Epigrams," 1878; "The Witty and Humorous Side of the English Poets," 1880; "By-Ways in Bookland," 1888; "A Book of Burlesque," 1891; "With Poet and Player," 1891; "A Dictionary of the Drama," and several anthologies in prose and verse. His wife, Mrs. Estelle Davenport Adams, is the compiler of "Flower and Leaf," 1884; "Sea-Song and River Rhyme," 1887; and the "Poets' Praise of Poets," 1894. Address: Globe Office, 367 Strand, W.C.

ADAMS, Professor William Grylls, M.A., D.Sc., F.R.S., was born at Launceston, Cornwall, and is the brother of the famous astronomer John Couch Adams. He was appointed Professor of Natural Philosophy and Astronomy at King's College, London, in 1863, a post which he still retains. He is a Member of Council of the Royal Society, and is Vice-President of the Physical Society. He was President of the Mathematical and Physical Section of the British Association at Swansea 1880, and delivered the Presidential Address. He has published many papers on physical subjects in the Philosophical Transactions, Nature, the Philosophical Magazine, and kindred journals. Address: 43 Campden-Hill Square, W.

ADAMS-ACTON, John, sculptor, born Dec. 11, 1836, at Acton, Middlesex and educated at Ealing Grove School, was admitted to the Royal Academy in 1855 where he gained the first silver medal for each school and also the gold medal for an original composition in sculpture, subject—"Eve Supplicating Forgiveness for the Feet of Adam." He was sent to Rome by the Royal Academy as travelling student. His principal works in ideal sculpture produced in Rome and in England are: "The Lady of the Lake," "The First Sacrifice" (Abel), "Il Giuocatore di Castelletto," "Pharaoh's Daughter," "Zenobia," "Cupid," "Psyche," and Morris's "Earthly Paradise." Mr. Adams Acton has executed portrait statues and busts of Mr. Gladstone (St. George's Hall, Liverpool), Lord Brougham (Reform and Fishmongers' Hall), Mr. Bright (Seaforth Hall, and the National Liberal Club), the last bust for which Mr. Bright gave sittings), Mr. Cobden, Sir Wilfrid Lawson, George Cruikshank, John Gibson (Royal Academy), George Moore, Charles Dickens, Dr. Jobson, and John Prescott Knight R.A.; also the following statues and busts for India: The Prince of Wales, Lord Napier of Magdala, and E. Powell (for Madras). The most important monuments executed by him are the Angel of the Resurrection, Mausoleum of Sir Titus Salt at Saltaire, Memorial to John and Charles Wesley in Westminster Abbey, the Waldegrave Memorial in Carlisle Cathedral, Charles Prest, Rev. John Farrar, and Sir Francis Lycett in the City Road Chapel, a bust of Mr. George Routledge, J.P., and a half-length portrait of Mr. John Landseer, A.R.A., reading a book. Address: 8 Langford Place, St. John's Wood, N.W.

ADDERLEY, The Hon. and Rev. James Granville, M.A., is the fifth son of the first Lord Morton, and was born on July 1, 1861. He was educated at Eton and Christ Church, Oxford, where he gained a third class in the School of Modern History in 1882. At the University he was distinguished as an amateur actor, and in 1879 he founded the Philothespian Club, which in time became the Oxford University Dramatic Society. At College he also began to interest himself in those social movements with which he is now prominently identified, and was Head of Oxford House, Bethnal Green, from 1885 to 1886. In 1887 he took orders, and was ordained Priest in 1888. From 1887 to 1893 he was Head of the Christ Church, Oxford, Mission; and has been successively Curate of Allhallows, Barking, from 1893 to 1894, and of St. Andrew's, Plaistow, E., from 1894 to 1897. In the latter year he was appointed Minister of Berkeley Chapel, Mayfair. He labours with a small Brotherhood of Mercy, and is on the Council of the Christian Society Union. One of his best-known works is "Stephen Remarx," a religious novelette, published in 1893. He has also written "Fight for the Drama at Oxford," 1885; "The New Floreat, a Letter to an Eton Boy," 1895; "Social Prayers," "God's Fast," and "Looking Upward," 1896; and "Paul Mercer," 1897. Address: Berkeley Chapel, W.

ADLER, Felix, Ph.D., was born at Alzey, Germany, Aug. 13, 1851. He went to America when young, and graduated at Columbia College (N.Y.) in 1870, and subsequently studied at Berlin and Heidelberg, where he obtained the degree of Ph.D. in 1873. He was Professor of Hebrew and Oriental Languages and Literature at Cornell University from 1874 to 1876, and since then has been at the head of the Ethical Society of New York (the first of a number of similar societies now spread over the United States and other countries), a new religious society established by him, which he addresses every Sunday, and which maintains a number of charities. His principal works are "Creed and Deed," 1877, and "The Moral Instruction of Children," 1892; in addition to which he has contributed many papers to periodical literature.

ADLER, The Rev. Hermann, Ph.D., M.A., son of Dr. Nathan Marcus Adler, was born in Hanover on May 29, 1839, and in 1845 accompanied his father to London when the latter received his call as Chief Rabbi. He studied at University College, London, and subsequently at the Universities of Prague and Leipzig. He obtained his B.A. degree at the University of London in 1859, and that of Doctor of Philosophy at Leipzig in 1861. In 1862, having completed his theological studies under his father and the famous Rapoport, Chief Rabbi of Prague, he was ordained as Rabbi by the latter. In 1863 Dr. Adler was appointed Principal of the Jews' College in London, and in the following year Chief Minister of the Bayswater Synagogue. When the health of his father, the Chief Rabbi, began to fail in 1879, he was appointed his coadjutor, with the title of Delegate Chief Rabbi. In 1891 he served as a Member of the Mansion House Committee constituted for the relief of the persecuted Jews of Russia. In this capacity he attended, in conjunction with Sir Julian Goldsmid, M.P., conferences of representatives of the principal Hebrew congregations in Europe and the United States, held in Paris and Berlin. In 1885 he went to the Holy Land, and visited several of the colonies founded there by Russian refugees. In 1888 he gave evidence before the Select Committee of the House of Lords on the sweating system. After the death of his father he was elected Chief Rabbi of the United Hebrew Congregations of the British Empire by the unanimous vote of the Delegates of the various committees, and was installed at a solemn service held at the Great Synagogue on June 23, 1891. Dr. Adler has aided in the establishment of many benevolent and educational institutions in his community. He was one of the founders of the Bayswater Jewish Schools, has assisted in establishing religious classes in connection with the Board Schools in the East of London, and helped to start a fund for subventoning poor ministers in the provinces. He is President of the Jews' College for the Training of Ministers and Teachers, founded by his father, and one of the Vice-Presidents of the Anglo-Jewish Association, of the Jewish Religious Education Board, and of numerous other institutions. He is also a member, and was in 1897 President, of the Jewish Historical Society of England, founded during recent years. Dr. Adler is one of the Vice-Presidents of the Mansion House Council for the Dwellings of the Poor, and in this capacity he has formed a local branch for Paddington. He is an active member of the Hospital Sunday Fund, and of the Prince of Wales's Hospital Fund, a member of the Mansion House Committee to consider the best means of dealing with the distress in London caused by lack of employment, and is one of the administrators of the People's Palace. He has also written much on religious, social, and literary themes. He is the joint author of "A Jewish Reply to Dr. Colenso's Criticism on the Pentateuch," 1865. He has published "Sermons on the Passages in the Bible adduced by Christian Theologians in Support of their Faith," 1869; "The Jews in England"; "The Chief Rabbis of England"; "Ibn Gabirol, the Poet Philosopher"; "The Purpose and Methods of Charitable Relief"; "Hebrew, the Language of our Prayers"; "A Pilgrimage to Zion: A Father's Barmitzvah Exhortation"; "The Sabbath and the Synagogue"; Sermons in memoriam of Sir George Jessel, Master of the Rolls, Sir Moses Montefiore, and the Baroness de Rothschild; "Is Judaism

a Missionary Faith?" in answer to Professor Max Müller; "The Ideal Jewish Pastor"; "The Functions of the Jewish Pulpit"; "The Nation's Lament for the Duke of Clarence"; "The Loss of H.M.S. Victoria"; "The Jews in the Victorian Era," &c. The Chief Rabbi has published also "Comments in Hebrew on the Pass-over Ritual," and many lectures and articles which have appeared in various periodicals, more especially in the Nineteenth Century, in which review he conducted a vigorous polemic against Professor Goldwin Smith, and vindicated his co-religionists against the charge of "Incivism." He has taken part in Symposia on the Foundation of Belief in Immortality; on Irresponsible Wealth; and delivered lectures on the Wisdom and Wit of the Talmud; Sanitation as taught by the Mosaic Law; Jewish Wit and Humour; Menasse ben Israel; Moses Mendelssohn, &c. In 1867 he married Rachel, elder daughter of the late S. Joseph, by whom he has issue one son and two daughters. His City residence and office are at 22 Finsbury Square; his West End residence at 6 Craven Hill.

ADYE, General Sir John Miller, G.C.B., son of the late Major James P. Aye, R.A., was born on Nov. 1, 1819, at Sevenoaks, Kent, and entered the Royal Artillery at the close of the year 1836. Throughout the Crimean War and the Indian Mutiny he was Adjutant-General of the Royal Artillery. He also served in the Sitana Campaign of 1863-64, for which he received a medal; and he has received besides, the Crimean, Turkish, and Indian Mutiny medals, and the 4th Class of the Medjidieh. He was created a C.B. in 1855, and a K.C.B. in 1873. In February 1874 the Queen granted to Sir J. M. Aye her royal licence and authority to accept and wear the insignia of Commander of the Order of the Legion of Honour conferred upon him by the President of the French Republic as a promotion from the class of Officer of the same Order which he received for his services during the Crimean War. He was Director of Artillery from 1870 to 1875, and was appointed Governor of the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich in July 1875. He became a Lieutenant-General in the army in 1879. In 1880 he resigned the post of Governor of the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich on being appointed Surveyor-General of Ordnance. The following year he became Colonel-Commandant of the Royal Artillery. He was Chief of the Staff and second in command of the expeditionary force sent to Egypt in 1882, and for his services he received the Egyptian medal and Khedive's star, the thanks of Parliament, the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath, and the 1st Class of In January 1883 he was appointed Governor of Gibraltar, in succession to Lord Napier of Magdala, from which pointment he retired in November. Sir John Aye is the author of "Defence of Cawnpore by the British under the Orders of Major-General C. Windham in Nov. 1857," 1858; "A Review of the Crimean War to the 1854-55," 1860; "Sitana: a Memoir of the Campaign on the Borders of Afghanistan in 1863," 1867; "Recollections of Military Life," 1895; "Indian Policy," 1897. He married in 1867 Cordelia, eldest daughter of the late Admiral the Hon. Sir Montagu Stopford, K.C.B. Residence, 92 St. George's Square, S.W.

AFLALO, Frederick George, born in London on the 17th of April 1870. He was educated at Clifton College and at Rostock University, Mecklenburg, and during 1891 he pursued his studies in Italy. In 1895 he travelled in Australia, giving his attention more especially to Queensland. He founded the British Anglers' Society in 1893; and he is editor of the Encyclopedia of Sport, and of the Angler's Library. He is the author of "Sea Fishing on the English Coast," 1892; "The Sea, and the Rod, and the Reel," (in conjunction), 1892; "Sunny Days on the Sea," (in conjunction), 1893; "Hints and Wrinkles on Sea-Fishing," 1894; "A Sketch of the Natural History of Australia," 1896; "A Sketch of the Natural History (Vertebrates) of the British Islands," 1897; "Sea Fish," 1897. He has also edited "The Literary Year Book," 1897 and 1897. Address: 50 Carlton Hill, N.W.

AGNEW, Sir William, Bart., son of the late Thomas Agnew, Esq., of Manchester, was born Oct. 20, 1825. He was educated privately in Manchester by the Rev. J. H. Smithson. He is a J.P. for Lancashire, Manchester, and Salford. He was for many years senior member of the firm of Thomas Agnew & Sons, London, Liverpool, and Manchester, and he is still Chairman of Bradbury, Agnew & Co., the proprietors and publishers of Punch. He was M.P. for South-East Lancashire in 1880, and for the Stretford division of that county in 1885. He unsuccessfully contested the Prestwick division of the county in 1892. A Liberal in politics, he was President of the Salford Liberal Association, President of the Manchester Reform Club, and one of the founders of the Devonshire and National Liberal Club. He was Chairman of the Art Committee of the great Jubilee Exhibition in Man-

Aester in 1887, was on the Royal Commission of the Melbourne Centenary Edition, and is a Member of the Royal Commission for the Paris Exhibition of 1889. He married in 1851 Mary, the daughter of George Pixton Kennedy, Esq., of Peel Hall, Lancashire, who died in 1892. His son and heir, George William, was born in 1852. Address: 11 Great Stanhope Street, Park Lane, W.

AIDÉ, C. Hamilton, was born in Paris, his father being a Greek, and his mother the daughter of Sir George Collier. He was educated at Bonn University, served for a few years in the army, and then turned his attention to literature. Amongst his publications may be mentioned: "Rita," "The Marstons," "Mr. and Mrs. Faulconbridge," "Morals and Stories," "A Voyage of Discovery," "Poet and Peer," &c. In 1872 he wrote "Play," "Philip," which was produced by Henry Irving, and in 1874 the Kendals and John Hare played his "A Nine Days' Wonder." He has also written "A Great Catch," and has adapted "Doctor Bill" from the French. Mr. Aidé is, moreover, known as a ballad writer, his best-known songs being perhaps "The Danube River" and "Remember or Forget." Addresses: Ascot Wood Cottage, Ascot; and Athenæum.

AIKINS, The Hon. James Cox, a Canadian statesman, was born in the township of Toronto, county Peel, Ontario, March 30, 1823. He was educated at Victoria College, Cobourg, and entered public life in 1854 by representing his native county in the Canadian Assembly, which he continued to do until 1861. In the following year he was elected a Member of the Legislative Council for the "Home" Division, comprising the counties of Peel and Halton. He continued to sit in the Council until it was abolished by Confederation, after which he was raised to the Senate. In December 1869 he became a Member of the Privy Council, and entered the Macdonald Government as Secretary of State, remaining in that office until the fall of the Government in 1873. In 1872 he framed and carried through Parliament the Public Lands Act of that year, and subsequently organised the Dominion Lands Bureau, a department of government entrusted with the management of the lands acquired in the North-West, chiefly from the Hudson's Bay Company, a department which is now controlled by the Canadian Minister of the Interior. On the return of the Macdonald Government to power in 1878 Senator Aikins resumed the portfolio of

Secretary of State, exchanging it two years later for the office of Minister of Inland Revenue. In 1882 he was appointed Lieutenant-Governor of the province of Manitoba and district of Keewatin, an office which he retained until his term expired in 1888, when he returned to Toronto, and in 1896 was again called to the Senate. He received the degree of LL.D. from Victoria College in 1892.

AINGER, Canon Alfred, M.A., LL.D., Master of the Temple, was born in London on Feb. 9, 1837, and is the son of Alfred Ainger, architect. He was educated at King's College and at Trinity Hall, Cambridge. He took orders, and was ordained Priest in 1863. From 1860 to 1864 he was Curate of Alrewas, Lichfield, and from the latter year to 1866 was Assistant Master at the Sheffield Collegiate School. In 1866 he was appointed Reader at the Temple Church, a position he continued to hold until 1893. In 1894 he was appointed Master of the Temple, in succession to the late Dean Vaughan, who had resigned the Mastership owing to ill-health. He is a Canon of Bristol and Chaplain in Ordinary to the Queen. As an author, Canon Ainger is best known for his editions of Lamb's Collected Works, and for his "Mémorial of Charles Lamb." He has also published "Sermons Preached in the Temple Church." Addresses: Master's House, Temple, E.C.; and Athenæum.

AITCHISON, George, R.A., architect, Athenæum Club, was born at 52 Edgware Road, London, went to Merchant Taylors' School until his sixteenth year, was then articled to his father, George Aitchison, architect, and became student of the Royal Academy in 1847, and subsequently entered University College, London, where he gained prizes for mathematics, and graduated B.A. at the London University in 1850. From 1853 to 1855 he travelled in France, Switzerland, and Italy; was elected a Fellow of the Royal Institute of British Architects in 1862; subsequently became a Member of the Council, and in 1889 was elected Vice-President, and President in 1896. He was for several years one of the examiners for the Voluntary Architectural examination, and is also one of the examiners for the National Art Prizes at South Kensington. Mr. Aitchison gained medals at the following exhibitions, viz.: Philadelphia, 1876; Sydney, 1879; Adelaide, 1887; and two at Melbourne—a bronze in 1881, and silver in 1888; and one at Chicago in 1893; was made an Officer of Public Instruction by the French Government in 1879, having designed the fittings and furniture for the British Art section of the Paris Exhibition, 1878. On June 2, 1881, he was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy, and R.A. in 1898. He gave lectures on architecture at the Royal Academy in 1882, '83, '84, '85, '86, and '87. In 1885 he was elected a Corresponding Member of the Société Centrale des Architectes Français, in Paris; was elected Professor of Architecture at the Royal Academy in 1887; in 1888 he gave the Cantor Lectures on Decoration at the Society of Arts, and lectured on Renaissance Architecture at the South Kensington Museum in 1893. He decorated Kensington Palace for H.R.H. the Princess Louise, and the house and Arab hall for Sir Frederick Leighton, P.R.A., and did the coloured decoration of the Livery Hall for the Goldsmiths' Company. He has added to, altered, and decorated houses for the Duke of Montrose, Lord Hillingdon, the Duchess of Newcastle, Lord Leconfield, Sir Wilfrid Lawson, M.P., Sir S. Waterlow, M.P., and others; and has built 60 and 61 Mark Lane, E.C., Founders' Hall, and the Royal Exchange Assurance Office, 29 Pall Mall, London. He was presented with H.M. the Queen's Jubilee medal, 1897; and nominated for the gold medal of the R.I.B.A. in 1898. In 1897 he was elected A.R.A. of the Royal Academy of Belgium. He is one of the contributors to the "Dictionary of National Biography."

AKERS-DOUGLAS, Right Hon. Aretas, M.P., D.L., eldest son of the late Rev. Aretas Akers, of Malling Abbey, Kent, was born Oct. 21, 1851, and educated at Eton and at University College, Oxford. He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1874, and in 1875 assumed the additional name of Douglas. In 1880 he entered Parliament as Conservative member for the East Kent Division, and now represents the St. Augustine's Division. In Lord Salisbury's administrations of 1885-86 and 1886-92 he held the office of Parliamentary Secretary to the Treasury, and was principal "Whip" to the Conservative party from 1885 to 1895. He was made a Privy Councillor in 1891. In 1895 he entered the cabinet, holding the office of First Commissioner of Public Works and Buildings. Addresses: Chilston Park, Maidstone; 106 Mount Street, W.

A.K.H.B. See BOYD, THE REV. A. K. H.

ALBANI, Madame. See GYE, MADAME.

ALBANY (Duchess of), H.R.H. Hélène Fredrica Augusta, the daughter of the Prince and Princess of Waldeck-

Pyrmont, and sister of the Queen of Netherlands, was born on Feb. 17, 1810. She married H.R.H. the late Prince Leopold, Her Majesty's youngest son, April 27, 1882, and became a widow by his sudden death at Cannes on March 1884. The Princess lost her mother in 1834. She has two children, one of whom was born after the Prince's death; the Princess Alice Mary Victoria Augusta Pauline, born at Windsor Castle, Feb. 25, 1882, and the Prince Leopold Charles Edward George Albert, Duke of Albany, born at Claremont, July 19, 1884. The Princess receives a pension of £6000 a year from the British Government.

ALBERT, King of Saxony, K.C. born April 23, 1828; succeeded his father Oct. 29, 1873. He received a thorough military education, and took part in the Danish war of 1848. He fought also on the side of the Austrians in the disastrous battle of Sadowa in 1866, and likewise in the Franco-German war in the operations before Metz, and in the operations which terminated in the surrender of Napoleon at Sedan, and the siege of Paris when he held the right bank of the Seine. On the conclusion of the war he was made Field-Marshal and Inspector-General of the German Army. He married Caroline, the daughter of Prince Gustavus Vasa of Sweden. His heir is his brother, Prince George.

ALBERT (Archduke of Austria), Frederick Rodolph, born Aug. 3, 1817, is the son of the late Archduke Charles and the Princess Henrietta of Nassau-Weilburg. He married in 1844 the Princess Hildegarde of Bavaria, who died April 2, 1864, leaving two daughters. At an early age he entered the army, commanded a division in Italy in 1849, took an important part in the battle of Novara, received at the end of the campaign the command of the 3rd Corps d'Armée, and was afterwards appointed Governor-General of Hungary. During a leave of absence accorded to Field-Marshal Benedek in 1861 he was appointed to the command of the Austrian troops in Lombardy and Venetia. During the campaign of 1866 he gained a victory over the Italian army at Custozza, and after the battle of Sadowa he was made (July 13, 1866) Commander-in-Chief of the Austrian Army, which title he retained till March 1869, when he exchanged it for that of Inspector-General of the Army. He published in 1869 a work on "Responsibility in War" (Über die Verantwortlichkeit im Kriege). This has been translated into French by L. Dufour, captain of artillery, and an English translation of it is given in Captain

Life" and "Sunlight and Shadow." With the last-named play Mr. Alexander proceeded to the St. James's, which, under his management, has since been famous for such successes as "The Idler," "Lady Windermere's Fan," "Liberty Hall," "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," "The Masqueraders," "The Prisoner of Zenda," "As You Like It," "The Princess and the Butterfly," "The Tree of Knowledge," "Much Ado About Nothing," and "The Conquerors." In 1882 Mr. Alexander married Miss Florence Theleur. Address: 57 Pont Street, S.W.

ALEXANDER, The Most Rev. William, D.D., D.C.L., Archbishop of Armagh and Primate of All Ireland, son of a clergyman beneficed in the north of Ireland, and nephew of Dr. Alexander, late Bishop of Meath, and cousin of the Earl of Caledon, was born at Londonderry, April 13, 1824. He was educated at Tunbridge School and at Exeter and Brasenose Colleges, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. and M.A. He graduated in classical honours (Honorary 4th, 1847). He won the Theological Prize Essay in 1850, and the Sacred Prize Poem in 1860, and was selected to recite a congratulatory ode to Lord Derby in the Sheldonian Theatre, 1853. Having entered Holy Orders, he served a curacy in the north of Ireland, and was preferred to one or two livings in the gift of the Bishop of Derry. He was formerly Rector of Camusjuxta-Morne, co. Tyrone, and Chaplain to the Marquis of Abercorn, Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland. In 1864 he was nominated to the Deanery of Emly, and in 1867 was an unsuccessful candidate for the chair of poetry at Oxford. He was appointed to the Bishopric of Derry and Raphoe, rendered vacant by the death of Dr. Higgin, July 12, 1867, being consecrated in Armagh Cathedral, October 13 following; and enthroned as Archbishop of Armagh, March 24, 1896. Before his elevation to the episcopal Bench he was created D.D. by diploma, and subsequently D.C.L. at the Encenia, 1876, at Oxford. The Bishop has been Select Preacher before the Universities of Oxford (1870-72 and 1882), Cambridge (1872 and 1892), and Dublin (1879). He is author of Commentaries on Colossians, 1st and 2nd Thessalonians, Philemon, and the three Epistles of St. John; vols. iii., iv., "Speaker's Commentaries"; of "The Witness of the Psalms, Bampton Lectures," 1876; of "The Great Question, and other Sermons," 1885; of "Epistles of St. John, Twenty-one Discourses," 3rd edit., 1892, and of other works of a similar character. In 1887 he published a volume of poems, entitled "St. Augustine's Holiday, and other Poems." He is also the author of a large series of single charges and reviews, essays and in periodicals of the day. The has endowed his See permanently £2000 a year and the See House, which he has received the thanks of Diocesan Synod of Derry and Raphoe, a recognition from the Diocesan Council of "gratitude for his large sacrifice income." He was married to Miss Frances Humphreys, who was herself known as the author of "Moral Songs," "Hymns for Children," and "Poems Old Testament Subjects," and who died Oct. 15, 1895.

ALEXANDER, William Henry, Hampshire country gentleman, was born 1842. He became a barrister in 1863, and since 1890 has been a Trustee of the National Portrait Gallery, towards the end of which he subscribed £80,000.

ALEXANDRA, Princess of Wales, See WALES, PRINCESS OF.

ALFONZO XIII., King of Spain, was born (posthumously) May 17, 1886; mother, Maria Christina, being appointed Queen Regent. In August 1897 Queen Victoria made him an Hon. Knight Grand Cross of the Royal Victorian Order.

ALFORD, The Right Rev. Charles Richard, D.D., formerly Bishop of Victoria, Hong-kong, was born Aug. 13, 1816 at West Quaxtonhead, Somersetshire, at which parish his father was rector. From St. Paul's School he was sent to Trinity College, Cambridge, with a Camden Exhibition (B.A., 1839; M.A., 1842; D.D., 1867). After taking orders he became Incumbent of St. Matthew's, Rugby, in 1841; Incumbent of Christ's Church, Doncaster, in 1846; Principal of the Metropolitan Training Institution at Highbury in 1854; and Incumbent of Holy Trinity, Islington, in 1865, where he had a high reputation as an Evangelical preacher. He was consecrated Bishop of Victoria, Hong-kong, Feb. 2, 1867, in place of Dr. George Smith, who had resigned that See in the previous year. He himself resigned the See of Victoria in 1872. He was Vicar of Christ Church, Cloughton, near Birkenhead, from June 1874 till September 1877, when he accepted the incumbency of the new district of St. Mary, Sevenoaks, Kent. He was appointed Acting-Commissary of the diocese of Huron, Canada, in 1880, and retired in 1881. Dr. Alford is the author of "First Principles of the Oracles of God"; a "Charge" on China and Japan; and various sermons and pamphlets. Address: 30 Wilbury Road, West Brighton.

ALGER, Russell Alexander, an soldier and political leader, was born in Medina County, Ohio, Feb. 27, 1811, and comes of New England stock, his ancestry being Scotch and English. He was educated at the Richfield Academy Summit County, Ohio, attending the autumn and winter terms, and working on a farm the remainder of the year. He studied law at Akron, Ohio, during 1857 and 1858, and in 1859 was admitted to the Bar. He practised law but a short time, removing to Michigan on Jan. 1, 1860. He entered the Army, Oct. 2, 1861, as Captain in Second Michigan Cavalry; Major of same regiment from April 17, 1862; Lieutenant-Colonel Sixth Michigan Cavalry, Oct. 30, 1862; and Colonel of Fifth Michigan Cavalry, June 11, 1863. He was severely wounded at the battle of Boonsboro, Maryland, July 8, 1863, and received brevet commissions as Brigadier-General and Major-General of Volunteers for gallant and meritorious services during the war between the States. He resigned from the army, and was discharged Sept. 20, 1864. He was Governor of Michigan in 1885 and 1886, and was appointed Secretary of War in President M'Kinley's Cabinet on March 5, 1897.

ALGER, William Rounsville, was born at Freetown, Massachusetts, Dec. 28, 1822. He graduated at the Cambridge Divinity School, 1847, and became pastor of a Unitarian Church in Roxbury. In 1855 he removed to Boston, and in 1874 became Minister of the Unitarian Church of the Messiah in New York, where he remained until 1879. Since then he has resided in Boston, engaged in literary work. He has published "A Symbolic History of the Cross of Christ," 1851; "The Poetry of the Orient," 1856 (five editions); "A Critical History of the Doctrine of a Future Life," 1861 (14 editions); "The Genius of Solitude," 1866 (11 editions); "Friendships of Women," 1867 (10 editions); "Prayers Offered in the Massachusetts House of Representatives," 1868; "Life of Edwin Forrest," 1877; "The School of Life," 1881; and "Sources of Consolation in Human Life," 1892.

ALING. See LIEBLING, ALICE.

ALISON, General Sir Archibald, Bart., K.C.B., son of Sir Archibald Alison, the first baronet, author of "The History of Europe," was born at Edinburgh, Jan. 21, 1826, and received his education in the Universities of Glasgow and Edinburgh. Entering the military service of his country in 1846, he became a Captain in the 72nd

Highlanders in 1853, Brevet-Major in 1856, Lieutenant-Colonel in 1858, and Colonel in 1867. In the latter year he succeeded to the baronetcy on the death of his father. He served in the Crimea, in the expedition to Kertch, and at the siege and fall of Sebastopol; in India during the Mutiny as Military Secretary on the staff of the late Lord Clyde; and on the Gold Coast as Brigadier-General of the European Brigade, and second in command of the Ashantee Expedition in 1873-74. He commanded his brigade at the capture of Requah, the battle of Amoafu, the action of Ordashu, and the fall of Coomassie. He lost an arm at the relief of Lucknow. Sir Archibald was Assistant Adjutant-General at Aldershot from October 1870 to October 1874, and Deputy Adjutant-General in Ireland from October 1874 to October 1877, when he was promoted to the rank of Major-General. Subsequently he was appointed Commandant of the Staff College in January 1878, and Chief of the Intelligence Department at the War Office from May 1878 till 1882. A few days after the bombardment of Alexandria by Sir Beauchamp Seymour (now the Right Hon. Baron Alcester) a small body of British troops was landed (July 27) under the command of Sir Archibald Alison. He confined his proceedings at first to securing a position covering Alexandria, and occupying the line of railway which connected Alexandria with the suburb of Ramleh. After the arrival of the expeditionary force from England he commanded the 1st (the Highland) Brigade, 2nd Division, and at the decisive battle of Tel-el-Kebir, where it fought so gallantly on that memorable occasion. The Salahijah army laid down its arms to him at Puntah, and after Arabi's surrender a British army of occupation, consisting of 12,000 men, under the command of Sir Archibald Alison, was left in Egypt to restore order and protect the Khedive. Sir Archibald was included in the thanks of Parliament for his energy and gallantry, and was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-General (November 1882). In May 1883 he relinquished the command of the army of occupation of Egypt and returned home. In August 1883 he was appointed to the command at Aldershot, and in February 1885 he became Adjutant-General. In October 1885 he resumed the command at Aldershot on the return of the force for the relief of Gordon at Khartoum. He was appointed Military Member of the Council of India at Whitehall in 1889, and was promoted to the rank of General Feb. 20, 1889. He published an able treatise "On Army Organisation" in 1869, and has contributed at various times articles in Blackwood's Magazine. Address: 93 Eaton Place, S.W.

ALLBUTT, Thomas Clifford, M.A., M.D., M.D., F.R.C.P., F.R.S., F.L.S., F.P.S. is the son of the Rev. Thomas Allbott, sometime Vicar of Dewsbury, in Yorkshire, and afterwards Rector of Eastham-on-Ronige, in Suffolk. He was born at Dewsbury in 1826, and was educated by a private tutor at Ryde, in the Isle of Wight, and afterwards under Archdeacon Hay, at St. Peter's School, York. He went up to Caius College in 1846, took a scholarship in his first year, and subsequently three other scholarships in the college. Soon afterwards, however, he decided to enter the medical profession, and after a year's degree in Arts, went out in the Natural Sciences Tripos in the first class, with distinctions in chemistry and geology. On leaving Cambridge he entered at St. George's Hospital, and afterwards spent some time in the hospitals of Paris, and graduated in the course as M.A. and M.D. of Cambridge. After a brief stay in London Allbutt removed to Leeds, where he was soon after elected physician to the Leeds Infirmary, and rapidly obtained a large consulting practice in medicine, and for the last fifteen years of his residence in Yorkshire had perhaps the largest private consulting physician's practice ever carried on in the province. During this same time he contributed largely both to medical and general literature. His earliest works were concerned with the normal temperature in health and disease, and by devising the "Short Clinical Thermometer," he did much to forward clinical thermometry in hospital and general practice. His friendship with Dr. W. James and Lockhart-Clarke engaged him in the study of the pathology of the nervous system, and in the "Pathological Transactions" and elsewhere he published numerous papers on this subject, among which his demonstrations of the pathology of tetanus and hydrophobia are best known, the latter being the first observations of the kind. Dr. Clifford Allbutt was also an early worker in the field of medical ophthalmology, and published a work on that subject in 1864, which included investigations on insanity, and the first demonstration of changes in the optic nerve in general paralysis and meningitis. Other researches were published at various dates on diseases of the nervous system, of the stomach and kidneys, and on the nature and treatment of consumption, in which latter attention was drawn to the value of the climate of the high Alps in the cure of phthisis, then little recognised in England. In 1884 Dr. Clifford Allbutt delivered the Gulstonian Lectures at the Royal College of Physicians on Visceral Neuroses, which were published in the same year; and in 1885, in conjunction with Mr. Teale, he published a volume the "Treatment of Scrofulousness." In 1889 he delivered the Addressee to the British Medical Association at Glasgow, his subject being "The Classification of Disease, and received the honor degree of LL.D. of that University. In 1889 he was appointed a Commissioner Lunacy, an office which he held for years, when he was appointed to the Crown to be Regius-Professor of Medicine in the University of Cambridge in succession to the late Sir George Paget. He is elected a Fellow of the Linnean Society and of the Society of Antiquaries in London, and a Fellow of the Royal Society. He is editor of the "System of Medicine," in course of publication by Macmillan, the first volume of which appeared in the spring of 1895. He acted for years as a Justice of the Peace for West Riding of Yorkshire, is a Deputy Lieutenant for the West Riding and the city and county of York, and Justice of the Peace for Cambridgeshire. Permanent address: St. Radegund's, Cambridge.

ALLCHIN, William Henry, M.D. was educated at University College, London, and took the degree of M.D. at University of London in 1892. He was elected a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians of London in 1878, and is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh. He is at the present time Senior Physician to the Westminster Hospital, and Extraordinary Lecturer in Medicine at the University and the Army Medical Services. Dr. Allchin is the author of "Duodenal Indigestion" (Bradshaw Lectures of 1891 at the Royal College of Physicians), "Breaking Strain" (oration at the Medical Society of London in 1896). Articles: "Disorders of Digestion, and of Digestive Organs," and "Diseases of Intestines" in Quain's "Dictionary of Medicine," "Chronic Peritonitis," "Tuberculous Peritonitis," and "New Growths of the Peritoneum," in Clifford Allbutt's "System of Medicine," and other articles in various medical journals. Address: 3 Chandos Street, Cavendish Square, W.

ALLCOCK, Rev. Arthur Edmund, M.A., is the son of the late Thomas Allcock, and was born at Harborne, Staffordshire, on Feb. 16, 1851. He was educated at King Edward's School, Birmingham, and at Emmanuel College, Cambridge. Appointed an Assistant-Master at his old school in Birmingham in 1874, he became an Assistant-Master at Wellington College in 1880, and was ordained in 1889. Mr. Allcock was, in 1893, appointed Head Master of Highgate School. Address: The School House, Highgate, N.

ALLEN, Charles Grant Blairfindie, A., best known as Grant Allen, the second son of Joseph Antisell Allen, Incumbent of Holy Trinity, Wolfe Island, Canada, was born at Kingston, Canada, Feb. 24, 1848, and educated in the United States and France, at King Edward's School, Birmingham, and at Merton College, Oxford: matriculated Oct. 19, 1867; B.A. 1871. Mr. Allen began to write early, and soon established a reputation as one of the most popular of scientific authors. He has been called "The Darwinian St. Paul"; his expositions of the Darwinian theory being particularly vivid, clear, and captivating. Besides a multitude of contributions to periodical literature, he has written the following books on more or less serious subjects: "Physiological Aesthetics," 1877; "The Colour Sense," 1879; "The Evolutionist at Large," 1881; "Anglo-Saxon Britain," 1881; "Vignettes from Nature," 1881; "Colours of Flowers," 1882; "Colin Clout's Calendar," 1883; "Flowers and their Pedigrees," 1884; and "Charles Darwin" (in Mr. Andrew Lang's series of "English Worthies"), 1885. In 1883 Mr. Allen began to attempt fiction, his first attempt in which line was "Strange Stories." Since that date he has produced the following works: "Philistia," 1884; "Babylon," 1885; "For Maimie's Sake," 1886; "In All Shades," 1887; "The Devil's Die," 1888; "This Mortal Coil," 1888; "The Tents of Shem," 1889; "Dr. Falliser's Patient"; "Force and Energy"; "Dumarescq's Daughter"; "The Attis of Catullus"; "Science in Arcady"; "The Woman Who Did," a novel which stirred up a storm of controversy, 1895; "The British Barbarians" in the same year; and in 1898 a novel dealing with missionaries in the South Seas. He has also contributed a series of papers ("Post-prandial Philosophy") to the Westminster Gazette, republished in book-form in 1894; and in 1897 he published "Historical Guides" to Paris, Florence, and Belgium, and "The Evolution of the Idea of God." Address: The Croft, Hind Head, Haslemere.

ALLEYNE, Major-General Sir James, K.C.B., was educated at Cheltenham College and at the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich. Entering the Royal Artillery in 1862, he was present at the Red River Expedition of 1870, where he was in command of the Artillery. He next took part in the Zulu campaign, was present at the battle of Ulundi, was mentioned in despatches, and received a medal and clasp. In the Egyptian Expedition of 1882 he served as Deputy Assistant-Adjutant-General, witnessed the action of Tel-el-Mahuta, and the battle of Tel-el-Kebir, was again mentioned in despatches, and received a medal and clasp, and the bronze star of the Osmanieh. During the years 1884-85 he was employed in the Soudan Expedition, was Director of River Transport, and Assistant-Adjutant-General at headquarters; he commanded a separate contingent at the battle of Kibekwan, was mentioned in despatches, received two clasps, and obtained his colonelcy. He served as Commissioner for the Sub-division of Zululand in 1879, and was again employed in that capacity to delineate the Transvaal-Swazi boundary in 1880. Colonel Alleyne was created C.B. in 1891, and became Major-General in 1895. He received the Queen's Jubilee Medal in 1897, and in the same year was created K.C.B. He now commands the Royal Artillery in the Aldershot district. Address: Aldershot.

ALLIES, Thomas William, the son of a gentleman of Bristol, was born in 1813, and educated at Eton, where he obtained the Newcastle Scholarship. He afterwards became in succession Scholar and Fellow of Wadham College, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. in 1832, taking a first-class in classics. He became examining chaplain to Dr. Blomfield, Bishop of London, who appointed him in 1842 to the rectory of Launton, Oxfordshire, which he resigned in 1850, on becoming a Roman Catholic. He had previously published a volume of sermons, a work entitled "The Church of England Cleared from the Charge of Schism, upon the Testimonies of Councils and Fathers of the First Six Centuries," 1846, 2nd edit., 1848; and "Journal in France in 1845 and 1848," with "Letters from Italy in 1847—of Things and Persons concerning the Church and Education," 1849. To give the grounds of his conversion he wrote "The See of St. Peter, the Rock of the Church, the Source of Jurisdiction and the Centre of Unity," 1850, 4th edit., 1896; preceded by "The Royal Supremacy viewed in reference to the Two Spiritual Powers of Order and Jurisdiction," 1850. He has since written "St. Peter, his Name and Office as set forth in Holy Scripture," 1852, 4th edit., 1895; "Dr. Pusey and the Ancient Church," 1866; "Per Crucem ad Lucem, the Result of a Life," 5 vols., 1879; "A Life's Decision," 1880, 2nd edit., 1894; and several other works. His great work is entitled "The Formation of Christendom," and is in 8 vols. (1865-96), which sell as ten, viz.: Vol. 1, "The Christian Faith and the Individual"; vol. 2, "The Christian Faith and Society"; vol. 3, "The Christian Faith and Philosophy"; vol. 4, "Christendom as seen in Church and State"; vol. 5, "The Throne of the Fisherman built by the Carpenter's Son"

vol. 6, "The Holy See and the Wandering of the Nations"; vol. 7, "Peter's Rock in Mohammed's Flood"; and vol. 8, "Monastic Life from the Fathers of the Desert to Charlemagne." Mr. Allies was appointed Secretary to the Catholic Poor School Committee for Great Britain in 1853, and continued to 1890. He was created Knight Commander of St. Gregory by Leo XIII. in 1885. Address: 3 Lodge Place, St. John's Wood, N.W.

ALLINGHAM, Mrs. Helen, eldest child of Alexander Henry Paterson, M.D., was born near Burton-on-Trent, Sept. 26, 1848. The family removed to Altrincham, Cheshire, and after Dr. Paterson's death, to Birmingham. At the beginning of 1867 Miss Paterson came to reside in London under the care of her aunt, Miss Laura Herford, who was an artist, and who, about seven years previously, had practically opened the schools of the Royal Academy to women. Miss Paterson herself entered the Royal Academy schools in April 1867. She afterwards drew on wood for several illustrated periodicals, and eventually became one of the regular staff of the Graphic. She also furnished illustrations to novels running in the Cornhill Magazine: "Far from the Madding Crowd," and "Miss Angel." In the intervals of drawing on wood she produced several water-colour drawings. "May," "Dangerous Ground," &c., were exhibited at the Dudley Gallery; "The Milkmaid," and "Wait for Me," at the Royal Academy, 1874. "Young Customers," 1875, attracted much attention; as did also "Old Men's Gardens, Chelsea Hospital," at the Old Water-Colour Exhibition, 1877. In 1875 she was elected an Associate of the Royal Society of Painters in Water-Colour, and in 1890 to the honour of full membership. Mrs. Allingham has also exhibited "The Harvest Moon," "The Clothes-Line," "The Convalescent," "The Lady of the Manor," "The Children's Tea," "The Well," "Lessons," and many scenes of English rural life. Among her later works are several portraits of Thomas Carlyle. Special exhibitions of Mrs. Allingham's drawings were held in 1886, 1887, and 1889, also in 1891, 1894, and 1898, at the rooms of the Fine Art Society, and had great success. Miss Paterson was married, Aug. 22, 1874, to the late Mr. William Allingham, the poet. Address: Eldon House, Lyndhurst Road, Hampstead, N.W.

ALLISON, William B., American statesman, was born at Perry, Ohio, March 2, 1829, was educated at Western Reserve College, Ohio, and studied law and practised his profession in Ohio, until he removed to Iowa in 1857. He served on the staff of the Governor of Iowa, and aided in organising volunteers in the beginning of the war between the North and Southern States, was elected a Representative in the Thirty-eighth, and re-elected to the Thirty-ninth, Fortieth, and Forty-first Congresses, and was elected to the United States Senate, taking his March 4, 1873. He was re-elected in 1884, 1890, and 1897. He is leader of the Senate Committee on Appropriations.

ALLMAN, Professor Geo James, M.D., LL.D., F.R.C.S.I., F.R.S.E., M.R.I.A., F.L.S., Corr. M.Z.S.S. Hon. F.R.M.S., Hon. Fellow Royal Geological Society of Cornwall, Member of Royal Dublin Society, and Hon. Member of various British and foreign societies, and Emeritus Regius-Professor of Natural History in the University of Edinburgh, is the eldest son of James Allman, Esq., of Bandon, and was born at Cork in 1812, and educated at the Belfast Academical Institution. Warmly attached to the principles of civil and religious liberty, he threw himself actively into the agitation which led to Catholic Emancipation; and, believing he could best promote its object by engaging in the profession of the law, he resolved on studying for the Irish. The love of natural science, however, which had at a very early age taken possession of him, caused him, before he had completed the required number of terms to give up the profession of law for that of medicine. He graduated in Arts and Medicine in the University of Dublin, 1844; and in the same year was appointed to the Regius-Professorship of Botany in that university, when he relinquished further thought of medical practice. 1854 he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society; and in 1855 he resigned his professorship in the University of Dublin on his appointment to the Regius-Professorship of Natural History and Keepership of the Natural History Museum in the University of Edinburgh, which he held until 1870. Shortly after this the honorary degree of LL.D. was conferred on him by the University of Edinburgh. His chief scientific labours have been among the lower organisms of the animal kingdom, to the investigation of whose structure and development he has specially devoted himself. For his researches in this department of biology the Royal Society of Edinburgh awarded to him in 1872 the Brisbane Prize; in the following year a Royal Medal was awarded to him by the Royal Society of London; in 1878 he received the Cunningham Gold Medal from the Royal Irish Academy, and in 1896 the Linnæan Gold Medal from the Linnean Society of

London. He was one of the Commissioners appointed by Government in 1876 to inquire into the state of the Queen's Colleges in Ireland. Soon after his election to the Edinburgh chair he was nominated one of the Commissioners of Scottish Fisheries, an honorary post which he continued to hold until the abolition of the Board in 1881. On the resignation of Mr. Bentham he was elected to the presidency of the Linnean Society, a post which he held until 1883, when he resigned it in favour of Sir J. Lubbock. In 1879 he was President of the British Association for the Advancement of Science. On the completion of the exploring voyage of the Challenger, the large collection of Hydroids made during that great expedition was assigned to him for determination and description—a service which he had already performed for the Hydroids collected during the exploration of the Gulf Stream under the direction of the United States Government. He has served on the Council of the Royal Society of London, and on those of the Royal Society of Edinburgh and of the Royal Irish Academy, and has filled the post of Examiner in Natural History for the Queen's University in Ireland, for the University of London, for Her Majesty's Army, Navy, and Indian Medical Services, and for the Civil Service of India. Results of his original investigations are contained in memoirs published in the Philosophical Transactions, the Transactions of the Royal Society of Edinburgh, the Transactions of the Royal Irish Academy, and the Transactions of the Linnean and Zoological Societies of London; as well as in reports presented to the British Association for the Advancement of Science, to the Mus. Comp. Zool. Harvard University, and to the Commission of the Challenger Exploration; and in communications to the Annals of Natural History, the Quarterly Journal of Microscopic Science, and other scientific journals. His more elaborate works are "A Monograph of the Freshwater Polyzoa," fol., 1856, and "A Monograph of the Gymnoblasic Hydroids," fol., 1871-72, both published by the Ray Society, and largely illustrated with coloured plates. Dr. Allman is a member of the Athenæum Club, to which he was elected by the Committee. He married Hannah Louisa, third daughter of Samuel Shaen, Esq., of Crix, J.P. and D.L. for the county of Essex. Addresses: Ardmore, Parkstone, Dorset; and Athenæum.

ALLMAN, Emeritus Professor George Johnston, LL.D., D.Sc. F.R.S., Senator of the Royal University of Ireland, younger son of William Allman, M.D., Professor of Botany in the University of

Dublin (1809-44), born in Dublin Sept. 28, 1824, was educated at Dr. Wall's School and Trinity College, Dublin. He graduated in the University of Dublin, B.A. 1844, and LL.D. in 1853, and in the same year he was appointed Professor of Mathematics in Queen's College, Galway, and a Professor of the Queen's University in Ireland. He was also appointed Bursar of the Queen's College in 1864, Member of the Senate of the Queen's University in Ireland in 1877, and in 1880 he was nominated by the Crown one of the first Senators of the Royal University of Ireland. He was a Member of the Council of Queen's College, Galway, 1863-93, and in 1888 he was sent by the Corporate Body of the Queen's College as delegate to the University of Bologna on the occasion of the celebration of the Octocentenary of that University. He is LL.D. ad eundem of the Queen's University (1863), and D.Sc. honoris causa (1882). In 1884 he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society, and in 1893 he resigned his professorship and the bursarship of Queen's College, Galway. In 1853 Dr. Allman communicated to the Royal Irish Academy "An Account of the late Professor MacCullagh's Lectures on the Attraction of Ellipsoids," which he compiled from his notes of the lectures (Transactions of the Royal Irish Academy, vol. xxii.). He has since published "Some Properties of the Paraboloids" (Quarterly Journal of Mathematics, 1874); also "Greek Geometry from Thales to Euclid" (Hermathena, vol. iii., No. V., 1777; vol. vi., No. XIII., 1887), and has collected these articles and published them in a volume with the same title ("Dublin University Press Series," 1889). He has also contributed "Ptolemy" (Claudius Ptolemæus) and other articles to the last edition of the "Encyclopædia Britannica." Permanent address: St. Mary's, Galway.

ALMA-TADEMA, Lawrence, R.A., R.W.S., H.R.S., F.S.A., painter, was born at Dronryp, in the Netherlands, Jan. 8, 1836. His father was Pieter Tadema, a notary. He was intended for one of the learned professions, and in training for it the works of the ancient classical writers of course engrossed much of his attention. In 1852 he went to Antwerp, and entered the Academy there as a student. Afterwards he placed himself with the late Baron Henry Leys, whom he assisted in painting several of the large pictures with which the Baron's name is associated. Subsequently he came to London, where he has resided for many years. He obtained a gold medal at Paris in 1874; a second-class medal at the International

Exhibition at Paris in 1867; a gold medal at Berlin in 1872, and the grand medal in 1874. Mr. Alma-Tadema became a member of the Academy of Fine Arts at Amsterdam in 1862; Knight of the Order of Leopold (Belgium) in 1866; Knight of the Dutch Lion in 1868; Knight First Class of the Order of St. Michael of Bavaria in 1869; Member of the Royal Academy of Munich in 1871; Knight of the Legion of Honour (France) in 1873; Member of the Society of Painters in Water-Colours in 1873; and Member of the Royal Academy of Berlin in 1874. In January 1873 he received letters of denization from the Queen of England, having resolved to reside permanently in this country. He was nominated a Chevalier of the Legion of Honour in 1873; and elected an Associate of the Royal Academy of London, Jan. 26, 1876. In the latter year he was also elected a Knight of the Third Class of the Golden Lion of Nassau; in 1877 a Knight of the Third Class of the Crown of Prussia, and an Hon. Member of the Royal Scottish Academy; in 1878 he obtained a first-class medal at the Paris International Exhibition, and he was nominated an Officer of the Legion of Honour in the same year. Mr. Alma-Tadema was elected a Royal Academician June 19, 1879. He is an Hon. Member of the Royal Academies of Madrid, Vienna, Stockholm, and Naples. The Emperor of Germany, in January 1881, appointed him a foreign Knight of the Order Pour le Mérite (Art and Sciences Division); and in the following month the French Academy of Fine Arts elected him its London correspondent in the section of Painting. His principal paintings are: "Entrance to a Roman Theatre," 1866; "Agrippina visiting the Ashes of Germanicus," 1866; "A Roman Dance," 1866; "The Mummy," 1867; "Tarquinius Superbus," 1867; "The Siesta," 1868; "Phidias and the Elgin Marbles," 1868; "Flowers," 1868; "Flower Market," 1868; "A Roman Amateur," 1868; "Pyrrhic Dance," 1869; "A Negro," 1869; "The Convalescent," 1869; "A Wine Shop," 1869; "A Juggler," 1870; "A Roman Amateur," 1870; "The Vintage," 1870; "A Roman Emperor," 1871; "Une Fête intime," 1871; "The Greek Pottery," 1871; "Reproaches," 1872; "The Mummy" (Roman period), 1872; "The Improvisatore," 1872; "A Halt," 1872; "Death of the Firstborn," 1872; "Greek Wine," 1872; "The Dinner," 1873; "The Siesta," 1873; "The Cherries," 1873; "Fishing," 1873; "Joseph Overseer of Pharaoh's Granaries," 1874; "A Sculpture Gallery," 1874; "A Picture Gallery," 1874; "Autumn," 1874; "Good Friends," 1874; "On the Steps of the Capitol," 1874; "Water Pets," 1874; "The Sculpture Gallery," 1875; "Audience at Agrippa's," 1876; "A Dance," 1876; "Cleopatra," 1876; "Seasons" (4 pictures), 1877; "Between Hope and Fear," 1877; "A Sculptor Model" (Venus Esquilina), "A Love Missile," 1878; "A Hearty Welcome," "Down to the River," "Pamona Festival," "In the Time of Constantine," 1878; "Spring Festival," "Not at Home," "Fredegonda," 1880; "Sappho," 1880; "An Oleander," and "The Way to Temple" (his diploma work), 1883; "Emperor Hadrian visiting a British Pottery," 1884; "A Reading from Homer," 1885; "An Apodyterium," 1886; "Roses of Heliogabalus," 1888; "At Shrine of Venus," and "A Dedication to Bacchus," 1889; "Comparisons," 1889; "At the Close of a Joyful Day," 1889; "Spring," 1895; "Whispering Noon," 1896; "The Coliseum," 1896; "Watching," 1897; and "The Conversion of Paul," 1898. At the Grosvenor Gallery in 1877 he exhibited a series of three pictures: "Architecture," "Sculpture," and "Painting," also "Cherries." A special exhibition of his pictures was held at the Grosvenor Gallery in 1883. He received the Fine Art Medal of Honour at the Paris Exhibition, 1889. By his first wife he had two daughters, one of whom, Miss Laurence Alma-Tadema, is the author of "Love's Martyr," a novel; "The Will of Icarus," a novel; a translation of Maeterlinck's "Pelleas et Mélisandre"; and a volume of poems, "Realms of Unknown Kings"; and the other, Miss Anna Alma-Tadema, has made a brilliant debut as a water-colour painter, gaining the second medal at the Paris Exhibition in 1889. His second wife, whom he married in 1871, was Miss Laura Theresa, youngest daughter of Dr. George Epps. This lady is an accomplished artist, and has exhibited several pictures at the Royal Academy, at the Society of French Artists, at the Grosvenor Gallery, and New Gallery. She won the gold medal at Berlin in 1896. Addresses: 17 Grove End Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.; and Athenæum.

ALMOND, Hely Hutchinson, M.A., LL.D., was born at Glasgow on Aug. 12, 1832, and is the son of the Rev. George Almond. He was educated at Glasgow University and at Balliol College, Oxford, where he obtained first-class Honours in both Classical and Mathematical Moderations, and second-class Honours in both the final schools of Lit. Hum. and Mathematics. He is an Hon. LL.D. of Glasgow. He was appointed Second Master of Merchiston Castle School in 1858, and became Head Master of Loretto School in 1862. Mr. Almond is also the author of the following: "Sermons by a Lay Headmaster," 1886 and 1892; "Edinburgh Health Lectures," 1884; "Football as a Moral Agent," published in the December 1893 number of the Nineteenth Century, "English Prose Extracts," 1895. He was married in 1876 to Eleanor Frances, daughter of Canon Tristram. Address: North Esk Lodge, Musselburgh.

AMAGAT, Emile Hilaire, was born in 1841 at St. Satur, near Sancerre, a mill in the Department of Cher. His intention was to become a manufacturing chemist, which calling, however, he soon abandoned, and made up his mind to enter the profession of teaching. His early struggles were hard, and it was under difficult circumstances that he obtained the various degrees which the University of France grants. He was for some years assistant to the celebrated chemist Berthelot, at the College of France. He lived in Switzerland, and was a master at the Lycée of Fribourg from 1867 to 1872, using this opportunity for composing his Doctoral thesis, which he presented at Paris in 1872. He taught chemistry for five years at the old normal school of Cluny, and in 1877 he became Professor of Physics in the free university of Lyons. This institution was then in course of formation, and he created there the department of Physics, in which he carried out his principal experiments, and recorded their results. He returned to Paris in 1891, and became an assistant at the École Polytechnique, where he is at the present time occupied in examining candidates for admission to the school. He has been a Member of the Institute of France since 1889, was elected a Member of the Royal Society of London and of that of Edinburgh in 1897, and is a Member of the Dutch Society of Sciences, an Hon. Member of the Philosophical Society of Manchester and of the Scientific Society of Brussels. His principal experiments are connected with the study of the elasticity and expansion of fluids, which he observed under such conditions of temperature, and especially of pressure, as had hardly been reached up till that time in recent investigations. His most important memoir is the one which he published in 1893, and which recapitulates the whole of the laws relating to the statics of liquids and gases. These laws were the outcome of his experiments. He has also published several memoirs relating to the elasticity of solids. Since 1894 he has particularly endeavoured to deduce the logical inferences resulting from his experimental investigations; he has published, with this idea, his researches on the variation of the specific heats of fluids under the influence of temperature and pressure, and his researches on the internal pressure of fluids. All his writings have been published in the "Comptes Rendus" of the Academy of Sciences, and most of his memoirs have been given in full in the "Annales de Chimie et de Physique." Address: École Polytechnique, Paris.

AMPHILL, Lord, Oliver Arthur Villiers Russell, B.A., J.P., son of the 1st Lord Ampthill, the well-known ambassador, was born in Rome on Feb. 19, 1869. He was educated at Eton and New College, Oxford, and was President of the University Union Society in 1891. In politics he is a Liberal Unionist, and he contested Fulham in the L.C.C. election of 1895 as a Moderate. He was Assistant Private Secretary to the Right Hon. J. Chamberlain, Colonial Secretary, from 1895 to 1897, and in the latter year was appointed Private Secretary to that statesman. At the present time (June 1898) he is engaged on the Sugar Bounties Conference, which is sitting in Brussels. Lord Ampthill has a very considerable rowing reputation, inasmuch as he was a member of the Eton Eight from 1886 to 1888, and was their captain from 1887 to 1889; whilst at Oxford he rowed in the University Eight from 1889 to 1891, and was the President of the O.U.B.C. in 1891; he is, moreover, at the present time President of the London Rowing Club. He was formerly a Lieutenant in the Royal 1st Devon Yeomanry Cavalry, and is now a Captain in the 3rd Battalion of the Bedfordshire Regiment. In 1894 he was married to Margaret, daughter of the 6th Earl Beauchamp, and has a son and heir, John Hugo, born in 1896. Address: 109 Park Street, W.

ANCASTER, Earl of, The Right Hon. Gilbert Henry Heathcote Drummond Willoughby, was born in 1830, and succeeded his father as 2nd Baron Aveland in 1867, and his mother as 24th Baron Willoughby de Eresby in 1888. He was educated at Harrow and Trinity College, Cambridge. From 1862 to 1866 he represented Boston in the House of Commons as a Conservative, and also sat for Rutland in the same interest from 1866 to 1867. He is Joint Hereditary Lord Great Chamberlain of England, and was created Earl of Ancaster in 1892. He is married to Evelyn Elizabeth, second daughter of the 10th Marquis of Huntly, and has a son and heir, Lord Willoughby de Eresby, M.P. for the Horncastle Division of Lincolnshire. Addresses: Normanton Park, Stamford; Drummond Castle, Crief, Perthshire; and 12 Belgrave Square, S.W.

ANDERSON, Mrs. Elizabeth Garrett, M.D., daughter of Newson Garrett, Esq., of Aldeburgh, Suffolk, was born in London in 1836, educated at home and at a private school. Miss Elizabeth Garrett began to study medicine at Middlesex Hospital in 1860, completed the medical curriculum at St. Andrews, Edinburgh, and the London Hospital, and passed the examination at Apothecaries' Hall, receiving the diploma of L.S.A. in October 1865. She was appointed General Medical Attendant to St. Mary's Dispensary in June 1866, obtained the degree of M.D. from the University of Paris in 1870, and in the same year was appointed one of the visiting physicians to the East London Hospital for Children and Dispensary for Women. On Nov. 29, 1870, Miss Garrett was elected a Member of the London School Board, being returned by a large majority at the head of the poll for Marylebone. She was married Feb. 9, 1871, to Mr. J. G. S. Anderson, of the Orient line of steamships to Australia. In 1872 Mrs. Anderson aided in the establishment and organisation of the New Hospital for Women, then at 222 Marylebone Road, and now at 144 Euston Road, of which the acting medical staff is composed entirely of women. Mrs. Anderson has been for some years its Senior Visiting Physician. For twenty-three years she was Lecturer on Medicine at the London School of Medicine for Women, Brunswick Square. She is still Dean of the school. She was for many years on the Councils of the North London Collegiate School for Girls, and of Bedford College. Mrs. Garrett-Anderson continues to practise in London as a physician for women and children. She has written various papers on medical and social questions, and is a Member of the British Medical Association. In 1897 Mrs. Anderson was elected President of the East Anglian Branch of this Association. She was also for some years President of the Association of Registered Medical Women. Permanent addresses: 4 Upper Berkeley Street, Portman Square; and Westhill, Aldeburgh, Suffolk.

ANDERSON, Dr. John, LL.D., F.R.S., F.R.S.E., F.R.G.S., &c., son of the late Mr. Thomas Anderson, Secretary to the National Bank of Scotland, Edinburgh, was born in that city on Oct. 4, 1833; educated at the George Square Academy and the Hill Street Institution and finally at the Edinburgh University. He took the degree of M.D. in 1861, and received a gold medal for his thesis, entitled

"Observations in Zoology." It is after his graduation he was appointed Professor of Natural Science in the Church College, Edinburgh, but he resigned the office in 1864, having offered the Curatorship of a collection of the Asiatic Society of Bengal to form the nucleus. He arrived in India in July 1864, and in the following year was appointed Superintendent of Indian Museum, and two or three afterwards he was also given the office of Comparative Anatomy in the Museum College, Calcutta. In 1868 he was sent by the Government of India to accompany an expedition to Western China, Tibet and Independent Burmah, in the capacity of Scientific Officer. Again, in 1871, he was chosen by the Government of India to proceed once more to Western China, in the same capacity as on the first expedition, and with instructions to advance from Bhamo to Shanghai. The expedition was attacked by the Chinese and was obliged to retreat to Bhamo. Augustus Raymond Margary having been treacherously murdered at Manmye, in 1881 Dr Anderson was sent by the Government of India to investigate the Marine Zoology of the Mergui Archipelago, off the coast of Tenasserim. In 1887 he retired from the service of the Government of India. Besides numerous papers on zoology, a list of which is to be found in the Royal Society's Catalogue of scientific papers, Dr. Anderson is the author of the following independent works: "A Report on the Expedition to Western China via Bhamo," published by the Government of India, 1871; "Madaya to Momi," an account of the two expeditions to Western China, the first under Major (afterwards Colonel Sir Edward) Sladen, and the second under the command of Colonel Horace Browne, 1875; "Anatomical and Zoological Researches," including an account of the zoological results of the two expeditions to Western China, 1868-69 and 1875, 4to, with 1 vol. plates, 1878; "Catalogue of the Mammalia in the Indian Museum," Part I. published by the Trustees of the Indian Museum, 8vo, 1879; "Handbook to the Archaeological Collections of the Indian Museum, Calcutta," 2 vols., 8vo, published by the Trustees, 1881 and 1882. The scientific results of his researches in the Mergui Archipelago were published by the Linnean Society of London in vols. 21 and 22 of their Journal, which were devoted exclusively to the subject, the various animal groups having been worked out by specialists. Dr. Anderson described the Mammals, Birds, Reptiles, and Bat-

and gave an exhaustive account of the human inhabitants of the islands, adding a vocabulary of their language. And in connection with the expedition to Mergui, a town which was in Siamese territory, he published in Trübner's Oriental Series, a full part of "English Intercourse with Siam in the Seventeenth Century." Dr. Anderson is a Fellow of the Royal Societies of London and Edinburgh, of the Linnean Society, and the Zoological Society of London, of the Royal Geographical Society of London, of the Society of Antiquaries of London and of Edinburgh, of the Royal Physical and Botanical Societies of Edinburgh, and of the Asiatic Society of Bengal. He is also a Fellow of the Calcutta University, and is a Corresponding Fellow of the Ethnological Society of Italy. In 1885 the University of Edinburgh conferred on him the honorary degree of LL.D. In 1896 Dr. Anderson published a small volume on "The Herpetology of Arabia," and he is now engaged issuing a work on "The Fauna of Egypt." The first vol., on "The Reptiles and Batrachians of Egypt," is illustrated by fifty-two 4to plates, the majority of the subjects having been drawn from life.

ANDERSON, Mary. See NAVARRO, MADAME ANTONIO DE.

ANDERSON, William, F.R.C.S., born in London on Dec. 18, 1842, is the son of Mr. William Henry Anderson. He was educated at the City of London School, St. Thomas's Hospital, and in Paris. After passing through his medical career at St. Thomas's Hospital, where he became Cheselden Medallist, he was appointed in 1873 Professor of Anatomy and Surgery at the Japanese Naval and Medical College at Tokio. In the following year he became Medical Officer to the British Legation at Tokio, and an adviser to the Sanitary Department of the Japanese Home Office. While organising the Naval Medical Service, and studying the diseases peculiar to the country, he devoted his leisure to investigating the history and technique of the pictorial Arts of China and Japan, forming a large collection of illustrative paintings and engravings, which were afterwards acquired by the British Museum. Returning to England in 1880 to take the appointment of Assistant-Surgeon and Lecturer on Anatomy at St. Thomas's Hospital, he practised as a consulting surgeon, and was elected full Surgeon to the Hospital in 1891, Hunterian Professor of Surgery and Pathology at the Royal College of Surgeons in the same year, and Professor of Anatomy in the Royal Academy of Arts in 1892. In the same year he took part in the formation of the Japan Society, and was elected its first Chairman of Council. He became an Examiner in Surgery at the University of London and at the Royal College of Surgeons of England in 1894, and Vice-President of the Anatomical Society of Great Britain and Ireland in 1895. He is a member of several learned societies, and an Hon. Member of the American Society of Anatomists, and of the Japanese Society for the Advancement of Medical Science (Sei-I-Kwai). In 1895 he was honoured by the Emperor of Japan with the decoration of the Third Class Order of the Rising Sun for services in connection with medical education in Japan and with the literature of Japanese Art. His published works include numerous standard contributions to the medical press, and to various literary and artistic Magazines and Reviews; a short essay on the history of Japanese painting in the Transactions of the Asiatic Society of Japan for 1875 (the first outline of the subject in any European language); a "Treatise on the Pictorial Arts of Japan" (1886); a descriptive and historical catalogue of the collection of Japanese and Chinese pictures in the British Museum (1886); and a monograph on Japanese wood engravings (1895). His collection of Japanese and Chinese paintings was exhibited in the White Gallery of the British Museum in 1888-89, and a collection of engravings and illustrated books at the Burlington Fine Arts Club in 1890. Address: 2 Harley Street, Cavendish Square, W.

ANDERSON, General William Warden, second son of the late Sir George Anderson, K.C.B., Governor of the Mauritius and of Ceylon, was born at Surat, in India, 1824, and appointed Cornet in the 2nd Bombay Lancers in 1840. He served through the Punjab campaign of 1848, and was present at the siege and capture of Mooltan, as well as the siege of Awah and of Kotah, 1857. He served throughout the Indian Mutiny, 1857, and was severely wounded in the engagement with the rebels at Gwalior. From 1858 to 1867 he acted as Assistant-Political Resident, and Superintendent of the Guicowar's contingent of horse in Katwyar. From 1867 to 1874 he was Political Agent in that province. He was promoted to Brevet-Major for services at Gwalior against the rebels, 1857 (medal with clasps); Major-General, 1878; Lieutenant-General, 1882; General, 1888. He more than once received the thanks of the Governor-General of India for the efficient manner in which he had discharged the duties of Political Agent in Katwyar.

ANDERSON, Sir William, K.C.B., F.R.S., D.C.L., J.P., Director-General of Royal Ordnance Factories, was born at St. Petersburg on Jan. 5, 1835. He obtained his early education at the High Commercial School in his native city, and when he left in 1849 he was head of the school, silver medallist, and, although a British subject, he had conferred upon him the freedom of the city of St. Petersburg. In 1849 Mr. Anderson became a matriculated student in the Applied Sciences Department of King's College, London, and went through the complete three years' course, taking many prizes, and leaving in 1851 with the degree of Associate, to become a pupil of the late Sir William Fairbairn at Manchester. He remained with Messrs. William Fairbairn and Sons for three years, and during that time was much employed in looking after important outwork. In 1855 Mr. Anderson entered into partnership with Messrs. Courtney & Stephens, of Dublin, and remained with them till 1864, being engaged chiefly in the construction of bridges, cranes, signals, and other fittings for railways. He devoted much attention to the theory of diagonally braced girders, then but little understood, and contributed several papers to the Institution of Civil Engineers of Ireland, of which body he became President in 1863. In the autumn of 1864 Mr. Anderson removed to London, joining the old-established firm of Easton and Amos, with the object of building new works on the Thames at Erith, the old premises in Southwark Street having been found inconvenient for large and heavy work. Mr. Anderson, under whose direct management the Erith works have been since their erection, became eventually the head of the firm of Easton & Anderson. He is a Member of Council of the Institute of Civil Engineers, a Vice-President of the Institute of Mechanical Engineers, a Visitor of the Royal Institution, a Vice-President of the Society of Arts, and has contributed numerous papers on a variety of subjects to these bodies. His knowledge of the Russian language has enabled him to abstract many interesting papers for the "Foreign Abstracts" published by the Institution of Civil Engineers. He has also translated the remarkable works of Chernoff on steel, and the researches of the late General Kalakontsky, on the internal stresses in cast-iron and steel. He was selected by the Institute of Civil Engineers to deliver one of the heat series of lectures, namely, that on the "Generation of Steam"; by the School of Military Engineering at Chatham, to lecture on "Hydraulic Machinery and on Hydro-pneumatic Moncrieff Gun-Carriage"; and delivered for the Society of Arts, under the Howard Trust, a course of lectures on the "Conversion of Heat into Work." In August 1889 he was appointed by Mr. Stanhope (Secretary of State for War) Director-General of the Royal Ordnance Factories, which comprise the laboratory, the carriage departments, and the gun factory at the Royal Arsenal, Woolwich, the Royal Gunpowder Factory at Waltham Abbey, and the small-arms factories at Enfield and Birmingham. The University of Durham has conferred on him the honorary degree of D.C.L. and he was in 1889 elected President of the G of the British Association. In June 1895 he was made C.B., and in May 1897 K.C.B. He is married to Emma, daughter of the Rev. J. R. Brown, Knighton, Radnorshire. Address: Royal Arsenal, Woolwich.

ANDRÉE, Dr. S. A., Swedish aeronaut, began studying air currents in 1877 when on a voyage to the United States, with the idea of crossing the Atlantic in a balloon. Since 1892 he experimented in Sweden with the help of King Oscar. His now famous balloon, in which he and his two companions, Dr. Strindberg and Herr Fraenkel, started, was constructed under the superintendence of M. Henri Lachambre, and was taken to the N.W. corner of Spitzbergen, with the object of crossing the North Polar area. Herr Andrée went there in 1896, when he did not consider the atmospheric conditions favourable enough for his enterprise; but on July 11, 1897, he started on his hazardous voyage, and only once has reliable information reached the expectant civilised world since that date, when the balloon disappeared behind the ice hummocks of the Frozen Sea. As in the case of Franklin, we consider Herr Andrée to be alive till we have positive proof of his death. His balloon was so constructed as to be capable of remaining in the air for over fifty days, but he took provisions for only four months. He also took thirty-two carrier-pigeons, and told his friends not to be alarmed if they did not hear from him for a year. Of these pigeons, only one has brought a message; it was shot near Spitzbergen on July 22, 1897, and carried a message dated July 13, stating that all was well. It was sent off in 82°2' N. lat., 15°5' E. long., and so in two days the balloon had advanced 187 miles in a N.N.E. direction. He hoped to make land in Siberia or Alaska, but if he descended on the ice N. of 82° it is doubtful whether he would be able to secure a sufficiency of food by means of his gun. Several rumours have reached Europe of his having arrived at the Pole, but as yet none have received confirmation (August 1898).

ANDREWS, Thomas, F.R.S., F.R.S.E., M.Inst.C.E., F.C.S., &c., was born Feb. 16, 1847, in Sheffield, and is the only son of the late Mr. Thomas Andrews of the same town. He was educated at Broombank School by the late Rev. Thomas Howarth, M.A., and subsequently by private tuition, and was carefully trained in metallurgy, mining, and engineering by his father. On the death of his father in 1871 he succeeded him as proprietor of the Wortley Ironworks (one of the oldest-established ironworks in England), and the Wortley Silkstone Colliery. In addition to conducting and managing the ironworks, Mr. Andrews has rendered excellent service to metallurgical, physical, and engineering science, by a series of original researches, extending over many years, and connected with various branches of the above sciences. He has determined the relative corrosibility of wrought iron and modern steels in sea-water and in tidal streams, and shown that iron corrodes much less than steels. He has made elaborate researches, published by the Institute of Civil Engineers, on the "Effects of Temperature on the Strength of Railway Axles, in an Investigation extending over Seven Years," and has therein determined, on a large experimental scale, the resistance of metals to sudden concussion at varying temperatures down to zero Fahrenheit; and indicated the influence of climatic temperature changes on the strength of railway material, and at the same time has ascertained some of the causes leading to accidental fractures on railways. He has also studied the influence of sudden chilling on the physical properties of metals. He has conducted numerous other original investigations on the electro-motive force between vessels at high temperatures, &c., and also an intricate research on "Electro-chemical Effects on Magnetising Iron." Parts I., II., III.; the results of the latter research have shown that magnetised iron or steel is electro-positive to unmagnetised in certain chemical solutions. In another part of this research Mr. Andrews observed that a current was produced when the opposite poles of two electrically connected magnets of approximately equal strength were immersed in solutions of various chemical substances, the north pole being generally positive to the south pole. Mr. Andrews has written papers on the "Passive State of Iron and Steel," discovering in these researches that the passive state of iron was influenced by magnetism; and he also determined the relative passivity of the various modern steels, and the influence of chemical composition, physical structure, &c., on the passivity of the metals. Mr. Andrews has also experimented on the "Heat Dilatation of Metals from Very Low Temperatures." In the course of another research he has made determinations of the plasticity of ice, and also on the relative conductivity of ice and snow, and on the contractibility of ice at low temperatures. He has also contributed various articles to Iron, The Engineer, Chemical News, Nature, Poggendorff's Annalen, and other periodicals. The results of these numerous researches are embodied in about thirty-three papers, published in the Proceedings of the Royal Society, London; Transactions and Proceedings of the Royal Society, Edinburgh; Proceedings of the Institute of Civil Engineers; Transactions of the Society of Engineers; Transactions of the Midland Mining Institute; British Association Reports; Transactions of the Institute of Marine Engineers, &c. For some of these papers Mr. Andrews was awarded at different times by the Institute of Civil Engineers a Telford Medal and three Telford Premiums successively, and also a premium by the Society of Engineers. In 1895 the Society of Engineers awarded him the Bessemer Premium. He was in 1888 elected a Fellow of the Royal Society, London, and has also been elected Fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh, Member of the Institute of Civil Engineers, Fellow of the Chemical Society, &c. Numerous quotations are made from his metallurgical researches in the recent valuable standard work on the "Metallurgy of Steel," by Henry M. Howe, Boston, U.S.A. He is patentee of an invention for hydraulic machinery in connection with the manufacture of iron. Mr. Andrews takes a practical interest in all Christian and educational labour, and has conducted large night-schools. In 1870 he married Mary Hannah, eldest daughter of the late Mr. Charles Stanley, of Rotherham. Address: Ravenscrag, Wortley, near Sheffield.

ANDREWS, The Right Hon. William Drennan, is a Judge in the Exchequer Division of the High Court of Justice, Ireland, and was sworn a Member of the Irish Privy Council in 1897.

ANGELL, James Burrill, American educator and statesman, was born at Scituate, Rhode Island, Jan. 7, 1829. He graduated at Brown University in 1849, and spent some time in Europe studying and travelling. On his return to America in 1853 he was appointed Professor of Modern Languages and Literature at Brown University, where he graduated. In 1860 he became editor of the Daily Journal of Providence, and retained that position until called to the Presidency of the University of Vermont in 1866. In 1871 he became President of the University of Michigan, an office he has since continued to fill, except during the years 1880-81, which he spent in China as Minister from the United States, and in 1897-98, when he was United States Minister to Turkey. In 1880-81 he was also chairman of a special commission to negotiate a treaty with China. This commission made a treaty in commercial matters, and also one on Chinese immigration.

ANGUS, Joseph, D.D., was born Jan. 16, 1816, at Bolam, Northumberland, and educated at King's College, Stepney College, and Edinburgh, where he graduated in 1836, taking the first prizes in nearly all his classes, and at the close of his course gaining the University Prize for an essay on "The Philosophy of Lord Bacon," open to all students, both literary and medical. In 1840 he was appointed Secretary of the Baptist Missionary Society, and visited the West Indies on the churches in that island becoming independent of the Society. In 1849 he became President of Stepney College, which College was removed to Regent's Park in 1857. Dr. Angus, who was for several years English Examiner to the University of London and to the Indian Civil Service, is the author of the "Handbook of the Bible," "Handbook of the English Tongue," "English Literature," "Christ our Life," and several other works. He has also edited Butler's "Analogy and Sermons," with notes, and Dr. Wayland's "Moral Science." He was a member of the New Testament Company for the Revision of the Scriptures, and for ten years a member of the London School Board. In recent years the College at Regent's Park has made provision for largely extending its work; and, in addition to the foundation of several scholarships, the sum of £30,000 has been contributed to it, through Dr. Angus, for increasing its efficiency. Special chairs were founded, and more than one lecture-ship has been established.

ANHALT, Grand Duke of, Leopold Frédéric François Nicolas, was born at Dessau on April 29, 1831, and succeeded his father in 1871. He is a General of Prussian infantry, and a Knight of the Order of the Black Eagle. He was married to Antoinette, Princess of Saxe-Altenburg, in 1854, and his heir is the Hereditary Prince Leopold Frédéric, born in 1856, and married to Marie, Princess of Baden. The fifth son of the Grand Duke, Prince Aribert, was married at Windsor Castle in 1891 to the Princess Louise of Schleswig-Holstein, daughter of the Princess Christian, and granddaughter of Queen Victoria.

ANNANDALE, Charles, M.A., LL.D. was born in Kincardineshire on Aug. 1, 1818, and was educated at Aberdeen University. He is engaged in all kinds of literary work, and has edited several important works of reference, among which may be mentioned: "The Imperial Dictionary," Blackie's "Modern Cyclopaedia," "The Popular Cyclopaedia," "The Student Dictionary," Burns's Works, &c. He was married in 1877. Address: 35 Queen Mary Avenue, Glasgow.

ANNANDALE, Professor T. F.R.S.E., M.D., F.R.C.S. London and Edinburgh, and Member of many Foreign Societies, was born at Newcastle-on-Tyne, Feb. 2, 1838, and educated at Newcastle Infirmary and the University of Edinburgh. He became private assistant to the late Professor Syme, Instructor of Anatomy in the University of Edinburgh, and Surgeon and Lecturer in Surgery to the Edinburgh Royal Infirmary. Dr. Annandale's high reputation as a practical and operating surgeon and teacher of surgery led to his appointment in October 1877 as Regius-Professor of Clinical Surgery in the University of Edinburgh. He is Senior Surgeon to the Royal Infirmary, Consulting Surgeon to the Royal Sick Children's Hospital and to the Royal Maternity Hospital; and is the author of "The Malformations, Diseases, and Injuries of the Fingers and Toes, and their Surgical Treatment," 1865, being the Jacksonian Prize Essay of the Royal College of Surgeons of London for 1864; "Abstracts of Surgical Principles," 1868-70, 2nd ed., 1876; "Clinical Surgical Lectures," 1874-75, reported in the Medical Times and British Medical Journal; "On the Pathology and Operative Treatment of Hip Disease," 1876; author of articles "Diseases of the Breast," "Internal Derangements of the Knee-joint, and their Treatment by Operation," "On the Removal of Bone to Promote Healing of Wounds," and numerous contributions to professional periodicals. Address: 34 Charlotte Square, Edinburgh.

ANNENKOW, General Michael, son of General Michael Annenkow, and constructor of the Russian Central Asian Railroad, was born in 1838, and educated in St. Petersburg. He received his first commission in 1863, in the mounted Pioneers of the Guard. He afterwards entered the Russian Staff College, and served as a staff-captain during the Polish insurrection; at the end of which he became colonel, though only twenty-eight years of age. He spent four years in Poland, in police service, and in 1870 was attached to the German armies during the campaign in France; and was afterwards given the chief direction of troops in Russia, and organized the railway stations. Subsequently he was one of Skobloff's staff officers in the Merv campaign. Not only the Samarcand line, but several other Russian strategic lines are due to him. To him is due a project for the creation of a Trans-Siberian Railway, which is to extend from Moscow to the borders of China. During a sojourn in Paris in 1891 General Annenkow made his latest plans in this direction known to the French press. Since then his ideas have taken concrete shape in the greatest railway scheme in the world, being over 4,000 miles long, and costing over £35,000,000 sterling. By means of this line Russia will soon be connected with Vladivostok and Port Arthur, on the Pacific Ocean. The Trans-Siberian Railway has now reached the Manchurian frontier, and the length in Chinese territory will be 950 miles.

ANNUNZIO, Gabrielle d'. See D'ANNUNZIO, GABRIELLE.

ANSON, Sir William Reynell, D.C.L., son of the late Sir John W. H. Anson, 2nd Bart., and Elizabeth Catherine, second daughter of General Sir Denis Park, K.C.B., was born on Nov. 14, 1843, at Avisford House, Walberton, Sussex. He was educated at Eton and Balliol College, Oxford, where he obtained a first-class in the school of Lit. Hum. He graduated B.A. in 1866, M.A. in 1869, B.C.L. in 1875, and D.C.L. in 1881. He was a Fellow of All Souls College from 1867 to 1881, and in the latter year was elected Warden of that society. He was called to the Bar in 1869, and held the appointment of Vinerian Reader in English Law at Oxford from 1871 to 1881. He was an Alderman for the city of Oxford in 1882, was appointed a Justice of the Peace for Oxfordshire in 1883, and was Chairman of the Quarter Sessions in 1884. He was elected a Fellow of Eton College in 1885. Sir W. Anson is the author of "Principles of the English Law of Contracts" and "Law and Custom of the Constitution," Part I "Parliament," Part II "The Crown," 1890, 1891. At Bour College, Oxford, and Athenaeum.

ANSTRUTHER, Henry Torrens F.R.S. second son of the late Colonel Sir F. Anstruther Bart. F.R.S. was born in 1819. He was educated at Eton and at the University of Edinburgh. He was called to the Bar in 1840 and was elected British Museum Member for the St. Andrew'sburgh in 1851. He was re-elected for that constituency in 1855, and in the same year of the formation of the present administration, he was appointed a Lord of the Treasury, and second Whig. He now, however, has his office in the capital of the United Kingdom. Mr. Anstruther was at one time a Lieutenant in the First Light Horse Dragoons. He was married in 1857 to Eva daughter of the 15th Baron Sudeley. Address: 6 Chester Street, S.W., and Cruttyhill, Piccadilly, Wm. Pitt.

ANTHOPOLLO, Pascha. See PASA ANTHOPOLLO PASHA.

ARABI, Ahmed, the leader of the military insurrection in Egypt 1882, was born of a fellah family, resident in a small village in the province of Charkieh, in the eastern portion of Lower Egypt, nearly on the borders of the Desert. He was enlisted in the army during the reign of Said Pasha, who initiated the system of replacing the foreign officers by native Egyptians. Arabi was one of those thus selected, and he rose rapidly in rank; but the Viceroy was capricious, and one day he had Arabi punished with some hundred blows of a stick, and relegated him to half pay. Arabi, who had learned to read and write, and had competitors at Ichm, the religious university of Cairo, went thither to study sciences, and although he could not complete a course which requires about twenty years to accomplish, he learnt sufficient to enable him to pass for a scholar among his colleagues in the army. Ismail Pasha restored him to the army, and from this time Arabi was regarded by his Egyptian colleagues as a pious and learned man, his conduct being, according to Muslim morality, irreproachable. He married the daughter of the nurse of El Hami Pasha, son of Abbas Pasha, who had been brought up in the Prince's palace. This afforded him somewhat of a competence. During the Abyssinian campaign he was appointed to have the charge of the train, and remained at Mansura to forward the convoys. After the campaign he was employed in the transport of sugar from the Khedive's estates in Upper Egypt, and, having a quarrel with the manager of the Khedive's property, he returned to Cairo, and was again employed in the army, being at the time a scholar colonel. He became the intimate companion of Ali Bey El Khatib, who was the cause of many fitnas from his unruly conduct. During the year 1880 he organized a sort of secret society among the local officers, which was not broken up in consequence of the events that were then engaging the attention of the Khedive and the Sultan. Some weeks previous to the coup d'état of Ismail Pasha against the European Ministry, several officers among whom were Arabi and El Roubi, went to Ali Pacha Moubarek, a fellah of Charkiéh, and proposed to place him at their head to overthrow the Khedive and the European Ministry. Ali Pacha Moubarek, who was a member of the Ministry of Wilson and Blignières, related the whole to the Khedive, who had an interview with the society of El Roubi and Arabi, and with their aid made the famous revolution which brought about the fall of the European Ministry of 1879. Ismail Pacha would, doubtless, have suppressed the society had he remained a week or a fortnight longer in Egypt. At the accession of Tewfik, the bulk of the public were yet ignorant of the name of Arabi. In a short time afterwards the Khedive made him colonel, and entrusted him with a regiment. Ali Bey El Roubi was sent to Mansourah as President of the Tribunal of First Instance; but the conspiracy could not be destroyed, especially because no one in the Government, except perhaps the Khedive himself, considered that it had any real importance. At this time began the intrigues of the ex-Khedive, of Halim Pacha, and the Porte, and each party endeavoured to get hold of the only power that appeared to remain in Egypt, that is to say, this conspiracy of officers, which had drawn to it a large number of non-commissioned officers, and even of soldiers, by promising them an increase of pay, with better clothing and rations. The tactics of Arabi were to awaken the interest of the people in the movement which he was preparing, and to which he gave the name of "The Awakening of the National Party." In September 1881 Arabi appeared at the head of a military and popular revolt, compelling the Khedive, Tewfik Pacha, to dismiss his former Ministry, and to convene a sort of Parliament called the Assembly of Notables, which met about the beginning of 1882. The affair of September 8 resulted in the overthrow of Riaz Pacha's Administration, which was unpopular because it was supposed to be too deferential to certain foreign interests. Cherif Pacha, who was thereupon appointed Prime Minister, pledged the Khedive to establish a Parliamentary Government. A manifesto was issued by the "National Party" on Dec. 18, 1881, containing an exposition of their views and purposes. They professed loyalty to the Sultan both as Imperial Suzerain and as Caliph of the Mussulman community, but would never suffer Egypt to be reduced to a Turkish Pachalic, and they claimed the guarantee of England and of Europe for the administrative independence of Egypt. They also professed loyalty to the Khedive, but would not acquiesce in a despotic rule, and they insisted upon his promise to govern by the advice of a representative assembly. At the beginning of 1882 the Khedive and Cherif Pacha called together the Assembly of Notables. Arabi was then appointed Under-Secretary for the War Department, and was raised to the rank of Pacha. The Assembly of Notables wanted to vote the Budget. This claim was refused by the Khedive. Government on account of the financial crisis. Arabi and the army had, however, a monopoly of power. The Khedive was forced to accept a National Ministry, the Organic Law, adopted in defiance of the protests of the Controllers, placed the Budgets in the hands of the Notables, thus subverting the authority of the Khedive and France embodied in the Council of Arabi, now substantially Dictator, and supported almost undisguisedly by the Sultan, proceeded to more daring measures. Eventually the English Government was obliged to intervene by armed force. It followed the bombardment of Alexandria by the fleet under the command of Beauchamp Seymour (July 11, 1882), and subsequently (Sept. 13) the decisive defeat of Arabi and his army at Tel-el-Kebir by the British troops under Sir Garnet Wolseley. Arabi and his lieutenant, Toulba Pacha, fled to Cairo, where they surrendered to General Drury Lowe. It was intended at first to charge Arabi with murder and incendiarism, but he was actually brought to trial on the simple charge of rebellion (December 3). He pleaded guilty, and was condemned to death, but immediately afterwards the sentence was commuted by the Khedive to perpetual exile from Egypt and its dependencies. Ceylon having been chosen as the place of banishment, Arabi, with other leaders in the rebellion, were landed at Colombo, Jan. 16, 1883.

ARBUTHNOT, Sir Alexander J., K.C.S.I., C.I.E., son of the then Bishop of Killaloe, was born in Ireland on Oct. 11, 1822. He was educated at Rugby and at the old East India College at Haileybury, and entered the Madras Civil Service in 1842. Appointed a Member of the Council of Madras in 1867, he filled that position until 1872. Subsequently he was a Member of the Governor-General's Council from 1875 to 1880; and eventually he became a Member of the Council of India in 1887. He published in 1881 "Selections from the Minutes, and other Official Writings, of Major-General Sir Thomas Munro, Governor of Madras," with an introductory Memoir and Notes. He was created a K.C.S.I. in 1873; is Vice-Chancellor of Madras and Calcutta Universities; and is a Fellow of the Royal Historical Society. Sir A. Arbuthnot is married to Frederica, daughter of Major-General Fearon, C.B. Addresses: Newtown House, near Newbury; and Athenæum.

ARCH, Joseph, leader of the agricultural labourers' movement, was born at Barford, Warwickshire, on Nov. 10, 1826. His father was a labourer, and he himself had, from an early age, to work in the fields for his living, beginning life, like Cobbett, as a scarer of birds. He married the daughter of a mechanic, and at her suggestion he added to his slender stock of book-learning. He used often to sit up late at night reading books, whilst smoking his pipe by the kitchen fire. In this way he contrived to acquire some knowledge of logic, mensuration, and surveying. He likewise perused a large number of religious works, and for some years he occupied a good deal of his spare time in preaching among the Primitive Methodists. When the movement arose among the agricultural labourers, he became its recognised leader. In 1872 he founded the National Agricultural Labourers' Union, of which he became President. He went through the principal agricultural districts of England, addressing crowded meetings of the labouring classes, and afterwards he visited Canada to inquire into the questions of labour and emigration. Having once or twice offered himself unsuccessfully as a candidate for a seat in Parliament, Mr. Arch was elected in 1885 Liberal member for North-west Norfolk, but after the dissolution of 1886 he was defeated by his former Conservative opponent, Lord Henry Bentinck. At the 1892 election he was returned for North-west Norfolk, and again in 1895. He has described himself as "The Prince of Wales's own M.P." In January 1898 appeared "The Life of Joseph Arch," edited by the Countess of Warwick. In this remarkable autobiography Mr. Arch describes his life and early home, and takes up his position in the following sentence: "I am all in favour of fostering the local spirit. Make a man proud of, and interested in, his birthplace or locality—make him feel he has a part in it—and you have started him on the road to good citizenship. Some will remain strongly local all their lives; others will broaden and widen from the local basis. The right and natural development is from home to neighbouring homes; then to the homes of the parish, the district, the county, the country, the empire, the world. But everything depends on individual effort; the man must help himself if he is to help others." Address: The Cottage, Barford, Warwick.

ARCHDALL, The Right Rev. Mervyn, D.D., Bishop of Killaloe, was educated at Trinity College, Dublin. Becoming Vicar of Templebreedy in 1863, he was appointed successively Rector of St. Luke's, Cork, in 1872; Dean of Cork in 1894; and Bishop of Killaloe in 1897. During the years 1872 to 1897 he acted as Examining Chaplain to Bishops Meade and Gregg of Cork, was Archdeacon of Cork from 1878 to 1894, and was made a Canon of St. Patrick's Cathedral in 1891. Address: Killaloe, Limerick.

ARCHER, James, R.S.A., was born in Edinburgh, June 10, 1824, and educated at the High School in that city. He received his art education in the school founded by the Honourable Board of Trustees for Manufactures in Scotland, and was appointed an Associate of the Royal Scottish Academy in 1850, and a full Academician in 1858. Mr. Archer, who left Scotland for London in 1862, first exhibited in the Royal Academy in the year 1850 a cartoon of a design of the Last Supper, followed by an oil picture of the same the year after. He made a series of pictures from the "Mort d'Arthur," of which one was exhibited in the Royal Academy, "The Mystic Sword Excalibur," and painted a series of pictures of children in costume, exhibited in the Royal Academy, of which "Maggie, you're Cheating," is the chief. He became a portrait painter in 1871, exhibiting a portrait of Colonel Sykes, M.P., from which time he painted many portraits, one of the principal being that of Sir Charles O. Trevelyan, and another that of Professor Blackie. Since that he has painted four large subject pictures: the first "The Worship of Dionysus"; "Dieu le veut, Peter the Hermit Preaching the First Crusade"; "In the Second Century, You! a Christian?" and the fourth, "St. Agnes, a Christian Martyr." In 1884 he went for a few months to the United States, where he painted James G. Blaine, who that year was the defeated candidate for the Presidency; and also Andrew Carnegie, the well-known Pittsburgh millionaire. In 1886 he went to India, where he remained for three years, spending the winters always in Calcutta. There he painted several of the native Rajahs, chiefly members of the well-known family of Tagore, one branch of which is an adherent to the reformed religious movement of the Brahmo Somaj. In Simla he painted Lady Dufferin in her silver-wedding dress, as well as her son, then Lord Clandeboyne. There he also painted a posthumous portrait of Sir Charles Macgregor, and designed his commemorative medal. He returned to London in 1889. Among the portraits he painted after 1889 was one of Sir Charles U. Aitchison, just returned to England from his Governor-ship of the Punjab, the portrait being commissioned by the Rajah of Capurthala; and a posthumous portrait of the Earl of Dalhousie, painted for the city of Dundee, for whom he also painted their member, Sir John Leng. Among the pictures he has since painted are, "Music in the Gloamin'," "From the Ballad of Sir Patrick Spens," and "St. Bernard Preaching the Second Crusade." Permanent address: Haslemere, Surrey.

ARCHER, William, was born in 1856 at Perth, Scotland, and is the son of Thomas Archer, C.M.G., late Agent-General for Queensland in London. Educated mainly in Edinburgh, he took the M.A. degree, Edinburgh University, in 1876. He commenced journalism as leader-writer on the Edinburgh Evening News from 1875 to 1878, with an interval of a year, during which he visited Australia. He published in Edinburgh "The Fashionable Tragedian," 1877; a pamphlet written in collaboration with Mr. Robert W. Lowe. He subsequently became dramatic critic of the London Figaro, then edited by Mr. James Mortimer, 1879-81. He is best known as a translator of Ibsen. He translated from the Norwegian, with slight alterations, Henrik Ibsen's "Pillars of Society," produced at the Gaiety Theatre, London, by Mr. W. H. Vernon, Dec. 15, 1880. This was the first production of a play by Ibsen in England. He was called to the Bar (Middle Temple), 1883. In 1884 he succeeded the late Dutton Cook as dramatic critic of the World, a post still retained in April 1898. He translated "A Doll's House," by Henrik Ibsen, produced by Mr. Charles Charrington and Miss Janet Achurch at the Novelty Theatre, London, June 7, 1889, a production which excited general interest in Ibsen in England. He has also translated, in collaboration with Mr. Edmund Gosse, "The Master Builder," by Henrik Ibsen, produced at Trafalgar Square Theatre by Mr. Herbert Waring and Miss Elizabeth Robins, Feb. 20, 1893, and "A Visit," from the Danish of Edvard Brandes, produced by the Independent Theatre Society (Royalty Theatre), March 4, 1892. His principal publications are "English Analyses of French Plays represented at the Gaiety Theatre," 1879; "English Dramatists of To-day," London, 1882; "Henry Irving, Actor and Manager: a Critical Study," 1883; "About the Theatre: Essays and Studies," 1886; "Masks or Faces? a Study in the Psychology of Acting," 1888; "William Charles Macready; a Biography" (Vol. I of Eminent Actors Series), 1890; "Henrik Ibsen's Prose Dramas, Edited by W. A.," 5 vols., 1890-91; "Tales of Two Countries, from the Norwegian of A.

Kielland," 1891; "Peer Gynt. Poem by Henrik Ibsen, T. William and Charles Archer," "Eskimo Life, by Frithjof Nansen," "Hannele: a Dream Poem by German Hauptmann," 1894; "Dramatic Essays of Leigh Hunt, William Hazlitt, J. Forster, and George Henry Lewes" (3 vols.), edited by William Archer and Robert W. Lowe, 1894; a yearly re-issue of criticisms contributed to the World, published under the title of "The Theatrical 'World'," of which 5 vols. have appeared, for 1893, '94, '95, '96, '97; translations of Ibsen's "Little Eyolf" (1895) and "John Gabriel Bonkman" (1897); a translation of Brögger and Rolfsen's "Lies of Frithjof Nansen." He also translated two-thirds of Dr. G. Brandes's "William Shakespeare." Address: World Office, 1 York Street, Covent Garden.

ARDAGH, Major-General Sir John Charles, K.C.I.E., C.B., son of the Rev. W. J. Ardagh, was born in August 1840. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and at the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, entering the Royal Engineers as Lieutenant in April 1859. He was promoted Captain in August 1872, Major in September 1880, and reached the rank of Colonel in June 1885. In 1869 he accompanied General Sir W. Jervois on a mission to Nova Scotia and Bermuda. His first staff appointment was that of Dept. Assist. Quartermaster-General of the Intelligence Department of the Army, in which capacity he was employed on missions to Holland, Austria, Italy, and Turkey. He was also present at the Conference at Constantinople in 1876, and the Congress at Berlin in 1878, and was appointed Chief Commissioner for the Delimitation of the Turco-Greek Frontier in 1881. For a short time he was the Instructor in Military History at the School of Military Engineering. He went to Egypt in October 1882 as Assistant Adjutant-General, and served through the campaign. He was present at the operations at Alexandria and the battle of Tel-el-Kebir, was mentioned in despatches, and received the brevet of Lieut.-Colonel and the Osmanieh of the Fourth Class. In March 1884 he went to the Soudan as Commanding Royal Engineer and Chief of the Intelligence Department, and was present at the battles of El Teb and Tamai. He was several times mentioned in despatches, and received a C.B. Sir John Ardagh also accompanied the expedition up the Nile, and was afterwards appointed Commandant of the Base at Cairo. As Colonel on the Staff of the Frontier Field Force he took part in the action of Ginniss. He returned to England in November 1887 to take over the duties of Assistant Adjutant-General at headquarters, when he was also appointed an extra A.D.C. to the Duke of Cambridge. He went to India in March 1889 as Private Secretary to the Viceroy. In April 1895 he became the Commandant of the School of Military Engineering, which appointment he vacated in April 1896 on being appointed Director of Military Intelligence at headquarters. Major-General Sir John Ardagh married Susan, Countess of Malmesbury, widow of the third Earl, in 1896. In 1897 the degree of LL.D. honoris causa was conferred on him by Trinity College, Dublin. Addresses: 25 Sloane Gardens, S.W.; Athenæum.

ARDILAUN, Lord, Arthur Edward Guinness, was born on Nov. 1, 1840, and succeeded his father as 2nd Baronet in 1868. He was educated at Eton and Trinity College, Dublin. He represented Dublin as Conservative member of the House of Commons from 1868 to 1869, and again from 1874 to 1880. In the latter year he was raised to the Peerage under the title of Baron Ardilaun. He is the head of the great brewing firm of Arthur Guinness & Co., is President of the Royal Dublin Society, and is Lord Mayor of Dublin. To Lord Ardilaun belongs the credit of having restored St. Patrick's Cathedral at Dublin. He is married to Olivia Charlotte, daughter of the 3rd Earl of Bantry, but there is no heir to the Peerage, his brother, Benjamin Lee Guinness, born in 1842, being heir to the Baronetcy. Addresses: 11 Carlton House Terrace, S.W.; St. Anne's, Clontarf, co. Dublin; and Ashford Cong, Galway.

ARGYLL AND THE ISLES, Bishop of. See CHINNERY - HALDANE, THE RIGHT REV. JAMES ROBERT ALEXANDER.

ARGYLL, Duke of, His Grace The Right Hon. George Douglas Campbell, K.G., K.T., only surviving son of the 7th Duke, was born at Ardincaple Castle, Dumbartonshire, on April 30, 1823, and before he had succeeded his father, in April 1847, had become known as an author, politician, and public speaker. As Marquis of Lorne he took an active part in the controversy in the Presbyterian Church of Scotland relating to patronage, and was looked upon by Dr. Chalmers as an important and valuable adherent. As early as 1842 he published a pamphlet which exhibited considerable literary ability, under the title of "A Letter to the Peers from a Peer's Son." His brochure, "On the Duty and Necessity of Immediate Legislative Interposition in behalf of the Church of Scotland, as determined by Considerations of Constitutional Law," was a historical view of that Church, particularly in reference to its constitutional power in ecclesiastical matters. In the course of the same year he published "A Letter to the Rev. Thomas Chalmers, D.D., on the Present Position of Church Affairs in Scotland, and the Causes which have led to it." In this pamphlet he vindicated the right of the Church to legislate for itself; but condemned the Free Church movement then in agitation among certain members of the General Assembly; maintaining the position taken up in his "Letter to the Peers," and expressing his dissent from the extreme view embodied in the statement of Dr. Chalmers, that "lay patronage and the integrity of the spiritual independence of the Church have been proved to be, like oil and water, immiscible." In 1848 the Duke published an essay, critical and historical, on the ecclesiastical history of Scotland since the Reformation, entitled "Presbytery Examined." It was a careful expansion of his earlier writings, and was favourably received. His Grace was a frequent speaker in the House of Peers on such subjects as Jewish Emancipation, the Scottish Marriage Bill, the Corrupt Practices at Elections Bill, the Sugar Duties, Foreign Affairs, the Ecclesiastical Titles Bill, the Scottish Law of Entail, and the Repeal of the Paper Duties. During the administration of Lord John Russell he gave the Government a general support, at the same time identifying his political views with those of the Liberal Conservatives. His Grace actively interested himself in all questions affecting Scottish interests brought before the Legislature, especially in the affairs of the Church of Scotland. In 1851 he was elected Chancellor of the University of St. Andrews. In 1852 he accepted office in the Cabinet of the Earl of Aberdeen as Lord Privy Seal. On the breaking up of that Ministry in February 1855, in consequence of the secession of Lord John Russell, and the appointment of Mr. Roebuck's Committee of Inquiry into the state of the British Army before Sebastopol, his Grace retained the same office under the Premiership of Lord Palmerston. In the latter part of 1855 he resigned the Privy Seal and became Postmaster-General. In Lord Palmerston's Cabinet of 1859 the Duke resumed the office of Lord Privy Seal, which he exchanged for that of Postmaster-General on Lord Elgin being sent, in 1860, on his second special mission to China. He was reappointed Lord Privy Seal in 1860, was elected Rector of the University of Glasgow in November 1854; presided over the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, held at Glasgow in September 1855; and was elected President of the Royal Society of Edinburgh in 1861. On the formation of Mr. Gladstone's Cabinet in December 1868 he was appointed Secretary of State for India, and he held that position till the downfall of the Liberal Government in February 1874. In the ensuing session he warmly supported the measure introduced and carried by the Conservative Government for the transfer of the patronage in the Church of Scotland from individuals to congregations. He was appointed Lord Privy Seal for the third time in May 1880, on Mr. Gladstone returning to power. That post he held till April 1881, when he resigned it in consequence of a difference with his colleagues in the Cabinet concerning some of the provisions of the Irish Land Bill. In announcing the circumstance to the House of Lords (April 8), he stated that in consequence of certain provisions of the Bill which, in his view, put the ownership of Irish property in commission and abeyance, he had felt obliged to resign his office in the Government, and his resignation had been accepted by Her Majesty. Since that time the Duke has taken an important part, by speech and pen, in political controversy, taking the Whig side, especially on the questions of Home Rule and those arising out of the Crofter agitation. His Grace is Hereditary Master of the Queen's Household in Scotland, Chancellor of the University of St. Andrews, a Trustee of the British Museum, and Hereditary Sheriff and Lord-Lieutenant of Argyllshire. In 1866 his Grace published "The Reign of Law," which has passed through numerous editions; in 1869, "Primeval Man; an Examination of some Recent Speculations"; in 1870, a small work on the History and Antiquities of Iona, of which island his Grace is proprietor; in 1874, "The Patronage Act of 1874 all that was asked in 1843, being a reply to Mr. Taylor Innes"; in 1877 (for the Cobden Club) observations "On the Important Question Involved in the Relation of Landlord and Tenant"; in 1879, "The Eastern Question from the Treaty of Paris to the Treaty of Berlin, and to the second Afghan War," 2 vols.; and in 1884, "The Unity of Nature," a work on the Philosophy of Religion; being a sequel to the "Reign of Law"; "An Economic History of Scotland," 1884; "Scotland as it Was, and as it Is," 1887; "The New British Constitution," 1888; "The Highland Nurse," 1889; "Unseen Foundations of Society," and "Irish Nationalism," 1893; "Poems," 1894; and "Philosophy of Belief," 1896. He is a frequent contributor to scientific journals, chiefly on Geology, the Darwinian Theory, &c. He married, first, in 1844, the eldest daughter of the 2nd Duke of Sutherland (she died May 25, 1878); secondly, in 1881, Amelia Maria, eldest daughter of Dr. Cloughton, Bishop of St. Albans, and widow of Colonel Augustus Henry Archibald Anson; and, thirdly, in 1895, Ina Erskine, youngest daughter of the late Archibald M'Neill, of Colonsay, Argyllshire, and Woman of the Bedchamber to Her Majesty the Queen. His Grace's eldest son, the Marquis of Lorne, married in 1871 the Princess Louise. (See LORNE.) Addresses: Inverary Castle, Argyllshire; Argyll Lodge, Kensington; and Athenæum.

ARIA, Mrs. David B., journalist, was born in London, Aug. 11, 1864. She is the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Davis, and was married in March 1884. Educated privately by Madame Paul Lafargue (eldest daughter of Karl Marx) and by Mr. Gilmore, she began writing for the press in January 1889, making the subject of costume her specialty, and endeavouring to bring to the description and criticism of the passing modes a more picturesque and lively style than had hitherto been adopted. When the Gentlewoman was started in 1890 Mrs. Aria was engaged upon the staff as principal fashion writer, designer of original costumes, and contributor of light social articles, a position in which she has continued to the present time. In 1891 she commenced her well-known "Diary of a Daughter of Eve" in the newly-published Black and White, remaining on the staff of that paper until 1897, when she transferred her "Diary" to the pages of the Sketch, where it now appears. In 1892 she was writing also the fashion articles in the Pictorial World and St. Stephen's Review. She joined the staff of the Queen, writing chiefly the "Vista of Fashion," and became the editress of the pages devoted to dress in Hearth and Home, resigning that post in 1895. For some time Mrs. Aria contributed the Dress column to the Illustrated London News, and for the last two years she has written the Saturday column on "Frocks and Fashions" in the Daily Chronicle. She also writes "The Diary of Madame Sans Gêne" in Country Life, and discourses monthly of the modes in The Woman at Home. Numerous are the periodicals, in addition to those named, in which her pen has been employed in connection with costume, theatrical criticism, or social causerie and satirical sketches. In April 1898 Mrs. Aria made her most ambitious journalistic venture, initiating, as editress, the publication of an illustrated monthly journal entitled The World of Dress, a Survey of the Fashions of To-day and To-morrow. In the autumn of 1897 a new field of industry was opened to her; she was engaged to design and arrange the numerous dresses for an elaborate spectacular melodrama at Drury Lane Theatre. Mrs. Aria's address is 7 Brunswick Place, Regent's Park, W.

ARMAGH, Archbishop of. See ALEXANDER, THE MOST REV. WILLIAM.

ARMSTEAD, Henry Hugh, R.A., sculptor, was born in London, June 18, 1828, and received his artistic education at the School of Design, Somerset House, Leigh's School, Maddox Street, Mr. Carey's School, and the Royal Academy. Among his masters were Mr. M'Manus, Mr. Herbert, R.A., Mr. Bailey, R.A., Mr. Leigh, and Mr. Carey. As a designer, modeller, and chaser for silver, gold, and jewellery, and a draughtsman on wood, he has executed a large number of works. Among those in silver, the most important are the "Charles Kean Testimonial," the "St. George's Vase," "Doncaster Race Plate," the "Tennyson Vase" (Silver Medal obtained for that and other works in Paris, 1855), and the "Packington Shield." His last important work in silver (for which the Medal from the 1862 Exhibition was obtained) was the "Outram Shield," always on view at the South Kensington Museum. His works in marble, bronze, stone, and wood include the south and east sides of the podium of the Albert Memorial, Hyde Park, representing the musicians and painters of the Italian, German, French, and English Schools, and some of the greatest poets. There are also four large bronze figures on the Albert Memorial by Mr. Armstead, viz., Chemistry, Astronomy, Medicine, and Rhetoric. He also designed the external sculptural decorations of the New Colonial Offices—reliefs of Europe, Asia, Africa, America, Australasia, Government, and Education; statues of Earl Grey, Lord Lytton, Duke of Newcastle, Earl of Derby, Lord Ripon, Sir W. Molesworth, Lord Glenelg; and on the façade, reliefs of Truth, Fortitude, Temperance, and Obedience. Mr. Armstead designed the whole of the carved oak panels (beneath Dyce's Frescoes) in her Majesty's Robing Room in New Palace, Westminster, illustrating the life of King Arthur and the history of Sir Galahad; also the external sculpture of Eatington Park, Warwickshire, the large Fountain in the fore court of King's College, Cambridge, the marble reredos of the "Entombment of our Lord" at Hythe Church, Kent, and other works, including the effigies of the late Bishop of Winchester in Winchester Cathedral, of Dean Howard and Archdeacon Moore in Lichfield Cathedral, of Dean Close in Carlisle Cathedral, and of Lord Thynne in Westminster Abbey. The marble doorway in the crush-room of the Holborn Restaurant, including the wrought-iron screens for the fireplaces, &c., are also by him, as well as the exterior stone doorway and corbel of the Hôtel Métropole. One of his most important works is the "Street Memorial," now in the central hall of the Law Courts, including life-size marble statue and alto rilievo of the "Arts and Crafts required for the erection and due enrichment of a great public building." Mention should also be made of his "Applied Mechanics" on the eastern side of the Albert Hall frieze, the subject beginning with Archimedes and ending with Watt; two sculptural reliefs in the Guards' Chapel, S.W., one of David struggling with the Lion, to represent "Courage," and the other Joshua with the Angel, to represent "Obedience." He has also executed certain ideal works, such as "Ariel," "Hero with the dead Leander," and his Diploma work, "The Ever Reigning Queen" as also "Playmates," shown in the Academy Exhibition of 1897. Other works executed by him are the effigy of Bishop Ollivant, now in Llandaff Cathedral, in marble, the bronze statue of Lieutenant Waghorn, R.N., the "Overland Route," erected at Chatham, and the memorial to Mrs. Craik in Tewkesbury Abbey; also the marble monument in St. Paul's Cathedral (in the crypt) containing the effigy of the late Rev. B. Webb, and a reredos for the St. Mary's Church, Aberavon, containing statuettes of Our Lord and the four Evangelists, erected in memory of the late Mr. Llewellyn of Baglan Hall. Mr. Armstead was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy, Jan. 16, 1875, and an Academician, Dec. 18, 1879. His studio is now at his residence, 52 Circus Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.

ARMSTRONG, Sir Alexander, K.C.B., F.R.S., LL.D., J.P., is a son of the late A. Armstrong, Esq., of Crahan, co. Fermanagh, and Elizabeth, daughter of the late Hugh Stephens, Esq., of co. Donegal, Ireland. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and at the University of Edinburgh, where he graduated. Having entered the Royal Navy, he served in various parts of the world, including the Mediterranean, South America, North America, West Indies, Pacific Stations, Africa, Asia Minor, in the exploring expedition to Xanthus in Lycia, and elsewhere, and for five years continuously in the Arctic regions in the search for Sir John Franklin's Expedition. He is one of the few surviving officers who have circumnavigated the continent of America, and was frequently mentioned in the despatches connected therewith. He was present in H.M.S. Investigator at the discovery of the North-West Passage, having entered the Polar Sea via Behring's Strait, and returned to England through Baffin's Bay, with the surviving officer and crew of this vessel. During the Russian War he served in the Baltic, was present at the bombardment of Sweaborg, the blockade of Cronstadt River, and other operations, as also in two night attacks with a flotilla of rocket boats, for which he was gazetted. He has been Deputy Inspector-General of the Mediterranean Fleet and the Naval Hospitals at Malta, Haslar, and Chatham; and he was promoted to be Inspector-General for special services in 1866. Three years later he became Director-General of the Medical Department of the Navy, from which office he retired in 1880. He was created a Knight Commander of the Order of the Bath, Military Division, in 1871 for his services. Sir Alexander Armstrong has received the Arctic, Baltic, and Jubilee medals, with clasp, 1887 and 1897; also Sir Gilbert Blane's gold medal. He is a Naval Honorary Physician to the Queen, and also Honorary Physician in the Household of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. He is a Justice of the Peace for Middlesex, City and Liberties of Westminster, and County of London; and is the author of "A Personal Narrative of the Discovery of the North-West Passage," 1857; and "Observations on Naval Hygiene, particularly in connection with Polar Service." Married in 1894 Charlotte, Lady King Hall, daughter of the late S. Campbell Simpson, Esq., of 23rd Light Dragoons, and granddaughter of the late Thomas and Lady Charlotte Giffard of Chillington Hall, Staffordshire, and also of William, 10th Earl of Devon. Addresses: The Elms, Sutton Bonnington, Loughborough; and Athenæum.

ARMSTRONG, Captain Sir George Carlyon Hughes, Bart., was born at Lucknow in 1836, and was educated privately. He entered the army in 1855, and, after joining Stokes' Pathan Horse, served during the whole period of the Indian Mutiny, receiving the Mutiny Medal and Clasp. On Sept. 18, 1857, he was severely wounded at Mooradnuggar, near Delhi, and was consequently obliged to retire with a pension. He was then appointed Orderly Officer at the Royal Military College at Addiscombe, a position which he held until the abolition of the college; on this occasion he received a Sword of Honour from the cadets. In 1872 he joined the staff of the Globe newspaper, and subsequently became its proprietor and editor. He is now sole proprietor of the Globe, and part proprietor of the People. He was created a Baronet in 1892, and was married in 1865 to Alice, daughter of the Rev. C. J. Furlong. Address: 4 Ashburn Place, South Kensington.

ARMSTRONG, George Elliot, is the eldest son of Sir George Armstrong, Bart., and after undergoing the usual training on H.M.S. Britannia he entered the Navy in December 1878. Appointed Lieutenant in 1890, he has served on the Mediterranean, North America, West Indies, Channel, and China stations. During the manoeuvres of 1891 he was in command of a torpedo boat, but he retired from the service in November 1891. He then joined the staff of the Globe, of which paper his father is proprietor, and was at that time editor, and in 1895 he became himself the editor. He is the author of "Torpedoes and Torpedo Vessels," 1896. Address: Cornerways, Weybridge.

ARMSTRONG, Professor George Frederick, M.A., F.R.S.E., F.G.S., M.Inst.C.E. and M.E., J.P., is the elder son of Mr. George Armstrong and of Mary Ann, daughter of Thomas and Phoebe Knowles, of Doncaster, Yorkshire, and was born May 15, 1842. He received his general education at private schools and at Jesus College, Cambridge. Having from an early age developed a strong taste for mechanical pursuits and a more than ordinary skill in constructive art, it was naturally thought that engineering would afford him a suitable career. He was accordingly educated professionally in the Engineering Department of King's College, London, in the Plant Works and Locomotive Shops of the Great Northern Railway, and in the office of the Engineer-in-Chief, Mr. R. Johnson, M.Inst.C.E., on whose staff he was subsequently employed for several years in the design and execution of many important works, and generally in the maintenance of the line. He was afterwards engaged in private practice in London, and in 1869 became Engineer to the promoters of the Isle of Man Railways, for whom he made all the requisite plans and surveys, and prepared designs for ways and works, and for the necessary rolling stock in connection with the lines then projected. In 1871 he was appointed first Professor of Engineering in the New Applied Science School at McGill University, Montreal; five years later he was offered, and accepted, the corresponding chair in the newly established Yorkshire College of Science at Leeds; and in 1885 was selected by the Crown to succeed the late Professor Fleeming Jenkin, F.R.S., as Regius-Professor of Engineering in the University of

Edinburgh; which appointment he still holds. He is also Engineering Adviser, under the Public Health Act, to the Local Government Board for Scotland. During his residence in Canada Professor Armstrong served for some time in the Canadian Militia, being senior Captain of the University Companies of the 1st (Prince of Wales) Regiment. For many years Professor Armstrong has taken an active part in the promotion of technical education at home and in the colonies, and has been closely identified with its progress. His Inaugural Address at Edinburgh (which is published) was devoted to a consideration of the question in special relation to the education of engineers, and attracted considerable attention at the time of its delivery. He has at other times publicly dealt with the question in lectures, and in the columns of the Times. By intimately associating himself with the work of each of the International Exhibitions held in Edinburgh since 1885 (filling, in the Exhibition of 1890, the positions of Convener of the Engineering and Machinery Committee, and Vice-Chairman of the Executive Council), he has rendered acceptable service in the cause of industrial enterprise. He was President of the Sanitary Engineering Section of the British Institute of Public Health in Edinburgh in 1893, and delivered an address; and from 1895 to 1897 he was President of the Royal Scottish Society of Arts. He has also, in connection with their meetings in Edinburgh, acted as Local Secretary of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, the Institute of Mechanical Engineers, and the Iron and Steel Institute. Professor Armstrong is the author of a number of papers on professional as well as on general science subjects which have been read before various learned societies, or contributed to scientific publications. During the summer and autumn of 1879 he undertook an extensive series of observations and experiments with a view of determining the diurnal variation in the amount of carbon dioxide in the air, the results of which were communicated in a paper to the Royal Society, and have since been accepted as a standard of reference on the Continent as well as in this country. In 1889 the Council of King's College, London, elected Professor Armstrong to the Fellowship of the College, the highest distinction the College is empowered to bestow on its alumni. He is an Examiner for Science Degrees in the Departments of Engineering, Public Health, and Agriculture in the University of Edinburgh; Hon. President of the East of Scotland Engineering Association; and a member of most of the professional institutes and societies. Addresses: The University, Edinburgh; and St. Oswald's, Grasmere, R.S.O., Westmorland.

ARMSTRONG, Henry E., Ph.D., LL.D., F.R.S., is Professor of Chemistry at the City and Guilds of London Central Institute at South Kensington. He is the author of "Introduction to the Study of Organic Chemistry," 1880. Address: 55 Granville Park, Lewisham, S.E.

ARMSTRONG, Walter, the son of Walter Armstrong, of Ennismore Gardens, was born in 1850 in Roxburghshire, and was educated at Harrow and Exeter College, Oxford. From 1880 to 1892 he was engaged as an art critic in connection with the Pall Mall Gazette and the St. James's Gazette, and in the latter year was appointed Director of the National Gallery of Ireland. He has written largely in connection with art subjects, and is the author of the following works: "Life of Alfred Stevens," "Life of Peter de Wint," "Life of Thomas Gainsborough," "Life of Velasquez," "Notes on the National Gallery," "Scottish Painters"; he is also co-editor of Bryan's "Dictionary of Painters." Mr. Armstrong is married to Emily Rose, daughter of J. C. Ferard, J.P., of Ascot Place, Berks. Address: 41 Fitzwilliam Square, Dublin.

ARMSTRONG, Lord, formerly Sir William George, C.B., LL.D., D.C.L., F.R.S., son of the late Mr. William Armstrong, a merchant and alderman of Newcastle-on-Tyne, by the daughter of Mr. William Potter, formerly of Walbottle Hall, Northumberland, was born in 1810. He was educated at the school of Bishop Auckland, and afterwards articled to an eminent solicitor at Newcastle, who subsequently adopted him as a partner; but a strong bent for scientific pursuits eventually diverted him from the law. Early in life he began investigations on the subjects of electricity, which resulted in the invention of the hydro-electric machine, the most powerful means of developing frictional electricity yet devised. For this he was elected, whilst a very young man, a Fellow of the Royal Society. He then invented the hydraulic crane, and between 1845 and 1850 the "accumulator," by which an artificial head is substituted for the natural head gained only by altitude; and he extended the application of hydraulic power to hoists of every kind, machines for opening and closing dock gates and spring bridges, capstans, turntables, waggon-lifts, and a variety of other purposes. For the manufacture of this machinery he and a small circle of friends founded the Elswick Engine Works, near Newcastle. There, in December 1854, he constructed the rifled ordnance gun that bears his name. In 1858 the Rifle Cannon Committee recommended the adoption of the Armstrong gun for special service in the field, and Mr. Armstrong, on presenting his patents to the Government, was knighted, made a C.B., and appointed Engineer of Rifled Ordnance, with a salary of £2000 a year. Between the years 1858 and 1870 the Armstrong gun and the position of Sir W. G. Armstrong in reference to the Government underwent many changes; but the leading feature of the gun, whether rifled or smooth, muzzle-loading or breech-loading, is in the coiling of one wrought-iron tube over another until a sufficient thickness is built up. The Armstrong gun has been largely adopted by foreign Governments. Sir William Armstrong extended the system to guns of all sizes, from the 6-pounder to the 600-pounder, weighing upwards of twenty tons, and within three years introduced three thousand guns into the service. The Committee of Ordnance of the House of Commons, in their report, July 1863, state that they "have had no practical evidence before them that even at this moment any other system of constructing rifled ordnance exists which can be compared to that of Sir W. Armstrong." In February 1863 Sir William resigned his appointment, and rejoined the Elswick manufacturing company, which has since expanded to one of the largest and most important manufacturing establishments in Europe, and has taken a leading part in the further development of artillery and other implements of war. In the same year he acted as President of the British Association meeting held at Newcastle-on-Tyne. In that capacity he drew attention to the gradual lessening of our supply of coal, and the probability of actual exhaustion at some future time. The discussion suggested by this important address led to the appointment of a Royal Commission to inquire into all the circumstances connected with our national coal supply, and he was nominated a member of this Commission. He received the honorary degree of LL.D. from the University of Cambridge in 1862, and the honorary degree of D.C.L. from the University of Oxford in 1870, and the honorary degree of "Master of Engineers" from the University of Dublin in 1892. Lord Armstrong is a Knight Commander of the Danish Order of the Dannebrog, of the Austrian Order of Francis Joseph, of the Spanish Order of Charles III., and of the Brazilian Order of the Rose. He was nominated a Grand Officer of the Italian

Order of SS. Maurice and Lazarus in 1876. He received in 1895 the 2nd Class of the Imperial Order of the Rising Sun of Japan, in 1897 the 2nd Class of the White Elephant of Siam, and in 1898 the 1st grade of the 2nd Class of the Imperial Order of the Double Dragon of China. Lord Armstrong has taken an active part in the inquiries concerning the operation of the Patent Laws, he being very hostile to them in their present forms. He has been thrice President of the Institution of Mechanical Engineers, as well as President of the British Association (1863), of the Inst.C.E. (1882), and of the Newcastle Literary and Philosophical Society. At the general election of 1886 Sir William Armstrong stood as a Unionist Liberal candidate for Newcastle in opposition to Mr. John Morley, but was defeated. He was raised to the Peerage under the title of Baron Armstrong in 1887, the year of the Queen's Jubilee. He is a J.P. for Northumberland, of which county he was High Sheriff in 1873. Address: Craggside, Rothbury.

ARNAUD, Arsène. See CLARETIES, JULES.

ARNOLD, Sir Arthur, K.B., 1895, Hon. LL.D. Cambridge, J.P. and D.L. Co. of London, third son of Robert Coles Arnold, Esq., of Whartons, Framfield, Sussex, and Heath House, Maidstone, was born May 28, 1833. On the passing of the Public Works (Manufacturing Districts) Act, 1863, to meet the necessities of the cotton famine, Sir Arthur Arnold was appointed Assistant-Commissioner, and in that capacity resided in Lancashire till 1866, during which time he wrote "The History of the Cotton Famine," of which the original edition was published in 1864, followed by a cheaper one in 1865. After two years of subsequent travel in the south and east of Europe and in Africa Sir Arthur Arnold returned to England in 1868, when he published "From the Levant," in 2 vols., containing letters descriptive of his tour. He then became the first editor of the Echo, which, under his direction and control, attained a great success. In 1873 the King of Greece conferred the Golden Cross of the Order of the Redeemer upon Sir Arthur, with special reference to his work "From the Levant." In the same year, upon the death of Mr. Baring, Sir Arthur Arnold was an unsuccessful candidate for the representation of Huntingdon. He resigned his connection with the Echo in 1875, and passed a year in travelling through Russia and Persia. The notice of this journey appeared in 1877, under the title of "Through Persia by Caravan." In 1879-80 he issued two works, one entitled "Social Politics," and the other "Free Land." At the general election of 1880 he was returned to Parliament for Salford. In the same year, in succession to Sir Charles Dilke, Sir Arthur Arnold was elected Chairman of the Greek Committee which was actively concerned in promoting the enlargement of the Hellenic kingdom in accordance with the suggestions of the Treaty of Berlin. In 1882 Sir Arthur Arnold proposed in the House of Commons resolutions in favour of uniformity of franchise throughout the United Kingdom, and the redistribution of political power, and upon a motion for adjournment the policy of the resolution was, for the first time, sanctioned by a large majority. In 1883 he moved for an elaborate return of electoral statistics, which the Government adopted in connection with the Reform Bill of 1884. In 1885 Sir Arthur Arnold established and was elected President of the Free Land League, which quickly obtained the support of a large number of members of Parliament. At the general election of that year and of 1886 he unsuccessfully contested the Northern Division of Salford. Upon the formation of the London County Council in 1889 Sir Arthur Arnold was elected a County Alderman for the double term of six years. He was Chairman of the Council for two years, 1895-96. In 1898 he was re-elected, by 67 votes, Alderman for another term of six years. In May 1890 he accepted an invitation from the North Dorset Liberal Association to contest that division at the next election, but was defeated at the election in 1892. In 1867 he married Amelia, only daughter of Captain H. B. Hyde, 96th Regiment. Addresses: 45 Kensington Park Gardens, W.; Reform Club; and Hyde Hill, Dartmouth.

ARNOLD, Sir Edwin, K.C.I.E., C.S.I., second son of Robert Coles Arnold, Esq., J.P. for the counties of Sussex and Kent, and brother of the above, born June 10, 1832, was educated at the King's School, Rochester, and King's College, London, and was elected to a scholarship at University College, Oxford. In 1852 he obtained the Newdigate Prize for his English poem on the "Feast of Belshazzar," and was selected in 1853 to address the late Earl of Derby on his installation as Chancellor of the University. He graduated in honours in 1854. Upon quitting college he was elected second master in the English Division of King Edward the Sixth's School, Birmingham, and subsequently appointed Principal of the Government Sanskrit College at Poona, in the Bombay Presidency, and Fellow of the University of Bombay, which offices

he held during the Mutiny, and resigned in 1861, after having twice received the thanks of the Governor in Council. He had then contributed largely to critical and literary journals, and was author of "Griselda, a Drama," and "Poems, Narrative and Lyrical"; with some prose works, among which are "Education in India," "The Euterpe of Herodotus," a translation from the Greek text, with notes, and "The Hitopadesa," with Vocabulary in Sanskrit, English, and Murathi. The last two were published in India. Sir Edwin Arnold has published also a metrical translation of the classical Sanskrit work "Hitopadesa," under the title of "The Book of Good Counsels," a "History of the Administration of India under the late Marquis of Dalhousie," 1862-64, as well as a popular account, with translated passages, of "The Poets of Greece." Since 1861 he has been upon the editorial staff of the Daily Telegraph. On behalf of the proprietors of that journal he arranged the first expedition of Mr. George Smith to Assyria, as well as that of Mr. Henry Stanley, who was sent by the same journal, in conjunction with the New York Herald, to complete the discoveries of Livingstone in Africa. He is a Fellow of the Royal Asiatic and the Royal Geographical Societies of London, and Hon. Correspondent of that of Marseilles. He published in 1874 "Hero and Leander," a translation in heroic verse from the Greek of Musaeus; and in the following year "The Indian Song of Songs," being a metrical paraphrase from the Sanskrit of the Gita Govinda of Jayadeva. Upon the occasion of the proclamation of the Queen as Empress of India on Jan. 1, 1877, he was named a Companion of the Star of India. In 1879 he produced "The Light of Asia," an epic poem upon the Life and Teaching of Buddha, which has since passed through more than sixty editions in England, and eighty in America. For this work the King of Siam decorated him with the Order of the White Elephant. In 1881 he published a volume of oriental verse under the title of "Indian Poetry," and he has printed several translations from the Sanskrit epic the Mahabharata, and in 1883 "Pearls of the Faith; or, Islam's Rosary; being the ninety-nine beautiful names of Allah, with comments in verse." Sir Edwin received the Second Class of the Imperial Order of the Medjidieh from the Sultan in 1876, and the Imperial Order of Osmanie in 1886. In January 1888 he was created Knight Commander of the Indian Empire by the Queen, and in October of the same year published "With Sa'di in the Garden," or "The Book of Love," a poem founded on the 3rd chapter of the Boston of the Persian poet Sa'di, for which he subsequently received from the Shah of Persia the Order of the Lion and Sun. He also published in 1888 a volume comprising most of his previous English poems and some new ones, under the title of "Poems National and Non-Oriental." In recent years there have appeared from his pen another epic, "The Light of the World"; "The Tenth Muse"; a volume entitled "Potiphar's Wife, and other Poems"; two books of travel, "India Revisited" and "Seas and Lands"; as well as "Japonica," a work on Japanese manners and customs, and "Adzuma," a Japanese tragedy. During his sojourn in Japan the Emperor conferred on him the Order of the Rising Sun, giving him the dignity of "Chokunin" of the Empire; and the King of Siam has recently created him Grand Officer of the Crown of Siam. He was elected President of the Birmingham and Midland Institute for the year 1893. Address: 31 Bolton Gardens, S.W.

ARNOLD, Thomas, M.A., is the second son of the late Dr. Arnold, of Rugby, and was born at Laleham, Staines, Nov. 30, 1823. Educated at Winchester, Rugby, and University College, Oxford, he took his degree (First Class Classics) in 1845. After serving for some time in the Colonial Office he went to New Zealand; passed thence to Tasmania in 1850, with the appointment of Inspector of Schools; and, on becoming a Roman Catholic, returned to this country in 1856. He became a Professor in the Roman Catholic University at Dublin, thence moved to the Oratory School, Birmingham, and thence to Oxford. He is a Fellow and an Examiner in the English Language and Literature at the Royal University of Ireland. He is the author of several works on English Literature, and editions of old texts, among them, "A Manual of English Literature" (now in a sixth edition); an edition of "Select English Works of Wyclif," 3 vols., 1869; "Selections from the Spectator"; "Clarendon, Book VI.," "Beowulf," text, translation, and notes; and, for the Master of the Rolls' Series, editions of "Henry of Huntingdon," and "Symeon of Durham." He is now engaged upon the "Chronicles of the Abbey of Bury St. Edmunds." On the establishment of the Royal University of Ireland Mr. Arnold was appointed a Fellow. He married in Tasmania Julia Sorell, granddaughter of a former Governor of the Colony. She died in 1888, and he has since married Josephine, daughter of the late James Benison, of Slieve Russell, co. Cavan. Mrs. Humphry Ward (q. v.) is his daughter. Address: Royal University of Ireland, Dublin.

ARNOLD-FORSTER, Hugh ley, M.P., the son of William De. Arnold, Director of Public Instruction at Panjaub, and the adopted son of the late Right Hon. W. E. Forster, M.P., was born in 1855. He was educated at Rugby and University College, Oxford, where he obtained first-class Honours in the Final School of Modern History. He was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn in 1879, and went the North-Eastern Circuit. He was elected Liberal Unionist member for West Belfast in 1892, and still represents that constituency. He is the author of "How to Solve the Irish Land Question"; "The Citizen Reader"; "The Laws of Everyday Life"; "This World of Ours"; "In a Conning Tower"; "Things New and Old"; "Our Home Army"; "A History of England," 1897. Mr. Arnold-Forster is married to Mary, daughter of Professor Story-Maskelyne. Address: 9 Evelyn Gardens, S.W.

ARNOTT, Sir John, Bart., was born in 1817, and is the proprietor of the Irish Times. He sat in the House of Commons as member for Kinsale from 1859 to 1863, and was knighted in 1859; a baronetcy was conferred upon him in 1896. He married, first, a daughter of J. J. Mackinlay in 1852, and, second, a daughter of the Rev. E. L. Fitzgerald in 1872, and he has a son and heir, John, born in 1854. Address: Woodlands, Cork.

ASHBOURNE, Lord, The Right Hon. Edward Gibson, Lord Chancellor of Ireland, was born in Dublin on Dec. 4, 1837, and educated at Trinity College, Dublin, where, on taking his degree, he obtained first gold medal. In 1875 he entered Parliament as member for Dublin University, and in 1877 was made Attorney-General for Ireland. He held his post until 1880, when he went out of office with his party, but continued to sit for Dublin University. During the Liberal rule from 1880 to 1885, Mr. Gibson was the chief spokesman of the Opposition on Irish questions, and the chief critic of the Irish Land Bill of 1881. On the accession of Lord Salisbury to office in 1885 Mr. Gibson was raised to the peerage with the title of Baron Ashbourne, and was made Lord Chancellor of Ireland, with a seat in the Cabinet, a post which he again filled under Lord Salisbury's second administration in 1886, and has now held from 1895 onwards. He is responsible for Lord Ashbourne's Act (1885) for facilitating the sale of Irish holdings to tenants. He married in 1868 Frances, daughter of H. C. Cokes. Addresses: 5 Grosvenor Crescent, S.W.; 12 Merrion Square, S. Dublin; and Athenæum.

ASHBURNHAM, Bertram, 5th Earl of, Viscount St. Asaph, and Baron of Ashburnham, Knight Grand Cross of the Sovereign Order of Malta and of the Pontifical Order of Pius, was born at Ashburnham, Oct. 28, 1840, being the son of Bertram, 4th Earl, by his wife Katherine Charlotte, daughter of George Baillie, Esq., of Mellerstain and Jerviswood, and sister of George, 10th Earl of Haddington. He was educated at Westminster School, and at Fontainebleau in France. He was attached to the Marquis of Bath's special embassy to convey the Order of the Garter to the Emperor of Austria in 1867. He succeeded his father as 5th Earl in 1878. He presided over the first meeting held in England to advocate "Home Rule" for Ireland, and was elected Chairman of the British Home Rule Association in 1886, but since then has taken no active part in politics. Lord Ashburnham is the chief representative of the Ashburnham family, which, in a direct male line, has continued at Ashburnham, in Sussex, from before the Norman Conquest, and is described by Fuller in the early part of the seventeenth century as a "family of stupendous antiquity wherein the eminence hath equalled the antiquity." Lord Ashburnham was the owner of the collection of MSS. and printed books formed by the late Earl, some portions of which had at different times previous to 1895 been sold to the British and Italian Governments. In 1898 occurred the great sale of the Ashburnham Library. The library was divided into three portions, the final sale taking place at Messrs. Sotheby & Wilkinson's on May 14. The sale, as a whole, lasted three weeks, and realised nearly £63,000, many of the lots being unique. This famous dispersion of priceless books has been described as one of the four of the century, the others being the Roxburghe, Heber, and Beckford sales. Addresses: 30 Dover Street, W.; Ashburnham Place, Battle, &c.; and Athenæum.

ASHCOMBE, Lord, George Cubitt, is the eldest son of the late Mr. Thomas Cubitt. He was born on June 4, 1828, and graduated M.A. at Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1854, where he was three terms a Prizeman. He was elected M.P. for West Surrey in 1860, and continued to represent it until 1885, when he was elected for the Mid or Epsom division. He filled the unpaid post of Second Church Estates Commissioner from 1874 to 1879, and has served on other Royal Commissions. In 1880 he was sworn a Member of the Privy Council, and in 1892 was raised to the peerage as Lord Ashcombe. He has taken special interest in church and educational questions, is Chairman of the House of Laymen of the province of Canterbury, and was one of the founders of the large middle-class schools at Bramley and Cranleigh, Surrey. He passed the Act 41 & 42 Vict., c. 42, enabling all clerical improprators to redeem tithe-rent charge, and a speech delivered by him in 1872 on "Non-conformist Endowments," is among the publications of the Church Defence Institution. He is Vice-Chairman of the Surrey County Council, and Honorary Colonel of the 4th V.B. of the Queen's West Surrey Regiment, &c. His son, the Hon. Henry Cubitt, has represented the Reigate division of Surrey since 1892. He married in 1853 Laura, daughter of the Rev. James Joyce. Addresses: Denbies, Dorking; and 17 Princes Gate, S.W.

ASHLEY, The Right Hon. Anthony Evelyn Melbourne, son of the late Earl of Shaftesbury by his marriage with Lady Emily Cowper, eldest daughter of the 4th Earl Cowper, was born on July 24, 1836, and educated at Harrow and at Trinity College, Cambridge, graduating M.A. in 1858. He was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn in Trinity Term, 1863, and joined the Oxford Circuit. Mr. Ashley, who is a magistrate for Dorset, for Hampshire, and for the county of Sligo, unsuccessfully contested the Isle of Wight in February 1874; he was, however, elected for Poole in May of the same year, and continued to represent that borough down to 1880, when he was elected for the Isle of Wight. Mr. Ashley was formerly private secretary to the late Lord Palmerston, and from 1863 to 1874 he was a Treasurer of County Courts. When the Liberals returned to power in April 1880 Mr. Ashley was appointed Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade, and in May 1882 was chosen by Mr. Gladstone to succeed Mr. Courtney in the office of Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies. He was also second Church Estates Commissioner from 1880 to 1885. He is official Verderer of the New Forest. At the general election of 1885 Mr. Ashley was defeated in the Isle of Wight contest by Sir Richard Webster, Conservative. In 1891 he was made a Privy Councillor. Mr. Ashley is the author of "The Life of Henry John Temple, Viscount Palmerston." He married in 1866 Sybella Charlotte, daughter of Sir Walter Rockliffe Farquhar, Bart., who died in 1886, and since then he has married Lady Alice Cole, daughter of the 3rd Earl of Enniskillen. Addresses: 13 Cadogan Square, S.W.; and Athenæum.

ASHMEAD-BARTLETT, Sir Ellis, M.P., eldest son of the late Mr. Ellis Bartlett, a minister of Plymouth, Massachusetts, and Sophia, daughter of J. K. Ashmead of Philadelphia, was born at Brooklyn in 1849, and educated at Torquay and at Christ Church, Oxford, where he took a first-class in the final schools, and was President of the Oxford Union. He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1877, and was for some time an Examiner in the Education Department and in the Privy Council Office. In 1880 he entered Parliament as member for Eye; and in 1885, 1886, 1892, and 1895 was returned for the Eccleshall Division of Sheffield. At the last election he was returned unopposed. He received the honour of knighthood in 1892. In Lord Salisbury's first two administrations Mr. Ashmead-Bartlett held the post of Civil Lord of the Admiralty. He has been a frequent and copious speaker in the House and on public platforms, especially on questions of foreign policy. He has published "The Battlefields of Thessaly," 1897, and was taken prisoner, on Tuesday, May 4, of that year, during the Græco-Turkish war, by a Greek warship, the commander of which mistook him for a spy, but the Greeks liberated him when it was discovered that he was a member of Parliament. His brother is married to Baroness Burdett-Coutts. He is married to Frances, daughter of H. E. Walsh. Addresses: 6 Grosvenor Street, W.; and Grange House, Eastbourne.

ASQUITH, The Right Hon. Herbert Henry, Q.C., M.P., second son of the late J. Dixon Asquith, Esq., of Croft House, Morley, Yorks, was born at Morley, Sept. 12, 1852, and was educated at the City of London School and Balliol College, Oxford, of which he was Scholar, and afterwards Fellow. B.A. 1874; first-class Classics, and Craven Scholar. He was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn, June 1876; appointed a Queen's Counsel, February 1890; elected M.P. for East Fife in July 1886, and again in 1892. Together with the Lord Chief-Justice (then Sir C. Russell) he was engaged on behalf of the late Charles Parnell, M.P., during the Parnell Commission. In August 1892 he was mover of the Amendment to the Queen's Speech which led to the division fatal to Lord Salisbury's Government, and when Mr. Gladstone formed his Ministry he was appointed Home Secretary and was sworn of the Privy Council, and placed on the Ecclesiastical Commission, on which he remained till 1895. It was during the Home Rule Debates that he became famous, and rose to the most prominent position in the House. During the Labour disputes of 1893 he took up a consistent attitude which commanded the approval of Parliament, and in 1894 acted as arbitrator in the London cab strike, his award being considered satisfactory. He introduced the Disestablishment of the Church of Wales Bill in 1894, and conducted the same till it was rejected by the House. In February 1893 he was nominated for the Lord Rectorship of Glasgow. In 1895 he was again returned for East Fife, the constituency he now represents. He has made many important speeches in Scotland on the policy of Lord Salisbury's Government, and was designated by Lord Rosebery, in a speech delivered in 1891 at Edinburgh, shortly after his resignation of the leadership of his party as destined in future to high office. At present he has returned to his practice at the Bar. He married in 1877 Helen, daughter of F. Melland, Esq., of Manchester (who died in 1891), and in 1894 Miss Margot Tennant, daughter of Sir Charles Tennant, Bart. Addresses: 20 Cavendish Square, W.; and Athenæum

ASTOR, William Waldorf, was born in New York on March 31, 1848, and is the only son of John Jacob Astor and Charlotte Augusta Gibbes. He received his education privately. He succeeded to the vast family estate in 1890, having for many years helped his father in the management of it. He was admitted to the Bar in 1875, after which he devoted three years to politics, having been in the Legislature of the State of New York in 1878 and 1880. In 1882 he was appointed United States Minister to Italy, and remained in that position till 1885. He came to London in 1891, and in October 1893 effected the purchase of the Pall Mall Gazette and Beech, which was the event of the year. (See COOKE.) During the year he bought Cliveden, the Westminister's estate on the Thames. The estate office is a prominent feature on the Thames Embankment. Address: Cliveden, Taplow.

ATHERTON, Mrs. Gertrude F. Lincoln, authoress, was born in Rincon, San Francisco, and is the daughter of Thomas L. Horn and Gertrude F. a grand-niece of Benjamin Franklin. She was educated at St. Mary's Hall, Bennington, California, and at the Sayre Institution, Lexington, Kentucky. She was the first publisher, who, in 1871, brought out her novel "What D May Come." This was followed by popular book "Hermia Suydam," "Los Cerritos," 1890; "The Woman," 1892; "Before the Gringo," 1894; "A Whirl Asunder," 1895; "P. Sparhawk, and her Times," 1897, published her best-known book; "His Fortuna Grace," 1897. All these were successes. Her two Eng. novels are "The Americans of Maine" and "The Great Black Oxen," 1894. Mrs. the widow of George H. Bowen of Menlo Park, California. She is now at 1000. Address: c/o Hampstead National Provincial Bank, N.W.

LE. See ATHOLL, DUKE OF.

LL, Duke of, Sir John James Henry Stewart Murray, K.T., on Aug. 6, 1840, and succeeded as the 6th Duke, in 1864. He was educated at Eton, and afterwards in the Scots Guards, where he was captain. He is Hereditary Lord-Lieutenant of the Perth, where he owns enormous estates. He married in 1863 Louisa, daughter of Sir Thomas Moncrieff, Bart. Address: Blair Castle, Blair Atholl and Perthshire; and 84 Eaton Place, N, Rev. Edward, D.D., a Latin Optime and third Classic at Eton in 1842. He was ordained in 1845, and subsequently became Fellow and Canon of Eton College. He became Master of Eton College in 1856, a position which he continues to hold. Dr. Atkinson was the office of Vice-Chancellor of Eton on separate occasions, viz., from 1853, from 1868 to 1870, and from 1878.

Edward Tindal, was a Barrister at the Middle Temple in 1845, and was appointed a Queen's Counsel in 1846. He is Solicitor-General for the County of Durham, is engaged on the Eastern Circuit, and became a Barrister at Leeds in 1897. Address: 2 Court, Temple, E.C.

SON, The Right Hon. John, was born in 1845, and joined the Bar in 1865. He sits for North Durham as a Conservative; was Solicitor-General for Ireland from 1889 and Attorney-General for Ireland from 1894, and again since 1895. Address: 11, Great Square, North, Dublin.

SON, The Rev. John was born in 1845, and received his education at Goldsmiths' College, Essex, in 1814, and received his education at Kelvedon, in that county. He was appointed Vicar of Danby, North Riding of Yorkshire, and Chaplain to the late Viscountess of Epsom, and Chaplain to the High Sheriff of Yorkshire in 1851. Dr. Atkinson was the office of "Walks, Talks, &c., of Yorkshire," 1859; "Playhours and Sketches in Natural History," 1861; "Eggs and Nests of British Birds," 1861; "Stanton Grange: or, Life at a Private Tutor's," 1864; "A Glossary of the Cleveland Dialect," 1868; "Lost; or, What Came of a Slip from Honour Bright," 1869; besides many papers on archaeological and philological subjects in the Proceedings of various learned societies. For some time he was engaged on "The History of Cleveland, Ancient and Modern," partly published, and he has since edited the Chartularies of Whitby, in two volumes, for the Surtees Society, the Chartulary of Rievaulx Abbey, for the same series, and the Furness Coucher Book, in three volumes. Previous to the completion of the Furness and Rievaulx Chartularies he had issued "A Handbook of Ancient Whitby and its Abbey." In the year 1887 he had the honorary degree of D.C.L. conferred upon him by the University of Durham "in recognition of his many services to literature." Dr. Atkinson, who is now an Hon. Canon of York, has recently had a pension of £100 a year granted to him from the Civil List, on the recommendation of Mr. Balfour, in recognition of his services to philology and scholarship. In 1897 he celebrated the jubilee of his appointment to the parish of Danby. Address: Danby Vicarage, Yorks.

ATTFIELD, Professor John, M.A. and Ph.D. of the University of Tübingen, F.R.S., Professor of Practical Chemistry to the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain from 1862 to 1896, was born near Barnet, Hertfordshire, on Aug. 28, 1835, and is the descendant of an ancient Hertfordshire family, and son of the late John and Anne Winifred Attfield. In 1850 he was articled to Mr. W. F. Smith, manufacturing pharmaceutical chemist, London. In 1853-54 he was a student in the Pharmaceutical Society's School, and First Prizeman in all subjects—chemistry, botany, pharmacy, and materia medica. From 1854 to 1862 he was Demonstrator of Chemistry at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, and lecture-assistant and research-assistant to the Professors of Chemistry there, namely, to Dr. Stenhouse, F.R.S., for three years, and afterwards for five years to Dr. Frankland, F.R.S., at the hospital, and concurrently at the Addiscombe Military College and the Royal Institution. During the same period he wrote most of the chemical articles in "Brande's Dictionary of Art, Science, and Literature," and in the Arts and Sciences Division of the "English Cyclopædia," besides being a frequent scientific contributor to several journals and newspapers. In 1862 he took his University degrees, his thesis being an account of an original research "On the Spectrum of Carbon," a paper read before the Royal Society, and published in the Philosophical Transactions. In 1862, also, he was appointed to the Chair of Practical Chemistry in the Pharmaceutical Society's School, where he was the first Dean, and, 1887 to 1896, senior Professor. From 1860 onwards he wrote frequently on the subject of "Fire," both in scientific treatises and in a series of long letters to the Times, resulting in useful legislation and other public action, and in many appeals to him as an authority on the origin and causes of conflagrations. Dr. Attfield has always advocated the displacement of our existing system of weights and measures by the metric decimal system. He was for some time on the Council of the Metric Decimal Association. He is a Fellow, and was for several years on the Council, of the Chemical Society; is a Fellow, was one of the founders, and was for several years on the Council, of the Institute of Chemistry of Great Britain and Ireland; is a Life Member, and on the General Committee, of the British Association for the Advancement of Science; is a Fellow of the Society of Chemical Industry; was for two years President of the Hertfordshire Natural History Society; was one of the five founders, for seventeen years Senior Secretary, and for two years President of the British Pharmaceutical Conference, an organisation for the encouragement of original research in pharmacy, each of his presidential addresses "On the Relations of Pharmacy and the State" drawing supporting editorial articles from the Times and from twenty or thirty other leading newspapers; the members, on his retirement, presenting him with an illuminated address on vellum and five hundred specially bound volumes of general literature. He was Secretary of the Food Jury at the International Health Exhibition in 1884, and, as some recognition of his services, the Council of the Exhibition presented him with eighteen bound volumes of their collected literature. He also wrote the Exhibition Handbook on "Water and Water Supplies," which has now reached a third edition. He has written largely on pharmaceutical education, and the relation of education to examination, his views, especially as regards compulsory public curricula, having gradually won the support of all leading pharmacists. The present chemical nomenclature of the Pharmacopœias of Great Britain and the United States was adopted on his recommendation and long advocacy. His great work is "A Manual of Chemistry; General, Medical, and Pharmaceutical," of which there have been published seventeen large editions in thirty-one years, nine being adapted to British and eight to American medical and pharmaceutical requirements. For this book he was awarded a gold medal at the first Pharmaceutical Exhibition in Vienna in 1883, and the still higher honour of a diploma of honour at the same Exhibition at Prague in 1896. He was the author of published lectures on the first (1864) "British Pharmacopœia"; was appointed by the General Council of Medical Education and Registration of the United Kingdom one of the three editors of the "British Pharmacopœia of 1885"; and was editor of the 1890 Addendum to the "Pharmacopœia." In the production of the latter he successfully brought about the recognised co-operation of the followers of medicine on the one hand and pharmacy on the other, the General Medical Council representing the medical practitioners of Great Britain, while the Pharmaceutical Society represented the body of chemists and druggists. This service has been gracefully and publicly recognised both by the Medical Council and by the Council of the Pharmaceutical Society. The Medical Council appointed him editor of the fourth "British Pharmacopœia," and adopted his suggestion to give the work imperial extension of usefulness in the Colonies and India. In the Preface to this work the following paragraph occurs: "The 'Pharmacopœia' has been edited by Dr. John Attfield, F.R.S., who has been since 1885 Annual Reporter to the Council on the progress of pharmacy, and who has advised it on all matters relating to pharmaceutical chemistry. The Council is much indebted to him, both for his scientific and for his literary services." On May 31, 1898, the General Medical Council, on motion from the chair, passed a vote of thanks "to the Editor, Dr. Attfield, for all he has done to make the 'Pharmacopœia' complete and accurate." In the Royal Society's Catalogue Dr. Attfield appears as author of thirty-seven original scientific papers, mostly of pharmaceutical interest, published in the Transactions of the Royal, Chemical, and Pharmaceutical Societies. His scientific and educational work has gained for him not only the much-coveted honour of being a Fellow of the Royal Society, but also the following twenty-three honorary distinctions: Hon. Member of the Pharmaceutical Societies of Great Britain, Paris, St. Petersburg, Austria, Denmark, East Flanders, Switzerland, Australasia, New South Wales, and Queensland; of the American Pharmaceutical Association; of the Colleges of Pharmacy of Philadelphia, New York, Massachusetts, Chicago, Maryland, and Ontario; and of the Pharmaceutical Associations of New Hampshire, Virginia, Liverpool, Manchester,

Georgia, and the Province of Quebec. At the Chicago College the chief lecture theatre was named "Attfield Hall," and his portrait in oils was hung on the College walls "in recognition of his aid in raising the College from its ashes after the great fire of 1871, and of his unselfish devotion to the cause of education." Professor Attfield in 1896 retired into private practice as a chemical analyst and consultant. He is the Hon. Consulting Chemist and Analyst to the London Orphan Asylum and the Ventnor Consumption Hospital. He has laboratories at Temple Chambers, London, and at Watford. On the resignation of his post at the Pharmaceutical Society, after thirty-four years of uninterrupted educational labours, for services rendered as a Professor, the Council of the Society, each of the twenty-one members being present, accorded him unanimously the great and, to a retiring teacher, unusual honour of a vote of thanks, complimentary speeches being made by the ex-President and President. On July 10, 1897, a grand testimonial was presented to him on his retirement by large numbers of grateful pupils and by many public friends or former associates. It comprised an elaborate silver tea service and an album of autographs, which included the signatures of over a thousand pupils, and of two or three hundreds of Professors and other colleagues in the Universities and Colleges of Europe and America. His son, Dr. Donald Harvey Attfield, M.A., M.B., B.C., Cantab., and holding the diploma of Public Health of the same University, was born on June 9, 1866, and was for three years, 1894 to 1897, English Quarantine Medical Officer at the Port of Suez and the adjacent Sanatorium of Moses' Wells. During that period he was Sub-Director of the Mecca and Medina Pilgrim Encampment at El Tor, on the Gulf of Suez, and the Director of a similar encampment at Ras Mallap. He voluntarily resigned this appointment in 1897, and is now Medical Officer of Health for Watford, and a consulting hygienist and bacteriologist. He is the author of published papers on "An Investigation of the Natural Solidified Sodium Sulphate Lakes of Wyoming, U.S.A.," "The Destruction of Bacteria in Polluted River Water by Infusoria," "The Treatment of Chronic Gastric Affections by aid of the Siphon Stomach Tube." Address: "Ashlands," Watford, Herts.

AUDIFFRET-PASQUIER, Edmé Armand Gaston, Duc d', a French politician, was born in October 1823. His father, the Comte d'Audiffret, under the Restoration, was Director of Customs, Director of the National Debt, Councillor of State, and afterwards Receiver-General. His uncle, the Marquis d'Audiffret, was a Peer of France, and President of the Cour des Comptes. The name of d'Audiffret is that of an old family of Dauphiné, and their armorial bearings were to be seen in the Crusades. The Comte d'Audiffret, father of the present Duke, married the daughter of M. Pasquier, Director-General to the Tobacco Manufactories, and brother to the Chancellor Pasquier. It is from the latter, who died without issue, and who had adopted him in 1844, that the subject of this memoir derives his ducal title. In 1845 young d'Audiffret, scarcely twenty-two years old, entered the Council of State as Auditor, and married Made-moiselle Fontenillat, daughter of the Receiver-General of the Gironde. Successive family afflictions deprived him of his children and induced him to wish for a retired life; and M. d'Audiffret went to live in Normandy on an estate which belonged to him. Here he passed twenty years of his life, occupied with agriculture and with political studies, in the midst of his books, the old library of the d'Audiffret family being one of the most ample literary collections which any individual could possess. In 1858 he presented himself for election to the Council-General, and in 1866 and 1869 to the Corps Législatif. On every occasion the battle was strongly contested. Victorious the first time, the candidate was beaten on the two other occasions by the efforts of official pressure. After the fall of the Empire he was elected to the National Assembly in the Conservative interest by the Department of the Orne (Feb. 8, 1871), and voted with the Right Centre. He was nominated President of the Commission on Purchases, and in this capacity acquired sudden renown by the masterly way in which he encountered in debate M. Rouher, the champion of the fallen dynasty. By his eloquence he soon acquired a great and strong position in the Assembly. He was one of the principal originators of the downfall of M. Thiers, but he had assumed an attitude which would not permit of his being included in a ministry of which Bonapartists were members. After the check given to the proposed Monarchical Restoration, the Duke, as President of the Right Centre, was among those who supported the Septennate, and who powerfully contributed, in conjunction with his brother-in-law, M. Casimir-Perier, to the solution of Feb. 25, 1875. On the formation of the Buffet Ministry he was elected President of the National Assembly. On Dec. 9, 1875, the Duc d'Audiffret-Pasquier, who, a few days previous, had joined the Left Centre, was the first person who was elected a Life Senator by the Assembly, by a majority amounting to four-fifths of all the votes recorded. In the sitting of March 13, 1876, he was elected President of the Senate. He continued to hold that office till January 1879, after the Senatorial elections, which gave the Republicans a majority in the Upper Chamber. On Dec. 26, 1878, he was elected to the seat in the French Academy lately filled by Mgr. Dupanloup. Of the twenty-seven members present, twenty-two voted for him, and five abstained from voting. He is one of the few Academicians who have published no important works. For some years past he has lived in complete retirement. Address: 25 Rue Fresnel, Paris.

AUFRECHT, Professor Theodor, LL.D., M.A., an Orientalist, was born at Leschnitz, Silesia, Jan. 7, 1821, and educated in the University of Berlin. He was appointed Professor of Sanskrit and Comparative Philology in the University of Edinburgh in 1862. On April 21, 1875, that university conferred on him the degree of LL.D., and shortly afterwards he left Scotland for Bonn, where he had been appointed Professor of Sanskrit. Professor Aufrecht has published "A Complete Glossary to the Rig Veda, with constant reference to the Atharva Veda"; "De Accentu Compositorum Sanskritorum," 1847; "Halayudha's Abhidhanaratnamala; a Sanskrit Vocabulary, edited with a complete Sanskrit-English Glossary"; "The Hymns of the Rig Veda, transcribed into English letters," 2 vols.; "Ujvaladatta's Commentary, the Unadistara," from a manuscript in the Library of the East India House, 1859; and "The Ancient Languages of Italy" (Oxford, 1875).

AUSTEN-LEIGH, Rev. Augustus.
See LEIGH, REV. AUGUSTUS AUSTEN-.

AUSTIN, Alfred, poet, critic, and journalist, was born at Headingley, near Leeds, May 30, 1835. His father was a merchant and magistrate of the borough of Leeds, and his mother was the sister of Joseph Locke, the eminent civil engineer and M.P. for the borough of Honiton, of which he was lord of the manor. Both his parents being Roman Catholics, he was sent to Stonyhurst College, and afterwards to St. Mary's College, Oscott. From Oscott he took his degree at the University of London in 1853, and in 1857 he was called to the Bar of the Inner Temple. But the publication, though anonymously, of a poem called "Randolph," at the age of eighteen, showed the bent of his disposition; and it may be stated on the authority of Mr. Austin himself, that he ostensibly embraced the study of the law only in deference to the wishes of his parents, and from his earliest years was imbued with the desire and the determination to devote his life mainly to literature. The expression of this resolve may be found in a note written and published while he was yet a minor. On the death of his father, in 1861, he quitted the Northern Circuit, and went to Italy. His first acknowledged volume of verse, "The Season: a Satire," appeared in 1861. A third and revised edition of "The Season" appeared in 1869. His other poetical productions are: "The Human Tragedy: a Poem," 1862, republished in an amended form 1876, and again finally revised in 1889; "The Golden Age: a Satire," 1871; "Interludes," 1872; "Madonna's Child," 1873; "The Tower of Babel," a drama, 1874; "Lesko the Bastard: a Tale of Polish Grief," 1877; "Savonarola," a tragedy, 1881; "Soliloquies in Song," "At the Gate of the Convent," "Love's Widowhood, and other Poems," "Prince Lucifer," and "English Lyrics," all published between the years 1881 and 1890. He has published three novels: "Five Years of It," 1858; "An Artist's Proof," 1864; and "Won by a Head," 1866; also "The Poetry of the Period," reprinted from Temple Bar, 1870; and "A Vindication of Lord Byron," 1869, occasioned by Mrs. Stowe's article, "The True Story of Lord Byron's Life." He has written much for the Standard newspaper and for the Quarterly Review. During the sittings of the Oecumenical Council of the Vatican he represented the Standard at Rome, and he was a special correspondent of that journal at the headquarters of the King of Prussia in the Franco-German War. His political writings include "Russia before Europe," 1876; "Tory Horrors," 1876, a reply to Mr. Gladstone's "Bulgarian Horrors"; and "England's Policy and Peril: a Letter to the Earl of Beaconsfield," 1877. In 1883, in conjunction with Mr. W. J. Court-hope, he founded The National Review, and continued to edit that periodical till the summer of 1893. In 1892 Messrs. Macmillan issued a collected edition of his poems in six volumes. "Fortunatus the Pessimist" was next published. In 1894 was published "The Garden that I Love," and in the following year, "In Veronica's Garden," both of which volumes have rapidly passed through several editions. On New Year's Day 1896 Mr. Austin was appointed Poet Laureate in succession to Lord Tennyson, since which date Messrs. Macmillan have issued two volumes of poetry by him, entitled "England's Darling" and "The Conversion of Winckelmann." Mr. Austin is a deputy-lieutenant for the county of Hereford. Addresses: Swinford Old Manor, Ashford, Kent; and Athenæum.

AUSTIN, Louis Frederic, journalist, only son of Captain Thomas Austin, master mariner, of Dublin, was born in Brooklyn, U.S.A., Oct. 9, 1852, educated at the Merchant Taylors' School, Great Crosby, near Liverpool, came to London in 1875, and entered journalism. He was for some years editor of the National Press Agency, has contributed to many periodicals, chiefly in the department of literary criticism and several essays, and is connected with the Daily Chronicle, the Illustrated London News, the Sketch, and the Speaker. In 1884, under the name of Frederic Daly, he published a biographical sketch entitled "Henry Irving in England and America"; and in 1896 a volume called "At Random: Essays and Stories." Address: Devonshire Club, St. James's, S.W.

AUSTRIA, Emperor of. See FRANCIS JOSEPH I.

AUWERS, Professor Arthur, German astronomer, was born Sept. 12, 1838, at Göttingen, and was connected successively with the observatories of Koenigsberg (1859), Gotha (1862), and Berlin (1866). He became in 1881 the Director of the New Observatory of Physical Astronomy at Potsdam. He is Perpetual Secretary of the Mathematical Sciences Section of the German Academy of Sciences. He has continued Herschell's observations on nebulae, which he terminated in 1857. He has written a number of important papers on astronomical subjects. He took part in the new observations on stars of the first nine magnitudes of the northern hemisphere in the revision of Argeländer's maps. In 1874 he was in charge of the observations of the Transit of Venus at Luxor, and in 1882 at Punta Arenas.

AVORY, Horace Edmund, was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1875, and is engaged on the South-Eastern Circuit, and at the Surrey Sessions. Address: 4 Crown Office Row, Temple, E.C.

AXON, William Edward Armytage, was born in Manchester in 1846, and after thirteen years' service in the Manchester Free Library, resigned the position of Sub-Librarian to devote himself to literature and journalism. He is the author, among other volumes, of "Stray Chapters in Literature, Folk-Lore, and Archæology," 1888; "Annals of Manchester," 1886; "Lancashire Gleanings," 1883; "Cheshire Gleanings," 1884; "Bygone Sussex," 1896; "Life of William Lloyd Garrison," 1890; and "The Ancoats Skylark," 1894. The last-named includes translations from the French, Italian, German, Spanish, and other languages. Mr. Axon has contributed to the "Encyclopædia Britannica," the "Dictionary of National Biography," "Johnson's American Cyclopædia," Notes and Queries, the Academy, and other periodicals. He was one of the founders of the Library Association, and of the Lancashire and Cheshire Antiquarian Society, is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature, and a member of various learned societies at home and abroad. He has edited a reprint of "Caxton's Game and Playe of the Chesse," and has printed many pamphlets, some for private circulation, in advocacy of temperance and food reform, or in elucidation of obscure points of bibliography and literary history. Address: 47 Derby Street, Moss Side, Manchester.

AYRTON, Professor W. E., F.R.S., born in London 1847, is the son of the late Mr. E. N. Ayrton, M.A., barrister. He was educated at University College School, where he gained numerous prizes, and entering subsequently into the College, gained the Andrews Exhibition in 1865 and the Andrews Scholarship in 1866. Passing the examination with honours for his first B.A. in 1867, Mr. Ayrton in the same year came out first in the Entrance Examination for the Indian Government Telegraph Service. He was then sent by the Secretary of State for India to study electrical engineering with Prof. Sir William Thomson (now Lord Kelvin), coming out first at the Advanced Examination for the Indian Government Telegraph Service, and won the Scholarship. When in India Prof. Ayrton acted first as the Assistant Electrical Superintendent, and subsequently as the Electrical Superintendent in the Government Telegraph Department, introducing, with the late Mr. Schwendler, throughout British India a complete system of immediately determining the position of a fault in the longest telegraph line by electrically testing at one end. In 1872-73 Prof. Ayrton was on special duty in England on behalf of the Indian Government Telegraph Department, and in charge of the Great Western Telegraph Manufactory in London on behalf of the engineers, Prof. Sir William Thomson and the late Prof. Fleeming Jenkin. From the latter year until 1879 Prof. Ayrton was the Professor of Natural Philosophy and of Telegraphy at the Imperial College of Engineering, Japan, the largest English-speaking Technical University in existence at that date. In 1879 he was appointed Professor of Applied Physics at the City and Guilds of London Technical College, Finsbury, and in 1884 the Chief Professor of Physics at the Central Technical College, South Kensington, of the City and Guilds of London Institute, of which he now also is the Dean. In 1880 a Secretary of the Mathematical and Physical Section of the British Association, in 1881 he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society. Prof. Ayrton is a Past President of the Physical Society, a Past President of the Institution of Electrical Engineers, and the President of Section A of the British Association for 1898; he has been a Juror in the majority of the Electrical Exhibitions in England and abroad; was a Judge in the Electrical Department at the Chicago Exhibition; and one of the British Government Delegates to the Electrical Congress there; is joint editor of Cassell's "Manuals of Technology," and the author of "Practical Electricity," the most recently published work in this series, but already in its seventh edition. His lecture on the "Electric Transmission of Power," given at the meeting of the British Association at Bath in 1888, was so much appreciated that, at the request of the town, this lecture was repeated to an audience of 3000, the only time in the annals of the British Association that one of their lectures has been repeated. With Prof. Perry he is the joint inventor of the well-known Ammeters, Voltmeters, Electric Power Meter, Ohmmeter, Dispersion-Photometer, Transmission-Dynamometer, Dynamometer Coupling, Governed Electric Motor, Oblique Coiled Dynamo Machine, and Secohmmeter; and with the late Prof. Fleeming Jenkin and Prof. Perry, of the system of Automatic Electric Transport known as "Telpherage." Over 100 papers published in the Proceedings and Transactions of the Royal Society, Physical Society, Institution of Electrical Engineers, and other societies have been contributed by Prof. Ayrton conjointly with Prof. Perry and others, of which some of the most important are: "The Specific Inductive Capacity of Gases"; "The Contact Theory of Voltaic Action"; "A New Determination of the Ratio of the Electromagnet to the Electrostatic Unit of Quantity"; "A Duplex Partial Earth Test"; "Electricity as a Motive Power"; "Experiments on the Heat Conduction of Stone"; "On a Neglected Principle that may be Employed in Earthquake Measurements"; "The Magic Mirror of Japan"; "Electric Railways"; "Measuring Instruments used in Electric Lighting and Transmission of Power"; "Economic Use of Gas Engines"; "Electromotors and their Government"; "A New Form of Spring for Electric and other Measuring Instruments"; "The Gas Engine Indicator Diagram"; "The Most Economical Potential Difference to use with Incandescent Lamps"; "The Winding of Voltmeters"; "Economy in Electrical Conductors"; "Uniform Distribution of Power from an Electrical Conductor"; "Modes of Measuring the Co-efficients of Self and Mutual Induction"; "The Driving of Dynamos with Very Short Belts"; "Portable Voltmeters for Measuring Alternate or Direct Potential Differences"; "The Magnetic Circuit in the Dynamo"; "The Efficiency of Incandescent Lamps with Direct and Alternate Currents"; "Measurement of the Power given by any Current to any Circuit"; "Quadrant Electrometers"; "The Thermal Emissivity of Thin Wires"; "The Efficiency of Transformers and the Regulation of Transformers at Different Frequencies"; "Variation of the P. D. of the Electric Arc with Current, Size of Carbons and Distance Apart"; "The Design and Construction of Electrostatic Instruments." Prof. Ayrton, with Prof. Perry, has also taken out twenty-six patents in Great Britain, several of them also in France, Germany, America, and other foreign countries, and he is also a co-patentee with Mr. Mather of their well-known Electrostatic Voltmeters and Moving Coil Galvanometers. Address: 41 Kensington Park Gardens, W.

B

B.A.B. See GILBERT, WILLIAM SCHWENCK.

BADENI, Count Casimir, ex-Chancellor of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, is a Pole by birth, and was born in 1846. His family was originally Italian, and migrated to Poland with Queen Bona, wife of Sigismund I. He studied law, entered the Austrian Civil Service, and became Governor of Austrian Poland, and was nicknamed "The Mikado of Galicia" because of his gorgeous ceremonials. In September 1895, he became Prime Minister of a non-party Cabinet, and he was chiefly supported by the Poles, the German Moderate Liberals, and the Young Czechs. His concession with regard to the official use of the Czech language in Bohemia brought down upon him the angry opposition of the German element in Austria. On April 2, 1897, he resigned, but the Emperor refused to accept his resignation. Violent and discreditable scenes occurred in the Reichsrath between the Poles and Czechs on one side, and the Germans, Socialists, and Anti-Semites on the other. The session was forcibly closed on June 3, and an attempt at an understanding made, which came to nought owing to the abstention of the Germans. When the session reopened in September the same scenes occurred, and owing to an insult from Herr Wolf, Count Badeni fought a duel with him on September 26, in which he was wounded. The Emperor accepted his resignation early in 1898, and he was succeeded by Count Goluchowski (q.v.).

BAEYER, Adolf von, German chemist, born at Berlin, Oct. 31, 1835, is the son of a general renowned for his geodesic work. After having finished his studies at the Gymnasium Friedrich Wilhelm, he went to the Universities of Berlin, Heidelberg, and Ghent. He took his degree in 1860, and became Demonstrator in Chemistry at the Applied Sciences Academy of Berlin. He successively became Assistant Professor at the Military Academy in 1869, Professor at Strassburg in 1872, and finally was called to fill the chair at Munich, vacant on the death of Liebig. He has acquired fame by his work of organic chemistry, above all by his researches on the action of the aldehydes, which led him to the discovery of a green colouring matter, coraleine, a red colouring matter, eosine, and lastly, to the discovery of indol, the base of indigo.

BAGGALLAY, Ernest, M.A., son of the late Lord Justice Baggallay, was born July 11, 1850, and was educated at Marlborough and Caius College, Cambridge. He was called to the Bar in 1873, and acted as Counsel to the Post Office from 1877 to 1887. He sat in the House of Commons as Conservative member for Brixton from 1885 to 1887. In the latter year he was appointed Police Magistrate at the West Ham Court, a position which he continues to hold. Mr. Baggallay was married in 1876 to Emily, daughter of Sir W. W. Burrell, Bart. Addresses: 106 Elm Park Gardens, S.W.; and The Moat, Cowden, Kent.

BAILEY, Sir Joseph Russell, Bart., V.D., was born in 1840, and is the eldest son of the late Joseph Bailey, M.P., of Easton Court, Tenbury. He was educated at Harrow and Christ Church, Oxford. He represented Herefordshire in the House of Commons from 1865 to 1885, and Hereford from 1886 to 1892. In 1864 he acted as High Sheriff of Breconshire, and was appointed Lord-Lieutenant in 1875. He is a J.P. and D.L. for Radnorshire and Herefordshire. In 1867 he was appointed Hon. Colonel of the Brecon Rifle Volunteers. He succeeded his grandfather, the 1st Baronet, in 1858, and was created a Peer in recognition of his services to the Conservative party at New Year 1899. He married in 1861 Mary Ann, daughter of Henry Lucas. Addresses: Glanusk Park, Crickhowell, Breconshire; Easton Court, Tenbury, Worcestershire, &c.

BAILEY, Joseph W., American political leader, was born in Copiah County, Mississippi, Oct. 6, 1863. He studied law, and was admitted to the Bar in 1883; removed to Texas in 1885, and settled at Gainsville. He served as Presidential Elector for the State at large in 1888, and was elected to the Fifty-second Congress, and re-elected to the Fifty-third, Fifty-fourth, and Fifty-fifth Congresses. He is one of the active and prominent leaders of the Democratic party in the United States House of Representatives.

BAILEY, Philip James, author of "Festus," son of Thomas Bailey, author of the "Annals of Notts," who died in 1856, was born at Nottingham, April 22, 1816. Having been educated at various schools in his native town, he in 1831 matriculated at the University of Glasgow, where he studied for two sessions under Professors Buchanan, Sir D. K. Sandford, Thomson, and Milne. In 1833 he began to study the law, was admitted a member of Lincoln's Inn in 1835, and called to the Bar in 1840. Having little inclination for legal pursuits, Mr. Bailey before this time had carried on an extensive and varied course of reading in the libraries of the British Museum and Lincoln's Inn, as well as at home. He was accustomed to the composition of verse from early years. "Festus," conceived and planned originally in 1836, and published in 1839, was well received in this country, where it has passed through eleven editions, and in America, where it has passed through upwards of thirty. The 11th, or Jubilee edition (so called from the fact that it was issued fifty years after the first edition), with a prose preface explanatory of the purpose of the poem, was published by Messrs. Routledge in 1889. Interviewed of late years by a contributor to The Young Man, Mr. Bailey is reported to have spoken of the inception of his famous work as follows: "I began in the most natural way imaginable. I merely started to write. From the time I was ten years old I had always been writing verse, more or less. But I had time at my disposal—in those days I did pretty much as I liked—and I soon found myself making progress with 'Festus.' I had the theory of the poem in my mind, and the plan of working it out, as well as the conception of the main characters. I knew the theology was not popular, and that was probably why I embodied it in the work. The doctrine of Universalism has never been introduced into poetry, and in that aspect 'Festus' was different from anything that had previously appeared. That was the novel characteristic of the poem." At the same interview he explained that "the work has doubled in size since I closed the book for the first time. Many lyrics have been introduced, and the scope of the work has been considerably enlarged. Besides the additions, moreover, there have been deductions and many alterations." "The Angel World," 1850; "The Mystic," 1855; "The Universal Hymn," 1867; all since mainly incorporated with "Festus"; "The Age," a Satire, 1858; and a prose work on the international policy of the Great Powers, with a few minor and miscellaneous poems, comprise nearly the whole of Mr. Bailey's contributions to contemporary literature. Address: The Elms, Ropewalk, Nottingham.

BAIN, Professor Alexander, LL.D., born at Aberdeen in 1818, entered Marischal College in 1836, where he took the degree of M.A. in 1840. From 1841 to 1844 he taught, as deputy, the class of Moral Philosophy in Marischal College; from 1844 to 1845 the Natural Philosophy Class. In 1845 he was elected Professor of Natural Philosophy in the Andersonian University, Glasgow, but retired at the end of a year. In 1847 he was appointed by the Metropolitan Sanitary Commissioners their Assistant Secretary, and in 1848 became Assistant Secretary to the General Board of Health, which post he resigned in 1850. From 1857 to 1862 he was Examiner in Logic and Moral Philosophy in the University of London. In 1858, 1859, 1860, 1863, 1864, 1868, and 1870 he acted as Examiner in Moral Science at the Indian Civil Service Examinations. In 1860 he was appointed by the Crown Professor of Logic in the University of Aberdeen. In 1864 he was re-elected Examiner in the University of London, and continued to hold that position till 1869. His first literary production was an article, in 1840, in the Westminster Review, to which he has since contributed at various times. In 1847-48 he wrote text-books on Astronomy, Electricity, and Meteorology in Messrs. Chambers's school series, several of Chambers's "Papers for the People," and the articles on Language, Logic, the Human Mind, and Rhetoric in the "Information for the People." In 1852 he published an edition of the "Moral Philosophy of Paley," with dissertations and notes. "The Senses and the Intellect" appeared in 1855, and "The Emotions and the Will," completing a systematic exposition of the human mind, in 1859; both works have passed through several editions. "The Study of Character, including an Estimate of Phrenology," was published in 1861, an English Grammar in 1863, and a "Manual of English Composition and Rhetoric" in 1866. His more recent works are: "Mental and Moral Science," 1868; "Logic, Deductive and Inductive," 1870; "Mind and Body; Theories of their Relation," 1873; a collection of "The Minor Works of George Grote, with Critical Remarks on his Intellectual Character, Writings, and Speeches," 1873; "A Companion to the Higher English Grammar," 1874; "Education as a Science," 1879; "James Mill, a Biography," "John Stuart Mill, a Criticism, with Personal Recollections," 1882; and "Practical Essays," 1884. In 1880 he retired from the Logic chair of Aberdeen University. In 1881 he was elected by the students Lord Rector of the University, and again elected in 1884. In 1887 appeared Part I. of a revised and enlarged edition of the "Manual of Rhetoric," being devoted to the "Intellectual Qualities of Style"; accompanying which was a volume on "Teaching English." The year following, 1888, was published Part II. of the "Rhetoric," on the "Emotional Qualities." In 1894 was brought out the fourth edition of "The Senses and the Intellect," revised for the last time. Address: Ferryhill Lodge, Aberdeen.

BAIRD, Lieut.-Colonel Andrew Wilson, R.E., F.R.S., A.I.C.E., F.R.G.S., born at Aberdeen, April 26, 1842, is the son of the late Mr. Thomas Baird, of Woodlands, Cults, and was educated at Marischal College and University, and was for some years a pupil of Dr. Rennet, LL.D., the Mathematical Tutor in Aberdeen. Entering Addiscombe College as a cadet of the Hon. East India Company's service in the beginning of 1860, he was transferred to the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, at the end of the year, and obtained a commission in the Corps of Royal Engineers in December 1861. After having finished his course of military engineering studies at Chatham, Lieutenant Baird proceeded to India in February 1864, and served under the Bombay Government. He was employed as Special Assistant in the Harbour Defences at Bombay, and held charge of the construction of the Middle Ground and Oyster Rock Batteries at various times between April 1864 and December 1865, when he was appointed as Special Assistant Engineer in the Government Reclamations which were being carried out on the foreshore of the harbour. From January till July 1868 Lieutenant Baird was employed as Assistant Field Engineer with the Abyssinian Expedition (medal), during which time he held the charge of Traffic Manager of the railway, and he was mentioned in despatches for zeal and management in bringing safely and expeditiously troops and baggage for embarkation. Shortly after his return to Bombay, Lieutenant Baird was appointed to the Great Trigonometrical Survey of India (in December 1868). Employed successively on the triangulation in Kottiywar and Guzerat, Lieutenant Baird suffered considerably from the trying work in the very hot weather, and was obliged to go on furlough to England in May 1870, and while on furlough he was selected by General Walker, R.E. (then chief of the Great Trigonometrical Survey), and employed by order of the Secretary of State for India to study the practical details of tidal observations, and their reductions by harmonic analysis as carried on under the superintendence of Sir William Thomson for the British Association. On his return to India, in April 1872, Lieutenant Baird carried out a reconnaissance of the Gulf of Cutch, with a view to selecting sites for three Tidal Observatories, one at the mouth, and one at the head and as far into the "Runn" as possible, and one about the middle of the gulf. The tidal observatories, and the levelling operations in connection therewith, were carried out for special reasons in connection with the question of the depression of the great tract called the Runn of Cutch; and Captain Baird was sent to England to carry out the calculations for reducing the tidal observations. Returning to India in June 1877, Captain Baird was appointed to the general superintendence and control of tidal observatories on the Indian coasts; these operations were gradually extended, until twenty tidal observatories (in India, Burmah, Ceylon, the Andaman Islands, and Aden) were working simultaneously, and as five years' work was completed at minor stations the observatories were removed to other places, and now over thirty stations have been observed at. In August and September 1881, Captain Baird was sent as one of the Commissioners from India to the Venice Geographical Congress and Exhibition. Here the Survey of India exhibited a complete set of tidal and levelling apparatus, diagrams, &c., and was awarded a Diploma of Honour; and the Congress awarded Captain Baird a medal of the First Class for his works on tidal observations; the Secretary of State for India and the Government of India recorded their thanks to Captain Baird for his services at this Congress. After furlough in England, Major Baird returned to India in April 1883, and resumed charge of the tidal and levelling operations until he was appointed to officiate as Mint Master of Calcutta in July 1885. Since then he has acted several times as Mint Master of Calcutta and Bombay, and in the intervals held the appointment of Assistant Surveyor-General. He was promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel in December 1888, and was confirmed as Mint Master, Calcutta, in August 1889. For his services in the tidal research, Colonel Baird was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society in May 1885. The following are the works of a public or official character which Colonel Baird has written: Articles on the Gulf of Cutch, Little Runn, and Gulf of Cambay, for the Bombay Gazetteer; Notes on the Harmonic Analysis of Tidal Observations, published by order of the Secretary of State, 1872; Paper on the Tidal Observations of the Gulf of Cutch, read before the British Association, 1876; Account of the Tidal Disturbances caused by the Volcanic Eruption at Krakatoa (Java) in August 1883, presented to the Royal Society; Auxiliary Tables (two pamphlets) to facilitate the calculations of Harmonic Analysis of Tidal Observations, published in India, 1879 and 1882; Joint Report with Professor G. H. Darwin, F.R.S., &c., of the results of the Harmonic Analysis of Tidal Observations, presented to the Royal Society and reprinted from their Proceedings, March 1885; Account of the Spirit-Levelling Operations of the Great Trigonometrical Survey of India, read before the British Association in 1885, and afterwards printed among the supplementary papers of the Royal Geographical Society; Manual of Tidal Observations, published at the expense of the British Association; Tide Tables for India Ports, prepared annually by Major Baird and Mr. Roberts of the Nautical Almanac Office by order of the Secretary of State for India. Colonel Baird is also an Associate of the Institute of Civil Engineers, and a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society.

BAKER, Sir George Sherston, Bart., J.P., was born in London, May 19, 1846, and succeeded to the baronetcy in 1877. He was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn in 1871, and in 1889 he was appointed Recorder of Barnstaple and Bideford. He has published "Halleck's International Law," 2nd edit. 1878, and 3rd edit. 1893; "The Laws Relating to Quarantine," 1879; "The Office of Vice-Admiral of the Coast," 1884; and he has been editor of the Law Magazine and Review since 1895. He is married to Jane, daughter of the late F. J. Fegen, R.N., C.B., of Ballinlonty, Tipperary, and has a son and heir, born in 1877. Addresses: 18 Cavendish Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.; and 1 The Cloisters, Middle Temple, E.C.

BAKER, John Gilbert, F.R.S., F.L.S., born at Guisborough, in Yorkshire, Jan. 13, 1834, was educated at schools belonging to the Society of Friends at Ackworth and York. He was appointed Assistant-Keeper of the Herbarium of the Royal Gardens,

Kew, in 1866; appointed Keeper of the Herbarium in 1891; and Lecturer and Demonstrator of Botany to the Apothecaries' Company in 1882. He was for many years Lecturer on Botany to the London Hospital, and one of the assistant editors to Seemann's Journal of Botany. Formerly Mr. Baker was Curator, and afterwards Secretary, of the London Botanical Exchange Club. His works on descriptive botany are as follows: "Synopsis Filicum," a descriptive catalogue of all known ferns, with plates of the genera—a work planned and commenced by the late Sir W. Hooker, 1868, 2nd edit. 1874; "Monograph of the Ferns of Brazil," in folio, 1870, with fifty plates; and since of the "Compositæ, Ampelidæ, and Connaracæ," of the same country; "Revision of the Order Liliacæ," 7 parts, 1870-80; "Monograph of the British Roses," 1869; "Monograph of the British Mints," 1865; Monographs of Papilionacæ and other Orders in Oliver's "Flora of Tropical Africa," 1861-71; Descriptions of the Plants figured in Vols. I, III, and IV. of Saunders' "Refugium Botanicum," 1869-1871; "Popular Monographs of Narcissus, Crocus, Lilium, Iris, Crinum, Aquilegia, Sempervivum, Epimedium, Tulipa, Nerine, and Agave," 1870-77; "Monograph of the Papilionacæ of India," 1876; "Systema Iridacearum," 1877; "Flora of Mauritius and the Seychelles," 1877; "A Monograph of Hypoxidacæ," 1879; "A Monograph of Selaginella," 1884-85; "On the Tuber-bearing Species of Solanum," 1884. The following are the titles of Mr. Baker's works on geographical botany, &c.: "An Attempt to Classify the Plants of Britain according to their Geographical Relations," 1855; "North Yorkshire: Studies of its Botany, Geology, Climate, and Physical Geography," 1863; "A New Flora of Northumberland and Durham, with Essays on the Climate and Physical Geography of the Counties" (aided by Dr. G. R. Tate), 1868; "On the Geographical Distribution of Ferns through the World, with a Table showing the Range of each Species," 1868; "Elementary Lessons in Botanical Geography," 1875; many papers on the "Botany of Madagascar," containing descriptions of above 1000 new species, 1881-1890; "A Flora of the English Lake District," 1885. In 1883 he edited, in conjunction with the Rev. W. Newbould, the first published edition of Watson's "Topographical Botany," 1887; "A Handbook of the Fern Allies," 1888; "A Handbook of the Amaryllidæ," 1892; and "A Handbook of the Bromeliacæ," 1890; "Synopsis of Petaloid Monocotyledons of South Africa," 1896, formerly vol. vi. of the "Flora Capensis," now edited by his chief at Kew, Mr. W. T. Thiselton-Dyer.

BAKER, The Rev. William, D.D., Head Master of Merchant Taylors' School, youngest son of the late George Baker, Esq., of Reigate, was born at Reigate in December 1841, and educated at Merchant Taylors' School and St. John's College, Oxford, of which he was sometime Fellow and Tutor, and of which he was appointed Hon. Fellow in 1895. He obtained a first-class in classics at Moderations in 1862, and a second-class in the Final Classical School in 1864, and was elected Denyer and Johnson Theological Scholar in 1866. He was appointed Head Master of Merchant Taylors' School on the retirement of Dr. Hessey at Christmas, 1870, and Prebendary of St. Paul's in 1880. He is the author of "A Manual of Devotion for School Boys," published in 1876; "Lectures on the Historical and Dogmatical Position of the Church of England," 1882; "A Plain Exposition of the Thirty-nine Articles," 1883; "Daily Prayers for Younger Boys," 1886; "Latin and Greek Verse Translations," 1895.

BALDISSERA, General Antonio, Commander-in-Chief of the Italian army in Africa since 1896, is by birth a Venetian, and in 1866 held a commission in the Austrian army. Venice being ceded to Italy, Baldissera took service under the government of Florence. He was a member of the San Marzano Expedition to Africa, and afterwards was for three years in command of the Italian troops in Erythrea. During this command he won for Italy Keren and Asmara without bloodshed. As a diplomat he divided the Abyssinian leaders, outmanœuvred Menelik himself, and thus expanded and solidified the Italian colony. He was recalled at the instance of Count Antonelli, and in the absence of his strong hand the Italians suffered constant reverses. Reappointed to his old post in 1896, in succession to the defeated General Baratieri, he has had to struggle with limited resources against victorious enemies and a hostile public opinion in Italy.

BALFOUR OF BURLEIGH, Lord, The Right Hon. Alexander Hugh Bruce, son of R. Bruce, of Kennet, Alloa, N.B., was born on Jan. 13, 1849, and was educated at Loretto, Eton, and Oriel College, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. with honours in 1871, and proceeded to the degree of M.A. in 1872. The title, originally granted in 1607, was attained in 1716, on account of the "rising" of 1715, and was only restored to the present possessor in 1869. Lord Balfour is a Conservative in politics, and has served on the following important commissions during the past twenty-three years, viz.: Member of the Factory Commission, 1874-75; Member of the Endowed Institution (Scotland) Commission, 1878-79; Chairman of the Educational Endowments Commission, 1882-1889; Chairman of the Welsh Sunday Closing Commission, 1889; Chairman of the Metropolitan Water Supply Commission, 1893-94; and Chairman of the Rating Commission, 1896. He acted as Lord-in-Waiting to the Queen from 1888 to 1889, was Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade from 1889 to 1892, and in 1895 he was appointed Secretary for Scotland, with a seat in the Cabinet. He is a member of the Church of Scotland, a Privy Councillor, and was elected Lord Rector of the University of Edinburgh in November 1896. He was married to Katherine Gordon, sister of the Earl of Aberdeen, in 1876, and has a son and heir, Robert, Master of Burleigh, born in 1880. Addresses: Kennet, Alloa, N.B.; 47 Cadogan Square, S.W.; and Athenæum.

BALFOUR, The Right Hon. Arthur James, M.P., LL.D., F.R.S., &c., eldest son of the late James Maitland Balfour, Esq., of Whittinghame, N.B., and Lady Blanche Mary Harriet, daughter of the 2nd Marquis of Salisbury, was born July 25, 1848. He was educated at Eton and at Trinity College, Cambridge, taking his B.A. degree with second class Honours in Moral Science in 1869. He entered Parliament in 1874 as M.P. for Hertford, which constituency he represented until 1885, when he was elected for East Manchester, for which he still sits. He acted as Private Secretary to the Marquis of Salisbury at the Foreign Office during the critical period 1878-80, when the Berlin treaty was negotiated. In June 1878 he accompanied a special mission to Berlin. In 1879 Mr. Balfour published his work, "A Defence of Philosophic Doubt." It attracted much attention, and gave promise of abilities which could hardly have failed to win recognition even had the writer not been a Conservative politician connected by family ties with Lord Salisbury. The publication was commonly taken to be an argument in favour of theological scepticism, but he himself has declared the very opposite, and that his design was to strengthen revealed religion. In the early portion of his parliamentary career Mr. Balfour acted for a time with the so-called "Fourth Party," a name facetiously given to a small number of Conservative members led by Lord Randolph Churchill. He did not come into prominent notice until 1885, when he became a Privy Councillor and President of the Local Government Board. From July 1886 to March 1887 he was Secretary for Scotland, with a seat in the Cabinet. In November 1887 he was appointed Chief Secretary for Ireland. The appointment was undoubtedly a great experiment, but the task of the pacification of Ireland, which had proved too much for such trained officials as Sir George Trevelyan and Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, was more or less successfully coped with by Mr. Balfour, and he soon checked the torrent of intimidation and crime which had flooded Ireland for so long. At one time, during his tenure of the Chief Secretaryship, his unpopularity with the Irish Home Rulers was extreme, but he has since abandoned that cynical and almost contemptuous manner towards them which was one of the causes of their hostility. His Irish policy, however unwise some may think it, was that which was considered by most people in England as the only means of effectively dealing with the Irish question. His treatment of political prisoners and his extreme eviction policy will probably come to be regarded as errors which he would not now repeat, but on the whole Mr. Balfour has been throughout a conscientious friend to Ireland, and, after the ten years of the "resolute government" which he desired in 1887, he now has the satisfaction of seeing his brother a popular Chief Secretary and active co-operator in the cause of Irish reform. Among the measures brought forward by Mr. Balfour was the Bill for the Improvement of Ireland by the drainage of Bann, Barrow, and Shannon, and by the construction of light railways. The New Purchase of Land Bill, which had been dropped for some time after its first introduction, was passed in August 1891. The Act provides further funds for the purchase of land in Ireland, and makes permanent the Land Commission; it also creates a Congested Districts Board, which has power to relieve congested districts by providing seed potatoes, &c. During October 1890 he made a tour through the western districts of Ireland, visiting Mayo, Donegal, and other places threatened with famine. In January 1891, in conjunction with Lord Zetland, the Lord-Lieutenant, Mr. Balfour issued an appeal to the public for funds to relieve the distress caused by the failure of the potato crop. Large contributions were received, and a sum of nearly £60,000 was distributed. Upon the death of Mr. W. H. Smith, Mr. Balfour was unanimously elected leader of the House of Commons and First Lord of the Treasury, and throughout the session of 1892 he continued to show increased ability in leading the Unionist party. In the following year his speeches against the Home Rule for Ireland Bill greatly added to his reputation. In April 1893 he visited Belfast on the occasion of the great Ulster demonstration held there, taking the place of Lord Salisbury, whom illness prevented from attending. On the return of the Unionist party to power in 1895, Mr. Balfour again became leader of the House. The various crises through which the country has passed since that date have called for a good deal of tact and patience, as well as skilful leadership, on the part of Mr. Balfour. The Jameson Raid, affairs in Egypt, West Africa, and China, have all brought their load of anxiety to the Government, which was subjected during 1897-98 to some sharp criticism, even from Conservative members, especially with regard to a supposed want of vigorous action in Chinese affairs. During the recent illness of the Prime Minister practically the whole business of the Foreign Office has been in the hands of Mr. Balfour. He has been the recipient of many university honours. He was elected Lord Rector of St. Andrews University in November 1886 and also of Glasgow University in 1890, and Chancellor of Edinburgh University in 1891. In 1888 he was appointed Member of the Senate of London University, in which year he was also admitted to the Freedom of the City. Mr. Balfour is an Hon. LL.D. of nearly all the universities of the United Kingdom, a D.C.L. of Oxford, and F.R.S. He has been President of the Committee of the Council of Education for Scotland, and Keeper of the Privy Seal in Ireland. In 1887 he was appointed member of the Gold and Silver Commission; and mention should be made of his bias in favour of bimetalism, with regard to which he has said, "That if bimetalists could by international arrangement fix some ratio of exchange between gold and silver coin, they would create an automatic system by which the demand and supply for gold and silver respectively would maintain that ratio at the point they fixed it." In July 1898 Mr. Balfour was elected Vice-President of the London Library to succeed the late Mr. Gladstone. He is a D.L. for East Lothian and Ross-shire, and a late Captain of the East Lothian Yeomanry. In 1894 he was chosen captain of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, and is also President of the National Cyclists' Union. Besides his "Defence of Philosophic Doubt," he has published "Essays and Addresses," 1893; and "The Foundations of Belief, being Notes Introductory to the Study of Theology," 1895. He also wrote the volume on "Golf" in the Badminton series. Addresses: 10 Downing Street, S.W.; Whittinghame, Prestonkirk; and Athenæum.

BALFOUR, The Right Hon. Gerald William, M.A., M.P. for Central Leeds, and Chief Secretary for Ireland, was born in 1853, and is the fourth son of the late James Maitland Balfour of Whittinghame and Lady Blanche Cecil, daughter of the second Marquis of Salisbury. He was educated at Eton and at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he obtained a first-class in the Classical Tripos. He was afterwards appointed Assistant Tutor, and elected Fellow in 1878. He entered Parliament in 1885 as Conservative member for Central Leeds, and retains the seat. Since 1895 he has been Chief Secretary for Ireland. From 1885 to 1886 he was private secretary to his brother, the Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, at the Local Government Board. He was a Member of the Royal Commission on Labour in 1891, and became a Privy Councillor in 1895. In the last session of Parliament he successfully introduced an Irish Local Government Bill, similar to Mr. Ritchie's, which has done much to conciliate the Home Rulers. Some financial points in the bill were contested by the Irish landlords, but, on the whole, it gave universal satisfaction. The Act establishes County Councils and District Councils, and provides for the propertied classes not being "rated out of existence" by the distribution each year out of the Imperial Exchequer of a sum equal to one-half of the county cess and one-half of the poor-rate. It is this provision which differentiates it from the English and Scotch Acts. He married in 1887 Lady Elizabeth, daughter of the 1st Earl of Lytton. Addresses: 24 Addison Road, W.; and Chief Secretary's Lodge, Phoenix Park, Dublin.

BALFOUR, Professor Isaac Bayley, Botanist, M.D. (Edin.), D.Sc. (Edin.), M.A. (Oxon.), F.R.S., F.R.S.E., F.L.S., F.G.S., and member of other British and foreign scientific societies, was born in Edinburgh March 31, 1853, being the second son of John Hutton Balfour, Professor of Botany in the University of Edinburgh, 1845-79. He was educated at the Edinburgh Academy and at the University of Edinburgh, where he was Baxter Natural Science Scholar, and graduated with honours in Science and Medicine. In 1879 he was appointed Regius Professor of Botany in the University of Glasgow, which chair he resigned on being elected in 1884 Sherardian Professor of Botany in the University of Oxford. This chair he resigned in 1888 on his receiving the appointment of Queen's Botanist in Scotland, Keeper of the Royal Botanic Garden in Edinburgh, and Regius Professor of Botany, having previously been elected Professor of Botany in the University of Edinburgh. These positions he now holds. In 1874 he was appointed by the Royal Society

Naturalist to the Transit of Venus Expedition to Rodriguez. The natural history results of the Expedition are published in the Philosophical Transactions, vol. clxiii. (1879). In 1880 he undertook, on behalf of the Royal Society and the British Association, the exploration of the island of Socotra. Reports upon the results of the Expedition have appeared in publications of the British Association and of the Royal Institution. The botany of the island constitutes vol. xxxi. (1888) of the Transactions of the Royal Society, Edinburgh. Professor Balfour has contributed papers, chiefly on botanical subjects, to the various botanical journals and publications of scientific societies. He is editor of the "Annals of Botany." He is married to Agnes, daughter of Robert Balloch, a Glasgow merchant. Addresses: Inverleith House, Edinburgh; and Athenæum.

BALFOUR, The Right Hon. John Blair, Q.C., M.P., LL.D., P.C., is the son of the late Rev. Peter Balfour, minister of Clackmannan, by Jane Ramsay, daughter of Mr. John Blair of Perth. He was born at Clackmannan on July 11, 1837, and was educated at the Edinburgh Academy and the University of Edinburgh. He was called to the Scottish Bar in 1861, and was appointed Solicitor-General for Scotland on the formation of Mr. Gladstone's Administration in 1880. Mr. Balfour entered Parliament as M.P. for the counties of Clackmannan and Kinross in November 1880, in the place of the late Mr. W. P. Adam, on the appointment of the latter as Governor of Madras, and was again elected in November 1885, in July 1886, in July 1892, and in July 1895. In August 1881 he was appointed Lord Advocate for Scotland, and held that office till the resignation of Mr. Gladstone's Administration in June 1885; was re-appointed Lord Advocate in February 1886, when he held office till August 1886; and a third time in August 1892, when he held office till July 1895; was made Privy Councillor and a Member of the Committee of Council on Education in Scotland 1883; elected Dean of the Faculty of the Advocates July 1885, and again May 1889, and Deputy-Lieutenant for the County of the City of Edinburgh. He is also Hon. LL.D. of the Universities of Edinburgh and St. Andrews. Mr. Balfour has been twice married—first, in 1869, to Lillias Oswald, daughter of Lord Mackenzie, a Judge of the Court of Session (Supreme Court) of Scotland; and, secondly, in 1877, to the Hon. Marianne Eliza Wellwood Moncreiff, younger daughter of the Right Hon. Lord Moncreiff, late Lord Justice Clerk of Scotland. Addresses: 6 Rothesay Terrace, Edinburgh; and Glarclune, North Berwick, N.B.

BALL, Sir Robert Stawell, LL.D., F.R.S., was born at 3 Granby Row, Dublin, on 1st July 1840, and is the eldest son of the late Robert Ball, LL.D., a distinguished naturalist, and Director of the Museum in Trinity College, Dublin. He was educated at Tarvin Hall and Abbots Grange, Chester, by Dr. Brindley, and entered Trinity College, Dublin, in 1857, graduating there as University Student in Mathematics in 1861. He was appointed Astronomer to the late Earl of Rosse at Parsonstown, King's County, Ireland, in 1865, Professor of Applied Mathematics and Mechanism at the Royal College of Science for Ireland in 1867, Fellow of the Royal Society in 1873, Andrews Professor of Astronomy in the University of Dublin, and Royal Astronomer of Ireland in 1874, Scientific Adviser to the Commissioners of Irish Lights in 1883, Lowndean Professor of Astronomy and Geometry in the University of Cambridge, and Director of the Cambridge Observatory, and Fellow of King's College, Cambridge, in 1892, President of the Royal Astronomical Society in 1897. He is Hon. Fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh. He has published a long series of Memoirs on Dynamics in the Transactions of the Royal Irish Academy, for which he has been awarded the Cunningham Gold Medal of the Academy. He has been a Member of Council of the Royal Zoological Society of Ireland since 1869, and was President of the Society 1890-92. He is author of the following works among others: "Experimental Mechanics" (Macmillan), "Theory of Screws" (Hodges & Figgis), "The Story of the Heavens" (Cassell), "Starland" (Cassell), "In Starry Realms" (Isbister), "In the High Heavens" (Isbister), London Science Class-books in Astronomy and Mechanics (Longmans), and "Time and Tide," besides many papers on Mathematics, Astronomy, and Physical Science in various publications. He is the editor of the "Admiralty Manual of Scientific Inquiry." Several of his works have been translated into foreign languages. Sir Robert Ball has also lectured frequently on astronomy at the leading institutions in the United Kingdom. He was married on Aug. 5, 1868, to Frances Elizabeth, daughter of the late William E. Steele, Esq., M.D., Director of the National Science and Art Museum, Dublin, and he has six children. He is a member of the Athenæum Club, Pall Mall, and his residence is at the Observatory, Cambridge. He was knighted on Jan. 25, 1886. Addresses: The Observatory, Cambridge; and Athenæum.

BANCROFT, Lady, née Marie Effie Wilton, actress, who belongs to an old

Gloucestershire and Wiltshire family, is the daughter of the late Mr. Robert Pleydell Wilton. After acting from early childhood in the provinces, chiefly at the old Theatre Royal, Bristol, she first appeared in London in September 1856 at the Lyceum Theatre, as the boy in "Belphegor" and "Perdita the Royal Milkmaid." Subsequently she fulfilled various engagements at London houses, notably making the fortune of the celebrated burlesques at the Strand Theatre. Miss Wilton, in partnership with Mr. H. J. Byron, became manager of the Prince of Wales's Theatre, London, at Easter 1865. Shortly afterwards she gave up burlesque acting, and devoted her entire attention to the production of English comedies, chiefly written by the late T. W. Robertson. She was married to Mr. (now Sir) S. B. Bancroft in December 1867. Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft continued their successful career at the Prince of Wales's Theatre until January 1880, when they migrated to the Haymarket, of which Theatre they had become the lessees. The characters with which Lady Bancroft's name is best associated are Polly Eccles, Naomi Tighe, Mary Netley, Peg Woffington, Jenny Northcote, Nan, Lady Franklin, and Lady Teazle. Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft retired from theatrical management in July 1885, the occasion being a remarkable tribute to their popularity both before and behind the curtain. Lady Bancroft has since shown considerable power as a writer by her important share in the book of reminiscences called "Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft on and off the Stage." Except for occasional charitable morning performances Lady Bancroft did not again appear upon the stage until February 1893, when she took part in the revival of "Diplomacy" at the Garrick Theatre. On the occasion of the performance of "Diplomacy" before the Queen, Mrs. Bancroft was honoured by special marks of her Majesty's favour.

BANCROFT, Sir Squire Bancroft, K.B., actor and theatrical manager, born in London, May 14, 1841, made his first appearance on the stage at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, in January 1861. He afterwards accepted engagements in Dublin and Liverpool, playing almost every line of character, including important Shakesperian parts, with Charles Kean, Phelps, and G. V. Brooke. He made his début in London on the occasion of the opening of the Prince of Wales's Theatre, under the management of Mr. Byron and Miss Marie Wilton, April 15, 1865. Mr. T. W. Robertson's popular comedies, "Society," "Ours," "Caste," "Play," "School," and "M.P." were brought out at this theatre, and in each of them Mr. Bancroft created one of the leading characters. In 1867 Mr. Bancroft married Miss Marie Wilton, and a large share of the management of the Prince of Wales's Theatre thenceforward devolved upon him. Among other parts subsequently performed by him at that house were Sir Frederick Blount in "Money," Joseph Surface in the "School for Scandal," Triplet in "Masks and Faces," Sir George Ormond in "Peril," Dazzle in "London Assurance," Blenkinsop in "An Unequal Match," Count Orloff in "Diplomacy," and Henry Spreadbrow in "Sweethearts." Mr. Bancroft's successful career at the Prince of Wales's Theatre was brought to a close on Jan. 29, 1880. In September 1879 he had become lessee of the Haymarket, and after expending £20,000 on its internal rebuilding and decorations, he began his management of that theatre on Jan. 31, 1880. The first performance was Lord Lytton's comedy, "Money." "Odette" was produced in April 1882, Mr. Bancroft taking the part of Lord Henry Trevene, with Madame Modjeska as Odette. This was followed by the "Overland Route" (September 1882), and the farewell revival of "Caste" in 1883. M. Sardou's "Fédora" was produced with marked success in May of the same year, which was followed by Mr. Pinero's comedy "Lords and Commons," and an elaborate revival of "The Rivals." Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft having realised a large fortune, retired from their exceptionally successful career of management on July 20, 1885. Mr. Bancroft reappeared on the stage in the autumn of 1889 at the Lyceum Theatre with Mr. Irving, acting with great success the part of the Abbé Latour in "The Dead Heart." Mr. Bancroft subscribed £1000 towards General Booth's scheme for alleviating distress, foregoing his stipulation that ninety-nine others should subscribe the same amount. The Earl of Aberdeen was the first to follow suit. In February 1893 Mr. Bancroft appeared at the Garrick Theatre in a revival of "Diplomacy," which had a notable success, being also acted before the Queen. Sir Squire Bancroft, who received the honour of knighthood in 1897, has since devoted much time to "Readings" throughout the country in aid of hospitals and similar institutions, to which he has given large sums. Permanent address: 18 Berkeley Square, W.

BANFFY, Baron, was born in 1842 at Klausenburg, in Transylvania, and was educated at the Universities of Leipzig and Berlin. After spending some time in travel he became a provincial prefect in Transylvania, and spread ideas of reform throughout his district. On the reformation of the Upper Chamber in Hungary he was elected a life peer. He was returned to the Reichstag in 1892, and immediately became its President. On the retirement of Dr. Wekerle he succeeded him as Premier, and on the distinct understanding that he should carry out his Liberal programme. He caused Count Kalnoky's resignation in 1895 by standing out against his high and dry Conservatism, and at the general elections of 1896 he was supported strongly throughout the country.

BANGOR, Bishop of. See LLOYD, THE RIGHT REV. DANIEL LEWIS.

BANKES, John Eldon, was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1878, and is a Special Pleader on the North Wales and Chester Circuits. Address: 3 Hare Court, Temple, E.C.

BANKS, William Mitchell, M.D., F.R.C.S., was born at Edinburgh in 1842, and was educated at the Edinburgh Academy and at the University of Edinburgh. In 1864 he took the degree of M.D. with honours, gaining the University Gold Medal for an anatomical thesis on the Wolffian Bodies. After graduating, he acted as Demonstrator of Anatomy in the University of Glasgow under the late Professor Allen Thomson for two years, and then settled in Liverpool as a consulting and operating surgeon. Mr. Banks has contributed numerous surgical papers to various journals and societies, but his name has been more especially associated with the advocacy of extensive operative measures for the removal of cancer of the breast, and with attempts to find the most suitable operation for the radical cure of rupture. His chief work, however, has been in connection with the resuscitation of the Medical School of Liverpool, and with the origination of the University College of that city, now one of the three colleges of the Victoria University. In the laying down of the original constitution of the college, and in the arrangements of the regulations for the medical degrees of the University, Mr. Banks's work has been of acknowledged service. He has also devoted much time and labour to the building of the new Liverpool Royal Infirmary, having endeavoured, by the introduction of the latest forms of construction and the most recent improvements in building materials, to render this hospital a model of sanitary science. Mr. Banks is Senior Surgeon to the Liverpool Royal Infirmary, and Emeritus Professor of Anatomy in University College, Liverpool. He has been President of the Liverpool Medical Institution and of the Lancashire and Cheshire branch of the British Medical Association. He has been Vice-President and President of the Surgical Section of that Association, and delivered the address in surgery at Montreal in 1897, when the Association visited that city. On the formation of the Liverpool Biological Society in 1886 Mr. Banks was appointed its first president, and in 1893 he gave the annual oration before the Medical Society of London. He was the first representative of the Victoria University on the General Medical Council, and has been a Member of the Council of the Royal College of Surgeons. He is a Justice of the Peace for the city of Liverpool. Address: 28 Rodney Street, Liverpool.

BARATIERI, General, ex-Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Italian colony in East Africa, is the son of a district judge in the Tyrol, and was born at Condino in 1841. Studying at Rovaredo, Trient, and Meran, he finished his classical education under the Franciscans at Circo. Settling in Italy in 1859, he joined Garibaldi, and was a volunteer in the "Thousand of Marsala." Subsequently entering the regular army, he soon rose to be captain, and was wounded at Custoza, where he fought with distinguished bravery. Joining an exploring expedition, he visited Khartoum. He was then for several years editor in Rome of the Rivista Militare, and was employed by Government as Military Attaché to Berlin and Vienna. He had risen to be a Colonel of Bersaglieri when Italy began to become a colonising power. He accompanied General Gandolfi to Africa, and fought with distinction in the campaigns against the Abyssinians, Somalis, and Dervishes, succeeding his chief as Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Italian colony. In 1895 he distinguished himself against Ras Mangascia, moving his troops and gaining victories with astonishing rapidity. In March 1896, however, his troops were overwhelmingly defeated by the Shoans in a battle of a day's duration, in which he was wounded, and lost three thousand Italians, including Generals Dabormida and Albertone, nearly half his artillery, and his ammunition and stores. He was recalled and succeeded by General Baldissera (q.v.).

BARBER, The Rev. W. T. A., son of the Rev. W. Barber, Wesleyan (Missionary) minister, was born Jan. 4, 1858, at Jaffna, Ceylon. He was educated at the Gymnasium, Stellenbosch, Cape Colony, and at New Kingswood School, Bath. He graduated B.A., London, 1882; M.A., Caius College, Cambridge, 1883; and B.D., Dublin, 1896. He entered the Wesleyan ministry in 1882, and was afterwards

assistant tutor at the Richmond Theological College, 1882-84; Principal of the Wuchang High School, Central China, 1884-92; and General Secretary of the Wesleyan Missionary Society, 1896-98. He was appointed Head Master of the Leys School, Cambridge, in March 1898. He is author of "David Hill, Missionary and Saint" (1898). Address: The Leys, Cambridge.

BARBOUR, Sir David Miller, K.C.S.I., was born in 1844. He went out early to India, and became Member of Council of the Governor-General of India in 1887, retaining this position until 1893. In 1889 he was created a K.C.S.I. Address: 4 Hungerford Terrace, Calcutta.

BARDSLEY, The Right Rev. John Wareing, D.D., Bishop of Carlisle, born on March 29, 1835, at Keighley, in Yorkshire, is the son of the late Rev. Canon Bardsley, M.A., Rector of St. Ann's, Manchester. He was educated at Burnley and Manchester Grammar Schools, and at Trinity College, Dublin, M.A., D.D. He was Vicar of St. Saviour's, Liverpool, 1870-87; Archdeacon of Warrington, 1880-86; Archdeacon of Liverpool, 1886-87; and Bishop of Sodor and Man, 1887 to 1892, when he was translated to Carlisle. He is the author of "Counsels to Candidates for Confirmation, 1882; "The Origin of Man," 1883. He is married to Elizabeth, daughter of the Rev. B. Powell. Address: Rose Castle, Carlisle.

BARING, Walter, Minister at Monte Video since 1893, was born in 1844, and entered the Diplomatic Service in 1865. He has held offices at Teheran, Lisbon, Athens, and Montenegro, where he was Chargé d'Affaires in 1886. Address: H.M. British Legation, Monte Video.

BARING-GOULD, The Rev. Sabine, M.A., of Lew-Trenchard, born at Exeter on Jan. 28, 1834, is the eldest son of Edward Baring-Gould, Esq., of Lew-Trenchard, Devon, where the family has been seated for nearly 300 years, and of Charlotte Sophia, daughter of Admiral F. Godolphin Bond. He was educated at Clare College, Cambridge, where he took the degree of M.A. in 1856. He was appointed Incumbent of Dalton, Thirsk, by the Viscountess Down in 1869, and Rector of East Mersea, Colchester, by the Crown in 1871. On the death of his father in 1872 he succeeded to the family property, and in 1881 to the Rectory of Lew-Trenchard. He is Justice of Peace for the County of Devon. Mr. Baring-Gould is the author of "Paths of the Just," 1854;

"Iceland: its Scenes and Sagas," 1861; "Postmediaeval Preachers," 1865; "The Book of Werewolves," 1865; "Curious Myths of the Middle Ages," 1st series, 1866, 2nd series, 1867; "The Silver Store," 1868; "Curiosities of Olden Times," 1869; "The Origin and Development of Religious Belief," vol. i. 1869, vol. ii. 1870; "The Golden Gate," 1869-70; "In Exitu Israel, an Historical Novel," 1870; "Lives of the Saints," 15 vols., 1872-77; "Some Modern Difficulties, a course of Lectures preached at St. Paul's Cathedral," 1874; "The Lost and Hostile Gospels: an Essay on the Toledoth Jeschu, and the Petrine and Pauline Gospels of the First Three Centuries of which Fragments remain," 1874; "Yorkshire Oddities," 2 vols., 1874; "Some Modern Difficulties," in nine lectures, 1875; "Village Sermons for a Year," 1875; "The Vicar of Morwenstowe," 1876; "The Mystery of Suffering," 1877; "Germany, Present and Past," 1879; "The Preacher's Pocket," 1880; "The Village Pulpit," 1881; "The Last Seven Words," 1884; "The Passion of Jesus," 1885; "The Birth of Jesus," 1885; "Our Parish Church," 1885; "The Trials of Jesus," 1886; "Our Inheritance," 1888; "Old Country Life," 1889; "Historic Oddities," 1889; "The Tragedy of the Cæsars," 2 vols., 1893; "Strange Survivals," 1893. He was editor of The Sacristy, a quarterly review of ecclesiastical art and literature, 1871-73. Of late years Mr. Baring-Gould has won celebrity as a novelist. He is the author of "Mehalah," "John Herring," "Court Royal," and "The Broom Squire" (1896), as well as of many short stories. Among his most recent works should be mentioned "Mrs. Curzenven" and "Cheap Jack Zita," 1893; "The Deserts of Southern France," "The Queen of Love," "A Garland of Country Song," "Old Fairy Tales Retold," 1894; "Noëmi," "The Old English Fairy Tales," 1895; "Napoleon Bonaparte," 1896; "A Study of St. Paul," "Guavas the Tinner," and "Bladys," 1897. He married in 1868 Grace, daughter of Joseph Taylor, Horbury, Yorkshire. Address: Lew-Trenchard House, N. Devon.

BARKER, Lady. See BROOME, LADY.

BARKER, Lieut.-General George Digby, C.B., the son of the late John Barker, of Clare Priory, Suffolk, and Georgiana, daughter of the late Colonel Weston of Shadowbuck, Suffolk, was born at Clare Priory in 1833. He was educated at the old Clapham Grammar School, and entered the army as an Ensign in the 78th Highlanders in 1853. After serving in the Persian Campaign of 1857, for which he received a medal, he was engaged throughout the Indian Mutiny, and was present at the battle of Cawnpore, and the first relief, defence, and capture of Lucknow. From 1874 to 1876 he held the position of Professor of Military Art at the Staff College; he had himself been first in the competition for admission to the Staff College in 1864, and he had passed out first in 1866. Promoted to the rank of Major-General in 1887, he was appointed to command the forces in China and Hong-kong in 1890, and held this position until 1895, having acted as Governor of Hong-kong during part of the year 1891. He became a Lieutenant-General in 1895, and in the following year was made Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Bermudas. General Barker was married in 1862 to Frances, daughter of the late George Murray of Rosemount, Ross-shire. Addresses: Government House, Bermuda; and Clare Priory, Suffolk.

BARLOW, Jane, the daughter of the Rev. Dr. Barlow, Senior Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, is the author of "Irish Idylls," published in October 1892; "Bogland Studies," "Kerrigan's Quality," "Strangers at Lisconnel," "Maureen's Fairing," "Mrs. Martin's Company," "A Creel of Irish Stories" (1898), "The End of Elflintown," and "The Battle of the Frogs and Mice" (translation). She has also written a number of short stories and poems for various magazines. Address: Raheny, co. Dublin.

BARLOW, Thomas, M.D., was educated at University College, London, taking his M.D. degree at the University of London in 1874, and being elected a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians of London in 1880. He is Physician to University College Hospital, and to the Hospital for Children in Great Ormond Street; Professor of Clinical Medicine in University College, and Physician to Her Majesty's Household. Dr. Barlow has contributed numerous articles and papers to the Transactions of the Pathological Society, the Medico-Chirurgical Society, and the Clinical Society. Address: 10 Wimpole Street, W.

BARLOW, William Henry, F.R.S. (L. & E.), Past Pres. Inst. C.E., Hon. Member Société des Ingénieurs Civils, &c., born at Woolwich on May 10, 1812, is the son of Prof. Barlow, F.R.S., of the Royal Military Academy, was educated at Woolwich; pupil of H. R. Palmer, M.I.C.E.; went to Constantinople in 1832 for Messrs. Maudslay & Field; erected the establishment for the reconstruction of the Turkish Ordnance; and was employed to report on the lighthouses at the entrance of the Bosphorus in the Black Sea. For his services in Turkey he received the decoration of the "Nishan." Returned to England 1833, he became Assistant Engineer on the Manchester and Birmingham Railway; Resident Engineer on the Midland Counties; and Engineer to the Midland Railway on the formation of that Company. He took offices in London in 1857, and became Consulting Engineer of the Midland Company. He made many of the new lines of the Midland, including the London end of the line and the St. Pancras Station. He was Joint Engineer with Sir J. Hawkshaw for the completion of Clifton Bridge; was the Engineer of the new Tay Bridge (1880-1887); and acted jointly with Sir J. Fowler and Mr. T. Harrison to settle the design of the Firth of Forth Bridge; went to America as one of the Judges of the Centennial Exhibition; and was one of the Vice-Presidents of the Royal Society in 1881. After the labours of Bessemer and others had reduced the cost of obtaining steel, Mr. Barlow took an active part in obtaining the recognition, in the rules and regulations of the Board of Trade, of the superior strength of this material for structural purposes. He served in three Commissions appointed by the Board of Trade: (1) to settle the coefficient to be used for steel in engineering structures; (2) to inquire into the cause of the fall of the former Tay Bridge; (3) to report on the provision to be made to resist wind pressure in engineering structures. He was for many years a Director of the Indo-European Telegraph Company; was appointed a Member of the Ordnance Committee in 1881, from which duty ill-health compelled his retirement in 1888. He has contributed several papers to the Philosophical Transactions, viz., one on the "Illumination of Lighthouses" (1837), one on the "Diurnal Variation of Electric Currents on the Surface of the Earth" (1848), one on "Resistance of Flexure in Beams" (1855), and one on "The Logograph" (1874), and several papers to the Institution of Civil Engineers. He married Selina Crawford, daughter of W. Caffin, of the Royal Arsenal. Addresses: High Combe, Old Charlton; and Athenæum.

BARNABY, Sir Nathaniel, K.C.B., Vice-President of the Institution of Naval Architects, London, was born in 1829 at Chatham, and belongs to a family which has produced many generations of shipwrights in the Royal Dockyard there. He was apprenticed to the trade of shipwright at Sheerness in 1843, and in 1848 he won, by competition, an Admiralty Scholarship in the School of Naval Architecture at Portsmouth. In 1854 he superintended the construction of the Viper and Wrangler gun-vessels built by contract for the Royal Navy. In 1855 he entered the designing office at the Admiralty, and during the thirty years he served there he was concerned in the design and construction of all but three of the entire list of sea-going fighting ships, armoured and unarmoured, which were in existence or were building at the date of his retirement, from ill-health, in October 1885. The exceptions were the Neptune, Orion, and Belleisle. He was appointed Chief Naval Architect in 1872, and afterwards, by change of title, Director of Naval Construction. He was the means of inaugurating the change in construction from iron to steel in shipbuilding in England, which has marked the last few years so notably. He initiated and was responsible for the formation of an Admiralty List of Merchant Ships having considerable security against foundering in collision, and appreciable fighting value as auxiliaries in war. He was one of the original founders of the Institution of Naval Architects in 1860, and has contributed many papers on professional subjects to its Transactions, as well as the articles on the "Navy" and "Shipbuilding" to the "Encyclopædia Britannica." He prepared for H.M. Patent Office the first volume of "Abridgments of Specification of Patents in Shipbuilding, &c.," published in 1862, and also the second volume of the same series. He was made a Companion of the Bath in 1876 on the recommendation of Mr. Disraeli, and a Knight Commander of the Bath in June 1885 on the recommendation of Mr. Gladstone. Residence: Moray House, Lewisham, S.E.

BARNARD, Henry, LL.D., American educator, was born at Hartford, Connecticut, Jan. 24, 1811. He graduated at Yale College in 1830, studied law, and was admitted to the Bar in 1835. From 1837 to 1840 he was a member of the Connecticut Legislature, and carried through that body a complete reorganisation of the common school system, and was for four years (1838-42) a member and secretary of the Board of Education created by it. Displaced by a political change in 1842, he spent more than a year in an extensive educational tour through the United States, with a view to the preparation of a History of Public Schools in the United States. He was called from the prosecution of this work to take charge of the public schools of Rhode Island; and after five years returned to Hartford, in 1849. In 1850 a State Normal School was established in Connecticut, and he was appointed Principal, with the added duties of State Superintendent of Public Schools. After five years of severe labour he retired from this work, but soon began the publication of the American Journal of Education, Hartford, in 1855, which is still continued. In addition to this he has been engaged for many years in the publication of a Library of Education, which, in 53 vols., embraces about 800 separate works. He has been President of the American Association for the Advancement of Education, was elected in 1856 President and Chancellor of the University of Wisconsin, which office he resigned in 1859; he was President in 1865-67 of the St. John's College, Annapolis, Maryland, and United States Commissioner of the Department of Education in 1868-70. While secretary of the Board he established the Connecticut Common School Journal, and founded, when in Rhode Island, the Rhode Island School Journal. His own contributions to educational literature have been so numerous, that but few of them can be mentioned here: "School Architecture," 1839; "Education in Factories," 1842; "National Education in Europe," 1851; "Normal Schools in the United States and Europe," 1851; "Tribute to Gallaudet, with History of Deaf Mute Instruction," 1852; "School Libraries," 1854; "Hints and Methods for the Use of Teachers," 1857; "English Pedagogy," 1862; "National Education," 1872; "Military Schools," 1872; "American Pedagogy," 1875.

BARNARDO, Thomas John, F.R.C.S.Ed., F.R.G.S., was born in Ireland in 1845, being the son of the late John M. Barnardo. He was educated at private schools, and then proceeded to study medicine at hospitals in London, Edinburgh, and Paris. Whilst a student at the London Hospital in 1866, he had his attention drawn to the condition of destitute children, and on his own responsibility he opened a small house in Stepney Causeway. Year by year the Homes have extended and multiplied, and the original rule has been always carefully adhered to, viz., that no destitute child, boy or girl, should ever be refused admission. At present the Homes comprise twenty-four mission branches, and eighty-six distinct Homes dealing with every class and age of destitute children, three of these Homes being situated in Canada, one in Jersey, seventeen in the English counties, and the remainder in London. At the Home in Stepney Causeway boys are taught various trades, whilst at the Village Home at Ilford, in Essex, fifty-two separate cottages are used for the bringing up of girls on the family system, under "mothers." An important adjunct is the emigration agency, by means of which boys and girls are removed to the Colonies, chiefly Canada, where suitable employments are found for them. Up to the present time over 32,000 children, of all ages, have been rescued and trained. Dr. Barnardo is the author of "Something Attempted, Something Done"; he has published a large number of small booklets on the rescue of destitute children, and he is the editor of Night and Day, a magazine devoted to the interests of his particular work. Address: Mossford Lodge, near Ilford, Essex.

BARNES, Hon. Sir John Gorell, a Judge of the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Divisions, is the eldest son of the late Henry Barnes, Esq., shipowner, of Liverpool, and was born in 1848. He was educated at St. Peter's College, Cambridge, and took his B.A. degree in 1868, and his M.A. in 1871. He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1876; went on the Northern Circuit, and took silk in 1888. In 1892 he was appointed a Judge of the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division of the High Court of Justice, and received the honour of knighthood in the same year. He married, in 1881, Mary, the eldest daughter of the late Thomas Mitchell, Esq. Addresses: 14 Kensington Park Gardens, W.; and Lamb Building, Temple.

BARNES-LAWRENCE, Herbert Cecil, M.A., is the second son of the Rev. Canon H. F. Barnes-Lawrence, and was born at Bridlington, Dec. 9, 1852. He was educated at King's School, Canterbury, Durham Grammar School, and Trinity and Lincoln Colleges, Oxford, obtaining a scholarship at the latter college. Appointed an assistant-master at Manchester Grammar School in 1876, he remained there until 1881, and after filling a similar position at Giggleswick Grammar School for two further years, he became, in 1883, Headmaster of the Perse Grammar School, Cambridge. Address: Beech House, Cambridge.

BARNETT, Canon Samuel Augustus, M.A., was born in 1844, and educated at Wadham College, Oxford, where he took in 1866 a second in History. He was ordained deacon in 1867, and priest in 1868, and was from 1867 to 1872 curate of St. Mary's, Bryanston Square. He was then appointed Vicar of St. Jude's, Whitechapel. There has hardly been a scheme for the elevation or education of the people of East London which he and Mrs. Barnett have not initiated or supported. Their names are identified with Poor Law Reform, the Extension of University Teaching, Charity Organisation, the Children's Country Holidays Fund, the Higher Education of Pupil Teachers, and many other philanthropic movements. With the help of friends from Oxford and elsewhere, Canon Barnett built "Toynbee Hall," close to St. Jude's Church, a kind of residential club and college, which forms a centre for university men who come and settle for a time to work among the poor. The success of his free exhibitions of loan-collections of pictures is attested by the increasing number of people—many of them of the humblest classes—who annually crowd to see them. In theology Canon Barnett belongs to the Broad Church School. In 1893 he became a Canon of Bristol, and was succeeded at St. Jude's by the Rev. Ronald Bayne. In 1896 he was appointed Select Preacher before Oxford University. He still holds a curacy at St. Jude's, and has published, in conjunction with Mrs. Barnett, "Practicable Socialism" and "The Service of God." Address: Toynbee Hall, Whitechapel.

BARODA, The Maharajah Gaekwar of. His Highness Maharajah Syaji Rao Gaekwar was born on March 10, 1863, at the town of Kavalana, in the Nassick District, and is the son of the late Rao Bhikaji Rao Gaekwar. He was educated at the "Maharajah's School" at Baroda, under the personal supervision and tuition of Mr. F. Elliot, of the Indian Civil Service. It will be in the memory of our readers how the late Gaekwar, Mulhar Rao, for his attempt to poison Colonel Phayre, the British Resident, and for continual and gross misgovernment, was, after being tried by a mixed commission of European officials and native chiefs, deposed from his government and sent into exile at Madras, where he died at the end of 1882. On Mulhar Rao's deposition, and with the consent of the Earl of Northbrook, then Viceroy of India, the Maharanee Jumna Bai adopted, on May 27, 1875, the present Maharajah, who was on the same day installed on the guddee or throne. During the minority of the Maharajah the administration was carried on by a Council of Regency under the direction of the European representative; and Raja Sir Tounjore Madhava Rao, Bahadoor, K.C.S.I., who was the Dewan to His Highness Maharajah Scindiah of Gwalior, was specially selected to fill the post of Prime Minister, together with a seat at the Regency Board. On Dec. 28, 1881, and at the early age of eighteen, his Highness was invested with full and sovereign powers, and since he has held the reins of state, he has, with the assistance of Sir Madhava Rao, whom he has retained as his Prime Minister, given satisfaction by his aptitude for work and desire to introduce reforms. His Highness is an excellent English scholar, speaking the language as fluently as his own.

BARRÉ, Mrs. Amelia Edith, was born at Ulverston, Lancashire, March 29, 1831, and is the daughter of William Henry Huddleston. She was educated at the Glasgow High School, and in 1850 married Mr. Robert Barr, a Glasgow merchant. In 1854 she went to the United States, and after residing for a few years at Austin, Texas, removed to Galveston, in the same state, where, in 1867, her husband and three sons died of yellow fever. She went to New York in 1869 with her daughters, and taught for two years, and then began writing for publication. In addition to newspaper and magazine contributions, she has published "Romance and Reality," 1872; "Young People of Shakespeare's Time," 1882; "Cluny M'Pherson," 1883; "Scottish Sketches," 1883; "The Hallam Succession," 1884; "The Lost Silver of Briffault," 1885; "Jan Vedder's Wife," 1885; "A Daughter of Fife," 1886; "The Last of the M'Allisters," 1886; "The Bow of Orange Ribbon," 1886; "Between Two Loves," 1886; "The Squire of Sandal-Side," 1887; "Paul and Christina," 1887; "A Border Shepherdess," 1887; "Master of His Fate," 1888; "Remember the Alamo," 1888; "Christopher and other Stories," 1888; "Feet of Clay," 1889; "Friend Olivia," 1890; "A Rose of a Hundred Leaves," 1891; "A Sister to Esau," 1891; "Love for an Hour is Love for Ever," 1892; "A Singer from the Sea," 1892; "Girls of a Feather," 1893; "The Lone House," 1894; "Prisoners of Conscience," 1897, &c. Address: Cherry Croft, Cornwall Heights, Cornwall-on-Hudson, New York.

BARRÈS, Maurice, French novelist, born at Charmes sur Moselle, Aug. 17, 1862, was educated for the law, but preferred literature. At the end of 1883 he founded and edited a small literary paper called Les Jachés d'Eucre, which only lasted a year, and was the organ of a new school. He then wrote for the Revue Contemporaine and the Voltaire. In 1888 he published a novel called "Sous l'œil des barbares," which advocated the doctrine of absolute selfishness, also "Sensation de Paris," and "Le Quartier Latin," both of a pessimistic character. His attitude of absolute negation was more marked in an essay called "Huit Jours chez Monsieur Renan" (1888). He made himself a niche among the coming young men in literature, and was regarded as the head of a new school called "The Decadents." He entered the Chamber of Deputies in 1889 as member for Nancy, and was a warm partisan of General Boulanger. Paris address: 100 Bonhard Maillot.

BARRETT, Wilson, actor, is the son of a gentleman-farmer, and was born in Essex on Feb. 18, 1846. He was educated at a private school, and entered the dramatic profession by his own choice at an early age. Mr. Barrett first appeared on the stage at Halifax, and first essayed management as the lessee of the Burnley Theatre. In 1874 he took the Amphitheatre, Leeds. This house was destroyed by fire in 1876, and a limited company then built the Grand Theatre, Leeds, which was opened with Mr. Barrett as lessee in 1878. In 1879 he undertook the management of the Court Theatre, London. Here he produced "Heartsease," an adaptation of Schiller's "Marie Stuart," "Frou Frou," "Romeo and Juliet," "Juana," a poetical play by W. G. Wills, and "The Old Love and the New." In 1881 Mr. Barrett became sole lessee and manager of the Princess's Theatre, where he revived "The Old Love and the New." In the following September he produced Mr. G. R. Sims' drama, "The Lights o' London," and played Harold Armitage for 286 nights. "The Romany Rye," by the same author, was produced in 1882, and "The Silver King" in the same year. In this drama Mr. Barrett created the part of Wilfred Denver, which he played for 300 consecutive nights. In December 1883 he created the part of Claudian in the poetical play of that name, and played it for 300 nights. In October 1884 he made his first appearance in London as Hamlet. Hamlet was played for 117 nights, and then Mr. Barrett appeared as Junius Brutus in the late Lord Lytton's tragedy "Junius; or, the Household Gods." This was followed by revivals of "The Silver King" and "The Lights o' London." In 1885 Mr. Barrett produced the drama "Hoodman Blind," written by Mr. Henry A. Jones and himself, in which he played Jack Yeulett for 171 nights. Mr. Barrett is also part-author with Mr. Clement Scott of the modern drama "Sister Mary," produced at Brighton in 1886, and with Mr. Sydney Grundy of the classical tragedy "Clito," which followed the "Lord Harry" at the Princess's. At the same theatre he produced the "Ben-my-Chree," an adaptation of Hall Caine's famous novel "The Deemster," and subsequently "The Good Old Times," which was written in collaboration with Mr. Hall Caine; and in 1889 his own romantic drama "Now-a-Days." "The Golden Ladder" was produced by Mr. Barrett at the Globe Theatre. On May 18, 1889, he took farewell of his patrons for a long engagement in America. Since his return from that tour Mr. Barrett has written and played "Pharaoh," a four-act tragedy. He also revived "Othello" and "Virginius." In November 1893 Mr. Barrett again sailed for America, and in December of that year produced his adaptation of Hall Caine's "Bondman" at the Chestnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia. In 1895 he returned to London, and achieved a marvellous success with the spectacular religious drama "The Sign of the Cross," a tale of the early Christians, written by himself. He sustained the chief rôle, and Miss Mary Jeffries was his leading lady. It ran for over a year and a half at the Lyric Theatre. He also produced "The Daughters of Babylon," and at the end of 1897 he took another trip to America. Address: Garrick Club.

BARRIE, James Matthew ("Gavin Ogilvy"), was born on May 9, 1860, at Kirriemuir, a small weaving town in Forfarshire. He attended school there, and afterwards went for five years to Dumfries Academy. Subsequently he took the art-classes at Edinburgh University, and graduated as an M.A. in 1882. He was for eighteen months leader-writer on a Nottingham paper; then became a journalist in London, writing chiefly for the St. James's Gazette, to which paper and the British Weekly, the Speaker, and the National Observer, he still frequently contributes. His first book, "Better Dead," a satire on London life, appeared in 1887, and was followed by two more important works the year after, namely, "Auld Licht Idylls," and "When a Man's Single." In 1889 he published "A Window in Thrums," and in 1890 "My Lady Nicotine." The "Thrums" of three of these stories is his native town. "Sentimental Tommy" followed, and in 1896 appeared "Margaret Ogilvy," a memoir of the author's mother. During 1891 "The Little Minister," his first long story, appeared in Good Words, and was shortly republished in book form. In 1892 "Walker, London," a comedy by Mr. Barrie, the scene of which is laid on a house-boat, was produced at Toole's, and enjoyed a phenomenal run. This was followed by "Jane Annie," written in conjunction with Mr. Conan Doyle, and produced at the Savoy in May 1893, and by "The Professor's Love Story," produced by Mr. Willard in America and at the Garrick Theatre, London, 1894. His latest great dramatic success has been "The Little Minister," produced by Mr. Cyril Maude at the Haymarket in November 1897. This play, based on his novel, has had a long run. He married at Kirriemuir, in July 1894, Miss Mary Ansell, who made her mark in

"Walker, London." Address: Kirriemuir, Forfar.

BARRINGTON, Rutland, was born at Penge on Jan. 15, 1853, and made his first appearance on the stage at the Olympic in "Clancarty" in 1874. He was for some time an entertainer, travelling two years with Mrs. Howard Paul's company. In 1877 he appeared as Dr. Daly in "The Sorcerer," which was produced in the November of that year at the Opera Comique. His association with Mr. D'Oyly Carte dates from these times, when he began his well-known career as an actor and singer in Gilbert and Sullivan opera, making his classic hit in "The Mikado." As an actor of high comedy Mr. Barrington has also made a name. His first success in this direction was attained in "The Dean's Daughter," adapted by Mr. F. C. Philips from that author's novel of the same name. The play was produced by Mr. Barrington at the St. James's Theatre, of which he became manager in 1888, after severing his connection with the Savoy. He acted the part of the Dean, but the play was shortly withdrawn. In November he appeared as Mr. Thursby in "Brantingham Hall." Returning to the Savoy, where he had only missed appearing in "The Yeomen of the Guard," he played the part of Giuseppe Palmieri in "The Gondoliers," December 1889. He was the Rajah in "The Nautch Girl," 1891; and the Vicar in the revival of "The Vicar of Bray," 1892. Subsequent parts have been Rupert Vernon in "Haddon Hall," 1892; a Proctor in "Jane Annie," 1893; King Paramount in "Utopia (Limited)," 1893; Dr. Brierley in "The Gaiety Girl," 1894. In the latter year he replaced Mr. Monkhouse at Daly's. He appeared at the Lyric as the Regent in "His Excellency," in October 1894. In November 1895 he resumed his famous part of the Mikado at the Savoy. His most recent appearances have been at Daly's, as a Japanese magnate in "The Geisha," and a Roman Prefect in "The Greek Slave," 1898.

BARRINGTON, Sir Vincent H. B. Kennett, M.A., LL.M., born Sept. 3, 1844, is the eldest son of the late Captain Vincent F. Kennett of the Manor House, Dorchester, by Arabella Henrietta, daughter and co-heiress of the late Sir Jonah Barrington, Judge of the High Court of Admiralty in Ireland, M.P. for Tuam and Clogher, and widow of Edward Hughes Lee. He assumed by Royal Licence, 1878, the additional surname and arms of Barrington under his mother's will, but continues to sign "Barrington." Both his parents are of ancient descent. He was educated at Eton and Trinity College, Cambridge, where he obtained a scholarship, and graduated as Wrangler in the Mathematical Tripos, 1867, and in Law Honours, 1869. Barrister Inner Temple, 1872, and formerly Lieutenant, Royal Elthorne Militia. Married, 1878, Alicia Georgette, daughter of the late George G. Sandeman of Westfield, Hayling Island. He was engaged as Commissioner under the Geneva Convention (Red Cross) during the following wars: Franco-German war, 1870-71, serving at Saarbruck, Metz, Orleans, siege of Paris, and afterwards in the East of France for relief of wounded during Bourbaki's retreat; Carlist war, 1873-76, serving at sieges of Bilbao and Pampeluna, and the last battles on the French frontier; Turco-Servian war, 1876, after which he joined Viscountess Strangford's mission in relief of the victims of the Bulgarian revolution; Turco-Russian war, 1877-78, serving with a staff of forty-five surgeons as Chief Commissioner of the Stafford House Committee, which established eleven hospitals, six field ambulances, and other means of relief in Europe and Asia. He also served during the Suakim Expedition 1885 and the Servo-Bulgarian war, 1885-86, and was engaged in ambulance work during revolutions in Argentina and Brazil, and in Venezuela, where he founded its Red Cross Society. For war services he was knighted, 1886, and received Egyptian war medal and clasp, Khedival Star, the Orders of Osmanie (Turkish), Takova (Servian), Isabel Catolica (Spanish), Alexander (Bulgarian), the French bronze cross, and the Turkish, Saxon, and other war medals; and also the silver and bronze medals of the Royal Humane Society for swimming to the rescue of drowning men. He was an early worker in the St. John Ambulance Association; Deputy Chairman of its Central Committee since 1883, and appointed for services Honorary Associate of the Order of St. John, 1875, and Knight of Grace, 1889. As Government nominated member of the Metropolitan Asylums Board since 1883, he has taken special interest in its fever and smallpox ambulance department; was Chairman of its Statistical Committee, 1887-92, and Cholera Committee. He was formerly partner in Wollaston & Sons, when he was elected on the Council of the London Chamber of Commerce, 1883, Deputy Chairman, 1889, and has since been Chairman of its South American Section, and on the Council of the Association of Chambers of Commerce since 1886. He was President of the Jury (Life Saving Section) Brussels Exhibition, 1876, and on the Juries of the Exhibition of Paris, 1889 (Social Economy), and Health Exhibition 1884, and on the Commissions of these Exhibitions, and of the Brussels

Exhibition, 1898. He has also been Special Commissioner to the Governments of various South American Republics on railway and harbour matters, and to India, Egypt, and other countries. He is author of various papers on Floating Hospitals (Epidemiological Society), 1883; River Pollution (Fisheries Exhibition), 1883; Ambulance Organisation of the Metropolis during Epidemics (Health Exhibition), 1884; Recent Progress in Ambulance Work (Sanitary Congress, Dublin), 1884; Organisation of the Metropolitan Asylum Board (Congress of Hygiene), 1891, &c. Address: 57 Albert Hall Mansions, S.W.

BARRINGTON, Hon. William Augustus Curzon, British Minister Plenipotentiary to the Argentine Republic and to the Republic of Paraguay since 1896, was born on Jan. 28, 1842, and is the third son of the 6th Viscount Barrington. He was educated at Woolwich and the University of Bonn, and entered the diplomatic service in 1859, becoming successively Secretary of Legation at Buenos Ayres, 1883, Acting Chargé d'Affaires and Consul-General at Lima, 1884; Consul-General at Buda-Pesth in 1885; Chargé d'Affaires at Belgrade, and, afterwards, First Secretary at the Embassies of Madrid and Vienna. Address: H.B.M. Legation, Buenos Ayres.

BARROS, Prudente José de Moraes, late President of the United States of Brazil, born at Itu, in the state of Sao Paulo, in 1841, studied law, and in 1863 became a barrister, and acquired a great reputation as an orator. In 1866 he was elected deputy for his native state, and became one of the Commission of the Budget. In 1870, when the Republican party was formed, he was one of the first to join it. In 1885 he was elected to the Chamber of Rio de Janeiro, and vigorously upheld the Republican cause. After the revolution of Nov. 15, 1889, Barros was named Governor of the Province of Sao Paulo, one of the richest in the country. He occupied this post until November 1890, and governed with great moderation. He was elected a Senator of the Federal Congress charged to formulate the Constitution of the New Republic, and on its meeting he was chosen President. In 1891 he was a candidate for the Presidency of the Republic, but was defeated by Marshal de Fonseca, the dictator. At the second election in 1892 he was successful, and the vote was ratified by universal suffrage in 1894. He entered into power on Nov. 15, 1894, in spite of the resistance of the followers of General Peixoto (q.v.). In 1898 he was succeeded as President by Campos-Sales.

BARROW, John, F.R.S., F.S.A., F.R.G.S., was born in 1808, being the second son of Sir John Barrow, Bart., and was educated at the Charterhouse. He became Keeper of the Records at the Admiralty, and took an active part in promoting the search for Sir John Franklin, the officers engaged in the search presenting him with a handsome silver ornament representing the Arctic circle. He is, besides, an authority on mountaineering, and has been an active member of the Alpine Club. Mr. Barrow is the author of "Naval Worthies in Queen Elizabeth's Reign," "Life of Sir Francis Drake," "Expeditions on the Glaciers," &c. Addresses: 17 Hanover Terrace, Regent's Park, N.; and Athenæum.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS, Bishop of. See WARE, THE RIGHT REV. HENRY.

BARRY, The Right Rev. Alfred, D.D., D.C.L., late Bishop of Sydney, is the second son of the late eminent architect Sir Charles Barry, and was born in London on Jan. 15, 1826. He was educated at King's College, London, and at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he graduated B.A. as fourth Wrangler, second Smith's prizeman, and seventh in the first-class of the Classical Tripos in 1848, obtaining a Fellowship in the same year. Dr. Barry, who was ordained in 1850, was from 1851 to 1854 Sub-Warden of Trinity College, Glenalmond; and subsequently held from 1854 to 1862 the Head Mastership of the Grammar Schools at Leeds, which he raised to a very high position by his energy and ability. In 1862 he was appointed to the Principalship of Cheltenham College. In 1868 he became Principal of King's College, London: in 1869 Examining Chaplain to the Bishop of Bath and Wells; in 1871 was made a Canon of Worcester; in 1875 Honorary Chaplain, and in 1877 Chaplain in Ordinary to the Queen; and in 1881 Canon of Westminster. He was also a member of the London School Board from 1871 to 1877. On Jan. 1, 1884, he was appointed Primate of Australia, Metropolitan of New South Wales, and Bishop of Sydney, which office he resigned for urgent private reasons in May 1889. On his return to England he acted as Assistant Bishop in the Diocese of Rochester from 1889 to 1891; in 1891 was appointed to a Canonry at the Cathedral of Windsor, and in 1892 to the Rectory of St. James', Piccadilly; and undertook the duties of Assistant Bishop in the Diocese of London in 1897. Dr. Barry is the author of an "Introduction to the Old Testament," "Notes on the Prophecy," "Life of Sir C. Barry, R.A.," "Cheltenham College Sermons," "Sermons for Boys,"

"Notes on the Catechism," "Religion for Every Day; Lectures to Men," 1873; "What is Natural Theology?" being the Boyle Lectures for 1876; "The Manifold Witness for Christ," the Boyle Lectures for 1877, 1878; "Some Lights of Science on the Faith," the Bampton Lectures for 1892; "The Ecclesiastical Expansion of England," the Hulsean Lectures for 1896; "England's Mission to India," 1894; "Christianity and Socialism," 1891; besides some volumes of sermons at Hereford, Worcester, Westminster, and Sydney. In 1851 he married Louisa, daughter of Canon T. E. Haughes. Addresses: The Cloisters, Windsor Castle; St. James's Rectory, Piccadilly; and Athenæum.

BARRY, Charles, F.S.A., is the eldest son of the late Sir Charles Barry, and was born in 1823. He showed an early desire to be an architect, and was educated for the profession in his father's office, and was for several years assisting him in various important works, both public and private, including the New Houses of Parliament. His health failing, in 1846 he went abroad and travelled through France, Germany, and Italy, studying the architectural works in those countries, and was absent 1½ years. He did not return to his father's office, but at his recommendation started practice on his own account, associating with him as partner the late Robert R. Banks, Esq., who had for some years been one of the principal assistants of Sir Charles. This association (which was founded on sincere personal friendship as well as artistic sympathy) remained unbroken till the death of Mr. Banks in 1872. During that time, and since, Mr. Barry has had an extensive and varied practice. In 1850, at the International competition for the "Government Public Office," the design was by his partner and himself was placed second in merit by the award of the then principal Foreign Office; the work was, however, given almost entirely to Mr. Banks, who had obtained the third place. Among his more notable works may be named the New International House, Kensington, the New College at Sydney, and the design for the School at Brighton for the Society of Methodists. Having a large number of works in progress, there may be mentioned "Windsor Hall," "St. John's Church," "St. John's Church," the New House, Kent, and the various buildings at Cheltenham. His architectural work in the service of the State is, however, not confined to the design of buildings, and comprises also the design of the interior of the Houses of Parliament, and the design of the interior of the Houses of Parliament, and the design of the interior of the Houses of Parliament.

of private residences, besides his work at the old college and the erection of the New College. In 1876 Mr. Barry was elected President of the Royal Institute of British Architects, and held that office for three years. In 1878 he was one of the Royal Commission for the French Universal Exhibition for that year, and acted therein as the sole representative British Member of the small International Jury of the Fine Arts Section for making the awards for Architecture from the various countries therein represented. In recognition of this service the French Government, at the instance of the Prince of Wales, conferred on him the distinction of the Cross of an Officer of the Legion of Honour. In 1877 Mr. Barry received from his colleagues of the Royal Institute of British Architects the Queen's Gold Medal of the Institute, which is awarded once in three years to an architect of eminence. He is an Hon. Member of the Academies of Fine Arts at Vienna and Milan, and was elected a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries of London in 1876, and is one of the original members of the Surveyors' Institution. Mr. Barry has been from its foundation a Member of Council of the City and Guilds of London Institute, and has always taken an active part in the proceedings of that body. Mr. Barry has lately completed the new Institution of Civil Engineers in Great George Street, Westminster, which has been carried out at a cost of £60,000. It is an elaborate example of the Classic style of Architecture, externally and internally. Office address: Parliament Mansions, Victoria Street, Westminster.

BARRY, Sir John Wolfe, K.C.B., F.R.S., LL.D., D.L., M.I.C.E., is the fifth and youngest son of the late Sir Charles Barry, R.A., and was born in London on Dec. 7, 1836. He was educated at Trinity College, Glenalmond (where his elder brother, the Rev. Alfred Barry, afterwards Bishop of Sydney and Primate of Australia, was sub-warden), and at King's College, London. To acquire a practical knowledge of work, he was placed with Messrs. Lucas Brothers, and was afterwards articled to Mr. (afterwards Sir John) Hawkshaw. While with Sir John Hawkshaw he was engaged as Resident-Engineer on the bridges over the Thames and the large stations at Charing Cross and Cannon Street. On leaving Sir John Hawkshaw's service in 1867 he commenced practice on his own account, and has carried out the Lewes and East Grinstead Railway; the Earl's Court Station, and the Ealing and Fulham Extensions of the Metropolitan District Railway; the St. Paul's Station and the new bridge over the

Thames at Blackfriars; the railways for the completion of the "Inner Circle" (in conjunction with Sir John Hawkshaw); the Barry Dock, near Cardiff (the largest single dock in the United Kingdom), and railways connecting it with the South Wales coalfield; and very many other important undertakings. Mr. Barry carried out for the Corporation of London the Tower Bridge, which work was commenced in conjunction with Sir Horace Jones, the City architect, to whom was entrusted the architectural features of the bridge as distinguished from the engineering work, but who died soon after the work was commenced. By the agreement with the Corporation the responsibility for both the architectural and engineering work of the bridge then devolved on Mr. Barry. On the completion of the bridge, in the summer of 1894, Mr. Barry was made a C.B., K.C.B. 1897. In 1872 Mr. Barry visited the Argentine Republic and laid out a railway from Buenos Ayres to Rosario, which has since been carried out, though not on the original route selected by Mr. Barry. In 18— Mr. Barry was appointed Consulting Engineer to carry out with Messrs. Blythe & Cunningham of Edinburgh, and Mr. C. Forman of Glasgow, the important works of the underground system of railways in Glasgow known as the Glasgow Central Railway; and in 18— he was similarly appointed to execute with Mr. C. Forman the Lanarkshire and Dumbartonshire Railway, which is partly an underground railway in the western parts of Glasgow, but also gives access to the important manufacturing districts between Glasgow and the town of Dumbarton. In 1886 the Government appointed Mr. Barry on the Royal Commission on Irish Public Works, and important legislation, based on the Reports of the Commission, has taken place on the subjects of drainage, light railways, and fishery harbours. In 1889 he was nominated by the Board of Trade, jointly with Admiral Sir George Nares, K.C.B., and Sir Charles Hartley, K.C.M.G., on a commission ordered by Parliament to settle certain important matters connected with the river Ribble, and the same commission was reappointed in 1897 to report on further proposals connected with the same river. In December 1889 he was appointed by the Government on the Western (Scottish) Highlands and Islands Commission, a commission having objects similar to those of the Royal Commission on Irish Public Works. In 1894 he was appointed Chairman of a Commission (of which the other members were Sir George Nares, K.C.B., and Mr. G. F. Lyster, the Consulting Engineer of the Mersey Dock and Harbour Board) to examine and report on the navigation of the Lower Thames. In 1892 Mr. Barry was appointed by the Foreign Office as one of two British representatives on the "Commission Consultative Internationale des Travaux" of the Suez Canal, which position he still occupies. In 1895 Mr. Barry was appointed by the Government of Natal as their Consulting Engineer in England. In conjunction with Sir Charles Hartley, K.C.M.G., he presented to the Natal Government an exhaustive report on the various proposals for the improvement of the harbour of Durban, and submitted proposals which have been adopted by that Government. In 1896 he was appointed by the County Councils of Middlesex and Surrey their Engineer in connection with the new bridge across the Thames at Kew. In 1897 Mr. Barry was appointed by Government on a Committee on the desirability of establishing a National Physical Laboratory, the report of which is shortly expected. In 1897 Mr. (then newly created Sir) J. Wolfe-Barry was appointed by the Tyne Commissioners Engineer in conjunction with Messrs. Coode, Son, & Matthews to examine and report on the extensive damages which had taken place in the north breakwater of Tynemouth harbour, and to take steps for the reparation of this important work. Sir J. Wolfe-Barry is Consulting Engineer to the following public companies: The North-Eastern, Caledonian; London, Chatham, and Dover; Metropolitan, Metropolitan District, Barry Railway Companies, and to the Surrey Commercial Dock Company, in addition to the other appointments to which reference has already been made. Mr. Barry is a Member of Council of the Institution of Civil Engineers, and was elected President in 1896, and was again elected to the same post in 1897; a Member of the Institution of Mechanical Engineers; Associate of Council of the Surveyors' Institution; a Fellow of the Royal Institution and Society of Arts; and a Lieut.-Colonel in the Engineer and Railway Volunteer Staff Corps; and a member of the Army Committee. He is the author of a small volume, "Railway Appliances," in the Text-books of Science Series (Longmans, 1876), and of a course of lectures delivered at the School of Military Engineering, Chatham, in conjunction with Sir F. J. Bramwell, on the "Railway and the Locomotive," published in 1882. Mr. H. M. Brunel, son of the late I. K. Brunel, joined Mr. Barry in partnership in 1878, and Mr. C. A. Brereton and Mr. Arthur John Barry, nephew of Sir J. Wolfe-Barry, also became his partners in 1892, and these gentlemen have been associated with him in most of the above works. He married in 1874 Rosalind Grace, youngest daughter of the Rev. E. E. Rowsell, Rector of Hambledon, Surrey. By royal warrant Sir J. Wolfe-Barry was permitted to assume for himself and his descendants the name of Wolfe as a surname. He is a Deputy-Lieutenant of the County of London, is LL.D. of Glasgow University (honoris causa), and a Fellow of the Royal Society.

BARTET, Madame, nom de théâtre of Jeanne Julia Regnault, French actress, was born in Paris, Oct. 28, 1854. She entered the Conservatoire in 1871, and made her début at the Vaudeville in the part of Vivette in "L'Arlésienne" in 1872. In 1873 she played in "L'Oncle Sam," in 1875 in "Manon Lescaut," in 1876 she created the part of Louise in "Fromont et Risler," and in 1877 that of the Countess Zicka in Sardou's "Dora," known in England as "Diplomacy." Madame Bartet entered the Théâtre Français in 1880, and made her début in "Daniel Rochat." She took Madame Bernhardt's place soon after as the Queen in "Ruy Blas." The chief plays in which she has since acted are, "Le Dépit Amoureux," "Le Gendre de M. Poirier," "On ne Badine pas avec l'Amour," "La Roi s'amuse," and "L'Etrangère." She was much appreciated in London when the Comédie Française played at Drury Lane in 1893. She appeared in "Grosse Fortune" by Meilhac in 1896.

BARTHOLDI, Auguste, born at Colmar (Alsace), April 2, 1834, was intended for a lawyer, but Ary Scheffer, who was a friend of the family, recognised his latent artistic talent, and the use of Ary Scheffer's studio was the turning point of a life subsequently noteworthy for the production of the "Lion de Belfort" and the gigantic "Liberté éclairant le Monde," which, constructed in copper, on an internal iron frame designed by M. Eiffel, was, in 1884, presented by the French Committee to the United States, and was erected on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance to the harbour of New York, in 1886. It is by far the largest bronze statue in the world, being 150 feet high, or higher than the column in the Place Vendôme at Paris. A small replica has been erected at the Pont de Grenelle, Paris, by American subscriptions.

BARTHOU, Louis, French Deputy and Minister of the Interior, was born at Oloron, in the Basses-Pyrénées, Aug. 25, 1862. He is a Doctor of Laws and Municipal Councillor of Pau, and was elected as deputy for Oloron in 1889, for which he has since sat. He was Minister of Public Works in the Duruy Cabinet of 1894, and Minister of the Interior in the Méline Cabinet of 1896, retiring with his colleagues in June 1898. Paris address: 7 Avenue d'Autin.

BARTON, Clara, American philanthropist, born at Oxford, Massachusetts, about 1830, was educated at Clinton, New York. She entered the United States Patent Office as clerk in 1854, but on the outbreak of the war between the states she determined to devote herself to the care of the soldiers in the field. At the beginning of the Franco-German war she assisted the Grand Duchess of Baden in preparing military hospitals, and gave the Red Cross Society much aid during the war, and afterwards at Strasbourg and in Paris. At the close of the war she was decorated with the Golden Cross of Baden and the Iron Cross of Germany. In 1881, on the organisation of the American Red Cross Society, she became its president, and still retained that position, 1898.

BARTON, Dunbar Plunket, Q.C., the son of the late T. H. Barton, by his wife, a daughter of the third Baron Plunket, was born in 1853, and was educated at Harrow, and Corpus Christi College, Oxford. He was called to the Irish Bar in 1880, was appointed a Q.C. in 1889, was called to the English Bar in 1893, and was elected a Benchers of Gray's Inn in February 1898. Returned to the House of Commons as Conservative member for Mid-Armagh in 1891, he still represents that constituency in the Conservative interest, and he has, since Jan. 1, 1898, held the appointment of Solicitor-General for Ireland. Mr. Barton acted as private secretary to the late Duke of Marlborough when he was Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, and in his university days was President of the Oxford Union. He is a Director of the well-known brewing firm of Arthur Guinness & Co., and is a Justice of the Peace for Dublin and Armagh. Addresses: 12 Mandeville Place, W.; and 13 Clare Street, Dublin.

BASCUNAN, Aurelio, Chargé d'Affaires for Chile at the Court of St. James's, belongs to one of the oldest families in Chile, and was born in 1866. In 1879 he passed his examination of Bachiller, being the youngest to attain that degree in the University of Santiago. In 1882 his uncle, the President Santa Maria, appointed him his private secretary, which position he vacated for that of second secretary of the Chilean Legation in Peru after the war between the two countries. From Lima he was transferred to Buenos Ayres, and there he held a position in the Foreign Office until 1895, when he was appointed to the Legation in London. In 1898 the Legation at Paris was added to his charge. On the occasion of the Jubilee in 1897 he was decorated with the Jubilee medal; he is also an Officer of the Legion of Honour and a Commander of Isabella la Católica. He married the daughter of the ex-Premier of Chile, Mr. Carlos Antunez. Address: Members' Mansions, Victoria Street, S.W.

BASSET, Alfred Barnard, M.A., F.R.S., is the only son of the late Mr. Alfred Basset of London, and was born on July 25, 1854. His father died during his childhood, and he was brought up by his grandfather, the late John Swinford Basset, of Stamford Hill, Middlesex, whom he succeeded. He was educated at Grove House School, Tottenham, entered Trinity College, Cambridge, in October 1873, and was elected to a foundation scholarship in April 1878. He graduated B.A. in 1877, having been 13th Wrangler in the Mathematical Tripos of that year. After leaving Cambridge he studied law in the chambers of Mr. John Rigby, Q.C., and was called to the Bar on June 25, 1879; but after the expiration of a few years he gave up the practice of his profession, and resumed the study of Mathematics. He was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society on June 8, 1889, and is the author of a "Treatise on Hydro-dynamics," in two volumes, a "Treatise on Physical Optics," 1892, and also of several papers on Mathematical Physics. He married, in 1882, Edith Sarah Irwin, only child and heiress of the late Thomas Gustave de Chaundre, of Rouen and Dublin. Address: Fledborough Hall, Holyport, Berks.

BASTIAN, Professor Henry Charlton, M.D., F.R.S., F.L.S., was born at Truro, in Cornwall, April 26, 1837, and educated at a private school at Falmouth and in University College, London. He graduated M.A. in 1861, M.B. in 1863, and M.D. in 1866, these degrees being conferred by the University of London. He was elected F.R.S. in 1868, and F.R.C.P. in 1871. Dr. Bastian is a Fellow of several Medical Societies; he is also a Corresponding Member of the Royal Academy of Medicine in Turin, and of the Soc. de Psychol. Physiolog. of Paris. In 1866 he was appointed Lecturer on Pathology, and Assistant-Physician to St. Mary's Hospital. These posts he held until his appointment as Professor of Pathological Anatomy in University College, and Assistant-Physician to University College Hospital in December 1867. He was elected a physician to this hospital in 1871; and in 1878, on taking charge of in-patients, a professorship of Clinical Medicine was conferred upon him. In 1887 he resigned the Chair of Pathological Anatomy at University College, and was elected Professor of the Principles and Practice of Medicine. Dr. Bastian was Dean of the Faculty of Medicine in University College during the sessions 1874-75 and 1875-76; he served as Examiner in Medicine to the Queen's University in Ireland for 1876-79, and he has discharged similar duties for the University of Durham, and for the Royal College of Physicians in London. In 1887 the honorary degree of M.D. was conferred upon him by the Royal University of Ireland, and he was elected an Hon. Fellow of the King and Queen's College of Physicians in Ireland. For some years past he has acted as one of the Crown Referees in cases of Supposed Insanity. Dr. Bastian was elected President of the Neurological Society of London in 1892, and a Censor of the Royal College of Physicians in 1896 and 1897. In this latter year he delivered before the College the Lumeian lectures on "Some Problems in Connexion with Aphasia and other Speech Defects." He has published the following works: "The Modes of Origin of Lowest Organisms," 1871; "The Beginnings of Life," 2 vols., 1872; "Evolution and the Origin of Life," 1874; "Clinical Lectures on the Common Forms of Paralysis from Brain Disease," 1875; "The Brain as an Organ of Mind," 1880 (the latter work has been translated into French and German); "Paralysis; Cerebral, Bulbar, and Spinal," 1886; "Various Forms of Hysterical or Functional Paralysis," 1893; and "A Treatise on Aphasia and other Speech Defects," 1898. He is also the author of "Memoirs on Nematoids: Parasitic and Free," in the Philosophical Transactions and the Transactions of the Linnean Society. In his monograph on the Anguillulidæ he described 100 new species discovered by him in this country. Dr. Bastian is the author of numerous papers on Pathology and Medicine in the Transactions of the Pathological and Medico-Chirurgical Societies; of papers on the more recondite departments of Cerebral Physiology in the Journal of Mental Science, Brain, and other periodicals; and of some joint articles with the editor in Dr. Reynolds' "System of Medicine." Dr. Bastian was likewise one of the principal contributors to Quain's "Dictionary of Medicine" (1882), having written nearly the whole of the articles on Diseases of the Spinal Cord, as well as many others on Diseases of the Nervous System. Having resigned his Professorship at the College, and his Physiciancy at University College Hospital after thirty years of service, Dr. Bastian has recently (1898) been elected Emeritus Professor of the Principles and Practice of Medicine and of Clinical Medicine in University College, and Consulting Physician to the Hospital. Addresses: 8A Manchester Square, W.; and Athenæum.

BATEMAN, Sir Frederic, M.D., F.R.C.P., LL.D., is the son of John Bateman, of Norwich, and was born in 1824. He took the degree of M.D. at the University of Aberdeen in 1850, and was elected a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians in 1876. He is a consulting physician to the Norfolk and Norwich Hospital, and a Justice of the Peace for the county of Norfolk. His publication, "Aphasia and the Localisation of Speech," gained for him the Alvarenga prize of the Academy of Medicine of France, and he is also the author of "Darwinism tested by Language," and "The Idiot, and his place in Creation." He received the honour of knighthood in 1892, and he was married, in 1855, to Emma, daughter and heiress of John Gooderson, of Helgham Fields House, Norwich (she died in 1897). Addresses: Upper St. Giles Street, Norwich; and Burlingham Lodge, Alburgh, Norfolk.

BATEMAN, Kate Josephine. See CROWE, MRS. GEORGE.

BATES, Henry, A.R.A., better known as Harry Bates, sculptor, came to London in 1879, studied under Jules Dalou at the Lambeth School, and in 1881 was admitted a student of the Royal Academy Schools, where he gained the gold medal and travelling studentship for sculpture in 1883. He has been a constant exhibitor at the Royal Academy, his designs often being in the shape of bas-reliefs on panels. He has designed "The Homer Panel," "The Æneid Panel," "The Story of Psyche," "Hounds in Leash," and "Pandora," which was bought under the terms of the Chantrey Bequest. In 1895 he exhibited a bronze bust of General Lord Roberts, G.C., G.C.B., and in 1896 four portrait busts, including one of Lord Lansdowne, and a full-sized model of an equestrian statue of Field-Marshal Lord Roberts for Calcutta. The finished statue was recently unveiled by Lord Elgin in Calcutta. The pedestal is adorned with allegorical figures representing Courage and Fortitude, and the friezes encircling it represent the march from Kabul to Kandahar. In 1898 he exhibited a reduced model in bronze and boxwood of the Roberts statue, besides a bust and a memorial tablet. He was made A.R.A. in 1892. Address: 10 Hall Road, N.W.

BATESON, William, M.A., F.R.S., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, was born at Whitby, Yorkshire, on the 8th of August 1861. He is the son of the late Rev. W. H. Bateson, D.D., Master of St. John's College, Cambridge. From Temple Grove School he obtained a foundation scholarship at Rugby, and thence proceeded to St John's College, Cambridge, graduating in the Natural Sciences Tripos in 1883 and 1884. Elected to a Fellowship at St. John's College in 1885, he became Balfour Student in 1887, and was awarded a Rolleston Prize in the University of Oxford in 1888. He was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1894. His first work was a study of the anatomy and development of Balanoglossus, material for this research having been collected in America during two visits to the marine laboratory of the Johns Hopkins University. The results appeared as a series of papers in the Quarterly Journal of Microscopical Science in 1884-86. In 1886 and 1887 he undertook a journey to the Aral Sea, and to other salt, alkaline, and bitter lakes in Western Central Asia, with the object of examining their fauna. Subsequently he has devoted himself to a study of the facts of Variation, and has published papers relating to the subject, in particular a collection of the evidence, entitled "Materials for the Study of Variation" (Macmillan, 1894). Address: Norwich House, Cambridge.

BATH and WELLS, Bishop of.
See KENNION, RIGHT REV. GEORGE WYNDHAM.

BATTENBERG, Princess Henry of (H.R.H. Princess Beatrice), was born April 14, 1857, and was married at Osborne on July 23, 1885, to Prince Henry Maurice of Battenberg, who, however, died on Jan. 20, 1896, from a fever contracted during the Ashanti campaign of 1895-96. The Princess has four children, viz., Alexander Albert, born Nov. 23, 1886; Victoria Eugénie, born Oct. 24, 1887; Leopold Arthur, born May 21, 1889; and Maurice Victor, born Oct. 3, 1891. She occupies the position of Governor of the Isle of Wight, a post held by Prince Henry until his death. Her Royal Highness has compiled a Birthday Book, and also devotes time to painting. She has always, even during her married life, lived with the Queen, and she still continues to do so.

BATTERSEA, Lord, Cyril Flower, son of the late Mr. P. W. Flower, of Furzedown, Streatham, was born in 1843, and educated at Harrow and at Trinity College, Cambridge. He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1870. In the Parliament of 1880-85 he sat as a Liberal for Brecknock, and in 1885 and 1886 was returned for the Luton division of Bedfordshire, and sat for the same till 1892. In Mr. Gladstone's short Government of 1886 Mr. Cyril Flower was one of the Junior Lords of the Treasury, or "Whips" of the party. In 1892 he was made a peer under the title of Lord Battersea. He married in 1878 Constance, eldest daughter of the late Sir Anthony Rothschild. he and his wife are much interested in the welfare of their party, and have been well supported by the Eighty Club. They devoted to the interests of the lower classes in London, and have done much for the People's Entertainment Society. Lord Battersea is President of the Relative Evening School Association. He is also known as the owner of some fine paintings by Botticelli, Moroni, Da Vinci, Morretti, as well as by Burne-Jones, Samuel Whistler, &c. Addresses: Overstrand, Cromer; Aston Clinton, Tring; and Sunningdale House, 7 Marble Arch, W.

BAVARIA, King of. See OTTO III., KING OF BAVARIA.

BAVARIA, Regent of.
LUITPOLD, PRINCE CHARLES JOSEPH WILLIAM.

BAYER, Karl Emmerich Robert, an Austrian writer, generally known by his nom de guerre of Robert Byr, was born at Bregenz, in the Tyrol, April 15, 1835, and received his education in the Military Academy at Wiener-Neustadt, which he left on his appointment as lieutenant in the Count Radetzky's Hussar Regiment in 1859 he was advanced to the rank of captain, and during the Italian campaign he was placed on the general staff. After the conclusion of peace Bayer began his literary career by the publication of "Sketches of Military Life" ("Kantonirungsbilder"), 1860. In 1862 he retired from active service, and settled in his native town, where he still continues to reside. Bayer is chiefly known to fame as a novelist. Military life he has described in his first work, already mentioned, "Austrian Garrisons" ("Oesterreichisch Garnisonen"), 1863, and in "Quarters" ("Auf der Station"), 1866. His "In the Years Nine and Thirteen" ("Anno Neun und Dreizehn"), 1865, contains biographical sketches of actors in the German War of Independence. To another class of work belong the following novels: "The Home of a German Count" ("Ein Deutsches Grafenhaus"), 1866; "With a Brazen Face" ("Mit eherner Stirn"), 1868; "The Struggle for Life" ("Der Kampf ums Dasein"), 1870; "Sphinx," 1879; "Nomaden," 1881; "Ruin" ("Trümmer"), 1871; "Quatuor," collection of tales, 1875; "Ghosts" ("Läven"), 1876; and "A Secret Despatch" ("Eine geheime Depesche"), 1880; and "Sesam," 1880; "The Path to the Heart" ("Der Weg zum Herzen"), 1881; "Turn of Life" ("Am Wendepunkt des Lebens"), 1881; "Implacable" ("Unversöhnlich"), 1882; "Lydia," 1883; "Andor," 1883

"Am I to do it?" ("Soll Ich?"), 1884; "Castell Ursani," 1885; "Dora," 1886; "Villa Mirafior," 1886; "Will-of-the-Wisp" ("Irrneische"), 1887; "The Path to Fortune" ("Der Weg zum Glück"), 1889; "Wood Idyl" ("Waldidyl"), 1889. He has also written plays which have been performed in public.

BAYFIELD, Rev. Matthew Albert, M.A., was born at Edgbaston, Birmingham, June 17, 1852, and is the son of L. A. Bayfield, Chartered Accountant, of Birmingham. He was educated at King Edward's School, Birmingham, and Clare College, Cambridge, of which latter foundation he was a scholar, and from which he graduated with first-class classical honours in 1875. Appointed an Assistant Master at Blackheath School in 1875, he obtained a similar position at Marlborough College in 1879; and after acting as Headmaster's Assistant at Malvern College from 1881 to 1890, he became Headmaster of Christ College, Brecon, in 1890, and eventually he was, in 1895, appointed Headmaster of Eastbourne College. Mr. Bayfield has edited "Ion," "Alcestis," and "Medea," and, in conjunction with Dr. Verrall, "Septem contra Thebas," and, with Dr. Leaf, the "Iliad." He is also the author of "Latin Prose for Lower Forms." Address: Eastbourne College.

BAYLEY, Sir Steuart Colvin, K.C.S.I., C.I.E., Member of Council at the India Office, formerly Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, was educated at Haileybury, and arrived in India in 1856. His first post was that of Assistant-Magistrate and Collector of the 24 Pargunnahs, and he subsequently rose through various grades till he was appointed Commissioner of the Dacca Division in 1873. Four years later he was acting as personal assistant to the Viceroy for famine affairs. His more recent appointments have been: Chief Commissioner of Assam, June 1880; Resident at Hyderabad (Nizam's Dominions), March 1881; a Member of the Governor-General's Council, May 1882; Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, April 1887; and Secretary in the Political Department, India Office, January 1891. He was created K.C.S.I. in 1890. Addresses: India Office; Charles Street, Westminster, S.W.; and Athenæum.

BAYLISS, Sir Wyke, F.S.A., second son of John Cox Bayliss and Anne Wyke, was born on Oct. 21, 1835, at Madeley, Salop. In 1845 the family removed to London, and he pursued his studies at the National Gallery, the British Museum, and the Royal Academy, with the intention of becoming an artist. At the age of eighteen

he entered an architect's office, where the speciality of his work gave a bent to, though it was not sufficient to break, his purpose of becoming a painter. Architecture, and especially the Gothic of our cathedrals, became at once the motive of all his pictures. He has travelled much abroad, and has painted almost all the chief cathedrals of the Continent. Amongst his best-known paintings may be mentioned "La Sainte Chapelle," exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1865; "The White Lady of Nuremberg," "The Interior of S. Mark's, Venice," 1880; "Vespers in S. Peter's, Rome," 1888; "The Golden Duomo, Pisa," 1892; "The Interior of Strasburg Cathedral," "Chartres Cathedral," &c. He is also the author of "The Witness of Art," "The Higher Life in Art," "The Enchanted Island"; and has for many years been engaged upon a work which is announced for immediate publication, under the title of "Rex Regum, a Painter's Study of the Likeness of Christ, from the time of the Apostles to the present day." In 1875 he was elected a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries of London; in 1888 he was elected President of the Royal Society of British Artists; and in 1897 he received the honour of knighthood. One or two exhibitions of his works have been held, and in the catalogue of one of them appear several sonnets written by the artist in illustration of the subjects of his pictures. He is well known as a lecturer at the London Institution, the Midland Institute, &c. He was married in 1858 to Elise, daughter of Rev. T. Broade, of Staffordshire. Address: 7 North Road, Clapham Park, S.W.

BAYLY, Miss Ada Ellen, "Edna Lyall," is the youngest daughter of the late Robert Bayly, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law. She was born and educated at Brighton, and at an early age made up her mind to write. Her first story, "Won by Waiting," was published in 1879. This was followed by "Donovan," 1882; "We Two," 1884; "In the Golden Days," 1885; "Knight-Errant," 1887; "Autobiography of a Slander," 1887; "Derrick Vaughan, Novelist," 1889; "A Hardy Norseman," 1889; "Max Hereford's Dream," 1891; "To Right the Wrong," 1893; "Doreen: the Story of a Singer," 1894; "How the Children Raised the Wind," 1895; "Autobiography of a Truth," 1896; and "Wayfaring Men," 1897. Address: 6 College Road, Eastbourne.

BEACHCROFT, Richard Melvill, was born on Jan. 22, 1846, and is the son of Richard Beachcroft, and Henrietta, daughter of the late Sir James Cosmo

Melville, K.C.B. He was educated at Harrow, and being admitted a solicitor in 1868, he became eventually a partner in the firm of Beachcroft, Thompson & Co., of 9 Theobalds Road, W.C. He has acted as Solicitor to Christ's Hospital since 1873, and is a member of the Court of the Clothworkers' Company, with which company his family has been connected for nearly two centuries. Mr. Beachcroft is an original member of the London County Council, having been the representative of North Paddington in the first Council. Elected an alderman in 1892, he became Deputy-Chairman in 1896, and Vice-Chairman in 1897. He is an old member of the Alpine Club, and has been a frequent and enthusiastic climber of many of the Swiss and Tyrolean mountains. He is married to Charlotte, daughter of the late Robert M. Bonnar-Maurice, of Bodynfoel Hall, Montgomeryshire. Addresses: 11 Craven Hill, W.; and 9 Theobalds Road.

BEALE, Dorothea, daughter of the late Mr. Miles Beale, M.R.C.S., was born in London, 1831, and educated chiefly at home. She attended the opening lectures of Queen's College in 1848. When for the first time public examinations were thrown open to women she took certificates for English, French, German, Latin, Mathematics, Music, and Pedagogy. In 1850 she was appointed the first lady Mathematical Tutor, and was also appointed Latin Tutor. In 1858 she was elected Principal of the Ladies' College, Cheltenham, which, numbering at that time 69 pupils, has since risen to about 500, of whom about 99 are boarders. There is besides an overflow school of about 80. There are in connection with the Ladies' College two residential colleges of St. Hilda, in Cheltenham and Oxford; and a Mission Settlement, known as St. Hilda's, in Shoreditch, has been built by the Cheltenham Ladies' College Guild, and was opened by the Bishop of London in April 1898. Miss Beale has published "Text-book of English and General History"; "Chronological Maps"; "School Hymns," reprinted with long introduction; "Report of Schools Enquiry Commission of 1868." She has edited and written a large part of a volume, "Work and Play in Girls' Schools," and has issued a large number of short papers on educational and literary subjects, and has contributed many articles to the Journal of Education, Fraser, The Nineteenth Century, Atlanta, Parents' Magazine, Monthly Packet, &c. She edits the Ladies' College Magazine. Miss Beale has been largely instrumental in advancing the movement for the Higher Education of Women. The Ladies' College gained a gold medal at the International Exhibition, and Miss Beale received the title of Officier d'Académie. She is a Member of the Société des Sciences et Lettres. Address: Ladies' College, Cheltenham.

BEALE, Emeritus Professor Lionel Smith, M.B., F.R.S., Consulting Physician to King's College Hospital, and Emeritus Professor of the Principles and Practice of Medicine at King's College, London, formerly Professor of Physiology and of General and Morbid Anatomy, and afterwards Professor of Pathological Anatomy, and Examiner in Medicine. He was born in London in 1828, educated in King's College School and in the Medical Department of King's College. He was elected a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians in 1859, is an Hon. Fellow of King's College, a Fellow of the Medical Society of Sweden, of the Microscopical Societies of New York and California, the Royal Medical and Chirurgical, the Microscopical, and the Pathological Societies; he was formerly President and is now Treasurer of the Royal Microscopical Society, and of the Quekett Club, Member of the Academy of Sciences of Bologna, Corresponding Member of the Académie Royale de Médecine de Belgique, &c., and the author of several works on medicine, physiology, medical chemistry, and the microscope. Among these works are: "The Microscope in its Application to Practical Medicine"; "How to Work with the Microscope," of which there have been several editions; "The Structure of the Tissues of the Body"; "Protoplasm; or, Life, Matter, and Mind"; "Disease Germs, their Supposed and Real Nature, and on the Treatment of Diseases caused by their Presence"; "Life Theories, their Influence upon Religious Thought," 1871; "The Mystery of Life: Facts and Arguments against the Physical Doctrine of Vitality, in reply to Sir William Gull," 1871; "Our Morality and the Moral Question," now in a second edition; "The Liver," 1889; "On Life and on Vital Action in Health and Disease"; "The Anatomy of the Liver"; "Urine, Urinary Deposits, and Calculous Disorders," four editions; "Urinary and Renal Derangements and Calculous Disorders: Diagnosis and Treatment"; "One Hundred Urinary Deposits," in eight sheets; "On Slight Ailments"; "The Physiological Anatomy and Physiology of Man," in conjunction with his colleagues at King's College, the late Dr. Todd and Sir J. Bowman; and of other works. He has contributed several memoirs to the Royal Society, "On the Structure of the Liver"; "The Distribution of Nerves to Muscle"; "On the Anatomy of Nerve-Fibres and Nerve-Centres," &c., which are published in the Philosophical Transactions and in the Proceedings of the Royal Society, and numerous papers to the Royal Microscopical Society, and a memoir in the Medico-Chirurgical Transactions, 1854. He was the editor of the Archives of Medicine, and has also contributed to the Lancet, Medical Times and Gazette, Medical and Chirurgical Review, and the Microscopical Journal. He resigned his professorship at King's College in 1896, having held that post for more than forty years, and became Emeritus Professor of Medicine. Address: 61 Grosvenor Street, W.

BEATRICE, Princess. See BATTENBERG, PRINCESS HENRY OF.

BEAUCHAMP, Earl, William Lygon, was born Feb. 20, 1872, and succeeded his father as 7th Earl in 1891. He was educated at Eton, and Christ Church, Oxford. He acted as Mayor of Worcester from 1895 to 1896, and he was elected Progressive Member for Finsbury on the London School Board in November 1897. Lord Beauchamp is at present unmarried, and the heir to the title is his brother, Edward, born in 1873. Addresses: 125 Piccadilly, W.; and Madresfield Court, Malvern Link, Worcestershire.

BEAUCLERK, William Nelthorpe, J.P., D.L., LL.D., British Minister to Peru and Ecuador, was born in 1849, and is the son of Captain Lord Frederick Beauclerk, R.N. After having graduated at Trinity College, Dublin, with honours in law and history, he was appointed to the Foreign Office, and became an Attaché at Copenhagen in 1874. He has been Secretary at St. Petersburg, 1879; Rome, 1880; Washington, 1887; Berlin, 1888. In 1890 he was appointed Secretary of Legation at Peking, where he married the daughter of Sir Robert Hart, Bart., in 1892. He then was Consul-General at Buda-Pesth (1897), and on Sept. 22, 1898, he was appointed to his present post.

BEAUFORT, Duke of, Henry Charles Fitzroy Somerset, K.G., Marquis and Earl of Worcester, Earl of Glamorgan, Viscount Grosmont, Lord Lieutenant of Monmouthshire, &c., was born Feb. 1, 1824. His Grace, who is a Conservative in politics, succeeded his father as eighth Duke, Nov. 17, 1853. He entered the Life Guards in 1841, exchanged into the 7th Hussars, where he became Captain in 1847, became Lieut.-Colonel in 1858, and retired in 1861. He was M.P. for East Gloucestershire, 1846-53, was Master of the Horse under Earl Derby's second administration, 1858-59, and was reappointed to that office under Earl Derby's third administration, in July 1866, continuing in that post till 1869. He takes a great interest in horse-racing, and is President of the Four-in-Hand Club. In March 1898, on the occasion of a lawn meet at Badminton, his former seat, he was presented with an oil portrait of himself, painted by Mr. Ellis Roberts, and subscribed for by upwards of 1000 followers of his late pack "in recognition of his long services to country sport." He is one of the joint editors of the sporting books known as "The Badminton Library." His Grace married, July 3, 1845, Georgina Charlotte, eldest daughter of the late Earl Howe. Address: Stoke Park, near Bristol.

BEBEL, Ferdinand August, German Socialist, born at Cologne, Feb. 22 or 29, 1840, was educated at Wetzlar, and set up at Leipzig as a turner. Even in 1862 he was already one of the most active leaders of the popular movement in Germany. In 1865 he induced the Workers' Union of Leipzig to adopt a Socialistic propaganda. In 1867 he entered political life as Member for Glauchau-Meerane in the North German Diet. In 1871 he formed part of the first Imperial Reichstag. He worked at his trade during the recess, and was the chief of that section called the Eisenacher Arbeiterpartei, which was in co-operation with the International Workers' Union of London, with Karl Marx at its head. Together with Herr Liebknecht, he was accused of high-treason in 1872, and condemned to two years' confinement in a fortress. In 1874 he was re-elected to the Reichstag, and actively opposed Bismarck's laws against the Socialists. In fact, from 1874 until 1886 he was continually being arrested and imprisoned for his doctrines, and in the intervals of imprisonment he was being elected to the Parliament and fighting the Iron Chancellor. In 1890 he spoke violently against the annexation of Alsace-Lorraine, which he called the "fatal crime" of Bismarck, involving the huge armaments of modern days. His chief writings are: "Unsere Ziele," "Der Deutsche Bauernkrieg," "Die Frau und der Sozialismus," 1883 (18th edit., 1893); "Die Socialdemokratie," 1895.

BECKER, Bernard Henry, author and journalist, born in 1833, was for years attached to All the Year Round, and has written a large number of original stories and sketches in that journal, as well as in the World and other papers, and was formerly on the staff of the Daily News. In 1874 he produced "Scientific London," an account of the rise, progress, and condition of the great scientific institutions of the capital. Mr. Becker published in 1878 a book in two volumes, entitled "Adventurous Lives." Having in the winter of 1878-79 acted as the Special Commissioner of the Daily News in Sheffield, Manchester, and other distressed districts of the North and Midlands, he was sent in a similar capacity to Ireland in the autumn of 1880, when he discovered Mr. and Mrs. Boycott herding sheep, and wrote those letters on the state of Connaught and Munster which have since appeared in a collected form as "Disturbed Ireland," and given rise to several discussions in the House of Commons. In 1884 Mr. Becker produced "Holiday Haunts," the title of which explains itself, like that of the more recent "Letters from Lazy Latitudes," published in 1886.

BECKLES, the Right Rev. Edward Hyndman, D.D., son of the late John Alleyne Beckles, Esq. (descended from the Beckles family, of Durham), was born in Barbados in 1816, received his education at Codrington College, Barbados, and after holding different cures in the West Indies, was consecrated Bishop of Sierra Leone in 1859. He resigned that see in 1870, being succeeded in it by Dr. Cheetham. In the same year he was appointed Rector of Wooton, Dover, and in 1873 Rector of St. Peter's, Bethnal Green, London. In February 1877 he was appointed Superintending Bishop of the English Episcopalian congregations in Scotland. Address: St. Peter's, Bethnal Green, E.

BEDDARD, Frank E., M.A., F.R.S., son of the late John Beddard, was born at Dudley in 1858, and educated at Harrow and New College, Oxford. After taking his degree he was for some time a Demonstrator under the late Professor Rolleston, and afterwards became Assistant Editor of the Challenger Reports. He is at present Prosecutor of the Zoological Society of London, Examiner in the University of London, and Lecturer on Biology at Guy's Hospital. He was elected F.R.S. in 1892. Mr. Beddard is author of the following works: "Report on the Isopods collected during the Voyage of H.M.S. Challenger"; "Animal Colouration"; "Contributions to the Anatomy of the Anthropoid Apes" (Transactions of the Zoological Society, 1893); a "Monograph on the Oligochaeta" (Clarendon Press, 1895); and numerous contributions to the Quarterly Journal of Microscopical Science, and to the publications of the Royal and Zoological Societies. He has also contributed popular articles on zoological subjects to Blackwood's and other magazines. Address: United University Club, Suffolk Street.

BEDDOE, John, M.D., LL.D., F.R.S., born at Bewdley, in Worcestershire, Sept. 21, 1826, was educated at Bridgnorth School, University College, London, and the University of Edinburgh. He graduated B.A. in London in 1851, and M.D. in Edinburgh in 1853. Dr. Beddoe served on the civil medical staff during the Crimean War. Since then he has practised as a physician at Clifton, and held sundry hospital appointments, but is now residing at the Chantry, Bradford-on-Avon. He was President of the Anthropological Society in 1869 and 1870, and he was a Member of the Council of the British Association for several years. He was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society, and a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, in 1873, and is an honorary member of sundry Continental and American scientific societies, and officer (1st Class) of the French Order of Public Instruction. Dr. Beddoe has written numerous papers, medical, statistical, and anthropological, and he has largely applied the numerical method to ethnology. In 1868 his Essay on the Origin of the English Nation took the first prize, £150, of the Welsh National Eisteddfod. It formed the basis of his principal work, "The Races of Britain," which was not published until 1885. His other most considerable works and papers are "Stature and Bulk of Man in the British Isles"; "Relations of Temperament and Complexion to Disease"; "On Hospital Diets"; "Comparison of Mortality in England and Australia"; and on the "Natural Colour of the Skin in certain Oriental Races." He is joint author of the "Anthropological Instructions for Travellers" of the British Association, and was elected President of the Anthropological Institute in 1889 and 1890. In 1891 he was given the LL.D. of the University of Edinburgh, and as Rhind Lecturer for the year delivered a course of lectures in Edinburgh on the Anthropological History of Europe. He married in 1858 Agnes Montgomerie Christison (niece of the eminent physician of that name, Sir Robert Christison, Bart.), who has since been well known in connection with various philanthropic movements, chiefly for the benefit of women. Addresses: The Chantry, Bradford-on-Avon; and Athenæum.

BEDFORD, Bishop of. See ISLINGTON, BISHOP OF.

BEDFORD, Vice-Admiral Sir Frederick George Denham, K.C.B., son of Vice-Admiral Edward J. Bedford, was born in December 1838, and entered the Navy in July 1852. He served as a midshipman in H.M.S. Sampson during 1854, in which vessel he was present at the bombardment of Odessa, the taking of the redoubt Kaleb, and also the bombardment of Sebastopol. For these services he received the Crimean and Turkish medals. In 1855 he took part in the Baltic Expedition as a midshipman in H.M.S. Vulture, and was present at the bombardment of Sveaborg, subsequently receiving the Baltic medal. He was promoted Lieutenant in 1859, Commander in 1871, and Captain in 1876, and commanded H.M.S. Shah in her memorable engagement with the Peruvian ironclad Huascar off Ylo in May 1877. As captain of H.M.S. Monarch he did excellent work in organising the flotilla on the Nile for the relief of General Gordon in 1884, and received the special thanks of the Admiralty for this service. He was promoted to C.B. in 1886, and in 1888 was appointed Aide-de-Camp to the Queen. Admiral Bedford served as a Lord Commissioner of the Admiralty from 1889 to 1892, and was also a member of a Committee appointed to take evidence and report upon the manning of the Navy. He was promoted to the rank of Rear-Admiral in May 1891, and hoisted his flag on H.M.S. St. George as Commander-in-Chief at the Cape and West Africa station in 1892. It was a most eventful commission. In 1894 he conducted the operations at Bathurst on the river Gambia for the punishment of Fodi Silah, a rebellious slave-raiding chief. Later on it was found necessary to land a punitive expedition against the chief Nanna of Brohemie in the Benin River, and in recognition of services performed in both these expeditions Admiral Bedford received a K.C.B. In February 1895 he landed a Naval Brigade for the punishment of King Koko of Nimby, the chief town of Brass, on the Niger River, and brought the operations to a successful issue. He received the Africa medal with three clasps. On resigning the command of the Cape station he was presented with an appreciative address from the inhabitants of Simon's Town. He returned to England in 1895, and has since been appointed Second Sea Lord of the Admiralty. He is the author of the following nautical works, which have passed through many editions: "The Sailor's Pocket-Book," "The Sailor's Hand-Book," and "The Sailor's Ready Reference Book." Vice-Admiral Sir Frederick Bedford is married to Ethel, a daughter of E. R. Turner, Esq., of Ipswich. Addresses: 56 Lexham Gardens, W.; and United Service Club.

BEDFORD, Duke of, Herbrand Arthur Russell, was born Feb. 19, 1858, in Eaton Palace, London, and succeeded his brother as 11th Duke in 1893. He was educated at Balliol College, Oxford, and he entered the army by joining the Grenadier Guards in 1879. He served in the Egyptian Campaign of 1882, receiving a medal with clasp, and the Khedive's star; and he acted as A.D.C. to the Marquis of Dufferin, when Viceroy of India, from 1884 to 1888. He is Chairman of the Bedfordshire County Council, a Major of the 3rd Battalion of the Bedfordshire Regiment, and Hon. Colonel of the Bedfordshire Volunteers. The Duke was married in 1888, when Lord Herbrand Russell, to Mary du Caurroy, daughter of the Ven. W. Tribe, late Archdeacon of Lahore, and has a son and heir, the Marquis of Tavistock, born in 1888. He is a Liberal Unionist in politics, and a Justice of the Peace; whilst he devotes a good deal of time to the study of Zoology and Natural History, and in 1897 he published, "The History of a Great Agricultural Estate." Addresses: 15 Belgrave Square, S.W.; Woburn Abbey, Bedfordshire; Endsleigh, Tavistock, Devonshire; Thorney, Peterborough; and Oakley House, Bedfordshire.

BEER, Frederick, was born on July 8, 1858, and is the son of the late Julius Beer. He was educated at Magdalene College, Cambridge. He has devoted a good deal of time to travelling, and he went to Khartoum before the siege of that town. He has been proprietor of the Observer London Sunday paper since 1880, inheriting it from his father, and he has edited it since 1894. He is married to Rachel, daughter of the late Sassoon D. Sassoon. Address: 7 Chesterfield Gardens, W.

BEER, Rachel, daughter of the late Sassoon D. Sassoon, was educated at home, and spent two years in hospital nursing. She has, since October 1893, managed and edited the Sunday Times, of which she is proprietress. She is a Member of the Institute of Journalists, and also of the Institute of Women Journalists. Mrs. Beer is probably the only woman editor of a general newspaper in England. She composed and published some piano and instrumental music. She is married to Mr. Frederick Arthur Beer, editor of the London Observer. Address: 7 Chesterfield Gardens, W.

BEERE, Mrs. Bernard, is a daughter of Mr. Wilby Whitehead, and widow of Capt. E. C. Dering, a son of Sir Edward Dering, Bart. She was prepared for the stage by Mr. Hermann Vezin, and made her début at the Opera Comique, but soon after, on the occasion of her marriage, abandoned the profession. On her return to the stage she appeared as Julia, in "The Rivals," at the St. James's Theatre, and during her engagement there played Lady Sneerwell, Grace Harkaway, and Emilia. She subsequently took part in "The School for Scandal," and "The Rivals." On April 12, 1882, Mrs. Bernard-Beere represented Bathsheba Everdene, in "Far from the Madding Crowd," at the Globe. After this she proceeded to the Haymarket, where, on May 5, 1883, she was "cast for" the title part of Mr. Herman Merivale's version of "Fédora." Her next characters were Mrs. Devenish, in "Lords and Commons," and Countess Zicka, in "Diplomacy." During 1888 she appeared in a succession of plays at the Opera Comique Theatre, of which "As in a Looking-Glass" was the most remarkable. Then followed a long absence from the stage, which was much regretted by her many admirers. In 1897 Mrs. Bernard Beere again came before the public in the part of Charlotte Corday, in the play of that name, at the Grand Theatre, Islington, Mr. Kyrie Bellew taking the part of Marat in the same piece. On Dec. 23, 1897, she made her formal reappearance on the stage, playing in "A Sheep in Wolf's Clothing," at the Comedy Theatre.

BEERNAERT, Auguste, Belgian statesman, was born at Ostend in 1824, and was called to the Bar in 1859, where he pleaded before the Court of Cassation, especially in commercial cases. He went in for politics, and attached himself to the moderate Liberal party, under whose auspices he wrote for L'Étoile Belge. In 1874 he openly became a member of the Clerical party, and accepted the position of Minister of Public Works from M. Malon. This sudden recantation made a scandal, and the late Premier, M. Frère Orban, made it the subject of a vote of censure on the new Ministry. In 1878 he went into opposition with the rest of his colleagues, and was the toughest opponent the Liberal Ministry had. The parliamentary struggles became so acute that even the Pope had to intervene as mediator. In 1884, on the return of the Conservatives to power, M. Beernaert became Minister of Agriculture, and the chief adviser of the Premier. The local authorities were given the power of suppressing lay schools, and the taxes that the Clerical party had violently opposed when in opposition were retained. This gave rise to much irritation, and the Premier resigned. Thereupon M. Beernaert became Minister of Finance and President of the Council, a position he held until 1894. During his long premiership his chief difficulty was to fight the Socialists, and to quell the strikes of 1886 among the miners. He dealt with the latter by starting great public works, by reforming the prison laws, and developing the system of national defence. He took an active part in acquiring the Congo Free State, of which King Leopold is the President, and in the Congress at Brussels for the suppression of the Slave Trade. He resigned in 1894 on the question of the Revision of the Constitution and Universal Suffrage. In the new chamber at the end of 1894 he was elected President, and he is still the chief of its orators. In 1895 he presided over the 14th Congress of the Society of Social Economists at Paris.

BEESLY, Professor Edward Spencer, was born at Feckenham, Worcestershire, in 1831, and educated at Wadham College, Oxford. He was appointed Assistant-Master of Marlborough College in 1854, and Professor of History in University College, London, in 1860. At the General Election of 1885 he was the unsuccessful Liberal candidate for Westminster, and in 1886 he stood, also without success, for East Marylebone. Professor Beesly is the author of several review articles, pamphlets, &c., on historical, political, and social questions, treated from the Positivist point of view. He is one of the translators of Comte's "System of Positive Polity." A series of lectures by Professor Beesly on Roman history, entitled "Catiline, Clodius, and Tiberius," was published in 1878. He is also the author of "Queen Elizabeth" in the "Twelve English Statesmen" series, published by Messrs. Macmillan (1892). Address: 53 Warrington Crescent.

BEET, Rev. Joseph Agar, D.D., Professor of Systematic Theology at the Wesleyan College, Richmond, is the son of W. J. Beet, a manufacturer, and Sarah Baugh, his wife, and was born at Sheffield, Sept. 27, 1840, and was educated at Wesley College, Sheffield, and at the Wesleyan College, Richmond. After being for twenty-one years engaged in pastoral work, he was elected to the chair which he now occupies. In 1877 Dr. Beet published a commentary on the Epistle to the Romans, which, after passing through eight editions, is now being rewritten. This volume was followed by others on the Epistles to Corinthians, Galatians, Ephesians, Philippians, and Colossians. In recognition of the value of these works, he received in 1891 from the University of Glasgow the decree of D.D. In 1889 he delivered the Fernley Lecture on "The Credentials of the Gospel"; and in 1896 gave courses of lectures at the University of Chicago, and at the Chautauqua and Ocean Grove (U.S.A.) Summer Schools. He has also published three volumes of theological lectures, of which the latest, on "The Last Things," appeared in 1897, and other smaller works; and is a frequent contributor to The Expositor. Two of his volumes have been translated into Japanese, and are used as theological text-books in Japan. All the above works, even the commentaries, are contributions to systematic theology and to apologetics; for the aim of Dr. Beet's expositions has been to learn from the writings of St. Paul the writer's conception of Christ and the Gospel, in order thus, and by comparison with the conceptions of other New Testament writers, to learn the historic reality of Christ and the eternal reality of God. He has endeavoured to treat theology on a thoroughly scientific and philosophical method, all conclusions resting on observed matters of fact, and all facts being used as avenues of approach to broad principles. On behalf of the Anglo-Armenian Association Dr. Beet had the honour of presenting to Mrs. Gladstone on her eighty-fifth birthday (Jan. 6, 1897) a portrait of the Catholicos of Etchmiadzin, the head of the Armenian Church, on the occasion of the unveiling of a window in Hawarden Church in memory of the Armenian martyrs. Address: Wesleyan College, Richmond, Surrey.

BEETON, Henry Coppinger, was born in London, May 15, 1827. He was appointed Agent-General for British Columbia by Order in Council, 1883; a Commissioner of the International Fisheries Exhibition, 1883, and of the Health Exhibition, 1884; a Royal Commissioner of the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, 1886; on the Colonies Committee of the Chicago Exhibition, 1883. Addresses: 2 Adamson Road, South Hampstead; Armadale, Weston-super-Mare.

BEEVOR, Sir Hugh Reeve, M.D., F.R.C.P., son of the late Sir Thomas Bevor, 4th Baronet, sometime secretary to Richard Cobden, President of the Norwich Union Fire Office, was born on Oct. 31, 1858, at Hingham, Norfolk. He was educated at Felstead School and King's College, London. He is an Assistant Physician to King's College Hospital and to the City of London Hospital for Diseases of the Chest. He is also Medical Officer to the Norwich Union Life Insurance Office, and has been, since January 1896, Dean of the Medical Faculty of King's College. He is married to Emily, daughter of Sir William Foster, Bart., and has a son and heir, Thomas, born 1897.

BEIT, Alfred, was born at Hamburg in 1853, and went out to South Africa when quite young. He was engaged in the diamond trade at Kimberley from 1875 to 1888, and he is a partner in the firm of Wernher, Beit & Co. On the occasion of the sitting of the Jameson Commission, Mr. Beit was summoned as a witness. He is at present unmarried. Addresses: Park Lane, W.; Cape Town, and Kimberley.

BELGIANS, King of. See LEOPOLD II.

BELJAME, Alexandre, was born on Nov. 26, 1842, at Villiers-le-Bel, Seine-et-Oise, France. His mother was a daughter of Bosc, Member of the Institute and friend of Madame Roland, whose "Mémoires" he preserved and published. After spending some years in England at Aylesbury and Weston-super-Mare, M. Beljame studied at the Lycée Charlemagne, Paris, of which he was a distinguished scholar. He was one of the first to compete for the degrees in English established by M. Duruy, was received first at the "Agrégation d'anglais" in 1868, and taught for several years at the Lycée Louis-le-Grand, Paris. In 1881 he was made Docteur ès Lettres (the vote in his favour being unanimous) by the University of Paris, where he was soon after offered a lectureship of English Literature, since transformed into an assistant-professorship. At the Sorbonne Professor Beljame has grouped round him more than two hundred students of English literature, some of whom have already made their mark in the French universities and lycées. They attend his lectures zealously, and are greatly attached to him. When he was made a Knight of the Legion of Honour, his present and former pupils presented him with a diamond cross. He is also Maître de Conférences at the École Normale Supérieure. Professor Beljame is a frequent visitor to London, and his face is well known in the reading-room of the British Museum. His principal works are: "Le Public et les Hommes de Lettres en Angleterre au 18^e Siècle" (Dryden, Addison, Pope), Paris, Hachette, 1881; 2nd edit., with index, 1897 (crowned by the French Academy); "Quæ e Gallicia verbis in Anglicam linguam Johannes Dryden introduxit," Paris, Hachette, 1881; a French edition of Tennyson's "Enoch Arden," Paris, Hachette, 1892; 4th edit., 1898; "Tennyson, Enoch Arden, traduction en prose française," Paris, Hachette, 1892; 3rd edit., 1897; "Shelley, Alastor, traduction en prose avec le texte anglais en regard et des notes," Paris, Hachette, 1891; "Shakespeare, Macbeth, texte critique avec la traduction en regard," Paris, Hachette, 1897 (crowned by the French Academy); "Les Premières œuvres dramatiques de Shakespeare," a report of lectures given at the University of Paris, published by the Revue des Cours et Conférences. In the same periodical have also appeared some of his lectures on Pope, the English Novel, &c. Address: Paris, 29 Rue de Condé.

BELL, Alexander Graham, Ph.D., was born at Edinburgh, March 3, 1847. He was educated at the Edinburgh High School and Edinburgh University, and also studied for a time at the London University. He went to Canada in 1870, and thence, in 1872, to the United States. He had acquired prominence as a teacher of deaf-mutes before his inventions of the speaking telephone and photophone (first exhibited in 1876 and 1880 respectively) brought him wealth and fame. He is a member of various learned societies, and has published a number of papers on electrical subjects and the teaching of speech to deaf-mutes.

BELL, Charles Dent, D.D., Hon. Canon of Carlisle, son of Henry Humphrey Bell, Esq., landed proprietor, was born Feb. 10, 1819, at Ballymaguigan, county Derry, Ireland. He was educated at the Academy, Edinburgh, at the Royal School, Dungannon, county Tyrone, and entered Trinity College, Dublin, as Queen's Scholar in 1839; received the degree of B.A. and Divinity Testimonial, 1842; and was Vice-Chancellor's Prizeman for English verse, 1840, 1841, 1842; M.A., 1852; B.D. and D.D., 1878; Deacon, 1843; Priest, 1844. The following have been his appointments: Curate of Hampton-in-Arden, 1843-45; Curate of St. Mary's Chapel, Reading, 1845-46; Curate of St. Mary's-in-the-Castle, Hastings, 1846-54; Incumbent of St. John's Chapel, Hampstead, 1854-61; Vicar of Ambleside and Rural Dean, 1861; Hon. Canon of Carlisle, 1869; Vicar of Rydal with Ambleside, 1872; Rector of Cheltenham, 1879; Surrogate of Cheltenham, 1884. He is the author of "Night Scenes of the Bible and their Teachings," 1860; "The Saintly Calling," 1874; "Hills that bring Peace," 1876; "Voices from the Lakes," 1876 (now out of print); "Angelic Beings and their Ministry," 1877; "Roll Call of Faith," 1878; "Songs in the Twilight," 1878 (now out of print); "Hymns for Church and Chamber," 1879; "Our Daily Life, its Dangers and its Duties" and "Life of Henry Martyn," 1880; "Choice of Wisdom" and "Living Truths for Head and Heart," 1881; "Songs in Many Keys," 1884; "The Valley of Weeping and Place of Springs" and "Gleanings from a Tour in Palestine and the East," 1886; "A Winter on the Nile," 1888; "Reminiscences of a Boyhood in the Early Part of the Century, a New Story by a Old Hand," 1889; in 1893 he published "Poems, Old and New," and in 1894 "Diana's Looking-Glass and other Poems," and more lately two volumes of sermons, "The Name above every Name," and "The Gospel the Power of God." Dr. Bell was one of the promoters of the Dean Close Memorial School, Cheltenham, Chairman of Committee, and a Trustee; ex-officio Chairman of the Committee of the Cheltenham Training College for Male and Female Students. During his Incumbency he restored the fine old parish church of Cheltenham, and built in the parish the noble new church (St. Matthew's). Address: Loughrigg Brow, Ambleside.

BELL, Charles Frederic Moberly, the son of the late Thomas Bell, of Egypt, was born April 2, 1847, and was educated privately. He acted as correspondent of the Times in Egypt from 1865 to 1890, and in the latter year was appointed Assistant-Manager of that journal. He is the author of "Khedives and Pashas," 1884; "Egyptian Finance," 1887; "From Pharaoh to Fellah," 1889. Mr. Bell was married in 1875 to a daughter of the Rev. James Chetaway. Addresses: 98 Portland Place, W.; and Burgh Heath, Epsom.

BELL, Francis Jeffrey, was born in Calcutta on Jan. 26, 1855. After taking his degree at Oxford (Magdalen College) in 1878, he entered the service of the Trustees of the British Museum, and has since been constantly employed on work in the Zoological Department, where he devotes himself chiefly to the lower marine invertebrates. In 1879 he was appointed Professor of Comparative Anatomy and Zoology at King's College, London, which post he resigned in 1896, being then made Emeritus Professor and later on a Fellow of the College. From 1879 to 1886 he was a contributor to, and for the last two of those years editor of, the Zoological Record. From 1879 to 1897 he devoted a large amount of time to preparing abstracts of current researches of zoology for the Journal of the Royal Microscopical Society. For some years he was editor of this journal, and from 1883 to 1898 he was one of the Secretaries of that Society. In 1896 he was appointed Secretary to the International Congress of Zoology, which met at Cambridge in August 1898. While at Oxford he prepared a translation of Professor Genbaur's famous treatise on the "Elements of Comparative Anatomy." In 1885 he published with Messrs. Cassell a text-book of "Comparative Anatomy and Physiology." He prepared for the Trustees of the British Museum a descriptive catalogue of British Echinoderms. He took a large part in the revision of the chapters dealing with animals in the last edition of

Dr. Carpenter's work on the microscope edited by Dr. Dallinger, and he has edited a new edition, 1895, of Gosse's "Evenings at the Microscope." He has published various memoirs in the Proceedings and Transactions of various learned societies, many of which have dealt with Echinoderms. Of these the most extensive is the report on the Echinoderms collected by H.M.S. Alert. He has also contributed critical reviews and articles on popular natural history to various periodicals. He is an Hon. Member of the Manchester Microscopical Society, and a Corresponding Member of the Linnean Society of New South Wales. Mr. Bell acted as Examiner in Morphology in the Honours School at Oxford in 1892 and 1893, and examined for the Natural Science Tripos at Cambridge in 1897 and 1898. Permanent address: British Museum of Natural History, Cromwell Road, S.W.

BELL, The Rev. George Charles, M.A., fifth in the succession as Master of Marlborough College, is the eldest son of George Bell, Esq., merchant of London, and was born July 9, 1832, at Streatham. He was educated, 1842-51, at Christ's Hospital (the Bluecoat School), in London. As a Grecian, he gained a scholarship at Lincoln College, Oxford, 1851, and went up to the University, having, in addition, a school exhibition. In his second year he migrated to Worcester College, where he had won a Clarke scholarship, 1852. In the last term of 1854 he took a first-class in the Final Classical School, and in the following spring a first in the Final Mathematical School. In 1857 Mr. Bell gained the Senior University Mathematical Scholarship, and was elected Fellow and Mathematical Lecturer of his College. He received Deacon's orders in 1859, and six years later was appointed Second Master of Dulwich College. In 1868 Mr. Bell was elected as Head Master of his own old school, Christ's Hospital. In the following year he was ordained Priest. Mr. Bell remained at Christ's Hospital for eight years, and in 1876, on the resignation of Archdeacon Farrar, he accepted the Mastership of Marlborough. While in London Mr. Bell took an active part in supporting Mrs. William Grey's scheme for the education of girls: in recognition of this he was appointed a Vice-President of the Girl's Public Day School Company. He has been an active member of the Head Master's Conference since its foundation, and was Chairman of its Committee for three periods of three years each. He has also, for many years, been a Member of the Council of the College of Preceptors. Since 1890, as an Almoner of Christ's Hospital, he has taken a prominent part in the work of carrying the scheme of the Charity Commissioners into effect, by removing the London Boarding School to a new site at Horsham. The following is a list of the various stages in Mr. Bell's career: Scholar of Lincoln College, Oxford, 1851; Scholar of Worcester College, Oxford, 1852; first-class Mathematical Moderations, 1852; first-class Classics (Final Schools), 1854; first-class Mathematics (Do.), 1855; B.A., 1855; Senior Mathematical Scholar, 1857; Fellow of Worcester, 1857, and M.A.; Mathematical Lecturer of Worcester College, 1857-65; Mathematical Moderator, 1859-60; ordained Deacon, 1859, Priest, 1869, by Samuel Wilberforce, Bishop of Oxford; Mathematical Examiner, 1863; Select Preacher, 1867 and 1885; Second Master of Dulwich College, 1865-68; Head Master of Christ's Hospital, 1868-76; Master of Marlborough College, 1876; Prebendary of Sarum, 1886; has published "The Increase of Faith," a sermon preached in Salisbury Cathedral, 1887; "Confidence in Christ," preached in Westminster Abbey, 1888; and "Religious Teaching in Secondary Schools," Macmillan, 1897. He married in 1870 Elizabeth, second daughter of Edward Milner, Esq., of Dulwich Wood. Club: Athenæum.

BELL, Henry Thomas Mackenzie, poet and critic, is better known simply as Mackenzie Bell. He is the son of the late Thomas Bell, and nephew of the late Thomas Mackenzie (see "Men of the Time," 7th edit.), sometime Solicitor-General for Scotland, subsequently a Scottish judge under the title of Lord Mackenzie, and author of "Studies in Roman Law" (5th edit. 1898). He was born in Liverpool on March 2, 1856. During early childhood he had the misfortune to have a slight stroke of paralysis—the result of a fall owing to a nurse's carelessness. But for many years his health has been good, and he has done much literary work, and travelled considerably. In 1884 he settled in London, and in the same year published his monograph on the poet and novelist, Charles Whitehead, and thereby attracted well-deserved attention to that early friend of Dickens, who was originally asked to write the letterpress to the drawings by Seymour—letterpress which was ultimately undertaken by Dickens, and became "The Pickwick Papers." A new edition of Mr. Mackenzie Bell's monograph, prefixed to which was an appreciation of Whitehead by Mr. Hall Caine, was issued in 1894, and had a cordial reception from the press. Mr. Mackenzie Bell has written numerous important critical articles in "The Poets and the Poetry of the Century," and has been a contributor of signed articles, poems, or letters, to The Fortnightly Review, The Pall Mall Magazine, The Atlantic Monthly, The Athenæum, The Speaker, The Literary World, Temple Bar, The Lady's Realm, Black and White, The Academy, "The Savage Club Papers" (third series), "The Dictionary of National Biography," and other publications of repute. His "Spring's Immortality and other Poems" appeared in the autumn of 1893, a third edition being published in April 1896. His "Christina Rossetti: a Biographical and Critical Study," copyrighted in Great Britain and in the United States of America, January 1898, attracted much attention, and reached a third edition in February of the same year. His latest publication is a second volume of original verse, entitled "Pictures of Travel and other Poems." Address: 33 Carlton Road, Putney, S.W.

BELL, Sir Isaac Lowthian, Bart., F.R.S., D.C.L., was born in 1816. After completing his studies of physical science at Edinburgh University and the Sorbonne at Paris, he entered the chemical and iron works at Walker. In 1860 he became connected with the chemical works at Washington, in the county of Durham, then in the hands of his father-in-law, the late H. L. Pattinson, F.R.S. Under his direction they were greatly enlarged, and an extensive establishment was constructed for the manufacture of oxychloride of lead, a pigment discovered by Mr. Pattinson. In 1873 he ceased to be a partner in these works, which are now carried on by a grandson of Mr. Pattinson's. Mr. Bell, in connection with his brothers, Messrs. Thomas and John Bell, founded, in 1852, the Clarence Works on the Tees, one of the earliest, and now one of the largest, iron-smelting concerns on that river, which these gentlemen carry on in connection with extensive collieries and ironstone mines. Recently, arrangements have been made for obtaining salt from a bed of the mineral, found at a depth of 1200 feet at Port Clarence. Mr. Bell has been a frequent contributor to various learned societies on subjects connected with the metallurgy of iron, and has recently completed a very elaborate experimental research on the chemical phenomena of the blast-furnace. He has filled the posts of President to the Iron and Steel Institute, to the Institution of Mechanical Engineers, to the Mining and Mechanical Engineers of the North of England, and that of President of the Society of Chemical Industry. In recognition of his services as Juror of the International Exhibitions at Philadelphia in 1876, and at Paris in 1878 and 1889, he was elected a Member of the American Philosophical Institution and an Officer of the Legion of Honour. He has filled the office of Sheriff, and was twice elected Mayor of Newcastle-on-Tyne, the last time in order to receive the members of the British Association at their meeting in the year 1863. He received the Howard Bequest from the Institute of Civil Engineers in 1892, and the Prince Consort's Gold Medal from the Society of Arts in 1894. He was elected M.P. for Hartlepool in July 1875, but ceased to represent that borough in 1880. Sir Lowthian Bell is the author of several important writings on the iron and steel industries. Permanent Address: Rowton Grange, Northallerton.

BELL, James, C.B., D.Sc., Ph.D., F.R.S., born in 1825, is a native of the county Armagh; was educated principally by private tuition and at University College, London, where he distinguished himself in chemistry and mathematics. He became Deputy-Principal of the Somerset House Laboratory, Inland Revenue Department, in 1867, and was Principal from 1875 to 1894. In connection with his official position he was Chemical Examiner of lime and lemon juice for the supply of the British merchant navy, 1868-94, and from 1869 until 1894 he acted as Consulting Chemist to the Indian Government, and nearly all of the principal public departments. On the passing of the Sale of Food and Drugs Act in 1875 he was appointed to the difficult and responsible position of Chemical Referee under that Act for the United Kingdom. He was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1884, and the degree of Doctor of Science was conferred upon him in 1886 by the Senate of the Royal University, Dublin. He obtained the degree of Doctor of Philosophy under the ordinary statutes of the University of Erlangen; and was President of the Institute of Chemistry of Great Britain and Ireland in 1888 to 1891, and created a Companion of the Bath in 1889. As regards his scientific work, Dr. Bell is, perhaps, best known from his valuable series of chemical researches into the composition of articles of food, and the variations that occur in their constituents. The results of these original researches, with improved methods of analysis, were elaborated and embodied by him in a work entitled "The Chemistry of Foods," and published in three parts, 1881-83. This work has since been translated into German, and published in Berlin. Among his other scientific work may be mentioned his study of the grape and malt ferments, published in the Journal of the Chemical Society, 1870, and also his laborious and interesting research on tobacco, the results of which were published in 1887, in the form of a pamphlet, entitled "The Chemistry of Tobacco." The report of the result of his investigation into the constitution of butter and the variations in its composition, was regarded as of so much importance that it was presented to the House of Commons, and published as a Parliamentary paper in June 1876. In addition to his scientific labours, Dr. Bell has compiled two departmental books, partly educational and partly legal and technical. Dr. Bell's services have often been called into requisition on different Government Committees; of these we may instance the Committee on the Adulteration of Fertilisers and Feeding Stuffs; a Treasury Committee on the Exportation of Essences and Perfumes; a Board of Trade Committee on the Use of Disinfectants in the Mercantile Marine; and the Brewers' Materials Committee. Dr. Bell, from his extensive practical and scientific knowledge, occupied a unique position on these Committees, and was able to render valuable assistance in dealing with the various questions submitted to each Committee for inquiry and solution. On more than one occasion Dr. Bell's services have proved useful to a Chancellor of the Exchequer. It is well known, for instance, that on the adjustment of the tobacco duties in 1887, to meet the difficulties of the situation, he suggested that a limit to the quantity of water permissible in manufactured tobacco should be fixed by law, and he devised a scheme for carrying out the same, with the result that the application of the enactment has been most successful alike to the revenue, the trade, and the consumer, who obtains his tobacco without being loaded with water, as in former days. To several successive Committees of the House of Commons Dr. Bell has rendered, as an expert witness, important assistance by his suggestions and his views on practical questions; and for the Playfair Committee on British and Foreign Spirits, he solved to their satisfaction the difficult and intricate problem of the changes that take place in the maturing of whisky. Permanent residence: Howell Hill Lodge, Ewell, Surrey.

BELLAMY, The Rev. James, M.A., D.D., President of St. John's College, Oxford, was born in London on Jan. 31, 1819, and is the eldest son of the late James William Bellamy, Headmaster of Merchant Taylors' School from the year 1819 to 1845. He was educated at Merchant Taylors', and entered St. John's at the age of seventeen. In 1841, during his college days, he was librarian of the Union Society. He obtained a second class in Lit. Hum., and a first class in Mathematics in 1841 (B.A. 1841; M.A. 1845; B.D. 1850; D.D. 1872). He was Fellow of his College till 1871, when he became President and Tutor from 1850 to 1860; Mathematical Moderator, 1853-54; Member of the Hebdomadal Council, 1874-78; and Vice-Chancellor, 1886-90. Address: St. John's College, Oxford, &c.

BELLOC, Elizabeth Ragner, Madame, née Bessie Ragner Parkes, was born at Birmingham on the 10th of June 1829. She was the only daughter of the late Joseph Parkes, Taxing Master in Chancery, and through her mother, née Eliza Priestley, Madame Belloc is a great-granddaughter of Dr. Joseph Priestley. In 1858 Miss Bessie Parkes became actively connected with the Economic Section of the Association for the Promotion of Social Science. She founded and edited for some years the English Women's Journal, which had for its main object the amelioration of the industrial position of women. In this enterprise she was principally assisted by Madame Budichon (née Barbara Leigh Smith), the daughter of the late Member for Norwich. Madame Belloc entered the Roman Catholic Church in 1864, and married three years later Louis Mairé Belloc, a member of the French Bar, and only son of the well-known French painter, Jean Hilaire Belloc. Madame Belloc was widowed in 1872. Her published works include "Gabriel, a Poem," 1856; "Essays on Woman's Work," two editions, 1864-1866; "Vignettes," 1865; "In a Walled Garden," three editions, 1895; "A Passing World," 1897. Madame Belloc has also contributed largely to periodical literature. Address: 11 Great College Street, Westminster, S.W.

BELLOC, Marie Adelaide. See LOWNDES, MRS.

BELMORE, Earl, The Right Hon. Sir Somerset Richard Lowry-Corry, G.C.M.G., son of the 3rd Earl, whom he succeeded in 1845, was born in London on April 9, 1835, and educated at Eton and Trinity College, Cambridge. He was elected as senior representative peer for Ireland in 1857; was Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department in Lord Derby's third administration, from July 1866 to July 1867; and Governor of New South Wales from January 1868 to February 1872. He is a Privy-Councillor in Ireland, 1867, was created K.C.M.G. in 1872 and G.C.M.G. in 1890. He was President of the Commission on Trinity College, Dublin, in 1877, and is now President of the Manual and Practical Instruction (Ireland) Commission. He has been one of the Lords Justices-General and Genera' Governors of Ireland, and a Member of the Judicial Committee of the I-

Privy Council. He published, in 1887, "Parliamentary Memoirs of Fermanagh and Tyrone," besides other works on Irish county history. He is married to Anne Elizabeth Honoria, daughter of the late Captain Gladstone, R.N., M.P. Addresses: Castle Coole, Enniskillen; and Athenaeum.

BELPER, Lord, The Right Hon. Henry Strutt, 2nd Baron, was born on May 20, 1840, and succeeded to the title in 1890. He was educated at Harrow and at Trinity College, Cambridge. He sat as M.P. (Liberal) for Derbyshire, East, from 1868 to 1874, and in the General Election of the latter year he unsuccessfully contested the same constituency, but in 1880 he was returned for Berwick-on-Tweed. For many years Lord Belper was Colonel of the South Notts Yeomanry Cavalry. He is a J.P. for the counties of Derby and Leicester, and also Chairman of the Notts Quarter-Sessions and the Nottinghamshire County Council. His lordship is an Aide-de-Camp to the Queen, and in 1895 was appointed Captain of Her Majesty's Body Guard of the Hon. Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms, and also a Privy Councillor. He is an LL.M. of Cambridge. In 1874 he married Lady Margaret Coke, daughter of the 2nd Earl of Leicester, and has issue—the Hon. William Strutt, heir, born in 1875, has five daughters. The family seat is Kingston Hall, Kegworth, Derbyshire.

BENEDEN, Professor Pierre Joseph van, M.D., LL.D., was born at Malines, Dec. 19, 1809, and became Professor at the Faculty of Sciences at Louvain in 1836. He has devoted a long life to researches in many branches of anatomy, zoology, physiology, ichthyology (fossil and recent), and ethnology. Besides his larger work, Professor Van Beneden has published nearly 300 memoirs in the Transactions of various scientific societies. Professor Van Beneden is M.D. and D.Sc., LL.D., Edinburgh, Member of the Academy of Science of Belgium, Foreign Member of the Royal Society of London, Corresponding Member of the Institute of France (Académie des Sciences, 1892), of the Academies of Berlin, Boston, Lisbon, Montpellier, Munich, and of numerous scientific societies, and Knight Commander or Grand Officer of Orders of Belgium, Brazil, Italy, and other countries. He is the father of Dr. Edouard van Beneden (born 5th March 1846), Professor of Zoology at the University of Liège, whose work has been principally devoted to researches on the embryogeny of animals, for which he was awarded the Serres Prize of the Academy of Sciences of Paris in 1882.

BENEDETTI, Comte Vincent de, a French diplomatist, of Italian extraction, born at Bastia, in Corsica, in 1817, was educated for the Consular and Diplomatic service. After having been appointed Consul at Palermo in 1848, he became first Secretary to the Embassy at Constantinople until May 1859, when he was appointed to succeed M. Bourée as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister at Teheran. M. Benedetti, who declined to accept the office, was some months afterwards named Director of Political Affairs to the Foreign Minister—a position associated with the successful career of MM. de Rayneval and d'Hauterive, and with the names of Desages, Armand, Lefebvre, and Thouvenel. It fell to the lot of M. Benedetti to act as secretary and editor of the Protocols in the Congress of Paris in 1856, and he was made Chevalier of the Legion of Honour in June 1845, Officer in 1853, Commander in 1856, Grand Officer in June 1860, and Grand Cross in 1866. Having been appointed Minister Plenipotentiary of France at Turin in 1861, on the recognition of the Italian Kingdom by the French Government, he resigned when M. Thouvenel retired from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and was appointed Ambassador at Berlin, Nov. 27, 1864. M. Benedetti obtained great notoriety in connection with the remarkable draft of a secret treaty between France and Prussia, which was published in the Times on the 25th of July, 1870, at the very beginning of the war between those two Powers. The document stated that the Emperor Napoleon III. would allow and recognise the Prussian acquisitions consequent upon the war against Austria; that the King of Prussia would promise to assist France in acquiring Luxemburg; that the Emperor would not oppose a Federal reunion of North and South Germany; that if the Emperor should occupy or conquer Belgium, the King should afford armed assistance to France against any other Power that might declare war against her in such case; and that the two Powers should conclude an offensive and defensive alliance. The publication of this extraordinary document caused great consternation and excitement throughout Europe. Its authenticity was not denied, but France declared that although M. Benedetti had written the document, he had done so at the dictation of Count Bismarck; whereas the latter statesman declared that through one channel or another France had incessantly demanded some compensation for not interfering with Prussia in her projects. Both statesmen agreed in saying that their respective Sovereigns declined to sanction the treaty. On the outbreak of the war, M. Benedetti was of course recalled from Berlin; and since the fall of the Empire he has disappeared from public notice, having retired to Ajaccio. In October 1871, however, he published a pamphlet, in which he threw upon Count Bismarck the whole responsibility of the draft treaty, but the German Chancellor utterly crushed his opponent by a weighty reply. In 1872 he was elected a Member of the Conseil Général of Corsica, and since then he has been an advocate at the Bar of Ajaccio. An English translation of his "Studies in Diplomacy" appeared in 1895.

BENHAM, The Rev. Canon William, B.D., Rector of St. Edmund, Lombard Street, was born at West Meon, Hants, Jan. 15, 1831, his father being the village postmaster, as his grandfather had been before him. He was educated at the village National School, and was favourably noticed by the rector, Archdeacon Bayley, who, being blind, took him to his house as his little secretary. He taught the youth Latin and Greek, and after his death in 1844, Mr. Benham was sent to St. Mark's College, Chelsea, to be trained for a schoolmaster. After working in that capacity for a few years, Archdeacon Bayley's family furnished him with the means of going through the Theological Department of King's College, London. He went out with a first-class, and was ordained by Archbishop Tait, then Bishop of London, as Divinity Teacher to his old college at Chelsea. He remained there from 1857 to 1864, when he became Editorial Secretary to the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, and Curate of St. Lawrence Jewry, under the present Dean of Exeter. In 1867 he was favourably noticed as a preacher by some members of Archbishop Longley's family, unknown to himself, and this led to the Archbishop offering him the vicarage of his own parish of Addington. He acted as the Primate's private secretary during the first Lambeth Conference, and passed the Resolutions through the press, and also his last Charge. Archbishop Tait made him one of the Six Preachers of Canterbury in 1872, and gave him the vicarage of Margate in the same year. His chief work there was the carrying out the restoration of the parish church. In 1880 he was appointed to the vicarage of Marden, and in 1882 to the rectory of St. Edmund the King, Lombard Street, in the City of London. In 1889 Archbishop Benson conferred on him an honorary Canonry in Canterbury Cathedral. Bishop Creighton appointed him Boyle Lecturer in 1897. Canon Benham has published "The Gospel of St. Matthew, with Notes and Commentary," 1862; "English Ballads, with Introduction and Notes," 1863; "The Epistles for the Christian Year, with Notes and a Commentary," 1864; "The Church of the Patriarchs," 1867; "The 'Globe' edition of Cowper's works," 1870; Commentary on the Acts in the "Commentary of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge," 1871; "A Companion to the Lectionary," 1872; a new translation of Thomas à Kempis's "Imitatio Christi," 1874; "Memoirs of Catherine and Craufurd Tait," 1879; "Readings on the Life of Our Lord and His Apostles," 1880; "How to Teach the Old Testament," 1881; "Short History of the American Church," 1884; an edition of "Cowper's Letters," 1885; "Diocesan History of Winchester," 1885; "Sermons for the Church's Year," 2 vols., 1885; and a "Dictionary of Religion"; "Life of Archbishop Tait," jointly with the Bishop of Winchester, 1894. He was editor of Griffith and Farran's "Library of Ancient and Modern Theology." He has also contributed articles to "The Bible Educator," Macmillan's Magazine, and other periodicals. He married (1) Louisa Marian Engelbach, and (2) Caroline E. Sandell. Address: 32 Finsbury Square, E.C.

BENN, John Williams, London County Council, son of the Rev. Julius Benn, Congregational Minister, was born Nov. 13, 1850, at Hyde, Cheshire. He came to London in 1851, and was educated privately. He was engaged in art and trade journalism until 1889, when he entered public life as member of the first London County Council, representing East Finsbury; he was re-elected in 1892, with the Earl of Rosebery, K.G., as colleague, and again in 1895. He acted as "Whip" of the Progressive Party on the London County Council from 1890 to 1894, and has taken an active part, as a Liberal, in London politics. In 1898 he became London County Councillor for the Kennington Division of Lambeth. In 1892 he contested the St. George's East Division of the Tower Hamlets for the parliamentary seat, and defeated the Right Hon. C. T. Ritchie; he was defeated by four votes at the election of 1895. He has held various chairmanships of the London County Council, being Vice-Chairman of that body from 1895 to 1896. He was appointed J.P. for the county of Essex in 1894. He has contributed numerous articles to newspapers and magazines, mostly on social topics concerning the Metropolis. He has taken a special interest in the Tramway, Telephone, Water, and Housing Questions, and his action secured inquiries in the House of Commons as to the Unification of London and the telephone service. He is now Chairman of the Highways Committee of the London County Council.

He contested the borough of Deptford, in the parliamentary interest, in November 1897, and reduced the majority by 900 votes. He is on the Executive of the London Reform Union and the London Liberal and Radical Union, and is much in demand as a political speaker. He has taken a prominent part in the Temperance movement, and is frequently on the platform of the United Kingdom Alliance and the National Temperance League. He occasionally lectures on art subjects, being a ready draughtsman, and well versed in all the processes of illustration. Some of his work appeared in the articles on "Artistic M.P.'s" which recently appeared in the Strand Magazine. He was founder of the firm of Benn Brothers, Limited, of 11 Finsbury Square, and is President of the recently formed Commercial Press Association, which represents the combined trade journalism of the country. Address: Westminster Palace Hotel, London, S.W.

BENNETT, Enoch Arnold, was born in Staffordshire on May 27, 1867, and was educated at Newcastle Middle School. After following the legal profession for some time, he became assistant-editor of Woman in 1893, eventually succeeding to the editorship in 1896. Address: 9 Fulham Park Gardens, S.W.

BENNETT, Henry Curtis, J.P., was born at Weedon, on May 11, 1846, and is the son of the Rev. George Peter Bennett, for thirty-two years Vicar of Kelvedon, Essex. He was educated at Kelvedon, and was called to the Bar in 1870. He was appointed a Metropolitan Police Magistrate in 1886, and continues to hold this position. Mr. Bennett is married to Emily Jane, daughter of F. Hughes-Hallett, of Brooke Place, Ashford, Kent. Addresses: 118 Lexham Gardens, Kensington, W.; and Boreham Lodge, Chelmsford, Essex.

BENNETT, William Henry, F.R.C.S., is Surgeon to St. George's Hospital, and Lecturer on Clinical Surgery in the Medical School of that Institution. He is a Member of the Court of Examiners of the Royal College of Surgeons of England, and he occupies the position of H.M. Inspector of Anatomy. He is the author of "Lectures on Varicose Veins of the Lower Extremities," "Lectures on Varicocele," "Lectures on Abdominal Hernia," and of numerous articles in the various medical journals, and transactions of medical and surgical societies. Address: 1 Chesterfield Street, Mayfair.

BENNIGSEN, Rudolph von, born at Lüneberg, Hanover, July 10, 1824, studied jurisprudence at Göttingen and Heidelberg, and qualified as an advocate, but entered the judiciary and rose to the functions of a judge at Göttingen. In 1855 the city of Aurich elected him to the Second Chamber of the Hanover Legislature, but the King refused him the indispensable consent of the Crown to accept that legislative office. Thereupon he resigned his judgeship, took his seat in the Parliament (1856), and at once assumed a position as leader of the Opposition. In 1859 Bennigsen and Miguel, with a few others, drew up and issued a programme or scheme of German unity. In this document it was declared that only Prussia could be at the head of a united Germany, and in fact Bennigsen advocated at this period that which Prince Bismarck long afterwards accomplished. The National-Verein held its first sitting Sept. 16, 1859, at the invitation of Bennigsen, and he himself was chosen President. The Frankfurt Assembly formed the permanent organisation of the National-Verein, and fixed its seat in the city of Coburg. At the time of its dissolution in 1866 it numbered 30,000 members, of whom 10,000 were from Prussia. In that year the organisation of the North German Confederation making inevitable and speedy realisation of the Empire, the Union had no further raison d'être, and it was accordingly dissolved. Bennigsen, who by the annexation of Hanover was made a Prussian, became a member both of the Prussian Lower Chamber and of the North German Reichstag. During the war in 1870 he was in confidential relations with the Prussian authorities, and undertook two important missions—one to the South German States, where he discussed the conditions of a possible unity; the other to the camp of Versailles, in the winter of 1871, where the same negotiations were afterwards carried out to a practical result. In 1873 he was elected President of the Prussian House of Deputies. At the elections of 1877 the Socialist party opposed his candidature, but without success. He was re-elected to the Reichstag, and endeavoured to effect an understanding between Prince Bismarck and the National Liberals, but the negotiations ended in the disruption of his party. In 1883 he retired from the Reichstag, but was again elected in 1887, and again took command of the National Liberal party. He kept his seat in 1890 at the head of greatly diminished forces. In 1888 he was appointed by the Emperor Chief Administrator of Hanover.

BENSON, Edward Frederic, novelist, was born on July 24, 1867, at Wellington College. He is the son of the late Archbishop of Canterbury and of Mary Sidgwick, and was educated at Marlborough and King's College, Cambridge, of which he was a Scholar. He was elected Worts Student in 1892, Prendergast Student in 1893, and Craven Travelling Student in 1894. He was at work in Athens for the British Archæological School from 1892 to 1895, and in Egypt for the Hellenic Society in 1895. He has travelled in Egypt, Greece, Italy, and Algeria. He became famous with his first novel, "Dodo," in 1893, and has since published "Six Common Things," 1893; "Rubicon," 1894; "Judgement Books," 1895; "Limitations," 1896; "The Babe B.A.," 1897; and "The Vintage," 1898. He was captain of the Marlborough rugby team, and played racquets for his school in 1886-87. Address: 9 St. Thomas Street, Winchester.

BÉRAUD, Jean, French painter, was born at St. Petersburg, Dec. 31, 1849, of French parents. Although the son of a sculptor, he was intended for the law, and finished his studies in 1870. During the siege of Paris he was one of the mobiles of the Seine; he then became a pupil of Bonnat (q.v.), and in 1874 began sending pictures to the Salon. The chief of these are: "Leda," 1875; "The Return from the Burial," 1876, his first sensational picture; "Coquelin Cadet" in the rôle of Matamore, 1878; "Montmartre," 1881; "The Journal des Débats," 1889, a collection of portraits of the staff. Since 1890 M. Béraud has exhibited at the Champ de Mars. Among his pictures there have been "Monte Carlo, Rien ne va plus," "l'Arlequine," and a set of scriptural pictures, in which, following the example of the mediæval schools, he has depicted Christ in antique garb, but all the other personages in modern dress. The best-known of these is "Mary Magdalene at the house of Simon the Pharisee," in which Mary, in a ball dress, is kneeling at the feet of our Lord, and the diners are in irreproachable evening dress. It achieved a succès de scandale, as the men were hardly-disguised portraits of the chiefs of Parisian literary circles and society.

BERESFORD, Rear-Admiral Lord Charles William de la Poer, C.B., M.P., second son of the Rev. John Beresford, 4th Marquis of Waterford, by Christiana Julia, fourth daughter of the late Colonel Charles Powell Leslie, of Glaslough, co. Monaghan, was born Feb. 10, 1846, at Philpottown, co. Dublin. He entered the Royal Navy in 1859, was appointed a Lieutenant in 1868, and advanced to the rank of Commander in 1875. He served successively in the Marlborough, the Defence, the Clio, the Tribune, the Sutlej, the Research, the Royal yacht

Victoria and Albert, the Galatea, the Goshawk, and Bellerophon. In 1872 he was appointed Flag-Lieutenant to the Commander-in-Chief at Devonport; and he accompanied the Prince of Wales as Naval aide-de-camp to India in 1875-76. In 1877 he joined the Thunderer, and was commander of the Royal yacht Osborne from 1878 to 1881. His lordship received the gold medal of the Royal Humane Society and of the Liverpool Shipwreck and Humane Society for having on three occasions jumped overboard and saved lives at sea. On one of these occasions, when he rescued a marine who had fallen overboard at Port Stanley, Falkland Islands, he was attired in heavy shooting clothes, and his pockets were filled with cartridges. At the time of the bombardment of the forts of Alexandria, Lord Charles Beresford was in command of the gunboat Condor, and in the action of July 11, 1882, he greatly distinguished himself by his gallant conduct. The ironclad Téméraire, which got ashore at the beginning of the engagement, was safely assisted off by the Condor. Then the formidable Marabout batteries, which constituted the second strongest defence of the port of Alexandria, were effectually silenced. This latter success was chiefly due to the gallant way in which the Condor bore down on the fort and engaged guns immensely superior to her own. So vigorous, indeed, was the attack on the big fort, that the Admiral's ship signalled "Well done, Condor." It was ascertained that the Khedive, who had taken refuge with Dervish Pacha at Ramleh, was in imminent danger. Arabi Pacha had sent a body of troops to guard the palace, and ordered them to kill the Khedive; but Tewfik and Dervish managed to bribe the men, and to communicate with Admiral Sir Beauchamp Seymour, who despatched the Condor inshore to keep the Egyptian troops in check. The Khedive then succeeded in getting away, and drove to Ras-el-Tin. As the conflagration and looting continued in the city of Alexandria, the Americans were asked to land marines to assist in keeping order, and a regular police system was organised under Lord Charles Beresford, while Captain Fisher, of the Inflexible, took command of the land forces. Strong measures were necessary to subdue the looters. Several of the scoundrels detected in the very act of setting fire to houses were summarily shot in the great square, and those caught plundering were flogged. Lord Charles Beresford was promoted to the rank of Captain (Aug. 7, 1882) for the services he had rendered at the bombardment of Alexandria. In September 1884 he was appointed on the staff of Lord Wolseley for the Nile Expedition, and assisted in the born Feb. 4, 1897. Addresses: 3 Carlton House Terrace, S.W.; and Deepdene, Dorking.

BERKELEY, Ernest James Lennox, C.B., was born in 1857, and is the son of George Rawdon Lennox Berkeley. He was educated at the Royal Academy, Gosport, and the Royal Military College, Sandhurst. He is the Commissioner and Consul-General for the British Protectorate of Uganda, and was made a C.B. in 1897, when he married the daughter of Sir James Harris. Address: 10 St. James's Place, S.W.

BERKLEY, George, Civil Engineer, was born in London on April 26, 1821, and educated at private schools, and apprenticed to Samuda Bros. in 1835, with whom he worked in the shops and on designs of atmospheric systems of working railways, steam-engines, &c. From 1841 to 1849 he was assistant to Robert Stephenson, during which period he was engaged on experiments with locomotives, alteration of gauge and rolling stock of the Eastern Counties and North-Eastern Railways; inquiry into systems of working atmospheric railways, question of gauge referred to Royal Commission in 1846, and other work. From 1849 to 1859 he was engaged on inquiry into the water supply of Liverpool and neighbourhood for Robert Stephenson; Engineer to London and Blackwall Railway; North and South-Western Junction Railway and Branch to Hammersmith; Hampstead Junction Railway; Stratford and Loughton Railway; Wimbledon and Croydon; East Suffolk system of railways; Wells and Fakenham, and other lines; and from 1851 to 1859 represented Robert Stephenson as Engineer to the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, and succeeded to the post on the death of Robert Stephenson. In 1874 he was appointed one of the Consulting Engineers to the Colonial Office for Railways in Natal, and viaducts and other work in the Cape Colony. In 1855 he was appointed Consulting Engineer to the Indian Midland Railway; and in 1857, in conjunction with his son, was appointed Engineer to the Argentine North-Eastern Railway. In 1845 he wrote a paper on the atmospheric system of railways, and in 1870 a paper on the strength of iron and steel, for the Institution of Civil Engineers. He is senior Vice-President of the Institution of Civil Engineers; a Member of the Athenæum Club; and has been for some years on the Board of Managers of the Royal Institution. Address: Athenæum.

BERNHARD-BEERE, Mrs. See BEERE. MRS. BERNARD.

BERNHARDT, Sarah, nee Roaine Bernardt, French actress, was born at 5 Rue de l'École de Médecine in Paris, Oct. 22, 1844. Her mother was Julie Bernardt, a Jewess born at Berlin, but living in Amsterdam since her childhood, who had come to Paris when a young woman to gain her livelihood. As all the birth registers of Paris were burnt during the Commune, these particulars can only be obtained from the entry registers of the Conservatoire. She spent her early life in Holland at her grandfather's, an Amsterdam optician. She was sent to the Convent Grand Champ at Versailles at the age of seven, and was renowned for her violent temper. There she had as schoolfellow her future rival, Sophie Croizette, afterwards Madame Hérin. She left in 1858, and on Nov. 29, 1859, she entered the Paris Conservatoire, and became a pupil of MM. Provost and Hammon, professors of elocution. She gained a second prize for tragedy in 1861, and a second prize for comedy in 1862. This opened the doors of the Théâtre Français to her, and on Aug. 11, 1862, she made her début in "Iphigénie," and on the 24th in the "Valérie" of Scrinis. She attracted hardly any notice from the public; but M. Francisque Sarcey, who was then writing for L'Opinion Nationale, gave her a few lines, in which he said her elocution was perfect, but her acting that of a schoolgirl. She left the Comédie Française after eight months, or rather was dismissed for having boxed the ears of one of the seniors, Mademoiselle Nathalie. She then went to the Gymnase, and appeared on June 25, 1863, in "Le Père de la débutante" and other pieces. However, in April 1864 the discipline of daily work became too much for her, and she went to Madrid, thus losing her place. Returning, she went to the Porte St. Martin Theatre, and on Dec. 8, 1866, she appeared in "La Biche au bois." She did not stay long here, and for a year was absent from the theatre; after which, in January 1867, she prevailed upon M. Duquesnel to give her a place at the Odéon, having been recommended to him by M. Camille Doucet. Her success was not quick, but it was sure. She played Armande in "Les Femmes Savantes," Albine in "Britannicus," Mariette in "François le Champi," and Zacharie in "Athalie." On Jan. 14, 1869, she created the part of Zandru in "Le Peasant," by François Coppée. The poet had been persuaded to give her the part by Mlle. Agar, one of her fellow-actors. She was a great success as the Florentine page, and in the dedication the poet alludes to her beauty and talent as the chief factors in the success of the piece. During the war of 1870 she was untiring in working with the Odéon ambulance, and when the theatre opened again, she appeared in "Jean Marie," by M. André Thenriet, and "Mademoiselle Aissé," by Louis Bouilhet. On Feb. 19, 1872, the turning-point of her career was reached, for she then appeared in a revival of "Ruy Blas" as the Queen, Marie de Neuborg. The part seemed to have been written for her; the expression of her "golden voice" was so soft, and at the same time so touching, that her success became a triumph. M. Perrin, who had succeeded Thierry as Director of the Comédie Française, determined that this star must shine in his firmament alone, and she made her reappearance in "Mademoiselle de Belle-Isle" on Nov. 6, 1872. She worked hard with wondrous results: her Junie in "Britannicus" was received rapturously on December 14, and on March 23, 1874, she created the part of Berthe de Savigny in "Le Sphinx," by Octave Feuillet. Mademoiselle Croizette was playing the chief female part, but she was completely eclipsed by Madame Bernhardt in the part of the outraged but forgiving wife. In the month of December she played Phèdre at three days' notice, and at once was compared to Rachel, who had been presumed till then to be unapproachable in that rôle. It still remains her favourite part, and she includes it invariably in her répertoire whenever she comes to London. She was elected a sociétaire of the Comédie Française in 1875, and in 1876 played Mrs. Clarkson in "L'Etrangère"; Andromaque and Doña Sol in 1877. "Ruy Blas" was produced in 1879, and she was as great a success at the Comédie Française as she had before been at the Odéon. For seven years she had been one of its members, and knowing her impetuous nature, people were wondering how long she would be able to bear the restrictions of such a position, when the expected happened. In 1879 the Comédie Française visited London, and gave a brilliant series of performances at the Gaiety Theatre, under the direction of Mr. John Hollingshead. Madame Bernhardt was unable one night to play her part in "L'Etrangère," and some of the London papers made certain criticisms on her conduct, which were followed up by the Paris Figaro. Thereupon she resigned her position of sociétaire and accepted an engagement to visit the United States. However, on her return to France from London she was persuaded to remain, and played Clorinde in "L'Aventurière," a part she disliked. In consequence she was adversely criticised by the press. Being further refused the part of Célième in Musset's "On ne badine pas avec l'amour," she betook herself to her country house, and refused on any account to reappear in public. Thereupon the theatre brought an action against her for breach of contract, and she was compelled to pay £4000 damages. In May 1880 she went on a provincial tour through France, and then returned to London to play "Adrienne Lecouvreur" and "Froufrou." In August she went to Copenhagen, where she was received with the same enthusiasm as in London. She then accepted a tempting offer to go to America, where she was rumoured to have made gigantic sums. The people received her as a queen both in the United States and in Mexico, and their enthusiasm even went the length of acclaiming her as a compatriot, for in spite of her denials the newspapers persisted in saying she was born at Rochester, N.Y. In March 1881 she returned to France, and almost at once set off for Russia, Holland, and Belgium. In April 1882 she was married at the Church of St. Andrew, Wells Street, London, to M. Damala, one of the members of her company, from whom she was divorced shortly afterwards. He died in 1889. On December 11 of the same year she created her greatest rôle, that of Fédora, in the play of that name by M. Victorien Sardou (q.v.), at the Vaudeville, Paris. She also appeared in "Nana Sahib," by M. Jean Richepin, and, in 1883, in "Macbeth." In 1884 M. Mayer became the Director of the Porte St. Martin Theatre, and Madame Bernhardt entered into a five years' engagement with him. On December 26 of that year she created Théodora in the play of that name, which ran for nearly a year. She paid another visit to London in 1886, playing Fédora at the Gaiety, and went on to America, only returning to Paris in July 1887, bringing back £32,000 profit. In November of that year she played La Tosca in the play of that name, her best rôle after Fédora. During her foreign tour in 1888 the Turkish Censor of Plays prohibited "Théodora" at Constantinople. Mr. F. C. Philips' (q.v.) novel, "As in a Looking-Glass," furnished her with a new play, "Léna," in 1889. The next year M. Jules Barbier wrote for her "Jeanne d'Arc," which she brought to London in June at the old Her Majesty's. In October she created the title-rôle of "Cléopâtre," by MM. Sardou and Emile Moreau, and then started on her third journey to America, which was continued into Australia, where Sydney was decorated in her honour. At this time there was some talk of her return to the Comédie Française, but she would not bind herself for three years. She returned to Europe in 1892, starting at once for London, where she played at the Royal English Opera-House, now the Palace Theatre. In 1893 she took the Renaissance Theatre in Paris, and brought out "Les Rois," by M. Jules Lemaitre (q.v.), and on Jan. 24, 1894, "Izyl," by MM. Armand Silvestre (q.v.) and Morand, in which she appeared at Daly's in June 1894, with other plays of her répertoire. In 1895 she produced "La Princesse Loiraine," the second work of M. Edmond Rostand (q.v.), the author of "Cyrano de Bergerac." She again visited Daly's in 1895; in 1896 she was at the Comedy, and produced "Magda," a translation of Sudermann's "Heimat." At the end of the year took place the fête organised by M. Henri Bauer in her honour. It consisted of a lunch at the Grand Hotel of 500 guests, and a performance at the Renaissance of the third act of "Phèdre" and the fourth act of "Rome vaincue," by M. de Parodi, followed by the recitation of poems in her honour by MM. François Coppée, Edmond Rostand, André Theuriot, and Catulle Mendès. The only harsh note on a very great day was the refusal of the Government to bestow the Legion of Honour on the great actress. In 1897 she produced "Lorenzaccio," an adaptation of De Musset by Armand d'Artois, and "Spiritisme," by no means Sardou's masterpiece. She visited London as usual in June, and appeared at the Adelphi in the above-named and several of her old successes. In the autumn of the year she underwent a painful operation under Dr. Pozzi, but was no sooner out of the doctor's hands than she performed in Signor Gabriele d'Annunzio's "La Fille Morte" and M. Romain Coolus' "Lysiane." The latter she brought to London in June 1898, where her stay at the Lyric was rendered notorious by the refusal of the Lord Chamberlain to allow the representation of "Le Songe d'une Matinée de Printemps," by Signor d'Annunzio. Besides being an actress, Madame Bernhardt has tried other arts, and has exhibited sculpture at the Salon 1874-86, has painted pictures, and in 1888 wrote a play, "L'Aveu," which was performed at the Odéon.

BERRY, Rev. Charles Albert, D.D., was born at Leigh, Lancashire, on Dec. 14, 1852, and was educated at a private school at Southport, and the Airedale Independent College, Yorkshire. He was pastor of St. George's Road Chapel, Bolton, from 1875 to 1883, and in the latter year received a call to the Queen Street Congregational Chapel, Wolverhampton. He was, in 1887, asked to succeed Henry Ward Beecher, of Brooklyn, U.S.A.; this invitation, however, he refused, as also other requests to come to London. He has visited America on several occasions, and has travelled in Egypt, Palestine, Australia, and New Zealand. Dr. Berry was elected, in 1897, Chairman of the Congregational Union of England and Wales, and he has also served the office of President of the National Council of Evangelical Free Churches. He is the author of "Vision and Duty," 1892 (series of "Preachers of the Age"); "Mischievous Goodness," 1897; and a volume of sermons. Address: 13 Parkdale, Wolverhampton.

BERRY, The Hon. Sir Graham, K.C.M.G., was born in 1822. He was a shopkeeper in Chelsea, who went out to Victoria in 1852 in the height of the gold-digging fever, but instead of turning his attention to the gold mines he settled down to business in Melbourne. In 1860 he was elected to the Victorian Parliament as an advanced Liberal, and again in 1864, but was defeated in the next election, and then, devoting his energies to journalism, became proprietor and editor of the Geelong Register. He soon, however, re-entered Parliament, and in 1870 first took office as Treasurer, and five years later became Premier for a short time. In 1877 Sir G. Berry was returned at the head of an overwhelming majority, and once more took the Premiership. While in office he passed several important democratic measures, including a land tax on large estates, but failed to carry a proposal for a fundamental reform of the Legislative Council. Sir G. Berry then visited England in order to induce the Imperial Parliament to take up the matter, but failed, though through his efforts the question was eventually settled. On his return the general election of 1880 placed him in a minority, but he was subsequently restored to power, and carried some noteworthy reform measures. Again thrown out by a want of confidence vote, Sir G. Berry entered a coalition Ministry, in which he was Chief Secretary and Postmaster-General (1884-85). Early in 1886 Sir G. Berry, with Mr. Service, was Victorian delegate to the first Federal Council, and shortly afterwards he was appointed Agent-General in London for Victoria, which post he held until February 1892. On returning to the colony he accepted the office of Treasurer in the Shiels Ministry, which succumbed to a vote of want of confidence in January 1893. The honour of knighthood was conferred in 1886 on Sir Graham Berry in recognition of his services to the colony. He was Executive Commissioner for Victoria at the Colonial and Indian Exhibition. In 1869 he married Madge, daughter of J. B. Evans of Victoria. Address: Melbourne.

BERRY, William Bisset, M.D., Speaker of the Cape Legislative Assembly was born at Aberdeen, and graduated at the University of his native town. In 1867 he established himself in practice in the eastern districts of Cape Colony. He took a great interest in municipal and educational work, and served on several government commissions, being an expert with regard to native problems. In 1893 he was elected to the Legislative Assembly for Queenstown. He is a strenuous advocate of compulsory education for all. He supports Mr. Rose Innes as a Moderate, but has backed up Mr. Rhodes' policy in Charterland. He is popular with both sides of the House.

BERTHELOT, Pierre Eugène Marcellin, a French chemist, the son of a physician, was born at Paris, Oct. 25, 1827. From a very early age he has devoted himself to scientific studies, and made special researches into the synthesis of fatty bodies and alcohol, and into thermo-chemistry. The degree of Doctor of Sciences was conferred upon him in April 1854, and in 1861 the Academy of Sciences awarded him the sum of 3500 francs for his researches. In 1859 he was appointed Professor of Organic Chemistry at the Superior School of Pharmacy, and in 1865, at the request of the Academy of Sciences, a new chair of organic chemistry was erected for him at the Collège de France. He was elected a Member of the Académie de Médecine in February 1863, and entered the Académie des Sciences, March 3, 1873, in the place of Duhamel. He has since been elected Foreign Member of the Royal Society of London, and of most of the Academies of Europe and the United States. On Sept. 2, 1870, he was elected President of the Scientific Committee of Defence, and during the siege of Paris was engaged in the manufacture of guns and ammunition, and especially of nitro-glycerine and dynamite. Since 1878 he has been President of the Committee on Explosives, to which body the new smokeless powder is due. On April 6, 1876, he was named Inspector-General of Higher Education. The labours of M. Berthelot have had for their object, principally, the reproduction of the substances which enter into the composition of organised beings, and his labours have opened a new field for science, which, up to his time, had limited itself almost entirely to analysis. The dyeing trade has benefited largely by his discoveries in extracting dyes from coal tar. He has for forty years contributed extensively to the Annales de Chimie et de Physique, of which he is now editor, La Synthèse des Carbures d'Hydrogène, &c., and has written "Chimie Organique fondée sur la Synthèse," 1860; "Leçons sur les Principes Sucres," 1862; "Leçons sur les Méthodes Générales de Synthèse," 1864; "Leçons sur l'Isomérisation," 1864; "Traité Élémentaire de Chimie Inorganique," 1867; "Sur la Force de la Poussée des Matières Explosives," 1872 and "Vérification de l'Aréomètre de Baume," 1873; "Les Origines de l'Alchimie," 1885; "Collection des anciens Alchimistes grecs," 1888; besides numerous scientific and philosophical articles for Revue des Deux Mondes, the Revue des Sciences, Le Temps, &c., which have been collectively published under the title "Science et Philosophie." He is one of the founders and the director of the "Grande Encyclopédie," of which the first volume was published in 1885. Berthelot was decorated with the Legion of Honour in 1861, made an Officer in 1867, Commander in 1879, and Grand Officer in 1886, in which year he became for a short time, a member of the French Cabinet. In 1889 he was elected Secrétaire perpétuel de l'Académie des Sciences de Paris, and in 1895 Minister for Foreign Affairs.

BERTILLON, Alphonse, French anthropologist, younger brother of Dr. Jacques Bertillon, was born at Paris in 1853. He has devoted himself especially to ethnography, and has acquired a European reputation by applying anthropometry to the detection of criminals. As Chief of the Identification Office at the Préfecture de Police in Paris, he instituted in 1880 a system of measuring which has given marvellously precise results. Out of the 700 anthropometric discoveries of old criminals during the first six years of the use of his system, not one error has been discovered. Other governments have followed the example of France, and it was introduced at Scotland Yard in 1896. His chief works are "Ethnographie Moderne, les races sauvages," 1883; "l'Anthropométrie judiciaire à Paris en 1889," 1890; "la Photographie judiciaire," 1890; "Identification anthropométrique," 1893.

BERTILLON, Jacques, French doctor and statistician, born at Paris in 1851, is the elder son of Dr. Louis Adolphe Bertillon, statistician and botanist. He studied medicine at Paris, and became a doctor in 1883. He is one of the heads of the department of the Statistical Office of the Préfecture de la Seine. He married the lady doctor Caroline Schultz, who is physician to the Odéon Theatre. He has published "Atlas de statistique graphique de la ville de Paris en 1888," 1890.

BERTRAND, Joseph Louis François, a French mathematician, born in Paris, March 11, 1822, evinced from a very

ly age an extraordinary taste for mathematics, and when eleven years of age, on entering the College of St. Louis, he entered the École Polytechnique. He was successively Professor at the Lycée Saint-Louis, Examiner for admissions at the École Polytechnique, Teacher of Analysis at the school, Assistant Professor of Mathematical Physics at the College of Science, and Professor of Special Mathematics at the Lycée Napoleon. In 1856 he was admitted to the Académie des Sciences in place of Sturm, and on the death of Lejeune-Beaumont, in 1874, was elected perpetual secretary. Besides his three great works, "Traité d'Arithmétique," 1849; "Traité d'Algèbre," 1856; and "Traité de Calcul Différentiel Intégral," 1860, he has written a number of memoirs relative to physics, pure mathematics and mechanics, of which the following are the principal: "Sur les Conditions d'Intégralité des Fonctions différentielles," "Sur la Théorie Générale des Surfaces," "Sur la Similitude en Mécanique," "Sur la Théorie des Phénomènes Capillaires," "Sur la Théorie de la Propagation du Son," &c., which have appeared in the Journal de l'École Polytechnique or the Mémoires de l'Académie des Sciences. Lately he has written monographs on d'Alembert (1889) and Pascal (1890). He was made Officer of the Legion of Honour in August 1867, and Commander in December 1871.

BESANT, Mrs. Annie, née Wood, of Irish parentage, being the daughter of William Page Wood and Emily, daughter of James Morris, and was born in London October 1, 1847, and brought up at Arrow. In 1867 she married the Rev. Frank Besant, who was at that time a minister at Cheltenham, and was subsequently Vicar of Sibsey, in Lincolnshire. In 1873 she was legally separated from him. In 1874 her keen interest in political and social topics brought her into contact with the Secularists. She joined the National Secular Society, and published pamphlets under their auspices. On the publication of the notorious "Fruits of Philosophy," she was prosecuted in connection with the late Mr. Bradlaugh, M.P. (June 1877), but the prosecution was a failure. In 1883 Mrs. Besant became deeply interested in Socialism. She was for three years a member of the London School Board. After a lifelong devotion to Free Thought she joined the Theosophical Society in 1889, and has been active in Theosophical propaganda at home and in India and the United States. In March 1893 she returned from a lecturing tour in the United States, where, in India, to which she paid a lengthy visit in 1894, the Theosophical cult is very popular. She has now resumed her activities at home. She resides at the Theosophical European Headquarters in St. John's Wood, N.W., and in 1893 published her biography under the title of "Through Storm to Peace." Other works from her pen are "Reincarnation" and "Seven Principles of Man," 1892; "Death and After," 1893; "Building of the Kosmos," 1894; "Karma," "In the Outer Court," and "The Self and its Sheaths," 1895; "Path of Discipleship" and "Man and his Bodies," 1896; "Four Great Religions," "The Ancient Wisdom," and "Three Paths to Union with God," 1897. She edits the Theosophical Review in conjunction with G. R. S. Mead. Address: 19 Avenue Road, Regent's Park, N.W.

BESANT, Sir Walter, was born at Portsmouth in 1838, and educated at King's College, London, and Christ's College, Cambridge, where he graduated in high mathematical honours. He was intended for the Church, but abandoned this career. He was then appointed Senior Professor in the Royal College of Mauritius, but was compelled by ill-health to resign, and returned to England, where he has since resided. In 1868 he produced his first work, "Studies in Early French Poetry." In 1873 he brought out "The French Humourists," in 1877 "Rabelais" for the Ancient and Foreign Classics, and in 1882 "Readings from Rabelais," in 1879 "Coligny," and in 1881 "Whittington" (Chatto & Windus). Mr. Besant acted for many years as Secretary of the Palestine Exploration Fund, in which capacity he wrote, in 1871, a "History of Jerusalem," with the late Professor Palmer, and was editor of the great work entitled "The Survey of Western Palestine." He has contributed to most of the magazines. In 1871 he entered into the partnership with the late Mr. James Rice which produced the series of novels that bear their joint names. Mr. Besant has also written, under his own name, "The Revolt of Man," "The Captain's Room," "All Sorts and Conditions of Men," 1882, which led to the establishment of the People's Palace in the East End of London; "All in a Garden Fair," 1883; "Dorothy Foster," 1884; "Uncle Jack," 1885; "Children of Gibeon," 1886; "The World Went Very Well Then," 1887; "For Faith and Freedom," 1888; "The Bell of St. Paul's," 1889; "Armored of Lyonesse," 1890; "St. Katherine's by the Tower," 1891; "The Ivory Gate," 1892; "The Rebel Queen," 1893; "Beyond the Dreams of Avarice," 1895; "The Master Craftsman," "The City of Refuge," 1896; "A Fountain Sealed" and "The Changeling," 1897, and two or three volumes of short stories. He also, with Mr. Rice, put on the stage two plays, one performed at the Royal Court, a dramatic version of "Ready Money Mortiboy," and the other, "Such a Good Man," the play from which their story bearing the same title was written. He wrote a book on the people of London, 1892 (Chatto & Windus); on "Westminster," 1895; and a small book on the history of London, 1893 (Longmans). His "Rise of the British Empire" appeared in 1897. Mr. Besant has also written a biography of the late Professor Palmer, 1883; and "The Eulogy of Richard Jefferies," 1888. On the establishment of the Incorporated Society of Authors, he was elected the first Chairman of the Executive Committee, and in succession to the late Sir Frederick Pollock he was re-elected to the same office, which he held for four years. He is editor of The Author, a monthly paper devoted to the interests of literary men and literary beginners. He is now the Director of the "Survey of London." Latterly Sir Walter Besant has taken great interest in the scheme for celebrating the millenary of King Alfred, and in February 1898 he lectured, at Winchester, upon the Alfred Commemoration. Addresses: Frogna! End, Hampstead; Athenæum.

BESANT, William Henry, M.A., D.Sc., F.R.S., the son of a merchant at Portsmouth, was born at Portsmouth in 1828, and was educated at the Grammar School, and at a Proprietary School at Southsea, and proceeded, in 1846, to St. John's College, Cambridge, where he graduated B.A. in 1850 as Senior Wrangler and First Smith's Prizeman. He was elected to a Fellowship at St. John's College in 1851, and was appointed Lecturer in 1853. The Fellowship ceased in 1859, but he was retained as Lecturer, and held that appointment until June 1889. In 1866 he was Moderator and in 1867 Examiner for the Mathematical Tripos. In 1859 he acted as deputy for the Vice-Chancellor in the examination for the Smith's Prizes. From 1859 to 1864 he was one of the Examiners for the University of London. In 1871 he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society. He is also a Member of the Royal Astronomical Society, and of the London Mathematical Society. In 1883 he received the degree of Doctor of Science, being the first D.Sc. created by the University of Cambridge. He has been very active as a private tutor, college lecturer, and examiner in Cambridge and elsewhere. In 1885 he was again Moderator for the Mathematical Tripos. In May 1889 he was re-elected to a Fellowship at St. John's College. Dr. Besant has published treatises on "Hydro-Mechanics," "Elementary Hydrostatics," "Geometrical Conic Sections," "Dynamics," "Roulettes and Glissettes," and has written various papers in the Messenger of Mathematics and in the Quarterly Journal of Mathematics. Dr. Besant married the only surviving daughter of the late Professor Willis in 1861. Private address: Spring Lawn, Harvey Road, Cambridge.

BESIEGED RESIDENT. See LA-BOUCHERE, H.

BESNARD, Armand Louis Charles Gustave, French Admiral, was born at Rambouillet, Oct. 11, 1833, and entered the Naval School in 1849. He was present at the bombardment of Petropaulovsk during the Crimean war, and was engaged in China during the second Chinese war. In 1863 his bravery in Cochin China, at Vinh-Long, gained him the Legion of Honour. During the war of 1870 he was Chief of the Staff (acting as brevet lieutenant-colonel) to the army of Brittany, and was present at the battles of Droué and Le Mans. In 1873 he was promoted to a captaincy, and was Chief of the Staff to Admiral Jaurès. In 1879 he was assistant to Commander Gougéard, the Minister of Marine in the Gambetta Cabinet; after its fall he commanded the Friedland, and then the training-ship Iphigénie. In 1886 he attained flag rank, and became Chief of the Staff at the Admiralty, until he was appointed to the command of the Chinese squadron. In 1892 he was promoted Vice-Admiral and Préfet Maritime at Brest, when M. Ribot gave him the portfolio of the Admiralty in his Cabinet (Jan. 26, 1895). This post he held until the fall of the Méline Ministry in June 1898. He is a Grand Officer of the Legion of Honour. Paris Address: 45 Boulevard Lannes.

BETHAM-EDWARDS, Miss Matilda Barbara, was born at Westerfield, Suffolk, in 1836, and began to write when quite young. Her first effort in fiction, a story, "The White House by the Sea," published when she was nineteen, has been many times reprinted in popular editions, also translated into Norwegian and other languages; since that time she has devoted herself entirely to literature, contributing to Punch, the Graphic, the Pall Mall Gazette, Macmillan's Magazine, and other leading periodicals, and publishing numerous novels and novelettes. Amongst the most popular are: "John and I," "Doctor Jacob," "Kitty," "The Sylvestres," "Bridget," "Disarmed," "Pearla," "Love and Mirage," "Half-way," "A Dream of Millions," "Felicia,"

"Foretalled," "Brother Gabriel," "For the Other World." Many of these stories originally appeared in American and English serials, and have been translated into French, German, and Norwegian. They have also been reissued in popular editions in America, Germany, and at home. Amongst Miss Betham-Edwards's miscellaneous contributions to literature may be mentioned "A Winter with the Swallows in Algeria" and "A Year in Western France." In 1885 she published a volume of "Poems," containing, among other reprints, "The Golden Bee," which attracted the attention of Charles Dickens when the authoress was in her teens, and which was republished in popular form in 1897. In 1889 this writer issued a centennial edition of Arthur Young's "Travels in France," with notes, biography, and general sketch of France, the result of personal experience and observations; also, "The Roof of France; or, Travels in Lozère." In recognition of these works the French Government in 1891 conferred upon Miss Betham-Edwards the dignity of Officier de l'Instruction Publique de France. She is the first Englishwoman thus honoured. In 1892 and 1894 appeared in 2 vols. "France of To-day." This writer's hymn, "God make my life a little light," has now found a place in most hymnals, anthologies, &c., and is included in Dr. Julian's great Dictionary of Hymnology recently issued. Miss Betham-Edwards's latest contributions to fiction are: "The Romance of a French Parson," 1892; "The Curb of Honour," 1893; "A Romance of Dijon," 1894; "The Dream Charlotte," 1896; "A Storm-Rent Sky," 1898. She also edited "The Autobiography of Arthur Young," 1898; and among forthcoming works are her "Reminiscences" and "Poems," a complete edition. In 1894 she received a Civil List pension of £50 a year in consideration of her services to literature. Address: Villa Julia, Hastings.

BETHELL, George Richard, M.P., the son of W. F. Bethell, of Rise Park, Hull, was born March 23, 1849, and was educated at Laleham and Gosport Naval School. After the usual training on board the Briannia, he entered the Navy in 1862, and served as a sub-lieutenant during surveys conducted in the Mediterranean and in the Gulf of Suez. After becoming a Lieutenant he served on board the Challenger, the Alert, and the Minotaur during the years 1872 to 1884. In the latter year he was attached to Sir C. Warren's expedition to Bechuanaland, and was also in that year promoted to be Commander. He holds the Khedive's bronze star, and the Egyptian medal.

Commander Bethell was elected, in 1885, Conservative member for the Holderness Division of the East Riding of Yorkshire, and he has retained the seat up to the present time. Address: Siggilesthorne, Hull.

BEVERLEY, Bishop of. See CROSS-THWAITE, THE RIGHT REV. ROBERT J.

BHOWNAGGREE, Sir Mancherjee, K.C.I.E., M.P., only son of the late Merwanjee Bhownaggree, a Parsee merchant and public-spirited citizen of Bombay, was born in that city on Aug. 15, 1851. He was educated at the Proprietary School and Elphinstone College, and appointed Fellow of the Bombay University in 1881. When at college he won a prize for an essay on the Constitution of the East India Company, which three years later he enlarged into an abbreviated history of the growth of the famous John Company. Receiving a journalistic training under the well-known Anglo-Indian publicist Mr. Robert Knight, he was appointed one of the sub-editors of the Statesman newspaper in 1871, in which year he also delivered a public lecture on the history and growth of the Times newspaper. On the death of his father in the following year the charge of the Bombay State Agency of the large territory of Bhavnagar devolved upon him, and from that time his connection with the press, which has been maintained up to now, became a non-professional one. In 1877 he published a Gujarati translation of Her Majesty's "Leaves from the Journal of our Life in the Highlands"; and until he came to England in 1881 to read for the Bar, he was an active member on the governing bodies of several public institutions. For eight years he was secretary of the first female English school in Western India, and during his tenure that academy was placed in a fine building of its own. He was also secretary for many years of the Bombay branch of the East Indian Association; and on the Mechanics' Institute, the Gymnastic Institute, and many other public bodies he did important work. In 1881 the Bombay government appointed him a Justice of the Peace. He varied his study in law here by taking part in the proceedings of several public bodies and serving upon their councils. He was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn in 1885, in which year he read an exhaustive paper on the subject of female education in India before the Society of Arts. Mr. Matthew Arnold presided on the occasion, and he and several other speakers so highly commended the lecture that the Society's silver medal was awarded for it. In 1886 he served as one of the Commissioners from India on the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, and was created a C.I.E. In the following year he was asked by the Maharaja of Bhavnagar, with the consent of Lord Reay's Government at Bombay, to assist him in establishing a constitutional administration and in reorganising the judicial and police departments in his State. This was so novel an innovation on the strictly autocratic form of rule which had prevailed from time immemorial in native India that the task was fraught not only with difficulty, but with danger. It was, however, accomplished with tact and firmness, the unwavering support of the Maharajah Takhtsingjee and the enlightened co-operation of fellow councillors—Dewan Vittaldas, Mr. Proctor Sims, and Dr. Barjorjee Byramjee—making it so successful in practice from the first that the new constitution has been since firmly fixed in the State, and even found imitators in other territories. It struck a blow at the absolute exercise of individual authority, and put an end to the strife of rival factions which is so fruitful a source of mischief in the India of the Rajahs. This brought about a combination of powerful malcontents, who fiercely attacked the Maharaja and the gentlemen who were Mr. Bhownagree's coadjutors in scurrilous sheets which were spread broadcast over India. Thereupon followed in 1890 the famous prosecution known as the "Bhavnagar Defamation Cases," which ended in the conviction and punishment of the ringleaders of the gang. A complete exposure of the blackmailing system of the lower native press and of the various pernicious influences which are at work at the courts of native states was made in the course of the trial, and formed the subject of a valuable and bulky report which Mr. Bhownagree wrote at its conclusion. When thus engaged in political and judicial work, he did not neglect the educational and social duties which fell upon him as a public man. He was the Secretary and chief worker of the Rukmabai Defence Committee, which had for its object the protection of Hindu women against the evils of infant marriage. He gave valuable evidence before the Public Service Commission, which dealt with the question of the wider employment of the people of India in the administrative service of their country, and successfully worked to place the Bombay Gymnastic Institute upon a permanent basis by housing it, with the co-operation of the Governments of Lord Reay and Lord Harris, in a fine building and large playground in one of the most conspicuous sites in the city. The death of his only sister Ave in 1888 fell upon him heavily, and in order to perpetuate her memory he founded the Nurses' Home at Bombay, and erected the East Corridor of the Imperial Institute in London, in which city she was educated. Both these monuments bear her name, as well as several prizes endowed in connection with female education, of which he, following in the footsteps of his father and mother, has been a staunch advocate throughout his life. His other contributions to different charities make up a handsome total. Returning to London in 1891, his old activity upon public bodies was resumed, and his friends perceived that if he entered upon a parliamentary career his energies would find adequate scope in English public life, and also serve the purpose of cementing the bonds between Great Britain and her Indian Empire. He was thus induced to enter into the political arena, and the path to success, which seemed long and difficult, was not made either smoother or shorter by his accepting the offer of North-East Bethnal Green to contest it in the Conservative interest. Mr. George Howell had been in possession of the seat by large Radical majorities ever since it became a separate constituency in 1885. But after a plucky fight Mr. Bhownagree was elected on the 16th July 1895. In questions of domestic legislation he is a progressive Conservative, and a strong Imperialist as regards our foreign policy and possessions. He insists upon India being regarded from an entirely non-political standpoint, and holds firmly to the belief that British rule has given her an unprecedented period of peace and of opportunities for material progress, on which he regards her future prosperity must mainly depend. Any movements which tend to shake the foundations of that rule he strongly deprecates, but in his criticism of the policy and actions of either party towards India he follows an independent line. Permanent address: 3 Cromwell Crescent, S.W.

BICKERDYKE, John. See COOK, C. H.

BICKERSTETH, The Right Rev. Edward Henry, D.D., Bishop of Exeter, born at Islington, Jan. 25, 1825, son of the late Rev. Edward Bickersteth, Rector of Watton, was educated at Watton and Trinity College, Cambridge. He was Chancellor's English Medallist in 1844, 1845, and 1846; proceeded B.A. (Sen. Opt.) in 1847, Classical Tripos, 3rd Class; took the degree of M.A. in 1850; and gained the Seatonian Prize in 1854. Mr. Bickersteth became Curate of Banningham, Norfolk, in 1848; Curate of Christ Church, Tunbridge Wells, 1852; Rector of Hinton Martell, Dorset, in the same year;

Vicar of Christ Church, Hampstead, in 1855; Chaplain to the Bishop of Ripon in 1861; Rural Dean of Highgate in 1878; and Dean of Gloucester in 1884. On the translation of Dr. Temple to the See of London, Dr. Bickersteth was appointed Bishop of Exeter, and was consecrated in 1885. He is author of the following books: "Poems," 1848; "Water from the Well-Spring," 1853; "The Rock of Ages; or, Scripture Testimony to the One Eternal Godhead of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit," 1858; "Practical and Explanatory Commentary on the New Testament," 1864; "Yesterday, To-day, and for Ever: a Poem in 12 books," 1866; "The Spirit of Life; or, Scripture Testimony to the Divine Person and Work of the Holy Ghost," 1868; "The Hymnal Companion to the Book of Common Prayer," 1870; "The Two Brothers, and other Poems," 1871; "The Master's Home-Call, 1872; "The Reef and other Parables," 1873; "The Shadowed Home and the Light Beyond," 1874; and "The Lord's Table," 1882. The "Hymnal Companion," of which a revised and enlarged edition, with tunes, appeared in 1876, is now in use in many thousands of churches in England and the Colonies. He married (1) in 1848 Rosa, daughter of the late Sir Samuel Bignold, Norwich (she died in 1873); and (2) in 1876 Ellen, daughter of the late Robert Bickersteth. Address: The Palace, Exeter.

BICKMORE, Albert Smith, was born at St. George's, Maine, March 1, 1839. He graduated at Dartmouth College in 1860, and immediately began to study Natural History under Agassiz, who, in the following year, placed him in charge of the department of Mollusca in his Museum of Comparative Zoology at Cambridge, Mass. He had, very early in his scientific career, determined to establish at New York a Museum of Natural History. Partly to make collections for this, and partly to supply some deficiencies in the Museum of Comparative Zoology, he sailed in 1865 for the East Indies. He spent one year making collections of shells and small animals in the East Indian Archipelago; then traversed a large portion of China; visited and explored Japan, crossed Siberia, visiting its mines, Central and Northern Russia, and other European countries, and returned to New York after an absence of about three years. In 1869 he published in London and New York a volume of his "Travels in the East Indian Archipelago," and a German edition at Jena. In 1870 he was elected Professor of Natural History in Madison University, Hamilton, New York. He has been a frequent contributor to the American Journal of Science, and the Journal of the Royal Geographical Society; and is now Director of the Museum of Natural History, New York, which was inaugurated at the close of 1877.

BIDDULPH, General Sir Michael Anthony Shrapnel, G.C.B., is the second son of the late Rev. Thomas Shrapnel Biddulph of Amroth Castle, Pembroke-shire, sometime Prebendary of Brecknock, by Charlotte, daughter of the Rev. James Stillingfleet, Prebendary of Worcester, and was born at Cleve Court, Somerset, in 1825. He was educated at Woolwich, and entered the Royal Artillery in 1843 as a second lieutenant. He was promoted to first lieutenant in 1844; became captain in 1850, brevet major in 1854, brevet lieutenant-colonel in 1856, colonel in 1874, major-general in 1877, lieutenant-general in 1881, and general in 1886. General Biddulph served throughout the Eastern campaign of 1854-55, including the battles of Alma, Balaklava, and Inkerman, and the siege and fall of Sebastopol. He was Deputy Adjutant-General of Artillery in India from 1868 to 1871; and in 1876 he was appointed Brigadier-General in command of the Rohilkund district; he also commanded the Quetta field force in Afghanistan 1878-79. He was nominated a Companion of the Order of the Bath (military division) in 1873, and promoted to a Knight Commandership of that Order in 1879 (G.C.B.). In 1881 he was appointed to the divisional staff of the army in Bengal. He is Gentleman-Usher of the Black Rod and Groom-in-Waiting, President of the Ordnance Committee, and Keeper of the Regalia. Sir Michael Biddulph married, in 1857, Katherine, daughter of Captain Stamat, Commandant of Balaklava. Address: 2 Whitehall Court, S.W.

BIDDULPH, General Sir Robert, G.C.M.G., K.C.B., is the son of the late Mr. Robert Biddulph of Ledbury, Herefordshire, by Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. George Palmer, M.P., of Nazing Park, Essex. He was born in London, Aug. 26, 1835, and educated at the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich. He was appointed second lieutenant in the Royal Artillery in 1853; captain in 1860; major in the army in 1861; lieutenant-colonel in 1864; colonel in 1872; brigadier-general in 1879; major-general in the army in 1883; and lieutenant-general in 1887. He was Deputy Assistant-Adjutant-General in India from 1858 to 1860; Military Secretary in China in 1860-61; Military Secretary in Madras from 1861 to 1865; and Deputy Assistant-Quartermaster-General at Woolwich from 1868 to 1871. He was one of the Assistant Boundary Commissioners under the Reform

Act of 1867, and acted as private secretary to Mr. Cardwell when that statesman was Secretary for War, in 1871-73. From 1873 to 1878 he was Assistant Adjutant-General at Headquarters; in March 1879, he was nominated her Majesty's Commissioner for arranging the payment due to the Turkish Government under the Convention concluded in the previous year; and in May 1879 he was appointed High Commissioner and Commander-in-Chief of the island of Cyprus, on the transfer of Sir Garnet Wolseley to Natal; Inspector-General of Recruiting, 1886-87; Quartermaster-General of the Army in 1887; Director-General of Military Education from March 1888 to January 1893. Under his administration the state of the island of Cyprus has very greatly improved; and to him is due much of the credit for the successful "locust war" urged against that deadly insect-plague. From January to October 1893, he was Quartermaster-General to the Forces at Headquarters. In October 1893 he was appointed Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Gibraltar, a post he now holds. He was nominated a Companion of the Order of the Bath (military division) in 1877, and created a Knight Commander of the Order of SS. Michael and George in 1880, a G.C.M.G. in 1886. In 1892 he was promoted to the rank of General. He married, in 1864, Sophia, daughter of the Rev. A. L. Lambert, rector of Chilbolton, Hampshire, and widow of Mr. R. Stuart Palmer. Address: The Convent, Gibraltar.

BIDWELL, Shelford, F.R.S., eldest son of the late Shelford Clarke Bidwell, Esq., J.P., was born on March 6, 1848, at Thetford, Norfolk, and was educated privately, and at Caius College, Cambridge. He graduated B.A. (Mathematical Tripos) in 1870, LL.B. (Law Tripos) in 1871, and M.A. in 1873, and was called to the Bar (Lincoln's Inn) in 1874. He has devoted much time to experimental scientific work, especially in relation to electricity, magnetism, and optics. Accounts of his researches are contained in numerous papers published in the Philosophical Transactions and the Proceedings of the Royal Society, the Proceedings of the Physical Society, the Philosophical Magazine, Nature, and other scientific journals. He was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1886, was President of the Physical Society, 1897-98; and a Member of the Institution of Electrical Engineers, and other associations. He married in 1874 Annie Wilhelmina Evelyn, daughter of the Rev. E. Firmstone, M.A., Rector of Wyke, near Winchester, and has three children. Addresses: Riverstone Lodge, Southfields, S.W.; 1 Mitre Court Buildings, Temple.

BIERSTADT, Albert, was born near Düsseldorf, in Germany, Jan. 7, 1830. His parents emigrated to the United States when he was two years of age, and settled in New England. He went to Germany in 1853, studied painting in Düsseldorf, spent a winter in Rome, made the tour of Switzerland and the Apennines, and returned to the United States in 1857. In 1859 he accompanied General Lander's expedition to the Rocky Mountains, where he spent several months in making sketches. He was made an Academician in 1860. In 1863 he produced his celebrated picture, "View of the Rocky Mountains—Lander's Peak," which at once gave him a high reputation. Among his subsequent works, the most noticeable have been—"Sunlight and Shadow," "The Storm in the Rocky Mountains," "Domes of the Yosemite," "Laramie Peak," "Emigrants Crossing the Plains," "Mount Hood," "Mount Whitney," "Scene near Fort Laramie," "Geysers of the Yellowstone," "Great Trees of California," "Matterhorn," "Rocky Mountain Sheep," "Settlement of California," "Discovery of the Hudson," "Last of the Buffalo," and "Landing of Columbus." He travelled in Europe in 1867, 1878, and 1883, and in 1863 and 1873 visited the Pacific coast, while in 1889 he went to Alaska. In 1871 he was made a member of the Academy of Fine Arts of St. Petersburg. He has received medals in Belgium, Germany, Bavaria, and Austria, the Legion of Honour, the Russian Order of St. Stanislaus, and the Turkish Order of the Medjidie. His house and studio at Irvington, New York, were destroyed by fire in November 1882; but though his loss was considerable, his more valuable pictures were fortunately at his studio in New York City, and so escaped destruction.

BIGELOW, John, American statesman and author, was born at Malden-on-Hudson, New York, Nov. 25, 1817. He graduated at Union College in 1835, was admitted to the Bar in 1839, became joint proprietor with William C. Bryant, and Managing Editor of the New York Evening Post in 1849, was appointed Consul at Paris by President Lincoln in 1861, Chargé d'Affaires in December 1864, and Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Court of France in April 1865; he resigned, and returned to the United States in the beginning of 1867 to devote himself to literary pursuits. He was chairman of the commission organised at the request of Governor Tilden to investigate the management of the canals of the State of New York in 1874, in 1875 was elected Secretary of State of the State of New York, in 1884 was offered the position of Chamberlain of the City of New York, and in 1851 was appointed Assistant Treasurer of the United States in New York, which in 1852. During his residence of Mr. Bigelow was a friend and confidant of the Immigration Service. He was one of the five inspectors of the prison at Sing Sing, and he was the author of all their annual reports to the Legislature. He visited the island of Jamaica in 1850, and upon his return published "Jamaica in 1850, or the History of Sixteen Years of Freedom on a Slave Colony." During his residence in Paris he published "Les Lutes d'un esclave" (1850). Also while in Paris he became the possessor of the original manuscript of the autobiography of Benjamin Franklin, from which he published in 1860 the first correct copy ever printed of that famous story. Among his other writings are "Some Recollections of Antoine Pierre Berryer," 1869; "France and Hereditary Monarchy," 1871; a "Life of Benjamin Franklin," in 8 vols., 1875, of which the third edition was issued in 1892; "The Wit and Wisdom of the Haymans," 1877; and "Molinos, the Quietist," 1882. He has been for many years an occasional contributor to Harper's, the Century, and Scribner's. He edited the "Writings and Speeches of Samuel J. Tilden," 2 vols., 1885; and "The Writings of Benjamin Franklin," in 10 vols., 1888. "Some Recollections of Laboulaye" were printed privately for him in 1889, and he contributed a "Life of William Cullen Bryant" to the "American Men of Letters" series in 1890. In 1895 he published "The Life of Samuel J. Tilden," and in 1896 "The Mystery of Sleep." Mr. Bigelow is one of the executors of the will of the late Samuel J. Tilden, and is President of the Board of Trustees of the "Tilden Trust." In 1886 the New York Chamber of Commerce, in response to an invitation of M. de Lesseps, requested Mr. Bigelow to accompany him to visit the works of the Panama Canal Company and report their situation and prospects. Mr. Bigelow's report was published by the Chamber of Commerce, to which he was immediately after elected an honorary member. He was appointed by President Cleveland sole Commissioner of the United States to the International Congress of Science and Industry at Vienna in 1894.

BIGGE, Dr. Armand 1944
C.M. - ~~University of~~ ~~the~~ ~~State~~ ~~of~~ ~~California~~
Armed Forces Institute of Pathology
1015 Locust St. Philadelphia, Pa. 19107 and is the author of "The War in the East" and "The War in the West".
See also "The War in the East" and "The War in the West" - ~~the~~ ~~author~~ ~~of~~ ~~the~~ ~~book~~ ~~"The~~ ~~War~~ ~~in~~ ~~the~~ ~~East~~ ~~and~~ ~~the~~ ~~War~~ ~~in~~ ~~the~~ ~~West"~~
Armed Forces Institute of Pathology
1015 Locust St. Philadelphia, Pa. 19107
Z-177

[illegible]

NIGHAM, Sir John C., K. B., Judge of the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice, was born in 1840 and is the son of John Nigham, member of Liverpool. He was educated at the Royal Institution, Liverpool, and at Berlin and Paris. He went to the Bar in 1864, took silk in 1888, and was elected a Bencher of his Inn in 1886. At the Bar he had a considerable practice. In 1899 he contested the Exchange Division of Liverpool for the Unionists, and was returned to Parliament for that division in 1903, retaining his seat till October 1897, when he was raised to the Bench and knighted. While in Parliament he was a Member of the Committee on the Jameson Raid in 1905. In 1870 he married Georgina, daughter of John Rogers, of Liverpool. Addresses: 10 Palace Gate, Kensington, W., and Third Smith Building, Temple, E.C.

BILOENCO, Madama—Madama Bilenco, Doctor at Law, a Roumanian by birth, is the first lady who obtained the degree of a Doctor at Law in France. She was born in 1861 at Bucharest, where her father is Governor of the National Bank. When only sixteen, she graduated as Bachelor of Letters, and the year after as Bachelor of Science. Encouraged by these early successes, M^{rs} Bilenco has pursued her studies and earned a doctor's degree in law, with a specialization in 1904. She was married in 1887 to a Roumanian, a member of the Roumanian Senate, and she has two children, a son and a daughter. She is a member of the Roumanian Academy of Sciences and of the Roumanian Academy of Letters. She is also a member of the Roumanian Academy of Medicine and of the Roumanian Academy of Sciences. She is also a member of the Roumanian Academy of Letters and of the Roumanian Academy of Medicine and of the Roumanian Academy of Sciences. She is also a member of the Roumanian Academy of Letters and of the Roumanian Academy of Medicine and of the Roumanian Academy of Sciences.

place on June 12, 1890. The thesis she selected was "The Status or Position of Mothers under French and Roman Laws," a paper of 504 pages, which she read before a large audience, the jury congratulating her on the choice of the subject, and the remarkable manner in which she had treated the same. Mlle. Bilcesco is not only a first-rate scholar, but likewise a talented musician. She returns to Bucharest, where she proposes to claim admission to the Roumanian Bar, not so much to set up as a lawyer, as to decide the question of a woman's right to practise the profession of the law.

BILLOT, Jean François, French general and senator, born at Chaumeil, Aug. 15, 1828, and admitted to the École de St. Cyr, Dec. 1, 1847, was appointed to the Staff in 1849. By successive promotions he became Colonel in November 1870. The brilliant portion of his military career has been almost entirely African. He was recalled from Algiers to France on the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian War. He was promoted to field rank, and took command of the 18th Corps d'Armée. He was victorious at the engagements of Beaune-la-Rolande and Villersexel. At the conclusion of peace he was elected to the National Assembly by his own department of Corrèze, and sat among the Republicans of the Left. He opposed vigorously the attempts of a monarchic restoration in 1873, and in 1875 was elected a senator. He had the chief part in the passing of a bill for the reorganisation of the Staff of the French army, opening it to all ranks in February 1878. In 1879 he was appointed Chief of the 15th Corps d'Armée at Marseilles, and in 1882 became Minister of War in the Freycinet Cabinet, which post he continued to hold in the Duclerc Cabinet of August of the same year. His chief work was in the cause of the army of Africa, of the artillery of fortresses, and of the defence of the Invalides against suppression. He resigned Jan. 30, 1883, for refusing to deprive the Orleans princes of their military rank. In 1885 he became head of the 1st Corps at Lille, and then a Member of the Conseil Supérieur de la Guerre. In 1889 he strenuously opposed the bill on regional recruiting, and on the 8th of July was made a Grand Cross of the Legion of Honour, of which he had been a Chevalier since 1859. In 1897 he played an unenviable part in the Dreyfus-Esterhazy-Zola trials, and he was the chief factor in endeavouring to place the army on an impossible pinnacle above suspicion. This attempt of a military caste to form itself into a dictatorship was regarded with dismay by all true friends of the French nation abroad.

However, he felt he had gone too far, and moderated the tone of his witnesses in the Courts. General Billot retired with his other colleagues of the Méline Cabinet in June 1898.

BINNIE, Sir Alexander R., M.Inst. C.&M.E., F.G.S., F.R.M.S., &c., Engineer to the London County Council, was born in London in 1839, and was educated at various private academies. He was a pupil and assistant to the celebrated J. F. Le Trobe Bateman, F.R.S., who was President of the Institution of Civil Engineers, and Engineer to the Glasgow and Manchester Waterworks. In early life Mr. Binnie was engaged on railway construction in England and Wales. He entered the Public Works Department of India by open competition in 1868, and during his six years' service in that country was engaged in the exploration which led to the discovery of coal in the Central Provinces, for which he received the commendation of the Government of India; he successfully designed and constructed the whole of the works for the supply of the City of Najpur with water, for which he again received the commendation of Government; he was also engaged on railway work, and for a short period acted an Assistant Secretary, Public Works Department, to the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces. For fifteen years he was Engineer to the Bradford Corporation, during which period he designed and successively constructed many large works at a cost of over one million sterling, and among them the highest reservoir embankment (125 feet) in the United Kingdom; he also laid out and designed for the Corporation a large extension of the waterworks in the Nedd Valley at an estimated cost of £1,250,000. Sir Alexander is the author of a paper on the Najpur waterworks, for which he received from the Institution of Civil Engineers a Telford medal and premium. He has been appointed on more than one occasion Lecturer on Waterworks at the School of Military Engineering at Chatham, and his lectures have been published by Government, besides which he is the author of many valuable professional reports, and an address as President to the Bradford Philosophical Society on "Heat in its Relation to Coal." Since his appointment as Chief Engineer to the London County Council, he has been engaged on the purification of the sewage discharged into the river, which has made such a marked improvement in the condition of the Thames; has constructed the new bridge over the Lee at Barking Road; has designed and completed the Blackwall Tunnel; prepared new designs for Highgate Archway and Vauxhall Bridge; besides laying out works for bringing a supply of water from Wales to supplement the present Thames and Lee sources. Since 1890 Sir Alexander Binnie has been Chief Engineer to the London County Council. He received the honour of knighthood in 1897. Address: 77 Ladbroke Drive, W.

BINYON, Laurence, son of Rev. Frederick Binyon, was born at Lancaster, 1869, educated at St. Paul's School and at Trinity College, Oxford; Newdigate Prize, 1890; B.A., 1892. He was appointed Assistant in the British Museum Printed Books Department in 1893, and transferred to Department of Prints and Drawings in 1895. He published works are: in verse, "Primavera" (part author), 1890; "Lyric Poems," 1894; "Poems," 1895; "London Visions," 1895; "The Praise of Life," 1896; "Porphyryion," 1898: in prose, two portfolio monographs, "Dutch Etchers," 1895, "Crome and Cotman," 1897; "Descriptive Catalogue of Drawings of the British School in the British Museum" (in progress), vol. 1, 1898. Address: British Museum.

BIRDWOOD, Sir George Christopher Molesworth, M.D., C.S.I., K.C.I.E., LL.D., eldest son of the late General Christopher Birdwood, 3rd Bombay Native Infantry, and Commissary-General, Bombay, was born at Belgaum, Bombay, Dec. 8, 1832. He was educated at Plymouth New Grammar School, and the University, Edinburgh, where he took the degree of M.D., and passed the usual examination of the College of Surgeons in 1854. He was appointed to the Medical Staff of the East India Company on their Bombay Establishment in the same year. His first charge was of the Southern Mahratta Horse, Kalludghee, in 1855. Later he was transferred to the 1st Battery 2nd Brigade of Artillery at Sholapore, where he was also at different times in charge of the 8th Madras Cavalry, 3rd Bombay Native Infantry, and the Civil Station. In 1856 he was sent to the Persian Gulf in medical charge of the Company's steamship Ajdaha, and on his return to Bombay in April 1857 he was appointed Acting Professor of Anatomy and Physiology in Grant Medical College, and from that date to his leaving India continued to be connected with the college almost without interruption in the chairs successively of Anatomy and Physiology, and Botany and Materia Medica. In the same year Dr. Birdwood was appointed Curator of the Government Central Museum at Bombay. Later he was appointed Registrar of the University; and he also held the offices of Honorary Secretary to the Bombay Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society, and Honorary Secretary to the Agri-Horticultural Society of Western India. With the assistance of the late eminent Hindu physician, Dr. Bhau Daje, he was mainly instrumental in establishing the Victoria and Albert Museum and the Victoria Gardens in Bombay. In 1864 he was appointed Sheriff of Bombay, and in 1868 Special Commissioner for the Government of Bombay at the International Exhibition held in Paris in that year. In 1869 he was forced finally to leave India, through permanently broken health. On the occasion of the proclamation of the Queen as Empress of India, Jan. 1, 1877, he was appointed to the Companionship of the Star of India; and the honour of knighthood was conferred on him in September 1881. In 1887 he had conferred on him the honorary degree of LL.D., Cambridge, and was decorated with the insignia of the Knight Companionship of the Order of the Indian Empire. He still maintains his official ties with India, having been appointed, about 1879, Special Assistant in the Revenue, Statistics, and Commerce Department of the India Office. He was a Royal Commissioner and Member of the Finance Committee of the Colonial and Indian Exhibition of 1886; and Chairman of the Committee of the British Indian Section of the Paris Exhibition of 1889; a Royal Commissioner for the Chicago Exhibition of 1893; and a Member of the London and Antwerp Consultative and Executive Committees for the British Section at the Antwerp Exhibition of 1894. He is the author of "Catalogue of the Economic Products of the Bombay Presidency (Vegetable)," 1st edit. 1862, 2nd edit. 1868; "The Genus Boswellia (Frankincense plants), with illustrations of three new species," in the Transactions of the Linnean Society, vol. xxvii.; the article "Incense," in the "Encyclopædia Britannica"; "The Perfumes of the Bible," in Cassell's "Bible Educator"; "Handbook to the British Indian Section, Paris Exhibition of 1878;" the article "On an Ancient Silver Patera," in the Transactions of the Royal Society of Literature, vol. xi. New Series, 1881; "Handbook on the Industrial Arts of India," 1880; "The Arts of India," 1881; "Ausstellung Indischer Kunst-Gegenstände, zu Berlin," 1881; "Indiens Konstslöjd en Kortfattad Skildring," Stockholm, 1882; "Indiens Kunst-industrie, Kjöbenhavn," 1882; "Report on the Miscellaneous Old Records of the India Office," 1879, reprinted 1890; and "The First Letter Book of the (English) East India Company," 1893. He has also contributed introductions to "The Miracle Play of Hassan and Husain," by Sir Lewis Pelly, 1879; to "Eastern Carpets," by Mr.

Vincent Robinson, 1882; to "The Dawn of the British Trade in the East," by Henry Stevens, 1886; to "Representative Men of India," by Sorabji Jehanghier, 1889; the "Catalogue of the Indian Section of the Edinburgh Forestry Exhibition," 1884; and an Appendix on "The Aryan Fauna and Flora," to Professor Max Müller's "Biographies of Words," 1888; a "Report on Spanish Chestnuts," 1892; and a Monograph on "The Antiquity of the Oriental Manufacture of Sumptuary Carpets," to the monumental work on "Oriental Carpets," published by the Royal and Imperial Ministry of Commerce, Worship, and Education, 1892-94, the English edition of which, edited by Mr. Caspar Purden Clarke, C.I.E., was issued in Vienna. He was a constant contributor to the Indian press, and for some time editor of the Bombay Saturday Review. Letters by him on the opium trade, which had appeared in the Times, were republished in Mr. W. H. Brereton's "Truth about Opium," 1882. He is also the author of the article "Are we Despoiling India?—a Rejoinder, by 'John Indigo,'" in the National Review for September 1883; and of a review of Sir Henry Yule's "Hobson Jobson," in the Quarterly Review for 1887; and of the following articles in the Asiatic Quarterly Review: "The Christmas Tree," January 1886; "The Empire of the Hittites," January 1888; "The Mahratta Plough," October 1888; and "Leper in India," April 1890. He has been a contributor also to the Bombay Quarterly Review, the Journal of the East Indian Association, the Journal of the National Indian Association, the Journal of the Society of Arts, and the Journal of Indian Art. Sir George Birdwood married in 1856 Frances Anne, eldest daughter of the late Edward Tolcher, Esq., R.N., of Harewood, Plympton St. Mary's, Devon. Address: 7 Apsley Terrace, Acton, W.

BIRRELL, Augustine, Q.C., M.P., youngest son of the Rev. C. M. Birrell of Liverpool, and Harriet Jane Grey, daughter of the Rev. Henry Grey, D.D., of Edinburgh, was born Jan. 19, 1850, at Wavertree, near Liverpool. He was educated at Amersham Hall School, near Reading, and Trinity Hall, Cambridge, where he graduated with honours in Law and History in 1872. He was called to the Bar by the Inner Temple, November 1875, and practises in the Chancery Division; is the author of "Obiter Dicta," two series, 1884 and 1887; and "Life of Charlotte Brontë," 1887; "Res Judicatæ," 1892; "Men, Women, and Books," 1894; "Lectures on Trustees," 1896; and an edition of Boswell, 1897. He contested the Walton Division of Liverpool in 1885, and the Widnes Division of Lancashire in 1886, both unsuccessfully. He was returned to Parliament for West Fife in July 1889, on the retirement of the Hon. R. P. Bruce, and again in 1892 and 1895. He was appointed Quain Professor of Law at University College, London, in 1896, where in June 1898 he delivered the annual oration on Founder's Day, taking as his subject, "University Ideals." He married first, in 1878, Margaret, daughter of the late Archibald Mirrielees, formerly of St. Petersburg (she died in 1879); and second, in 1888, Eleanor, widow of the Hon. Lionel Tennyson, and daughter of Frederick and Lady Charlotte Locker Lampson. Addresses: 30 Lower Sloane Street, S.W., and 3 New Square, Lincoln's Inn, &c.

BISHOP, William Henry, American author, was born at Hartford, Connecticut, Jan. 7, 1847, and graduated at Yale College in 1867. He has been a frequent contributor to periodical literature, and in addition has published "Detmold," 1879; "The House of a Merchant Prince," 1882; "Choy Susan, and other Stories," 1884; "Old Mexico, and Her Lost Provinces," 1884; "Fish and Men in the Maine Islands," 1884; "The Golden Justice," 1887; "The Brown Stone Boy, and other Queer People," 1883; "The Yellow Snake," 1891; "A House-Hunter in Europe," 1893; "A Pound of Cure," and "Writing to Rosina," 1894; "The Garden of Eden, U.S.A.," 1895.

BISPHAM, David S., principal baritone at the Royal Opera, Covent Garden, and at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, was born in Philadelphia, U.S.A., Jan. 5, 1857, of families of old English Quaker stock, the name Bispham having been associated from time immemorial with the county of Lancashire, England, while his mother's family name, Scull, has been associated with the west of England since the time of William the Conqueror. Notwithstanding the influences of more than two hundred years of Quaker doctrine, which, in the United States, is even more strictly insisted upon than in the mother-country, the musical faculty which might have been quenched by lack of use in previous generations found unmistakable vent, and, at an early age, in David Bispham, who, though granted but a small measure of musical education in his youth, has through insistence upon one object, and the maintenance of the highest standard of vocal art and achievements, attained to a position on the operatic stage and the concert platform unsurpassed by any singer in the English-speaking world to-day. He made his début as the Duc de Longueville in "The Basoche," Royal English Opera, in 1891, and has sung the principal rôles in French, German, and Italian at the Royal Opera, Covent Garden. Address: 19 Kensington Gore, S.W.

BJØRNSSEN, Bjørnstjerne, a Norwegian novelist and dramatic poet, was born Dec. 8, 1832, at Quickne, in Norway, where his father was pastor. He completed his education at the Universities of Christiania and Copenhagen, and first became known in consequence of some articles and stories which he contributed to newspapers, especially the Folkeblad, an illustrated journal, in the columns of which appeared his "Aanum," "Ole Stormsen," and "En munter Mand." The years 1856 and 1857 he passed at Copenhagen, where he studied the works of Baggensen, of Oelenschläger, and of the principal Danish writers. Afterwards he published in Fædrelandet (Fatherland) his novel of "Throné," which was followed by "Arne," perhaps his most popular story, and the idyllic peasant romance, "Synnøve Solbakken." Ole Bull appointed him as manager of the Bergen Theatre, and in 1858 he put on the stage, "Halte Hulda," and "Mellena Slagene" (Between the Battles). As a Christiania editor and journalist Bjørnsen expressed strong republican opinions, which aroused considerable public excitement. He was finally condemned to a year's imprisonment for treason, but escaped to Germany, and afterwards to America, and did not return to Christiania until 1882, when he once more began the work of agitation against the Government and the union of the two Scandinavian kingdoms. He settled near Lillehammer, became leader of the "Peasants' Party," and acquired some influence in political quarters. He has produced some notable tragedies and other pieces for the stage. These are "Halte Hulda," "Mellena Slagene," "Kong Swerre," the trilogy of "Sigurd Slembe," some translations of French plays, and the tragedy of "Mary Stuart." His comedy, "En Hanske," was translated by Mr. Osman Edwards for the English stage in 1894. The following works of his have been translated into English: "Arne; a Sketch of Norwegian Country Life," translated from the Norwegian by A. Plesner and S. Rugeley Powers, 1866; "Ovind; a Story of Country Life in Norway," translated by S. and E. Hjerleid, 1869; "The Fisher Maiden," a Norwegian tale translated from the author's German edition, by M. E. Niles, 1869—also translated from the Norwegian, under the title of "The Fishing Girl," by A. Plesner and F. Richardson, 1870; "The Happy Boy: a Tale of Norwegian Peasant Life," translated by H. R. G., 1870; "The Newly Married Couple," translated by S. and E. Hjerleid, 1870; and "Love and Life in Norway," translated from the Norwegian by the Hon. A. Bethell and A. Plesner, 1870. In recent years, "In God's Way," and the "Heritage of the Kurts," both very powerful novels, have appeared in Mr. Edmund Gosse's International Series. As a lyric poet Bjørnsen takes high rank; he has even attempted the composition of epic verse. He has been a voluminous writer and dramatist, and in all his work has striven to become a vehicle of national feeling, seeking to give expression to the Norwegian spirit. He has a strong dislike for the modern cult of mere French imitation, and has done his best to discourage the practice. In this respect he is, without question, one of the most stimulating influences for the revival of Scandinavian literature.

BLACK, William, was born at Glasgow in 1841, and received his education at various private schools. His youthful ambition was to become an artist, and he studied for a short time in the Government School of Art in his native city, but eventually he drifted into journalism, becoming connected with the Glasgow Weekly Citizen while yet in his teens. In 1864 he came to London, and wrote for magazines. He was attached, in the following year, to the staff of the Morning Star, and was special correspondent for that paper during the Prusso-Austrian war of 1866, scenes from which appeared in his first novel, "Love or Marriage," published in 1867. This novel dealt too much with awkward social problems, and was not successful, but the author's next work of fiction was favourably received. It was entitled "In Silk Attire," 1869, and a considerable portion of it was devoted to descriptions of peasant life in the Black Forest. Then followed "Kilmeny" and "The Monarch of Mincing Lane," the former dealing mostly with Bohemian artistic life in London. But his first real hold of the novel-reading public was obtained by "A Daughter of Heth," 1871, which went through many editions. Next came "The Strange Adventures of a Phaeton," 1872, which literally described a driving excursion that the author made from London to Edinburgh, with a thread of fiction interwoven. It is said that a good many Americans, amongst others, have adopted this plan of exploring the English counties, and have taken the "Adventures" as a sort of guide-book. In 1873 was published "A Princess of Thule." It was followed by "The Maid of Killeena and other Stories," 1874; "Three Feathers," 1875, the scene of which was laid in Cornwall;

"Madcap Violet," 1876; "Green Pastures and Piccadilly," 1877; "MacLeod of Dare," 1878; "White Wings; a Yachting Romance," 1880; "Sunrise: a Story of these Times," 1881; "The Beautiful Wretch," 1882; "Shandon Bells," 1883; "Yolande," 1883; "Judith Shakespeare," 1884; "White Heather," 1885; "Sabina Zembra," 1887; "The Strange Adventures of a House-Boat" (a sequel to the Phaeton Adventures), 1888; "In Far Lochaber," 1889; "The New Prince Fortunatus," and "Stand Fast, Craig-Royston!" 1890; "Donald Ross of Heimra," 1891; "Wolfenberg," 1892; and "The Handsome Humes," 1893; "Highland Cousins," 1894; "Briseix," 1896; &c. For four or five years Mr. Black was assistant editor of the Daily News, but he practically ceased his connection with journalism over fifteen years ago. Addresses: 15 Buckingham Street, W.C.; and Paston House, Brighton.

BLACKLEY, The Rev. Canon William Lewery, M.A., is the second son of the late Travers R. Blackley, Esq., of Ash-town Lodge, co. Dublin, and Bohogh, co. Roscommon. He was born at Dundalk, Ireland, Dec. 30, 1830, and received part of his early education on the Continent. Having entered Trinity College, Dublin, in his sixteenth year, he obtained his B.A. degree in 1850, and his M.A. in 1854, in which year he was ordained to the curacy of St. Peter's, Southwark; shortly after he became Curate of Frensham, where he remained thirteen years, and was then promoted by Bishop Sumner in 1867 to the rectory of North Waltham, Hants; whence, in 1883, he was preferred by Bishop Harold Browne to the vicarage of King's Somborne, in the same county, and to an Honorary Canonry in the Cathedral of Winchester. In 1889 he was appointed by the Dean and Chapter of Westminster to the vicarage of St. James the Less, Westminster, which he now holds. In 1857 he published his metrical translation from the Swedish of Bishop Tegner's famous poem, "The Frithjof Saga." This was followed by the publication of his "Practical German Dictionary," which in its original and abridged forms has passed through many editions. In 1867 he published his "Critical English New Testament"; and his volume on "Word Gossip" followed in 1869. He also, besides frequent contributions to all the leading reviews, wrote, for the National Society, the Teacher's Manual, "How to teach Domestic Economy," 1879; and "The Social Economy Reading Book," 1881; and his book on "Thrift and Independence, a Word to Working Men," was published by the S.P.C.K. in 1883. In November 1878 he published an article in the Nineteenth Century under the title of "National Insurance, a cheap, practical, and popular way of preventing Pauperism," which immediately attracted public attention. A sermon preached by Canon Blackley in Westminster Abbey in September 1879, on "Our National Improvidence," also attracted much notice. The National Provident League was formed in 1880, for the purpose of educating public opinion on the subject of National Insurance against pauperism. Canon Blackley's proposals have reached far beyond this country, with the result that movements more or less upon his lines have been started in France, Switzerland, Italy, and New Zealand; while a complete system of National Insurance has been established throughout the whole German Empire, securing sick pay, accident pay, and old age pensions to all workers. Address: 75 St. George's Square, S.W.

BLACKMORE, Richard Doddridge, novelist, son of the Rev. John Blackmore, was born at Longworth, Berkshire, in 1825. His maternal grandmother was a granddaughter of Dr. Doddridge. He was educated at Tiverton School and Exeter College, Oxford, where he obtained a scholarship and graduated B.A. in 1847, taking a second-class in Classics. He was called to the Bar at the Middle Temple in 1852, and afterwards practised as a conveyancer. He is the author of "Poems by Melanter," "Epuilia," "The Bugle of the Black Sea," "Fringilla," and the following novels: "Clara Vaughan," 1864; "Craddock Nowell: a Tale of the New Forest," 1866; "Lorna Doone: a Romance of Exmoor," 1869; "The Maid of Sker," 1872; "Alice Lorraine: a Tale of the South Downs," 1875; "Cripps the Carrier: a Woodland Tale," 1876; "Erëma; or, My Father's Sin," 1877; "Mary Anerley," 1880; "Christowell: a Dartmoor Tale," 1882; "Remarkable History of Sir Thomas Upmore," 1884; "Springhaven," 1887; "Kit and Kitty," 1889; "Perlycross," 1894; "Tales from the Telling-house," 1896; and "Dariel," 1897. Mr. Blackmore has also published "The Fate of Franklin," a poem, 1860; "The Farm and Fruit of Old," a translation of the first and second Georgics of Virgil, 1862; and a translation of "The Georgics of Virgil," 1871. Mr. Blackmore is a large fruit-grower at Teddington, and has at times contributed interesting letters to the Times on the subject of fruit-growing.

BLACKWOOD, William, publisher and editor of Blackwood's Magazine, was born on July 13, 1836, at Lucknow, and is the eldest son of Major William Blackwood, of the 59th Native Infantry, and Emma, eldest daughter of Brigadier-General George Moore, also in the East India Company's service. Major Blackwood was of the second generation of publishers of that name, and his father, William, was the founder of the famous house. Mr. William Blackwood was educated at Edinburgh Academy and at the University of Edinburgh, and completed his studies at the Sorbonne (Paris) and at Heidelberg. He entered the publishing business under Major Blackwood and his uncle, Mr. John Blackwood, in 1857. He has devoted much space as a publisher and editor to accounts of travel as well as to fiction. In his capacity of country gentleman he was at one time Lieutenant of the Midlothian Yeomanry Cavalry, and is a member of the Royal Company of Archers. He has received the Jubilee Medal presented by the Queen to those who have attended her personally at least on three occasions. Addresses: 45 George Street, Edinburgh; 37 Paternoster Row, E.C.; and Gogar Mount, Midlothian.

BLAIKIE, Professor William Garden, D.D., LL.D., F.R.S.E., son of an eminent lawyer, who afterwards was Lord Provost of Aberdeen, was born at Aberdeen in 1820, and educated at the Grammar School and University of his native town. As soon as he was qualified he received an appointment to the parish of Drumblade, but on the Disruption in 1843 he and his congregation joined the Free Church of Scotland. After a short ministry in the country he was invited to go to Edinburgh, and there, in company with other young men of zeal, founded the Pilgrimage Free Church. In 1864 the University of Edinburgh conferred on him the degree of D.D., and a few years later he received the degree of LL.D. from the University of Aberdeen. In 1868 he was appointed Professor of Apologetics and Pastoral Theology in New College, Edinburgh. In 1888, as "Cunningham Lecturer," he delivered a course of lectures on "The Preachers of Scotland," afterwards published. Dr. Blaikie was one of the chief promoters of "The Alliance of Reformed Churches holding the Presbyterian system," commonly called "The Pan-Presbyterian," and was one of the chief secretaries at each of the four meetings in Edinburgh, Philadelphia, Belfast, and London. He was President of the meeting at Toronto in 1892. In the same year he was chosen Moderator of the General Assembly of the Free Church. He has edited various periodicals, including the North British Review, Sunday Magazine, Catholic Presbyterian, &c. He has also written "Better Days for Working People," "Personal Life of David Livingstone," "The Work of the Ministry," "Personal Ministry and Pastoral Methods of our Lord," three volumes of the "Expositor's Bible," "Heroes of Israel," "Life of Dr. Chalmers" ("Famous Scots" series), "Memoir of Principal David Brown of Aberdeen," &c. He has contributed to many magazines and journals, including, besides those which he edited, the Quiver, the Expositor, Harper, Macmillan, Good Words, Sunday at Home, Blackwood, &c. Of the "Present Day Tracts," issued by the Religious Tract Society, a considerable number have been written by him. Addresses: 9 Palmerston Road, Grange, Edinburgh; and 2 Tantallon Terrace, North Berwick.

BLAIR, Lieut.-General James, C.B., V.C., entered the army on June 30, 1844; lieutenant, March 19, 1848; captain, Oct. 23, 1857; major, June 10, 1864; lieutenant-colonel, June 10, 1870; colonel, June 10, 1875; major-general, July 2, 1885; lieutenant-general, Jan. 9, 1889. Lieut.-General J. Blair served throughout the Indian Mutiny campaign of 1857-59, and was present at the siege of Neemuch, siege and assault of Kotah, and pursuit of Tantia Toppe (medal with clasp, and Victoria Cross). He received the V.C. "for having on two occasions distinguished himself by his gallant and daring conduct. First, on the night of Aug. 12, 1857, at Neemuch, in volunteering to apprehend seven or eight armed mutineers, who had shut themselves up for defence in a house, the door of which he burst open. He then rushed in among them, and forced them to escape through the roof; in this encounter he was severely wounded. In spite of his wounds, he pursued the fugitives, but was unable to come up with them in consequence of the darkness of the night. Second, on Oct. 23, 1857, at Jeerum, in fighting his way most gallantly through a body of rebels, who had literally surrounded him. After breaking his sword on one of their heads, and receiving a severe sword cut on his right arm, he rejoined his troop. In this wounded condition, and with no other weapon than the hilt of his broken sword, he put himself at the head of his men, charged the rebels most effectually, and dispersed them."

BLAKE, Sir Henry Arthur, G.C.M.G., F.R.G.S., Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of Hong-Kong, born at Corbally, Limerick, Jan. 18, 1840, is the eldest son of Peter Blake, Esq., County Inspector of Irish Constabulary, second son of Peter Blake, of Corbally Castle, co. Galway (see title "WALLSCOURT," Burke's Peerage), and Jane, daughter of John Lane, Esq., of Lanespark, co. Tipperary (Captain 17th Light Dragoons). He was educated at Dr. St. John's academy, Kilkenny, and Santry College; entered the Royal Irish

Constabulary, February 1859; Resident Magistrate, 1876; was one of the five Special Resident Magistrates (now Divisional Commissioners), selected in January 1882 to concert and carry out measures for the pacification of Ireland; had executive charge of the following counties:—Kildare co., Queen's co., Meath, Carlow, Galway East and Galway West; was Governor of Bahama 1884 to 1887; Governor of Newfoundland 1877 to 1888, in which year he was appointed Governor of Queensland, but resigned his commission on return to England. He was appointed Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief of Jamaica, January 1889, where he presided over the Legislative Council till February 1893, when Dr. Philipps was appointed in his place. In 1897 he left Jamaica for Hong-Kong, of which he was then appointed Governor. He has contributed from time to time articles in The Westminster Review, The Nineteenth Century, The Portnightly, The St. James's Gazette, &c., and has published "Pictures from Ireland," by Terence M'Grath. He married, first, in 1862, Jane, eldest daughter of Andrew Irwin, Esq., Ballymore, co. Roscommon; she died in 1866; second, 1874, Edith, eldest daughter of Ralph Bernal Osborne, Esq., of Newton Anner, co. Tipperary. Address: Government House, Victoria, Hong-Kong.

BLAKE, Henry Wollaston, M.A., was born in 1815, and is a Director of the Bank of England. He is a Fellow of the Royal Society, and of the Royal Geographical Society. He is married to Edith, daughter of the Rev. Prebendary E. B. Hawksham, Rector of Weston-under-Penyard, Herefordshire. Addresses: 8 Devonshire Place, W.; and Athenæum.

BLANDFORD, George Fielding, M.D., was born at Hindon, Wiltshire, on March 7, 1829, and was educated at Rugby and Oxford. He is an M.D. of that University, and a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians of London. He was formerly President of the Medico-Psychological Association of Great Britain and Ireland, and in 1894 he acted as President of the Psychological Section of the British Medical Association. Dr. Blandford is the author of: "Lectures on Insanity and its Treatment," 4th edit., 1892; the article "Insanity" in Quain's "Dictionary of Medicine"; the article "Prognosis of Insanity" in Tuke's "Dictionary of Psychological Medicine," and the Lumleian Lectures on Insanity, published in the Lancet in 1895. Addresses: 48 Wimpole Street, W.; and Athenæum.

BLANDFORD, William Thomas, LL.D., F.R.S., F.G.S., F.Z.S., F.R.G.S., Associate of the Royal School of Mines, and Fellow of Calcutta University, was born on Oct. 7, 1832, in Bouverie Street, London. He was educated at private schools in Brighton and Paris, at the Royal School of Mines, London, and at the Mining School, Freiberg, Saxony. He was President of Section C (Geology) of the British Association at Montreal in 1884; was Vice-President of the Royal Society in 1892-93; President of the Geological Society, 1888-1890; Vice-President of the Zoological Society from 1893 to 1897; Vice-President of the Royal Geographical Society from 1893 to 1896; and is a Past-President and Hon. Member of the Asiatic Society of Bengal. He served on the Persian Boundary Commission in 1871-72, was on the Staff of the Geological Survey of India from 1855 to 1882, and he was attached to the Abyssinian Expedition as Geologist in 1867-68, accompanying the army to Magdala, and receiving a medal for his services on the expedition. He is the author of: "Geology and Zoology of Abyssinia," 1870; "Eastern Persia," vol. ii.; "Zoology and Geology," 1876; "Manual of the Geology of India" (part author), 1879; editor of "The Fauna of British India," and author of "Mammalia," 1888-1891; "Birds," vol. iii. 1895; vol. iv. 1898; also of numerous reports and papers on geology and zoology, chiefly relating to India. He is married to Ida Gertrude, daughter of R. L. Bellhouse. Addresses: 72 Bedford Gardens, W.; and Athenæum.

BLASHILL, Thomas, Capt. H.A.C., son of Mr. Henry Blashill, of Sutton-on-Hull, was educated at Hull and Scarborough, and professionally in London offices, and at University College. He is the Superintending Architect of Metropolitan Buildings, and Architect to the London County Council, is a Member of Council of the Royal Institute of British Architects, and Vice-President and Treasurer of the British Archaeological Association; a Past-President (1862) of the London Architectural Association; a Fellow of the Surveyors' Institution, and F.Z.S. He was elected a District Surveyor of Metropolitan Buildings, 1876, and Superintending Architect, 1887. He has published a "Guide to Tintern Abbey," 1879; a "History of Sutton in Holderness," 1896; and has read papers "On Health, Comfort, and Cleanliness in the House," before the Society of Arts; on "Oak and Chestnut in Old Timber Roofs," before the Institute of Architects; on "Party-walls, &c." before the Architectural Association; on "Shoring," "The Growth and Seasoning of Timber," and on "English and Continental Doors," before the Carpenters' Company; on "The Influence of the Public Authority on Street Architecture," before the Congress at Edinburgh in 1889; on "Artizans' Dwellings," and on "Fire and Panic." Address: Sutton in Holderness.

BLIND, Karl, was born at Mannheim, Sept. 4, 1826, and studied jurisprudence and ancient Germanic literature at Heidelberg and Bonn. Active among students, working men, gymnastic associations, and the army, as a leader of Democratic circles, he was in 1846 and 1847 tried and imprisoned in Baden and Bavaria on charges of high-treason, but acquitted. In 1848, at Karlsruhe, he took a leading part in the preparations for a national rising. Arrested while endeavouring to expand the movement into one for a German Commonwealth, he was freed by the successes of the Revolution. During the Provisional Parliament at Frankfort he insisted, at mass-meetings, on the abolition of the Princely Diet, and the election of a provisional revolutionary executive. Wounded in a street-riot, he was proscribed after participating in the Republican rising led by Hecker. From Alsace he agitated for a new levy. Falsely accused of being implicated in the Paris Insurrection of June, he was imprisoned at Strassburg, and transported in chains to Switzerland; the Mayor of St. Louis generously preventing his surrender to the Baden authorities, which had been planned by the French police. During the first Schleswig-Holstein war, he, with Gustav von Struve, led, in September 1848, the second Republican Revolution in the Black Forest. At the storming of Staufen he fought on the barricade, and was among the last who left the town. Being made a prisoner through the treachery of some militiamen, he was court-martialled, his life being saved by the secret sympathy of two of the privates who were members of the Court. Sentenced, after a State trial, lasting ten days, to eight years' imprisonment in the spring of 1849, he was being secretly transported to the fortress of Mainz, when he was liberated by the people and soldiers breaking open the prison at Bruchsal. Heading the same day a hastily formed number of free corps, he endeavoured, with Struve, to take Rastatt, and then entered the capital of Baden. He was a firm opponent of Brentano, the chief of the new Government, whom he accused of being in occult connection with the ejected dynasty—a fact afterwards proved, when Brentano was declared a "traitor" by the Constituent Assembly. With Dr. Frederick Schütz he was sent on a diplomatic mission to Paris, accredited to Louis Napoleon, the then President of the Republic. There, in violation of the law of nations, he was arrested as being implicated in Ledru Rollin's rising for the protection of the Roman Republic, and threatened with being surrendered to the Prussian courts-martial if he continued to uphold his diplomatic quality. He refused to yield, and after several months of imprisonment, was banished from France. After this he lived in Belgium with his wife, who has made many sacrifices for the popular cause, and also undergone imprisonment. New prosecutions induced him to come with his family to England, whence he carried on a Democratic and National German Propaganda. After an amnesty in 1862, the House of Deputies at Stuttgart gave him a banquet. He was the speaker of the London Germans at Garibaldi's entry. He promoted the Schleswig-Holstein movement in connection with leaders of the Schleswig Diet, whose confidential communications he transmitted to the English Foreign Office; and he was at the head of the London Committee during the war of 1863-64. At Berlin, his stepson met with a tragic death in the attempt on the life of Prince Bismarck on May 7, 1866. For many years Karl Blind operated with Mazzini, Garibaldi, and other European leaders, and supported the cause of Hungary, Poland, the American Union, and the American Republic; for which thanks were expressed to him by President Lincoln and President Juarez. During the war of 1870-71 he supported his country's cause. In England he has been a member of Executive Committees on Transvaal, Egyptian, and other affairs. Many political writings, and essays on history, mythology, and Germanic literature, published in Germany, England, America, Italy, and Spain, have proceeded from his pen; chiefly political biographies—Ledru Rollin, Francis Deak, and Freiligrath. He has exerted himself to bring about the national testimonial for the philosopher Feuerbach, and the monuments for the great minne-singers Hans Sachs and Walther von der Vogelweide. His step-daughter, Mathilde Blind, who died in 1896, was well known as a poetess and champion of woman's rights. Address: S. Hampstead, N.W.

BLISS, Cornelius N., was born at Fall River, Massachusetts, Jan. 26, 1833, and received an academic education at Fall River and at New Orleans, Louisiana. He entered mercantile pursuits in the latter city, but soon removed to Boston, Massachusetts, continuing his connection with commercial affairs in that city and in New York. He was a member of the Pan-American Conference, and President of the Protective Tariff League, but declined to be a candidate for the Governorship of

New York in 1885, and refused again a similar offer made in 1891. He was appointed Secretary of the Interior in President M'Kinley's Cabinet, March 5, 1897.

BLOFELD, Thomas Calthorpe, was born in 1836, and was educated at Eton and Trinity College, Cambridge. He was appointed Recorder of Ipswich in 1877, and he also occupies the position of Chancellor of the Diocese of Norwich.

BLOMFIELD, Sir Arthur William, M.A., A.R.A., F.S.A., F.R.I.B.A., was born at Fulham Palace on March 6, 1829. He is the fourth son of the late Right Rev. Charles James Blomfield, D.D., Bishop of London (1828-57), and of Dorothy, daughter of Charles Cox, Esq. He was educated at Rugby and at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he obtained his M.A. degree in 1854, afterwards studying architecture under the late P. C. Hardwick, Architect to the Bank of England, whom he eventually succeeded in that post. He was elected an Hon. Member of the Royal Academy of Arts at Copenhagen, and received the Order of the Danebrog (3rd Class) from the King of Denmark in 1887, on the occasion of the consecration of the English Church of St. Alban, built by him at Copenhagen. In 1888 he was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy, and received the honour of knighthood in 1889. In 1891 he received the gold medal of the Royal Institute of British Architects presented annually by the Queen, on the recommendation of the Institute, to some one who has rendered distinguished service to architecture by his work or writings. Addresses: 28 Montagu Square, and 6 Montagu Place, W.; Springfield, Broadway, Worcestershire.

BLOOD, Brigadier-General Sir Bindon, K.C.B., R.E., eldest son of William B. Blood, Esq., J.P., of Granagher, county Clare, was born in November 1842, and entered the army as a Lieutenant of Royal Engineers in December 1860, reaching the rank of Captain in 1873, Major in July 1881, and Lieut.-Colonel in July 1888. He was engaged in the expedition of 1878 against the Jowakis, an Afridi tribe, who were constantly raiding the North-West frontier of India, and was awarded medal with clasp. In 1879 Sir Bindon Blood went to South Africa, and took part in the Zulu campaign, for which he received a brevet majority. He also saw considerable service during the Afghan war. In 1882 he took part in the Egyptian expedition, being present at the battle of Tel-el-Kebir. He was mentioned in despatches, and received a brevet of Lieut.-Colonel and the Osmanieh of the 4th Class. In the expedition into Chitral of 1895 he acted as Chief Staff Officer, and had command of the Malakand Field Force, being present at nearly all the operations, including the storming of the Malakand and Amandara Passes, the passage of the Swat River, and the relief of Chakdarri. He was mentioned in despatches, and specially promoted to K.C.B. In January of 1896 he was appointed a Brigadier-General in the Bengal Command, and was Chief Staff Officer of the Chitral Relief Force in 1896. Sir Bindon Blood married in 1883 Charlotte, daughter of Sir Auckland Colville, K.C.S.I. Address: Granagher, Ennis, county Clare.

BLOUËT, Paul, "Max O'Rell," was born in Brittany (France) on March 2, 1848, educated in Paris, and took his degrees of B.A. and B.Sc. in 1864 and 1865. He received his commission in the French army in 1869; fought in the Franco-Prussian war; was made a prisoner at Sedan on Sept. 3, 1870; fought against the Commune; was severely wounded, and pensioned. He came to England as newspaper correspondent in 1873; was appointed Head French Master of St. Paul's School in 1876, and resigned his Mastership in 1884. In 1883 he published "John Bull and his Island," which took Paris and London by storm, and was soon translated into English, and also into most European languages and several Asiatic tongues. In 1884 he published "John Bull's Daughter"; in 1885, "The Dear Neighbours"; in 1886, "Drat the Boys!"; in 1887, "Friend MacDonald"; in 1889, "Jonathan and his Continent"; "Jacques Bonhomme," 1890; in 1891, "A Frenchman in America"; and "John Bull and Co."—a sketch of our Colonies, 1894. He has also written several educational works, amongst which is "French Oratory" (Oxford, 1883). All the works of "Max O'Rell" have been translated into English by his wife. Several orders, French and others, have been conferred on him. During the years 1887, 1888, 1889, and 1890 he gave lectures in the United Kingdom and in America. In 1891 he started on a two years' tour round the world, during which he gave 446 lectures in the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa. Since then he has been occupied in lecturing throughout the English provinces. One of his favourite lectures is "The Gospel of Cheerfulness," as exemplified by the habits and disposition of the French people, in which he contends that the real Frenchman is not known to the English. The Englishman gets his ideas of the French from what passes on the boulevards and from literature; because the French do not understand hospitality, and only admit their intimate friends to their homes; whereas French literature deals with exceptions, and not the real representative Frenchman, the small landowner deeply attached to his country and his cottage. Address: 8 Acacia Road, N.W.

BLOWITZ, Henri Georges Stephane Adolphe Oppen de, Times correspondent in Paris, was born of Jewish stock at the château of Blowitz, Pilsen, Bohemia, on Dec. 28, 1825. By a decree of May 6, 1860, he was permitted to assume the present form of his name, which in France and Germany implies noble rank. He was engaged for some time in the invention of a machine for wool-carding by steam. On Oct. 5, 1870, he was naturalised as a Frenchman, having for many years been employed as a teacher of German at various French lycées, especially that of Tours (1850), and as a literary and political journalist. In the latter capacity he wrote for the Gazette du Midi, and sent a weekly letter to the Lyons journal, La Décentralisation. He revealed the history of Ismail Pasha's special train which caused De Lesseps' defeat in the elections of 1869. After the war of 1870 he gave M. Thiers his warmest support, and was of the greatest assistance to General Espivent de la Villeboisnet in his efforts to suppress the Commune at Versailles by being in communication with Thiers at Versailles by a private wire from a house belonging to his wife, when other communications had been cut by the Communards. At the General's request he was decorated with the Legion of Honour in June 1871. In July of the same year he became temporary correspondent to the Times, and three years later was appointed their chief Paris representative. He inaugurated constant telegraphic communication, and obtained the concession of a special wire from 9 P.M. till 3 A.M. for his paper. In 1875 he revealed the plans of the German military party for a second invasion of France, and sent the whole of the Berlin Treaty to the Times before it was signed. His communications to the Times have often been of European importance. He was one of the originators of what is now known as the "interview," and Thiers, Gambetta, Prince Bismarck, the Marquis Tseng, Jules Ferry, Leo XIII., Prince Lobanoff, and the late Sultan at various times made use of him in his capacity of interviewer in order informally to gauge public opinion, or to influence it in their own favour. M. de Blowitz was promoted to be an Officer of the Legion of Honour on July 30, 1878. Besides of late years writing almost daily for the Times, he has published "Feuilles Volantes," 1858; a comedy entitled "Midi à Quatorze Heures," "Le Mariage Royal d'Espagne," 1878, and several other political pamphlets. He married in 1865 Anne Amélie Arrand d'Aquel. Paris address: Boulevard des Capucines 35.

BLUMENTHAL, Field-Marshal Leonard Count von, Chief of the General Staff of the Prussian Army, was born on July 30, 1810, at Schweltdt, on the Oder. He was, like the majority of the leaders of the Prussian army, a soldier from childhood. Educated from 1820 to 1827 in the military academies of Culm and Berlin, he was entered on July 27, 1827, as Second Lieutenant in the Guard Landwehr Regiment (the present Fusilier Guards), attended from 1830 to 1833 the general military school in Berlin, was from 1837 to 1845 Adjutant to the Coblenz Landwehr battalion, and became for the first time in 1846 Premier Lieutenant in the topographical division of the General Staff. In order that he might be thoroughly acquainted with technical military science, Blumenthal had been ordered for service during the following years to the Artillery Guards and the division of the Pioneer Guards. He had already, in March 1848, taken part, as Lieutenant in the Fusilier battalions of the 31st Infantry Regiment, in the street-fights in Berlin. Some months later Blumenthal was transferred as Captain (Jan. 1, 1849) to the General Staff, to which he has, with slight interruptions, belonged for about twenty-five years. In 1849 he took, as a member of the staff of General von Bonin, part in the Schleswig-Holstein campaign, and fought in the skirmishes at Auenbüll and Beuscha, in the battle of Colding, and in the affairs at Alminde, Gudsøe, and Tauloo Church, and took, in the siege and battle of Fredericia, so active and conspicuous a part, that he was, on May 14, 1849, promoted as Chief of the General Staff of the Schleswig-Holstein Army. His capabilities were regarded as being so brilliant, that in the following year (1850) he was named as General Staff officer of the Mobile Division under General von Tietzen in the electorate of Hesse. He was next sent, intrusted with special military propositions, to England, and was rewarded with the Order of the Red Eagle (4th Class, with swords). On June 18, 1853, advanced to the rank of Major in the Grand General Staff, Blumenthal was, as military companion and as General Staff officer of the 8th Division, appointed to take part in the spring exercises of that year in Thuringia and at Berlin. His linguistic and departmental knowledge led to his being entrusted with further commissions to England. In 1859 he was named the personal Adjutant of Prince Frederic Charles. On July 2, 1860, he became Colonel and Commander of the 31st, later of the 71st, Infantry Regiment. In 1861 he accompanied General von Bonin to the British Court, and became then the conductor of the foreign officers at the autumn manoeuvres on the Rhine, and military companion of the Crown Prince of Saxony at the coronation in Königsberg. Colonel von Blumenthal had been for some time Chief of the Staff of the Third Army Corps, when, on Dec. 15, 1863, he was nominated the Chief of the General Staff of the combined Mobile Army Corps against Denmark, and then had the first opportunity of exhibiting his splendid abilities. The part which he took in that war, especially at Missunde, in the storming of the trenches at Düppel, and the passage on to the island of Alsén, was so extremely important, that on June 25, 1864, he was promoted to be Major-General, and received the Order pour le Mérite. After the peace, General von Blumenthal commanded first the 7th and next the 30th Infantry Brigade. In the Austrian war of 1866 he was Chief of the General Staff of the Second Army of the Crown Prince, and for his distinguished services received the Oak-leaf of the Order pour le Mérite (one of the rarest distinctions in the army) and the Star of Knight Commander of the Order of the House of Hohenzollern. On Oct. 30, 1866, he was designated Commander of the 14th Division in Düsseldorf, and accompanied the Crown Prince in the autumn of 1866 to St. Petersburg. When, on the outbreak of the war with France, the Crown Prince was entrusted with the supreme command of the Third Army, General von Blumenthal was requested to accept the important post of Chief of the General Staff; and his Imperial Highness, when presented by the Emperor of Germany with the Iron Cross, declared that the same distinction was equally due to General von Blumenthal. In 1871 he was sent to England to represent the German Empire at the autumn manoeuvres at Chobham. Von Blumenthal was made Field-Marshal in 1888, and Count in 1893, and is recognised as one of the most distinguished strategists of modern Germany.

BLUNT, The Right Reverend Richard Frederick Lefevre, Bishop of Hull, Suffragan to the Archbishop of York, is the third son of Samuel Jasper Blunt, Esq., late senior clerk of the Colonial Office, and Elizabeth Mary Lee, daughter of R. E. N. Lee, Esq., of Chelsea, was born Nov. 16, 1833, and was educated at Merchant Taylors' School. After he had studied law in the Temple and Lincoln's Inn Fields he entered the Theological Department of King's College, London, and became Theological Associate (1st Class) in 1857, when he was ordained to the curacy of St. Paul's, Cheltenham, under the Rev. C. H. Bromby (now Bishop Bromby). In 1860 he became senior curate to his cousin, Rev. Gerald Blunt, at St. Luke's, Chelsea, and in the next year married Emily Jane, eldest daughter of John Simpson, Esq., of the Cedars, Upper Tooting. In 1864 he was appointed by Lord Hotham to the vicarage of Scarborough, and received from Archbishop Longley, at the request of Bishop Tait and the Principal and Professors of King's College, the degree of M.A., and five years afterwards he was elected Fellow of King's College. In 1870 he was appointed Rural Dean, and in the following year was collated to the Prebendal Stall of Grindall in York Minster, and in 1873 he was preferred to the Archdeaconry of the East Riding. During the winter of 1880 he acted as chaplain at Christ Church, Cannes, and in 1881 was made Hon. Chaplain to the Queen. In 1882 he received the degree of D.D. from Archbishop Tait, and in the following year he was collated by Archbishop Thomson to the Residentiary Stall in York Minster, and resigned his Prebendal Stall. In 1885 he became in due course Chaplain-in-ordinary to the Queen, and in 1886 he was appointed Select Preacher at Cambridge. On Bishop Magee succeeding to the Archbishopric of York, Archdeacon Blunt was nominated by the Crown as Bishop Suffragan of Hull, to which See he was consecrated on May 1, 1891. In the following year he resigned his Archdeaconry, and was collated to the Prebendal Stall of Bole in York Minster. He has been a Member of the Convocation of York since 1873, and one of the Assessors since 1888. Besides many charges, sermons, and papers, he has published "The Divine Patriot, and other Sermons," "Doctrina Pastoralis," Lectures in the Divinity School, Cambridge, "Notes for Confirmation Lectures," "Private Prayers and Daily Intercessions," "Meditations on the Holy Communion Service," the last four being published by the S.P.C.K. Addresses: The Vicarage, Scarborough; and The Residence, York.

BLUNT, Wilfrid Scawen, the son of F. S. Blunt of Crabbet Park, was born at Petworth House on Aug. 17, 1840, and succeeded to the Crabbet estates on the death of his elder brother in 1872. He was educated at Stonyhurst and Oscott, and was in the Diplomatic Service from 1858 to 1870. During the years 1877 to 1881 he travelled a good deal in the East, visiting Arabia, Syria, Persia, and Mesopotamia; and after taking part in the Egyptian National Movement of 1881 to 1882, he visited India. He contested Camberwell in the Home Rule interest in 1885, and again in the following year stood for Kidderminster in the same interest. As the result of calling a meeting in a proclaimed district of Ireland in 1887, Mr. Blunt was committed to prison for two months, this time being spent in Galway and Kilmainham Gaols. He is well known as an authority on Arab horse-breeding. He is the author of the well-known "Love Sonnets of Proteus," 1880; "The Future of Islam," 1882; "The Wind and the Whirlwind," 1883; "Ideas about India," 1885; "In Vinculis," 1889; "A New Pilgrimage," 1889; "Esther," 1892; "Stealing of the Mare," 1892; "Griselda," 1893. He was married, in 1869, to Lady Anne Noel, daughter of the 1st Earl of Lovelace, and has a daughter. Addresses: Crabtree Park, Three Bridges, Sussex; and 104½ Mount Street, Grosvenor Square, W.

BLYDEN, Edward Wilmot, American negro author, was born at St. Thomas, West Indies, Aug. 3, 1832. His parents were of pure negro blood, and he developed early a taste for languages. He returned to Africa and edited the Liberia Herald at the age of nineteen. He has filled the positions of Presbyterian pastor, Principal of Alexander High School, and President of Liberia College. He was Commissioner for Liberia to the General Assembly of the American Presbyterian Church in 1861 and 1880. He has since been Secretary of State for the Interior, and in 1892 was appointed to his present post of Minister of Liberia at the Court of St. James's. His chief works are: "From West Africa to Palestine," 1873; "Liberia, its Status and its Field," "Christianity and the Negro Race," and "Africa and the Africans."

BLYTH, Sir James, Bart., son of James Blyth of Chelmsford, Essex, and Caroline, daughter of Henry Gilbey of Bishop Stortford, Herts, was born at Chelmsford in 1841. He is a distinguished agriculturist, and has been honoured by the King of the Belgians with the Imperial Order of Leopold in recognition of his services to Agriculture and the Fine Arts. He has also the Order of the Mejidieh for his services to Egyptian Agriculture. For many years he has taken a keen interest in dairying, and erected in 1892, as an object-lesson, an electric model dairy in his grounds at Blythwood. He is owner of the well-known Blythwood herd of Jersey cattle, stud of Shire horses, and flock of Southdown sheep; and his Blythwood Challenge Bowls, designed to promote the best types of dairy cattle, are attractive features at the Agricultural Shows. Sir James's letters on "The Future of British Agriculture," contributed to the Times during his Presidency of the British Dairy Farmers' Association, which were copied and criticised by the Press of the United Kingdom, and reprinted in pamphlet form, aroused widespread interest among farmers, on whom they impress the necessity of producing, to a much greater extent, perishable articles of food, for at present we pay to foreign countries some fifty million pounds sterling annually, but Sir James Blyth contends that they can for the most part be grown in equal or greater perfection in Great Britain and Ireland. Sir James is also a Governor or Vice-President of many Agricultural and other Societies, Member of Council of the British Empire League, a Visitor of the Royal Institution, and a Director of W. and A. Gilbey, Limited. He married in 1865 Eliza (who died 1894), daughter of William Mooney of Clontarf, co. Dublin. Heir: Herbert William. He was created a Baronet in 1895. Addresses: 33 Portland Place, London, W.; and Blythwood, Stansted, Essex.

BODDA-PYNE, née Louisa Pyne, a popular English singer, daughter of a well-known singer, Mr. G. Pyne, was born in 1832, and was at a very early age the pupil of Sir George Smart, and made her first appearance about 1842. She sang in Paris with great success in 1847, appeared in opera in 1849, performed at the Royal Italian Opera in 1851, and visited the United States, where she was enthusiastically received, in 1854. After an absence of three years she returned to her native land, and was, in conjunction with Mr. Harrison, joint-lessee for a short season of the Lyceum and Drury Lane, and from 1858 till 1862 of Covent Garden Theatre. The enterprise having failed, she transferred her services to her Majesty's Theatre, and has frequently performed at her Majesty's Concerts at Windsor Castle and Buckingham Palace. She is married to Mr. Frank Bodda.

BODINGTON, Nathan, M.A. Litt.D., was born at Aston, near Birmingham, on May 29, 1818, and was educated at King Edward's School, Birmingham, and at Wadham College, Oxford. At the University he gained first-class honours in the Final School of Lit. Hum. in 1872, and was three years later elected a Fellow of Lincoln College. During the years 1873 and 1874 he was an Assistant Master at Manchester Grammar School, and at West-

BOETTICHER, Karl Heinrich
von, German, statesman, was born at Sprottin, Jan. 6, 1832. After studying law, he the Civil Service in 1862. He has held various posts in the Ministry of the Interior and was appointed Secretary in 1865. He held, together with the Marquis de Montebello, the Agency of the Prussian Ministry, in 1867, when he resigned at the request of Baron von Marschall, in consequence of the opposition of the Agrarian was born Aug. 15, 1823, at Nîmes, studied at the Lycée of that town, then at the Lycée Louis-le-Grand, Paris. He became Professor of Rhetoric at Nîmes, and ten years later was appointed at Paris as supplementary professor at the Lycée Charlemagne. In 1861 he was appointed to the Collège de France as Professor of Latin Oratory, in succession to M. de la Harpe, and then became deputy to the Académie in the chair of Latin Poetry. In 1876, he was elected a Member of the Académie Française, succeeding Patin in the chair. In 1895 he was elected Secretary of the Académie. M. has written "Le Poète Attius," "Une Étude sur Terentius Varron," "Cicéron et ses Amis," 1866; "La Rome d'Auguste aux Antonins," 1871; "Le duc de Sévigné," and many papers in the Revue des Deux Mondes and the Revue de l'Instruction

Professor Marie Louis

D. Arrigo, Italian poet and critic; born Feb. 24, 1842, the brother of the poet Boito, entered the University of Milan in 1853. He studied in France, Poland, and Germany, and became one of Wagner's disciples. His first work was "Le Mefistofele," which was produced in 1868 at La Scala, but met with a startling failure, but when produced in 1875 at Bologna achieved great success. His other operas are "Ero e Leandro," "La Sorella," and "Oda all' Arte." He is known as a poet, and has published in Italian "Libro dei versi" and "Re Orso." However, chiefly known as a librettist.

DREWOOD, Rolf. See BROWNE, ALEXANDER.

BAY, Bishop of. See MACDONALD, THE RIGHT REV. JAMES.

D. Hon. Robert, born in New York, Feb. 25, 1857, was educated at the College, Taunton, England. He followed the legal profession, but left it to enter politics. He was elected to the Maryland Assembly in 1882, and became Speaker of that body in 1885. On the retirement of Sir William Whitway in 1886, Mr. Bond became leader of his party. On the return of the former to active politics in 1889, he entered his Cabinet as Colonial Secretary. In 1890 he was one of three delegates sent to England relative to the "French Shore Treaty Question," and was the same year appointed by the Imperial and Newfoundland Governments to visit the United States to arrange a reciprocity treaty between that country and Newfoundland. In 1892 he was sent to Halifax with three others to confer with representatives from the Canadian Government upon the question of the fisheries and other matters of difference. He was unseated and disqualified in 1894. He afterwards, on the removal of the disability by Act of Parliament, returned to office, and was one of the delegates who negotiated terms of union with Canada at Ottawa in April 1895.

BOND, The Right Rev. William Bennett, M.A., LL.D., Bishop of Montreal, was born at Truro, in 1815. He received his education in various public and private schools in Cornwall and in London, and at an early age emigrated to Newfoundland, where he studied for the ministry with Archdeacon Bridge; and at Montreal, to which he had meantime repaired, was in 1840 ordained a Deacon, and in 1841, a Priest. For several years, under the direction of the late Bishop Mountain, of Quebec, he organised many mission stations in the Eastern Townships of the Province of Quebec; was incumbent of Lachine for a number of years; and assistant minister in St. George's, Montreal, of which he finally became incumbent. He maintained his connection with this parish for the long period of thirty years, successively becoming Archdeacon of Hochelaga and Dean of Montreal. On the resignation of Bishop Oxenden, he was, in 1879, elected by the synod of the diocese to the Bishopric of Montreal. Bishop Bond is President of the Theological College of the Diocese of Montreal, and is an LL.D. of the University of McGill College. Address: Bishops-court, 42 Union Avenue, Montreal.

BON GAULTIER. See MARTIN, SIR THEODORE.

BONNAT, Léon, a French painter and Member of the Institute, was born at Bayonne June 20, 1833, was a pupil of Madrazo and Léon Cogniet, and in 1857 obtained the second prize at Rome for his "Résurrection de Lazare." Since that time he has been a constant exhibitor at the annual Salons. Among his works may be mentioned "Le bon Samaritain," 1859; "Adam et Eve trouvant Abel mort," 1861; "Pèlerins dans l'église Saint Pierre de Rome," 1864; "Ribéra dessinant à la porte de l'Ara Coeli à Rome," 1867. After a tour in the East he produced the "Assumption," 1869; "Femme fellah et son enfant," 1870; "Femmes d'Ustaritz," 1872, and many others which have been rendered popular through engravings. His "Christ" for the Court of Appeal was especially noteworthy for the truth of the anatomy and condition of the corpse. M. Bonnat obtained two medals of the second class in 1861 and 1867, and the Medal of Honour in 1869. In 1867 he was decorated with the Legion of Honour. For many years he has confined himself to portraiture, and his best portraits, such as those of Thiers and Victor Hugo, Jules Ferry and President Carnot (1890), have gained him European celebrity.

BONNEY, Professor, The Rev. Thomas George, D.Sc. (Cantab.), Hon. LL.D. (Montreal), Hon. D.Sc. (Dublin), F.R.S., F.S.A., F.G.S., &c., son of late Rev. T. Bonney, M.A., was born July 27, 1833, at Rugeley, and educated at Uppingham School and St. John's College, Cambridge, where he graduated as 12th Wrangler and 16th in second-class classics in 1856. He was elected in 1859 to a Fellowship, which he still holds. From 1856 to 1861 he was Mathematical Master at Westminster School, but returned to Cambridge in the latter year. During his residence there he was active in securing for Natural Science a due place in Academic studies and promoting reforms in the University. He was appointed a tutor of the College in 1863, and was Lecturer in Geology. In 1877 he was elected Professor of Geology at University College, London, and in 1881, on being appointed Secretary of the British Association, finally quitted Cambridge to reside at Hampstead. He resigned the latter post in 1885, was President of the Geological Section at the meeting in 1886, and delivered one of the Evening Discourses in 1888. He was for six years Secretary of the Geological Society, and President in 1884-86. In 1889 he received the Wollaston Medal. He has been also President of the Mineralogical Society, and was Rede Lecturer at Cambridge in 1892. (See REDE.) In Geology, Professor Bonney has chiefly devoted himself to Petrological and Physical questions, and has written numerous papers printed in the Quarterly Journal of the Geological Society, the Geological Magazine, the publications of the Royal Society, &c. He is author of "The Story of our Planet," "Ice Work," "Charles Lyell and Modern Geology," and a contributor to other works of science or biography. He was President of the Alpine Club in 1880-82, and is the author of "Outline Sketches in the High Alps of Dauphiné," 1865; "The Alpine Regions," 1868; besides furnishing the text to several illustrated books on the Alps, Norway, &c. He has also contributed largely to several works of descriptive topography, such as "Picturesque Europe," "Our own Country," "English Cathedrals," &c., and translated Pierotti's "Jerusalem Explored," 1864; and "Customs of Palestine," 1864. Ordained in 1857, Professor Bonney was one of the Cambridge Preachers at the Chapel Royal, Whitehall, 1876-78, and has been six times a Special Preacher before the University of Cambridge, on one occasion being Hulsean Lecturer. These lectures, "On the Influence of Science on Theology," have been published (1885), besides two other small volumes and several detached sermons. He was Boyle Lecturer in 1890-91, publishing the lectures in volumes entitled "Old Truths in Modern Lights," and "Christian Doctrines and Modern Thought." He is an Examining Chaplain to the Bishop of Manchester, and an Hon. Canon of that Cathedral. Addresses: 23 Denning Road, N.W.; and Athenæum.

BONVALOT, Pierre Gabriel, French explorer, born at Espagne, in the Aube, in 1853, was a traveller and linguist from his earliest years. In 1880 he was charged by the Minister of Public Instruction with a mission to Central Asia. He visited Turkestan, Bokhara, and Samarcand, discovered the ruins of Chari-Samane, and returned to Europe by the Amu Daria and the Caspian Sea in 1882. In 1885 he was again entrusted with a mission to Persia and the Turcoman country. He was made prisoner by the Afghans, but despite their hostility he made noteworthy discoveries in the Pamirs, and crossed into Cashmere, August 1887. In 1889 M. Bonvalot agreed to accompany Prince Henri d'Orléans in crossing Asia from Siberia to Tonkin. They started from Paris on the 6th July, crossed the Chinese frontier on Sept. 1, and marching for a year and twenty-five days, arrived on the borders of the Red River in December 1890. The most difficult part of their journey was the crossing of the Tibetan tableland. Their observations and 700 photographs interested the learned world, and the Geographical Society of France awarded them its Gold Medal in 1890. Since then M. Bonvalot has travelled in Abyssinia.

BOOTH, Charles, LL.D., author and statistician, was born in Liverpool on March 30, 1840, and was educated at the Royal Institution School. Since 1862 he en a partner in Alfred Booth & Co., ool, and was President of the Royal ical Society from 1892 to 1894. He d the honour of the LL.D. of idge University in 1898. He has ed in nine volumes a standard entitled "Life and Labour of the in London," 1891-1897; "Pau- and the Endowment of Old Age," "The Aged Poor," 1894. He mar- 1871 Mary, daughter of Charles y Macaulay. Addresses: 24 Great rland Place, W.; and Athenaeum.

TH, The Rev. William, "General" : Salvation Army, was born at gham, April 10, 1829, and educated rivate school in that town. He l theology with the Rev. William D.D., became a minister of the ist New Connexion in 1850, and ppointed mostly to hold special istic services, to which he felt so y drawn that when the Conference l required him to settle in the y circuit work, he resigned, and his labours as an evangelist amongst urches wherever he had oppor- Coming in this capacity to the nd of London he observed that the ajority of the people attended no of worship, and he started "The an Mission" in July 1865. To this n, when it had become a large sation, formed upon military lines, e in 1878 the name of "The Salva- rmy," under which it soon became known, and grew rapidly until it s (April 1898) 4611 corps and out- t stations established in the United om, France, the United States, lasia, India, the Cape of Good Hope, a, Scandinavia, Holland, Belgium, Japan, West Indies, South America, sewhere. 13,623 officers or evan- are entirely employed in and sup- by this Army, under the General's te direction, and they hold upwards 95 services in the open air and in a, music halls, and other buildings week. The General has published y hymn and music books, volumes d "Salvation Soldiery," "Training lden," and "Letters to Soldiers," ing his views as to religious life ork. "Holy Living" and "Orders gulations for the Salvation Army" me of the smaller publications y him for the direction of the as to teaching and services. He ontributed an article on "The on Army" to the Contemporary for August 1882. Mrs. Booth largely in all the General's efforts, urther explained their views in ical Religion," "Aggressive Christianity," "Godliness," "Life and Death," and "The Salvation Army in Relation to Church and State." She died of cancer in October 1890, after a painful illness borne with Christian fortitude. The General's eldest son is his Chief of Staff, managing all his business; his eldest daughter, with her husband, directs the work in Belgium and Holland; another son is in charge of the work in Australasia; the second daughter, together with her husband, supervises the operations in the United States of America; the third daughter has the direction of affairs in Canada; the fourth daughter and her husband are at the head of the work in France—so that each member of the family is actively employed in some branch of the Army's service. The General established The War Cry as a weekly gazette of the Army in 1880. It is now published weekly in England, similar papers being published at each Colonial and Foreign headquarters, so that there are now 34 weekly War Cry's, with a circulation of over 652,776. En Avant appears in Paris, Strids Ropet in Stockholm, the Janji Pokar (Gujarati) edition in Gujarat, a Tamil one in Madras, a Singhalese one in Ceylon, and an English and Marathi edition in Bombay. Belgium, Holland, and Germany also publish separate editions in their respective languages. In November 1890 he published a volume entitled "In Darkest England and the Way Out," containing a scheme for the enlightenment and industrial support of the lowest classes. The General appealed for £100,000 with which to begin the work of social rescue, and subsequently started 76 rescue homes for fallen women, and 100 "slum posts," besides a system of Labour Bureaux, and food depôts, shelters, factories, and homes for inebriates. In May 1892 General Booth again stated that £30,000 a year would be necessary in order to carry out the "Darkest England" scheme. The appeal was endorsed by such well-known public men as the Earl of Aberdeen, Lord Compton, Mr. H. H. Fowler, Mr. Labouchere, and Archdeacon Farrar. Subsequently General Booth submitted the working of the scheme to a committee of inquiry, consisting of the Earl of Onslow, Sir Henry James, M.P., Mr. E. Waterhouse (President Institute of Chartered Accountants), Mr. Walter Long, and Mr. C. E. Hobhouse, M.P. These gentlemen reported favourably as to the working of the scheme and the application of the funds thereto subscribed. In 1896 there were two notable celebrations, the one in commemoration of his return from his second tour in South Africa, Australasia, Ceylon, and India (this was held in March at the Crystal Palace), and the other a Twelve Days' Exhibition of the work of the Army throughout the world (held at the Agricultural Hall). Address: 101 Queen Victoria Street, E.C.

BOOTHBY, Guy Newell, was born at Adelaide, South Australia, on Oct. 13, 1867, and is the eldest son of Thomas Wilde Boothby, sometime Member of the House of Assembly, and grandson of Mr. Justice Boothby. He has travelled a good deal, and in 1891 he crossed Australia from north to south. He is the author of: "On the Wallaby," 1894; "In Strange Company," 1894; "The Marriage of Esther," 1895; "A Lost Endeavour," 1895; "A Bid for Fortune," 1895; "Beautiful White Devil," 1896; "Dr. Nikola," 1896; "Fascination of the King," and "Sheilah M'Leod," 1897, &c. He is married to Rose Alice, third daughter of William Bristowe, of Champion Hill. Address: Alveston, Thames Ditton, Surrey.

BORNIER, Vicomte Henri de, French poet and dramatist, born at Lunel, Dec. 25, 1825, studied at Montpellier and at Saint-Pons, and in 1845 completed his legal studies at Paris. The same year he published "Les Premières Feuilles," a volume of poems, and submitted a play to the Théâtre Français, "Le Mariage de Luther." They attracted the notice of Salvandy, the Minister of Public Instruction, who appointed the youthful poet a supernumerary at the Bibliothèque de l'Arsenal, where he has risen successively to be sub-librarian, librarian, and finally, in March 1889, administrator. In July 1891 he was made an Officer of the Legion of Honour. In 1853 he published a play, "Dante de Béatrix," and in 1884 he wrote a recitation for the Odéon, "La Muse de Corneille," which has often been recited on the poet's birthday. A pendant to this was "Le Quinze Janvier ou la Muse de Molière," which he wrote for the Français in 1860. The following year he obtained the first prize for poetry with "L'Isthme de Suez," and again in 1863, and the prize for eloquence in 1864 with "L'Eloge de Chateaubriand." In 1868 his "Agamemnon" was played at the Français, and his "La Fille de Roland" in 1875. Among later dramas must be mentioned "L'Arétin" (1885), destined to show the deplorable effects of licentious reading, and "Mahomet," on which he had worked for several years. This last had been accepted by the Français, but was forbidden by the Government at the request of the Turkish Ambassador as likely to offend the religious susceptibilities of their Turkish subjects, March 1890. His complete poetical works were published in 1888 in 2 vols. He was elected to the French Academy in 1893 in succession to Xavier Marmier, and lives at 1 Rue de Sully, Paris.

BOSISTO, Joseph, C.M.G., was born March 21, 1827, at Hammersmith. He became a druggist, and emigrated to Adelaide, South Australia, in 1848, where he remained for three years, and established the wholesale business of Messrs. Faulding & Co. After a short attack of the gold fever in 1851, he went to Melbourne, and began business at Bridge Road, Richmond. The business, at first almost purely a pharmaceutical one, soon developed into a regular manufacturing concern, and upon its founder discovering the remarkable antiseptic properties of the eucalyptus trees, it developed into a large undertaking. The Pharmaceutical Society of Victoria was founded by Mr. Bosisto in 1857, with the aid and cordial co-operation of a few of the chief pharmacutists of Victoria, and has proved to have exerted a highly beneficial influence in the development of pharmaceutical and therapeutical knowledge throughout the colony. Mr. Bosisto sat as a Municipal Councillor for over twelve years, in the course of which time he held the office of Mayor for two consecutive periods. He was elected Chairman of the Richmond Magisterial Bench for five years successively, was returned to Parliament in 1874, and has always been placed at the head of the poll in the elections until 1886. Mr. Bosisto was appointed President of the Royal Commission of Victoria at the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, 1886.

BOTTOMLEY, James Thomson, M.A., D.Sc., F.R.S., F.R.S.E., F.C.S., Lecturer on Natural Philosophy, and electrical engineer, was born at Fortbreda, county Down, Ireland, on Jan. 10, 1845. His father was William Bottomley, merchant, of Belfast, and Justice of the Peace; his mother was second daughter of the late Dr. James Thomson, Professor of Mathematics in the University of Glasgow, and a sister of Sir William Thomson, F.R.S., now Lord Kelvin, and Professor James Thomson, F.R.S., both Professors in Glasgow University. Mr. Bottomley was educated partly at a private school, and partly at the Royal Belfast Academical Institution. His parents intended that he should enter the then Established Church in Ireland, and he was sent to Trinity College, Dublin, with that object; but when he had passed through half of his undergraduate course, the desire of following a scientific career became so strong that he was permitted to pursue his bent. He then became a pupil, and subsequently an assistant, of the late Dr. Thomas Andrews, F.R.S., Professor of Chemistry

in Queen's College, Belfast, studying with him Chemistry and Chemical Physics, and devoting much attention at the same time to Mathematics and Natural Philosophy. He finally took the degree of B.A. in Trinity College, Dublin, and the degrees of B.A. and M.A. with first-class Honours and Gold Medals in Natural Philosophy and Chemistry in the Queen's University in Ireland. After a year's residence in Glasgow with his uncle, Sir William Thomson, where he studied Chemistry under the late Dr. Thomas Anderson, and Physics in the Natural Philosophy Laboratory, Mr. Bottomley was appointed Demonstrator in Chemistry at King's College, London, under the late Dr. W. A. Miller, F.R.S. He held this office only one year; for, to his great disappointment, his health became injuriously affected in the Chemical Laboratory, and he was glad, with the consent of Dr. Miller, and at the wish of Professor W. G. Adams, to be transferred to the post of Demonstrator in Natural Philosophy in King's College. In 1870 he removed to Glasgow to take part in the teaching of the Natural Philosophy Class in the University, under a special arrangement made for that purpose, Sir William Thomson being at that time actively engaged in the great work of laying some of the submarine cables; and Mr. Bottomley has continued to assist, and when necessary represent, Sir William Thomson since that time. He is the author of original papers on "Conduction of Heat," "Radiation of Heat," "Elasticity of Wires," &c., which have been published in The Philosophical Transactions of the Royal Society, The Proceedings of the Royal Society, Philosophical Magazine, Proceedings of the British Association, and elsewhere. He is also the author of elementary textbooks on "Dynamics," and on "Hydrostatics," and of "Four Figure Mathematical Tables." He is Fellow of the Royal Society, of the Royal Society of Edinburgh, and of the Chemical Society, Member of the Institution of Electrical Engineers, and of the Physical Society. Address: 13 University Gardens, Glasgow.

BOTTOMLEY, William Beecroft, M.A., Ph.D., F.L.S., F.C.S., only son of Joseph Bottomley, Esq., was born at Apperley Bridge, Leeds, in 1863, and educated at the Royal Grammar School, Lancaster. He gained a Natural Science Scholarship at St. Mary's Hospital, London, in 1883, and studied there and at University College, London, during 1883 and 1884. In 1885 he proceeded to Germany, studying at the Universities of Heidelberg and Erlangen. In 1886 he was appointed Lecturer on Biology and Science Tutor in St. Mary's Hospital, which appointment he continued to hold until 1891. In 1888 he entered King's College, Cambridge, as Exhibitioner, and graduated in 1891. In 1892 he was appointed Assistant to the Professor of Botany in University College, London. In the following year, 1893, he was elected Professor of Botany in King's College, London; and in 1894 Professor of Biology in the Royal Veterinary College, London, both of which appointments he still holds. After graduating at Cambridge, Professor Bottomley was for three years engaged giving series of University Extension Lectures throughout Kent upon Botany in its relation to Agriculture. He was thus brought into intimate touch with matters connected with rural economy, and became an earnest advocate of Agricultural Co-operation. In 1895 he founded the South-Eastern Co-operative Agricultural Society upon similar lines to the Syndicats Agriculural of France, for the joint-purchase of agricultural requisites and joint-disposal of produce. He also joined with Mr. Yerburch in promoting the establishment of Rural Co-operative Credit Banks, and became Hon. Secretary of the Agricultural Banks Association. In 1896 he spent six weeks in Germany investigating the working of the Raiffeisen Rural Credit Banks, and upon his return read a paper at the Liverpool Meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, describing the Raiffeisen Banks of Germany, with their unlimited liability of members, limited areas of operation, absence of all paid administrative posts, exclusion of individual profit, and examination into application of loan granted, and its economic utility. He also published a series of articles upon "Raiffeisen and his Work," showing that it would be advantageous to the agricultural industry of Great Britain if some system could be established in this country somewhat similar to the Raiffeisen organisation with its Local Rural Loan Banks, grouped into county areas, and these again controlled and directed by a central association. Professor Bottomley is also joint Hon. Secretary, with Dr. Paton of Nottingham, of the English Land Colonisation Society, which has for its object the establishment of co-operative colonies of small holdings. He is also Chairman of the Board of Directors of the West Indian Co-operative Union, which has recently been formed to promote agricultural co-operation and the development of minor industries in the West Indian Islands. He is the author of numerous papers upon science, rural economy, and agricultural co-operation; and is also well known for his popular lectures upon various scientific subjects. Address: The Botanical Laboratories, King's College, London.

BOUGHTON, George Henry, R.A., was born near Norwich in 1833. His father was William Boughton. His family went to America in 1836, and he passed his youth in Albany, New York, where he early developed an artistic taste. In 1853 he came to London, and passed several months in the study of art. Returning to America he settled in New York, and soon became known as a landscape painter. In 1859 he went to Paris, where he devoted two years to study, and in 1861 he opened a studio in London. He was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy June 19, 1879. Among his best works are: "Winter Twilight," "The Lake of the Dismal Swamp," "Passing into the Shade," "Coming into Church," "Morning Prayer," "The Scarlet Letter," "The Idyl of the Birds," "The Return of the Mayflower," "Counsellors of Peter the Headstrong," "A Morning in May, Isle of Wight," and "The Ordeal of Purity" (1894). In recent Academies he has exhibited the following: "Sunrise after Sharp Frost, Suffolk," and a portrait of Gladys, daughter of Walter Palmer, Esq., 1895; "A Sports-woman on a Highland River," "The Gardener's Daughter," and two portraits, 1896; "Memories" (Diploma work), and "After Midnight Mass, fifteenth century," 1897; and "The Road to Camelot," and two portraits, one of a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, 1898. Mr. Boughton has of late years made a study of the picturesque aspects of the old Puritan life of New England, and many of his recent works have illustrated it. He has also visited Holland, and painted a number of Dutch scenes, and, with Mr. Edwin Abbey, is the author of "A Sketching Tour in Holland," 1885. He has frequently exhibited at the National Academy of New York, and was made a Member of that Academy in 1871. He was made R.A. in March 1896. Address: West House, Campden Hill, W.

BOUGUEREAU, Adolphe William, a French painter, and Member of the Institute, was born at La Rochelle, Nov. 30, 1835. He began life in a business house at Bordeaux, but obtained permission to attend the drawing school of M. Alaux for two hours a day. His fellow pupils treated him with contempt on account of his business connections, and when at the end of the year he gained the first prize, the excitement was so great that a riot ensued, and a formal protest was made by the pupils against his receiving it, but without effect. He then turned all his attention to painting, and entered the studio of Picot in Paris, and later, entered the École de Beaux Arts, where his progress was rapid. Having gained the "Prix de Rome" with his picture of "Zenobia on the banks of the Araxes," in 1860 he went to Rome, and in 1864 exhibited "The Body of St. Cecilia borne to the Catacombs," since which time he has occupied a leading position among the artists of the Modern French School. His next great work was "Philomela and Procne," 1861. Both these pictures are now in the Luxembourg. "Mater Afflictorum," or "Vierge Consolatrice," 1876, was purchased by the French Government for 12,000 francs. Among his pictures exhibited at the Salon may be mentioned, "The Bather," 1870; "Harvest Time," 1872; "The Little Marauders," 1873; "Homer and his Guide," 1874; "Flora and Zephyrus," 1875; "Pietà," 1876; "Youth and Love," 1877; "The Scourging of Our Lord," 1880; "The Virgin with Angels," 1881; "Slave carrying a Fan," 1882; "The Youth of Bacchus," and "Byblis," 1885; "Love Disarmed," 1886; "Love Victorious," 1887; "Baigneuses," 1888; "Psyche and Love," 1889; "L'Amour Mouillé," 1891. M. Bouguereau executed the mural paintings in the St. Louis Chapel of the Church of St. Clotilde and in the Church of St. Augustine. Many of his pictures have been engraved by François. They have been made familiar by the Autotype Company in England. Address: 75 Rue Notre Dame des Champs, Paris.

BOULENGER, George Albert, F.R.S., F.Z.S., was born at Brussels on Oct. 19, 1858. In 1882, after having served a time as Aide-Naturaliste in the Royal Belgian Museum, he was appointed first-class Assistant in the Zoological Department of the British Museum, and there took charge of the collections of Reptiles and Fishes. On these groups of animals he has published very numerous memoirs and papers, from 1877 to the present day. He is the author of the British Museum Catalogues of Reptiles (7 vols., 1885-96) and of Batrachians (2 vols., 1882), which are the standard works for the determination of these animals, and of a "Catalogue of Percoid Fishes," 1895. Other works are "Fauna of India, Reptiles and Batrachians," 1890, and "The Tailless Batrachians of Europe," 1897-98. Since 1880 he has prepared the annual reports on Reptiles and Fishes for the "Record of Zoological Literature." Address: 8 Courtfield Road, South Kensington, S.W.

BOULNOIS, Edmund, M.P., son of the late W. Boulnois, of Baker Street, Marylebone, was born on June 17, 1838, and was educated at King Edward's School, Bury St. Edmunds, and St. John's College, Cambridge, where he graduated M.A. in 1868. He has sat in the House of Commons since 1889 as Conservative member for East Marylebone, and he also represents the same constituency on the London County Council. Mr. Boulnois is a Justice of the Peace for both London and Middlesex, is Chairman of the West Middlesex Waterworks Company, Director of the London Life Association, and the Westminster Electric Supply Corporation, and he is the proprietor of the Baker Street Bazaar, in London. Address: 27 Westbourne Terrace, W.

BOURCHIER, Arthur, M.A., the only son of Captain Charles John Bouchier, late 8th Hussars, was born at Speen, Berkshire, on June 22, 1864, and was educated at Eton, and Christ Church, Oxford. Whilst at the University he founded the Oxford Dramatic Society, and was instrumental in bringing about the building of the new theatre there, in which he played the characters of Shylock, Falstaff, Brutus, Feste, and Thanatos (in the "Alcestis"). Taking to the stage as a profession, he made his first appearance at Wolverhampton, as Jacques in "As You Like It," in 1889, and he subsequently played this part at the St. James's Theatre, London. He has appeared as Joseph Surface at the Criterion, and as Charles Surface at Daly's Theatre; and in 1895 he became manager of the Royalty Theatre, where he produced "The Chili Widow" (which ran over 300 nights) and "The Queen's Proctor." He has adapted several plays, amongst them being "The Chili Widow," from the French. Mr. Bouchier was married in 1894 to Miss Violet Vanbrugh, the well-known actress (q.v.). Address: 190 Earl's Court Road, W.

BOURCHIER, Mrs. Arthur. See VANBRUGH, MISS VIOLET.

BURGEOIS, Léon Victor AUGUSTE, French statesman, was born in Paris, May 21, 1851. He was educated at the Lycée Charlemagne, and became Doctor of Laws. He was Secretary of the Bar Committee, and entered official life in the Office of Public Works in 1876. He was elected Sous-Préfet of Reims in 1880, and Préfet of the Department of the Tarn in 1882. In the strike at Carmaux he conciliated the miners, and was rewarded with the Legion of Honour. In 1885 he was appointed Préfet of the Haute-Garonne, and returned to Paris in 1886 to the Ministry of the Interior. In 1887 he became Préfet de Police, and was successful in that difficult office at the time of President Grévy's resignation, when there was much fear of a dangerous rising. He entered the Chamber in 1888 as Deputy for the Marne, and became Under-Secretary of the Interior in the Floquet Cabinet, which resigned in 1889. In 1890 he became Minister of the Interior on the resignation of M. Constans, which he exchanged for that of Public Instruction in the Freycinet Cabinet of the same year. In 1895 he undertook the formation of a Radical cabinet on the overthrow of M. Ribot, but he found himself absolutely dependent upon the votes of the Socialists for a working majority in the Chamber. This, and a conflict with the Senate, led to his downfall in April 1896, when he was succeeded by the Protectionist and Moderate Cabinet of M. Méline. He has published a study of democracy in France; and in June 1898 he was offered, and accepted, the portfolio of Public Instruction in the Brisson Cabinet of that year.

BOURGET, Paul, French poet and novelist of the psychological school, was born at Amiens on Sept. 2, 1852. His father, a learned mathematician, was afterwards Rector of the Academies of Aix and Clermont. M. Bourget was educated at Clermont, at the Sainte-Barbe College in Paris, and at the Collège des Hautes Études. Together with Richépin, Bouchor, and other future celebrities, he formed part of a literary society that led him to abandon teaching as a profession. In 1872 he began writing for the Renaissance journal, and in 1873 published an article in the Revue des Deux Mondes, characteristically entitled "Le Roman réaliste et le Roman piétiste." His first volume of poems, "La Vie inquiète," appeared in 1874. He then left poetry for romance, and among his best known works we may mention "Études et Portraits," 1888; "Portraits d'Écrivains"; "Études Anglaises"; "Pastels, dix portraits de femmes," 1889; "Nouveaux Pastels," 1891; and the following novels: "Cruelle Énigme," 1885; "Mensonges," 1887; "Le Disciple," 1889, a study of the scientific and pessimist tendencies of the age; and "Cosmopolis," which contains a study of the present Pope. His poems were published in two volumes in 1885-87. M. Bourget is a traveller, and admires England and the English, and he has lectured before the University of Oxford. He has shown himself a psychological "maniac," as he himself says, and a passionate lover of the analytic school, inaugurated by Stendhal. He is one of the most widely read novelists in France, and was elected a Member of the French Academy in 1894 to the seat of Maxime du Camp. Among his recent works should be mentioned "Notre Cœur," 1890; "La Terre Promise" and "Sensations d'Italie," 1892; "L'Idylle Tragique" and "Outre Mer," 1895. The last-mentioned deals with the United States of America. His last work, "Voyageuses" (1898), has been published in book form, after running as a serial in Cosmopolis.

BOUTELLE, Charles Addison, American statesman, was born at Damariscotta, Maine, Feb. 9, 1839, and received an academic education. He followed his father's occupation as shipmaster, and in the spring of 1862 was appointed Acting Master in the United States Navy, and was promoted for gallant conduct to be Lieutenant, May 5, 1864. Afterwards in command of the U.S.S. Nyanza, he participated in the capture of Mobile, and was assigned to command naval forces in Mississippi Sound. He was honourably discharged, at his own request, Jan. 14, 1866. In 1870 he became managing editor, and in 1874 proprietor, of the Whig and Courier of Bangor, Maine. He was elected to the Forty-eighth Congress, and re-elected to the Forty-ninth, Fiftieth, Fifty-first, Fifty-second, Fifty-third, Fifty-fourth, and Fifty-fifth Congresses. He is leader of the Committee on Naval Affairs of the United States House of Representatives.

BOWELL, Hon. Sir Mackenzie, K.C.M.G., Canadian statesman, was born at Rickingham, Suffolk, England, Dec. 27, 1823. He went to Canada with his parents in 1833, entered the military service as ensign in the Bellville Rifle Company in 1857, and after some service on the American frontier in 1864 and later, he was made major in 1867 and lieutenant-colonel in 1872, retiring with that rank in 1874. He represented North Hastings for twenty-five years in the House of Commons, being then called to the Senate. In 1878 he entered Sir John Macdonald's Cabinet as Minister of Customs, occupying that office for thirteen years; under Sir John Abbott he was Minister of Militia, and under Sir John Thompson he was Minister of Trade and Commerce. On the death of the latter Mr. Bowell formed an Administration, December 1894, the main policy of which was the enforcement of remedial legislation in the matter of the Manitoba School question. Having failed to accomplish this object, he retired from the Government, April 27, 1896. He was appointed a K.C.M.G. Jan. 1, 1895, shortly after becoming Prime Minister.

BOWEN, The Right Hon. Sir George Ferguson, G.C.M.G., Hon. D.C.L. and Hon. LL.D., the eldest son of the late Rev. Edward Bowen, born in 1821, was educated at the Charterhouse and Trinity College, Oxford, where he obtained a scholarship in 1840, and graduated B.A. as first class in classics in 1844. In the same year he was elected to a Fellowship of Brasenose College, and became a member of Lincoln's Inn. He was Chief Secretary to the Government of the Ionian Islands from 1854 to 1859, and was appointed in that year the first Governor of the new colony of Queensland, in Australia, comprising the north-eastern portion of the Australian Continent. He was appointed, in 1868, Governor of New Zealand; and in May 1873, Governor of Victoria. He was Governor of Mauritius from 1875 to 1883, when he was appointed Governor of Hong-Kong. He retired on his pension in 1887; but in 1888 he was appointed Royal Commissioner at Malta to make arrangements respecting the new Constitution granted to that island. Sir George is the author of "A Handbook for Travellers in Greece," one of Murray's Handbooks; "Mount Athos, Thessaly, and Epirus: a Diary of a Journey from Constantinople to Corfu," 1852; "Ithaca in 1850" and "Imperial Federation," 1886, &c. A full account of his public services will be found in "Thirty Years of Colonial Government," being a selection from the "Despatches and Letters of the Right Hon. Sir G. F. Bowen, G.C.M.G., Hon. D.C.L. Oxford, Hon. LL.D. Cambridge. Edited by Stanley Lane-Poole." Sir George Bowen is a member of the Governing Bodies of the Imperial Institute and of Charterhouse School, and married in 1856 the Countess Roma, only surviving daughter of Count Roma, G.C.M.G., then President of the Senate of the Ionian Islands. The Countess Roma died in 1893, and he was again married in 1896 to Florence, daughter of Dr. T. Luby, Senior Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, and widow of the Rev. H. White. Addresses: 16 Lowndes Street, S.W.; and Athenæum.

BOWER, Frederick Orpen, D.Sc., F.R.S. (1891), F.L.S., F.R.S.Ed., was born on Nov. 4, 1855, at Ripon, Yorkshire. He is the younger son of Abraham Bower, Esq., J.P., of Elmcrofts, Ripon, Yorks. Educated at Ripon Grammar School, Repton School, and Trinity College, Cambridge, he graduated in the first class of the Nat. Sci. Tripos in 1877. Having served as assistant to the Professor of Botany in University College, London, he was appointed first Lecturer in Botany at the Normal School of Science (now Royal College of Science), South Kensington, in 1882, and in 1885 Regius Professor of Botany in the University of Glasgow. He acted as Examiner in the University of London in 1885-89. He has co-operated with Dr. D. H. Scott in translating the "Comparative Anatomy of Phanerogams and Ferns," by De Bary (Clarendon Press, 1884), and with Professor Vines in the production of a "Course of Practical Instruction in Botany," in its third edition in 1891. He is the author of numerous memoirs published by the Royal Society, the Linn. Soc., in the Q.J.M.S., and "Annals of Botany." One of his most recent works is "Practical Botany for Beginners," 1894. Address: 45 Kersland Terrace, Hillhead, Glasgow.

BOWER, Sir Graham John, K.C.M.G., the son of Admiral James Paterson Bower, was born in Ireland on June 15, 1848. He was educated at the Naval Academy at Gosport, entered the Navy in 1861, and retired in 1880 as Commander. In the latter year he became private secretary to Sir Hercules Robinson, Governor of the Cape, and High Commissioner for South Africa, and from 1884 to 1897 he acted as Imperial Secretary to the High Commissioner. He came to England after the Jameson raid, and gave evidence at the parliamentary inquiry held at Westminster regarding that event. Sir Graham has recently (1898) been appointed Colonial Secretary of the Island of Mauritius. He is the author of "Practical Federation," a book published under the name of "Centurion." He was created a K.C.M.G. in 1892, and was married in 1892 to Maude Laidley Mitchell, of Sydney, N.S.W.

BOWLES, Thomas Gibson, M.P., was born in 1842, and was educated privately in England and abroad, and at King's College, London. He was in the Inland Revenue Department of the Civil Service from 1860 to 1865, and in the latter year he founded the paper Vanity Fair, selling it, however, eventually. In the year 1875 he assisted in starting the Stafford House Committee for the relief of the distressed and suffering Turks, and he was presented with the Order of the Medjidie. He has represented King's Lynn as Conservative member in the House of Commons since 1875. He is the author of: "The Defence of Paris," "Matters of Warfare," 1870; "Prophet and Jew," 1882; "Log of the Nereid," 1889. Mr. Bowles was married in 1874 to Jeanette, daughter of General Evans Gordon, who died in 1887. Addresses: 25 Lombard Square, S.W.; and Wilbury House, Salisbury.

BOWRING, Edgar Alfred, C.B., a younger son of the late Sir John Bowring, was born in 1831, and educated at University College, London. He entered the Civil Service in the Board of Trade in 1851, and acted as undersecretary, the post of private secretary to the Earl of Carnarvon, to Earl Granville, and to Lord Stanley of Alderley. He was appointed French Writer and Librarian to that Department in 1858, and Registrar in 1853, but retired from the service on the abolition of his office at the end of 1863. He acted as Secretary to the Royal Commission for the Great Exhibition of 1861, and held that appointment until his election as M.P. for Exeter at the general election of 1868. His services were so highly appreciated by the late Prince Consort, the President of the Commission, that immediately after H.R.H.'s decease, her Majesty nominated Mr. Bowring a Companion of the Order of the Bath, Civil Division. Mr. Bowring lost his seat for Exeter at the general election of February 1874. He is the author of an English poetical version of "The Book of Psalms," English versions of the poetical works of Schiller, Goethe, and Heine, and (jointly with Lord Hobart) of a reply to the "Morphisms of Free Trade," by Mr. Justice Byles. Besides having been a frequent contributor to periodical literature, he is understood to have translated two small volumes of German hymns, selected by the Queen, and privately printed for her Majesty's use, one volume on the death of the Duchess of Kent, and the other on that of Prince Albert.

BOYD, The Rev. Andrew Kennedy Hutchison, D.D. and LL.D., born at Auchinleck, Ayrshire, of which parish his father was incumbent, November 1825, was educated at King's College, London, and at the University of Glasgow, where he obtained the highest honours in philosophy and theology, and was author of several prize essays, taking the degree of B.A. in April 1846. He was ordained in 1851, and has been incumbent successively of the parishes of Newton-on-Ayr, Kirkpatrick-Irvingray in Galloway, St. Bernard's, Edinburgh, and of the University city of St. Andrews, which he still holds. He first became known as a writer by papers which appeared in Fraser's Magazine under the signature of A. K. H. B. Of these, the most important have been reprinted: the best known of these being "The Remembrance of a Country Parson," three series. Dr. Boyd is also the author of many volumes of sermons, under the title of "The Graver Thoughts of a Country Parson," and "Concord and Comfort spoken from a City Pulpit." "Present-day Thoughts: Memorials of St. Andrews Bishops," 1870; "Towards the Future," 1883; "What has Him Right," 1885; and "The Best Law," in 1890. He received the degree of D.D. from the University of Edinburgh in 1864, and of LL.D. from the University of St. Andrews in 1894. In May 1891, he was elected Moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland. His latest works are "Twenty-five Years of St. Andrews," published in 1891.

"St. Andrews and Elsewhere," 1894; and "The Last Years of St. Andrews." He is a member of the Middle Temple, and studied for two years for the English Bar. In 1895 he was made a Fellow of King's College. Address: 7 Abbotsford Crescent, St. Andrews.

BOYD, The Rev. Henry, M.A., D.D., Principal of Hertford College, Oxford, was born on Feb. 26, 1831, and is the third son of William Charles Boyd, Esq. He was educated at Hackney School and at Exeter College, Oxford, where he matriculated at the age of seventeen. He was in the second class in Lit. Hum. in 1852, and was Ellerton Essayist in 1853, and Denyer Theological Essayist in 1856 and 1857 (B.A. 1852; M.A. 1857; B.D. and D.D. 1879). From 1862 to 1874 he was incumbent of St. Mark's, Victoria Docks, E., and from 1875 to 1890 was Hon. Canon of Rochester. In 1874 Dr. Boyd was elected Fellow, and in 1877 Principal, of Hertford. In 1879 he was select preacher before the University, and in 1890 Vice-Chancellor. Address: Hertford College, Oxford.

BOYD, Hon. Walter, LL.D., was born at Dublin on Jan. 28, 1833, and was educated at Portora, Enniskillen, and Trinity College, Dublin. He was called to the Irish Bar in 1856, was appointed Q.C. in 1877, and Queen's Advocate for Ireland in 1878. He became a Judge in the Irish Court of Bankruptcy in 1885, and after holding that position for twelve years, he was in 1897 appointed a Justice of the High Court of Justice in Ireland. He is the author of "Law and Practice of the Court of Admiralty in Ireland." Addresses: 66 Merrion Square, Dublin; and Howth House, Howth, County Dublin.

BOYLE, Sir Courtenay, K.C.B., was born in Jamaica on Oct. 21, 1845, being the son of Cavendish Spencer Boyle, and was educated at Charterhouse and Christ Church, Oxford. Appointed private secretary to the Viceroy of Ireland in 1868, he became an Inspector of the Local Government Board in 1873, returning again to the private secretaryship to the Viceroy in 1882. Three years later, in 1885, he was appointed Assistant Secretary to the Board of Trade, and after seven years' service in that position, he became Permanent Secretary to the Board of Trade in 1893. Sir Courtenay Boyle was created a K.C.B. in 1892, and is married to Lady Muriel Sarah Campbell, daughter of the 2nd Earl of Cawdor. He played in the Oxford cricket eleven from 1864 to 1867, and has also represented his University at tennis. Address: 11 Granville Place, Portman Square, W.

BOYLE, The Very Rev. George David, Dean of Salisbury, is the eldest son of the late Right Hon. David Boyle, Lord Justice-General and President of the Court of Session in Scotland, by his second marriage with Camilla Catherine, eldest daughter of the late Mr. David Smythe, of Methven, Perthshire, and was born in 1828. He was educated at the Edinburgh Academy, the Charterhouse, and at Exeter College, Oxford (B.A. 1851, M.A. 1853). Between 1853 and 1860 he held in succession curacies in Kidderminster and Hagley. He was Incumbent of St. Michael's, Handsworth, from 1861 to 1867, and Rural Dean of Handsworth, 1866-67. He was appointed Vicar of Kidderminster in 1867, and Rural Dean in 1877, and he was Hon. Canon of Worcester from 1872 till 1880, when he was appointed Dean of Salisbury. Dean Boyle is the author of "My Aids to the Divine Life," "Richard Baxter," "Recollections of the Dean of Salisbury," 1895; and editor of "Characters and Episodes of the Great Rebellion from Clarendon." He married in 1861 Mary Christiana, eldest daughter of the late Mr. William Robins, of Hagley, Worcester-shire. Addresses: Deanery, Salisbury; and Athenæum.

BOYNE, Leonard, actor, was born in Ireland in 1852, was educated by a private tutor at Dublin, was originally intended for the army, but eventually entered the dramatic profession in 1869. Unsuccessful at first, he soon, however, by hard and conscientious work, advanced rapidly in his profession, and before he was twenty years of age he was leading man in the Theatre Royal, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and was playing such parts as Bob Brierly, Macduff, and Richmond. Shortly afterwards he supported Mrs. Scott-Siddons at Glasgow, playing Charles Surface, Orlando, &c. He first appeared in London in 1874, in the character of John Fern in "Progress," and in the following year he was engaged by Miss Ada Cavendish to play Romeo, Orlando, Claude Melnotte, and similar parts. In 1884 he joined Wilson Barrett's company, in order to take the important part of Claudian in the play of that name. Since then he has played in "The Armada," "Sister Mary," "Ariane," "The English Rose," and "The Prodigal Daughter."

BOYS, Charles Vernon, F.R.S., was born at Wing, near Oakham, Rutland, and is the youngest son of the Rev. Charles Boys. Mr. C. V. Boys was educated at Marlborough College and at the Royal School of Mines, of which he is an Associate. He was appointed Demonstrator in 1881, and Assistant Professor of Physics in 1889, at the Normal School of Science and Royal School of Mines, South Kensington and Jermyn Street. He resigned this position at the beginning of 1897, on being appointed one of the Metropolitan Gas Referees. He is the author of several papers published by the Royal Society, the Physical Society, the Royal Institution, and the Society of Arts; of which the more important, or the best known, are on integrating and other calculating machines, on quartz fibres, on the "radio-micrometer," and other instruments for measuring radiant heat, on the photography of flying bullets by means of the electric spark, and on the measurement of the Newtonian Constant of Gravitation or the Weight of the Earth. He is a Fellow of the Royal Society, Officer of Public Instruction of France, Member of the Physical Society of London, and of the Royal Institution. Address: 66 Victoria Street, S.W.

BRACKENBURY, Lieut.-General Sir Henry, K.C.B., K.C.S.I., R.A., born at Bolingbroke, Lincolnshire, Sept. 1, 1837, was educated at Tonbridge, Eton, and Woolwich. He was appointed to the Royal Artillery in April 1856, and served in the suppression of the Indian Mutiny in 1857-58. Subsequently he was appointed to the staff of the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich, first as Officer for Discipline, then as Instructor in Artillery, finally as Professor of Military History. He served throughout the Franco-German war as chief representative of the British National Society for Aid to Sick and Wounded in War, received the Iron Cross from the Emperor of Germany, and was made Officer of the Legion of Honour by the French Government, and Knight of the First Class of the Bavarian Order of St. Michael. Being appointed Military Secretary to Sir Garnet Wolseley, he served with him throughout the Ashanti Campaign, 1873-1874. He served as a member of a special mission to Natal in 1875, was Assistant Adjutant-General to the Cyprus Expeditionary Force in 1878, and raised and organised the Cyprus Military Police. In 1879 he accompanied Sir Garnet Wolseley to South Africa as Military Secretary, and later succeeded Sir G. Colley as Chief of the Staff, in which capacity he served throughout the closing operations of the Zulu war and the campaign against Sekukuni. In 1880 he was appointed Private Secretary to the Viceroy of India, and returned to England with the Earl of Lytton on his resignation. He was Military Attaché to the British Embassy at Paris from January 1881 to May 1882, when he was appointed Assistant Under-Secretary for Ireland, to deal with all matters relating to police and crime in that country. He resigned the latter post, however, on July 19, 1882. In 1884 he was appointed Deputy Adjutant-General of the Nile Expeditionary Force, and subsequently Brigadier-General and second in command of the River Column of the expedition. When General Earle was killed during the action of Kibbekan, General Brackenbury assumed command of the column, and conducted it to near Abu Hamed, whence it was recalled by Lord Wolseley, down the rapids to Kortli. He was promoted to be a Major-General, June 15, 1885, for distinguished service in the field, and Lieut.-General, April 1, 1888. He was appointed head of the Intelligence Department of the War Office, Jan. 1, 1886, and retained this position till March 1891. In 1888 he was appointed a Member of a Royal Commission, under the Chairmanship of Lord Hartington, to inquire into the administration of the Naval and Military Departments of the State. In April 1891 he was appointed a Member of the Council of the Governor-General of India, and continued in this position till April 1896. He was knighted in 1894. He has been President of the Ordnance Committee since May 1896, and was appointed Colonel Commandant of the Royal Artillery in 1897. He is the author of "Fanti and Ashanti," 1873; "Narrative of the Ashanti War"; "The River Column"; and of several military pamphlets. He married Emilia, daughter of E. S. Halswell, and widow of Reginald Morley, in 1861. Address: 23 Hanover Square, W.

BRADDON, The Right Hon. Sir Edward Nicholas Coventry, K.C.M.G., son of Henry Braddon of Skirton Lodge, Cornwall, and brother of the novelist, Miss E. Braddon (Mrs. Maxwell), was born June 11, 1829; educated at private schools and by private tutor, and at the London University; went to India in 1847 to the mercantile house of his cousins, Messrs. Bagshaw and Co. (afterwards Braddon and Co.), Calcutta. After eight years spent in mercantile pursuits, he was engaged in civil engineering in charge of an Assistant Engineer's length of the East India Railway, during which time he led a small force of volunteers against the insurgent Santhals; he subsequently served as a volunteer with the 7th N.I. against the rebels, and on the close of the rebellion pursued and captured fourteen of the leading Santhals implicated in the murder of several Europeans and natives. As some recognition of these services he received the appointment of Assistant Commissioner in charge of the Deoghur District, Santhal Pergunnahs, October 1857. He served under Sir George Yule as a volunteer against the rebel Sepoys in the Purneah and adjoining districts (Mutiny medal and favourable mention in despatches). Raised a regiment of Santhals, for which service he was thanked specially by the Lieut.-Governor of Bengal. In April 1862 Mr. Braddon was promoted to be superintendent of Excise and Stamps, Oudh; subsequently made Inspector-General of Registration, and Superintendent of Trade Statistics in that Province, and during eighteen months acted in addition as Revenue Secretary to the Financial Commissioner. Retired from the service, Mr. Braddon made Tasmania his home. He arrived there in May 1878, and was elected in July 1879 a member of the House of Assembly for West Devon. That seat he retained through four elections until he left Tasmania as Agent-General. In 1876 he was appointed leader of the Opposition. In 1887 he took office in a new Administration as Minister of Lands and Works and Education. On Oct. 29, 1888, he was appointed Agent-General for Tasmania, but was succeeded in that office by Sir Robert Herbert, K.C.B., in 1893. Since 1894 he has been Premier and Leader of the House of Assembly. In 1891 he was made a K.C.M.G. He was sworn of the Privy Council on the occasion of the Queen's Jubilee, 1897. Sir E. Braddon has contributed many articles to reviews, magazines, and newspapers. His first published work, "Life in India," came out in 1870, since which he has published, in 1895, "Thirty Years of Shikar." He married, second, in 1876 Alice, daughter of W. H. Smith. Address: Treglith, West Devon, Tasmania.

BRADDON, Mary Elizabeth. See MAXWELL, MRS. JOHN.

BRADFORD, Colonel Sir Edward Ridley Colborne, G.C.B., K.S.C.I., Commissioner of Police in succession to Mr. Munro since the year 1890, is a son of the late Rev. W. M. K. Bradford, Rector of West Meon, Hants, by Mary, daughter of the late Rev. H. C. Ridley, and he was born in 1836. He entered the Madras Army in 1853, became Lieutenant in 1855, Captain in 1865, Major in 1873, Lieutenant-Colonel in 1879, and Colonel in 1883. Sir Edward Bradford has the Persian medal, and served with the 14th Light Dragoons in the Persian campaign from February 21 till June 8, 1857, in the Jubbulpore district during 1857, and afterwards in the North-Western Provinces with General Michel's force in Mayne's Horse against Tantia Topce in 1858. He was present at the general action of Scindwha and the action and pursuit at Karai, and served with General Napier's columns in Mayne's Horse from December 1858 to September 1859, and was present in several actions with the enemy, gaining the medal, and being twice thanked in despatches. The new Commissioner has held the position of General Superintendent of the operations for the suppression of Thuggi and Dacoity, was Resident First Class and Governor-General's Agent for Rajpootana, and has been Chief Commissioner in Ajmere. He has since his return to this country been Secretary of the Political and Secret Department of the India Office. Sir Edward, who was knighted in 1885, and appointed A.D.C. to the Queen in the year 1889, accompanied H.R.H. the late Duke of Clarence and Avondale on his visit to India. He held the appointment of A.D.C. till 1893. He has lost his left arm, the result of an encounter with a tiger some years ago. Addresses: 58 Eccleston Square, S.W.; and Athenæum.

BRADFORD, John Rose, M.D., was born in London, May 7, 1863, and was educated at University College School, University College, and University College Hospital. He holds the degrees of M.D. and D.Sc. of London; is a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, and was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1894. Elected Assistant-Physician to University College Hospital in 1889, he became subsequently Physician, and was appointed Professor Superintendent of the Brown Institution in 1896. Dr. Bradford has made contributions to scientific and medical literature, in the Proceedings of the Royal Society, and in the Transactions of various medical societies. Address: 60 Wimpole Street, W.

BRADLEY, Professor Andrew Cecil, son of the Rev. Charles Bradley, of St. James's, Clapham, and half-brother of Dean Bradley, was born at Clapham, March 26, 1851. He was educated at Cheltenham College, whence in 1869 he passed as an Exhibitioner to Balliol College, Oxford. Having taken his degree, with a first-class in honours in 1873, he was in the following year elected to a Fellowship in Balliol College, and soon afterwards gained the Chancellor's prize for an English Essay. He was elected to a lectureship in philosophy, and continued as a teacher at Balliol until the beginning of 1882, when he became Professor of Modern Literature and History at the newly-founded University College, Liverpool. Here he remained until July 1889, when, on the resignation of Professor Nichol, he was appointed Regius Professor of English Language and Literature in the University of Glasgow. Besides various literary and philosophical articles and addresses, he is the author of an essay on Aristotle's Conception of the State, in Mr. Evelyn Abbott's "Helfie is also the editor of the "Proto Ethics," a work left unfinished for Green, who was his tutor at Address: Glasgow University.

LEY, The Very Rev. George s, D.D., LL.D., Dean of Wests one of the sons of the Rev. radley, who was for many years lasbury, in the county of Brecon, time incumbent of St. James's Clapham, Surrey. He was born and educated under the Rev. C. at the Clapham Grammar School, three years under Dr. Arnold at om which school he was elected n scholarship at University Colord, where he was a favourite Dean Stanley, who at that time

He took his Bachelor's degree Term, 1844, as a first class in Honours, and in 1845 obtained ellow's prize for a Latin essay, it being "The Equestrian Order man Republic." Having been a Fellowship in 1844, he pro. A. in 1847. Mr. Bradley was e assistant-masters of Rugby or some years, under Dr. Tait accessor, Dr. Goulburn, and was 1858 to the Headmastership of gh College, on the preferment redecessor, Dr. Cotton, to the of Calcutta. Mr. Bradley was deacon in 1858 by the Bishop n, and priest in the same year shop of Salisbury. In December as elected to the Mastership of r College, Oxford, in the place e Dr. Plumtre. The honorary LL.D. was conferred upon him diversity of St. Andrews, Feb. 25, was appointed Examining Chap- e Archbishop of Canterbury in s Select Preacher at Oxford, held the post of Hon. Chaplain een, 1874-75; and of Chaplain ry, 1876-81. In October 1880, he nated a Member of the Oxford r Commission, in the place of orne, resigned. He obtained a n Worcester Cathedral in Feb- 1, and August in the same year ppointed by the Crown to the f Westminster, in succession to Dean Stanley. The degree of conferred upon him at Oxford, 1881. In 1882 he delivered at a series of lectures, afterwards under the title of "Recollections Penrhyn Stanley," 1883. On of Mr. Theodore Walrond, Dr. ndertook the task of preparing ation the biography of Dean which was finally completed by

Mr. R. E. Prothero at the close of the year 1893. In 1885 he published a volume of Westminster Abbey Lectures on the Book of Ecclesiastes, and in 1887 a similar volume on the Book of Job. He is also the writer of two books on Latin Prose, which have had a large circulation. Dr. Bradley married in 1849 Marian Jane, fifth daughter of the Rev. Benjamin Philpot, formerly Rector of Great Cressingham, Norfolk. One of his daughters, Margaret L. Woods (q.v.), wife of the late President of Trinity College, Oxford, is the authoress of "A Village Tragedy," 1887, and other well-known works. Another daughter, now Mrs. A. Murray Smith, is the authoress of the "Life of Lady Arabella Stuart," published in 1886, and, with a third sister, of the "Deanery Guide" to Westminster Abbey. The Dean's eldest son, Mr. A. G. Bradley, is the author of "The Life of General Wolfe," "Sketches in Old Virginia," and other works. Addresses: The Deanery, Westminster; and Athenæum.

BRADLEY, Henry, son of John Bradley, was born at Manchester, Dec. 3, 1845, and was educated at Chesterfield Grammar School. After spending some part of his early life in teaching, he found work as a commercial clerk and foreign correspondent at Sheffield. Removing to London in 1884, he took up literary work, contributed to the Academy and the Athenæum, and was temporary editor of the Academy for a portion of the year 1884-85. He acted as President of the Philological Society from 1891 to 1893, and joined Dr. Murray as joint-editor of the Oxford English Dictionary in 1889. He is the author of: "The Story of the Goths," 1888; revised edition of "Stratmann's Middle-English Dictionary," 1891; revised editions of "Morris's Elementary Lessons in Historical English Grammar," and of "Morris's Primer of English Grammar," 1897; and he has edited the sections E., F., and G. of the Oxford English Dictionary. Address: North House, Clarendon Press, Oxford.

BRADY, Professor George Stewardson, born in 1832, at Gateshead-on-Tyne, was educated at Ackworth School, Yorkshire, Tulketh Hall, Lancashire, and at the University of Durham College of Medicine, Newcastle-upon-Tyne; M.D., and LL.D. (hon.) St. Andrews; F.R.S.; Corresponding Member of the Zoological Society of London, and Academy of Natural Science, Philadelphia, &c.; Professor of Natural History in the Durham College of Science, Newcastle-upon-Tyne; Hon. Physician to the Sunderland Infirmary. His principal published works are as follows: "A Monograph of the Recent British Ostracoda," in Transactions of the Linnean Society, 1868; "A Monograph of the Post-Tertiary Entomostraca of Scotland and Parts of England and Ireland" (Palaeontographical Society, 1874—jointly with H. W. Crosskey and D. Robertson); "A Monograph of the Fossil Ostracoda of the Antwerp Crag" (Transactions of the Zoological Society of London, 1875); "A Monograph of the Free and Semiparasitic Copepoda of the British Islands," 3 vols. (Ray Society, 1877-80); "Report on the Ostracoda of the Challenger Expedition" (1880); "Report on the Copepoda of the Challenger Expedition" (1884); "A Monograph of the Marine and Fresh-Water Ostracoda of the North Atlantic and of North-Western Europe: Section 1, Podocopa" (Transactions of the Royal Dublin Society, vol. iv. 1889—jointly with the Rev. Canon Norman, D.C.L.); "A Supplementary Report on the Myodocopa obtained during the Challenger Expedition" (Transactions of the Zoological Society of London, 1897); "On Ostracoda Collected in the South Sea Islands by H. B. Brady, Esq., D.C.L., F.R.S." (Transactions of the Royal Society of Edinburgh, 1889), besides numerous contributions to medical and scientific journals. Professor Brady was in practice as physician and surgeon in Sunderland from 1857 to 1892, and held the positions of Physician to the Sunderland Infirmary and to the Sunderland Children's Hospital, the Girls' Reformatory, and the Industrial School. He is now President of the "Sunderland Subscription Library and Literary Society," and of the "Sunderland Microscopical Society," and Vice-President of the "Natural History Society of Northumberland, Durham, and Newcastle-upon-Tyne." He has been twice President of the "Tyneside Naturalists' Field Club," and was a Vice-President of the International Congress of Zoologists, 1898. Address: The Durham College of Science, Newcastle-upon-Tyne.

BRADY, Sir Thomas Francis, son of Patrick William Brady of Cavan, was born in July 1824, and was educated at Trinity College, Dublin. He entered the Irish Board of Public Works in 1846, and was appointed an Inspector of Irish Fisheries in 1860, which position he continued to hold until 1891. He has served as a Member of several Royal Commissions, viz., that on "Sea and Oyster Fisheries" in 1868, and the one on "Trawling" in 1884. Sir Thomas is the author of: "Digests of the Irish Fishery Laws," and is married to Annie, daughter of John Lipsett, Manor House, Ballyshannon. He received the honour of knighthood in 1886. Address: 11 Percy Place, Dublin; and Baltimore, county Cork.

BRAMLEY, Frank, A.R.A., son of Charles Bramley of Fiskerton, Lincoln, was born near Boston, Lincolnshire, on May 6, 1857, and was educated at Lincoln. He studied at the Lincoln School of Art and at Antwerp, and was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy of Arts in 1894. Amongst his works there may be mentioned: "Domino," 1886; "Eyes and no Eyes," 1887; "A Hopeless Dawn," 1888 (purchased under the terms of the Chantrey Bequest); "Saved," 1889; "For of such is the Kingdom of Heaven," 1891; "Old Memories," 1892; "After Fifty Years," 1893; "Sleep, a Portrait of Mrs. Bolltho," 1895; "After the Storm," 1896; and several portraits in 1897. Mr. Bramley was married, in 1891, to Katherine, daughter of John Graham of Huntingstile, Grasmere. Address: Huntingstile, Grasmere, Westmoreland.

BRAMWELL, Sir Frederick Joseph, Bart., D.C.L., LL.D., F.R.S., Past President of the Institution of Civil Engineers, youngest son of the late George Bramwell, banker, was born in the year 1818. From his earliest boyhood he showed great interest in mechanics, as evinced by his endeavours to repeat, in a rough model, the steam engines and winding machinery which he had seen at the age of nine in use in the construction of the St. Katharine's Dock. In 1834 he was apprenticed to one of the old school of mechanical engineers, John Hague, with whom he served his time, and with whom he continued for a few years as principal draughtsman; then, after a varied experience in the employment of others, in 1853 he began business on his own account as a civil engineer. In 1856 he was elected an Associate of the Institution of Civil Engineers; in 1862 was transferred to full membership of that body; in 1867 was elected a Member of its Council, and in 1884-85 had the honour of filling the position of President, having previously been, in the years 1874-75, President of the Institution of Mechanical Engineers. In 1881, on the formation of the present Ordnance Committee, he was appointed one of the two lay members of that Committee. He has also, in the exercise of his profession, and at the instance of the Government, served on several committees which have been appointed for various purposes. Having been for some years a member of the British Association, he was in 1872 made President of Section G (Mechanical Section), and was selected to refill this office on the occasion of a visit of the Association to Montreal in 1884, and was elected President of that body for the year commencing with the Bath meeting, September 1888. In 1873 he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society, and in the year 1878 served on its Council. Having been a member of the Board of Managers of the Royal Institution for some time, he was, on the retirement of Sir William Bowman in 1885, appointed to the position of Hon. Secretary of that body. In 1884 he was nominated by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales to the position of Chairman of the Executive Council of the Inventions Exhibition which was held in the following year. On the formation of the City and Guilds of London Institute for the Advancement of Technical Education, he was appointed by the Goldsmiths' Company as one of their representatives, being at that time Prime Warden of the Company, and was elected by the Executive Committee of the Institute to be their Chairman. In 1885 he became Hon. Secretary of the Royal Institution of Great Britain. In 1881 he received the honour of knighthood in connection with his services in the promotion of technical education, and in 1886 the honorary degree of D.C.L. from Oxford. In 1889 he was created a Baronet, and in 1891 was made an honorary LL.D. of Cambridge. Addresses: 1A Hyde Park Gate, S.W.; Four Elms, Kent; 5 Great George Street, Westminster; and Athenæum.

BRAMWELL, John Milne, M.B., born at Perth, N.B., May 11, 1852, is the son of James Paton Bramwell, M.D. of Perth, and was educated at Perth Grammar School and the University of Edinburgh, where he took the degree of M.B. and C.M., 1873. Immediately after graduating, he was appointed surgeon in the Liverpool, Brazil, and River Plate Mail S.S. Co., remained a year in the Company, made three voyages to Brazil and River Plate; then he was appointed Assistant-Surgeon at the Perth City Infirmary, and subsequently settled in Goole as partner with Malcolm Morris (now Lecturer on Skin Diseases, St. Mary's Hospital, London). He has recently devoted much study to hypnotism, to which his attention was first drawn by seeing, when a child, hypnotic experiments performed by his father. He read Dr. Gregory's book on the subject, and a translation from the German book by Reichenbach, and never lost interest in the subject; but he commenced his serious study not many years ago, and has read much of the important Continental literature bearing upon it. He has twice visited Nancy, and observed the methods employed there, and at La Salpêtrière at Paris, and has also spent some time at the hypnotic clinics in Switzerland, Holland, and Sweden. The French methods of inducing hypnosis differ. He combined the two methods, and found the result far more successful than that obtained by either of the French schools, pushed hypnotic practice more boldly after returning from France, and has treated many cases. On March 28, 1890, he gave to medical men at Leeds demonstration of hypnotism as an Anæsthetic, a report of which was published in The Lancet and The British Medical Journal of April 5, 1890. Mr. Bramwell's publications are: "Extractions under Hypnotism," The Journal of the British Dental Association, March 15, 1890; an article in Health on hypnotism, May 16, 1890; "Successful Treatment of Dipomania, Insomnia, &c., &c., and Various Diseases by Hypnotic Suggestion," 1890-92; "Alterations in the Special Senses and Induction of Anæsthesia for Operative Purposes by Suggestion in the apparently Waking State," 1892; "Hypnotism with Illustrative Cases," Transactions of the Harveian Society; "On Imperative Ideas," Brain, Parts lxx. and lxxi.; "James Braid, Surgeon and Hypnotist," ibid., Part lxxiii.; "Un Cas d'Hyperhydrose Localisée Traité avec Succès par la Suggestion Hypnotique," Revue de l'Hypnot., 1895; "La Guérison des Obsessions par la Suggestion," ibid., 1896; "Hypnotic Anæsthesia," Practitioner, 1896; "James Braid: his Work and Writings," Proceedings of the Society of Psychological Research, 1896; "Personally Observed Hypnotic Phenomena: and What is Hypnotism?" ibid., 1896; "On the Evolution of Hypnotic Theory," Brain, Part lxxvi., 1896; "On the So-called Automatism of the Hypnotized Subject," and "On the Appreciation of Time by Somnambules," Dritter Internat. Cong. für Psychol., München, 1896; "Suggestion: its Place in Medicine and Scientific Research" ("Humane Science Lectures by Various Authors," George Bell & Sons), 1897. Address: 2 Henrietta Street, Cavendish Square, W.

BRANDES, Georg, a Danish author of Jewish family, was born at Copenhagen, Feb. 4, 1842. He studied in the University of his native city, 1859-64, applying himself first to Jurisprudence and then to philosophy and æsthetics. In 1862 he gained the gold medal of the University by an essay on "Fatalism among the Ancients," and afterwards passed the examination for his degree with the highest distinction. As soon as he had graduated he left Denmark and spent several years in different countries on the Continent. He was at Stockholm in 1865; passed the winter of 1866-67 at Paris; was in Germany in 1868; and in France and Italy in 1870-71. He published "Dualismen von nyeste Filosofi" ("The Dualism of the Philosophy of the Present Time") in 1866, with reference to the relations between science and faith—a work which exposed him to violent attacks from the orthodox party; "Æsthetic Studies," 1868; "Criticisms and Portraits," 1870; and "French Æsthetics at the Present Day," 1870. On returning from his travels he became a private tutor in the University of Copenhagen, and delivered the series of lectures which were published at Copenhagen in 5 vols., 1872–82, under the title of "Hovedstrømninger i det 19 Aarhundredes literatur" ("The Great Literary Currents of the Nineteenth Century"), and were subsequently translated into German by himself. He has given Danish translations of John Stuart Mill's essay on the "Subjection of Women," 1869, and his "Utilitarianism," 1872; and edited "Søren Kierkegaard," 1877; and "Danske Digtere" (Danish Poets), 1877. In October 1877 Brandes left Denmark and settled in Berlin, where he diligently studied and made himself master of the German language. At Berlin he composed the biographies "Esajas Tegnér" and "Benjamin d'Israeli," both published in 1878. In the spring of the year 1883 he returned to Denmark, his fellow-countrymen having guaranteed him an income of 4000 crowns for ten years, with the single stipulation that he should deliver public lectures on literature at Copenhagen. He has further published "Ferdinand Lassalle," 1881; "Men and Works," 1883; "The Men of the Modern Literary Revival," 1883; "Ludwig Holberg," 1884; "Berlin," 1885; "Impressions of Poland," 1888; "Impressions of Russia," 1888; and 2 vols. of his "Essays," 1889. English translations of his works, edited in England and America, are "Lord Beaconsfield," 1880; "Eminent Authors of the Nineteenth Century," 1886; and "Impressions of Russia," 1889. His Study of Shakespeare in 1898 was received with much favour in England. It was principally translated by Mr. William Archer, and is worthy of a scholar who has soaked himself in Shakespereana for the last thirty years. On the disputable point of the sonnets, he supports the theory that the originator of them was the Earl of Pembroke, whose liaison with Mary Fitton he holds to be the subject of the series. He points out the change that took place in Shakespeare's plays after his patron, Lord Southampton, had been condemned for participation in Essex's rebellion—how the optimism of "Henry V." changes to the sombreness of "Lear" and "Coriolanus." The great purpose of his book is to show that Shakespeare was a man, and not a mere label for the author of some plays and poems. His contempt for the Baconian theory is marked.

BRANDIS, Sir Dietrich, Ph.D., K.C.I.E., F.R.S., son of Dr. Christian August Brandis, Professor of Philosophy at the University of Bonn, by Caroline, daughter of Bernhard Housmann, of Hanover, was born at Bonn on March 31, 1824. He was educated at the High School (Gymnasium) of Bonn, Copenhagen, and Göttingen, and from 1837 to 1839, while in Athens (where his father had been called to assist in organising the University), was educated by Dr. Ernst Curtius, now Professor at Berlin. He studied at the Universities of Copenhagen, Göttingen, and Bonn; took his degree as Doctor of Philosophy at Bonn in 1848, was lecturer on Botany at that University from 1849 to 1855; was appointed by Lord Dalhousie, then Governor-General of India, Superintendent of Forests in Pegu, which appointment he gained in January 1856. The charge of the forests of Tenasserim and Martaban was added in 1857. On the amalgamation of the provinces he was appointed Superintendent of Forests in British Burmah. In November 1862 Dr. Brandis was called to Calcutta to organise Forest administration in the provinces immediately under the Government of India, and in 1864 he was appointed Inspector-General of Forests to the Government of India. On several occasions he was deputed to assist in the organisation of Forest business in the minor Presidencies, viz., to Sind in 1868, to Bombay in 1870, and to Madras in 1881. While on furlough to recruit his health, Dr. Brandis published (in 1874) a Forest Flora of North-West and Central India. In 1878 he founded the Indian Forest School at Dèhra Dûn, in North-West India, for the education of natives of India for the post of forest rangers. In 1883 he retired from the service. Of his numerous official publications the most important are a "Report on the Attaran Forests," published at Calcutta in 1861, and a "Report on the Forest Administration in the Madras Presidency," published at Madras in 1883. In 1878 Dr. Brandis was created a Companion of the Indian Empire, and in 1887 the honour of a Knight Commander of the same Order was conferred upon him. In 1874 Dr. Brandis was made an Hon. Member of the Scottish Arboricultural Society, and in 1875 he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society. Of the numerous papers contributed by him to scientific periodicals may be mentioned: "On the Distribution of Forests in India," "Ocean Highways," 1872; "Progress of Forestry in India," Transactions, Scottish Arboricultural Society, 1884; "Regen und Wald in Indien," Deutsche Meteorologische Zeitschrift, October 1887. He is now living in retirement at Bonn, his native place.

BRANDL, Alois, German author, was born at Innsbruck, June 21, 1855, and studied at the University of Vienna, and then at Berlin under Mullenhoff and Zupitza, where he specialised in Old English. This led to his coming to England in 1879, where he studied under Sweet and Furnivall. In 1884 he became Professor of English at Prague, at Göttingen in 1888, and was called to succeed Ten Brink at Strasbourg in 1892. This post he resigned for a corresponding one in Berlin in 1895. His chief works are: "Thomas of Ercelesbourne," 1881; "S. T. Coleridge und die Englische Romantik," 1886; and "Shakspeare," 1894. He has edited the Archiv für das Studium der neueren Sprachen since 1896. Berlin address: Kaiserin Augusta Strasse 73.

BRASSEY, Lord, Sir Thomas Brassey, K.C.B., D.C.L., D.L., J.P., 1st Baron, eldest son of Thomas Brassey, the well-known contractor for public works, was born at Stafford on Feb. 11, 1836, and educated at Rugby and University College, Oxford, graduating in honours in the Modern Law and History School. He was elected for Devonport in 1865, has represented Hastings from 1868 to 1886, and was appointed Civil Lord of the Admiralty in 1880, and Secretary to the Admiralty in 1884. He is the author of "Work and Wages," "Lectures on the Labour Question," "English Work and Foreign Wages," "British Seamen," "The British Navy," in 5 vols., and The Naval Annual, a serial publication, commenced in 1886. He has published numerous pamphlets on political, economical, and naval questions. Lord Brassey began his career in Parliament by seconding a motion by Mr. Thomas Hughes in 1869 for an inquiry into the Labour Laws. In 1871 he began the first of a series of speeches on Naval Administration. The subjects dealt with have included the defence of the commercial harbours, the organisation of the Comptroller's Department of the Admiralty and of the Dockyards, the principal reform advocated being a more decentralised management. In treating of ship-building policy, the objections to extreme dimensions have been strongly urged. The Question of the Naval Reserves was brought forward by Lord Brassey in Parliament on several occasions, and he succeeded in obtaining the consent of the Admiralty to the enrolment of a second class reserve, for which the fishing population would be eligible. The present strength of the force is 10,000. He also took an active part in establishing the Royal Naval Artillery Volunteers. Lord Brassey moved for a select committee on the Euphrates Valley Railway in 1871, and for a Royal Commission on Marine Insurance in 1875. In 1879 he seconded Mr. Chaplain's motion for the appointment of a Royal Commission on Agriculture. In 1874-75 he served on the Royal Commission on Unseaworthy Ships, in 1885 he was appointed a member of the Commission on the Defence of the Coaling Stations, and in 1893-94 he acted as the President of the Royal Commission on Opium, which held its inquiry in India and Burmah. As a yachtsman, Lord Brassey has made many distant voyages. In 1876-77 he went round the world in the Sunbeam. In 1884 he visited the West Indies, and in 1886-87, India, Australia, and the Cape. A series of letters by him on the state of the defences of the coaling stations on the route to Australia by the Suez Canal and to India by the Cape of Good Hope, was published in the Times. He was the first yachtsman who obtained a Board of Trade certificate for competency to navigate as master. The late Lady Brassey was the author of the well-known work, "Voyage of the Sunbeam," and other popular books of travel. She died at sea, Oct. 14, 1887. At the general election of 1886 Lord Brassey withdrew from Hastings and offered himself as a Gladstonian Liberal for one of the divisions of Liverpool. He was defeated, and on the resignation of Mr. Gladstone's Government he was raised to the peerage. Lord Brassey has taken an active part in the organisation of the Imperial Federation League. He introduced the deputation to Lord Salisbury, at whose instance the convening of the Colonial Conference of 1887 was considered by the Government. In 1895 he was appointed to the Governorship of Victoria, a position which he still occupies. He is a Younger Brother of the Trinity House, a Governor of University College, London, and a Commander of the Legion of Honour. On Sept. 8, 1890, Lord Brassey married the Hon. Sybil de Vere Capell, youngest daughter of the Viscountess Malden, and sister of the present Earl of Essex. His heir is the Hon. Thomas Brassey, born in 1862. Addresses: 24 Park Lane, W.; Normanhurst, Battle, Sussex; and Athenæum.

BREADALBANE, Marquis of, The Right Hon. Gavin Campbell, K.G., D.L., was born April 9, 1851, and succeeded his father as Earl of Breadalbane (in the Scotch Peerage) in 1871. He was educated at St. Andrews, was a Lord-in-Waiting from 1873 to 1874, Treasurer of the Queen's Household from 1880 to 1885, and Lord Steward of the Household from 1892 to 1895. He also acted as Lord High Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland from 1893 to 1895. He is a Major in the 5th Volunteer Battalion of the Royal Highlanders, and Brigadier-General of the Royal Company of Archers. Lord Breadalbane was created a Marquis in the Peerage of the United Kingdom in 1885, and was married, in 1872, to Alma, daughter of the 4th Duke of Montrose. Address: 19 Cavendish Square, W.; and Taymouth Castle, Perthshire.

BREAL, Michel Jules Alfred, a French philologist, was born at Landau, Bavaria, of French parentage, March 26, 1832. He received his early education in France, and studied Sanskrit at Berlin, under Professors Bopp and Weber. Returning to Paris, he joined the staff at the Bibliothèque Impériale, and in 1862 obtained the Academy's prize for his "L'Étude des Origines de la Religion Zoroastrienne." In 1864 he was made Professor of Comparative Grammar at the College of France. M. Bréal was elected a Member of the Institute, Dec. 3, 1875, and made Director at the École des Hautes Études. In 1879 he was appointed Inspector-General of Public Instruction for secondary education. He retired in 1888, but still keeps his position as a member of the Council of Higher Education in France. He was made a Commander of the Legion of Honour in 1890. Among his works are: "Hercule et Cacus, Étude de Mythologie comparée," 1863; translation of the "Bopp's Grammaire comparée des Langues Indo-Européennes," 1867-72; "Quelques Mots sur l'Instruction publique en France," 1872; "L'Enseignement de la Langue Française," 1878; "Excursions pédagogiques," 1880; "La Réforme de l'orthographe Française," 1890. Address: 70 Rue d'Assas, Paris.

BREITMANN, Hans. See LELAND, CHARLES GODFREY.

BRETT, Hon. Reginald Baliol, C.B., was born in London, June 30, 1852, and is the eldest son of Lord Esher, Master of the Rolls. He was educated at Cheam School, in Surrey, and at Eton, and Trinity College, Cambridge, where he graduated in 1874, and took his M.A. degree in 1877. At the end of that year he was appointed private secretary to the Marquis of Hartington, then the leader of the Liberal party. At the general election in 1880, Mr. Brett was returned to Parliament for Falmouth, defeating Sir Julius Vogel, the late Prime Minister of New Zealand. Mr. Brett continued for a time to act as unpaid secretary to the Marquis of Hartington, who was appointed Secretary of State for India in Mr. Gladstone's Government. At the general election of 1885 Mr. Brett contested Plymouth, and was defeated by Sir Edward Clarke, M.P. In 1895 he was appointed Secretary to H.M. Office of Works, and in June 1897, was created a Companion of the Bath. Mr. Brett is the author of "Footprints of Statesmen," 1892, "The Yoke of Empire," and of many articles on historical and political subjects in the Portnightly Review and the Nineteenth Century. In September 1879 he married Eleanor, the youngest daughter of M. Sylvain Van de Weyer, one of the founders of Belgian independence, a member of the Provisional Government of 1830, and for many years subsequently Belgian Minister at the Court of St. James. Addresses: 2 Tilney Street, Mayfair; Orchard Lea, Windsor Forest; The Roman Camp, Callander.

BREUL, Karl Hermann, was born at Hanover, Aug. 10, 1860, and educated from 1868 to 1878 at the Lyceum of his native town. From 1878 to 1883 he studied at the Universities of Tübingen, Strassburg, under Ten Brink, and Berlin, where he took his degree of Ph.D. in 1883. In that year he went to Paris and studied under Gaston, Paris, and translated Tobler's work on "Old and Modern French Versification." In June 1884 he was appointed University Lecturer on German at Cambridge, and in 1886 the degree of M.A. (honoris causa) was conferred upon him. He was appointed Lecturer in German at Newnham and Girton Colleges in 1885, and in 1897 he obtained the degree of Litt.D., and was appointed Secretary to the Special Board of Mediæval and Modern Languages. He has examined for the Universities of Cambridge, Oxford, London, Victoria, Ireland (Royal), and the London Chamber of Commerce. Since 1897 he has acted as German sub-editor of The Modern Quarterly, the organ of the Modern Language Association, of which he has been a prominent member from its commencement in 1893. Dr. Breul is an enthusiastic supporter of the teaching of modern languages as living tongues, and is in thorough accord with those teachers who are endeavouring to introduce the more scientific educational methods of Germany into England. His chief publications are: "Le Dit de Robert le Diable" (Halle, 1895); "A Bibliographical Guide to the Study of German" (London, 1895); editions of German classics, such as "Das Bild des Kaisers," "Wilhelm Tell," "Maria Stuart," "Wallenstein" (Cambridge University Press, 1888-96); "Die Frauencollegen an der Universität Cambridge" (1891). Address: Engelmere, Cambridge.

BREWSTER, David Josiah, American jurist, is the son of an American missionary to Turkey, and was born at Smyrna, in Asia Minor, June 20, 1837. He graduated from Yale University, New Haven, Connecticut, in 1856, and from the Law School at Albany, New York, in 1858. He established himself in his profession at Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1859, and resided there until he removed to Washington to enter upon his duties in the Supreme Court of the United States. In 1862-65 he was Judge of the Probate and Criminal Courts of Leavenworth County; from 1865 to 1869, Judge of the District Court, and in 1870 was elected a Justice of the Supreme Court of his State, being re-elected in 1875 and 1882. In 1884 he was appointed Judge of the United States Circuit Court for the Eighth District, and was appointed a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States in December 1889. In 1896 he was appointed a member of the Venezuela Boundary Commission, of which he was unanimously elected President.

BRIALMONT, General Alexis Henri, a Belgian military engineer, and writer on military subjects, son of General Laurent Mathieu Brialmont, was born at Venloo, in the province of Limburg, May 25, 1821. He quitted the military school at Brussels with the rank of sub-lieutenant in 1843. Being connected, as an engineer officer, with the management of the fortifications, he was appointed to carry out the works at the fortress of Diest. From 1847 to 1850 he was private secretary to General Chazal, then Minister of War. In 1855 he left the corps of engineers and became a member of the staff, attaining to the rank of Captain in 1857. In due course he became Major-General, and in 1877 Lieutenant-General. He was appointed Inspector-General of Fortifications and of the Sappers and Miners in Belgium in 1875. Lieut.-General Brialmont has written many works on military history and tactics. The following are the principal: "Eloge de la Guerre, ou réfutation des doctrines des Amis de la Paix," 1 vol. in 12mo, 1894; "Précis d'Art militaire," 4 vols. in 12mo, 1850; "Considérations politiques et militaires sur la Belgique," 3 vols. in 8vo, 1851-52; "Histoire du Duc de Wellington," 3 vols. in 8vo, 1856; "Agrandissement général d'Anvers," 1 vol. in 8vo, with atlas, 1858; "Complément de l'Œuvre de 1830," 1 vol. in 8vo, 1860; "Études sur la Défense des États et sur la Fortification," 3 vols. in 8vo, with atlas, 1863; "Études sur l'Organisation des Armées," 1 vol. in 8vo, 1867; "Traité de Fortification polygonale," 2 vols. gr. in 8vo, with atlas, 1869; "La Fortification à fossés secs," 2 vols. gr. in 8vo, with atlas, 1872; "La Fortification improvisée," 1 vol. in 12mo, 1870; "Études sur la Fortification des Capitales et l'investissement des Camps retranchés," 1 vol. gr. in 8vo, 1873; "La Défense des États et les Camps retranchés," 1 vol. in 8vo, 1876; "La Fortification du champ de bataille," 1 vol. gr. in 8vo, with atlas, 1879; "Manuel de Fortification de Campagne," 1 vol. in 8vo, 1879; "Étude sur les Formations de Combat de l'Infanterie, l'attaque et la défense des positions retranchés," 1 vol. in 8vo, 1880; "Tactique des trois Armées," 2 vols. in 8vo, with atlas, 1881; "Situation militaire de la Belgique, travaux de défense de la Meuse," 1 vol. in 8vo, 1882; "Le général Todleben, sa vie et ses travaux," 1 vol. in 12mo, 1884; "La Fortification du temps présent," 2 vols. gr. in 8vo, with atlas, 1885; "Influence du Tir plongeant et des Obus-torpilles sur la Fortification," 1 vol. gr. in 8vo, with atlas, 1888; "Les régions fortifiées," 1 vol. gr. in 8vo, with atlas, 1890; and forty pamphlets on political and military subjects, published from 1846 to 1890. General Brialmont made the principal fortifications of Antwerp in 1858; the fortifications of Bucharest in 1883, as well as those of Liège, and of Namur in 1887.

BRIDGE, Sir John, J.P., born in 1824, was educated at Trinity College, Oxford, and was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1850. Appointed a Police Magistrate at the Bow Street Court in 1872, he became Chief Police Magistrate for London in 1890, and in the same year he received the honour of knighthood. Sir John was married in 1857 to Ada Louisa, daughter of George Bridge. Addresses: 50 Inverness Terrace, W.; Headley Grove, Epsom; and Athenæum.

BRIDGE, Sir (John) Frederick, Mus.D., F.R.C.O., Organist at Westminster Abbey, son of John Bridge, was born Dec. 5, 1844, at Oldbury, Worcestershire, educated at Rochester Cathedral School under John Hopkins, and afterwards became a pupil of Sir John Goss. He was appointed Organist of Holy Trinity Church, Windsor, in 1865; of Manchester Cathedral in 1869; Professor of Harmony at Owens College, Manchester, in 1871; Permanent Deputy Organist of Westminster Abbey in 1875; and succeeded to the full offices of Master of the Choristers and Organist in 1882. He is also Professor of Harmony and Counterpoint at the Royal College of Music. Sir John Bridge has composed the oratorio "Mount Moriah," a cantata, "Boadicea," "Hymn to the Creator" (the song of St. Francis), produced at the Worcester Festival, 1884; "Rock of Ages" (Latin translated by Mr. Gladstone), produced at the Birmingham Festival, 1885; "Callirhoe" at the Birmingham Festival, 1889; church music and part songs. He is the author of theoretical works on Counterpoint, Double Counterpoint, and Canon, and "Organ Accompaniment"—all published in Novello's series of Primers. He wrote an oratorio for the Worcester Festival of 1890, and has composed "The Inchcape Rock" and other works for various societies. He was appointed Gresham Professor of Music in 1891. His last work is a Primer, entitled "Musical Gestures," which is a new system of teaching the rudiments of music by Manual Exercises. On Sir Joseph Barnby's death in 1896, he was appointed Conductor of the Royal Choral Society. For the concert which concluded the season, and which was made the occasion of a celebration of the Jubilee, he set Mr. Rudyard Kipling's ballad, "The Flag of England," to music. He was knighted by her Majesty on the occasion of the Diamond Jubilee, 1897. Address: The Cloisters, Westminster Abbey, S.W.

BRIDGES, Robert, M.A., M.B. Oxon., poet, the son of I. T. Bridges, of St. Nicholas Court, Isle of Thanet, was born on Oct. 23, 1844, and was educated at Eton and Corpus Christi College, Oxford, of which latter foundation he is an Hon. Fellow. On leaving Oxford he pursued the study of medicine at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, London, and eventually became Assistant Physician at the Children's Hospital, in Great Ormond Street, and Physician at the Great Northern Hospital. He retired from his medical duties in 1882. Dr. Bridges has a considerable reputation as a poet, and has published numerous plays and poems, the latter having been often privately printed at the Rev. Mr. Daniell's private printing press, Worcester College, Oxford. He is also the author of "An Essay on Milton's Poems," and "A Critical Essay on Keats." He was married in 1884 to Mary, eldest daughter of Alfred Waterhouse, R.A. Address: Yattendon, Newbury.

BRIGGS, Charles Augustus, D.D., was born in New York City, Jan. 15, 1841. He was educated at the University of Virginia (1857-60), and at the Union Theological Seminary, New York City (1861-63), studying afterwards at the University of Berlin under Dörner and Rödiger (1868-69). From 1870 to 1874 he was pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Rosselle, N. J., and since 1874 he has held a Professorship at the Union Theological Seminary. On his transferral in 1891 from the chair of Hebrew and Cognate Languages to that of Biblical Theology, he made an Address on "Authority of Holy Scripture" that provoked considerable controversy on the inerrancy of the Bible, and ultimately (in 1893) caused his suspension by the American Presbyterian Church from the ministry. He retains his Professorship, however, as the trustees and faculty of the seminary have sustained him in the controversy. He has nevertheless recently formally withdrawn from the Presbyterian Church, and applied for orders as a Protestant Episcopal clergyman. His principal publications, in addition to contributions to periodicals, are: "Biblical Study," 1883; "American Presbyterianism," 1885; "Messianic Prophecy," 1886; "Whither?" 1889; "Biblical History," 1890; "Authenticity of Holy Scripture," 1891; "The Messiah of the Gospels," 1894; "The Messiah of the Apostles," 1895. He was one of the translators of the Commentaries on the Psalms and Ezra in the "American Lange Series."

BRIGHT, The Right Hon. Jacob, M.P., son of the late Mr. Jacob Bright and brother of the late Right Hon. John Bright, was born in 1821, and educated at the Friends' School, York. He sat for Manchester from 1867 to 1874, and again from 1876 to November 1885, when he was defeated; he was returned in 1886, and again in 1892, for the South-West Division of Manchester. He retired in 1895. Mr. Jacob Bright has identified himself with the chief Radical movements of his time, and has for many years been in favour of Home Rule for Ireland. He obtained the Municipal vote for women in 1869, and has always supported their efforts to obtain the Parliamentary vote. He has, in fact, been one of the most thorough supporters of women in all that concerns their property and their status. In 1883 he succeeded in preventing the ratification of a treaty which proposed to give both banks of the Congo to Portugal. Mr. Gladstone then made the unprecedented promise that the treaty should not be ratified without the consent of the House of Commons. Nothing more was heard of the treaty, and shortly afterwards freedom of commerce on the Congo was secured by the African Conference at Berlin. Mr. Jacob Bright is a Director of the Manchester Ship Canal. He is Chairman of John Bright & Brothers of Rochdale. He married in 1855 Ursula, daughter of Joseph Mellor, merchant, of Liverpool. Address: 31 St. James's Place, S.W.

BRIGHT, James Franck, D.D., Master of University College, Oxford, was born in St. James's, Westminster, on May 29, 1832, and is the third son of Dr. Richard Bright of Guy's Hospital. He was educated at Rugby, and matriculated at University College at the age of eighteen. He was in the first class in Law and History in 1854; B.A., 1855; M.A., 1858; B.D. and D.D., 1884. From 1856 to 1872 he was an assistant master at Marlborough College, and at the head of its Modern Department; and returned to his College in 1872, when he became Lecturer and Tutor in Divinity and Modern History at Balliol, and Modern History Lecturer at University. In 1874 he was elected a Fellow of his College, in 1875 Dean, in 1877 Tutor, in 1881 Master. From 1872 to 1875 he was Modern History Lecturer at University; from 1873 to 1875 at Wadham and Queen's; from 1875 to 1881 at New College; from 1873 to 1875 Lecturer and Tutor at Corpus Christi; and from 1872 to 1882 Lecturer and Tutor in Divinity and Modern History at Balliol. In 1877 he was appointed an Hon. Fellow of Balliol. He has been History Examiner on numerous occasions, and is the author of the well-known text-book, "A History of England," in 4 vols. In 1897 he published lives of Maria Theresa and Joseph II. He married in 1864 Emmeline Theresa, daughter of the Rev. E. D. Wickham, Vicar of Holmwood. Addresses: University College, Oxford; and Athenæum.

BRIGHT, Canon William, D.D., Regius Professor of Ecclesiastical History, and Canon and Sub-Dean of Christ Church, Oxford, was born at Doncaster Dec. 14, 1824, and is the son of William Bright, Town Clerk of Doncaster. From Rugby School he was elected scholar of University College, Oxford, where he graduated in the first class in Classics in 1846. The next year he was elected a Fellow of his College, and gained the Johnson Theological Scholarship and the Ellerton Theological Prize, and in 1849 he proceeded M.A. Applying himself to the study of divinity, he was ordained deacon in 1848, and priest in 1850, and in the succeeding year became theological tutor in Trinity College, Glenalmond. He returned to Oxford in 1859, and was afterwards appointed Tutor of University College. He was promoted in 1868 to the Regius Professorship of Ecclesiastical History, and to the canonry of Christ Church, which is attached to that chair. The University conferred upon him the degree of D.D. in 1869. He became Proctor for the Chapter in Convocation in 1878, and on subsequent occasions, and was Examining Chaplain to the Bishop of Lincoln, 1885-93. Dr. Bright's works are: "Ancient Collects selected from Various Rituals," 1857, 1867; "A History of the Church, from the Edict of Milan to the Council of Chalcedon," 1860, 1888; "Select Sermons of St. Leo on the Incarnation, with his 'Tome,' translated with notes," 1862, 1886; "Faith and Life: Readings from Ancient Writers," 1864, 1866. In 1865 he published, in collaboration with the Rev. P. G. Medd, M.A., a Latin version of the Book of Common Prayer; "Hymns and other Verses," 1866 and 1874; reprints of "Eusebius's Ecclesiastical History," "St. Athanasius's Orations against the Arians," "Socrates' Ecclesiastical History," "Select Anti-Pelagian Treatises of St. Augustine," and "St. Athanasius's Historical Writings," with introductions, in 1872, 1873, 1878, 1880, 1881, 1882, 1883, 1893; "Chapters of Early English Church History," 1878, 1888, 1897; "Later Treatises of St. Athanasius, translated with Notes and Appendix," in the "Library of the Fathers," 1881; "Notes on the Canons of the First Four General Councils," 1882, 1892; "Private Prayers for a Week," 1882; "Family Prayers for a Week," 1885; "Iona, and Other Verses," 1886; "Addresses on the Seven Sayings from the Cross," 1887; "The Incarnation as a Motive Power," 1889, 1891; "Lessons from the Lives of Three Great Fathers, 1890-91; "Morality in Doctrine," 1892; "Waymarks in Church History," 1894; "The Roman See in the Early Church, and other Studies in Church History," 1896; "The Law of Faith," 1898. Address: Christ Church, Oxford.

BRISSON, Eugène Henri, a French politician, was born July 31, 1835, at Bourges, and is the son of a lawyer in that city, studied law in Paris, and entered the profession in 1859. He wrote for the Temps and the Avenir National, and established in 1868, in conjunction with MM. Lacour and Allain-Targé, the Revue Politique. As a democratic candidate at the elections in 1869 he was unsuccessful in obtaining a seat in the Corps Législatif, but after the Revolution of Sept. 4, 1870, he was appointed Deputy Mayor of Paris by the Government for the National Defence. This position he resigned on October 3. On Feb. 8, 1871, he was elected as representative of the Seine in the Assembly, and submitted a proposition of amnesty for all political crimes. At the general elections in February 1876, he was elected for the tenth arrondissement of Paris, and followed in the new Chamber the same political line. He was one of the 363 deputies who refused a vote of confidence to the Broglie Cabinet. At the opening of the session of 1879 M. Brisson was elected Vice-President, and was named President of the Budget Commission on February 27 of the same year. He succeeded M. Gambetta as President of the Chamber, Nov. 3, 1881, and was re-elected in 1883. He accepted the office of Prime Minister on the fall of M. Ferry in 1885.

but after a few months gave place to M. de Freycinet. At the elections of September 1889, he was the only Republican candidate elected in Paris, "au premier tour du scrutin." In the autumn of 1890 he put forward proposals for compelling religious bodies to pay up considerable arrears due from them under the new laws relating to church property. These proposals caused considerable discussion in the newspapers. In 1892 he brought forward a plan for completely reorganising the French naval forces, but the Naval Budget Committee refused to support him against the existing Ministry. He was one of the candidates for the Presidency of the French Republic in June 1894, and stood second in the poll, receiving 195 votes to M. Casimir-Périer's 451. In 1896 he was elected President of the Chamber of Deputies, and his firm action during the difficult days of the Zola trial (1897) has been much admired throughout France. At the beginning of the new Parliament in May 1898, he was defeated on the re-election of President by M. Paul Deschanel, a moderate Republican (q.v.). M. Brisson is well known for the Spartan nature of his Republicanism; his address in Paris is Rue Mazagran 9, and he lives on the fifth floor in a bare flat that the Iron Duke would have admired. He has never been known to take a cab, but always travels on the outside of omnibuses. In fact, he is the living embodiment in France of what we should call the Nonconformist conscience. His mission in life is to preside over Commissions of Inquiry, especially when scandals have to be investigated with inflexible severity. His presidency of the Panama Commission was appreciated by all. When the Méline Cabinet fell in June 1898, after MM. Peytral, Sarrien, and Ribot (q.v.) had failed to form cabinets, M. Brisson was commissioned by the President to undertake this duty, which he carried to a successful issue. His combination was a Radical one, and included MM. Cavaignac, Sarrien, Delcassé, and Bourgeois (q.v.). With a courage that merits all honour, M. Brisson and his colleagues persisted in their patriotic work of vindicating before the civilised world the unimpeachable integrity and absolute justice of the national conscience. As the weeks dragged their weary course, the tension of the situation became dangerously strained, and special means had to be adopted to preserve public order. On the Chamber reassembling on Oct. 25, 1898, the Government was violently assailed, and received a sudden blow by the dramatic and reprehensible resignation of General Chanoine (q.v.), the new Minister of War. After a series of votes affirming the supremacy of the civil over the military power, declaring continued confidence in the army, and rejecting by 274 votes to 261 a motion censuring the Government for "not causing the army to be respected," the Chamber, on the motion of M. de Malny, called upon the Government to institute prosecutions against persons "insulting the army." This proceeding M. Brisson declined to take, and the subsequent vote of confidence in the Government was lost by 286 to 254—an extraordinary majority. M. Brisson and his ministers immediately withdrew from the Chamber, and tendered their resignations, which were at once accepted by M. Faure, Parliament being adjourned till November 4, when M. Charles Dupuy returned to office. Thus fell a Government which will be famed hereafter for its determined effort to free the nation from an aggressive militarism.

BRISTOL, Bishop of. See BROWNE, THE RIGHT REV. GEORGE FORREST.

BROADBENT, Sir William Henry, Bart., M.D., F.R.S., the son of John Broadbent, of Longwood Edge, Huddersfield, was born in Yorkshire on Jan. 23, 1835, and was educated at Huddersfield College, Owens College, Manchester, and Paris. He has been Physician to the Western General Dispensary, the London Fever Hospital, and St. Mary's Hospital, of which last-named institution he is now a consulting physician. He has occupied the position of President of the Harveian Society of London, of the Medical Society of London in 1881, of the Clinical Society during the years 1887-88, and of the Neurological Society from 1895 to 1896. He has, moreover, served as Censor of the Royal College of Physicians of London during the years 1888-89 and 1895-96. Since 1892 Sir William has been Physician-in-Ordinary to the Prince of Wales, and he attended both the Duke of Clarence, on the occasion of his fatal illness in 1892, and also the Duke of York, who went through a severe attack of typhoid fever in 1891. He is the author of "The Pulse," 1890; "The Heart," 1897. In 1893 he was created a Baronet, and he has a son and heir, John, born 1865. Sir William Broadbent was in July 1898 appointed one of her Majesty's Physicians Extraordinary, in the room of Sir Richard Quain, M.D., deceased. Address: 84 Brook Street, Grosvenor Square.

BROADHURST, Henry, M.P., J.P., son of a journeyman stonemason, was born at Littlemore, near Oxford, on April 30, 1840, and received some education at a village school there. He worked as a journeyman stonemason up to the year

1872, when he became Secretary of the Labour Representation League. In 1875 he was appointed Secretary of the Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress, but resigned through ill-health in 1890. During the agitation on the Eastern Question he took a leading part in the organisation of meetings, &c., in support of Mr. Gladstone's policy. He was elected Member of Parliament for Stoke-on-Trent in 1880; was a member of the Royal Commission on Reformatories and Industrial Schools in 1881-82; served on the Royal Commission on the Housing of the Working Classes in 1884-85; and at the general election of 1885 he was returned for the Bordesley Division of Birmingham. In February 1886 he was appointed Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department in Mr. Gladstone's Ministry. At the general election of 1886 he successfully stood for West Nottingham, but was not re-elected in 1892. He took a leading part in the passing of the Employers' Liability Act, 1880, and many other measures affecting the industrial classes. He is the author of the Leasehold Enfranchisement Bill, and during the sessions of 1884-85 he had charge of the Deceased Wife's Sister Bill. He is also a prominent advocate of Old Age Pensions. He has served on the Royal Commission on the Condition of the Aged Poor. He resigned his seat on the Market Royal Commission, and has been twice offered important Inspectorships which he has refused—the first occasion being in 1882, when he declined an Inspectorship of Factories and Workshops; the second in 1884, when he declined one of Canal Boats. He was elected Member of Parliament for Leicester in 1894, on the occasion of the double vacancy caused by the retirement of Sir T. Whitehead and Mr. T. A. Picton, and now represents that constituency. In the Eastern Counties he holds many important public positions. Address: Cromer.

BROCK, Thomas, R.A., sculptor, was born in 1847 at Worcester, where his father, William Brock, was a decorator. He was educated first at the Government School of Design in that city, then came to London and studied at the Royal Academy, where he obtained both silver and gold medals. He became a pupil and afterwards an assistant of the late J. H. Foley, the sculptor. After Mr. Foley's death he completed the numerous works left unfinished by him, the chief of these being the O'Connell monument in Dublin. Among Mr. Brock's ideal works may be mentioned "Salmacis," "Hercules strangling Antæus," statuettes of Paris and Enone, and a large equestrian group, "A Moment of Peril," purchased for the nation by the Royal Academy. He exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1889 "The Genius of Poetry." Among portrait statues may be named Richard Baxter, Robert Raikes, Sir Rowland Hill, Sir Richard Temple, Sir Erasmus Wilson, the poet Longfellow (the latter for the Westminster Abbey Memorial), Sir Richard Owen, a bronze, now in the Natural History Museum, South Kensington; Dr. Phillpott, a marble bust in Worcester Cathedral; Lord Bowen; Lord Derby; Sir Richard Quain. In the Royal Academy's Exhibition of 1898 he had no less than five sculptures, including a statue of Eve, and a bronze bust of Henry Tate, Esq., to be placed in the National Gallery of British Art. He was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy Jan. 16, 1883; R.A. in 1891. Address: 30 Osnaburgh Street, Regent's Park, N.W.

BRODRICK, The Hon. George Charles, LL.B., D.C.L., Warden of Merton College, Oxford, is the second son of the seventh Viscount Middleton, formerly Dean of Exeter, and was born at Castle Rising, Norfolk, May 5, 1831. He was educated at Eton School, and at Balliol College, Oxford, taking his degree in 1854 (first-class Mods., 1852; first-class Lit. Hum., 1853; Law and History School, 1854; English Essay Prize and Arnold Historical Essay, 1855). He was elected a Fellow of Merton College in 1855. He was President of the Union Debating Society. He also carried off, in 1858, the Law Scholarship at the University of London, where he took the degree of LL.B. In 1885 he was created D.C.L. of Oxford by a University decree. He was called to the Bar from Lincoln's Inn in 1859, and for some years practised as a barrister on the Western circuit. In conjunction with Mr. Freemantle (now Dean of Ripon) he edited, in 1865, "The Ecclesiastical Judgments of the Privy Council." In 1877 Mr. Brodrick was unanimously elected by the School Board for London to fill a death vacancy, being the first member so elected. He long served on the Council of the London Society for the Extension of University Teaching, and he is a member of the governing body of Eton College. He took an active part in promoting the University Tests Act, and other measures of academical, and generally of educational interest. In 1868, and again in 1874, he contested the borough of Woodstock as a Liberal candidate, and in 1880 he was a candidate for the undivided county of Monmouthshire. In February 1881, he was elected Warden of Merton College in the place of the late Dr. Bullock-Marsham. Mr. Brodrick is known to have contributed largely, but for the most part anonymously, to the daily Press and leading periodicals. A selection of articles published under his own name, together with two more elaborate treatises on "Primogeniture" and "Local Government," and other occasional essays, were republished in a volume entitled "Political Studies" in 1880. In the following year he published a work entitled "English Land and English Landlords," being an inquiry into the origin, structure, and proposed reform of the English Land system; and he afterwards discussed the Irish Land question, and the claim of Tenant-right for British farmers, in three articles which appeared in Fraser's Magazine for 1881-82. Mr. Brodrick is also the author of articles on "The Progress of Democracy in England," and "Democracy and Socialism," which appeared in the Nineteenth Century during 1883 and 1884. His latest contributions to literature are mainly connected with academical history, including a volume entitled "Memorials of Merton College," 1885; a compendious "History of the University of Oxford," 1886; and several papers on kindred subjects. Since the adhesion of the late Mr. Gladstone to Home Rule in 1886, Mr Brodrick has been an active member of the Liberal Unionist party. Addresses: Merton College, Oxford, &c.; and Athenæum.

BRODRICK, The Right Hon. William St. John Freemantle, M.P., eldest son of Viscount Middleton, and nephew of the Hon. G. C. Brodrick, Warden of Merton College, was born in 1856 and educated in Eton and at Balliol College, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. 1879, and M.A. 1882. He was also President of the Oxford Union Debating Society. He represented West Surrey in the Parliaments of 1880-85, and after the passing of the Redistribution Act successfully stood for the Guildford Division of the county, which he still represents. He served on the Royal Commission on Prisons in Ireland, 1883-85. In Lord Salisbury's second Administration, 1886-92, Mr. Brodrick was appointed Financial Secretary to the War Office. It was on his motion that Lord Rosebery's Government was overthrown in June 1895, and he was appointed Under-Secretary of State for War, with charge of the War Office business in the House of Commons, July 1895. He was raised to the Privy Council in 1897, and in October 1898 was appointed Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in succession to Lord Curzon. He married Lady Hilda Charteris, third daughter of the Earl of Wemyss, in 1880. Addresses: Peper-Harrow, Godalming; 34 Portland Place, W., and Athenæum.

BROOKE, The Rev. Augustus Stopford, born in Dublin in 1832, was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, where he gained the Downe prize and the Vice-Chancellor's prize for English verse. He graduated B.A. in 1856 and M.A. in 1858. He was curate of St. Matthew, Marylebone, 1857-59; curate of Kensington, 1860-63; minister of St. James's Chapel, York Street, St. James's Square, 1866-75; and became minister of Bedford Chapel, Bloomsbury, June 1876. He was appointed a Chaplain in Ordinary to the Queen in 1872. Mr. Brooke is the author of "Life and Letters of the late Frederick W. Robertson," 1865; "Theology in the English Poets," 1874; "Primer of English Literature," and four volumes of "Sermons," 1868-77; "The Early Life of Jesus," a volume of poems 1888; a "History of English Poetry," a standard study of Tennyson, 1894; and "The Old Testament and Modern Life," 1896. In 1880 he seceded from the Church of England, his reason for this step being that he had ceased to believe that miracles were credible, and that, since the Established Church founded its whole scheme of doctrine on the miracle of the Incarnation, disbelief in that miracle put him outside the doctrines of the Church of England. Mr. Brooke then joined the Unitarian Church, and officiated for some years at Bedford Chapel, Bloomsbury. In 1895, after prolonged illness, he resigned this position.

BROOKE, Sir Charles Anthony, G.C.M.G., born in 1829, son of Sir James Brooke, the famous first Rajah of Sarawak, was educated at Crewkerne Grammar School, and passed into the Royal Navy, where he rose to be a Lieutenant. He succeeded his father as 2nd Rajah of Sarawak in 1868, and has since ruled that state with the same skill and success. He was created a G.C.M.G. in 1888. He married Margaret, daughter of Clayton de Windt, of Blunsden Hall, Wiltshire. Addresses: Sarawak, Borneo; and 12 Hans Place, S.W.

BROOME, Mary Ann, Lady (formerly Lady Barker, under which name most of her books were published), is the eldest daughter of the late W. G. Stewart, Esq., Island Secretary of Jamaica, in which island she was born. Sent to England at two years old, she returned to Jamaica in 1850. In 1852 she married Captain (afterwards Colonel) G. R. Barker, Royal Artillery, who distinguished himself very highly in the Crimean war and the Indian Mutiny, and was made K.C.B. for services in the field. Lady Barker went to India to join Sir George in 1860, but he died that year, and she returned to England.

In 1865 Lady Barker married the late Mr. Frederick Napier Broome, then of Canterbury, New Zealand, and accompanied him back to the Middle Island. In 1869 Mr. Napier Broome and his wife returned to England. "Station Life in New Zealand," from her pen, was published in that year, and its success encouraged the author to write, in the following year, a small volume for children called "Stories About." This second work was soon followed by "A Christmas Cake in Four Quarters," "Spring Comedies," "Travelling About," "Holiday Stories," "Ribbon Stories," "Sybil's Book," "Station Amusements in New Zealand," "Boys," "The White Rat," &c., besides many articles for magazines. In 1874 she published also a little book called "First Principles of Cooking," of which the circulation has been large, and almost immediately after its appearance she accepted the post of Lady Superintendent of the National Training School of Cookery, South Kensington. She was also for some years editor of Evening Hours, a family magazine. Mr. Napier Broome having entered the Colonial service in 1875, her next experiences were of South Africa and Mauritius. Her life in the former country is described in "A Year's Housekeeping in South Africa," 1877. In 1883, her husband having been appointed Governor of Western Australia, she went to that colony, which is described in her last published book, "Letters to England," 1885. On leaving Western Australia in 1890, Lady Broome received an affectionate farewell from the people of the colony, by whom she was greatly beloved. Sir Frederick Napier Broome, K.C.M.G., died on Nov. 26, 1896.

BROS, James, son of Thomas Bros, barrister, was born in 1841, and was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1866. He was appointed a Police Magistrate at the Clerkenwell Court in 1888. Address: 31 Elm Park Gardens, S.W.

BROUARDEL, Paul Camille Hippolyte, French doctor and authority on forensic medicine, was born at St. Quentin, Feb. 13, 1837, educated at the Lycée St. Louis at Paris, and attained the doctorate in 1865. He became Physician at the Hôpital St. Antoine in 1873, was made Professor of Forensic Medicine in 1879, and elected a member of the Academy of Medicine in 1880, of which he is now the dean. He succeeded Wurtz in 1884 as President of the Consulting Committee of Public Hygiene in France. He is often called upon to give evidence in the courts of law on delicate points of forensic medicine. He has also travelled on medical missions, notably to Germany in 1883, to study trichinosis, on which he published important reports. He was made a Commander of the Legion of Honour in 1885. His chief works are: "L'Urée et la Foie," 1877; "Études Médico-Légales sur la Combustion du Corps humain," 1878; "Des Causes d'erreurs dans les Expertises Relatives aux Attentats à la Pudeur," 1883; "Le Secret Médical," 1886, dealing with a case arising out of the death of the painter Bastien Lepage; besides works in collaboration with eminent men of science. Recently he has published "L'Infanticide" and "La Mort et la Mort Soudaine," 1897, and "La Responsabilité Médicale," 1898.

BROUGH, Miss Fanny, actress, a daughter of Robert Brough, was born in the fifties. She first made her appearance on the boards, being then quite young, at the Princess's Theatre, Manchester, in Mr. Calvert's company, staying there two years, and once taking the rôle of Ophelia to Mr. Barry Sullivan's Hamlet. She made her first appearance in London at the St. James's Theatre as Fernandé in the autumn of 1890, and afterwards at the same house took other parts in the "Two Thorns" and "War," and, during Mrs. John Wood's management, played in many comedies, and in the "Caste" Company took many leading parts. She was engaged in many provincial tours, and came back to the Princess's and Drury Lane in various characters. She played the part of Mrs. Othello at Toole's Theatre in 1893, and appeared at a set of morning performances at the Lyric on April 5, 1894. One of her latest notable performances was in "The Eider-down Quilt," produced by Mr. Playfair in 1896.

BROUGH, Lionel, comedian, was born at Pontypool, Monmouthshire, March 10, 1836, being the fourth son of Mr. Barnabas Brough, and a younger brother of the well-known comic authors, "The Brothers Brough." His first employment was in the capacity of office-boy to Mr. J. Timbs, in the Illustrated London News office, in Douglas Jerrold's time. Subsequently he published the first number of the Daily Telegraph, and for five years he was connected with the Morning Star. Going to Liverpool with other members of the Savage Club to give amateur theatrical performances in aid of the Lancashire Relief Fund, he achieved so decided a histrionic success that he was offered a regular engagement by Mr. A. Henderson, and accordingly made his first professional appearance at the Prince of Wales's Theatre at Liverpool in 1864. His first appearance in London was at the Queen's Theatre in 1867. Mr. Brough was manager of Covent Garden Theatre for Mr. Dion Boucicault during the season in which "Babil and Bijou" was produced. He afterwards became, for a short time, joint lessee of the Novelty Theatre, Great Queen Street. For the last thirty years he has played a round of the principal "low comedy" parts in almost every important theatre in London and the provinces; in comic opera, farce, burlesque, plays, &c., and particularly in most of the "Old Comedy" revivals. It is on record that he has played Tony Lumpkin in "She Stoops to Conquer," 776 times. He has also played in America, and some years ago played a repertoire of thirty-eight pieces through all the principal towns in South Africa. Mr. Brough has been engaged for some time at the Haymarket and her Majesty's Theatres under the management of Mr. Beerbohm Tree, playing in all the principal productions during a series of seasons. During one vacation he again visited South Africa, taking a journey of 14,000 miles, to tell anecdotes for fourteen nights. On his last appearance at Johannesburg he was persuaded to play "Tony Lumpkin" once more, so that he now has the record of having played it 777 times. He again visited America with Mr. Tree and his company, taking the part of "The Laird" in "Tribby," and playing in "Seats of the Mighty," and opened at her Majesty's Theatre in "The Silver Key." He is now engaged at the "Avenue." Permanent address: Percy Villa, South Lambeth.

BROUGHTON, Miss Rhoda, a popular English novelist, is the daughter of a clergyman, and was born Nov. 29, 1840, in North Wales. Her principal works are: "Cometh Up as a Flower," 1867; "Not Wisely, but Too Well," 1867; "Red as a Rose is She," 1870; "Goodbye, Sweetheart, Goodbye," 1872; "Nancy," 1873; "Tales for Christmas Eve," 1873 (republished in 1879 under the title of "Twilight Stories"); "Joan," 1876; "Second Thoughts," 1880; "Belinda," 1883; and "Doctor Cupid," 1886. More recently she has published "Alas," 1890 (2nd edit. 1891); "Mrs. Bligh," 1892; "A Beginner," 1894; "Scylla or Charybdis?" 1895; and "Dear Faustina," 1897. Address: Holywell Street, Oxford.

BROWN, Alexander Crum, M.A., M.D. (Edin.), D.Sc. (Lond.), Hon. LL.D. (Aberd.), F.R.S., F.R.S.E., F.R.C.P.E., F.C.S., F.I.C., son of the Rev. John Brown, D.D., of Broughton Place Church, was born in Edinburgh on March 26, 1838. He was educated at the Edinburgh High School and at Mill Hill, and at the Universities of Edinburgh, Heidelberg, and Marburg. In 1863 he was appointed Lecturer and in 1869 Professor of Chemistry

in the University of Edinburgh, and in 1891 was elected President of the Chemical Society of London, which office he held for two years. He is the author of many papers in scientific journals, and in the publications of learned societies. He married Jane Bailie, daughter of the Rev. James Porter, Drumlee, county Down. Address: 8 Belgrave Crescent, Edinburgh.

BROWN, Horace T., F.R.S., was born at Burton-on-Trent on July 20, 1848, and was educated at Burton-on-Trent and Atherstone Grammar Schools, and at the Royal College of Chemistry. He was engaged in brewing at Burton-on-Trent from 1866 to 1893. He acted as Vice-President of the Chemical Society from 1894 to 1897, received the Longstaff Medal of the Chemical Society in 1894, and is a member of the International Catalogue Committee of the Royal Society. He has contributed many papers on chemical, biological, and geological subjects in the Transactions of the Chemical Society, Proceedings of the Royal Society, Quarterly Journal of the Geological Society, &c. He was married in 1874 to Annie, daughter of Paul J. Fearon. Address: 52 Nevern Square, Kensington, W.

BROWN, John George, N.A., American figure painter, was born at Durham, England, Nov. 11, 1831. He began his art studies at the age of eighteen, at first at Newcastle-on-Tyne, and afterwards spent a year at the Edinburgh Royal Academy. Removing to America in 1853, he entered the schools of the National Academy of Design in New York, and in 1856 opened a studio in Brooklyn, where he remained until 1860, when he transferred his studio to New York City. He was made an Academician in 1863, and was one of the founders of the Water-Colour Society, of which for the past seven years he has been President. He has twice (1880 and 1885) exhibited at the London Royal Academy, and has received several medals and honourable mention in Paris. Eight of his pictures were exhibited at the Chicago Exposition in 1893. Among his more important productions are, "His First Cigar," "Curling in Central Park," "The Longshoreman's Noon," "Tough Customers," "The Thrilling Moment," "The Passing Show," "The Dress Parade," "The Three (Scape) Graces," "Left his Money on the Piano," "The Lost Child," "The Transit of Venus," "A Merry Air and a Sad Heart," "Clear the Track!" "The Dog Show," "A Collection of Antiques," "As Good as New!" "The Old Folks at Home," "Plotting Mischief," "Under the Weather," "The Wounded Playfellow," "A Jolly

Lot," "The Monopolist," "Day Dreams," "You're a Nice Pup," and "Watching the Clouds."

BROWN, Pisistratus. See BLACK, WILLIAM.

BROWN, Robert, F.S.A., born at Barton-upon-Humber, July 6, 1844, was educated at Cheltenham College, and is known as a writer on archaic religion, mythology, and astronomy. His works are "Poseidon: a Link between Semite, Hamite, and Aryan," 1872; "The Great Dionysiak Myth," 2 vols., 1877-78; "The Religion of Zoroaster, considered in connection with Archaic Monotheism," 1879; "The Religion and Mythology of the Aryans of Northern Europe," 1880; "Language, and Theories of its Origin," 1881; "The Unicorn," 1881; "The Law of Kosmic Order," 1882; "Eridanus: River and Constellation," 1883; "The Mythe of Kîrké," 1883; "The Phainomena or 'Heavenly Display' of Aratos: Done into English Verse," 1885; "A Trilogy of the Life to Come," and other poems, 1885; "The Etruscan Inscriptions of Lemnos," 1888; "The Etruscan Numerals," 1889; "Remarks on the Tablet of the Thirty Stars, or Babylonian Lunar Zodiac," 1890. In 1895 appeared his "Tellis and Kleobeia, and other Poems," and in 1898, "Semitic Influence on Hellenic Mythology," a criticism of Max Müller and Andrew Lang, which has given rise to considerable discussion. Mr. Brown is a member of the Royal Asiatic Society, and was in 1892 Secretary to the Hellenic Section of the International Oriental Congress (London), when he published "The Celestial Equator of Aratos." Address: c/o Captain Bolton, Bocking Hall, Braintree, Essex.

BROWN, Rev. William Haig. See HAIG-BROWN, REV. WILLIAM.

BROWNE, The Right Rev. George Forrest, D.D., Bishop of Bristol, Hon. Fellow of St. Catharine's College, and Hon. D.C.L. of Durham, son of George Browne, Proctor of the Ecclesiastical Court of York, and Anne, daughter of the Rev. R. Forrest, Precentor of York Minster, was born at York, Dec. 4, 1833, and educated at St. Peter's School, York, and Catharine Hall, Cambridge, graduating in 1856. He was Mathematical Master at Glenalmond, 1857; ordained Deacon 1858, Priest 1859, by the Bishop of Oxford; and appointed Theological Tutor and Bell Lecturer in Ecclesiastical History in the Episcopal Church of Scotland, 1862; Fellow and Lecturer of St. Catharine's, Cambridge, 1863. He vacated his Fellowship on his marriage with Mary Louisa, eldest daughter of Sir J. Stewart Richardson, Bart., of Pitfour Castle, Perthshire, and was rector of Ashley, 1869-74; Proctor of the University, 1869-71, 1876-78, 1879-81; Secretary of the University Commission, 1877-81; a Member of the Council of the Senate (1874-92), the General Board of Studies, and various Boards and Syndicates; Secretary of the Cambridge Local Examinations, 1869-92; and of Local Lectures, 1877-92; and editor of the official University Reporter, Statuta, Ordinances, Endowments, &c. He has been University Preacher on various occasions, is a Magistrate for the Borough of Cambridge, was Alderman of the County Council for Cambridgeshire, and is a member of the governing body of Selwyn College. As a member of the Alpine Club, Mr. Browne published in the Cornhill Magazine various papers on Alpine Expeditions; on "Subterranean Ice," in Fraser, &c., and a book on "The Ice Caves of France and Switzerland," 1864. He published "University Sermons," in 1879, 1880, and 1888; "The Venerable Bede," 1880; and since 1881 has published a number of papers on "English Sculptured Stones of pre-Norman Type." He was Disney Professor of Archaeology in the University of Cambridge from 1888 to 1893, and is a Vice-President of the Society of Antiquaries. From 1893 to 1897 he published five volumes of Early Church History, namely: (1) "Lessons of Early English Church History"; (2) "Christianity in these Islands before the Coming of Augustine"; (3) "Augustine and his Companions"; (4) "The Conversion of the Heptarchy"; (5) "Theodore and Wilfrith"; and in 1895, "Off the Mill," a collection of holiday essays. In 1891 he was made Canon of St. Paul's, in 1895 Bishop of Stepney, and in 1897 Bishop of Bristol, then separated from Gloucester. A considerable number of the publications of the Church Historical Society, of which he was the first chairman, were from his pen. Addresses: The Palace, Bristol; and Athenæum.

BROWNE, Sir J. Crichton. See CRICHTON-BROWNE.

BROWNE, John Hutton Balfour, Q.C., brother of Sir James Crichton-Browne, M.D., LL.D., F.R.S., was born Sept. 13, 1845, at Crichton House, Dumfries, Scotland. His father was Dr. W. A. F. Browne, F.R.S., at that time Medical Superintendent of the Crichton Royal Institution, Dumfries, but afterwards Commissioner in Lunacy for Scotland. His mother was a daughter of Dr. Andrew Balfour, of Edinburgh, a sister of J. H. Balfour, Professor of Botany in the University of Edinburgh, and also connected with Dr. Hutton, the geologist, whose work on "The Theory of the Earth" made an epoch in the history of geology. He was educated at the Dumfries Academy and the University of Edinburgh, where he obtained high distinction in Philosophy and in Literature. He was for several years President of the Speculative Society, and at one time intended to become a Scotch advocate. In 1868 he began to read for the English Bar, and was "called" to the Bar by the Middle Temple in June 1870. He went the Midland Circuit. In 1870 he published a work on "The Medical Jurisprudence of Insanity." In 1874, having written and published a work on the "Law of Carriers," he was appointed Registrar and Secretary to the Railway Commission, which appointment he held until 1881. He published in 1874 a work on "The Law of Rating," and afterwards several other legal works. In 1880 he published a well-known work on the "Law of Railways." In 1896 appeared his "Law of Compensation." He went to the Parliamentary Bar in 1874, and was made a Queen's Counsel in 1885. He has been engaged for the promoters in all the Bills for the formation of a Ship Canal to Manchester; is, perhaps, the leading authority on Gas and Water Bills, and conducted, as leader, the case of the Traders against all the Railway Companies, in 1889-90, in England, Scotland, and Ireland, before the Board of Trade in settling the Classification of Articles, and the Schedule of Rates, under the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1888. He is a Justice of the Peace for the county of Dumfries, Justice of the Peace, and a Deputy-Lieutenant for Kirkcudbrightshire. In 1870 and 1871 he wrote and published several works of fiction, which were fairly popular; one, "For Very Life," was published first in the St. James's Magazine, and was praised by Lord Beaconsfield, at that time Mr. Disraeli; another, "Men were Deceivers Ever," was dedicated to Carlyle, who was a countryman, almost a townsman, of the author; another, "Sir Edward's Wife," went through several editions. In 1874 he married a daughter of Lord Justice Lush. Permanent address: Goldielea, near Dumfries, N.B.

BROWNE, General Sir Samuel James, G.C.B., K.C.S.I., V.C., was born in 1824, and entered the Bengal Army in the 46th Bengal Native Infantry, Dec. 22, 1840; became lieutenant, Oct. 26, 1844; captain, Feb. 10, 1855; brevet major, July 20, 1858; major, Feb. 18, 1861; brevet lieutenant-colonel, April 26, 1859; lieutenant-colonel, Dec. 22, 1866; brevet colonel, Nov. 17, 1864; major-general,

Feb. 6, 1870; lieutenant-general, 1877; general, Dec. 1, 1888. Sir James Brown served through Panjab Campaign of 1848-49; present at the passage of the Chel actions of Ramnuggar, Sadvoialp, lianwallah, and Goojerat (medal clasps); was in command of the Cavalry and Corps of Guides; the Derajat and Peshawur front 1850 to 1869, including operations: Oomurzaie Wuzerees in 1851; Bozdar Belooch Expedition in Mar the attacks on Narinjee (Eusofza in July and August 1857; and in minor skirmishes (medal with clasp in command of the 2nd Punjaub during the Indian Mutiny Campaign 1858, including the siege and capture of Lucknow (Brevet of Major), at Korsee, Rooryah, and Allygunge; capture of Bareilly. He commanded force of cavalry and infantry in the attack and defeat of the enemy in their at Seerpoorah, and capture of the camp (several times mentioned in despatches, and thanked by the Commander-in-Chief, and by Gov. Brevet of Lieutenant-Colonel, C.B., Cross, and medal with clasp). He received the V.C. "for having, at Seerpoorah, engaged with the rebel force Khan Alie Khan, on Aug. 31, 1857, advancing upon the enemy's position, pushed on, with one order upon a 9-pounder gun that was occupying one of the approaches to the position, and attacked the gunners preventing them from reloading upon the infantry, who were advancing upon the attack. In doing this a personal conflict ensued, in which Major Brown, commandant of the 2nd Punjaub, received a severe sword-cut wound on the left knee, and shortly afterwards a sword-cut wound, which severed his arm at the shoulder, not, however, he had succeeded in cutting down his assailants. The gun was captured by the infantry, and he was slain." In 1876 he was made major-general, and in the Afghan war of 1878 he commanded the 1st Division I Valley Field Force in the attack upon the Fort of Ali Musjid; then of the Khyber Pass in November and subsequent operations till the end of the campaign (received the thanks of the Government of India, and of both Houses of Parliament, K.C.B., medal with clasp). He received the honour of G.C.B. Addresses: The Wood, Ryde, I. United Service Club.

BROWNE, Thomas A. Australian novelist under the pen-

Rev. William Brownlow, Rector of Wilmslow, Cheshire, and Frances, only daughter of R. J. Chambers, Esq., and granddaughter of Sir Robert Chambers, Chief Justice of Bengal, and an intimate friend of Dr. Johnson. Bishop Brownlow was born July 4, 1830, and educated at Rugby under Dr. Tait, and at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he took mathematical honours in 1852. He became a minister of the Established Church, and from 1853 to 1863 held curacies at Great Witley, St. Bartholomew's, Cripplegate, Tetbury, and St. John's, Torquay. In 1863 he was received into the Catholic Church by Dr. Newman at the Oratory, Birmingham, and made his studies for the priesthood at the English College, Rome, where he was ordained by Cardinal Patrizi in 1866. Returning to England, he was appointed to the charge of the Mission and Dominican Convent at St. Mary Church near Torquay, where he remained from 1867 until 1888. In 1878 he was appointed a Canon of Plymouth Cathedral, and Diocesan Inspector of Schools. In 1888 the Bishop of Plymouth appointed him his Vicar-General, and Administrator of the Cathedral Mission. In 1893 Pope Leo XIII. appointed him one of his Domestic Prelates; and by Brief, dated March 20, 1894, he was made Bishop of Clifton, in succession to the Hon. and Right Rev. Dr. Clifford, who had died in the preceding year. Mgr. Brownlow was consecrated in the Pro-Cathedral, Clifton, on May 1, 1894, by Cardinal Vaughan. While at Tetbury, Mr. Brownlow delivered and published a course of lectures on the History of the Church; he translated and edited the "Cur Deus Homo" of St. Anselm, and published a Memoir of his only sister. Since 1863 he has published several controversial pamphlets, "How and why I became a Catholic," a first and second "Letter to Anglican Friends who frequent St. John's, Torquay," five "Lectures on English Church History" for the magic lantern; a series of Dialogues between Catholics and Non-conformists, and "Episcopal Jurisdiction in Bristol," in reply to Dr. Browne, the new Bishop of Bristol. Bishop Brownlow has also written a "Memoir of Sir James Marshall, late Chief Justice of the Gold Coast," and a "Life of Mother Rose Columba Adams," Foundress of the Dominican Convent at North Adelaide, formerly Prioress at St. Mary Church. In partnership with Dr. Northcote he assisted in the publication of the English "Roma Sotterranea," which embodied in 1869 the principal results of the researches of the great Roman archaeologist Commendatore De Rossi, and ten years later the further discoveries of the same eminent authority in a second edition in 2 vols., published by Longmans in 1879. They also edited the late Mr. William Palmer's "Early Christian Symbolism," illustrated with hand-painted plates, and published by Kegan Paul and Company. Mgr. Brownlow frequently lectured on the Ostacombs before the Torquay Natural History Society, and gave a course of lectures on "Slavery and Serfdom in Europe," which were afterwards published. He also read papers before the Devonshire Association on St. Boniface, St. Willibald, and his Brother and Sister, on Bishop Grandisson, on St. Mary Church in mediæval times, and on mediæval clerical and social life in Devon. Address: Bishop's House, Park Place, Clifton, Bristol.

BRUANT, Aristide, French popular singer, was born at Courtenay, Loiret, May 6, 1851, of middle-class parents, and was educated at the Lycée of Sens. In 1870 he formed one of a band of free-lances that opposed the invading Germans. After the war he came to Paris, and entered the service of the Northern Railway Company. He then began to spend his leisure time in singing and composing songs. At last he became a public singer, first at the Epoque and then at the Scala, singing the songs he himself had composed and written. Later he would only sing at cafés and clubs, such as the Chat Noir, and then opened a café of his own in the Boulevard Rochechouart, called the Mirliton. He was proposed for the "Société des Gens de Lettres," by François Coppée (q.v.), and Oscar Méténier has written his biography. His best known songs are: "A la Villette," "Serrer vos rangs," "A la Roquette," "Après de ma Blonde," "A Biribi." He has written "Sur la Rue" and "Sur la Route," two collections of poetic songs and monologues, and he edits two newspapers, the Mirliton and the Lanterne de Bruant. He was a candidate for the Chamber of Deputies in May 1898 for the twentieth arrondissement of Paris.

BRUCE, Sir Charles, K.C.M.G., J.P., D.L., of Arnot, Kinross, of which county he is a Deputy-Lieutenant, is the son of the late Thomas Bruce, Esq., of Arnot, and was born in 1837, and educated at Harrow. He is the author of "Die Geschichte von Nala und Damayanti," a critical revision of the Sanscrit text, published by the Imperial Academy of St. Petersburg, 1862, and of other Sanscrit and Vedic studies. He published in 1863 a translation of "Nala und Damayanti" in English verse; in 1865, "The Story of Queen Guinivere, and Other Poems." He was appointed Assistant-Librarian at the British Museum in 1863; Professor of Sanscrit, King's College, 1865; Rector of the Royal College, Mauritius, 1868; Director of Public Instruction, Ceylon, 1878; was President of the Ceylon Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society; appointed Colonial Secretary of Mauritius, 1882; Lieut.-Governor and Government Secretary of British Guiana, 1885; and has on several occasions administered the Government of Mauritius and British Guiana. He was appointed Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Windward Islands, 1893. In 1889 he was made a K.C.M.G. In 1897 he was transferred to Mauritius, of which he is now Governor. He married in 1868 Clara, daughter of J. Lucas. Addresses: Arnot Tower, Leslie, Scotland; and Le Réduit, Mauritius.

BRUCE, Hon. Sir Gainaford, K.B., Q.C., D.C.L., Justice of the High Court, eldest son of the Rev. J. Collingwood Bruce, LL.D., D.C.L., F.S.A., of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, by Charlotte, daughter of T. Gainsford Bruce, Esq., of Gerrard's Cross, Bucks, was born in 1834, and educated at Glasgow University. He was called to the Bar at the Middle Temple in 1859, and joined the Northern Circuit in the same year. In 1883 he became a Q.C., and in 1887 a Bench. He was Solicitor-General for the County Palatine of Durham from 1879 to 1886, Attorney-General from 1886 to 1887, and Temporal Chancellor from 1887 to 1892, when he was appointed a Judge of the High Court of Justice (Queen's Bench Division), and received the honour of knighthood. He was for fifteen years Recorder of Bradford. In April 1880 he unsuccessfully contested Gateshead, and afterwards stood for three northern constituencies without being returned, but in November 1888 he was elected for the Holborn Division of Finsbury, and sat till July 1892 as a Conservative. He is part-author of "Williams and Bruce's Admiralty Practice" and of "Maude and Pollock on Shipping." In 1868 he married Sophia, daughter of Francis Jackson, Esq., of Chertsey. Addresses: Yewhurst, Bromley, Kent; Gainslaw House, near Berwick-upon-Tweed; and Athenæum.

BRUCE-JOY, Albert, R.H.A., F.R.G.S., sculptor, was born in Dublin on Aug. 21, 1842, and is the son of the late Dr. W. Bruce-Joy. He was sent, at the age of nine, to Dr. Becker's school at Offenbach, near Frankfurt, and continued his education in Paris under a private tutor, and at King's College, London. At the age of seventeen he went to the South Kensington Schools of Art, and in 1862 became a pupil, for four years, of Foley. In 1863 he entered the Royal Academy Schools, and in 1866 went to Rome and studied art for three years. In 1866 he first exhibited at the Royal Academy, since which date he has been a large and constant contributor to its exhibitions. At the Paris Exhibition of 1878 he was voted one of the three medals awarded to Great Britain for sculpture, sharing this signal honour with Leighton and Boehm. At the Paris Salon of 1896 the only award made to busts by sculptors of all nationalities was made to Mr. Bruce-Joy. In 1885, at the Antwerp Exhibition, he represented Great Britain on the International Jury for Fine Arts. As a sculptor he has chiefly produced colossal statues. Of these the principal are a statue of Mr. John Laird, the Harvey Tercentenary Statue at Folkestone; the Graves Statue at the Royal College of Physicians, Dublin; the statue of Lord Chief-Justice Whiteside in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin; that of Mr. Gladstone in front of Bow Church, London; that of Mr. John Bright in the Art Gallery at Birmingham; and that of the same statesman in the Town Hall Square, Manchester; that of Oliver Heywood in the same square; that of Lord Frederick Cavendish at Barrow-in-Furness. He has also executed memorials of Admiral Sir E. Codrington (of Navarino) in St. Paul's; of Dean Daunt in Dublin; and of Mr. Pratt in Harrow School Chapel; besides many busts in marble and terra-cotta of celebrities past and present. Of these especial mention should be made of the bust of "Lord Farnborough," in the House of Commons; the "Berkeley" Statue in Cloyne Cathedral; the "Montgomery" Memorial in the India Office, and monument in St. Paul's Cathedral; the bust of Mr. Gladstone in the Walker Art Gallery, Liverpool; and that of Sir Edward Harland in Belfast Harbour; the city's bust of Lord Salisbury in the Mansion House; Archbishop Benson's bust; Lord Cairns's, in Lincoln's Inn; the "Astronomer Adams" monument in Westminster Abbey, where also is his bust of "Matthew Arnold"; the "Adams" memorial bust, St. John's College, Cambridge; the "Archdeacon Hannah" bust, in Brighton Pavilion; the bust of "Robert M'Donnell" (late President), in Royal College of Surgeons, Dublin; the "Whitley" statue, St. George's Hall, Liverpool; in which city also are his statues of "Alexander Balfour" and "Christopher Bushell"; the Mark Firth memorial bust in Firth College, Sheffield; and that of "Colonel Akroyd," in Halifax Museum, and "Davies" in Peel Park Museum, Manchester. Among American subjects we note his busts of Miss Mary Anderson; the Hon. Colonel Loudon-Snowden (late Ambassador to Spain); George W. Childs, of Philadelphia Ledger; the Hon. Chauncey Depew, the property of the Lotos Club, New York; and a monument in Lowell. Among his ideal subjects, mention should be made of "The Young Apollo," "The Forsaken," "The Pets," "Moses and the Brazen Serpent," "The First Flight," and among his many medallion portraits of the late Duke of Albany and Sir Humphry Davy. This list is long, but it represents only a selection from over one hundred and fifty things in his catalogue. English addresses: The Studio, Beaumont Road, West Kensington, &c.; and Athenæum.

BRUCH, Max, musical composer, was born at Cologne, Jan. 6, 1838, and received his first musical instruction from his mother (née Almenröder), who was a highly esteemed teacher of music, and who often in her young days sang at the Rhenish musical festivals. At the age of eleven Bruch attempted compositions on a large scale, and at the age of fourteen he had already brought out a symphony at Cologne. From 1853 to 1857 he held the Mozart scholarship at Frankfort o/M., and in that capacity he was a special pupil of Ferdinand Hiller (then Conductor of the Cologne concerts, and Director of the Cologne Conservatorium) in the theory of music and composition; and of Karl Reinecke (till 1854), and of Ferdinand Breunung in playing the piano. After a short stay in Leipzig, he resided from 1858 to 1861 as musical teacher at Cologne, and was assiduous in composing. On the death of his father in 1861, he set out on an extensive tour of study, which, after brief stays at Berlin, Leipzig, Vienna, Dresden, and Munich, ended at Mannheim, where his opera "Lorelei" (after the text written by Geibel for Mendelssohn) was produced in 1863. At Mannheim, also, between 1862 and 1864 he wrote the chorus-works, "Frithjof," "Römischer Triumphgesang," "Gesang der heiligen drei Könige," and "Flucht der heiligen Familie." In 1864-65 he was again on his travels, visiting Hamburg, Hanover, Dresden, Breslau, Munich, Brussels, and Paris. Then he brought out his "Frithjof" with success at Aix-la-Chapelle, Leipzig, and Vienna. From 1865 to 1867 he was musical director at Coblenz, and from 1867 to 1870 Director of the Court Orchestra at Sondershausen. At Coblenz he wrote among other things, his well-known First Concerto for the Violin, and at Sondershausen two symphonies and portions of a Mass. The opera "Hermione," which was produced in 1872 in Berlin, where Bruch resided from 1871 to 1873, had only a succès d'estime. The choral work, or secular cantata, "Odysseus," likewise belongs to the period of the composer's residence at Berlin. After he had been five years (1873-78) at Bonn, devoting his time exclusively to composing "Arminius," "The Lay of the Bell," and his Second Concerto for the Violin, and after he had paid two visits to this country for the purpose of producing some of his works, he became in 1878, on the resignation of Stockhausen, Director of Stern's Singing Academy at Berlin; and in 1880 he was nominated to succeed Sir Julius Benedict as Director of the Philharmonic Society at Liverpool. In 1881 he married the vocalist, Miss Tuczek, of Berlin.

BRUNET-DESBAINES, Louis Alfred, French painter and engraver, is the son of a distinguished architect, and was born at Havre on Nov. 5, 1845. He followed the artistic courses of M. Pils and M. Lalaune, and then devoted himself to painting. Among his works are many architectural paintings, some water-colours, and copies of the great masters, including Constable, Corot, and Turner. Among his best known engravings are "Nine Aquatint Engravings, after Turner," 1877; "Daphnis and Chloé," after François; "Chill October," after Millais, 1884; "Parting Days," after Leader, 1887. M. Brunet-Desbaines gained a medal of the first class in 1886, and a gold medal at the Paris Exhibition of 1889. He is chiefly noted for his etchings of architectural and natural beauties, few great illustrated works appearing without one of his masterpieces.

BRUNETIÈRE, Ferdinand, French author, was born at Toulon, July 19, 1849, and educated at the Lycée Louis-le-Grand. On failing for the Ecole Normale, he turned to literature, and in 1875 won distinction by a criticism on Wallon's "Saint Louis et son Temps," in the Revue Bleue. He then joined the staff of the Revue des Deux Mondes, of which he became secretary, and finally chief editor, the post he now holds. In 1886 he was Professor of French Literature at the Ecole Normale, and was decorated with the Legion of Honour in 1887. His chief works are, "Études critiques sur l'histoire de la Langue Française," 1880, which was crowned by the French Academy; "Nouvelles études critiques," 1882; "Le Roman naturaliste," 1883; "L'Évolution des genres de Littérature," 1890, in which he applied the Darwinian theory to literature. His Essays have been translated by Mr. D. N. Smith, and were published in 1898.

BRUNNER, Sir John Tomlinson, Bart., M.P., the son of the Rev. John Brunner of Zürich, who eventually became a schoolmaster at Everton, Liverpool, was born at Everton in 1842, and was educated at his father's school. Entering business pool in 1857, he eventually, assisted well-known chemist Ludwig Mond, q.v.), established the Winnington Works at Northwich, which are the largest of their kind in the world. member of the Council of University, Liverpool; and he has been a valuable benefactor to both that institution and to several schools and public libraries as well. He has presented Northwich a free library. Elected as member for Northwich in 1885, he retained that constituency until 1886, when he was again elected for the same borough, and still holds the seat. Sir has published handbooks on Publication in Cheshire in 1890 and 1896. Address: 9 Ennismore Gardens, S.W.; Winnington Old Hall, Northwich, Cheshire.

BRUNTON, Thomas Lauder, M.D., was born in Roxburghshire in 1844, educated at Edinburgh University, where he graduated M.D. and D.Sc., winning honours and a gold medal for his "On Digitalis," and the Baxter Scholarship in Natural Science. In 1867 he made some observations on the pathogenesis of angina pectoris, which, together with the knowledge he possessed of the physiological action of nitrate of amyl, led to the successful application of the latter to the treatment of the disease. This discovery affords one of the earliest and most marked instances of rational as distinguished from empirical therapeutics. After about three years in foreign travel, he was appointed Lecturer on Materia Medica at the Middlesex Hospital, London, in 1870, and in the following year was appointed to St. Bartholomew's Hospital. In 1874 he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society. In 1886 he was elected a member of the commission to report upon the treatment of hydrophobia, and went to Paris to examine Pasteur's experiments. In 1889 he was deputed by the Government to represent it, at the invitation of the Indian Government, on the second session appointed at Hyderabad, to report on the action of chloroform. He was the author of Digestion, Secretion, and Animal Chemistry in Sander's on's book for the Physiological Laboratory, which was the first text-book of experimental physiology published in this country. In conjunction with Sir Joseph Paget he investigated the action of snake venom, and discovered that life could be prolonged, though not ultimately saved, by the use of artificial respiration. His work has been chiefly directed to ascertaining the action of drugs with a view to their application in disease; and he has published, alone or in conjunction with others, numerous papers on this subject, as well as the Goulstonian lectures on "Pharmacology and Therapeutics" in 1877; the Croonian lectures at the Royal College of Physicians in 1889 on "The Connection between Chemical Structure and Physiological Action"; and a text-book in which he has treated the action of drugs from a physiological point of view. His lectures on the "Action of Medicines," delivered in 1896, were published in 1897. He delivered the Harveian Oration before the Royal College of Physicians on Oct. 18, 1894, and the general address for England at the twelfth International Medical Congress at Moscow on Aug. 19, 1897. Address: 10 Stratford Place, W.

BRYAN, George Hartley, D.Sc., F.R.S., the only son of Robert Purdie Bryan, of Clare College, Cambridge, was born at Cambridge on March 1, 1864. He was educated at Peterhouse College, Cambridge, graduated in the Mathematical Tripos in 1886, was Smith's Prizeman in 1888, and held a Fellowship at Peterhouse from 1889 to 1895. He now occupies the Chair of Pure and Applied Mathematics in the University College of North Wales. Address: Plas Gwyn, Bangor, Carnarvonshire.

BRYAN, William Jennings, American political leader, was born at Salem, Marion County, Illinois, March 19, 1860, and was educated at local schools, and at Illinois College, where he graduated in 1881. He studied law at Chicago for two years, and began the practice of his profession at Jacksonville, Illinois, where a year later he married Mary E. Bard of Perry, Illinois. In 1887 they removed to Lincoln, the capital of the State of Nebraska, where his wife was also admitted to the Bar, and gave him efficient aid in the practice of his profession. He became widely known as an orator, advocating a tariff for revenue only. In 1890 he was elected to Congress, and was re-elected in 1892, but refused a third nomination in 1894. In Congress he actively supported the Democratic view of the tariff, and became a conspicuous advocate of the free coinage of silver, gaining notice also by his readiness as a speaker and his skill in parliamentary tactics. In 1896 he was a member of the National Democratic Convention, and was put in nomination as a presidential candidate on July 10, although his nomination had not been thought of as possible until the delivery by him of an oration before the Convention advocating the free coinage of silver. At the election (November 1896) he received 176 electoral votes, while his opponent received 271.

Mr. Bryan has devoted his time since that election principally to lecturing and political agitation.

BRYANT, Sophie (née Willock), D.Sc., London, is the daughter of the late Rev. W. A. Willock, D.D., formerly Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin. She was born in Dublin, and spent her childhood in the northern county of Fermanagh, where her father played a prominent part in the Irish National Educational Movement. After the family moved to London, she gained an Arnott Scholarship at Bedford College. At nineteen she married Dr. William Hicks Bryant of Plymouth, and after his death—a year later—resumed her work as a student, more especially in mathematics and philosophy, and became Mathematical Mistress in the North London Collegiate School for Girls, under Miss Frances Mary Buss, whom she afterwards succeeded in 1895 as Headmistress of the school. In January 1879, when the University of London was first opened to women, Mrs. Bryant took the second place in the Matriculation Examination, and in 1881 graduated in Science, with Mathematical and Moral Science honours. In 1884 she took the degree of Doctor of Science in the Moral Science Branch, being the first woman to take that degree. In 1894, Mrs. Bryant, with Lady Frederick Cavendish and Mrs. Henry Sidgwick, was selected to serve upon the Royal Commission on Secondary Education. Besides contributing various philosophical and scientific articles to Mind, the Philosophical Magazine, the International Journal of Ethics, the Contemporary Review, the Journal of the Anthropological Institute, Proceedings of the Aristotelian Society, the Proceedings of the London Mathematical Society, Dublin University Review, and the Economic Journal; and educational articles to the Journal of Education, the Educational Review, and the Educational Times, Mrs. Bryant has published the following books: "Educational Ends" (Longmans, Green & Co.); "Celtic Ireland" (Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner and Co.); "Studies in Character" (Swan Sonnenschein & Co.); "The Teaching of Morality in the Family and the School" (Swan Sonnenschein & Co.), 1898; and "The Teaching of Christ on Life and Conduct" (Swan Sonnenschein & Co.), 1898. Mrs. Bryant takes an active part, especially as a lecturer and speaker, in various educational, social, and political movements, is one of the promoters of the London School of Ethics, and is noted for the warm interest which she takes in all phases of the Irish question, and the close and continuous attention with which she follows it. Address: North London Collegiate School for Girls.

BRYANT, Thomas, F.R.C.S. England and Ireland, M.Ch.R.U. Ireland, Consulting Surgeon to Guy's Hospital, and Surgeon Extraordinary to the Queen, was the son of the late T. Egerton Bryant, a medical practitioner of South London, and Fothergillian Medallist and President of the Medical Society of London. He was born on May 20, 1828, and was educated at King's College School, and as a medical student at Guy's Hospital. He became a Member of the College of Surgeons in 1849, and a Fellow in 1853, and was elected a Member of the Council of the College in 1880, and of the Court of Examiners in 1882. In 1890 he was made President of the College, and had the distinction of being re-elected on two occasions. He has also served as Hunterian and Bradshaw Lecturer at the College, and in 1893, on the centenary of John Hunter's death, he was the Hunterian orator—an occasion on which the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York honoured him by their presence. He is now a Member of the Council of his College, and its representative on the General Medical Council, of which he is Joint-Treasurer. As honorary degrees, he possesses the M.Ch. of the Royal University of Ireland, the M.D. of the Dublin University, and the F.R.C.S. of the Irish College of Surgeons; he is also a Member of the Surgical Society of Paris. At Guy's Hospital Mr. Bryant worked as a surgeon from 1857 to 1888, and for thirteen years he lectured on surgery in the school; he is now Consulting Surgeon to the Hospital. He is at present President of the Royal Medical and Chirurgical Society, and has been President of the Medical Society of London, of the Clinical Society, the Hunterian Society, and the Harveian Society; he has also been Vice-President of the Pathological Society. As a writer he has done much work; in 1863 he published his "Lettsonian Lectures on the Surgical Diseases of Children"; in 1872 he published his work on "Surgery," which ran through three editions in a brief period, for the fourth was issued in 1884; in 1887 he wrote his book on "Diseases of the Breast." In the Guy's Hospital Reports and the Transactions of the Medical and Chirurgical Society many papers from his pen are to be found; in the Guy's Reports, on "Ovariectomy," "Diseases of the Testicle," "Hernia," "Strictures," "Stone in the Bladder," and on "Operative Surgery"; in the Medical and Chirurgical Society's Transactions, those on the "Torsion of Arteries," "Torsion of the Testicle," "Prolapse of the Female Urethra," and "Intussusception due to the Presence of a Villous Growth in the Rectum," being the most important. In the Lancet, he has, during the past few years, been giving some interesting records of his general surgical experience, including a paper on "Abdominal Injuries," printed in 1895, and one on "Rectal Surgery" in 1898. Addresses: 65 Grosvenor Street, W.; and Athenæum Club.

BRYCE, Right Hon. James, D.C.L., M.P., F.R.S., the son of James Bryce, LL.D., of Glasgow, and Margaret, eldest daughter of James Young, Esq., of Abbeyville, co. Antrim, was born at Belfast, May 10, 1838, and educated at the High School and University of Glasgow, and at Trinity College, Oxford (of which he was a scholar), graduating B.A. 1862, with a double first class. He obtained various University prizes, and proceeded to study for a time at Heidelberg. He was elected Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford, 1862, and became a barrister at Lincoln's Inn in 1867, practising for some years. In 1870 he was appointed Regius Professor of Civil Law in Oxford University, a post which he resigned in 1893, and in 1880 was elected Liberal member for the Tower Hamlets. He was Assistant-Commissioner to the Schools Inquiry Commission, 1865-66, and in 1894-95 was Chairman of the Royal Commission on Secondary Education. He is Hon. LL.D. of Glasgow and Edinburgh Universities, Hon. Doctor of the Universities of Buda Pesth and Michigan, and Corresponding Member of the Institute of France, and of the Academies of Turin and Brussels. In 1885 he was elected member for South Aberdeen, which he now represents, and was appointed Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in Mr. Gladstone's Government in 1886. He was one of the chief supporters of the Home Rule Bill, and after the dissolution was returned unopposed for South Aberdeen in 1886. In 1892 he was appointed Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with a seat in Mr. Gladstone's Cabinet, and in 1894 succeeded Mr. Mundella as President of the Board of Trade. Mr. Bryce's literary works are: "The Holy Roman Empire" (1st edit., 1864, 12th edit., 1895; translated into German, 1873; do. into Italian, 1886; do. into French, 1889); "The Trade Marks Registration Acts, 1875 and 1876, with Introduction and Notes," 1877; "Transcaucasia and Ararat, a Narrative of a Journey in Asiatic Russia in the Autumn of 1876, with an Account of the Author's Ascent of Mount Ararat," 1877 (3rd edit., 1878; 4th edit., 1896); numerous articles in magazines, mostly political, historical, or geographical, including descriptions of Iceland, and of the highlands of Hungary and Poland; "Two Centuries of Irish History," 1888, edited by him, with an Introductory Chapter; "The American Commonwealth," 1888 (2nd edit., 1889; 3rd edit., 1893); and an important work entitled, "Impressions of South Africa," 1897. He has been active on various political and social subjects, such as the Abolition of University Tests, the Protection of the Christian Subjects of the Sultan and the Extension of the Frontiers of Greece, the Preservation of Commons and Open Spaces, the Reform of Endowments, the Revision and Consolidation of the Statute Law, the Establishment of a Universal International Copyright, and the Creation of a Teaching University in London; and he has carried Acts for the Reform of City Parochial Charities and for the Amendment of the Law of Guardianship (known as the "Infants Bill"), and the International and Colonial Copyright Act, 1886. Mr. Bryce married in 1889 Elizabeth Marion, daughter of Thomas Ashton, Esq., of Ford Bank, Didsbury, near Manchester, ex-High Sheriff of Lancashire. Addresses: 54 Portland Place, W.; and Athenæum.

BUCCLEUCH, Duke of, William Henry Walter Montagu Douglas Scott, K.G., K.T., J.P., D.L., was born in London on Sept. 9, 1831, and succeeded his father as 6th Duke in 1884. He was educated at Eton and Christ Church, Oxford, and sat in the House of Commons as Conservative member for Midlothian from 1853 to 1868, and from 1874 to 1880. He was Lieut.-Colonel of the Midlothian Yeomanry from 1856 to 1872, and is now Lieut.-General of the Royal Company of Archers (the Queen's Bodyguard in Scotland), and is also Lord Lieutenant of Dumfriesshire. He was married in 1859 to the third daughter of the 1st Duke of Abercorn, and he sits in the House of Lords under the title of Earl of Doncaster. Addresses: Montagu House, Whitehall, S.W.; Boughton House, Kettering; and numerous other country seats.

BUCHAN, Alexander, M.A., LL.D., born at Kinnesswood, in Kinross-shire, on April 11, 1829, is the son of Alexander Buchan and Janet Hill. He was educated at the Free Church-Training College, Edinburgh, and at the Edinburgh University, where he graduated as Master of Arts. He was engaged as a public teacher till Christmas 1860, when he was appointed Secretary of the Scottish Meteorological Society. He is the author of "The Handy Book of Meteorology," 1867 (2nd ed., 1868); and "Introductory Text Book of Meteorology," 1871; the article "Meteorology" in the last edition of the "Encyclopædia Britannica," "Reports on Atmospheric Circulation and Oceanic Circulation," being two of the reports of the Challenger Expedition; besides numerous monographs in the publications of the learned societies at home and abroad, including "The Mean Pressure and Prevailing Winds of the Globe," "Weather and Health of London," "Climatology of the British Isles," &c. He is M.A. Edinburgh University; LL.D. Glasgow University; Curator of the Library and Museum of the Royal Society, Edinburgh; Member of Meteorological Council; Foreign Member of the Royal Society of Sciences of Upsala; Hon. Member of the Philosophical Society, Manchester; Corresponding Member of the Philosophical Society, Glasgow; Corresponding Member of the Philosophical Society, Emden; Hon. Member of the Meteorological Societies of Austria, Germany, Algiers, Mauritius, &c. He was married to Sarah, daughter of David Ritchie, Musselburgh, in July 1864. Address: Heriot Row, Edinburgh.

BUCHANAN, George William, was born at Copenhagen on Nov. 25, 1854, and is the son of Sir Andrew Buchanan, Bart., G.C.B. He was educated at Wellington, and entered the Foreign Office as Attaché in 1875. He held posts at Vienna, Rome, and Tokio, and in 1890 he acted as Chargé d'Affaires at Berne. In 1893 he was appointed to his present post of Chargé d'Affaires at Darmstadt and Carlsruhe. He married Lady Georgiana, daughter of the 6th Earl of Bathurst, in 1885. Address: The British Legation, Darmstadt.

BUCHANAN, John Young, M.A., F.R.S., the son of John Buchanan of Dowanhill, was born in Scotland, Feb. 20, 1844, and was educated at Glasgow High School; at the Universities of Glasgow, Marburg, Leipzig, and Bonn; and at the Ecole de Médecine, Paris. He served as chemist and physicist on the Challenger Expedition, and was subsequently Lecturer in Geography in the University of Cambridge. He now devotes his time to chemical studies and investigations. Address: Christ's College, Cambridge.

BUCHANAN, Robert Williams, poet and prose writer, was born at Caverswall, Staffordshire, on Aug. 18, 1841, and is the only son of Robert Buchanan, socialist, missionary, and journalist, and his wife, Margaret Williams, of Stoke-upon-Trent. He was educated at the High School and the University of Glasgow. His first work, "Undertones," appeared in 1862, and was followed by "Idylls and Legends of Inverburn," in 1863, and "London Poems," in 1866. Mr. Buchanan edited "Wayside Posies," and translated the National Ballads of Denmark in 1866.

Then followed "North Coast Poems," 1867; "The Bat of Orm," 1869; "Napoleon Fallen: a Lyrical Drama," 1871; "The Land of Lorne; including the Cruise of the Tern to the Outer Hebrides," 1871; "The Drama of Kings," 1871; "The Fleshly School of Poetry," an attack on the poems of Mr. D. G. Rossetti and Mr. Swinburne, 1872; and "Master Spirits," 1873. Many years ago his tragedy of "The Witchfinder" was brought out at Sadlers Wells Theatre; and a comedy by him, in three acts, entitled "A Madcap Prince," was acted at the Haymarket in August 1874. He has also contributed to the stage, "A Nine Days' Queen," in which his sister-in-law, Miss Harriet Jay, the novelist, first appeared as an actress; and a dramatic version of her novel, "The Queen of Connaught." In 1869 Mr. Buchanan gave, in the Hanover Square Rooms, a series of "Readings" of selections from his own poetical works. A collected edition of his poems was published in 3 vols., 1874. Previously to that he had issued anonymously two works which achieved instant popularity; "St. Abe and his Seven Wives," and "White Rose and Red," both humorous stories in verse. In 1876 Mr. Buchanan published his first novel, "The Shadow of the Sword," which has been since followed by "A Child of Nature," 1879; "God and the Man," 1881; "The Martyrdom of Madeline," 1882; and several other novels from time to time. A new volume of poems, entitled "Ballads of Life, Love, and Humour," and a "Selection" from his various poems, were issued simultaneously in 1882. His novel, "Love Me for Ever," appeared in 1883, and his comedy, "Lady Clare," was brought out at the Globe Theatre on April 11 in the same year. "Alone in London," a drama written in conjunction with Miss Harriet Jay, was produced at the Olympic, Nov. 2, 1885, and "Sophia," an adaptation of Fielding's "Tom Jones," at the Vaudeville on April 12, 1886. This play had a phenomenal run of close upon two years. His play, "Joseph's Sweetheart," was produced early in 1888, and ran for eighteen months. In the same year he published an epic poem, entitled, "The City of Dream." In 1890 the drama, "A Man's Shadow," was produced at the Haymarket. In 1891 his works were, "The Moment After," "The Gifted Lady" (a satire on Ibsen), "The Coming Terror," a collection of papers reprinted from newspapers, and "The Outcast"; and in 1892, "Come Live with Me and be my Love." Early in 1893 he published "The Wandering Jew," a poem which led to long correspondence in the Daily Chronicle. In 1894 his play, "Dick Sheridan," was produced at the Comedy Theatre, and afterwards "The Charlatan" at market. Mr. Buchanan's more contributions to literature have been "The Evil's Case" (a work which produced controversy), the "Ballad of the Mother," and a prose story, the "Annabel Lee." A complete edition of his poetical works, in 1 vol., was issued by Messrs. Chatto & Windus in 1896. Address: 36 Gerrard Street, W. W. ury Avenue, W.

BUCHHEIM, Charles Adolphus, son of (Rostock), F.C.P., was born in Jan. 22, 1828. After having completed his academical studies, including a Pädagogik at the University of Göttingen, he devoted himself, both at that place and successively at Leipzig, Brussels, and Bonn, to the production of belletristic and historical works, which occupation he pursued for some time after his arrival in this country. He also translated Dickens' works into German, and in the end of the fifties he devoted himself to the teaching profession and to the production of educational works (in an annotated edition of Schiller's "Stein"), which were most favoured. His popularity in this and in America is based on his 10 editions of German classics, published by the Clarendon Press. In the volumes hitherto published Prochheim has practically shown for time that the works of Lessing, Schiller, and Heine are as worthy as the best classics of a scholarly treatment; the result is that his editions are used wherever German is brought through the medium of English, and have even been introduced into schools. Dr. Buchheim is also author of the "Deutsche Lyrik," the "German and Romanzen," and "Heine's and Gedichte," in the "Golden Series," and in 1883 he issued, in connection with the Rev. Dr. Wace, the "First Principles of the Reformation," which he contributed an essay on the "Historical Course of the Reformation," a translation of one of Luther's "Reformationsschriften." In 1884 Buchheim was appointed Professor of German Language and Literature in the College, London, and later on he became a Fellow of the College of Prebendaries. He filled the post of Examiner in the University of London during three periods of five years each, and also acted, and still acts, as an examiner for various public examining boards in Great Britain and Ireland, especially for the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, and New Zealand. In December 1897 the University of Oxford conferred upon him the honorary degree of M.A. He was at one time German tutor to the children of the Prince and Princess of Wales. Address: 47 Leamington Road, Villas, W.

BÜCHNER, Friedrich Karl Christian Ludwig, M.D., a German philosopher, born at Darmstadt, March 29, 1824, is the son of a distinguished physician in that town. After a preliminary education, he was sent in 1843 to the University of Giessen, where he studied philosophy, though he subsequently at Strasburg turned his attention to medicine, in compliance with the wishes of his family. He took his doctor's degree at Giessen in 1848, and then continued his studies in the universities of Würzburg and Vienna. After practising medicine for some time in his native place, he settled at Tübingen as a private lecturer, being also appointed Assistant Clinical Professor. He was deprived of this position, however, by the authorities, in consequence of the philosophical doctrines propounded in his famous book on "Force and Matter," 1855. He thereupon returned to Darmstadt, and resumed practice as a physician. In the work referred to—which is entitled in German "Kraft und Stoff" (1855; 16th edit., 1888), and which has been translated into most European languages—Dr. Büchner explains the principles of his system of philosophy, which he contends is in harmony with the discoveries of modern science. He insists on the eternity of matter, the immortality of force, the universal simultaneousness of light and life, and the infinity of forms of being in time and space. Dr. Büchner has further explained his system in "Nature and Spirit," 3rd edit., 1876; "Physiological Sketches," 2nd edit., 1875; and "Nature and Science," 3rd edit., 1874; "Man, and his Place in Nature," 3rd edit., 1889; "The Intellectual Life of Animals," 3rd edit., 1880; "The Theory of Darwin," 5th edit., 1890; "Light and Life," 1882; "The Future Life and Modern Science," 1889, and several other works. He has also contributed to periodical publications various treatises on physiology, pathology, and medical jurisprudence. Dr. Büchner's brother George, who was born in 1813, and died in 1837, was also a doctor by profession, but was distinguished as a poet. His sister Louise, who was born in 1823, and died in 1877, wrote novels and poems.

BUCK, Dudley, American musical composer, was born at Hartford, Connecticut, March 10, 1839. He studied three years at Leipzig and in Dresden, and one in Paris, under Hauptmann, Richter, Rietz, Moscheles, Plaidy, and Schneider. In 1862 he returned to America, and in 1864 began a series of organ concerts in the principal cities and towns of the United States, which were continued for a period of fifteen years, and which made him widely known to the American public both as a performer and as a composer. From Hartford, where, since his return from Europe, he has been organist of the North Congregational Church, he removed in 1869 to Chicago, to assume charge of the music in St. James's Church, but immediately after the great fire there in 1871, where he met with severe losses (including unpublished compositions), he went back to the East and took the musical direction of St. Paul's Church, Boston, and shortly afterwards was appointed organist of the Music Hall in the same city. These positions he retained for three years, relinquishing them in 1875 to become assistant conductor in Theodore Thomas' (N.Y.) Central Park Garden Concerts. In the following year his cantata, "The Centennial Meditation of Columbia," was performed under the direction of Mr. Thomas by a chorus of 1000 voices and an orchestra of nearly 200 pieces at the inauguration of the Centennial Exhibition in Philadelphia. Later in the same year (1876) he became organist of the Holy Trinity Church, Brooklyn, where he still remains. Among his numerous compositions may be mentioned two "Motett Collections," a series of "Studies in Pedal Phrasing," several groups of songs, a "Symphonic Overture" to Scott's "Marmion," the "Forty-sixth Psalm," and "The Legend of Don Munio," a romantic cantata of which the text is a metrical version of Irving's "Alhambra." The largest of his works is "The Light of Asia" (the text from Sir Edwin Arnold's poem), published in 1885. In the same year he wrote "The Voyage of Columbus" (a cantata), which was first performed by the Apollo Club, a Brooklyn Society of male voices founded and conducted by Mr. Buck. His "Golden Legend," based on Longfellow's poem of the same title, received the prize offered by the Cincinnati Music Festival Association for the best composition for solo voices, chorus and orchestra ($1000). Other of his works are a comic opera, "Deseret," produced in New York in 1880; "Illustrations in Choir Accompaniment," 1877; and a number of literary-musico treatises on themes connected with his profession. Among his latest works are two cantatas for church use, "The Story of the Cross" and "The Triumph of David," and a "Communion Service in C," in nine numbers. Mr. Buck is on the editorial staff of "The People's Cyclopaedia."

BUCKLE, Vice-Admiral Claude Edward, was born in February 1839, and entered the navy in August 1852. As a cadet he served in the Black Sea during the Russian war, and was engaged in the operations connected with the embarkation of the allied army at Varna. He joined H.M.S. Valorous as midshipman in 1854, and was present in two night attacks on the sea front of Sebastopol, and also at the capture of Kertch and Kinburn, for which he was awarded the Crimean and Turkish medals with Sebastopol clasp. In 1856 he proceeded to China in the Inflexible, and was engaged in the destruction of the Chinese Fleet at Escape Creek. Mr. (now Admiral) Buckle was afterwards attached to a detachment which succeeded in dragging its two field-guns up the wall of Canton. These he brought into action at a very opportune moment, and for this service was mentioned in despatches. As a Lieutenant in H.M.S. Magicienne, he took part in the attack on Pei-ho Forts, being in command of a gun and scaling ladders, was twice severely wounded, and again mentioned in despatches by the Commander-in-Chief. He received the China medal and three clasps. He was a Lieutenant in H.M.S. Hero, when she took H.R.H. the Prince of Wales to Canada. He was promoted Commander in 1866, and Captain in 1877, and was appointed A.D.C. to the Queen, and Senior Naval Officer at Gibraltar in 1889. He hoisted his flag as Rear-Admiral in H.M.S. Howe during 1895, having been selected to take over the duties of Senior Officer on the Coast of Ireland. During this command he had a narrow escape from drowning. In company with a dockyard labourer, Admiral Buckle was examining some large subterranean water tanks in Haulbowline Yard, when the man, who was showing the way by the light of a candle, struck his head against a beam, and fell half-stunned into a tank. The Admiral promptly jumped in after him, and with great difficulty succeeded in saving him, after which the Admiral himself was assisted out. He also holds the Royal Humane Society's medal for saving life in Queens-town Harbour. Vice-Admiral Buckle was promoted to his present rank in December 1897.

BUCKLE, George Earle, the editor of the Times, is the eldest son of the Rev. George Buckle, Canon and Precentor of Wells, and was born June 10, 1854, at Twerton Vicarage, near Bath, and educated at Honiton Grammar School, 1863-65, and Winchester College, where he was a scholar on the Foundation, 1866-72. He was a scholar of New College, Oxford, 1872-77, where he won the Newdigate Prize for English Verse, 1875, and gained a first class in Litteræ Humaniores, 1876, and a first class in Modern History, 1877; graduating B.A. 1876, and M.A. 1879. He was Fellow of All Souls' College, Oxford, 1877-85, and was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn, 1880. He entered the Times office on the editorial staff in 1880, and was appointed editor on Mr. Chenery's death in February 1884. He married in 1885 a daughter of Mr. James Payn, the novelist. Addresses: 76 Ashley Gardens, S.W.; and Athenæum.

BUCKNILL, Thomas Townshend, Q.C., M.P., the second son of Sir J. C. Bucknill, F.R.S., was born in 1845, and was educated at Westminster and at Geneva. He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1868, became a Q.C. in 1885, and in the same year was appointed Recorder of Exeter. He is also a member of the Bar Committee, and was elected a Benchman in 1891. He has sat in the House of Commons since 1892 as Conservative member for the Epsom Division of Surrey, and he served as County Alderman for Surrey from 1889 to 1892. Mr. Bucknill has edited Cunningham's Reports and Sir S. Cook's Common Pleas Reports. Addresses: Hylands House, Epsom; 10 King's Bench Walk, Temple, E.C.; and Athenæum.

BUCKTON, George Bowdler, of Weycombe, Haslemere, Surrey, Fellow of the Royal, the Linnæan, the Chemical and Entomological Societies of London, and of the Entomological Society of France, was born in London on May 24, 1817. His father, George Buckton, Esq., of Oakfield, Hornsey, Proctor of the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, Doctor's Commons, came of an old Yorkshire family, whilst his mother was eldest daughter of Richard Merricks, Esq., of Runcton House, Mundham, Sussex. Partial paralysis, through an accident in very early life, incapacitated him for a university career. He studied under the private tutorships of Rev. Oliver Lodge, Rector of Barking, and the Rev. Dr. Meuse, formerly Headmaster of the Choldmondeley School at Highgate. The early friendship of Thomas Bell, F.R.S., led to his introduction in 1845 to the Linnæan Society, on whose Council he served for several years. On the death of his father, he moved into London, and joined as a student the Royal College of Chemistry, under Professor A. W. Hofmann, who became his close friend. Singly and in conjunction with him, he published several papers on organic chemistry in the Transactions of the Royal and Chemical Societies, of which he became a member in 1857 and 1852 respectively, and on whose Councils he served, enjoying the society of Bell, Owen, Yarrell,

Forbes, Sir J. Hooker, E. Day, and Westwood, on the physical side, of Brodie, Odling, Frankland, Abel, Crookes, and other chemists. In 1867 he was elected a member of the Philosophical club of the Royal Society. He was the first in this country, as an amateur, successfully to grind astronomical specula on Foucault's method of silver on glass. In 1865 he married Mary Ann, only daughter of George Odling, Esq., M.R.C.S., of Croydon, and settled in Haslemere, where he gathered materials for his monograph, in 4 vols., of the "British Aphides," published by the Ray Society in 1876, the coloured plate being lithographed by himself from nature. In 1890 his illustrated monograph of the "British Cicadæ" was published by Macmillan, and followed in 1895 by a monograph of "Eristalis tenax." Papers from his pen have appeared down to the present time in the Transactions of the Entomological Society of London, and in the Museum Notes of the Asiatic Society of Bengal. Address: Weycombe, Haslemere.

BUDGE, Ernest A. Wallis, Litt.D., F.S.A., was educated at Christ's College, Cambridge, where he became Assyrian Scholar and Tyrwhitt Hebrew Scholar of his university. He is now keeper of the Egyptian and Assyrian antiquities in the British Museum. Mr. Budge is the author of numerous publications, among which may be mentioned: "Assyrian Texts," 1880; "The History of Esarhaddon," 1881; "Babylonian Life and History," 1884; "The Dwellers on the Nile," 1885; "Martyrdom of St. George," 1888; "History of Alexander the Great," 1889; "The Nile," 1890; "Catalogue of the Fitz-William Egyptian Collection," 1893; "The Mummy," 1893; "Discourses of Philoxenus," 1894; "Rabban Hormizd," 1894; "St. Michael," 1894; "Book of the Dead" (Papyrus of Ani), 1895; "First Steps in Egyptian," 1895; "An Egyptian Reading Book for Beginners," 1896; "Life and Exploits of Alexander the Great," 1896; "Oriental Wit and Wisdom," 1896, &c. Address: 10 St. Lawrence Road, W.

BULGARIA, Prince of. See FERDINAND.

BULLER, Admiral Sir Alexander, K.C.B., son of the Rev. Richard Buller, of Lanreath, Cornwall, was born in June 1834, and entered the navy in 1848. He served as mate in H.M.S. Royal Albert in the Black Sea during the Crimean war, and as Lieutenant in H.M.S. Princess Royal was present at the capture of Kertch and Kinburn, and in all the operations before Sebastopol. For these services he received the Crimean and Turkish medals. He was promoted Commander in 1863, and Captain in 1869. In the latter rank he commanded the Naval Brigade landed for operations against the Malays in the Straits of Malacca during the Perak Campaign of 1875. He was created a C.B. and received the Perak Medal with clasp. Admiral Buller was appointed Aide-de-Camp to the Queen in 1884, and from 1889 to 1892 he filled the office of Admiral Superintendent of Malta dockyard. He proceeded to the China station as Commander-in-Chief in 1895, and owing to the aggression of certain European powers, the squadron under his command was increased in strength, becoming, after the Mediterranean fleet, the most important English force in foreign waters. He relinquished the command in January 1888, when he became a full Admiral. He was created a K.C.B. in May 1896, and also holds the Royal Humane Society's medal for assisting to save life while a Lieutenant in H.M.S. Edgar. He married in 1870 Emily, daughter of Henry Tritton, Esq., of Beddington, Surrey. Address: Erle Hall, Plympton, Devon.

BULLER, The Right Hon. Lieut.-General Sir Redvers Henry, B.C., G.C.B., K.C.M.G., is the eldest surviving son of the late James Wentworth Buller, M.P., of Downes, Crediton, Devonshire, and of Charlotte, daughter of the late Lord H. Howard, and was born in 1839. He entered the 30th Rifles May 23, 1858; lieutenant, Dec. 9, 1862; captain, May 28, 1870; major, April 1, 1874; lieutenant-colonel, Nov. 11, 1878; colonel, Sept. 27, 1879; Major-General, May 21, 1884. He served with the 2nd Battalion 60th Rifles throughout the campaign of 1860 in China (medal with two clasps); with the 1st Battalion on the Red River Expedition of 1870; accompanied Sir Garnet Wolseley to the Gold Coast in September 1873; and served as D.A. Adjutant and Quartermaster-General and Head of the Intelligence Department throughout the Ashantee War of 1873-74, including the action of Essaman, battle of Amoafu, advanced guard engagement at Jarbinbah, battle of Ordahai (slightly wounded), and capture of Coomassie (several times mentioned in despatches, brevet of Major, C.B., medal with clasp). He served in the Kaffir War of 1878-79, and commanded the Frontier Light Horse in the engagement of Tabaka Udoda, and in the operations at Molyneux Path and against Manyanyoba's stronghold (several times mentioned in despatches); also throughout the Zulu War of 1879, and commanded the cavalry in the engagements at Zeobane Mountain and Kambula; conducted the reconnaissance before Ulundi, and was present in the engagement at Ulundi (several times mentioned in despatches, thanked in General Orders, brevet of Lieut.-Colonel, Aide-de-Camp to the Queen, Victoria Cross, C.M.G., medal with clasp). The B.C. was given "for his gallant conduct at the retreat at Inhloband, on March 28, 1879, in having assisted, while hotly pursued by Zulus, in rescuing Captain C. D'Arcy of the Frontier Light Horse, who was retiring on foot, Colonel Buller carrying him on his horse until he overtook the rear-guard; also for having on the same day, and in the same circumstances, conveyed to a place of safety Lieutenant C. Everitt of the Frontier Light Horse, whose horse had been killed under him. Later on, Colonel Buller, in the same manner, saved a trooper of the Frontier Light Horse, whose horse was completely exhausted, and who otherwise would have been killed by the Zulus, who were within eighty yards of him." Colonel Buller served in the Boer War of 1881 as Chief of the Staff to Sir Evelyn Wood, with the local rank of Major-General; in the Egyptian War of 1882 in charge of the Intelligence Department, and was present in the action at Kassassin, September 9, and at the battle of Tel-el-Kebir (mentioned in despatches, K.C.M.G., medal with clasp, third class of the Osmanieh, and Khedive's Star); served in the Soudan Expedition under Sir Gerald Graham in 1884, in command of the 1st Infantry Brigade, and as second in command of the expedition, and was present in the engagement at El Teb and Temai (twice mentioned in despatches, promoted to Major-General for distinguished service in the field, medal and two clasps); served in the Soudan campaign in 1884-85 as Chief of the Staff to Lord Wolseley. When Sir Herbert Stewart was wounded, and Colonel Burnaby had been killed, he took command of the Desert Column, and withdrew it from Gubat to Gakdul in the face of the enemy, defeating them at Abu Klea Wells on February 16 and 17 (mentioned in despatches, K.C.B., medal and clasp). From 1887 to 1890 Sir Redvers Buller was Quartermaster-General of the Army, and in October of the latter year became Adjutant-General to the Forces in succession to Lord Wolseley. In April 1891 he was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-General. G.C.B. 1894. He is married to Audrey, daughter of the 4th Marquis Townshend, and widow of the Hon. G. T. Howard. Addresses: 29 Bruton Street; Downes, Crediton; and Athenæum.

BULLER, Sir Walter Lawry, K.C.M.G., F.R.S., the descendant of an ancient Cornish family and the oldest surviving son of the late Rev. James Buller, was born at Newark, in the Bay of Islands, New Zealand, on Oct. 9, 1838. He received his early education at Auckland College, and afterwards became a pupil of William Swainson, F.R.S., the celebrated zoologist, who had settled in that colony. For a continuous period of fifteen years he held various official appointments, but chiefly in connection with native affairs, as he had early acquired a thorough knowledge of the Maori language; and on eight different occasions he received the special thanks of the Colonial Government. During this time he also contributed largely to zoological literature, and was elected a Fellow of the Linnean and of various other learned societies. From 1855 to 1860 he acted as Government Interpreter and Native Commissioner. In 1861 he was appointed editor-in-chief of The Maori Messenger, an English and Maori journal published by authority. At the age of twenty-four he was appointed a Resident Magistrate, and three years later a Judge of the Native Land Court. In 1865 he served as a volunteer on Sir George Grey's staff at the taking of the Weraroa Pā, for which he received the New Zealand War Medal. On that occasion, declining the protection of a military escort, he carried the Governor's despatches, at night, through forty miles of the enemy's country, attended only by a Maori orderly, for which gallant service he was mentioned in despatches. In 1871 he visited England, and two years later published a splendidly illustrated "History of the Birds of New Zealand." The Royal University of Tübingen bestowed upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Science, and he received several other foreign distinctions. In 1874 he was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple. In 1875 Her Majesty, in recognition of the value of his scientific work, created him a C.M.G.; and in 1876 he was elected F.R.S. In 1882 he published a "Manual of the Birds of New Zealand," for the use of students; and in 1883 was awarded the Gold Medal of the New Zealand Exhibition, "for Science and Literature." From 1875 to 1885 inclusive he practised his profession in the Colony with remarkable success. In 1886 he returned to England as New Zealand Commissioner at the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, and for his services on that occasion was promoted by Her Majesty to the rank of K.C.M.G. In 1887 he was awarded the Galileian Medal by the Royal University of Florence; and in 1888 he published a new and much enlarged edition of "The Birds of New Zealand" (imperial quarto). In 1889 he was a Member of the Mansion House Committee for the Paris Exhibition, and served on the Executive Council of that body. In the following year he proceeded to New Zealand, and in 1893 returned to England to represent that Colony on the permanent governing body of the Imperial Institute, retaining this position until 1896. Sir Walter Buller holds the rank of Officier in the Legion of Honour. He is also "Officier de l'Instruction Publique" (Gold Palms of the Academy), Knight first class of the Order of Francis Joseph of Austria, Knight first class of the Order of Frederick of Württemberg, and Knight first class of the Order of Merit of Hesse-Darmstadt. Address: The Terrace, Wellington, New Zealand.

BULLOCK, The Rev. Charles, B.D., was born in 1829. He was ordained to the Parish of Rotherham, and became Rector of St. Nicholas, Worcester, in 1860. Resigning this post in 1874, he devoted himself to popular literature; and in recognition of his services in this direction the Archbishop of Canterbury conferred on him the degree of B.D. The magazines edited by him are The Fireside (first published in 1864), Home Words, which in its localised form is known throughout the country, and The Day of Days, for Sunday reading. In 1876 he founded Hand and Heart, as a penny illustrated Church of England Social and Temperance Journal. More recently he has established "The News: a National Journal and Review." He is also author of several religious books, of which we may mention his "Memorials of Frances Ridley Havergal." Address: Coomrith, Eastbourne.

BÜLOW, Bernhard von, German Foreign Secretary, was born in 1850, and is a son of the Herr von Bülow who was Foreign Secretary of Germany between the years 1873 and 1879. In 1873, after entering the German Foreign Office, he became successively Secretary of Embassy in Rome, St. Petersburg, and Vienna. During the Russo-Turkish War he discharged the arduous duties of Chargé d'Affaires at Athens. He was one of the Secretaries of the Berlin Congress, served subsequently in diplomatic capacities in Paris and St. Petersburg, and was appointed Minister to Roumania in 1888. In 1893 he became Minister to Italy. In the absence from his post of Baron Marschall von Buberstein in 1897 he acted as Foreign Secretary in Berlin, and succeeded to that office on October 21.

BULWER, Sir Henry Ernest Gascoigne, G.C.M.G., was born on Dec. 11, 1836, and is the youngest son of the late W. E. Lytton Bulwer of Heydon, Norfolk, and Emily, daughter of the late General Gascoigne. He was educated at Trinity ining nurses according to modern ideas and methods, insisting specially upon the employment of young women only. The latter idea was much criticised at the time, and many evils were predicted of its future working. As all the world knows, however, its success has been great beyond the most sanguine expectations. In 1873 Mr. Burdett became a medical student, and, at Birmingham and Guy's Hospital, London, went through the whole curriculum necessary for medical examination and practice. A year later he was appointed House Governor of the Dreadnought Seaman's Hospital, Greenwich, and in six years raised the income of that institution from £7000 to £13,000 a year. In 1877 he established the well-known paying hospital for the middle and upper classes at Fitzroy House, Fitzroy Square, having succeeded in raising no less a sum than £26,000 for that purpose. Perhaps the most permanently valuable, as it is certainly the most interesting, of Mr. Burdett's public services was the founding in 1888 of the National Pension Fund for trained nurses and hospital officials. Among those who have helped in the establishment of the Fund, and without whose munificent aid indeed it would have been impossible for Mr. Burdett to realise his benevolent ideal, may be mentioned Lord Rothschild, Mr. J. S. Morgan, Mr. H. Hambro, and Mr. Huchs Gibbs, each of whom gave £5000 to form a bonus fund for the increase of pensions. Several other gentlemen contributed varying sums, and the Fund started with nearly £30,000 in hand. The Princess of Wales occupies the position of President and the Prince of Wales that of Patron to the Fund. In every department of hospital administration and finance Mr. Burdett is admittedly the chief authority in the whole of the British Empire. From 1883 to 1897 he was Secretary of the Share and Loan Department of the London Stock Exchange. He was created K.C.B. in 1897. He is founder and editor of The Hospital, and since 1881 has published and compiled the well-known "Burdett's Official Intelligence." He also annually publishes the handbook "Burdett's Hospitals and Charities," and was the author in 1891 of the standard work "The Hospitals and Asylums of the World," in four thick volumes, together with a portfolio of plans. He married in 1875 Helen, daughter of the late Gay Shute, F.R.C.S. Address: The Lodge, Porchester Square, W.

BURDETT - COUTTS, Baroness, Angela Georgina Burdett-Coutts, is the youngest daughter of the late Sir Francis Burdett, Baronet, and granddaughter of Mr. Thomas Coutts, the banker, and was born on April 26, 1814.

In 1837 she succeeded to the great wealth of Mr. Coutts, through his widow, once the fascinating Miss Mellon, who died Duchess of St. Albans. The extensive power of benefiting her less fortunate fellow-creatures thus conferred, the Baroness Burdett-Coutts has wisely exercised, chiefly by working out her own well-considered projects. A consistently liberal churchwoman in purse and opinions, her munificence to the Establishment is historical. Besides contributing large sums towards building new churches and new schools in various poor districts throughout the country, Miss Coutts erected and endowed at her sole cost the handsome church of St. Stephen's, Westminster, with its three schools and parsonage; and more recently, another church at Carlisle. She endowed, at an outlay of £50,000, the three colonial bishoprics of Adelaide, Cape Town, and British Columbia; besides founding an establishment in South Australia for the improvement of the aborigines. She also supplied the funds for Sir Henry James's Topographical Survey of Jerusalem; and offered to restore the ancient aqueducts of Solomon to supply that city with water—a work, however, which the Government did not fulfil. In no direction are the Baroness's sympathies so fully expressed as in favour of the poor and unfortunate of her own sex. Her exertions in the cause of reformation, as well as in that of education, have been numerous and successful. For young women who had lapsed out of well-doing she provided a shelter and a means of reform in a "Home" at Shepherd's Bush. Nearly half the cases which passed through her reformatory during the seven years it existed resulted in new and prosperous lives in the Colonies. Again, when Spitalfields became a mass of destitution, Miss Coutts began a sewing-school there for adult women, not only to be taught, but to be fed and provided with work; for which object Government contracts are undertaken and successfully executed. Nurses were sent daily from this unpretending charity in Brown's Lane, Spitalfields, amongst the sick, who were provided with medical comforts; while outfits were distributed to poor servants, and clothing to deserving women. In 1859 hundreds of destitute boys were fitted out for the Royal Navy, or placed in various industrial homes. In the terrible winter of 1861 the frozen-out tanners of Bermondsey were aided, and at the same time she suggested the formation of the East London Weavers' Aid Association, by whose assistance many of the sufferers from decaying trade were able to remove to Queensland. One of the black spots of London in that neighbourhood, once known to, and dreaded by, the police as Nova Scotia Gardens, was bought by Miss Coutts, and upon that area of squalor and refuse she erected the model dwellings called Columbia Square, consisting of separate tenements let at low weekly rentals to about two hundred families. Close to it is Columbia Market, one of the handsomest architectural ornaments of North-Eastern London. The Baroness takes great interest in judicious emigration. When a sharp cry of distress arose some years ago in the town of Girvan, in Scotland, she advanced a large sum to enable the starving families to seek better fortune in Australia. Again, the people of Cape Clear, Shirkin, close to Skibbereen, in Ireland, when dying of starvation, were relieved from the same source, by emigration, and by the establishment of a store of food and clothing, by efficient tackle, and by a vessel to help them in their chief means of livelihood—fishing. Miss Coutts materially assisted Sir James Brooke in improving the condition of the Dyaks of Sarawak, and a model farm is still entirely supported by her, from which the natives have learnt such valuable lessons in agriculture that the productiveness of their country has been materially improved. Taking a warm interest in the reverent preservation and ornamental improvement of our town churchyards, and having, as the possessor of the great tithes of the living of Old St. Pancras, a special connection with that parish, the Baroness, in 1877, laid out the churchyard as a garden for the enjoyment of the surrounding poor, besides erecting a memorial sundial to its illustrious dead. In the same year, when accounts were reaching this country of the sufferings of the Turkish peasantry flying from their homes before the Russian invasion, Lady Burdett-Coutts instituted the Turkish Compassionate Fund, a charitable organisation by means of which the sum of nearly £30,000, contributed in money and stores, was entrusted to Mr. Burdett-Coutts and to the British Ambassador for distribution, and saved thousands from starvation and death. In recognition of her important services the Order of the Medjidieh was conferred upon her. This is but an imperfect enumeration of the Baroness's good works as a public benefactress. The amount of her private charities it is impossible to estimate. She is a liberal patroness of artists in every department of art. In June 1871 Miss Coutts was surprised by the Prime Minister with the offer from her Majesty of a peerage, which honour was accepted. Her ladyship was admitted to the freedom of the City of London, July 11, 1872, and to the freedom of the City of Edinburgh, Jan. 15, 1874. On Nov. 1, 1880, the Haberdashers'

Company publicly conferred their freedom and livery on the Baroness Burdett-Coutts in recognition of her judicious and extensive benevolence and her munificent support of educational, charitable, and religious institutions and efforts throughout the country. She has since become a member of the Turners' Company, and was received with great enthusiasm during a recent visit to Ireland, where she had previously organised a fishing fleet, having its headquarters in Bantry Bay. The Baroness has also taken a leading part in promoting and supporting the Children's Protection Society, of which she was at once asked to become President on the death of the late Lord Shaftesbury. The Baroness was married on Feb. 12, 1881, to Mr. William Lehman Ashmead-Bartlett, who obtained the royal license to use the surname of Burdett-Coutts. Addresses: 1 Stratton Street, Piccadilly, W.; and Holly Lodge, Highgate.

BURGESS, James, C.I.E., LL.D., F.R.S.E., Hon. A.R.I.B.A., F.R.G.S., &c., was born in the parish of Kirkmahoe, Dumfriesshire, on Aug. 14, 1832. In 1855 he went to Calcutta as a Professor of Mathematics, and in 1858 wrote a paper "On Hypsometrical Measurements," and published editions of some English textbooks, with philological notes, &c., for the Calcutta University Examinations in 1859. Early in 1861 he removed to Bombay, and was engaged in educational work till 1873. There he contributed papers on the Tides, Hypsometry, &c., to the Philosophical Magazine, Transactions of the Bombay Geographical Society, &c. As Secretary to the Commission on the Colaba Observatory in 1865, he prepared the report for Government on that establishment. In 1869 he published a large folio on "The Temples of Shatrunjaya," illustrated by forty-five photographic views. This was followed by a similar volume on the antiquities at Somnāth, Gīrnār, and Junāgarh. In 1871, besides some educational class-books, appeared a monograph on "The Rock-Temples of Elephanta or Ghārapuri," illustrated; and in 1872 he started The Indian Antiquary, a monthly journal of Oriental archæology, history, literature, and folk-lore, which he conducted for thirteen years, and which soon acquired a European reputation. He travelled through Gujarat and Rajputana in 1872, and wrote the letterpress for a large folio of views of the architecture and scenery of these countries. The Bombay Government nominated him in 1873 to organise and direct the Archæological Survey of that Presidency and the neighbouring states, Gujarat, &c.; and since 1873 the results of this survey have been partly

d in quarto volumes fully illustrated: "Report on the Antiquities Belgaum and Kaladgi Districts," On the Antiquities of Kathiawar," 1876; "On the Antiquities of Aurangabad Districts," 1878; "Juddhist Caves and their Inscriptions," "Caves of Elura and other Brahman and Jaina Caves in Western India," "The Muhammadan Architecture of " 1896; and "The Antiquities of in Gujarat" (published by H.H. Swar of Baroda), 1888, in about a occasional papers, 1874-85, and in a volume on "The Cave-Temples," the caves in Northern and East-India being described by the late Mr. Fergusson. Other volumes richly illustrated are in preparation. The superintendence of the Archaeological Survey of the Bombay Presidency was added to that of the Government of India on its initiation in 1881, the results of which are published in "The Great Stûpas of Amaravati and Jagga" with numerous plates and woodcuts. Other volumes are in preparation. He was put in charge also of the Survey in Northern India, and appointed General of the Archaeological Survey of India. In 1888 he edited and published "The Sharqi Architecture of " from the reports of Dr. A. and Mr. E. W. Smith, the procurers, with seventy-four sheets of architectural drawings. He also started a series for Government The Epigraphia Indica issued in fasciculi, forming two parts, 1891 and 1894, containing important Sanskrit and Pali inscriptions translated by the most competent oriental scholars. He retired from the directorship of the Surveys in 1889, when his office was then abolished. He prepared "Constable's Handbook of India," 1898, and published a series in the Transactions of the Royal Society of Edinburgh on a definite Integral, which forms an important part in various series of physical research, with extensive tables of values. At its anniversary, 1897, the Imperial Archaeological Society elected him an honorary member; he is also an Honorary Member of the Batavian Society of Arts and Sciences, and of the Society of Anthropology, Ethnology, &c., London. LL.D. Edinburgh, 1881; created 1885. Address: 22 Seton Place, Gh.

LIND, Francis Cowley, born and descended on his father's side of an old Savoyard family, and on his mother's of the name of Cowley, the author of "The History of the University of Cambridge," where, in his first year, he founded the Club known as the A.D.C., or Amateur Dramatic Club. Mr. Burnand took his degree in 1857-58, and for a time read for the Church under Canon Liddon at Cuddesdon. Afterwards he was called to the Bar in 1861, and occasionally practised. He married early, and began to write, being introduced by Mr. George Meredith to Once a Week. He is the author of about a hundred dramatic pieces, principally burlesques. His chief work for Punch was the now well-known serial "Happy Thoughts," and "Strapmore," a parody of Ouida's "Strathmore." His burlesque of Douglas Jerrold's nautical drama, "Black-eyed Susan," achieved what was in those days the unprecedented run of over four hundred consecutive nights at the Royalty Theatre, Dean Street, Soho; and later his comedy "The Colonel" ran for about a year and a half at the Prince's Theatre in Tottenham Court Road, which has now disappeared. In 1879 he published "The 'A.D.C.'"; being Personal Reminiscences of the University Amateur Dramatic Club, Cambridge"; and in July 1880 he became editor of Punch on the death of Tom Taylor. His connection with Punch dates from the publication of his burlesque novelette "Mokeanna" by Mark Lemon. In 1888 his parody of "Ariane," entitled "Airey-Annie," was produced at the Strand Theatre. He has of late years added "Very Much Abroad," "Quite at Home," and "Very Much at Sea," &c., to the "Happy Thought" books. Together with Sir Arthur Sullivan he wrote "The Chieftain," produced at the Savoy in 1894. Mr. Burnand divides his time between Ramsgate and London. Addresses: 27 The Boltons, S.W.; and 18 Royal Crescent, Ramsgate.

BURNETT, Mrs. Frances Hodgson, née Hodgson, was born at Manchester, Nov. 24, 1849. There she passed the first fifteen years of her life, acquired her education, and gained her knowledge of the Lancashire dialect and character. At the close of the American Civil War reverses of fortune led her parents to leave England for America, where they settled at Knoxville, Tennessee, 1865. She there began to write short stories for the magazines, the first of which appeared in 1867. In 1872 her dialect story, "Surly Tim's Trouble," was published in Scribner's Monthly (now The Century), and in book form in 1877. "That Lass o' Lowrie's" was first presented, serially, in Scribner, and its remarkable popularity demanded its immediate separate issue, 1877. In 1878-79 some of her earlier magazine stories were reprinted, viz.: "Kathleen Mavourneen," "Lindsay's Luck," "Miss Crespigny," "Pretty Polly Pemberton,"

"Theo," "Dolly" (also issued under the title of "Vagabondia"), "Jarl's Daughter," and "Quiet Life." "Haworth's" appeared in 1879, and was followed by "Louisiana," 1880; "A Fair Barbarian," 1881; "Through One Administration," 1883; "Little Lord Fauntleroy," 1886; "Sarah Crewe," 1888; "The Pretty Sister of Jose," 1889; and "Little Saint Elizabeth," 1890. From 1886 until 1894 her work was confined principally to studies of child life. Among these may be mentioned, "The One I knew the Best of All—A Memory of the Mind of a Child," which is autobiographical. Of her children's stories the most widely known is probably "Little Lord Fauntleroy," which has been published in nearly every Continental language. In 1896 Mrs. Burnett published a novel of the period of Queen Anne, entitled "A Lady of Quality," and in 1897 a second novel of the same period, entitled "His Grace of Osmonde." Mrs. Burnett's dramatic work has been—the play of "Esmeralda," a dramatisation (written in collaboration) of one of her short stories, successfully played in New York and London; "The Real Little Lord Fauntleroy," which was produced at Terry's Theatre, London, and the Broadway, New York, and which is still being played in England, America, France, and Germany; "Phyllis," produced in London and Boston; "Nixie" (in collaboration), played at Terry's and the Globe Theatre, London, in 1890; "The Showman's Daughter," produced at the Royalty Theatre, London, in 1892; "A Very Young Couple," which was played in America in 1892; "The First Gentleman of Europe" (in collaboration), produced at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, in 1897; and the drama "A Lady of Quality" (in collaboration), now playing in the United States. Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, then Miss Hodgson, was married in 1873 to Dr. Burnett. She has resided much at Washington. Her present address is 63 Portland Place.

BURNS, John, M.P., L.C.C., labour leader, is the son of Alexander Burns, an engineer, formerly of Ayrshire, and was born in humble circumstances at Vauxhall in 1858. He was sent to Christ Church School, Battersea, and at the age of ten years was set to work in a local candle factory. He then became a rivet boy at a Vauxhall engineer's, and afterwards bound himself apprentice to an engineer at Millbank, under whom he served till he was twenty-one. Throughout his earlier years he read omnivorously, and imbibed Socialistic theories from a fellow-workman, a Frenchman, who had fled from Paris after the Commune. On coming of age he worked for a year as foreman engineer on the Niger, and on his return from West Africa spent his savings in a six months' tour of Europe. As a boy he had got into trouble with his employers for delivering an open-air address, but he did not come into public notice as a speaker until at an Industrial Remuneration Conference in London he delivered certain speeches on Socialism which attracted attention. Since that time he has constantly addressed workman audiences. Becoming prominent in his own union—the Amalgamated Engineers—he stood as a Socialist candidate for the western division of Nottingham at the General Election of 1885, but obtained only 598 votes. In 1886 he took a leading part in the unemployed agitation, and was one of the heads of the crowd which broke from its leaders and caused a riot in the West End on Feb. 8, 1887. Subsequently he contested the right of public meeting in Trafalgar Square, and underwent a short term of imprisonment (six weeks) for resisting the police. During the great Dock Strike of 1889 John Burns was the hero of the hour. He addressed dockers' meetings in the East End every day for weeks, walking from Battersea every morning and returning on foot at night. His main contention was that the docker deserved sixpence (a "tanner") more a day than he had hitherto been paid, but he was also indefatigable as an organiser and strike manager. When the dock labourers finally won a great victory in their long struggle for higher wages Burns's reputation as the first of labour leaders and labour organisers was made. He is now regarded as an authority on labour, and the mouthpiece of respectable artisan opinion in London, and his help and advice are constantly sought by workmen and their organisations. He has been four times elected to the London County Council as member for Battersea, and he has been returned to Parliament twice for the same division. Address: 108 Lavender Hill, Battersea.

BURNSIDE, Sir Bruce Lockhart, Kt., second son of the late Hon. J. J. Burnside, Surveyor-General of the Bahamas, was born on July 26, 1833, at Bahamas, and was educated at King's College there and privately. He was called to the Bar by Lincoln's Inn in 1856; and during the war which shortly afterwards broke out between the North and the South in America he was conspicuous for the active part which he took as legal adviser to what was called the Confederacy in the many delicate questions of international law which were at that time raised in consequence of the blockade of the Southern ports and of the fitting out of armed cruisers by the Confederate Government.

He successfully defended the Alexandra, the Oredo, and the Florida, prosecuted in the B. A. Court for breaches of the Foreign Enlistment Act. He was Speaker of the House, Solicitor, and Attorney-General of the Bahamas, and was made one of Her Majesty's Council. He prepared a valuable "Manual for Justices of the Peace," for which he received the thanks of the Colonial Government. In 1879 he was appointed Queen's Advocate of Ceylon, and was employed at Downing Street for a considerable time in preparing a "Penal Code" and a "Criminal Procedure Code," which were afterwards passed by the legislature, and for which he was specially commended by Lord Derby, the Secretary of State. In 1883 he was appointed Chief-Justice of Ceylon, there being at the time most scandalous arrears in the Supreme Court, which had attracted public attention and condemnation. He retired in 1893. Sir Bruce was knighted in 1885. He married in 1856 Mary, daughter of R. Francis. Address: Fincastle, Colombo.

BURROWS, Montagu, R.N., M.A., F.S.A., third son of Lieut.-General Montagu Burrows and of Mary Anne, daughter of Captain Larcom, R.N.. Commissioner of Malta Dockyard, was born at Hadley, Middlesex, Oct. 27, 1819, and educated at the Royal Naval College, Portsmouth, where he obtained the "First Medal" in 1834. On passing through the R.N. College as a mate in 1842 he obtained a First Class in Mathematics. He served continuously in the Royal Navy until he obtained the rank of Commander in 1852, and became a retired Post-Captain in 1862. He matriculated at Oxford University early in 1853, and obtained a Double First Class (Classics and Modern History); took the degree of M.A. there in 1856, and received an Hon. M.A. degree at Cambridge in 1859; was elected to the Chichele Professorship of Modern History (the first since its foundation) in 1862; became a Fellow of All Souls in 1870; Chairman of the Oxford School Board in 1873; and Member of the Hebdomadal Council of his University in 1876. During his service in the navy he was engaged in several actions with Malay pirates, under Captain Chads, and he received medals from the English and Turkish Governments for the capture of St. Jean d'Acre in 1840. He was employed on the coast of Africa for some years in the suppression of the slave trade, and was made Commander for his services on the staff of H.M.S. Excellent. He is the author of "Pass and Class: An Oxford Guide-Book through the courses of Literæ Humaniores, Mathematics, Natural Science, Law, and Modern History," 3rd edit., 1866; "Constitutional Progress: a series of Lectures delivered before the University of Oxford," 1869; "A Memoir of Admiral Sir H. Chads, G.C.B.," 1869; "Worthies of All Souls:—Four Centuries of English History illustrated from the College Archives," 1874; "Parliament and the Church of England," 1875; "Imperial England," 1880; "Oxford University during the Commonwealth" (Camden Society), 1881; "Wiclif's Place in History," 1882 (new edit. 1884); "Life of Admiral Lord Hawke," 1883 (2nd edit. 1896); "History of the Brocas Family of Beaurepaire and Roche Court," 1886; "History of the Cinque Ports," 1888 (4th edit. 1895); "Memoir of William Grocyne" (in "Collectanea," vol. ii., of the Oxford Historical Society), 1890; "Commentaries on the History of England," 1893; "History of the Foreign Policy of Great Britain," 1895 (2nd edit. 1897); articles in the Quarterly and Edinburgh Reviews, &c. In 1892, for services to France in relation to the publication of the Gascon Rolls, he was made "Officier de l'Instruction Publique." He married in 1849 Mary Anna, daughter of Sir James W. S. Gardiner, Bart., of Roche Court, Hants; and has three sons and one daughter—Edward Henry, H.M. Inspector of Schools, married to Dorothy, daughter of Ralph Assheton, Esq., of Downham Park; Stephen Montagu, H.M. Civil Service, Ceylon, married to Isabel Cruickshank, Sydney, Australia; the Rev. Alfred; and F. Emily, married to Bishop Scott of N. China. Address: 9 Norham Gardens, Oxford.

BURT, Thomas, M.P., was born Nov. 12, 1837, at Murton Row, near Percy Main, Northumberland, and is the son of Peter Burt, a coal miner. While he was yet a child seventeen months old, his parents went to Whitley, whence they had to remove about a year afterwards, when the pit was thrown out of gear by an explosion. Their next place of abode was New Row, Seghill, now styled Blake Town, where they remained five years, and at a later period they settled at the Seaton Delaval Colliery. Young Burt, who had been working in the coal pits from ten years of age, here began that course of self-culture which has gone so far to supply the deficiencies of his previous education. In 1860 he removed to Choppington, and in 1865 he was appointed Secretary to the Northumberland Miners' Mutual Association. In this capacity he rendered himself so popular among the miners that it was determined to nominate him as the working-class candidate for the representation of Morpeth at the general election of February 1874. He was returned by 3332 votes against 585 given for Captain Duncan, the Conservative candidate. In June 1880 he was elected a member of the Reform Club by the Political Committee, under the rule empowering the body to elect two candidates in each year for marked and obvious services to the Liberal cause. He is President of the Miners' National Union, and has presided over several important conferences of miners held at Manchester, Birmingham, and elsewhere. He has been President of the Trades Union Congress, Newcastle-on-Tyne, in 1891. He has also presided at several International Miners' Conferences held in Paris, Brussels, and other places on the Continent. Mr. Burt has been a member of several Royal Commissions, including those inquiring into accidents in mines, loss of life at sea, mining royalties, and the Labour Commission, of which the Duke of Devonshire was President. He was one of the British delegates to the International Labour Conference held at Berlin in March 1890. Mr. Burt was invited by Mr. Gladstone in 1892 to join his administration as Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade, a post which he accepted and held until the general election of 1895. He is the author of articles in the Nineteenth Century, Contemporary, and Fortnightly. In 1860 he married Mary, daughter of Thomas Weatherburn. Address: 20 Burdon Terrace, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

BURT, T. Seymour, F.R.S., M.R.A.S., &c., is the fourth son of the late Rev. Charles Henry Burt, and was student of Wadham College, Oxford; then Curate of Plympton St. Mary, Devon; next of Westgate House, Bridgwater, Somerset, and for upwards of twenty years Vicar of Cannington, in the same county; a chaplain-in-ordinary to H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex; an acting magistrate for Somerset; a retired chaplain to the 24th Light Dragoons. He is a Fellow of the Royal Society, and a Member of the Royal Astronomical Society; and has published the following works:—"Papers on Scientific Subjects," vols. 1, 2, 3, 1837 and 1858; "Trip in Search of Ancient Inscriptions," 1838; "Metrical Epitome of the History of England," 1852; "Poems by Koi Hai," 1853; "Account of a Voyage to India via the Mediterranean," 1857; "A Translation into Blank Verse of all Virgil's Works," vols. 1, 2, 3, &c., 1883-84; "Transposition into Blank Verse of Wesley's translation of T. à Kempis," 1883-1884; "Transposition into Blank Verse of 'Hamilton's Translation of Sacred History,'" 1883-84; "Transposition into Blank Verse of the Rev. Newman Hall's 'Come to Jesus,'" 1883-84. He is likewise the author of numerous papers published in the Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal,—"Description of the Mode of Extracting Salt from the damp sandbeds of the River Jumna as practised by the Inhabitants of Bundelkhund"; "Inscription found near Bhabra, three marches from Jeypore on the road from Delhi to Nusseerabad"; "Description of an Instrument for trisecting angles"; "Notice of an Inscription on a Slab discovered in February, 1883"; "Inscription taken from a Baolee at Bussuntgurrh, at the foot of the Southern range of hills running parallel to Mount Aboo"; "Observations on a second Inscription taken in facsimile from the neighbourhood of Mount Aboo"; "Description with Drawings of the ancient stone pillar at Allahabad called Bhim Sen's Gadā or Club, with accompanying copies of four inscriptions engraven in different characters upon its surface."

BURTON, Sir Frederic William, R.H.A., F.S.A., Hon. LL.D. Dublin, ex-Director of the National Gallery, third son of Samuel Burton, of Mungret, co. Limerick, and grandson of Edward William Burton, of Clifden House, co. Clare, was born in Ireland in 1816, and educated at Dublin, where he first studied drawing under the brothers Brocas. He was elected Associate of the Royal Hibernian Academy of Arts in 1837, and R. H. Academician in 1839, in which latter year his picture (in water colours), "The Blind Girl at the Holy Well," was chosen for publication by the Irish Art Union, and was engraved by Ryall. In the following year the picture of "The Arran Fisherman's Drowned Child" also was engraved for the Irish Art Union. A large composition of the same year, "The Connaught Toilet," representing peasant girls at a stream, preparing themselves to enter the market town, was, together with the former, exhibited at the Royal Academy in London in 1842. The latter picture was afterwards destroyed by fire at the Pantechicon, where it had been temporarily deposited by its owner. From 1832 to 1851 his time was occupied in portrait painting. About 1840 he was elected member of the Royal Irish Academy of Science, Antiquities, and Belles Lettres, and for many years sat in the Council of Antiquities. In 1851 he went to Munich. There, at Nuremberg, and in various wanderings in Upper Franconia, where he found ample subjects for the pencil, about seven years were passed. In 1855 he became Associate, and in the following year full Member of the (now Royal) Society of Painters in Water Colours, and continued to exhibit annually at their rooms until 1870, when he retired from

ety. In November 1886 he was an Honorary Member. He also on various occasions at the Academy and the Dudley Gallery. Sir William Bozall having re-the Directorship of the National

Mr. Burton was nominated to st, from which he retired in March. He is primarily responsible for ge and very important additions collection which have been made the past twenty years, and which Leonardo da Vinci's "Virgin of the Rocks," Raphael's "Ansidei Madonna," and "Equestrian Portrait of Charles V. last two from Blenheim), the "Assassins," by Holbein, and the "Portrait of Admiral Parca," by Velazquez from the Radnor collection), and various purchases from the Hamilton her famous sales. Since 1863 Sir Burton has been a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries. In 1884 he re-the honour of knighthood, and in 1886 he hon. degree of LL.D. of Dublin. Address: 43 Argyll Road, W.; and sum.

H. Moritz, German author and journalist, was born Feb. 13, 1821, at Berlin, and educated at the University of Berlin. On the completion of his medical and philosophical studies he became a journalist, and was employed on the staff of various newspapers. In 1848 he visited America, and on his return in 1853 published an account of his travels. Subsequently he travelled for some time in the East, then took up journalism and finally, in 1870, settled in Berlin, where he obtained an appointment at the Prussian Office. From that time up to Bismarck's death in July 1898, Dr. Moritz was the inseparable companion and confidant of the old Chancellor, taking notes of his sayings, and earning for himself the title of "Bismarck's Boswell." In 1898 he published an account of the life of his hero, writing soon after a second edition, since famous under the title of "Bismarck's Boswell." Bismarck himself died in 1891 that "little Busch" some day write "a secret history of the Emperor from good sources," and, during the interval between his dismissal and death, Bismarck used every opportunity of informing his faithful scribe on matters which were to be explained to the expectant world after his decease. Forty-eight hours from the death of his beloved master Dr. Busch contributed to the Times newspaper an important article, "Bismarck and William I. around this essay, for a season, the comment of a world. It opened a new analysis of the character of the old

Emperor, passed to a consideration of the constitutional struggle and the momentous Congress of Princes in 1863, and proceeded to explain "how Bismarck prepared the French War" and the tragic incident of the "Ems Despatch," concluding with the testimony of the old Emperor's gratitude when he wrote in 1872 that he returned thanks to Heaven for having placed Bismarck at his side in the decisive hour, thus giving to his reign "a fulness which exceeded all thought and comprehension." This remarkable contribution to Bismarck's lore was eclipsed in September 1898 by the issue of a three-volume work, "Bismarck: Some Secret Pages of his History," being the record of a diary kept by Dr. Moritz Busch during twenty-five years of official and private intercourse with the great Chancellor. The publication of these memoirs naturally excited considerable notice, and evoked strong expressions both of approval and disapproval. In England the volumes were welcomed, on the whole, as probably the nearest approach to an authentic revelation that the world would see, and were described by a journal, certainly not over-critical, as "one of the most remarkable, if not the most agreeable, books of the century." On the Continent, however, the work has been vigorously assailed as pedantic, inaccurate, and, indeed, scarcely appreciably valuable. This criticism may be the result of unpleasant surprises, for we in England can understand the probable correctness of the Saturday Review's remark that the diary "is a book which may well bring a blush to the cheek of every Hohenzollern who reads it." While the storm of criticism was at its height Dr. Moritz Busch was understood to have disappeared, or to have become lost to the world's eye. This unusual proceeding was either an enforced retirement owing to Imperial displeasure, or but a mere, yet timely, exercise of an instinct of self-preservation. Dr. Moritz Busch was still invisible at the beginning of October 1898.

BUSH, The Rev. Joseph, late President of the Wesleyan Conference, was born March 8, 1826, in the village of Ashby, near Spilsby, Lincoln. He was educated at Spilsby Academy and Grammar School. In November 1840 he was apprenticed at Horncastle with Mr. Mark Holdsworth. In March 1849, on the nomination of the Rev. Joseph Fowler, he was recommended for the work of the ministry by the City Road Quarterly Meeting. After passing the May District Meeting and the July Committee he was accepted by the Conference for the Home Work, and his name was placed on the List of Reserve. In February 1850 he was sent by the President, the Rev. Thomas Jackson, to the Maidstone Circuit as supply for the Rev. George Hambly Rowe, who died a few days after Mr. Bush's arrival in the circuit. He remained at Marden until the end of August, when he was received into Richmond College. At the Conference of 1853 Mr. Bush was appointed as Mr. Rattenbury's assistant in Leeds. In 1854 he went to London (Hinde Street); in 1857, to Islington; in 1860, to York; in 1863, to Bolton; in 1866, to Manchester; in 1869, to Brixton Hill; in 1872, to Newcastle-on-Tyne; in 1875, to Edinburgh; in 1878, to Bradford; in 1881, to Altrincham; and in 1884, to Highbury. He was then appointed the General Superintendent of the North-west Essex Mission. In 1871 Mr. Bush was appointed one of the Conference official Letter-writers, and held the office fifteen years—until, in 1886, he was associated with the Secretary of the Conference in the compiling and editing of the "Minutes." In 1872 he was elected Chairman of the Newcastle District, and has since been Chairman of the Edinburgh and Aberdeen, the Halifax and Bradford Districts, and the First London District. In 1873, on the nomination of Dr. Gervase Smith, he was elected into the Legal Hundred, having then served twenty-one years in the ministry. From time to time Mr. Bush has used his pen in the service of Methodism. He has published the following:—"The Sabbath: Whose Day Is It?" "Bread from Heaven"; "The Class Meeting"; "Courtship and Marriage"; "Mary Bell Hodgson: a Memorial"; "Character, and other Sermons"; "Methodist Sunday Schools"; "What to Preach, and How"; "How to Keep our Members: Practical Counsels addressed to Class Leaders"; "The Intermediate State; or, The Condition of Human Souls between the Hour of Death and the Day of Judgment." In addition Mr. Bush has written on various subjects for the monthly periodicals and the London Quarterly. He has also edited "The Mission of the Spirit"; "The Pillar and Ground of the Truth"; and "The Life of the Rev. William O. Simpson." Some years ago, by direction of the Conference, Mr. Bush re-cast the "Liverpool Minutes," and also collected and classified all resolutions of the Conference on Pastoral Work from 1811 to 1884, interweaving and embodying the whole in one homogeneous document. This pamphlet is the "Methodist Manual of Pastoral Duty."

BUTCHER, Professor Samuel Henry, M.A., Hon. LL.D. (Glasgow), Hon. Litt. D. (Dublin, on the occasion of the Tercentenary celebration of that University), J.P. for co. Kerry, is the eldest son of the late Samuel Butcher, Bishop of Meath, and of Mary, daughter of the late John Leahy, Esq., of Southhill, Killarney; was born in Dublin, April 16, 1850, and educated at Marlborough College, under Dr. Bradley, now Dean of Westminster. He was elected to a Minor Scholarship at Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1869; to a Foundation Scholarship in that college, and to the Bell University Scholarship, in 1870; to the Waddington University Scholarship in 1871; and obtained the Powis Medal for Latin Hexameters in 1871 and 1872. He was Senior Classic and Chancellor's Medallist in 1873, and held a Mastership at Eton College for a short time. He was elected to a Fellowship at Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1874, and held an Assistant Tutorship there till 1876. Having vacated his Fellowship at Cambridge by marriage, he was elected to an Extraordinary Fellowship, without examination, at University College, Oxford, where he was Lecturer till 1882, when he was elected to the Chair of Greek at Edinburgh University, on the retirement of Professor Blackie. He published in 1879, in conjunction with Mr. Andrew Lang, a prose translation of the "Odyssey," now in its tenth edition; in 1881 a small volume on "Demosthenes," in Macmillan's Classical Series; in 1891 "Some Aspects of the Greek Genius" (Macmillan and Co.), now in a second edition; in 1895 "Aristotle's Theory of Poetry and Fine Art, with a Critical Text and Translation of the Poetics," a second edition of which appeared in 1898. In March 1886 he was elected a member of the Athenæum Club, without ballot, by the committee. In 1889 he was appointed a Member of the Scottish Universities' Commission. Since 1889 he has been one of the representatives of the Edinburgh Senatus Academicus on the University Court of Edinburgh University. Since 1886 he has vigorously supported the Unionist cause by speaking and writing. He is brother of J. G. Butcher, Q.C., M.P., and in 1876 married Rose Julia, youngest daughter of the late Archbishop Trench. Addresses: 27 Palmerston Place, Edinburgh; and Athenæum.

BUTE, Marquis of, John Patrick Crichton Stuart, K.T., LL.D., is the son of the 2nd Marquis, and was born at Mount Stuart House, in the isle of Bute, Sept. 12, 1847, succeeded to the title on the death of his father in 1848, and received his education at Harrow School, whence he proceeded to Christ Church, Oxford. He was admitted into the Roman Catholic Church by Monsignor Capel, in London, on Dec. 1, 1868. He was created a Knight

Order of the Thistle in February 1881. Lord Lieutenant of the county of Glasgow. The honorary degree of LL.D. conferred upon him by the University of Glasgow, Edinburgh, and St. Andrews. He presented the Great Hall buildings of the former. Lord Butler published "The Roman Breviary, translated into Latin into English"; "The Morning Service for the Lord's Day, translated into English"; Bikelas' "Essays on Christian Greece"; "The Arms of the Royal and Parliamentary Burghs of Scotland," as well as lectures and essays upon Scottish and Continental subjects. These include a description of some of the monuments of Athens and of a visit to Patmos. The Marquis has also written on the language and aborigines of Teneriffe, "The Altus columba," &c. He was elected Mayor of Cardiff in 1891 (being the first Peer for such an office since the Reform Bill) and Provost of Rothesay in 1896; and rector of St. Andrews University, and again in 1895. His lordship was in 1872 the Hon. Gwendoline Mary, eldest daughter of Lord Howard of Effingham, and has issue, living, three sons and a daughter. Addresses: St. John's Regent's Park; Cardiff Castle, &c.; and the Museum.

BUTLER, Lady Elizabeth Southerland, daughter of the late Mr. Thomas Johnson, by Christiana, daughter of Mr. Weller, was born at Lausanne, in Switzerland. Her parents removed to London, near Cheltenham, where, at the age of five years, Miss Thompson first saw her handle the pencil. After two or three years' sojourn at Prestbury, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson went to live in Italy, and Lady Elizabeth continued her studies at Florence. In 1870 the family returned to England, and took up their abode at London, where they remained till the death of Miss Thompson's picture "Roll Call" made a removal to London desirable. At one period she was in the Government School of Art, London. For some years she exhibited at Dudley and other galleries. Her picture at the Royal Academy was "Roll Call," 1873. It was followed in 1874 by "Roll Call," a picture which attracted universal attention, and which was purchased by the Queen. "The 28th Regiment at Quatre Bras" was exhibited at the Academy in 1875; "Balaklava," in the same street, in 1876; and "Inkerman," in the same street, in 1877. In later years she painted: "Listed for the Connaughts," "The Remnants of an Army," "The Defence of Rorke's Drift," 1881; and "The Etona," 1882, an incident in the attack on Laing's Nek; a picture representing the famous charge of the Scots Greys at Waterloo, 1882; "Tel-el-Kebir," 1885; "To the Front," 1889; "Evicted," 1890; "The Camel Corps," 1894; "Halt on a Forced March," "The Dawn of Waterloo," 1895; and "Steady, the Drums and Pipes," 1897. Miss Thompson became the wife of Major-General Sir William Francis Butler, K.C.B., June 11, 1877. Addresses: Cape Town; Monavoe, Delgany, Ireland.

BUTLER, The Very Rev. Henry Montagu, D.D., LL.D. (Glasgow), late Dean of Gloucester, Master of Trinity, Camb., and ex-Vice-Chancellor of the University of Cambridge, is the fourth and youngest son of the late Rev. George Butler, D.D., Head Master of Harrow, and afterwards Dean of Peterborough, and was born July 2, 1833, and educated at Harrow, under Dr. Vaughan, and at Trinity College, Cambridge. He was elected Bell University Scholar in 1852, and Battie University Scholar in 1853. In 1853 he won Sir W. Browne's medal for the Greek ode, and in 1854 the Porson Prize for the Greek ode, the Camden medal for Latin hexameters, and the Members' Prize for a Latin essay. In 1855 he graduated B.A. as Senior Classic, and in the same year was elected Fellow of his college. On the retirement of Dr. Vaughan, at Christmas 1859, he was elected to the head-mastership of the school, over which his father had presided for twenty-four years, from 1805 to 1829. He held this post until 1885, when he was appointed Dean of Gloucester. In 1886 he resigned the Deanery, being nominated by the Crown Master of Trinity College, Cambridge, in succession to the late Dr. Hepworth Thompson. He was Vice-Chancellor of the University in 1889 and 1890. He was Honorary Chaplain to the Queen, 1875-1877; Chaplain-in-Ordinary, 1877; Prebendary of St. Paul's and Examining Chaplain to the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Tait, 1879, and to his successor, Archbishop Benson, 1883. He has been several times Select Preacher at the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge; and he published in 1861 and in 1866 volumes of "Sermons preached in the Chapel of Harrow School." He is brother of Canon Butler, and was married in August 1888 to Miss Ramsay of Girton College, who distinguished herself by taking the first place in the Cambridge Classical Tripos in 1887. Address: Trinity Lodge, Cambridge.

BUTLER, Major-General Sir William Francis, K.C.B., A.D.C. to the Queen, was born in the county of Tipperary, Ireland, in 1838, and educated at BUTLIN. He was appointed Ensign of the civil Engineers Sept. 17, 1856; Lieutenant, November 1860; Captain, 1870; Major, 1875; and Deputy-Adjutant-General, 1878. General Butler, after Staff, 1879. Major Butler served on the Red River Expedition, was sent on a special mission to the Saskatchewan Territory in 1870-71, and served on the Assiniboine Expedition in 1876 in command of the West-Asian Native forces. He was several times mentioned in despatches of Sir Garnet Wolseley, and in the House of Lords by the Field-Marshal Commanding-in-Chief. He was appointed a Companion of the Bath in 1874. In February 1879 he was despatched to Natal to assume the responsible post of Staff Officer at the port of disembarkation. In the subsequent expeditions under Lord Wolseley, Major-General Butler has generally held an important post, and especially in the Soudan Expedition. On the return of the forces he was left behind in command of the British advanced posts. He was Colonel on the Staff in Egypt from 1880 to 1892, and Brigadier-General in Egypt from December 1892 to November 1896, when he was appointed Major-General at Aldershot. He till lately held the South-Eastern District command, with headquarters at Dover, and was appointed to the command of the troops at the Cape in 1896. General Butler is the author of "The Great Lone Land," 1872; "The Wild North Land," 1873; "Akiunfoo," 1875; and "Far Out: Rovings Retold," 1880; "Red Cloud, the Solitary Sioux," 1882; "The Campaign of the Cataracts," 1887; "Charles George Gordon," 1889; "Sir Charles Napier," 1891. He was married June 11, 1877, at the church of the Servite Fathers, Fulham Road, London, to Miss Elizabeth Thompson, the painter. Address: Cape Town.

BUTLIN, Henry Trentham, born at Camborne, Cornwall, son of the Rev. W. W. Butlin, was educated at home and at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, London. He is a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of England; D.C.L. (hon. causâ) of the University of Durham; and Surgeon to St. Bartholomew's Hospital. During the year 1896-97 he was President of the Pathological Society of London, of the Laryngological Society, and of the Metropolitan Branch of the British Medical Association, and was for six years Treasurer of the British Medical Association. He is now a Member of the Council of the Royal College of Surgeons of England. As Erasmus Wilson Professor of Pathology, and later Professor of Pathology and Surgery to the College of Surgeons, he delivered a series of lectures on malignant disease; and he has published several works on malignant disease and on the operative surgery of the same. Address: 52 Harley Street, W.

BUTTERFIELD, William, F.S.A., architect, was born Sept. 7, 1814. He early devoted himself to a study of the various periods of Gothic architecture, and consequently found himself in warm sympathy and intercourse with the Cambridge Camden Society, which was just then coming into existence, and which played an important part in the revival of Gothic architecture. He has in his practice introduced various colours to a large extent into ecclesiastical and domestic buildings by the help of brick, stone, marble, and mosaic combined; and he has made great use of tiles which have figures and subjects painted upon them, and which are afterwards fired. Amongst the buildings designed by him are: St. Augustine's College, Canterbury; the entire buildings of Keble College, Oxford; Balliol College Chapel, Oxford; St. Michael's Hospital, Axbridge; the County Hospital, Winchester; the School Buildings at Winchester College; the Grammar School, Exeter; the Chapel, Quadrangle, and many other large buildings at Rugby School; the rebuilding of Rugby Parish Church; Heath's Court, Ottery St. Mary; the Guards' Chapel, Caterham Barracks; All Saints, Margaret Street, London; St. Alban's, Holborn; St. Augustine's, Queen's Gate; Gordon Boys' Home Buildings, near Bagshot; St. Thomas, Leeds; together with a large number of other new churches, such as St. Mary Magdalene's Church and the Vicarage at Enfield; and old buildings and churches restored, as St. Cross, Church and Hospital Buildings, near Winchester; St. Mary's Church in Dover Castle, and the Parish Church, Tottenham. He has also added the new buildings to Merton College, Oxford, and has restored its chapel. St. Augustine's new Church, Bournemouth; Parish Church, Barnet; Chapel and other works at Fulham Palace; Ardleigh Church, Essex; Chapel and Domestic Buildings at Ascot Priory are further instances of his method and style. Addresses: 42 Bedford Square, W.C.; and Athenæum.

BUXTON, Sydney, M.P., was born in 1853, and is the grandson of Sir Thomas Fowell Buxton, and the son of Charles Buxton, M.P., and of Emily, daughter of Sir Henry Holland the physician. He was educated at Clifton College and Trinity College, Cambridge. He was a Member of the London School Board from 1876 to 1881. In 1880 he unsuccessfully contested Boston at the General Election, was returned for Peterborough in 1883, and defeated in 1885. In 1886 he stood for Croydon at a bye-election, but was not returned. In the same year he was elected for Poplar, and re-elected in 1892 and again in 1895. In 1892 he was appointed Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies. In 1882-84 Mr. Sydney Buxton acted as Hon. Secretary of Mr. Tuke's Irish Emigration Fund, and was instrumental in emigrating some 10,000 persons, in families, from the congested districts of Ireland. In 1889 he, with the late Cardinal Manning and the Lord Mayor, constituted the "Mansion House Committee of Conciliation," which helped to bring the great dock strike of the year to a satisfactory conclusion. From 1886 to 1889 he was a Member of the Royal Commission on Elementary Education. In 1891 he moved the "Fair Wages Resolution" in the House of Commons, and in the same year was successful in raising the age of "half-timers" from ten to eleven. He is the author of a "Handbook to Political Questions," 1880 (now in its ninth edition); "A Political Manual"; "Finance and Politics: an Historical Study, 1796-1884," 1889; a "Handbook to Death Duties," 1890; besides numerous pamphlets and articles on political and financial subjects. In 1882 Mr. Sydney Buxton married Constance, daughter of Sir John Lubbock. She died in 1892. In 1896 he married Mildred, daughter of Hugh Colin Smith. Addresses: 15 Eaton Place, S.W.; and Athenæum.

BUXTON, Sir Thomas Fowell. Bart., G.C.M.G., son of the late Sir Edward North Buxton, M.P., and grandson of the well-known philanthropist, was born Jan. 26, 1837, and succeeded his father as 3rd baronet in 1858. He was educated at Harrow and Trinity College, Cambridge, and sat in the House of Commons as Liberal Member for King's Lynn from 1865 to 1868. He acted as High Sheriff of Norfolk in 1876, and was Colonel of the 2nd Tower Hamlet Volunteers from 1864 to 1883. In April 1895 Sir Thomas Buxton was appointed Governor of South Australia. He has retired from this Governorship. He has made himself conspicuous as a philanthropist, is of Evangelical principles; and was married in 1862 to Victoria, daughter of the 1st Earl of Gainsborough. Addresses: 14 Grosvenor Crescent, S.W.; and Warlies, Waltham Abbey.

BUZZARD, Thomas, M.D., was born in London, and was educated at King's College, London, at first in the School, and later in the Medical Department of the College. M.R.C.S. 1854, graduated M.B. in the University of London 1857, and M.D. 1860; University Medical Scholar and gold medalist; Fellow of King's College, London; M.R.C.P. London 1867, and F.R.C.P. 1873; Physician to the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen Square, Bloomsbury. Dr. Buzzard was President of the Harveian Society of London in 1889; President of the Neurological Society of London in 1890; President of the Clinical Society of London in 1895-96. He is Fellow of the Royal Medical and Chirurgical Society of London; Member of the Pathological, Clinical, and Ophthalmological Societies; and author of several works on the subject of Neurology, besides numerous contributions to medical and other journals. Dr. Buzzard was attached to the Headquarters of H.H. Omer Pasha in the Crimean Campaign in 1855-56. He was present at the siege of Sebastopol; with the second expedition to Kertch; and at the battle of the Tchernaiia. After the fall of Sebastopol he accompanied the army of Omer Pasha to the Caucasus in its winter campaign, and took part in the establishment and conduct of a base hospital for Turkish troops at Trebizonde, in Asia Minor. Address: 74 Grosvenor Street, W.

BYLES, William Pollard, the son of William Byles, founder of the Bradford Observer, was born Feb. 13, 1839, and was educated privately. He represented the Shipley Division of Yorkshire in the House of Commons from 1892 to 1895, and has very decided opinions as a Radical and a Social Reformer. He is now proprietor of the paper which his father founded, viz., the Bradford Observer. Address: Oakfield, Bradford.

BYR, Robert. See BAYER, KARL EMERICH ROBERT.

BYRNE, The Hon. Mr. Justice (Sir Edmund Widdington Byrne), the eldest son of Edmund Byrne, solicitor, Westminster, was born at Islington, June 30, 1844, and was educated at King's College, London. He was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn in 1867, was appointed a Q.C. in 1888, was elected a Member of the Bar Committee in 1891, and a Bencher in 1892. He represented the Walthamstow Division of Essex in the House of Commons from 1892 to 1897, and in the latter year he was appointed a Judge of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice. He was married in 1874 to Henrietta, daughter of the late James Gulland of Newton-Wemyss, Fife. Address: 33 Lancaster Gate, W.

C

CABLE, George Washington, novelist, son of George W. Cable, of Virginia, was born in New Orleans on Oct. 12, 1844, where he resided almost uninterruptedly until 1884, when he removed to New England. His present residence is in Northampton, Massachusetts. At the age of fourteen his father died, leaving his family in such reduced circumstances as to compel his son to leave school in order to aid in the support of his mother and sisters. From that time until 1863 he was usually employed as a clerk. In that year he entered the Confederate army, where he remained until the close of the Civil War. Returning to New Orleans, he made such a living as he could—at first as an errand boy (though he was nearly twenty-one years of age), then in book-keeping, and finally secured a position in a prominent house of cotton factors, which he left in 1879 to devote himself exclusively to literature. His first literary work was in the form of contributions to the New Orleans Picayune, under the signature of "Drop-Shot." His work, however, did not attract any very general attention until his Creole sketches appeared in Scribner's Monthly, now The Century Magazine. These were published in book form in 1879, under the title of "Old Creole Days." They were followed by "The Grandisime," 1880; "Madame Delphine," 1881; "The Creoles of Louisiana," 1884; "Dr. Sevier," 1884; "The Silent South," 1885; "Bonaventure," 1887; "Strange True Stories of Louisiana," 1889; "The Negro Question," 1890; and "John March, Southerner," 1894. In these Mr. Cable has shown such a mastery of the Louisiana dialect and such an insight into the Creole character as to give him a prominent place among American writers; and the public readings from his works which he has given during the past few years in Northern cities have been very largely attended. Although writing additional essays from time to time, and a few short stories, he has devoted his later years almost entirely to the platform and to the establishment of charitable societies, notably the Home Culture Clubs for the educational benefit of the working poor. Address: Tarryville, Northampton, Massachusetts.

GADGE, William, F.R.C.S., received his medical education at University College Hospital, London, where he was at one time Assistant-Surgeon and Demonstrator in Anatomy. He was formerly Member of England; is Fellow of the Royal Medical Chirurgical Society, and Consulting Surgeon to the Norfolk and Norwich Hospital, to which he has given two donations, the first being anonymous, of £10,000 each. As Hunterian Professor of Surgery and Pathology he lectured at the Royal College of Surgeons in 1886 on the surgical treatment of stone, and contributed to Morton's "Surgical Anatomy" the "Surgical Anatomy of the Head and Neck and other limbs," and to the Lancet of 1847 a brief account of the last illness and autopsy of Liston. In 1874 he delivered an address on Surgery to the British Medical Association. Address: 49 St. Giles's Street, Norwich.

CADOGAN, Earl, The Right Hon. George Henry Cadogan, K.G., J.P., Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, eldest son of the 4th Earl, was born at Durham on May 12, 1840. He succeeded to the title on the death of his father in 1873, having been for a few months previously M.P. for Bath. He was appointed Parliamentary Under-Secretary for War in May 1875; and Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies in March 1878, in succession to Mr. J. Lowther, who had been advanced to the post of Chief Secretary for Ireland. He went out of office with the Conservative party in April 1880. In Lord Salisbury's second administration, 1886, he was appointed Lord Privy Seal, without a seat in the Cabinet, but he joined the Cabinet in 1887, and was appointed Chairman of Grand Committees in 1889. In Lord Salisbury's third administration he was appointed Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, with a seat in the Cabinet, 1895. He is a Hereditary Trustee of the British Museum. He married in 1873 Beatrix, daughter of the 2nd Earl of Craven, M.P. for Bath. Addresses: Viceregal Lodge, Dublin; Chelsea House, Cadogan Place, S.W.; Calford Hall, Bury.

CAFFYN, Kathleen Mannington, ("Iota"), widow of the late Mr. Mannington Caffyn, was born at Waterloo House, co. Tipperary, and is the daughter of William Hunt and Louisa Going. The future novelist was educated under English and German governesses, and then went through a short course of training at St. Thomas's Hospital preparatory to becoming a nurse under the National and Metropolitan Nursing Association. Shortly after entering on this career she married Mr. Mannington Caffyn, a surgeon and writer of some repute, his novel, "Miss Milne and I," having been one of the notable books of its time. He died when, shortly after their marriage, they had gone out to Sydney. Mrs. Mannington Caffyn began rary career during her early widow- the Colonies. At first she contri- o the papers, and in 1894 sprang den fame by her "Yellow Aster," proved a sensational example of blem novel at a time when "The ly Twins" had made that style of momentarily popular and import- fer subsequent works have been: ren of Circumstances," 1894; "A 7 of Spasms," 1895; and "A Quaker other," 1896. Address: 6 Cedar s, Putney, S.W.

LLARD, Sir Vincent Henry ver, was born on Oct. 23, 1856, and son of Judge Caillard and Emma Reynolds, first cousin once removed late Lord Beaconsfield. He was d at Eton and at the Royal mili- ademy, Woolwich, where he was Gold Medallist, and obtained a sion in the Royal Engineers in Early in 1879 he was appointed to be English Commissioner on the egro Frontier Commission; in the of that year he was on the Arab Commission. In 1880 he rejoined tenegrin Commission, and in July t on a special political mission to in behalf of the Report to the lgress. At the naval demonstra- Dulcigno in September he was y attached to Sir Beauchamp Sey- in 1882 he was in the service of elligence Department, and in the of that year he was attached to the arter Staff during the Egyptian m. He had thus gained a very id varied experience of Levantine hen, in October 1883, he was ap-

President of the Ottoman Public ouncil. He has held this arduous more than fourteen years, and has en Financial Representative of l, Holland, and Belgium in Con- ple. In April 1898 it was an- l that he was about to relinquish t as Administrator of the Public rder to take up his residence in , at the instance of certain leading r who desire the advantage of his ce in the matter of financial tion and administration. He has orders, including the Medal and Star, Egyptian campaign, 1882; Cordon of the Medjidieh; Grand of Ordre pour le Mérite Civile, &c. ted in 1886 Eliza Frances, sister of Hanham, Bart. Club: St. James's.

l, Thomas Henry Hall, novel- dramatisat, was born in 1853. He lfe as an architect, but at an early rned his attention to literature. d with Dante Rossetti in London during the trying twelve months pre- ceding that poet's death in 1882, and published "Recollections of Rossetti" in the same year. He published "Sonnets of Three Centuries" in 1882; "Cobwebs of Criticism," 1883. Then he began his career as a novelist, publishing "The Shadow of a Crime" in 1885; "A Son of Hagar" in 1887; also "The Deemster," 1887, which was dramatised under the title of "Ben-my-Chree," 1888. In 1890 he published "The Bondman"; "The Scapegoat," 1891; "The Manxman," 1894 (twice dramatised under the same name, 1894 and 1895); and "The Christian," 1897. The last mentioned provoked much contro- versy, and passed through a first edition of 50,000 copies within a month. Mr. Hall Caine was principal agent in the abolition of the English three-volume novel. In 1895 he went to Canada as the ambas- sador of the Society of Authors to protest against the proposed Canadian copyright legislation. He framed a compromise, which was accepted by the interested parties and, with modifications, by the Dominion Government and the Colonial Office as a basis of fresh legislation. His permanent address is Greeba Castle, Isle of Man.

CAINE, William Sproston, J.P., was born at Seacombe, Cheshire, March 26, 1842, and is the son of Nathaniel Caine, J.P. for Lancashire and Liverpool, a Liver- pool merchant. He was educated privately by the Rev. Richard Wall, M.A.; married in 1868 to Alice, daughter of Rev. Hugh Stowel Brown, of Liverpool. In 1873 he contested Liverpool in the Liberal interest at a bye-election, and afterwards at the General Election in 1874, both times un- successfully. In 1880 he was returned for Scarborough, and again in 1884 on his ap- pointment to the office of Civil Lord of the Admiralty in Mr. Gladstone's administra- tion of 1880-85. In 1885 he consented to contest the county of Middlesex at the following General Election, and on the passing of the Redistribution Act stood for the Tottenham division of that county in 1885 without success. At a bye-election in April 1886 he was returned for Barrow-in-Furness by a large majority, and was again returned at the General Election. In 1892 he was elected for the Eastern Division of Bradford, and was defeated for the same constituency in 1895. He is a J.P. for the North Riding of York- shire and the county of London, and is largely engaged in the iron trade of Cum- berland. He was Chairman of a Special Commission for the reorganisation of the Metropolitan Constituencies in the Liberal interest, and is now a Member of the Royal Commission on Indian Expenditure and the Royal Commission on the Licensing Laws. Mr. Caine separated from Mr. Gladstone on the Home Rule question, and has been one of the whips of the Liberal Unionist party, but rejoined the Liberal party in 1890, accepting Mr. Gladstone's amended scheme for the government of Ireland. He is an active leader in the Temperance Reformation, and is President of the British Temperance League and the National Temperance Federation, and is a Director of the United Kingdom Temperance and Provident Institution. He is the author of "A Trip Round the World in 1887-88"; "Hugh Stowell Brown: a Memorial Volume," 1888; "Picturesque India," 1890; and "Young India," 1891. Address: North Side, Clapham Common, S.W.

CAIRD, Edward, M.A., Hon. D.C.L., Master of Balliol, was educated at Glasgow University and Balliol College, Oxford, of which he was a Snell Exhibitioner. In 1861 he was Pusey and Ellerton Scholar, took a first class in Classical Moderations in 1862, and a first class in Literæ Humaniores in 1863. He was subsequently elected to a Fellowship at Merton College, where he was for two years a tutor until appointed to the Chair of Moral Philosophy at Glasgow. On the death of Dr. Jowett he was elected Master of Balliol (Nov. 14, 1893). He has published the following works: "The Critical Philosophy of Immanuel Kant," 2 vols.; "The Social Philosophy and Religion of Comte"; "The Evolution of Religion," 2 vols. (being the Gifford Lectures at St. Andrews, 1891-92), 1893; "Hegel," in Blackwood's Philosophical Classics; "Essays in Religion and Philosophy," 1892. Address: Balliol College, Oxford.

CAIRD, Mrs. Mona, authoress, only daughter of John Alison, inventor of the vertical boiler, was born at Ryde, in the Isle of Wight. Her first acknowledged work was "Whom Nature Leadeth." This was followed in 1887 by "One that Wins," and in the spring of 1889 by "The Wing of Azrael." In the Westminster Review for August and November 1888 Mrs. Mona Caird wrote articles on "Marriage" and "Ideal Marriage," which led to a voluminous correspondence in the Daily Telegraph, entitled "Is Marriage a Failure?" She afterwards contributed to the Fortnightly an article entitled "The Morality of Marriage," which was a reply to Mrs. Lynn Linton's attack on the "Wild Woman" in the Nineteenth Century. Other works from her pen are: "A Romance of the Moors," 1891; "The Yellow Drawing-Room and other Short Stories," "The Daughters of Danaus," 1894; "A Sentimental View of Vivisection," "Beyond the Pale," "The Morality of Marriage," 1897. Cont. Pioneer.

CALENDAR, Professor Hugh Longbourne, F.R.S., F.R.S.C., LL.D. son of the Rev. Hugh Calendar, Fellow and Tutor of Magdalene College, Cambridge, who died in 1867, was born April 18, 1863, at Hatherop, Gloucestershire. He was educated at Marlborough College, of which he was head boy 1880-82. He entered Trinity College, Cambridge, in Sept. 1882, and was elected Mayor Scholar in December of the same year, and Bell University Scholar in Feb. 1883. He was in the first class in Classics in 1884, was 14th Wrangler in 1885, and was elected to a College Fellowship in Natural Science in 1886. He became a University Extension Lecturer in 1892, Professor of Physics at the Royal Holloway College in 1893, and McDonald Professor of Physics at McGill University, Montreal, in Oct. 1893. In 1897 he was appointed Professor of Physics at University College, London. In June 1894, he was elected F.R.S., and was made LL.D. in 1898. He has written various papers on subjects connected with the measurement of temperature, the most important of which have appeared in the Phil. Trans. A, 1887, and A, 1891. He has also devised a system of shorthand, published by the Cambridge University Press under the titles of "Phonetic Cursive," 1889, and "Orthographic Cursive," 1891. Address: University College, Gower Street, W.C.

CALVÉ, Madame Emma, operatic singer, was born in France in 1866, her father being a civil engineer. She took her first lessons from M. Laborde, and subsequently with Madame Marchesi, and made her début at the Théâtre de la Monnaie, Brussels, 1882, in Gounod's "Faust." She played in Paris in 1884 at the Théâtre Italien, with MM. Maurel and Edouard Reszke, in "Aben Hamet," and then at the Opéra Comique, where she sang in the following rôles: The Countess in Mozart's "Nozze di Figaro"; the heroine of Félicie David's "Lalla Rookh"; and Pamina in Mozart's "Il Flauto Magico"; and afterwards made a tour in Italy, visiting Milan, Rome, Naples, and Florence, including in her repertoire Ophelia in Ambroise Thomas's "Hamlet," and Leila in Bizet's "Pêcheurs des Perles." She appeared at Covent Garden in 1892 as Santuzza in "Cavalleria Rusticana," and in "L'Amic Fritz," the leading soprano part in which she had created at the Costanza Theatre, Rome, in October 1891. She sang in ball at Windsor Castle by command of the Queen in July 1893. She visits Cover Garden annually in the season. Her Paris address is 1 Rue Dumont d'Urville.

CAMBON, Pierre Paul, French diplomatist, was born on Jan. 20, 1843, and his first appointment was that of Secretary of the Alpes-Maritimes Department in April 1871. In 1872 he was promoted to be Préfet of the Aube, and he has held the same post in the Departments of the Doubs and Nord. In 1882 he became Resident in Tunis, and distinguished himself for his organising activity in the new French Protectorate—law, finance, and public works being entirely reconstituted. In this work he came into conflict with General Boulanger, the military governor, and although he was supported by the government then in power, he had to resign when Boulanger was appointed Minister of War. In 1886 he was appointed Ambassador at Madrid, whence he succeeded the Count de Montebello at Constantinople in 1890. Here he distinguished himself in the deliberations following on the Græco-Turkish War. In September 1898 he was appointed Ambassador at the Court of St. James' in succession to the Baron de Courcel (q.v.). His younger brother, Jules Martin, born 1845, after being Governor-General of Algeria, was appointed Ambassador at Washington, where he was the intermediary between Spain and the United States after the Cuban War in August 1898. M. Paul Cambon is a Grand Officer of the Legion of Honour; and his Paris address is 15 Rue de Milan.

CAMBRAY-DIGNY, Louis Guillaume, Conti di, Italian statesman, was born at Florence Aug. 8, 1820, and is the son of Conti Louis di Cambray-Digny, who rose from cobbler to be the chief minister of Ferdinand III., Grand Duke of Tuscany. He was educated at Pisa, and at the age of twenty-two returned to Florence, where he became one of the counsellors of the Grand Duke Leopold II., and advised him, even up to the last moment, to grant concessions to the people and renounce his Austrian alliance. In 1859 the Grand Duke was compelled to fly, and Tuscany joined Piedmont. The Count was thereupon elected deputy for Tuscany in the new Parliament. In 1865 he presided at the sixcentenary celebration of Dante's birth, and delivered an oration before his monument. In 1867 he became Minister of Finance of the kingdom of Italy, and found a deficit of 900,000,000 lire. He proposed to meet this by a tax on corn-grinding, which was very unpopular, but was accepted out of necessity. He also brought forward a bill for bringing the manufacture of tobacco under the administration of the State, which, after violent opposition, passed in August 1868. His Ministry fell in November 1869 on a minor point, and he has since lived in retirement.

CAMBRIDGE, Duke of, the Right Hon. Field-Marshal H.R.H. George William Frederick Charles, K.G., K.P., G.C.M.G., G.C.H., G.C.B., G.C.S.I., son of Adolphus Frederick, the 1st Duke, grandson of King George III., and first cousin to Her Majesty Queen Victoria, was born at Hanover, March 26, 1819, and succeeded his father July 8, 1850. He became a Colonel in the army Nov. 3, 1837, was advanced to the rank of Major-General in 1854, when he was appointed to command the two brigades of Highlanders and Guards, united to form the first division of the army sent in aid of Turkey against the Emperor of Russia; and was promoted to the rank of General in 1856. In 1861 he was appointed Colonel of the Royal Artillery and Royal Engineers, and was promoted to the rank of Field-Marshal Nov. 9, 1862. His Royal Highness has been successively Colonel of the 17th Light Dragoons, of the Scots Fusilier Guards, and in succession to the late Prince Consort, of the Grenadier Guards. At the battle of the Alma his Royal Highness led his division into action in a manner that won the confidence of his men and the respect of the veteran officers with whom he served. At Inkerman he was actively engaged, and had a horse shot under him. Shortly after this, in consequence of impaired health, he was ordered by the medical authorities to Pera for change of air, and after staying there some time proceeded to Malta; whence, his health still failing, he was directed to return to England. At a later period his Royal Highness gave the result of his camp experience in evidence before the Committee of the House of Commons appointed to investigate the manner in which the war had been conducted. On the resignation of Viscount Hardinge in 1856 the Duke of Cambridge was appointed to succeed as Commander-in-Chief, and continued to hold that post till the autumn of 1895, the appointment being perpetuated by Letters Patent in 1887. In 1895 the new scheme of Army Reform led to the Duke's retirement. His mother, the Duchess of Cambridge, died April 6, 1889, at the advanced age of ninety-two. He is Ranger of Hyde Park and Richmond Park.

CAMERON, Sir Charles, Bart., M.P. (Glasgow, Bridgeton Division), son of the late John Cameron, newspaper proprietor, of Glasgow and Dublin, by his marriage with Miss Galloway, was born at Dublin in 1841. He married in 1869

Frances Caroline, youngest daughter of the late J. W. Macauley, M.D. He was educated at Madras College, St. Andrews, and at Trinity College, Dublin. He studied medicine at Dublin University School, and was gold medallist of the Pathological Society, Dublin. He graduated B.A. as First Senior Moderator, and gold medallist in Experimental and Natural Sciences in 1862, and took the first place in examinations for degrees of M.B. and Master in Surgery. He also studied at the medical schools of Paris, Berlin, and Vienna; proceeded to the degrees of M.D. and M.A. in 1865; and in 1871 took out those of LL.B. and LL.D. He edited the North British Daily Mail newspaper from 1864 to 1874. He served as a member for the City of Glasgow in the Parliaments of 1874 and 1880, and on the subdivision of the constituency sat for the College Division of Glasgow in the three succeeding Parliaments until 1895, when he was defeated. He was elected member for the Bridgeton Division of Glasgow on the retirement of Sir George Travelyan in 1897. He was President of the Health Section, Social Science Congress, in 1881, and of the Public Medicine Section, British Medical Association Congress, in 1884. He was created a baronet in 1893, and D.L. of Glasgow in 1894. In 1876 he succeeded in carrying the Publicans' Certificate (Scotland) Act, a measure which conferred on the popularly elected magistrates of Scottish burghs the power of refusing new liquor licenses. To him, too, are due the introduction of the Inebriates Acts, the abolition of imprisonment for debt in Scotland in 1880, an amendment of the Scottish Marriage Laws, 1878, and the resolution to the effect that the minimum charge for inland telegrams should be reduced from a shilling, at which it then stood, to sixpence, the carriage of which in the House of Commons in 1883 led to the introduction of the present system of sixpenny telegrams. Sir C. Cameron served in 1894 as Chairman of a Departmental Committee appointed by the President of the Board of Agriculture to report on the coastwise transit of cattle. In 1894-95 he was Chairman of a Departmental Committee appointed by the Secretary for Scotland to inquire into the alleged increase of habitual offenders, vagrants, and inebriates in Scotland, and the best manner of dealing with it; and in 1896 he was appointed a Member of Lord Peel's Royal Commission on the Liquor Licensing Laws. Address: Balclutha, Greenock.

CAMERON, Professor Sir Charles Alexander, C.B. (1898), M.D., R.U.I., F.R.S.C.I., M.K. and Q.C.P.I., D.P.H., and

ex-Examiner, Cambridge University, A.B. (hon. causâ), D.P.H., R.C.S.I. (hon. causâ), was born in Dublin on July 16, 1830. His father, Captain Ewen Cameron, was grandson of the unfortunate Archibald Cameron, younger brother of "Lochiel," who was executed for taking part in the Jacobite rising in 1745. Sir Charles's mother was Belinda Smith, a county Cavan lady. Charles was educated at schools in Dublin and Guernsey. He studied medical and chemical science in Dublin and Germany, graduating as Doctor of Medicine and Doctor of Philosophy in 1856. At first he devoted much attention to agricultural chemistry. In 1867 he read a paper before the British Association detailing experiments which proved that urea could be assimilated by plants, and that all the nitrogen which they required could be taken from it. In 1862 he contributed a series of papers to the Chemical News on "The Inorganic Constituents of Plants." In 1862 he was elected Public Analyst for the city of Dublin, and was the only analyst in the United Kingdom who succeeded in applying the provisions of the first and very defective Adulteration of Food Act of 1860. He next turned his attention to sanitary science, and in 1867 was elected Professor of Hygiene or Political Medicine in the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland. He was for some years Lecturer on Chemistry and Physics in two medical schools—Stevens Hospital Medical College, and Ledwich School of Medicine. Sir Charles's public lectures on Hygiene, open to ladies, were numerous and attended. He is an Hon. Member and Professor of Chemistry and ex-Professor of Anatomy to the Royal Hibernian Academy of the Fine Arts, &c., Lecturer on Agricultural Chemistry and Geology in the Albert (Government) Model Farm, Glasnevin, and he is Public Analyst for the greater number of Irish counties and boroughs, as well as Consultant to nearly all the Public Departments. He holds the Professorships of Chemistry and Hygiene in the College of Surgeons, and he has the entire control of the Public Health Department of the Dublin Corporation, being both Executive and Superintendent Medical Officer of Health. Under his régime an immense improvement has taken place in the dwellings of the working classes, and the state of public health has been greatly improved. Sir Charles and the Irish Registrar-General were appointed in 1888 to inquire into the conditions of the Royal Barracks in Dublin. Sir Charles served on the juries of several of the great exhibitions, including that of Paris in 1867. He was President of the Royal College of Surgeons, 1886-86; President of the British Public Health Medical Society, 1880-90; Vice-President of the Institute of Chemistry, 1884-90; President of the British Institute of Public Health, 1890-93; of the Irish Medical Association, 1891-92; of the Society of Public Analysts; and Hon. Member of many Medical Societies abroad and in America. His chief works are a voluminous "History of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, and of the Irish Medical Institutions, including 300 Biographies," and a "Manual of Hygiene, and Compendium of the Sanitary Laws." His smaller works, including translations of poems from the German, are numerous. His "Elementary Agricultural Chemistry and Geology" is on the list of the school books of the National Education Commissioners. His original papers chiefly appear in the Proceedings of the Royal Society and the Royal Dublin Society, the Transactions of the Royal Irish Academy and of the Royal Academy of Medicine, the Chemical News, the Dublin Journal of Medicine. In pure chemistry he is best known for his numerous papers on Selenium Compounds. Sir Charles was knighted in 1886, "in recognition of his services in the improvement of Public Health, and his scientific researches." He is Hon. Member of the Academy of Medicine of Sweden, the State Medical Society of California, the Hygiene Societies of France, Paris, Bordeaux, Belgium, the Institute of Architects, the Institute of Civil Engineers. In social life Sir Charles has a great reputation as an after-dinner speaker, and he frequently occupies the chair at public dinners. He has presided at the Sanitary Congress, Portsmouth, 1892, and at many public gatherings in London, Dublin, and other places. In 1862 he married Lucie, daughter of John Macnamara, solicitor, of Dublin. She died in 1883, leaving seven children, of whom five survive. Address: 51 Pembroke Road, Dublin.

CAMPBELL, Lady Colin, née Gertrude Blood ("G. Bruneille," "Vera Tearitsyn," "Q.E.D.," "Fiamma," &c.), author and journalist, is the daughter of Edmond Maghlin Blood, who died in 1891, and whose estates in county Clare have been held in the family since the middle of the reign of Queen Elizabeth. Miss Gertrude Blood was not sixteen when she published an account of foreign travel in Cassell's. In the same year she published, under the pseudonym of "G. E. Bruneille," a story of child-life in Italy, entitled "Topo," which was illustrated by Miss Kate Greenaway. At the same time she studied painting in Florentine studios, and, under her father's guidance, became acquainted with the best work of Continental masters, both old and modern.

As a journalist Lady Colin Campbell has been at various times English correspondent for sundry Italian and American papers, as well as for the Parisian Le Gaulois. The first article she sent to the Saturday Review resulted in her being requested to join the staff of that then famous literary journal; and her contributions ranged from book-reviewing and essays, art and musical criticisms, to papers on sporting subjects, but treated from a purely literary standpoint. One series of these latter was re-issued under the title of "The Book of the Running Brook and of Still Waters." Other essays on fishing, and the art of fencing, from her pen, form part of the "Gentlewoman's Book of Sports." Upon the latter subject, indeed, Lady Colin (owing to her acquaintance with the play of nearly every swordsman of note and her own practice under the greatest masters of the Continent) is recognised as one of the best woman experts living. As art critic Lady Colin has contributed at different times to many other papers and periodicals, among others to the Art Journal, the Pall Mall Gazette, the National Review, and Les Lettres et les Arts. But above all, "Q.E.D.'s" accounts of her own impressions "In the Picture Galleries," which since 1889 have appeared almost weekly in the World, will remain as a critical conspectus, year by year, of English painting. Although Lady Colin Campbell's first novel, "Darell Blake," ran through many editions, the literary form she affects most, which no doubt fits in best with her multifarious tastes and interests, is that of small and very definite compass. She has published a number of short stories, all marked with much "point." But perhaps the most original style, among Lady Colin's various styles, is to be appreciated in her characteristic "Woman's Walks," of which nearly some two hundred have already appeared (the matter of half-a-dozen octavo volumes at least) in the columns of the World. Lady Colin Campbell is distinguished not only with the pen. She has an admirable contralto voice, trained in early days by Baci (the pupil and successor of the Romani who formed most of the great singers of his time) and later by Tosti. In painting she was the pupil of Duveneck; in fencing, of Camille Prévost himself and Philippe Bourgeois; she is a rider of the haute-école as well as of the hunting-field; a noted swimmer; adept in fly-fishing; and she was one of the early promoters of ladies' cycling. She was married in 1881 to Lord Colin Campbell, fifth son of the Duke of Argyll, and at that time M.P. for Argyllshire. Two years later she obtained a divorce on the ground of cruelty, which was upheld against appeal. Lord Colin Campbell died in 1895. Address: 67 Carliale Mansions, Victoria, S.W.

CAMPBELL, The Rev. Lewis, M.A., LL.D., Emeritus Professor of Greek in the University of St. Andrews, son of Robert Campbell, R.N., sometime Governor of Ascension Isle, and cousin of Campbell the poet, was born in Edinburgh Sept. 3, 1830. He was educated at the Edinburgh Academy, at Glasgow University, and at Trinity and Balliol Colleges, Oxford, in the former as Scholar, in the latter as Snell Exhibitioner. He was thus brought into contact with the late Master of Balliol (Professor Jowett), whose influence as a college tutor was already conspicuous. He took a first-class in Classics in 1853, was Fellow of Queen's from 1855 to 1858, and tutor from 1856 to 1858. In 1857 he was ordained by the Bishop of Oxford, and in 1858 became Vicar of Milford, Hants. He remained there until 1863, when he was appointed Professor of Greek in the University of St. Andrews, a post from which he retired in 1892. Professor Campbell has published many works on classical subjects, of which the chief are: "The Theætetus of Plato," 1861 (2nd edit., 1883); "The Sophistes and Politicus of Plato," 1867; "Sophocles—The Plays and Fragments," Vol. I., 1871 (2nd edit., 1879); Vol. II., 1881; Verse Translations of Sophocles, 1873–83, and of Æschylus, 1890; "Sophocles" in Macmillan's series of Classical Writers, 1879. The 1883 edition of "Sophocles in English Verse" having been exhausted, a final edition was published by Murray in 1896. Professor Campbell has also written articles on Plato and Sophocles in the "Encyclopædia Britannica," and contributed various papers to the Quarterly, National, and Classical Reviews, the American Journal of Philology, and other home and foreign periodicals. He fortnightly published in 1877 a volume of sermons, "The Christian Ideal" and in 1882 (in conjunction with Mr. Garnett), "The Life of James Clerk Maxwell." Since 1892 he has been resident in London, and from the time of Professor Jowett's death in 1893 has been active as one of his literary executors. In 1894 he republished by his friends' desire the work on the Epistles of St. Paul, which had been the subject of a violent controversy in the author's lifetime. The work was republished by Murray & Co. The commentary is condensed, but the essays, including the famous Essay on the Interpretation of Scripture, contributed to "Essays and Reviews" in 1860, are reprinted entire. In the same year, 1894, there appeared the edition of Plato's "Republic" (8 vols. 8vo), on which Professors Jowett and Campbell had long been engaged together; and in the spring of 1897 was published "The Life and Letters of Benjamin Jowett," 2 vols. 8vo, by Abbott and Campbell, which in a few months reached a third edition. An edition of the text of Æschylus for Macmillan's Parnassus Series has been amongst the labours of these last years; and the smaller edition of Sophocles by Campbell and Abbott is being prepared for a new issue at the Clarendon Press. In 1894–95 Professor Campbell held the Gifford Lectureship at St. Andrews, and he hopes shortly to publish the substance of his lectures in a volume on "Religion in Greek Literature." He also contemplates the preparation, in collaboration with others, of a new Concordance or Lexicon to Plato. A new and original theory of the Order of the Platonic Dialogues, propounded by Professor Campbell in 1867, has lately met with wide recognition. Addresses: 32 Camden House Chambers, W.; and Athenæum.

CAMPBELL, Mrs. Patrick, who has become famous in the title-rôle of "Mrs. Tanqueray" at the St. James's Theatre, was born at Forest House, Kensington Gardens, and is the youngest daughter of John Tanner and Louisa Romanini. She was married in 1884 to Patrick Campbell, third son of Patrick Campbell, of Stranraer. She was educated at private schools and in Paris, gained a scholarship at the Guildhall School of Music, and made her name as an amateur actress long before she was known in professional circles. Her early amateur successes were gained with a West Norwood dramatic society, "The Anomalies," in 1886–87. From 1888 to 1891 she toured with various dramatic companies, including Mr. Ben Greet's, and first attracted the attention of the critics while playing the part of Helen in an amateur performance of "The Hunchback," given at Colchester. In 1890 she gained an opportunity of appearing on the London stage in a matinée performance of Mr. Louis Parker's "A Buried Talent" at the Vaudeville. Here she again made so favourable an impression as to be encouraged to try a theatrical venture on her own account. In June 1891 she took the Shaftesbury Theatre in order to essay Rosalind. In August she obtained an engagement at the Adelphi, where, except for an interruption by illness, she remained till she went to the St. James's to act Paula in "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray." At the Adelphi Mrs. Campbell created four parts: as Astrea in "The Trumpet Call," Elizabeth Cromwell in the "White Rose," Tress in "The Lights of Home," and Clarice Berton in "The Black Domino." "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" had a long run.

In November 1894 Mrs. Campbell appeared as Kate Cloud, the heroine of "John a'Dreams," at the Haymarket Theatre. She has also appeared as Agnes in "The Notorious Mrs. Ebbesmith," as Fedora, as Juliet in the revival of "Romeo and Juliet" by Mr. Forbes Robertson at the Lyceum in September 1895, as Lady Teazle in "The School for Scandal," and as Ophelia in "Hamlet," also in company with Mr. Forbes Robertson at the Lyceum. In October 1898 she played Lady Macbeth at the same theatre, with the last-named actor as Macbeth. Address: Milford, Surrey.

CAMPBELL-BANNERMAN, The Right Hon. Sir Henry, G.C.B., M.P., LL.D., D.L., J.P., is the second son of the late Sir James Campbell, of Stracathro, Forfarshire, some time Lord Provost of Glasgow, by Janet, youngest daughter of the late Mr. Henry Bannerman, of Manchester, and was born in 1836. He was educated at the University of Glasgow and at Trinity College, Cambridge (B.A., 1858; M.A., 1861). In 1872 he assumed the additional surname of Bannerman, under the will of his uncle, Mr. Henry Bannerman, of Hunton Court, Kent. Mr. Campbell-Bannerman, who is a magistrate for the counties of Lanark and Kent, has represented the Stirling district of burghs in the Liberal interest since December 1868. He was Financial Secretary at the War Office from 1871 to 1874; was again appointed to that office in 1880; and in May 1882 was nominated Secretary to the Admiralty. He was Chief Secretary for Ireland, 1884-85, during which time he was said by Mr. Tim Healy to be governing Irishmen with "Scotch jokes"; and in Mr. Gladstone's third Cabinet, 1886, held the office of Secretary of State for War, and was again appointed to the same office in Mr. Gladstone's Ministry, 1892. The Unionists suggested him as a candidate for the Speakership to which Mr. Gully was appointed. He is a man of great wealth, a moderate and cool politician, and somewhat of an opportunist, and has been described as "a survival of that rapidly decaying type of M.P. which declines to be perturbed overmuch about insignificant trifles." At the time of going to press he has been elected by his party as Sir William Harcourt's successor in the leadership of the Liberal party in the House of Commons. He has received the honorary degree of LL.D. from the University of Glasgow. He married in 1860 Charlotte, daughter of the late Major-General Sir Charles Bruce, K.C.B. Addresses: 6 Grosvenor Place, S.W.; Belmont Castle, Meigle, Scotland; and Athenæum.

CAMPOS, Arsenio Martinez, a Spanish general and statesman, born in 1834, the son of a brigadier-general, left the Staff School at Madrid with the rank of lieutenant, went through the campaign in Morocco, in 1859, as a member of the staff of the commander-in-chief, O'Donnell, and was there promoted to the rank of major. In 1864 he joined the army of Cuba as colonel, and he remained six years in that island. On his return to Spain in 1870 he was sent, with the title of brigadier-general, to join the Army of the North, which was engaged in repelling the Carlist rebellion. After the abdication of King Amadeo he declined to give in his adhesion to the new order of things, and made no secret of his antipathy to the Republic. He was put on the retired list in 1873, and shortly afterwards was confined in a fortress as a conspirator. From his prison he addressed to General Zabala, Minister of War, the well-known letter in which he requested permission to go and fight, as a private, under the orders of General Concha, the Carlist forces in Navarre and the Basque Provinces. This letter obtained for him his liberty, and he was sent to the Army of the North, in April 1874, to command a division of the Third Corps. He took part in the engagements of Las Munecas and Galdames, which led to the siege of Bilbao being raised, and he was the first to enter the liberated city on May 1, 1874. When General Concha reorganised the Liberal army, Martinez Campos was appointed General in command of the Third Corps. He fought at the head of his troops on the 25th, the 26th, and particularly on the 27th of June, the day on which the Commander-in-Chief, General Concha, was killed in the attack on Monte Moru, near Estella. General Martinez Campos, besieged at Zurugay, on the same day, by the main body of the Carlists, opened a passage through the enemy's ranks, at the head of a column which numbered barely 1800 men, and went to rejoin, at Murillo, the headquarters, where he was able to organise the retreat of the army on Tafalla. Returning to Madrid, he continued to conspire almost overtly in favour of Don Alfonso, whilst Marshal Serrano, chief of the executive power, was operating against the Carlists. In conjunction with General Jovellar he made the military pronunciamiento of Sagunto, which gave the throne of Spain to Alfonso XII. The new Government sent him into Catalonia, as Captain-General and Commander-in-Chief of that military district. In less than a month he pacified the country, put down the Carlist bands, and took the command of the Army of the North. He brought the civil war to a close by the defeat of

Don Carlos at Pena de Plata, in March 1876. The high dignity of Captain-General of the Army, which is equivalent to that of a Marshal of France, was the recompense for his signal services. A year afterwards he was appointed Commander-in-Chief of the army in Cuba, which the rebels had held in check for seven years. Under his leadership the Spaniards were uniformly victorious, but neither these triumphs nor the strategical talents of the Commander-in-Chief would have succeeded in bringing about the complete pacification of the island if the recognition of the political rights of the Cubans and new Liberal concessions had not satisfied the demands of the insurgents. On his return to Spain, General Martínez Campos accepted the portfolio of War and the Presidency of the Council (March 7, 1879), and endeavoured to procure the fulfilment of the promises made to the Cubans; but not obtaining the support of the Cortes he resigned, and was succeeded by Señor Cánovas del Castillo (Dec. 9, 1879). Early in 1881 the Conservative Government of Señor Cánovas del Castillo was overthrown, and a coalition between Señor Sagasta and General Martínez Campos came into power, and retained it till October 1883, when it resigned in consequence of being unable to obtain from the French Government a satisfactory apology for the insult offered to King Alfonso by the Paris mob on his visit to Paris. In March 1883 he warmly opposed the project for a Pyrenean railroad, on the ground that it would lay Spain open to French attacks. On Jan. 18, 1884, he received the command of the Spanish Army of the North, and resigned it in February 1885. The following December he was elected President of the Senate. In 1888 he was appointed Captain-General of New Castille. This post he left in order to proceed to Cuba, where the refusal to grant reform had rekindled the insurrection. He arrived at Havana, April 26, 1895, and successfully met the rebels in several engagements. In September he forwarded a petition for Home Rule, and throughout he was in favour of meeting the rebels half-way. This petition, however, did not meet with favour at home, and he was recalled in January 1896, to be succeeded by General Weyler (q.v.). Since then he has been Governor of Madrid, and during the threatened dynastic troubles he has been the chief counsellor of the Queen Regent (q.v.).

CANDOLLE, Anne Casimir Pyramus de, Hon. Doctor of the University of Rostock, son of Alphonse, grandson of Augustin Pyramus, born at Geneva, Feb. 20, 1836; has published several papers on anatomy of plants and descriptive botany in the "Prodromus" and the Monographies of his father as well as in "Mémoires de la Société de Physique et d'Histoire naturelle de Genève," a society of which he was President in the year 1882.

CANDY, George, M.A. Q.C., was born in Bombay, Oct. 14, 1841, being the third son of the Rev. George Candy, then Incumbent of Trinity Church, Bombay. He was educated privately at Cheltenham, Bristol, and at the Islington Proprietary School, whence he went in 1860 with an Open Scholarship to Wadham College, Oxford. At Oxford he went in for athletics, winning, in 1862, the Prize Foils at Maclaren's Gymnasium, and rowing stroke of the College Torpida, and seven of the College Eight. He obtained a second class in Classical Moderations, and a second class in Greats, reading privately with T. H. Green of Balliol, afterwards Professor of Moral Philosophy, and with Edward Caird, afterwards Master of Balliol. He accepted in 1865 a mastership at St. Peter's College, Radley, but resigned through ill-health. He then resided in Oxford, taking private pupils, and edited Gray's Poems for the "British India Classics," afterwards becoming successively Master at Wellington, Marlborough, and Manchester. He was called to the Bar in November 1869, joined the Oxford Circuit, and went the Oxford and Gloucester Sessions. He married in 1873 Emily, daughter of Colonel Joseph Reade Revell of Round Oak, Englefield Green, by whom he has issue. He joined the Home Circuit in 1874, and went the Surrey Sessions. He took Silk in 1886. He published in 1879 a "Treatise on the Jurisdiction, Practice, and Procedure of the Mayor's Court, London"; in 1883 a "Treatise on the Powers and Discretion of Licensing Justices" ("Is Local Option a Fact?"); in 1888 "Registration versus Muzzling," with suggestions for a reform of the Dog Laws; in 1893 "The First Step to Prohibition," a criticism of the Local Control Bill of Sir W. Harcourt; in 1897 "The Public and the Publican," the decision of the House of Lords in "Boulter v. Kent Justices" examined. In February 1896 he unsuccessfully contested Southampton in the Unionist interest, being rejected by 35 votes out of a total poll of 11,077. He has been a journalist nearly all his life, having written for the Globe, Pall Mall Gazette, Echo, and Morning Advertiser. Addresses: 84 St. George's Square, S.W.; 3 Harcourt Buildings, Temple; and the Mase, Gold Hill, Chalfont St. Peter's, Bucks.

CANNING, Sir Samuel, C.E., upon whom the responsibility of laying the Atlantic cables of 1865, 1866, and 1869

is the son of the late Robert Esq., of Ogbourne St. Andrew, e., and was born in 1823. He is career as assistant to the late Joseph Locke, C.E., F.R.S., from 1844 and was resident engineer during construction of the Liverpool, Ormakirk, and Mersey Railway. Since then he has been engaged in the manufacture and supervision of the most important lines of telegraph cables almost from their initiation in 1850. He was among the pioneers of Atlantic cables, and witnessed the submergence of the first line, and that of other Atlantic lines. His skill and energy the success of the expedition of 1866 is undoubtedly perfected the paying-out and the winding and grappling machinery for the cable, which so materially aided its construction, and the recovery of the cable the preceding year. He has also visited England with Gibraltar, Malta, Alexandria, and laid other important cables connecting various countries in the Mediterranean, North Sea, &c. He received the honour of knighthood in 1866, and a Medal from the Chamber of Commerce of Liverpool March 14, 1867, and the signia of the Order of St. Jago da Indiferença from the King of Portugal. He married in 1859 Elizabeth, daughter of Sir W. H. Gale. Address: 1 Inverness Gardens, W.

NON, Joseph G., American lawyer, was born at Guilford, North Carolina, May 7, 1836, and received a liberal education. He studied law, and was admitted to the Bar, commencing the practice of his profession at Tusculum, Tenn. He was States Attorney from 1861 to December 1868; and was elected to the Forty-third Congress, and re-elected to the Forty-fourth, Forty-fifth, Forty-sixth, Forty-seventh, Forty-eighth, Forty-ninth, Fiftieth, Fifty-first, Fifty-second, Fifty-third, and Fifty-fourth Congresses. He is leader of the Commercial Appropriations of the House of Representatives.

STERBURY, Archbishop of
WIMBORNE, THE MOST REV. FREDERICK.

PEL, The Right Reverend Monsignor Thomas John, D.D., was born in 1836. Having completed his education by six years' private tuition under Rev. J. M. Glennie, B.A., Oxon., in the autumn of 1860 he was ordained priest by Cardinal Wiseman. In January 1854 he became co-founder and Vice-Principal of Mary's Normal College at Hamstead. Shortly after ordination he was obliged to go to a southern climate to recruit his strength. When staying at Pau, he established the English Catholic Mission, and was formally appointed its chaplain. Subsequently, his health having improved, he returned to London, where his sermons and doctrinal lectures in various churches, and more especially at the Pro-Cathedral at Kensington, soon raised him to the foremost rank among English preachers. During several visits to Rome he also delivered courses of English sermons in that city by the express command of the Sovereign Pontiff. Monsignor Capel, while labouring at Pau in the work of "conversions," was named private chamberlain to Pope Pius IX. in 1868, and after his return to England domestic prelate in 1873. With returning health Monsignor Capel once more took to the work of education, and in February 1873 established the Roman Catholic Public School at Kensington. He was appointed Rector of the College of Higher Studies at Kensington—the nucleus of the Roman Catholic English University—in 1874, by the unanimous vote of the Roman Catholic Bishops, and he held that appointment until he resigned it in 1878. Then having delivered a series of conferences on the Doctrines of the Roman Catholic Church in Florence by the wish of Leo XIII., Monsignor Capel carried out his long-proposed visit to America. There, in all the great cities, he lectured and preached to large audiences on religious, social, political, and literary subjects. In 1882 Monsignor Capel wrote "Great Britain and Rome," urging the importance of having a Papal Nuncio accredited to England, and during his tour in America he published treatises on "Confession," "The Holy Catholic Church," "The Name Catholic," "The Pope the Head of the Christian Church," besides re-editing the well-known work, "Faith of Catholics." He is now resident in California.

CAPRIVI DE CAPRERA DE
MONTECUCOLI, Count Georg Leo
von, late German Chancellor, is the eldest of the four sons of Julius Edward von Caprivi, who was a high legal functionary in the service of the Prussian State. General von Caprivi was born at Charlottenburg on Feb. 24, 1831. Entering a general regiment in his eighteenth year he won rapid promotion, and served with distinction in the campaigns of 1864 and 1866. In 1870 he acted as Chief of the Staff to the 10th Corps, of which he is now the Commander, and reaped fresh laurels in all the battles on the Loire. Swiftly ascending the other steps of the military ladder, he was appointed in 1883 to the command of the 30th Division at

LESLIE DONALD, Sir Frederick
LESLIE D. was born in 1874 and was educated at the Royal Military College, Sandhurst. During the Boer War he was in service in the North-West Frontier of India in 1898 and was mentioned in despatches. He was Deputy Assistant Quartermaster-General in the Sudan from 1901 to 1905 and in the following year went out to Sierra Leone to take part in the Bull War of 1905-6, when he was again mentioned in despatches. He was employed in the Government in 1907, and acted as Assistant Military Secretary in Sierra Leone from 1907 to 1908. After being Vice-Commissioner of the Freetown from 1904 to 1906 he was appointed Resident Commissioner in 1909. He now occupies the position of Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Sierra Leone and was created a K.C.M.G. in 1907. He married in 1907, as his second wife, Katherine, daughter of the late J. Saville, and widow of Colonel Kent Jones. Address: Government House, Freetown, Sierra Leone.

CARDUCCI, Giosué. Italian poet and critic, is the son of a physician, and was born at Val-di-Castello, near Pietra Santa, on July 27, 1836, and educated at the college of the Scolopi at Florence, where he early gave proof of his talents. In 1858 he founded a literary review, the Poliziano, in which he proposed to render the Italian language classical in form though modern in thought. At the same time he published his Juvenilia, and several critical essays on the old Italian poets. These writings obtained him, in 1860, an appointment as Professor of Italian Literature at the University of Bologna. He was returned, in 1876, to the Italian Chamber as a Republican, and became a senator in 1890. Among Signor Carducci's poetical works may be mentioned his famous "Hymn to Satan," published under the pseudonym of "Enotrio Romano"; "Levia Gravia," 1875; "Odi Barbari," Odes in irregular metres, 1880; "September, 1792," 1883. M. Luzol has translated the Barbaric Odes into French, and Mr. G. A. Greene has published some translations of Carducci in his "Italian Lyrics of To-day." A complete edition of his poetical works in twenty volumes began to be published at Bologna in 1889. Among Carducci's critical works may be mentioned "Literary Studies," 1874; "Commentaries on Petrarch," 1879; "Critical Conversations" and "Lives and Portraits," 1884. Address: Bologna.

CARINI, Isidore, was born at Palermo (Sicily) on Jan. 7, 1843, and ordained Priest in 1866, Canon of the Cathedral of Palermo in 1875, Professor of Palæography and Curator of the Archives of Palermo in 1877. In 1882 he was sent by the Government into Spain to collect and publish documents relative to the Sicilian Vespers; and recalled to Rome by His Holiness Leo XIII. as assistant archivist and first Professor of Palæography at the new Vatican school in 1884. In 1889 he was appointed Premier Préfet at the Vatican Library. Canon Carini has been a prolific writer, not merely upon archaeological subjects, but also on religion, literature, languages, bibliography, &c. He is a member of various literary societies, and for his services during the cholera in 1885 received a gold medal from the King of Italy.

CARLE. See SARDOU, VICTORIEN.

CARLING, Hon. Sir John, K.C.M.G., was born in London, Ontario, on Jan. 23, 1828, and was educated in the public schools of his native place. For a number of years he was a member of the firm of Carling & Co., brewers, London, and was a director of the Great Western Railway, the London, Huron, and Bruce Railway, and the London and Port Stanley Railway. He was elected Trustee of the Board of Education, London, in 1850, and held this office until in 1854 he became a member of the Board of Aldermen for the same city. In 1857 he was returned as a member for London to the General Assembly, holding the seat continuously until the Confederation. He was Receiver-General of Canada in 1862; was elected to the Commons in 1867, holding the seat to 1874, and was also returned to the Legislative Assembly of Ontario in 1867. He was Minister of Agriculture and Public Works from July 1867 until December 1871; was sworn of the Privy Council, and was Postmaster-General from May 23, 1882, until Sept. 25, 1885, when he resigned this portfolio and accepted that of the Minister of Agriculture. He was re-elected to the Commons in 1878, and continued to sit for London until 1891. He was called to the Senate in 1891, but resigned his seat in the spring of 1892, and again successfully contested London for the Commons. He retained the portfolio of Minister of Agriculture until September 1892; since then he has been a member of the Cabinet without portfolio. He was called to the Senate in 1896. He was created K.C.M.G. in 1893. He is married to Hannah, daughter of Henry Dalton, London, Ontario. Address: London, Ontario.

CARLISLE, Bishop of. See BARDSLEY, THE RIGHT REV. JOHN WAREING.

CARLISLE, Earl of, George James Howard, born Aug. 12, 1843, is the son of the Hon. Charles, fourth son of the 6th Earl, and succeeded to the title as 9th Earl in 1889. He was educated at Eton and Trinity College, Cambridge, and sat in the House of Commons as Liberal Member for East Cumberland from 1879 to 1880, and from 1881 to 1885. He is a Justice of the Peace and a Trustee of the National Gallery. He was married in 1864 to Rosalind, youngest daughter of Lord Stanley of Alderley. Addresses: 1 Palace Green, Kensington, W.; and North Castle, Carlisle.

CARLISLE, John Griffin, American statesman, was born in Campbell (now Kenton) County, Kentucky, Sept. 5, 1835. He received a common school education, studied law, and began its practice in 1858. From 1859 to 1861 he was a member of the Kentucky House of Representatives, and of the State Senate from 1866 to 1871, resigning his seat to accept the office of Lieut.-Governor, to which he was elected in August 1871, and which he occupied until 1875. In 1876 he was elected a member of the lower branch of Congress, where he continued to sit until May 1890, when he was sent to the United States Senate to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Beck to 1895. From 1883 to 1889 he was the (Democratic) Speaker of the House of Representatives, and from 1893 to 1897 Secretary of the Treasury under President Cleveland.

CARLOS I., Dom Carlos, King of Portugal and the Alzavres, son of Louis I., was born in Lisbon on Sept. 28, 1863, married in Lisbon, May 22, 1886, Amélie, Princess of Orléans-Bourbon, daughter of the late Comte de Paris, and has two children. He succeeded to the throne on Oct. 19, 1889. During a financial crisis in 1892 King Carlos and the Royal Family renounced a fifth of their yearly income for the benefit of the nation. In April 1893 an attempt was made on the king's life as he was being driven through Lisbon. He visited England in November 1895.

CARLOS, Don, Duke of Madrid, Carlos Maria de los Dolores Juan Isidoro Josef Francesco Quirino Antonio Miguel Gabriel Rafael, who claims, under the special law of succession established by Philip V., to be the legitimate King of Spain by the title of Charles VII., was born at Laybach, in Austria, on March 30, 1848. His father, Don Juan, was the brother of Don Carlos, Charles VI., known as the Count de Montemolin, in support of whose claims the Carlist risings of 1848, 1855, and 1860 were organised. As Charles VI. died without children, Jan. 13, 1861, his rights devolved upon his brother, Don Juan, who had married on Feb. 6, 1847, the Archduchess Maria Teresa of Austria, Princess of Modena, who is still living at Gratz, in Austria. Their son, the present Don Carlos, who was educated principally in Austria, married on Feb. 4, 1867, Margaret de Bourbon, of Bourbon, Princess of Parma, daughter of the late Duke Ferdinand Charles III., Mademoiselle de France, Duchess of Parma, and sister of the late Comte de Chambord (Henry V. of France). In October 1868 Don Juan abdicated in favour of his son, whose standard was raised in the north of Spain by some of his partisans, April 21, 1872. On July 16 in that year Don Carlos published a proclamation, addressed to the inhabitants of Catalonia, Aragon, and Valencia, calling upon them to take up arms in his cause, and promising to restore to them their ancient liberties; and in the following December Don Alfonso, the brother of Don Carlos, assumed the command of the Carlist bands in Catalonia. Don Carlos himself made his entry into Spain July 15, 1873, announcing that he came for the purpose of saving the country. From that period the war was waged with remarkable vigour, and the various governments which came into power at Madrid strove in vain to dislodge the Carlists from their strongholds in the north of Spain. When the Republic came to an end, and the eldest son of the ex-Queen Isabella returned to Spain as Alfonso XII., Don Carlos issued a proclamation, dated at his headquarters at Vera, Jan. 6, 1875, calling upon Spain to adhere to his side. The contest was carried on with great stubbornness and gallantry by the Carlists for more than a twelvemonth after that; but in January 1876 Tolosa, their last stronghold, fell, and its defenders, dying in disorder, sought refuge on French territory. This war is called the "Four Years' War," to distinguish it from the "Seven Years' War" of 1833 to 1840. In both several prominent Englishmen fought on the Legitimist side. Don Carlos passed through France to London and travelled in the United States and Mexico, and in 1877 joined the Russian army in Turkey and fought at Plevna, where he was decorated by the Emperor for charging the enemy at the head of his own escort. In 1880 he returned to France, but was expelled the country by President Grévy (Aug. 12, 1881) for having attended Mass with French Royalists on St. Henry's Day (July 15), in honour of the Comte de Chambord. This order has never been rescinded. In 1884 he visited India, and was the guest of the Duke of Connaught at Meerut; he returned through Ceylon and Egypt. In 1887 he visited South America, being the first member of the Spanish Bourbons to see these old Spanish possessions. Alfonso XII. made every possible effort to restore the lost prosperity of his kingdom and to secure and consolidate his own dynasty, but in 1885 he died prematurely. The fight for the succession now raged between Maria Christina of Austria, the widow of Alfonso XII., and Don Carlos. However, the posthumous birth of the present king in the following year, 1886, kindled in the nation a feeling of loyalty to the varying fortunes of the House of Bourbon, which has continued to exist up to the present time. Many rumours have been current as to the intentions of Don Carlos, but up till now he has not taken any definite step toward reasserting his old claim. It is considered, however, that he is merely waiting for a favourable opportunity. He lives for the most part of the year in his palace on the Grand Canal at Venice, welcoming all Spaniards who offer him their respects. Tall, handsome, and with engaging manners, he is said to be a consummate horseman, and was without doubt one of the pluckiest of soldiers during the Carlist war. His father, Don Juan, died at Brighton Nov. 18, 1887, where he resided incognito. Don Carlos lost his first wife at Viareggio in 1893, and in the next year married the Princess Berthe de Rohan, a descendant of the old sovereigns of Brittany. His only son, Don Jaime, is at present serving in the Russian army, gaining experience for a probable Spanish campaign, signs of the approach of which are not lacking. The following skeleton table will show his claim:—

Don Carlos has five children—the Infanta Blanca, born Sept. 7, 1868; the Infante Jaime (Don Jaime), Prince of the Asturias, born June 27, 1870; the Infanta Elvira, born July 28, 1871; the Infanta Beatrix, born March 21, 1874; and the Infanta Alicia, born June 29, 1876.

CARMEN SYLVA. See ELIZABETH, QUEEN OF ROUMANIA.

CARNEGIE, Andrew, the "Iron King," an American manufacturer, was born at Dunfermline, Scotland, Nov. 25, 1837. His family removed to the United States in 1848 and settled at Pittsburgh, Pa., and two years later Andrew began his business career by attending a small stationary engine. This he soon left to become a telegraph messenger, and later he became an operator. While clerk of the superintendent of the telegraph lines of the Pennsylvania R. R. Co. at Pittsburgh, he aided in the adoption by that company of the Woodruff sleeping-car, and this gave him the nucleus of his present great fortune. He was made superintendent of the Pittsburgh division of the Pennsylvanian road, and soon afterwards acquired an interest in some oil wells that proved very profitable. Subsequently he became associated with others in establishing a rolling-mill, which has grown to be the largest and most complete system of iron and steel industries in the world ever controlled by one individual. He has spent large sums of money for educational and charitable purposes. At his native place he erected, in 1879, commodious swimming-baths for the use of the people, and in the following year gave it $40,000 for a free library. He gave $50,000 in 1884 to the Bellevue Hospital Medical College at New York for a histological laboratory. Since 1885 he has expended nearly two millions of dollars on a music-hall, library, and art gallery at Pittsburgh and Alleghany City, Pa. A large music-hall in 1890 was built in New York through his generosity, at a cost of $1,125,000. Edinburgh has also received $250,000 from him for a free library; and other libraries have been established by him at Braddock, Pa., and elsewhere. His latest benefaction is the gift of $50,000 for a public library at Ayr. He has frequently contributed to periodicals on the labour question and similar economic topics, and has published in book form "An American Four-in-Hand in Britain," 1883; "Round the World," 1884; and "Triumphant Democracy," 1886 (new edition 1893), besides several pamphlets.

CAROLUS-DURAN. See DURAND, CHARLES AUGUSTE EMILE.

CARON, Hon. Sir Joseph Philippe René Adolphe, Canadian statesman, was born in the city of Quebec Dec. 24, 1843. He was educated in the seminary there, and graduated B.C.L. at McGill University in 1865. He was called to the Bar soon after, and for some years devoted himself to his profession, and was created a Q.C. by the Marquis of Lorne in 1879. He sat in the House of Commons for the county of Quebec from March 1873 to 1891, when he was returned for Rimonski. At the General Election of 1896 he was elected for Three Rivers and St. Maurice. He entered Sir John Macdonald's government as Minister of Militia Nov. 9, 1880, and was continued in that office under Sir John Abbott until Jan. 25, 1892, when he became Postmaster-General. He remained at the head of the Post Office Department under Sir John Thompson and Sir Mackenzie Bowell, and retired from office with the latter April 27, 1896. For his services while at the head of the Militia Department during the Riel rebellion in 1885 he was created a K.C.M.G.

CARPENTER, George Alfred, M.D. London, and M.R.C.P., was born in 1859. He is the son of the late John William Carpenter, M.D., St. Andrews, and nephew of that distinguished pioneer in and exponent of hygiene, the late Alfred Carpenter, M.D., of Croydon. He was educated at Epsom College and at King's College, London, matriculating at the London University in 1879. The following year he entered as a student at St. Thomas's Hospital, and during a very successful career he obtained many prizes.

He became a Member of the Royal College of Surgeons of England in 1885, and graduated M.B. of London University in 1886, proceeding M.D. in 1890, his thesis being "Tuberculosis of the Choroid," a subject to which he has given much attention. In November 1885 he was appointed Registrar and Pathologist to the Evelina Hospital for Sick Children, and some two years later Resident Medical Officer, a post which he held until his appointment on the full staff of the Hospital as Physician to out-patients in January 1889. During his connection with the Evelina Hospital as a junior Dr. Carpenter entered as a student at Guy's Hospital. Formerly he was Deputy Medical Superintendent of the Coppice Lunatic Hospital, Nottingham, and is now Medical Officer of Health for Beckenham, Kent. Dr. Carpenter is a frequent contributor to medical literature in this country and America. The following papers on various subjects are a few of the more important which have come from his pen: "Cases of Hereditary Ataxia," 1888; "Craniotabes in Young Children: a Record of 100 Cases," 1889; "Tubercular Peritonitis," 1891; "Congenital Syphilis," "Impetigo Gangrenosa, with Tuberculosis of the Lungs," 1894; "Fibroid Disease of the Heart in an Infant," "Double Optic Neuritis," "On the Value of Rectal Exploration as an Aid to Diagnosis in Children's Diseases," 1896; "On Infant Feeding," 1898. A separate work on "Congenital Affections of the Heart" appeared in 1894. Dr. Carpenter is also the author of the fifteenth edition of Chavasse's "Advice to a Mother," which, with but few and trifling exceptions, has been re-written by him. It is a work which has been translated into most of the European and Asiatic languages. Dr. Carpenter is also the editor of Pediatrics, the well-known medical journal.

CARPENTER, The Right Rev. William Boyd, D.D., D.C.L., Bishop of Ripon, born March 26, 1841, was educated at St. Catherine's College, Cambridge (B.A. 1864, M.A. 1867). He is the son of the Rev. Henry Carpenter, Incumbent of St. Michael's, Liverpool, and of Hester, daughter of Archibald Boyd, Londonderry, Ireland. After holding various curacies he was, in 1870, appointed Vicar of St. James's, Holloway, where he remained until, in 1879, he became Vicar of Christ Church, Lancaster Gate, W. He was Select Preacher at Cambridge in 1875 and 1877; Hulsean Lecturer at Cambridge, 1878; Honorary Chaplain to the Queen, 1878; Select Preacher at Oxford in 1882; Bampton Lecturer, 1887; and received from the University of Oxford an honorary

D.C.L. in 1889. In 1882 he was appointed to a vacant canonry at Windsor. On the death of the late Dr. Bickersteth he was, in 1884, consecrated Bishop of Ripon. He presided over the Church Congress held at Wakefield in 1886, and at Bradford in 1898; and in 1887 he was selected by the House of Commons to preach the Jubilee Sermon at St. Margaret's, Westminster. He is the author of "Thoughts on Prayer," 1871; "Narcissus"; "Heart Healing"; "The Witness of the Heart to Christ" (Hulsean Lectures), 1879; and a Commentary on Revelation in the same year; "Truth in Tale," "Permanent Elements of Religion" (Bampton Lectures), 1889; "Lectures on Preaching," "Christian Reunion," and the "Great Character of Christ," 1895, &c. Addresses: The Palace, Ripon; 71 Carlisle Place, S.W.; and Athenæum.

CARR, Joseph William Comyns, was born in 1849. In 1870 he matriculated at the London University, and afterwards passed in the honours division of the first examination for the degree of Bachelor of Laws. He became a student of the Inner Temple in 1869, and was called to the Bar in 1872, having gained a studentship in Roman and International Law at the Inns of Court. Mr. Comyns Carr then joined the Northern Circuit, but shortly afterwards ceased to practise at the Bar, and devoted himself to literature and journalism. From 1870 to 1880 he was a constant contributor to the principal literary reviews and magazines. Writing especially upon subjects connected with art, he held for some years the post of art critic on the Pall Mall Gazette, and in 1875 he accepted the English editorship of L'Art. He was also associated with Sir Coutts-Lindsay in the establishment of the Grosvenor Gallery, and was one of the directors of that institution. His works on art include "Drawings by the Old Masters," 1877; "The Abbey Church of St. Albans," 1878; "Examples of Contemporary Art," 1878; "Essays on Art," "Art in Provincial France," 1883; and "Papers on Art," 1884. Mr. Carr has also written for the stage. In 1882 he produced a dramatised version of Mr. Hardy's novel, "Far from the Madding Crowd"; and in 1884 he collaborated with the late Hugh Conway in the drama of "Called Back," founded upon the popular story of that name. "King Arthur," acted at the Lyceum in 1895, was from his pen. Together with Mr. Haddon Chambers, Mr. Comyns Carr wrote "In the Days of the Duke," acted at the Adelphi in 1897, and in 1898 he was one of the collaborators in the musical play, "The Beauty Stone," produced at the Savoy. Address: 18 Eldon Road, Kensington.

CARR GLYN. See GLYN, THE RIGHT REV. HON. EDWARD CARR.

CARRINGTON, Earl, The Right Hon. Sir Charles Robert Wynn-Carrington, G.C.M.G., Joint Hereditary Lord Great Chamberlain of England, was born in 1843, and educated at Eton and Trinity College, Cambridge, where he took the degree of B.A. in 1863. Subsequently he entered the Royal Horse Guards, where he rose to the rank of Captain, and afterwards became Lieut.-Colonel of the 3rd Battalion of the Oxfordshire Light Infantry. From 1865 to 1868 he was M.P. for Wycombe. He was Captain of the Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms from 1881 to 1885; Governor of New South Wales from 1885 to 1890; Lord Chamberlain of the Queen's Household from 1892 to 1895; and is a member of the London County Council, in which he represents West St. Pancras as a Progressive. Lord Carrington was A.D.C. to the Prince of Wales on his visit to India in 1875-76, and has travelled in the United States and the Colonies. He was appointed Chairman of the Welsh Land Commission in 1893. In July 1895 Lord Carrington was granted the dignities of a Viscount and an Earl by the names, styles, and titles of Viscount Wendover of Chepping Wycombe, in the county of Buckingham, and Earl Carrington. In politics he is a strong Liberal. In July 1878 he married Cecilia, eldest daughter of Charles, 5th Lord Suffield. Addresses: Gwydyr Castle, Llanrwst, &c.; and 50 Grosvenor Street, W.

CARRINGTON, Major-General Sir Frederick, K.C.M.G., K.C.B., is the son of Edmund Carrington, Esq., of Cheltenham, where he was born on Aug. 23, 1844. He entered the army as Ensign in the 24th Foot, now known as the South Wales Borderers, and was promoted Lieutenant in 1867 and Captain in 1878. In the expedition to Griqualand, West South Africa, of 1875 he organised and commanded the Mounted Infantry. During the Kaffir War of 1877-81 he saw considerable war service as commander of the Frontier Light Horse, which was afterwards called "Carrington's Horse." He was present at the battle of Quintana, and the subsequent operations in the Transkei and in the Peri Bush, being mentioned in despatches. During 1878-79, as Commandant of the Transvaal Volunteer Force, he had charge of the advance guard and the left attacking party at the storming and taking of the stronghold of Sekukuni, a rebellious Kaffir chief. He was mentioned in despatches, and received the Brevet of Major and Lieutenant-Colonel, and also a C.M.G. In the Basutoland

Campaign of 1880-81 Sir Frederick Carrington commanded the Cape Mounted Rifles during the siege of Mafeteng by the Basutos, who were repulsed with great loss. Subsequently obtaining supreme command of the Colonial Forces in the further operations he gained many victories over the rebels, on one occasion being severely wounded. He was promoted to Colonel in 1884, and in the Bechuanaland Expedition of that year he commanded the 2nd Mounted Rifles. He was for several years employed on special service in South Africa and the Bechuanaland Border Police Force, and was promoted to Major-General in 1893 in consideration of these services. During the operations in Zululand of 1888 he commanded the native levies. In May 1895 Sir Frederick went to Gibraltar to take over the command of the Infantry Brigade. He married in 1897 Susan Margaret, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmes, Colesbourne. Address: College Lawn, Cheltenham.

CARRINGTON, Very Rev. Henry, M.A., Dean and Rector of Bocking, was born in 1814, and was educated at Charterhouse and Caius College, Cambridge, where he took his M.A. degree. He became Dean of Bocking in 1845, an appointment which he still holds. He has translated Victor Hugo's poems, and has also published a metrical translation of Thomas à Kempis. In 1842 Mr. Carrington married a daughter of Captain Haseldine Lyell, R.N., and has two daughters, one of whom, Evelyn Lilian Haseldine, is now Contessa Martinengo, and is the authoress of "Studies in Folk-lore," "Italian Characters," and "The Liberation of Italy." Address: Bocking Deanery, Braintree, Essex.

CARRUTHERS, William, F.R.S., F.L.S., was born at Moffat, Scotland, in 1830, and educated at the Academy there, and afterwards at the University and New College, Edinburgh. He entered the British Museum as assistant in the department of Botany in 1859, and succeeded Mr. J. J. Bennett as keeper of that department on his retirement in 1871. He has now retired. Mr. Carruthers has conducted many original investigations on living and fossil plants, and has published numerous memoirs on fossil botany in the journals and transactions of learned societies. He re-edited Lindley and Hutton's "Fossil Flora," and was afterwards engaged in preparing an account of the fossil plants of Britain, supplementary to that work. Address: 14 Vermont Road, Norwood, S.E.

CARSON, The Right Hon. Edward Henry, Q.C., M.P., is the second son of the late Edward Henry Carson, C.E., of

Dublin and Ireland, daughter of Captain Larnach, of Castle Ellen, co. Galway. He was born in 1854 and educated at Portlannington School and Trinity College, Dublin, of which he is M.A. He went to the Irish Bar, and in time became Member of the King's Inns, Dublin, and in 1899 Q.C. Irish. At the time that Mr. Arthur Balfour held the Irish Secretaryship and spoke of the necessity of resolute government for twenty years to come, Mr. Carson was noted in his counsel. In 1902 he was Solicitor-General for Ireland. In the same year he was returned to Parliament for the anti-Nationalist stronghold, Dublin University, and was re-elected in 1905. He has transferred the scene of his legal activity from Ireland to England, and in 1904 became a Q.C., having been called to the English Bar in 1893. Here he has won a very high reputation as a cross-examiner, having figured in many famous trials. In Parliament he sits as a Conservative, but in 1894 criticised Mr. Gerald Balfour's Irish Local Bill with great candour. He was sworn of the Irish Privy Council in 1906. Address: 39 Rutland Gate, S.W.

CARTER, Sir Gilbert Thomas, K.C.M.G., Governor of the Bahamas since 1897, was born in 1866, and educated at the Royal Naval School, Greenwich, whence he entered the Royal Navy in 1864. He was appointed Administrator of the Gambia Settlement in 1888, and from 1891 to 1897 he was Governor of Lagos. In 1893, he was created a K.C.M.G. Address: Government House, Nassau, Bahamas.

CARTER, Robert Brudenell, son of Thomas Carter, Major, Royal Marines, by his second wife Louisa, daughter of Richard Jeffreys of Basingstoke, in the county of Hants, Esq., was born on Oct. 2, 1828, at Little Wittenham, Berks, of which parish his grandfather, the Rev. Henry Carter, a younger brother of Elizabeth Carter, the translator of "Epictetus," and famous letter-writer, was Rector for more than fifty years. Educated at private schools and at the London Hospital, Mr. Carter became a Member of the Royal College of Surgeons of England in 1851, and a Licentiate of the Society of Apothecaries in 1852. He served during the Crimean War with the local rank of Staff-Surgeon, obtaining the English and Turkish Crimean medals. In 1864 he became a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons, and in 1868 settled in London to practise as an ophthalmic specialist. He was appointed Surgeon to the Royal South London Ophthalmic Hospital in 1869, Ophthalmic Surgeon to St. George's Hospital in 1870 (and retired as Consulting Ophthalmic Surgeon in 1893, Ophthalmic Surgeon to the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Consulting Surgeon to the Shropshire Eye, Ear, and Throat Hospital, and to the Ophthalmic Hospital of the Order of St. John at Jerusalem. He is a Member representing the Society of Apothecaries of the General Medical Council; has been Officer, Lecturer, Lecturer, and President of the Medical Society of London; Honorary Professor of Pathology and Surgery to the Royal College of Surgeons; a Vice-President of the Clinical Society; and besides membership of the other medical societies of London, is a Corresponding Member of the Medicino-Chirurgica Society of Edinburgh, and a Foreign Associate of the French Society of Hygiene. He is a Knight of Grace of the Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem in England. He has written a large number of books and essays on medical, ophthalmological, and educational subjects, the principal being: "The Pathology and Treatment of Hysteria," 1853; "The Influence of Education and Training in preventing Diseases of the Nervous System," 1855; "On the Artificial Production of Stupidity in Schools," 1857; "A Practical Treatise on Diseases of the Eye," 1875; "Eyesight, Good and Bad," 1879; "Lectures on Cataract," 1884; the articles on Diseases of the Eye in Quain's "Dictionary of Medicine," and in Heath's "Dictionary of Surgery"; and the article on Medical Ophthalmology in Allbutt's "System of Medicine." Addresses: 31 Harley Street, W.; "Kenilworth," Clapham Common, S.W.; and Athenæum.

CARTWRIGHT, The Right Hon. Sir Richard John, K.C.M.G., Canadian statesman, was born at Kingston, Dec. 4, 1835. He was educated at his native city and at Trinity College, Dublin, and entered the Canadian Parliament as a Conservative in 1863, but in 1870 left that party, and has since been one of the Liberal leaders of the Dominion. In 1873 he was made Minister of Finance in the Mackenzie Government, an office he retained until the general defeat of the Liberals in 1878. In July 1896 he became Minister of Trade and Commerce in Sir Wilfred Laurier's Government, and during Mr. Laurier's absence from Canada in 1897, he was temporary leader of the Government in the House of Commons. He is now Member for Central Huron. In 1879 he was created a Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George and G.C.M.G. in 1897. In 1859 he married Frances, daughter of Colonel Alexander Law, of the East India Company's Service. Address: Kingston, Canada, &c.

CARYSFORT, Earl of, William Proby, K.P., J.P., born at Glenart Castle, co. Wicklow, in 1836, succeeded his brother as 5th Earl in 1872. He was educated at Eton and Trinity College, Cambridge (M.A.), and is Lord-Lieutenant of the county of Wicklow. He is the possessor of some celebrated pictures by Sir Joshua Reynolds, Hobbema, Gerard Dow, Franz Hals, Landseer, Romney, &c., most of which are kept at Elton Hall, Peterborough; also of an extensive library containing several Carlton Bibles and a Prayer-book of Henry VIII. He was married in 1860 to Charlotte, eldest daughter of the Rev. Boothby Heathcote, of Friday Hill, Chingford, Essex. Addresses: 10 Hereford Gardens, Park Lane, W.; and Elton Hall, Peterborough.

CASATI, Gaetano, is the son of a doctor at Monza, where he was born in 1838. He studied at Monza, Milan, and Pavia, devoting himself more especially to mathematics. When one-and-twenty, inspired by the youthful ardour of those days for the independence of Italy, he became a soldier in Piedmont, joining the corps of Bersagliere. He obtained advancement, and in 1867 was elevated to the rank of captain. But service in the army did not offer him sufficient scope for his energy. He set his mind on becoming an African explorer, and to this end gave in his resignation in 1879. Regarded as a man of great promise and capacity, he was commissioned by the Società d'Esplorazione Commerciale d'Africa to proceed to that country at their expense, and he sailed from Genoa on Dec. 24, 1879. He went by way of Suakim and Berber to Khartoum, where he arrived about the middle of May 1880, his immediate object being to reach the Bahr-el-Ghazel, and there see his fellow-countryman, Gessi Pacha, then governor of that particular region. In this he succeeded, and the meeting of the two was of a touching character. Gessi soon afterwards nursed Casati through a dangerous fever, paying him the most devoted attention, and refusing to leave him until he was thoroughly restored to health. Then, however, Gessi moved on to Khartoum, intending to return to Europe, though he got no farther than Suez, where he died. After Gessi's departure Casati had another severe attack of fever, this time of prolonged duration, but he was able, on Oct. 14, 1880, to proceed to Rumbeck. After this nothing was heard about him by his friends until a letter reached them from Tangasi, dated Dec. 29, 1881, stating that he had been kept a prisoner by a certain chief, Azanga by name, and had only succeeded in making his escape on the 7th of that month.

Getting on the march again in 1881, Casati made his way to the Niam-Niam territory, which lies immediately to the west of what was once Emin Pacha's province, and has since been visited and described by George Schweinfurth. In a letter dated April 13, 1883, Casati describes his cordial reception by Emin Pacha at Lado, where he saw also Junker, the Russian explorer. Emin Pacha, he says, treated him with "rare liberality and generosity." At that time, however, the Mahdi was assuming a very threatening attitude, and thus the three Europeans found themselves "united but shut in" in this extreme corner of the Egyptian possessions. Two expeditions were organised to effect their rescue, one conducted by Dr. Fischer, which got as far as the east of Victoria Nyanza, and then had to return for want of the requisite goods for barter; and the other led by Dr. Lenz, who proceeded by way of the Congo, but also was obliged to abandon his attempt, leaving, as we all know, the real honours of the rescue to be obtained by Stanley. At the request of Emin Pacha he went to live as "resident" in the territory of King Kappa Rega, son of M'tesa, of Unyoro. In this capacity part of his duty was to play the rôle of Emin's postmaster. Emin forwarded to him all his correspondence for Europe, and he had to devise the means as best he could by which it was to be sent to the coast. At first Casati was well treated by the king; but, after the lapse of about twenty months, Kappa Rega changed his humour, and condemned him to death, together with an Arab merchant named Biri, who, Casati heard, was actually killed. Casati, however, though at first tied with cords round his neck, arms, and legs, managed to escape with some of his men. Chased from place to place, he got over sufficient ground during the night to reach at last the Albert Nyanza, where lay his sole hope of safety, though even then he ran the risk of being caught by a certain chief in that region who, as he heard, had received orders from the king to capture and murder him. Happily they found a boat, in which one of the men went off to tell Emin Pacha what had happened. Two days afterwards Emin Pacha arrived in his steamer, and rescued Casati from his perilous situation. It was high time. For three days Casati had not had a morsel of food to eat. "I am now in safety, it is true," wrote he from the Albert Nyanza on March 25, 1888, "but I am oppressed with grief at the loss of all my notes. The work of so many years has vanished like smoke!" But Casati had previously sent home sufficient information to show that he had already done valuable service to the cause of African exploration.

CASHEL, Bishop of. See DAY, THE RIGHT REV. MAURICE FITZGERALD.

CASIMIR-PERIER, Jean Paul Pierre, ex-President of the French Republic, is the son and grandson of statesmen, his father, Auguste Casimir-Perier, the diplomatist, having been Minister of the Interior in 1871, whilst his grandfather was leader of the Opposition on the accession of Louis-Philippe, and afterwards Premier. The ex-President was born on Nov. 8, 1847. After a brilliant career as a student of literature and history he received the University degree of licencié ès lettres, and in the Franco-Prussian War joined the Mobs of the Aube who were summoned to Paris, where during the siege he behaved with such gallantry as to be mentioned in an Order of the Day, and afterwards to receive the decoration of the Legion of Honour. When his father joined the first Republican Cabinet of M. Thiers, he became chef du cabinet under him at the Ministry of the Interior. In order to open to him a political career his father resigned his position as Councillor-General of the Aube in April 1874, and introduced him to the electors of Nogent-sur-Seine, under the sanction of the Perier political tradition. He was elected Deputy without opposition on July 18. The same year he conducted a brisk electoral campaign in his department in support of the Republican candidature of General Saussier. At the general elections of February 1878, he was elected unopposed for Nogent-sur-Seine. His profession of faith was resolutely Republican, and he joined the Left Centre and the Republican Left in the Chamber of Deputies, voting constantly with the majority supported by these groups. After the crisis of May 1877, he was one of the 363 deputies who refused to pass a vote of confidence in the Broglie Ministry. At the succeeding elections he was returned by a large majority over the Bonapartist candidate, M. Walkenaer, and when in December a purely Republican Cabinet was formed he was appointed, under M. Bordoux, Under-Secretary of State at the Ministry of Public Instruction. He retained this post until the Cabinet Dufaure went out of office in January 1879. Three months later he abandoned the Left Centre for the Republican Left. Re-elected for Nogent-sur-Seine in August 1881, he joined the Union Républicaine. In February 1883, he retired from the Chamber on the law being passed to exclude members of French royal families from public employment. In this he followed family tradition, and is in consequence still regarded as Orleanist in tendency. In the following March he consented to re-enter Parliament, and on Oct. 17, 1883, was appointed Under-Secretary of State at the Ministry of War, and remained there till his superior Minister, General Campanan, retired in January 1885. In the October elections of the same year he was returned by a large majority for the Aube. In September 1889 he was again elected for Nogent-sur-Seine. In each successive Parliament M. Casimir-Perier has enjoyed great personal influence among the Republican majority. In 1890 he was elected Vice-President of the Chamber and President of the Budget Committee. In the summer of 1894 he was elected President of the French Republic, immediately after the assassination of the late President Carnot. His political tradition was not so purely revolutionary as that of the Carnots, but his election took place at a crisis in the affairs of France when an essentially strong and courageous man was needed at the head of the State. But in Casimir-Perier the French Chambers, and, indeed, the French people thought they had at last found a "strong man" who would defend them against the combined assaults of predatory radicalism and of a form of revolutionary socialism inimical to all social order. It is not too much to say that the election of M. Casimir-Perier was hailed by all Europe as an indication of the determination of the French nation to combat the destructive agencies which threatened the national security. Hence, Casimir-Perier became the mark of the motley crowd of maligners who were the recognised apostles of social disorder. The President was traduced and openly insulted in every possible manner, and so persistent did these disgraceful tactics become that the Government at last took action, and prosecuted M. Girault-Richard, a writer of small repute, who had published libels on Casimir-Perier, which were described as nothing less than "atrocious." Girault-Richard was sentenced to six months' imprisonment; and one of the advanced Radical arrondissements of Paris, thinking the affair an excellent opportunity for placing on record their absolute indifference to the critical issues at stake, elected the scribe as a Deputy, and the Socialists, carrying the campaign on to a further point, demanded that Girault-Richard should be "given to the Chamber"—that is, released. Although the release by Napoleon III. of M. Rochefort, while under sentence for a political offence, provided a precedent for this proposed action, the Government determinedly refused the Socialist demand, and after a debate, which was not so violent as was anticipated, the Chamber supported the Government by 309 votes to 219. Naturally, immense interest was taken in this vote, especially as it was whispered that the President would consider an adverse vote as personal to himself. Meanwhile, however, serious differences began to arise between M. Casimir-Perier and his supporters. Mention has already been made of the fact that his election to the Presidency was hailed by France, and by Moderate Europe as well, as a supreme triumph of Moderate ideas. Considerable dissatisfaction was aroused, therefore, when the notion gained currency that the President was not always inclined to present so bold a front to the advances of the Radicals as had been expected. This feeling came to a head on the election of a President of the Chamber. The Radical leader himself, M. Brisson, ran for the chair, and it was felt that his defeat could be assured only by the counter-nomination of a Minister. But Casimir-Perier would not allow the nomination to be made. He was willing to stand against M. Brisson for the chief place in the State, but he would not permit one of his Ministers to stand against him for the chief place in the Chamber. Consequently the election of M. Brisson resulted. During the week following, the Government were defeated on a resolution which they had refused to endorse, and M. Dupuy and his colleagues, justly regarding this as a vote of "No confidence," immediately left the Chamber, and tendered their resignations. To the astonishment of the Ministry, and, indeed, of the whole nation, the President did not accept the resignations, but informed the Premier that he must retain power for a time, since he (Casimir-Perier) had determined to resign the Presidential Chair. M. Dupuy, suddenly confronted with a crisis of the utmost gravity, protested against the President's step, but all to no purpose. M. Casimir-Perier persisted in his intention; and in a few hours his formal letter of resignation was read in both Chambers. In this document, which was received in the Chamber with comparative silence, but in the Senate with jeering interruptions, the President said that "the attempt to mislead public opinion has succeeded"; that his twenty years of public life had not convinced Republicans of the sincerity and ardour of his political faith; that for six months a campaign of insult had been waged against him, as well as against Parliament and the Magistracy; that he could not acknowledge it to be his duty to bear such insult, and that he consequently laid down his functions. "Perhaps in doing so I shall have marked out the path of duty to those who are solicitous for the dignity of power and the good name of France in the world." It is difficult to decide how far Casimir-Perier

was justified in suddenly leaving the helm of State. At the time, the best informed English opinion averred that the action was condemned by all Europe. However, there was but one course for the French Parliament to adopt, and his resignation was accepted. During the Zola trial of 1898, it became known that the real reason for his resignation was the fact that his Cabinet concealed material facts of their policy from him, so that he nearly found himself in a serious quarrel with Germany, owing to his ignorance of the Dreyfus scandal. It was even said that private documents on the Dreyfus affair from the German Ambassador in Paris to his Emperor had been abstracted and photographed en route. In order to dissociate himself from such acts, and prevent an immediate declaration of war, M. Casimir-Perier retired from the Presidency and from political life. Addresses: 23 Rue Nitot, Paris; and Château de Pout-sur-Seine, Aube.

CASSAGNAC, Granier de. See GRANIER DE CASSAGNAC, PAUL DE.

CASTELAR, Emilio, for long a Spanish statesman, and one of the most eloquent orators of the age, was born at Cadiz on Sept. 8, 1832. His father was a mercantile man and a strong Liberal, but died when his son was only seven. Emilio was brought up at Elda, a village not very far from the famous Elche, sometimes called Elche of the Palms. From Elche he was sent to Alicante with the object of further pursuing his studies in that provincial capital. He remained at Alicante till he was sixteen years of age, a studious lad, evincing little, if any, inclination for the customary recreations of his fellow-students. However, he is said to have been at this time passionately attached to the study of history, with a sustained enthusiasm for the classics, and evidencing early and brilliant promise of literary power and of a high and poetic imagination. In October 1848 he migrated to Madrid, the city destined to be the scene of his greatest achievements. For six years he worked steadily on, attracting considerable attention by reason of his contributions to newspapers and reviews. Suddenly, in September 1854, he electrified Madrid and the country by a speech at a great electoral meeting in the capital. A vast concourse, tired and listless owing to much platform declamation, was unexpectedly thrilled in a few minutes by young Castelar's oration, and, in an hour, the hardly known youthful democrat had become a celebrity. Hundreds of thousands of copies of his address were scattered throughout the country, and the Liberal papers, conscious of the advent of a new champion, did their utmost to obtain his co-operation. A few weeks later, he further increased his widening reputation by several speeches made in the defence of various journals which had been prosecuted for political articles. The ideas which he preached in these early days have crystallised into a philosophy of life, for, in his political ideals, Castelar has scarcely changed. These theories of the State and its functions gained for him a notoriety almost unexampled in one so young, nevertheless carrying with it recognition and encouragement in high quarters. He was appointed Professor of History and Philosophy in the University of Madrid; but, unlike many similarly favoured, this position did not shut his mouth, and in 1866 he took a prominent part in the revolutionary movement which was finally crushed by Serrano. On this occasion he was condemned to death, but he made good his escape, and sought refuge first at Geneva and afterwards in France. When the revolution broke out in September 1868, he returned to his native country, and was one of the most energetic leaders of the Republican movement. He exerted himself to the utmost in order to bring about the establishment of a Republic, but at the general election for the Constituent Cortes in February 1869, the Republicans succeeded in returning only a small proportion of their candidates, among whom, however, was Señor Castelar. In the discussions respecting the new constitution of Spain, Señor Castelar advocated, but unsuccessfully, the principle of Republican institutions. In June 1869 he vigorously opposed the project of a regency, and he was also concerned in the Republican insurrections which occurred in October of that year. In the government chosen by the Cortes after the abdication of King Amadeo, Señor Castelar was Minister of Foreign Affairs. On Aug. 24, 1873, he was elected President of the Cortes by 135 votes against 73, but he vacated that post on September 6, when he was nominated President of the Executive Power. His first measure was the prorogation of the Cortes and the assumption of dictatorial power. He next took energetic, but ineffectual, measures to suppress the Carlist insurrection, and despatched the Minister of War in person to Cuba to protect Spanish interests in that island. When, however, the Cortes re-assembled on Jan. 2, 1874, it refused by 120 votes against 100, to pass a vote of confidence in President Castelar, who resigned. Thereupon General Pavia, as Captain-General of Madrid, forcibly dissolved the Cortes, and appointed a provisional government, with Marshal Serrano at its head. Soon after the pronunciamiento in favour of Alfonso XII., Señor Castelar quitted Madrid and proceeded to Geneva, January 1875. While in that city, being disgusted at the educational decree promulgated by the Spanish Government, he resigned the Chair of History in the University of Madrid, March 6, 1875. Subsequently he returned to Spain, and succeeded, though not without considerable difficulty, in obtaining a seat in the Cortes as Deputy for Madrid, at the elections of January 1876. Since that time he has spoken frequently, and always with effect; but he has been a politician without a party, too advanced for Sagasta and too moderate for the Zorrillistas. Señor Castelar has never formally renounced his Republican convictions, but he came to recognise that the existing monarchical régime had realised, except in so far as concerned the form of government, every article of his old programme, bestowing on the country order and peace, and no small share of material prosperity. Accordingly, in 1893, he retired from public life, and advised his adherents to join the Liberal party, although he himself was not prepared to do so. His many friends naturally concluded that his brilliant career had closed, but in May 1898, during the war with America, Castelar wrote an article in a French magazine reproaching the Queen-Regent with unjustifiably interfering in political affairs, drawing a parallel between the then position of her Majesty and that of Marie Antoinette on the eve of the French Revolution. The article in question raised a storm of indignation in Spanish political circles, but scarcely outside, since the Queen-Regent, at the time, was becoming very unpopular with the people. One of the more chivalrous Republican journals said that it was not for the Queen-Regent, wounded as woman, mother, and queen, that men with human feelings felt most pity; nor was it for Spain, in the hour of supreme danger, to receive from him who was once her favourite son no better assistance than those miserable suggestions in the article referred to; it was for Don Emilio Castelar, who might be one of the greatest figures of this century, and who seemed obstinately resolved to prevent his glory from surviving him. Some biting references to Señor Castelar were made in the Contemporary Review for June 1898, in an article by Dr. E. J. Dillon on "The Ruin of Spain." Señor Castelar has been a voluminous writer, and the following are included amongst his collected works: "Lucan: his Life, his Genius, his Poems"; "A History of Civilization during the First Five Centuries of Christianity"; "Portraits of European Celebrities (Semblanzas)"; "Sou-of Italy"; "History of the Rean Movement in Europe"; "The ous Revolution"; "Historical Studies Middle Ages"; "The History of a"; "Historical Gallery of Celebrated n"; "The Formula of Progress"; tical and Social Questions"; "The m of the Slave"; "Letters on ean Politics"; "Tragedies of His-"; "Contemporary Russia," 1881; Life of Lord Byron," and numberless is, essays, and contributions to con- rary literary, philosophical, political, istorical thought. It is being freely ered among public men in Spain that Castelar is beginning to feel some mental strain after so many years l. His friends—and they are to be in all grades and places—thus seek out for the revolutionary character latest writings during the Hispano-can War.

CASTLETOWN, Lord, Bernard
u Barnaby FitzPatrick, 2nd
 Castletown, of Upper Ossory, was in London on July 29, 1849, and ted at Eton and Brasenose College, i, graduating, after obtaining a place ss II. of the Law and Modern History l(B.A.) He went through the Franco-can campaign as assistant under the ross Society, and was present in Paris ; the earlier days of the Commune. 1871 to 1875 he served in the 1st uards, and was with the Household y in the Egyptian Campaign of gaining the medal and clasp after Kebir. He has travelled extensively land, the little-known parts of Asia , the Rocky Mountains, and British America. He sat in Parliament ree years as Conservative member ortarlington (1880-83), and took a ent part in the discussion of Irish ons. Since his accession to the of Lords his political attitude has been that of a "Moderate." In he was appointed Chairman of the w Drainage Royal Commission, and a D.L. and J.P. for Queen's County, d. He married in 1875 Ursula, only of Viscount Doneraile. Address : alle Court, Doneraile, Ireland, &c.

TES, Arthur, F.R.I.B.A., F.S.I., &c., et, born in London, April 29, 1829, ucated at King's College School, ecame a pupil of Sydney Smirke.
 In 1870 he succeeded Sir James thorne as Architect to the Land es of the Crown in London, the Commissioners of her Majesty's and Forests. He succeeded Sydney , R.A., as Surveyor to the Honourable Society of the Inner Temple, and on retiring from practice at the end of 1897 resigned these and other appointments. For some years he was Hon. Secretary to, and is now a Vice-President of, the Society of Biblical Archaeology. He was Hon. Secretary to the Architectural Publication Society, and brought "The Dictionary of Architecture" to a successful termination. He has been (1887-91) a Vice-President of the Royal Institute of British Architects, and is Chairman of "The Tribunal of Appeal" constituted under the London Building Act, 1894.

CAUSTON, Richard Knight, M.P., son of the late Sir J. Causton, was born in 1843. He represented Colchester in the House of Commons from 1880 to 1885, and since 1895 has been Liberal member for West Southwark. He was Master of the Skinners' Company during the year 1877-78, and during the last administration was a Junior Lord of the Treasury from 1892 to 1895. He is Director of the firm of Sir Joseph Causton & Sons, Limited, a Commissioner of Lieutenancy for London, Chairman of the London Liberal and Radical Union, and a member of the Executive Committee of the London Chamber of Commerce. He was married in 1871 to Selina Mary, eldest daughter of the late Sir T. Chambers. Address: 12 Devonshire Place, W.

CAVAIGNAC, Jacques Marie
Eugène Godefroy, French Minister of War, was born May 22, 1853, and is the son of General Eugène Cavaignac, who was the Chief of the State in 1848, and the principal rival of Louis Napoleon for the Presidency. The family, like that of the Carnots and Casimir-Periers, is a famous one in the history of French Republicanism, for the first well-known Cavaignac was a Member of the Convention, and voted for the death of Louis XVI. The subject of our biography was a distinguished scholar at the Lycée Louis le Grand, and in 1867 had taken many prizes. The Prince Imperial, then twelve years old, was to distribute them, but young Cavaignac refused to accept his from the hands of the son of his father's successful rival, who had basely betrayed the Republic. During the Franco-Prussian War he volunteered, and gained the Military Medal for his bravery at Avron. In 1872 he entered the École Polytechnique, and obtained a post as engineer at Angoulême. He returned to Paris to study law, and in 1881 obtained a post in the Conseil d'État. He was elected to the Chamber in 1882 for Saint-Calais, and sat with the Republicans. In 1885 he became Under-Secretary of War under General Campenon in the Brisson Cabinet, and in 1891 he was Minister of Marine. During the Panama scandals in 1890 he proposed a famous resolution for the cleansing of political life. At the fall of the Méline Cabinet in June 1898 he was chosen by M. Brisson for the Ministry of War, and he incurred some blame by continuing General Billot's (q.v.) policy with regard to the Dreyfus affair. He made a speech in the Chamber in which he declared his belief in Dreyfus' guilt, and it was posted up throughout France. However, on examining the dossier he discovered a forged document by Colonel Henry, which led to that officer's suicide. On M. Brisson declaring a new trial necessary, he declared his continued belief in the justice of the original sentence, and sooner than give way he resigned in the early days of September 1898. He is looked upon as one of those who may one day be called to the Presidency, unless he suffer his father's fate.

CAVAN, Earl of, The Right Hon. Frederick Edward Gould Lambart, K.P., J.P., was born in 1839, and succeeded his father as 9th Earl in 1887. He was educated at Harrow, and entering the navy, he was present as a Lieutenant at the siege of Sebastopol in 1854, and at the bombardment of Canton in 1856. He sat in the House of Commons as member for the East Division of Somerset from 1885 to 1892, and held office as Vice-Chamberlain in 1886. He is the author of "With Yacht, Camera, and Cycle in the Mediterranean"; "With Yacht and Camera in Eastern Waters." Lord Cavan is the owner of the yacht Roseneath, some of whose cruises have been published; and is the President of the Lawn Tennis Association of England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales. He was married in 1863 to Mary, daughter of the Rev. John Olive, Rector of Ayot St. Lawrence, Herts. Address: Wheathampstead House, Wheathampstead.

CAVENDISH. See JONES, HENRY.

CECIL, Lord Eustace Brownlow Henry, second surviving son of the 2nd Marquis of Salisbury, by his first wife, was born in London in 1834, and educated at Harrow and Sandhurst. He entered the army in 1851, served in the Crimea, and retired as Captain and Lieutenant-Colonel, Coldstream Guards, in 1863. He represented South Essex in the House of Commons, in the Conservative interest, from July 1865 to December 1868, and West Essex from 1868 until 1885. In February 1875 he was appointed Surveyor-General of Ordnance, which post he retained until the resignation of his party in 1880. Lord Eustace Cecil is the author of "Impressions of Life at Home and Abroad," 1865. He is a magistrate for Middlesex, Essex, and Dorset, and a county alderman of Dorset. Addresses: 111 Eaton Square, S.W.; and Lytchett Heath, Poole.

CENTURION. See BOWER, SIR GRAHAM JOHN.

CESNOLA, Count, Luigi Palma di, LL.D., archæologist, was born at Rivarolo, near Turin, Italy, June 29, 1832. He received a collegiate education, after which he was placed in a seminary with a view to his entering the priesthood. Preferring, however, a more active life, he left the seminary to enter the Sardinian army on the outbreak of the war with Austria in 1848. In February 1849 he was promoted to a Lieutenancy on the battle-field for bravery. On the close of the war, he was ordered to the Royal Military Academy at Cherasco (near Turin), from which he graduated in 1851. After remaining in the army several years, he went to New York in 1860, and in 1861 was made a Lieutenant-Colonel in the Volunteer service of the U. S. army, and subsequently Colonel of the 4th New York Cavalry, and served throughout the war, commanding a brigade of cavalry much of the time. At Aldie, Va., June 17, 1863, he was presented by General Kilpatrick with his own sword for heroic conduct on the battle-field, and at the next charge he was severely wounded, made a prisoner of war, and was confined in Libby Prison for over nine months. At the close of the Civil War he was appointed American Consul at Cyprus, where he remained until the Consulate was abolished (1865-77). It was while he occupied that position that he made the discovery of antiquities with which his name is now associated. He has been made an honorary member of many scientific and literary societies, both in Europe and in America, and the kings of Italy and Bavaria have bestowed knightly orders upon him. Both Columbia and Princeton Colleges conferred on him the degree of LL.D. In 1873 the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York secured by purchase the Cypriote antiquities collected up to that date, and Cesnola was granted an extended leave of absence to visit New York and arrange and classify them. Returning to Cyprus in 1873, he made further discoveries and collections, which also were secured to the Metropolitan Museum. In 1877 he settled permanently in New York. In 1878 he was made a Trustee of the Museum, and Secretary of the Board of Trustees. In 1879, when the museum was removed to Central Park, he was appointed Director of it. Since that day his time has been chiefly took office under Lord Salisbury as Colonial Secretary, and has proved a remarkably successful Minister. In his first year of office he had trouble with Prempeh, King of Ashanti, who was endeavouring to evade the Treaty of 1874. Mr. Chamberlain refused to meet the ambassadors sent to England by Prempeh, and decided to despatch a punitive expedition to the Gold Coast. Sir Francis Scott was appointed in charge, and by forced marches soon reached Kumassi. The king was dethroned and a British resident installed. There was no bloodshed, and the excellent medical arrangements enabled the force successfully to withstand the pestilential climate. Prince Henry of Battenberg, however, who was accompanying the expedition as a volunteer, had an attack of fever, and returned to the coast. He afterwards embarked on a cruiser for Madeira, and died on the way. In the autumn of 1896 serious trouble with the Transvaal was anticipated, owing to the closing of the Drifts by Mr. Kruger. Mr. Chamberlain promptly sent an ultimatum to the Boer President, and the Drifts were at once re-opened. The question of the Drifts proved to be only one of a long series of grievances of the English residents in the Transvaal, and agitation for constitutional reform increased in intensity during 1896, and culminated in the Jameson Raid in December of that year. As soon as the news of this incursion reached England, Mr. Chamberlain ordered the High Commissioner of South Africa publicly to repudiate Dr. Jameson's proceedings. At the same time he ordered a proclamation to be issued calling upon the British residents in Johannesburg to disarm, which at once placed them entirely in the hands of the Boers. Immediately after the battle of Krugersdorp, on receiving the rumour that Jameson and his fellow-prisoners were to be shot, Mr. Chamberlain wired to the Transvaal President, that he relied upon his generosity in the hour of victory. All the consequences of the raid were met by Mr. Chamberlain with unwavering spirit, and his able engineering at the Colonial Office averted a grave crisis. A congratulatory telegram by the German Emperor to Mr. Kruger did not improve matters, and much indignation was felt both in England and the Cape at Germany's interference. Mr. Chamberlain was subjected to a great deal of acrimonious criticism in the House, and also in certain sections of the press, as it was believed by some that he was implicated in the movement which led to the raid. Time has proved the absolute falsity of that opinion. In February he gave his view of the situation in the Transvaal, and explained the policy of the British Government in a despatch to Sir Hercules Robinson, which was simultaneously published in London, and for the publication of which before it had reached Pretoria Mr. Chamberlain was gravely rebuked by Mr. Kruger. In his despatch Mr. Chamberlain suggested local self-government, but to this the President would not agree. In Parliament the Jameson Raid came in for a full share of discussion, and the Colonial Secretary made a statement regarding the agitation in Johannesburg, the raid, and other matters. In July Mr. Chamberlain moved: "That a Select Committee be appointed to inquire into the origin and circumstances of the incursion into the Transvaal by an armed force, and into the administration of the British South Africa Company, and to report thereon." The Committee was appointed, and met under the chairmanship of Mr. Jackson on the day Parliament was prorogued, and it was decided to put off the business until the next session. Accordingly, early in 1897 the same Committee was re-appointed. During the proceedings Mr. Chamberlain elected to go into the witness chair. He gave evidence in which he said, "I desire to say in the most explicit manner that I did not then have, and that I never had, any knowledge or the slightest suspicion of anything in the nature of a hostile or armed invasion of the Transvaal." In the Report of the Committee it was stated that there was not the slightest evidence to show that any one in the Colonial Office had a foreknowledge of the raid. A debate took place in Parliament upon the report, which was not very favourably received, mainly owing to the fact that the Committee had not insisted upon the production of certain telegrams which had passed between Mr. Rhodes and his representative in London, Dr. Rutherford Harris, previous to the raid. These telegrams had been read by Mr. Chamberlain at an interview he had with Dr. Harris at the Colonial Office. In reply to a question in the House, Mr. Chamberlain said that he had perused the missing telegrams confidentially, but as far as he was concerned he had no objection whatever to their production and publication. With regard to Mr. Rhodes he said, that although a very great fault had been committed by him, there existed nothing against his personal character as a man of honour, and that the Government had no intention of punishing him. In the early part of 1897 Mr. Chamberlain took part in a debate upon Egyptian affairs, and made a vigorous reply to Mr. Morley, who strongly condemned the British advance in the Sudan. In the course of his speech he said, "All authorities agreed that to leave Egypt now, would mean that all the beneficent work which had arisen out of the British occupation would be undone." The Workmen's Compensation Act of 1897 was greatly indebted to Mr. Chamberlain's advocacy during its passage through the House. In June 1897 advantage was taken of the presence of the Premiers of the self-governing colonies in London during the Jubilee celebrations, to hold a conference for the discussion of the political and commercial relations between the mother-country and the colonies. Several meetings were held at the Colonial Office under the presidency of Mr. Chamberlain, to whom must be attributed much of the success of the conference. Upon the subject of Imperial Federation, Mr. Chamberlain made an important speech to the members of the Congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, in which he gave more direct countenance to proposals for a commercial union of the Empire than any of his predecessors in office. He found it necessary, however, to emphasise his declaration that the principle to be accepted, if we are to make any, even the slightest progress, is that within the different parts of the Empire protection must disappear, and that the duties must be revenue duties, and not protection duties in the sense of protecting the products of one part of the Empire against those of another part. Mr. Chamberlain is also very much in favour of an Anglo-American alliance. In October 1896 he was elected Lord Rector of Glasgow University, and is also a D.C.L. of Oxford, and LL.D. of Cambridge. Mr. Chamberlain has been three times married, his present wife being Mary, only daughter of W. C. Endicott, Secretary for War of the United States, and late Judge of the Supreme Court, New York. His eldest son is Mr. Austen Chamberlain (q.v.), Civil Lord of the Admiralty. Addresses: 40 Princes Gardens, S.W., and Highbury, Moor Green, Birmingham.

CHAMBERLAIN, Joseph Austen, M.P., and Civil Lord of Admiralty, is the eldest son of the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, and Harriet, daughter of the late Archibald Kenrick of Birmingham. He was born in 1863, and educated at Rugby, and Trinity College, Cambridge, where he took his M.A. degree in 1889. He also studied in Berlin and Paris. In 1892 he was returned to Parliament as a Liberal Unionist for Worcestershire East, and was re-elected in 1895, when he was appointed a Civil Lord of the Admiralty in July. Addresses: Highbury, Moor Green, Birmingham; and 40 Princes Gardens, S.W.

CHAMBERLAIN, General Sir Neville Bowles, G.C.B., G.C.S.I., the

third son of the late Sir Henry Chamberlain, Bart. (who was for some years Consul-General and Chargé d'Affaires in Brazil), born at Rio, Jan. 10, 1820, was appointed to the Indian Army in 1837. He served as a subaltern with much distinction in Afghanistan, and was wounded at Kandahar and at Ghuznee. In 1842 he was attached to the Governor-General's body-guards, and in 1843 appointed Deputy-Assistant Quartermaster-General to the Army. In 1846 he was appointed Military Secretary to the Governor of Bombay. In 1848 he was nominated by Lord Dalhousie one of his aides-de-camp, and commanded the 8th Irregular Cavalry, attached to the army in the Punjab. He was present at the battles of Chillianwallah and Gujerat in 1849. In 1855, having previously discharged some important civil duties as Military Secretary to the Chief Commissioner (Sir John Lawrence), he was placed in command of a force of irregular troops, which he retained until the breaking-out of the Indian Mutiny. On the death of Colonel Chester before Delhi, Colonel Chamberlain (then Brigadier-General) succeeded to the post of Adjutant-General of the Bengal Army, and was severely wounded in the sortie of July 18. He was nominated a C.B. in 1857, and in reward for his services in the Mutiny, was appointed aide-de-camp to the Queen. He afterwards gained distinction by his services against the hill-tribes, led the Umbeylah campaign, and has been wounded more frequently than any other officer in the service. He was made Major-General for distinguished service in 1864; was advanced to the rank of Lieutenant-General in May 1872; appointed Colonel of the Bengal Infantry in May 1874; a member of Council of the Governor of Madras in 1875; Commander-in-Chief of the Madras Army in December 1875; and General in 1877. In August 1878 he was appointed the head of the English special mission to Cabul. This mission was abruptly stopped by the refusal of the Ameer of Afghanistan's officer at Ali Musjid to permit it to advance (September 21). He was military member of the Council of the Governor-General of India. He retired in 1886. Address: Lordwood, Southampton.

CHAMBERS, Charles Haddon, dramatist, was born at Stanmore, Sydney, New South Wales, on April 22, 1860, and is son of John Ritchie Chambers of the New South Wales Civil Service, formerly of Ulster, and Frances, eldest daughter of William Kellet, Waterford, Ireland. He was educated at home, and at Marrickville and Fort Street Public Schools, Sydney. In 1875 he entered the Civil Service of his colony; in 1877 became stockrider in the bush; and in 1880 visited England and Ireland. In 1882 he came and settled in England, and took up journalism and authorship. He has written the following plays: "Captain Swift," Mr. Beerbohm Tree's part; "The Idler," one of Mr. Alexander's most successful rôles; "The Honourable Herbert"; "The Old Lady"; "John-a-Dreams"; and has collaborated in the authorship of "The Fatal Card," and "Boys Together." Address: Westgate.

CHAMPNEYS, Basil, architect, son of the late Dean of Lichfield, was born in 1842, and educated at Charterhouse, being elected Foundation Scholar and Gold Medallist in 1860, and at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he graduated in classical honours in 1864. He studied architecture under the late John Prichard, diocesan architect of Llandaff, and began practice in 1867. Amongst other works he has designed the following public buildings: at Cambridge the Divinity and Literary Schools, all the buildings of Newnham College, the Archaeological Museum, and All Saints' Memorial; at Oxford, the Indian Institute, the new buildings at New College, including the Robinson Memorial Tower, and Mansfield College; at Bedford, the Girls' Schools and new Grammar School buildings for the Harpur Trust; at Harrow, the new school buildings and Butler Museum; at Mill Hill College, Hendon, the new chapel; at Winchester, the Quincentenary Museum; and the Rylands Library in Manchester. He has designed the following churches: St. Luke's, Kentish Town; St. Peter-le-Bailey, Oxford; St. Mary Star of the Sea, Hastings; Havering-atte-Bowe, in Essex; Matfield, in Kent; Glascote, in Warwickshire; Stonefold and Laneside, in Lancashire; and Slindon, in Staffordshire. Mr. Champneys has carried out the restoration of Tatenhill, Tamworth, Wednesbury, and Alrewas, in Staffordshire; Bexley, in Kent; Upholland, in Lancashire; Chilcote, in Derbyshire; Okewood, in Surrey; St. Dunstan's, Stepney; St. Bride's, Fleet Street; St. Alphege, Greenwich; St. George's, Camberwell, and St. George the Martyr, Southwark, in the London district. He is also the designer of the Royal Palace Hotel, in Kensington. On the death of Mr. Crowther, he was appointed architect to the Cathedral of Manchester, for which he erected the new boundaries, reredos, Victoria West porch, &c. Among his domestic works are St. Bride's Vicarage, 70 Gunpowder Gardens, Haslebury, Bournemouth; Bannach Edge, Witley; the Grange and Cronborough Wood, Matfield. Mr. Champneys is the author of a work entitled, "A Quiet Corner of England," published in 1875. Add Hall Oak, Froggnal, Hampstead.

CHANDLER, Charles F M.D., Ph.D., LL.D., American, born at Lancaster, Massachusetts, 1836, studied at the Lawrence Scientific School of Harvard College, and after at the Universities of Göttingen and B receiving his degree of Ph.D. at G in 1856. In 1857 he was placed in of the chemical department of College, and in 1858 was appointed the chair of Chemistry in the New College of Pharmacy. In 1864 he made Professor of Analytical and Chemistry in the newly instituted of Mines connected with Columbia C New York, and on the reorganization the school in 1877 became Pro Chemistry both in the school and college. In 1865 he was appointed mist to the New York Metropolitan of Health, of which for a number of years he was President. In 1870, in connection with his brother, he established the American Chemist, a monthly periodical, in which the results of his principal investigations have appeared, but which was discontinued in 1877. He became connected with the New York College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1872 as Adjunct Professor of Chemistry and Medical Jurisprudence, succeeding to the full Professorship in 1876. The degree of M.D. was conferred upon him by the University of the City of New York in 1873, and that of LL.D. by Union College in the same year. He is a Member of the Chemical Societies of London, Berlin, Paris, and New York, of the National Academy of Sciences, and of a large number of other scientific associations. While a member of the Board of Health Dr. Chandler did much to improve the sanitary condition of New York by establishing a rigid inspection of milk and food supplied, by securing the passage of the Tenement House Act, by regulating the location of slaughter-houses, and in numerous other ways. He has published "The Inaugural Dissertation," 1856; "Report on Water for Locomotives," 1865; "Examination of Various Rocks and Minerals," which appeared in the geological reports of Iowa and Wisconsin; "Investigations on Mineral Waters," and papers on the water supply of cities, on petroleum, on the purification of coal-gas; and has also contributed numerous scientific articles to Johnson's "Universal Cyclopædia," 1874-77.

CHANEY, Henry James, F.R.A.S., born at Windsor in 1842, was educated at a private school, entered the Civil Service in 1859, was appointed in 1860 to the

to take charge of the technical sing under the Sale of Gas Act, the Secretary to the Royal Commission Standards, 1867-68, and, on ment in 1876 of the Warden of ards, he was appointed Superintendents Department, in the Trade. He has been a member of committees relating to units of measurement; and represented Great Britain in Paris in 1889 at the International Conference of the International Committee of Weights and Measures, is identified with improvements in the administration of the laws of the weights and measures used and with recent demands for accuracy in weighing and measurements used for scientific and engineering purposes. His printed work issued under the direction of the Trade, include "Reports on the of Measurement for Gas"; "Revision of Standards for the Government of India and Russia," 1877; "Screw Measures," 1881-83; "Apothecaries' Weights and Measures," 1881; "Calculations of and Expansions," 1883; "On the Detection of Fraud in the Sale of Bread"; "Expansion of Palladium," 1883; "Verification of the Imperial Units," 1883; "Verification of the Parliamentary Standards of Length and Weight," 1881-83; "Modern Weighing-Machines," 1886; "The Gold Coinage," 1886; "Relation of the Scientific Unit of Weight," 1889; "Treatise on Weights and Measures," 1897. Address: 29 Chalcot Regent's Park, N.W.

FLER, Mrs. Amélie, née Rives, an American writer, was born at Richmond, Virginia, in 1863. She was educated at the home of her grandfather, William C. Rives, Castle Hill, Albemarle County, Virginia, and early showed a taste for literature. Her first story was "A Brother to Dracula" and appeared in the Atlantic in 1885. It was followed by "Farrier Lass," "Pebworth," "Nurse Crumpet's Story of Arnon," and "Virginia." In 1888 her "Quick or the as issued, and it at once attracted attention, and proved one of the sensations of the year. Her later work is a five-act Syrian tragedy entitled "The Witness of" and "According to St. John." She was married in June 1888 to a strong Chanler of New York, grandson of the late William B. and has spent considerable time in England and on the Continent of Europe.

CHANNELL, The Hon. Sir Arthur Moseley, a Justice of the Supreme Court of Queen's Bench, is the sole surviving son of the late Sir W. F. Channell, Baron of the Exchequer, and was born in London on Nov. 13, 1838. He was educated at Harrow and at Cambridge, where he graduated as 26th Wrangler, and was placed in Class II. of the Classical Tripos of 1861. While at college he gained much fame as an oar, winning the Colquhoun Skulls in 1860, the University Pairs in 1861, and rowing in the First Trinity boat which won the Grand Challenge Cup and the Ladies' Plate at Henley in 1861. He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1863, and became a Q.C. in 1885. From 1888 to 1897 he was Recorder of Rochester. He became a Member of the Council of Law Reporting in 1894, and in 1895 Vice-Chairman of the General Council of the Bar. In the autumn of 1897 he was raised to the Bench, and received the customary honour of knighthood. He married (1) in 1865 Beatrice, fourth daughter of the late A. W. Wyndham, of Blandford, and (2) in 1877 Constance, only daughter of the late W. B. Trevelyan, of The Oaks, Hendon. Addresses: 1 Bramham Gardens, South Kensington, S.W.; Farrar's Building, Temple; and Athenæum.

CHANNING, Francis Allston, M.P., only son of the Rev. W. H. Channing, was born in 1841, was educated privately and at Oxford, taking honours in Classics and Mathematics, the Chancellor's Prize in 1865 for his essay on "Instinct," and the Arnold Prize in 1866 for "The Greek Orators as Historical Authorities." He was a Classical Scholar of Exeter, and afterwards Fellow of University College, where he was Lecturer in Philosophy. He was called to the Bar in Lincoln's Inn, but does not practise. In 1870, on leaving Oxford, Mr. Channing was offered an Examinership in the Education Office by Mr. W. E. Forster, but declined it for private reasons. He resided some years in Devonshire and afterwards at Brighton, where he was a Home Commissioner and Member of the School Board, and took an active part in the organisation of the Liberal party in Brighton and Sussex, and the Home Counties generally, as one of the founders of the London and Counties Liberal Union. In 1885 Mr. Channing was returned for East Northamptonshire by a majority of 2055 over Mr. R. Ramsden, Conservative (5414 to 3359), and in 1886 by 4428 to 3012 over the Hon. Leopold Agar Elliz, in 1892 by 5832 to 4348 over Mr. Potter, Q.C., and in 1895 by 6177 to 4961 over Mr. Lush Wilson. Mr. Channing was one of the group of advanced Liberals who rallied round Mr. Chamberlain in 1883, 1884, and 1885, but in the break-up of 1886 sided with Mr. Gladstone, believing that the "Radical Programme" of 1884—democratic local self-government, land for the people, disestablishment, free education, graduated taxation, &c.—could only be obtained through the Liberal party. In Parliament his chief work has been in connection with questions affecting labour, land, and agriculture, national education, and the protection of the Eastern Christians from Turkish oppression. His proposals for diminishing the risks and shortening the hours of railway servants were substantially enacted in the Railway Regulation Acts of 1889 and 1893. The principle of the latter Act, that the Board of Trade should have an elastic power to shorten the excessive hours of labour of adult males, on their complaint, and on the merits of each case, was a wholly original step in labour legislation. Mr. Channing was active in the Parliament of 1886 in pushing the allotments question, and as Chairman of the Liberal County Members in 1893-94 did much to shape the land acquisition proposals of the Parish Council Bill. He has promoted a long series of measures for the benefit of tenant farmers, including the most complete Agricultural Holdings Bill so far introduced, and the prevention of frauds as to feeding stuffs and fertilisers. He was elected Chairman of the Central and Associated Chambers of Agriculture in 1894, and during his year of office moved for and served on the Select Committee on Food Adulteration, which reported in 1897. In 1893 he was appointed one of the Royal Commission on Agricultural Depression, for which he prepared an exhaustive minority report in 1897. In reference to education, Mr. Channing has been one of the most strenuous supporters of a uniform system of State-paid schools under local representative control, merging the existing denominational schools in a national system, while reserving the right of the managers to use the buildings for specific doctrinal teaching outside the secular time-table. He also favours the close connection of secondary with elementary education. Mr. Channing has been from the first an active member of the Anglo-American and Grosvenor House and Cretan Committees. Mr. Channing is a magistrate for Northamptonshire. Mr. Channing has been a frequent contributor to the press and to periodical literature. His publications include "Instinct," "The Great Orators as Historical Authorities," "The Second Ballot," "The Truth about Agricultural Depression," &c. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Henry Bryant, Esq., of Boston and Cohasset, U.S.A. Address: 40 Eaton Place, S.W.

CHANOINE, General, late French Minister of War, was born at Dijon in 1835. After passing through St. Cyr he served in the Zouaves and in the Dragons, and in 1860 became Head of the Staff of the French Expedition to China. He next served as chief of a military mission to Japan. In 1869 he was aide-de-camp to General Bourbaki, and after going through the war of 1870, General Chanoine joined the General Staff at the War Office. He became Colonel of the 14th Cuirassiers in 1880, and was sent on a mission to the Far East. On his return he was promoted Brigadier-General in 1885, and Major-General in 1893. In that year he was given the command of the Lille garrison. On the resignation of General Zurlinden (Sept. 17, 1898), General Chanoine accepted the portfolio of Minister of War in the Brisson Cabinet. He is a good linguist, speaking Russian as well as English and German, and on this account he was despatched to the Russian manoeuvres in 1875. He also acted as the cicerone of the Russian naval visitors in 1893. Politically General Chanoine is a staunch Republican. He gave in his resignation in a most unexpected and sensational manner at the first meeting of the French Chamber of Deputies on Oct. 25, 1898. His plea was the usual one, "the army insulted," &c. His bluntly military and quite incoherent speech, delivered from the tribune as it were at the invitation of M. Deroulède, was rapturously applauded by the crowds of Chauvinists present, but the Brisson Ministry immediately stultified this show of outraged dignity by reading recent letters in his handwriting, which proved that he has repeatedly refused to allow newspapers to be prosecuted for attacks on the army.

CHAPLIN, The Right Hon. Henry, M.P., J.P., D.L., President of the Local Government Board, and late President of the Board of Agriculture, is the second son of the late Rev. Henry Chaplin, by Horatia, daughter of the late William Ellice, Esq. He was born in 1841, and educated at Harrow and at Christ Church, Oxford. From November 1868 to November 1885 he represented Mid-Lincolnshire in the House of Commons, since when he has sat for North Kesteven or for the Sleaford Division of Lincolnshire, which he now represents. Mr. Chaplin is a prominent member of the Conservative party, a frequent debater, and an authority on agricultural matters. From June 1885 to January 1886 he was Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, and in 1889 was appointed the President of the newly-formed Board of Agriculture, with a seat in the Cabinet. He retained his position

sident until 1892. He was appointed lent of the Local Government Board ne 1895, and in 1896 conducted the ultural Rates Act through the House mmons. He was sworn of the Privy il in 1885. Mr. Chaplin is a repre- utive country gentleman and a leading er of the turf. He is a J.P. and D.L. ncornshire. In 1890 Edinburgh Uni- y conferred upon him its honorary degree. He married in 1876 Lady nce Leveson-Gower, daughter of the uke of Sutherland. She died in 1881. sses: Blankney, Sleaford; Stafford a, St. James's, S.W.; and Athenæum.

CHARLES I., Charles Eitel Frede- Zephirin Louis, King of Roumania, orn April 20, 1839, being the second f Prince Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen, of the second of the non-reigning hes of the princely house of Hohen- a. He was elected and proclaimed e Regnant of Roumania, with here- succession, by a plebiscite, taken 8-20, 1866, and definitely recognised t. 24 in that year by the Sublime and the guaranteeing Powers. The e had previously been a Sub-Lieu- t in the 2nd Regiment of Prussian ons, and it is believed that his lature for the throne of Roumania, had become vacant by the expulsion nce Alexander John, was proposed ussia, and supported by her diplo- action. His reign has been marked hout by internal dissensions and mentary crises. The unwarrantable tion of the Jews in Moldavia d indignant protests from various n governments, who likewise com- d that bands of armed men were d to be formed within the Rou- n territory, with the object of creat- isturbances on the Lower Danube. isputes in the Roumanian Chamber, he incessant ministerial changes, o a dissolution of the Chamber of rest in 1869. A convention was ided between his government and ar, permitting the Russians to cross nube in April 1877. The Roumanian was then mobilised, and war declared t Turkey. In September and Octo- 77 Prince Charles held the nominal d of the Army of the West, and ight at Plevna, where the Rouns behaved with great gallantry, ffered heavy losses. He received in wledgment of his services the Cross George from Alexander II., to whom at in return the decoration of the of the Star of Roumania. He had tle of "Royal Highness" from 1878 arch 26, 1881, when he was pro- d King of Roumania by a unanimous vote of the representatives of the nation. The coronation ceremony took place on May 22. As the King has no heirs, his nephew, Prince Ferdinand of Hohenzollern, was declared Prince Royal of Roumania by a decree of March 18, 1889, and in January 1893 he was married to the Princess Marie, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh and Saxe-Coburg, and has issue, a son, Prince Carol, and a daughter, Princess Elizabeth. Charles I. married Nov. 15, 1869, Pauline Elizabeth Otilie Louise (born 1843), daughter of the late Prince Hermann of Wied. (See ELIZABETH.)

CHARLES, Sir Arthur, K.B., is the youngest son of the late Robert Charles, Esq., of London and Carisbrooke, I.W., and was born in 1839. He received his education at University College, London, and graduated B.A. of London University with mathematical honours in 1858, subsequently receiving, in 1884, an hon. M.A. from the Archbishop of Canterbury, and an hon. D.C.L. from the University of Durham. He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in January 1862, after obtaining a certificate of honour of the first class. He then joined the Western Circuit, and became one of its leaders. In February 1877 he took silk, and was elected a Bencher of his Inn in January 1880. From 1878 to 1887 he was Recorder of Bath, and from 1884 to 1887 Chancellor of Southwell Diocese, and Commissary of the Dean and Chapter of Westminster. In September of the latter year he was appointed a Judge of the High Court of Justice, and was also knighted. He was for many years a member of Council and President of the Senate of University College, London, and a member of the Council of Legal Education. From 1877 to 1882 he examined in Common Law in London University, of which he unsuccessfully contested the Parliamentary representation in 1880. In the same year he was Chief Commissioner to inquire into corrupt practices at the Canterbury election, and in 1881-83 a Royal Commissioner to inquire into the working of Ecclesiastical Courts. He resigned his judicial office in March 1897. He married Rachel Christian, daughter of T. D. Newton, Plymouth, in 1866. Addresses: Shelley House, Chelsea Embankment, S.W.; and Athenæum.

CHARLEY, Sir William Thomas, Q.C., D.C.L., born at Woodbourne on March 5, 1833, is the youngest son of the late Matthew Charley, Esq., of Finaghy House, near Belfast. He was educated at St. John's College, Oxford, and took his degree of B.A. in 1856, and of B.C.L. and

D.C.L., by accumulation, in 1864. In 1865 he was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple, having obtained the first certificate of honour of the first class, and the exhibition at the final examinations of Council of Legal Education. He was elected Common Serjeant of the City of London in April 1878, becoming a Commissioner of Oyer and Terminer at the Central Criminal Court and Judge of the Mayor's Court of London. On reaching the fifteenth year of his judicial service in 1892, he resigned the office of Common Serjeant, retiring on a pension of two-thirds of his judicial salary, which had been increased some years before. In 1880 he was made a Q.C. For twelve years, viz., from 1868 to 1880, he represented Salford in the House of Commons in the Conservative interest. He was unsuccessful at the election of 1890, and unsuccessfully contested Ipswich in 1883 and 1885. In the latter year the majority against him was very small, and his opponents were unseated for bribery by their agents. He was invited to stand again, but declined on account of ill-health. Two Conservatives were returned. Sir William Charley is a Past-Master of the Worshipful Company of Liners, a member of the Court of Lieutenancy of the City of London, and Hon. Colonel of the 3rd Volunteer Battalion of the Royal Fusiliers (City of London Regiment). He is also Trustee and Hon. Standing Counsel of the United Kingdom Beneficent Association, Trustee of the Church of England Young Men's Society, and Vice-President of the City of London Conservative Association, the Eastbourne Conservative and Unionist Association, the Church Defence Institution, and numerous other societies. He is the author of works on the "Real Property Acts" and "Judicature Acts," which have run through three editions; also of "The Crusade against the Constitution: an Historical Vindication of the House of Lords," a copy of which was accepted by the Queen. When in Parliament he carried several measures of social reform, such as the "Infant Life Protection Act, 1872," and the "Offences against the Person Act, 1875," the principles of which have been extended by subsequent legislation. He was knighted in 1880. In the spring of 1890 he married Miss Clara Harbord, daughter of F. G. Harbord, Esq., of Kirby Park, Cheshire, and has issue, Clara Noël, born on Christmas Day, 1890; and Estelle Dumergue, born Dec. 20, 1894. Addresses: Queen Anne's Mansions, S.W., and Court Lodge, Hartfield Square, Eastbourne.

CHARLOTTE, Ex-Empress of Mexico (Marie Charlotte Amélie

Auguste Victoire Clémentine Léopoldine), daughter of Leopold I., King of the Belgians, born June 7, 1840, was married July 27, 1857, to the ill-fated Maximilian, afterwards Emperor of Mexico, who was shot at Queretaro June 19, 1867, by the command of the inhuman Juarez. In the midst of his embarrassments, Maximilian sent his empress to Paris in 1866 to seek more effectual aid from the Emperor Napoleon. She failed entirely in her mission, and proceeded to Italy, where her reason gave way in consequence of the troubles she had already undergone, and of those which she foresaw her husband would experience. Her Majesty was removed to the palace of Laeken, near Brussels, and was there when it was destroyed by fire in 1890. It is said that during lucid intervals she formerly employed her time in writing Memoirs of the History of the Mexican Empire. Her recovery is considered hopeless.

CHARNOCK, Richard Stephen, Ph.D., F.S.A., born in London Aug. 11, 1820, is the son of Richard Charnock, Esq., of the Inner Temple, barrister-at-law. He was educated at King's College, London, and admitted an attorney in 1841. He has travelled through the whole of Europe, and has also visited the North of Africa and Asia Minor; and has devoted much time to the study of anthropology, archaeology, and philology, especially the Celtic and Oriental languages. Dr. Charnock is a member of many learned societies, and Doctor of Philosophy of the University of Göttingen. Among very many contributions to philology, anthropology, and science in general, Dr. Charnock is author of "Guide to the Tyrol," 1857; "Local Etymology," 1859; "Bradshaw's Guide to Spain and Portugal," 1865; "Verba Nominalia," 1866; "Ludus Patronymicus," 1868; "The Peoples of Transylvania," 1870; "Manorial Customs of Essex," 1870; "Patronymica Cornu-Britannica," 1870; "On the Physical, Mental, and Philological Characters of the Wallons," 1871; "Le Sette Commune," 1871; "A Glossary of the Essex Dialect," 1879; "Prænomina; or, the Etymology of the Principal Christian Names of Great Britain and Ireland," 1882; and "Nuces Etymologicæ," 1889.

CHARTERIS, Professor the Rev. Archibald Hamilton, M.A., D.D., eldest son of John Charteris, schoolmaster, born in Wamphray, Dumfriesshire, Dec. 13, 1835, was educated at the parish school and Edinburgh University, where he took the degree of B.A. in 1852, and of M.A. in 1853. He was presented to the parish of St. Quivox, Ayrshire, in 1858, to New-in 1859, and called to the Park h, Glasgow, in 1863. He was ap- d one of her Majesty's Chaplains otland in 1870, having previously ed the degree of D.D. from Edin- University in 1868. He was ap- d to the Chair of Biblical Criticism ; University of Edinburgh in 1868, he resigned in 1898. Professor eris is the author of "The Life of ; Robertson, D.D.," 1863; "Canon- a Collection of Early Testimonies to ooks of the New Testament," 1880; "Christian Scriptures," being the l Lectures, 1888; "The Faithful hman," 1898, and of several occa- pamphlets and lectures. In eccle- al work he is best known as Convener of the General Assembly's nittee for the Abolition of Patronage, accomplished its work in 1874, and onvener of the General Assembly's nittee on Christian Life and Work its first appointment (1869) to 1894. urpose of this committee is to in- into and report upon the methods rk employed in the various parishes : Church of Scotland, so that through fluence of the General Assembly and blic opinion, those methods may be oped and improved. Through this nittee many changes have been grad- and with general approval, in- ced, almost all in the direction of ng the forces of the Christian Church hannels of social helpfulness. The g Men's Guild and the Woman's , founded by it, have been largely ed by other churches in Scotland, nd, and America. Deaconesses have een trained and appointed, and Guild s (for special work among the poor) ained by this committee. The speci- f all these agencies is that they are of the organisation of the Church: rised, regulated, and supervised by urch Courts; not (as had been pre- y the case) originated and maintained dividuals or associations outside of ary church organisation. Professor eris was Moderator of the General ably of the Church of Scotland in . In 1863 he married Catharine e, daughter of Sir Alexander An- of Aberdeen. Address: Cameron e, Edinburgh.

CHARTRES, Duc de, Robert ippe - Louis - Eugène - Ferdinand léans, youngest son of the late Duke léans, and grandson of the late King
Philippe, was born at Paris Nov. 9,

When only two years of age he lost ther, and six years later the Revoludrove him into exile. The young was carefully brought up at Eisenach in Germany, and afterwards joined his family in England. He served in the Italian army, 1859, and in the Federal army in the first campaign of the American Civil War in 1862. After the Revolution of Sept. 4, 1870, he returned incognito to France, and served in General Chanzy's army under the assumed name of "Robert Lefort"; and in 1871, when the National Assembly had revoked the law of banishment against the Orleans family, he was appointed a Major, and served first in Algiers; he was subsequently appointed Lieutenant-Colonel and Colonel. In 1883 his name was struck off the active list of the army by a decree of the Republican Government; and he was at once removed from the command of the 12th Chasseurs, and was peremptorily ordered on Feb. 25 to quit Rouen, at which city that regiment was stationed. He bade farewell to his regiment in a dignified order of the day, and asked leave of absence in order to travel in the Caucasus. In 1886, in obedience to the decree of June 22, his name was finally struck off the French army lists. He married, June 11, 1863, Françoise - Marie - Amélie of Orleans, eldest daughter of the Prince de Joinville, and has issue two daughters, born respectively

Jan. 13, 1865, and Jan. 25, 1869, and two sons, born respectively, Oct. 16, 1867, and Sept. 4, 1874. The former is the famous explorer, Prince Henri d'Orléans (q.v.).
Address in Paris: 27 Rue Jean-Gonjon; Château de St. Firmin, Oise; Villa de Fayères, Cannes.

CHASE, Marian R. T., second daughter of the late John Chase, member of the Institute of Painters in Water-Colours, was born in Upper Charlotte Street, Fitzroy Square, April 18, 1844.
She was educated at home, excepting for two years and a half when she was at school at Ham, near Richmond. The foundation of her art-education she received from her father, who also taught her landscape painting. The late Miss Margaret Gillies kindly gave her lessons in figure painting. Miss Chase, however, has devoted herself principally to still-life and flower painting; and in this, the special style of her choice, the study of her still-life models and of the living flowers has been her sole means of instruction. She was elected a member of the Institute of Painters in Water-Colours in 1876. She has frequently exhibited also at the Royal Academy, the Grosvenor Gallery, and the chief provincial exhibitions. Some of her principal works are "The Untidy Corner," "Music, Literature, and Art," "Gold," "Checkmate," "The Skill and Thought of Bygone Years," "Treasures," and "The Past and To-day." Miss Chase lives with her sisters, at 18 Christchurch Avenue, Brondesbury, London, N.W.

CHASSEPOT, Antoine Alphonse, a French inventor, born March 4, 1833, is the son of a working gunsmith, to which trade he was himself brought up. Entering the Government workshops, he was attached in 1858 to that of St. Thomas, in Paris, as Controller of the second class; attained the rank of Controller of the first class in 1861, and that of Principal in 1864. The result of his study of the mechanism of small arms, especially of the famous Prussian needle-gun, was the invention of the Chassepot rifle, which was adopted by the French army; and, according to the official accounts, "did wonders" against the Garibaldians at Mentana. M. Chassepot was afterwards officially attached to the national manufactory of arms at Châtellerault, near Poitiers. He took out patents for his invention, and the royalty he received on the rifles manufactured brought him in a large income. He was decorated with the Legion of Honour in 1866, and promoted to the rank of officer of the same in 1870. The Chassepot was famous in the war of 1870, but has long since been superseded. He ultimately became a hotel-keeper at Nice.

CHATTERTON, The Right Hon. Hedges Eyre, was born at Cork in 1819, and was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, eventually obtaining the degree of LL.D. He was called to the Irish Bar in 1843, became Solicitor-General for Ireland in 1866, and Attorney-General in the following year. In 1867 he was raised to the Bench of Judges, and was appointed Vice-Chancellor of Ireland, having represented the University of Dublin in the House of Commons from February to August of the same year. He was married in 1845 to Mary, daughter of the Rev. William Halleran, Prebendary of Cloyne. Address: Newpark, Blackrock, Dublin.

CHAWNER, William, M.A., has been Master of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, since 1895. He was born in February 1838, and educated at Rossall School and Emmanuel College. He is the author of "The Influence of Christianity upon the Legislation of Constantine the Great," 1874. Address: Emmanuel College, Cambridge.

CHELMSFORD, Lord, General Frederic Augustus Thesiger, G.C.B., is the eldest son of the 1st Lord Chelmsford (who was twice Lord Chancellor in the Government of the late Lord Derby) by his wife Anna Maria, youngest daughter of Mr. William Tinling, of Southampton. He was born May 31,

1827, and educated at Eton. In 1844 he entered the Rifle Brigade. He was transferred in 1845 to the Grenadier Guards as ensign, and became captain, 1850; Brevet-Major, 1855; Lieut.-Colonel, 1857; Colonel, 1863; Major-General, 1868; Lieut.-General, 1882; and General, 1888. He served in the Crimean campaign as aide-de-camp to Major-General Markham, including the siege and fall of Sebastopol, and for this service he was promoted to a brevet majority. Having exchanged into the 95th Regiment as second Lieut.-Colonel, he served in the Indian Mutiny campaign, and subsequently as Deputy Adjutant-General, British troops, in the Bombay Presidency. He succeeded Colonel Raines, C.B., in the command of the 95th Regiment. As Deputy Adjutant-General in the Abyssinian campaign of 1868 he was present at the capture of Magdala. For his services in this campaign he was nominated a Companion of the Bath and one of her Majesty's aides-de-camp. He was Adjutant-General to the forces in India from 1869 till December 1874, when he was appointed to command the troops at Shorncliffe, and subsequently the 1st Infantry Brigade at Aldershot. In March 1877 he attained the rank of Major-General, and in January of the following year he was nominated to succeed General Sir Arthur Cunningham as Commander of the Forces and Lieut.-Governor of Cape Colony. He completed the subjugation of the Kaffirs, and restored Caffraria to a condition of tranquillity, and for these services was made a Knight Commander of the Order of the Bath. He had succeeded to the peerage on his father's death in 1878. Lord Chelmsford was appointed to the chief command of the British troops in the Zulu War of 1879. Lieut.-Colonel Durnford's column, consisting of 1774 Englishmen and 650 natives, was encamped at Isandhlwana, when an attack was made on the fortified camp by the Zulus, resulting in the annihilation of half the garrison. A gallant defence was made the same day at Rorke's Drift, about ten miles from Isandhlwana, by Lieutenants Chard and Bromhead, who with 110 men of the 24th Regiment and twenty-nine others held the post against the desperate assaults of 3000 Zulus. Lord Chelmsford's troops arrived after the natives had been beaten off and had retired. On April 2, an attack was made by an army of 11,000 Zulus upon the fortified camp of the British troops under Lord Chelmsford at Gingholova, on the road to Ekowe, but the Zulus were repulsed with great loss; and two days later the British troops, who had been surrounded at Ekowe by Zulus after the disaster of Isandhlwana, were relieved by the force under Lord Chelmsford's command. The decisive battle of Ulundi was fought on July 4, when the Zulu army was completely defeated. The credit of the victory admittedly belongs to Lord Chelmsford, but before this battle was fought Sir Garnet Wolseley had landed at Durban, Natal, to supersede him in the command of the British troops operating against the Zulus. Lord Chelmsford, having resigned the command, was created a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath, and arrived in England in August 1879. In 1884 he was appointed Lieutenant of the Tower of London, which he held until 1889. Lord Chelmsford retired in 1893. He married in 1867 Adria Fanny, daughter of Major-General Heath, of the Bombay army. Address: 5 Kuareborough Place, S.W.

CHERBULIEZ, Victor, son of a Professor of Greek at Geneva, was born in that city in 1829. His early education at Geneva was completed in Paris, at Bonn, and in Berlin, and after a voyage to the East he published his first essay, an antiquarian trifle entitled "A propos d'un Cheval, Causeries Athéniennes," 1860, reprinted in 1864 under the title of "Un Cheval de Phidias." After the death of his father in 1874 he settled in Paris, where he published a number of novels, all of which appeared originally in the columns of the Revue des Deux Mondes. Among them are "Le Comte Kostia," 1863; "Le Prince Vitale," 1864; "Paule Méré," 1864; "Le Roman d'une honnête Femme," 1866; "Le Grand Œuvre," 1867; "Prosper Randoce," 1868; "L'Aventure de Ladislav Bolski," 1869; "Le Fiancé de Mademoiselle de Saint-Maur," 1876; and "L'Idée de Jean Téterol," 1878, which was translated into English under the title of "The Wish of his Life." Later books are "Noirs et Rouges," "Olivier Maugant," "La Ferme du Choquard," 1884; "La Bête," 1887; "La Vocation du Comte Ghislam," 1888; "Une Gageure," 1890; "L'Art et la Nature," 1892; and "Le Secret du Précepteur," 1893. Most of M. Cherbuliez's works have been translated and published in America, and many have been translated into Danish, English, German, Italian, Polish, and Spanish. M. Cherbuliez is also a political writer of influence, the numerous articles in the Revue des Deux Mondes signed "G. Valbert" being from his pen. M. Cherbuliez has been reinstated in his rights as a French citizen, which had been lost through his ancestors having left France during the religious persecutions in the seventeenth century. On May 25, 1882, he was received into the French Academy as the successor of M. Dufaure. He is of the world worldly, mixing with his fellows, and taking a vivid interest in their doings.

Indeed, his knowledge of men and things is encyclopedic. The many allusions met with in his works are not merely literary, but the result of personal investigation. His sympathies are universal, his tastes cosmopolitan. Knowing English and German as well as he does French, he introduces his characters, be they Russian or English, Italian or American, with the easy urbanity of a man of the world who knows most types of men and women. A recent French critic described him as "an attentive tourist whom nothing escapes." M. Cherbuliez is held in high estimation by those who are entitled to speak with authority on his work. His last novel, "Jacqueline Vanesse" (1898) shows no decline of his powers. Paris address: 12 Rue de Tournon.

CHERMSIDE, Major-General Sir Herbert Charles, G.C.M.G., C.B., late of the Royal Engineers, was born at Wilton, near Salisbury, on July 31, 1850, and is the second son of the Rev. Seymour Chermiside. He was educated at Eton, and entered the Army (Royal Engineers) in 1868, becoming a Lieutenant in 1870; Captain, 1882; Major, 1882; Lieut.-Colonel, 1885; Colonel, 1887. During the Russo-Turkish War he was Military Attaché with the Turks, 1877-78, and gained a medal. In 1878-79 he assisted in the Delimitation of the Frontiers of Turkey; was Military Vice-Consul in Anatolia, 1879-82; served during the Egyptian Expedition of 1882, being awarded medal and star; served with the Egyptian Army from 1883 to 1888, and in the Sudan and Suakim Expeditions of that period. From 1884 to 1886 he was Governor-General of the Red Sea Littoral, and from 1886 to 1888 commanded the Egyptian Nile Frontier. In the action at Sarra he was in command of the Egyptian forces, and obtained the brevet of Colonel. From 1888 to 1889 he was British Consul in Kurdistan, and from 1889 to 1896 Military Attaché at Constantinople. On March 17, 1897, he was appointed British Military Commissioner and Commander in Crete, on the same day that autonomy was declared in the island. He has the Second Class of the Medjidieh. He received the honour of the K.C.M.G. in 1897, and was created G.C.M.G. at New Year 1899. Club: United Service.

CHESNELONG, Pierre Charles, a French politician, was born at Orthez (Basses-Pyrénées), April 1820, and educated at Pau. Formerly he was a dealer in hams and tissues at Bayonne, at first in partnership with his father, but he afterwards handed over the management of the business to his eldest son, though still retain-the latest edition of the "Encyclopædia Britannica." In addition to this and other work he organised, under the late Dr. Appleton, the theological department of the original "Academy," which section became in his hands an organ of critical theology as understood by Continental scholars and their like-minded English colleagues. The publication of his larger work on Isaiah in 1880-81 foreshadowed the new movement for the reconciliation of criticism and an enlightened Church theology, and in 1881 he gave an earnest of his revived attachment to the Church by accepting the college living of Tendring, Essex. In 1884, at the tercentenary celebration of the University of Edinburgh, he received the degree of D.D. At the end of 1885 he was elected to the Oriel Professorship of the Interpretation of Holy Scripture at Oxford, to which chair a canonry in Rochester Cathedral is attached. Between November 1897 and January 1898, he delivered a course of lectures on Jewish Religious Life in Post-Exilic Times in some of the chief literary and academical centres of the United States (in the press). The object of these was to help to bridge over the gulf between advanced critics and the general public. Professor Cheyne is the author of many works on the Old Testament, including, "Notes and Criticisms on the Hebrew Text of Isaiah," 1869; "The Book of Isaiah Chronologically Arranged," 1870; "The Prophecies of Isaiah," 2 vols., 1880-81, 3rd edit., 1885; "The Books of Micah and Hosea," Cambridge Bible for Schools and Colleges, 1882, 1884; "Exposition of Jeremiah and Lamentations," Pulpit Commentary, 1883, 1885; "The Book of Psalms," a new version, Parchment Library, 1884; "Job and Solomon; or, the Wisdom of the Hebrews," 1886; "The Book of Psalms; a New Translation and Commentary," 1888; "The Life and Times of Jeremiah," 1888; "The Hallowing of Criticism," 1888; "The Origin and Religious Contents of the Psalter," 1891 (Bampton Lectures for 1889); "Aids to the Devout Study of Criticism (I. the David Narratives: II. The Book of Psalms)," 1892; "Founders of Old Testament Criticism" (including a survey of the questions in debate between the moderate and advanced schools of Old Testament criticism), 1893; "Introduction to the Book of Isaiah," 1896; and the translation of Isaiah in the "Polychrome Bible," 1898. The introduction to the work on "The Origin of the Psalter" contains a sketch of Professor Cheyne's development as a critical scholar, which was called for by the attacks of which his Bampton Lectures were the object during and after their delivery. His position as a Churchman may be understood from parts of the same introduction, and from his two Church Congress papers on "Faith and Criticism," reprinted respectively in "Job and Solomon," pp. 1-9, and "Hallowing of Criticism," pp. 183-207, with which an article on "Reform in the Teaching of the Bible" (Contemporary Review, August 1890), may be compared. Some animadversions on his views offered by Mr. Gladstone called forth a detailed reply from Professor Cheyne in the Nineteenth Century, December 1891 ("Ancient Beliefs in Immortality"). He married Frances E., third daughter of the late Rev. T. R. Godfrey, Fellow of Queen's, Oxford, and Rector of Stow-Bedon, Norfolk. Addresses: South Elms, Oxford; The Precincts, Rochester.

CHEYNE, William Watson, M.B., F.R.C.S., F.R.S., Professor of Surgery at King's College, London, was born in the Shetland Islands, and educated in Edinburgh University, in the Medical School of which he obtained his M.B. and C.M. with first-class honours in 1875. He studied also in Vienna, Paris, and Strassburg, and is generally considered Lord Lister's most brilliant pupil. In 1879 he became F.R.C.S. of England; obtained the Syme Surgical Fellowship in 1877; was Boylston Medical Prizeman and Gold Medallist in 1880; Jacksonian Prizeman in 1881; Astley Cooper Prizeman in 1889. He was appointed to the chair of surgery at King's College, London, in 1880, is a Surgeon at King's College Hospital, Surgeon at Paddington-Green Children's Hospital, and Consulting Surgeon and Surgeon of a number of other institutions. He is an Examiner in Surgery at Cambridge University, has examined in surgery at the Victoria and Edinburgh Universities, was Demonstrator of Anatomy at the University of Edinburgh, and in 1891 was Hunterian Professor at the Royal College of Surgeons of England. He is author of "Antiseptic Surgery: its Principles, Practice, History, and Results; Treatment of Wounds, Ulcers, and Abscesses," 1894 (new edit., 1898), and other valuable and standard works on surgical subjects. He has contributed "Lectures on Tubercular Diseases of Bones and Joints" to the British Medical Journal, 1890-92, and papers to the Lancet. Address: 75 Harley Street, W.

CHICHESTER, Bishop of. See WILBERFORCE, THE RIGHT REV. ERNEST ROLAND.

CHICHESTER, Dean of. See RAN-DALL, THE VERY REV. RICHARD WILLIAM.

CHI LO FENGLUH. See LO FENG-LUH.

CHINA, Dowager-Empress of. See TZE-HSI.

CHINA, Emperor of. See KWANG HSU.

CHINNERY-HALDANE, The Right Rev. James Robert Alexander, LL.B., D.D., Bishop of Argyll and the Isles, is the only son of the late Alexander Haldane, Barrister-at-Law, heir male of the family of Haldane of Gleneagles, and was born on Aug. 14, 1842, and educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he took his degree of LL.B., 1864, and D.D., 1888. He was ordained Deacon in 1866, and Priest in 1867, both by the Bishop of Salisbury; and after serving for two years as Curate under the Rev. John Duncan, Vicar of Calne, he became Assistant Curate of All Saints, Edinburgh, which curacy he held for about seven years. He was afterwards incumbent of St. Bride's, Nether Lochaber, 1876; Dean of Argyll and the Isles, 1881; Bishop of Argyll and the Isles, 1883. Among his publications should be mentioned, "The Scottish Communicant," and "The Communicant's Guide." He married in 1864 Anna Elizabeth Frances Margaretta, only child and heiress of Rev. Sir Nicholas Chinnery, Bart., of Flintville, co. Cork, when he assumed the additional name of Chinnery. Address: Ballachulish, N.B.

CHIROL, Valentine, born in 1852, and educated chiefly in France and Germany (Bachelier-ès-lettres of the University of Paris), was appointed in 1872 to a clerkship in the Foreign Office, which he resigned in 1876. He has travelled extensively in Oriental countries, and has been a frequent contributor to the leading magazines and newspapers. In 1892 he joined the permanent staff of the Times. He is the author of "Twixt Greek and Turk" (Blackwood, 1881), and of "The Far Eastern Question" (Macmillan, 1895). Address: 59 St. Ermin's Mansions, Westminster.

CHITTY, The Right Hon. Sir Joseph William, K.B., is the second and only surviving son of the late Mr. Thomas Chitty, of the Inner Temple, and was born in London in 1828. He was educated at Eton and Balliol College, Oxford, where he won the Vinerian Scholarship and graduated in 1851, taking a first class in Classics. Subsequently he was elected a Fellow of Exeter College, and proceeded M.A. in 1854. At college he was famous as an oar, and was thrice stroke of the Oxford boat. He was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn in 1856, and was appointed a Queen's Counsel in 1874. Mr. Chitty for some years enjoyed a very extensive practice in the Rolls Court, of which he was the leader. He was formerly a Major in the Inns of Court Volunteers. To the general public, however, Mr. Chitty's name was once most familiarly known in his capacity as umpire at the Oxford and Cambridge boat race, which post he filled for some years. He entered Parliament at the General Election of 1880 as one of the Liberal members for Oxford. In September 1881 he was appointed a Judge of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice, in place of Sir George Jessel, the Master of the Rolls, who had been transferred to the Court of Appeal. Shortly afterwards he received the customary honour of knighthood. In January 1897 he was appointed a Lord Justice of the Court of Appeal, and was sworn of the Privy Council. He married in 1858 Clara Jessie, sixth daughter of the late Right Hon. Sir Frederick Pollock. Addresses: 33 Queen's Gate Gardens, W.; and Athenæum.

CHOATE, Joseph Hodges, American lawyer, Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, was born at Salem, Massachusetts, Jan. 24, 1832, and graduated at Harvard University in 1852. He studied law, and was admitted to the Bar in Massachusetts in 1855, and in New York in 1856, where he has since practised his profession, and has grown to be one of the leaders of the Bar there. He was Chairman of the Convention to revise the Constitution of the State of New York in 1894. He has argued many important cases, notably that involving the constitutionality of the provisions of the income tax in the tariff law of 1894, in which case the Supreme Court of the United States upheld his contention that the income tax could not be collected, but leaving the remainder of the tariff law in force. Mr. Choate in 1898 was appointed to succeed Mr. Hay as United States ambassador to Great Britain. He arrived in England on March 1, 1899.

CHREE, Charles, was born in 1860, at the Manse, Lintrathen, Forfarshire, being the second son of the Rev. Charles Chree, D.D., minister of Lintrathen, and his wife, a daughter of Mr. W. Bain, Kirkwall, Orkney. He received his early education at home, and at the Grammar School, Old Aberdeen; entered Aberdeen University in October 1875, and during his career there obtained many class prizes; graduated in the spring of 1879 with first-class honours in Mathematics, obtaining the Simpson Mathematical Prize, the gold medal awarded annually to the most distinguished graduate in Arts, and later in the year the Fullerton Mathematical Scholarship; entered King's College, Cambridge, in October 1879; was elected to a foundation scholarship in 1880, and graduated B.A. in 1883, being bracketed sixth wrangler; obtained a first division in the third part of the Mathematical Tripos, and a first class (in Physics) in the second part of the Natural Sciences Tripos; was elected Fellow of King's College, Cambridge, in 1885, and re-elected five years later as "Research" Fellow; appointed Superintendent of Kew Observatory in 1893. Mr. Chree has written upwards of forty original papers on Mathematics and Physics. His principal mathematical papers have dealt with the theory of Elasticity and its applications to Engineering, to theories of the Earth, and to Seismology. They have appeared at intervals since 1885 in the Transactions and Proceedings of the Cambridge Philosophical Society, the Quarterly Journal of Pure and Applied Mathematics, the Philosophical Magazine, the American Journal of Mathematics, and the Proceedings of the Royal Society. His principal physical investigations have treated of the conduction of heat in liquids, the magnetic properties of cobalt, thermometry, terrestrial magnetism, and atmospheric electricity. They have been described in the publications of the Royal Society, the Cambridge Philosophical Society, and the British Association, and in the Philosophical Magazine. Mr. Chree is M.A. and LL.D. of Aberdeen, M.A. and Sc.D. of Cambridge; he is a Fellow of the Cambridge Philosophical Society and the Physical Society of London, and was elected an F.R.S. in 1897. Official address: Kew Observatory, Richmond, Surrey.

CHRISTIAN IX., King of Denmark, fourth son of the late Duke William of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Glücksburg, was born April 8, 1818. Before his accession to the crown he was Inspector-General and Commander-in-Chief of the Danish Cavalry. The succession was vested in him by the protocol of London, May 8, 1852, and he ascended the throne on the death of Frederic VII., Nov. 15, 1863. On his accession the position of affairs with respect to Schleswig-Holstein was completely changed. The son of the Duke of Augustenburg immediately laid claim to the sovereignty of the duchies, although his father had for a compensation resigned all his rights in 1852. The independence of Holstein more especially, and of a portion of Schleswig, was warmly espoused by the German Diet, which forthwith ordered the advance of a Federal army to occupy the debatable territory, for the purpose of enforcing its enfranchisement from Danish rule. Before matters had proceeded far, Austria and Prussia determined to interfere, and by a combined armed occupation of the disputed territory to bring the question to an issue independently of the Diet, and in opposition to the wishes of that body. They accordingly invaded the duchies, which, after a hotly contested campaign, they succeeded in wresting from Denmark, also taking temporary possession of Jutland. Christian IX., disappointed in not obtaining assistance from some European power, after the failure of the conference convened in London in 1864—which failure was in some measure attributable to the obstinacy of the Danish Government—entered into negotiations for peace with Prussia and Austria, and a treaty was signed at Vienna Oct. 30, 1864. The King of Denmark renounced all his rights to Schleswig-Holstein and Lauenburg, and in 1866 the two German powers quarrelled over the spoil. Since then His Majesty has sought to develop the interior resources and popular institutions of his country. A new constitution was inaugurated in November 1866, when the King opened the first Rigsdag, the members of which were elected in accordance with the new electoral law. The army and navy have also been thoroughly reorganised, agriculture and commerce have received a great stimulus, and several railways have been constructed. In spite of this, however, the social state of the country is far from satisfactory; the hostility between the leaders of the people and the Court party is intense, and the Crown is by no means universally popular. Christian IX. and the late Queen Louise visited the Princess of Wales at Marlborough House, London, in March 1867. The marriage of the Crown Prince of Denmark with the Princess Louisa, daughter of the King of Sweden, at Stockholm, on July 28, 1869, was hailed as a pledge of union between the two countries. His Majesty granted a new constitution to Iceland, which came into operation in August 1874, that being the thousandth year of Iceland's existence as a nation. He went to Reikiavik on the occasion of the anniversary being celebrated, and on his return paid a flying visit to Leith and Edinburgh, Aug. 18, 1874. He visited the Emperor William II. of Germany at Berlin in August 1888, and in the autumn of 1889 was visited by the Emperor of Russia and his family. In 1842 King Christian married the Princess Louise, daughter of the Landgrave William of Hesse-Cassel, by whom he has had six children, and among them the Crown Prince Frederick, the King of Greece, Her Royal Highness the Princess Alexandra of Wales, and the Princess Dagmar, married to the late Tsar Alexander III. of Russia. On July 22, 1896, the second son of the Crown Prince of Denmark, Prince Charles, married Princess Maud of Wales. On May 26, 1892, the King and Queen of Denmark celebrated their golden wedding amid many demonstrations of loyalty and popular rejoicing. They were present at the marriage of the Duke of York and Princess May of Teck in July 1893. The Queen of Denmark died, greatly lamented, in the autumn of 1898.

CHRISTIAN, Prince, His Royal Highness Frederick-Christian-Charles-Augustus, Prince of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg, K.G., born Jan. 22, 1831, married July 5, 1866, Helena Augusta Victoria, Princess of Great Britain and Ireland. Prince Christian received the title of Royal Highness by command of Her Majesty, and was made a Knight of the Garter in July 1866. He is on the active list of Generals in the British Army, is a personal Aide-de-Camp to the Queen, and is Ranger of Windsor Park.

CHRISTIAN, Princess, Her Royal Highness Helena Augusta Victoria, Princess of Great Britain and Ireland, and the Duchess of Saxony, third daughter of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, was born May 25, 1846, and married at Windsor Castle July 5, 1866, to His Royal Highness Frederick-Christian-Charles-Augustus, Prince of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Augustenburg, and has five children, viz., Christian V. (see under SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN, H.H. Prince Christian Victor A. L. E. A. of), born April 14, 1867; Albert J., born Feb. 26, 1869; Victoria L., born May 3, 1870; Louise A., born Aug. 12, 1872, and married on July 6, 1891, to Prince Aribert of Anhalt; and Harold, who was born and died in May 1876. On Her Royal Highness's marriage a dower of £30,000 and an annuity of £6000 was granted to her by Parliament. The Princess is a Member of the Royal Order of Victoria and Albert (1st Class), and a Lady of the Imperial Order of the Crown of India, and of the Royal Red Cross, &c. She is well known for her active interest in every kind of philanthropic movement. Princess Christian takes a warm interest in nurses and the nursing profession, and she has been President of the Royal British Nurses' Association for many years. She is moreover a prominent patroness of the National Health Society. The Princess is an accomplished musician, and with her daughter frequently attends the practices of the Windsor Madrigal Society.

CHRISTIE, William Henry Mahoney, C.B., F.R.S., P.R.A.S., Astronomer-

Royal, was born at Woolwich in 1845, and is the son of the late Professor S. H. Christie, F.R.S. He was educated at King's College School, London, and Trinity College, Cambridge, and became a Fellow of his College. He graduated B.A. 1868 as fourth wrangler; was appointed in 1870 Chief Assistant at the Royal Observatory, Greenwich. On Sir G. B. Airy's retirement in 1881 Mr. Christie was appointed Astronomer-Royal. He is the author of the "Manual of Elementary Astronomy," and has contributed valuable papers to the Proceedings of the Royal Society, of which he was elected Fellow in 1881, and the Royal Astronomical Society, of which he was elected Fellow in 1871. Address: Royal Observatory, Greenwich.

CHRISTINA, Queen-Regent of Spain. See MARIA CHRISTINA.

CHURCH, The Rev. Alfred John, M.A., born in London, Jan. 29, 1829, third son of John Thomas Church, solicitor, was educated at King's College, London, and Lincoln College, Oxford, where he graduated in 1851 (second class in Lit. Hum.). He was ordained in 1853, and held the curacy of Charlton, Malmesbury, till the end of 1856. He was successively Assistant Master at the Royal Institution School, Liverpool, and at Merchant Taylors' School, London, 1857-70; and Head Master of Henley, 1870-72; and of Retford Grammar Schools, 1873-80. In 1880 he was appointed to the Chair of Latin at University College, London; this he resigned in 1889. From 1892-97 he was Rector of Ashley, Tetbury, Wilts. He has published, in conjunction with the Rev. W. J. Brodribb, a translation of "Tacitus," 1862-77, and of Livy, xxi.-xxv., an edition of "Select Letters of Pliny, and Pliny the Younger," in "Blackwood's Ancient Classics for English Readers," "Tacitus," in "Macmillan's Series of Literature Primers," and editions of "Tacitus, Annals VI." and "Agricola" and "Germania." He contributed "Ovid" to Blackwood's series above mentioned, and is conductor of "Seeley's Cheap School Books," several of which come from his pen. He also edited, in 1868, a collection of translations from Tennyson into Latin verse, under the title of "Horse Tennysonianæ." But the works by which he is best known are a series of volumes which aim at popularising some of the great Greek and Latin classics. "Stories from Homer" appeared in 1877, and were followed by "Stories from Virgil," "Stories from the Greek Tragedians," "Stories from the East," "The Story of the Persian War," "Stories from Livy," "Roman Life in the Days of Cicero," "A Traveller's True Tale, after Lucian," "The Story of Jerusalem," and "Heroes and Kings," belong to the same series. Other books for the young written by him are "The Chantry Priest of Barnet"; "With the King at Oxford"; "Two Thousand Years Ago: or, the Adventures of a Roman Boy"; "Lord of the World," a tale of the fall of Carthage and Corinth; "Stories of the Magicians"; and "To the Lions!" a tale of the early Church. He has also written "Carthage" and "Early Britain," in Messrs G. P. Putnam & Sons' "Series of the Story of the Nations." Mr. Church obtained in 1884, at Oxford, the prize for a poem on a sacred subject. The subject was "The Sea of Galilee." Permanent address: The Wilderness, Clevedon.

CHURCH, Arthur Herbert, F.R.S., F.S.A., F.C.S., fourth and youngest son of the late John Thomas Church, solicitor, of Bedford Row, was born June 2, 1834, educated at King's College and the Royal College of Chemistry, London, and at Lincoln College, Oxford; first class in Natural Science School, Oxford; B.A. 1860, M.A. 1863; has been Professor of Chemistry in the Royal Academy of Arts in London since 1879; Lecturer on Organic Chemistry at Cooper's Hill College since 1888. He was formerly, 1863-79, Professor of Chemistry in the Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester. Mr. Church is the discoverer of Turacin, an animal pigment containing copper, and of several new mineral species, including the only British cerium mineral. He is the author of "Precious Stones," 1883; "English Earthenware," 1884; "English Porcelain," 1886; "The Laboratory Guide for Agricultural Students," 6th edit. 1888; "Food Grains of India," 1886; "Colour," 2nd edit. 1887; "Food," 2nd edit. 1889, &c.; also of researches on Vegetable Albinism, on Colein or Erythrophyll, on Aluminium in Vascular Cryptogams, &c. He was elected Fellow of the Chemical Society in 1856; Fellow of the Royal Society in 1888. Address: Shelsley, Kew Gardens.

CHURCH, Frederic Edwin, an American artist, was born at Hartford, Connecticut, May 4, 1826. He early developed a fondness for art, and became a pupil of Thomas Cole. Among his first notable works were some views in the Catskill Mountains. He visited South America in 1853, and again in 1857, and on his return from his second visit finished his great picture, "The Heart of the Andes." In 1857 he completed a large painting, "The Great Fall, Niagara," which at once gave him a high rank among landscape artists. This was followed in 1868 by "Niagara" (a still larger painting, comprising both Falls), which was exhibited both in England and in the United States. He has since painted "Cotopaxi," "Morning," "On the Cordilleras," "Under Niagara," "The Icebergs," "Sunset on Mount Desert Island," and "Moonlight under the Tropics." In 1868 he visited Europe and the Holy Land. Among the paintings inspired by this visit are "Damascus," 1869; "Jerusalem," 1870; and "The Parthenon," 1871. His "Tropical Scenery," painted from sketches made during a trip in the West Indies, was exhibited in New York in 1873. He has been an Academician since 1849. Among the more important of his later productions are "Ægean Sea," 1875; "Syria by the Sea," 1876; "Morning in the Tropics," 1877; "The Monastery," 1878; "Valley of Santa Marta," 1879.

CHURCH, William Selby, M.D., was born Dec. 4, 1837, at Woodside, Hatfield, Herts, and was the second son of John Church of that place, and Isabella, daughter of George Selby of Twizell House, Northumberland. He was educated at Harrow and Oxford, where he graduated B.A. in 1860, after obtaining a first class in the Natural Science School. He was elected Dr. Lee's Reader in Anatomy at Christ Church, Oxford, in 1860; took the M.B. degree in 1864, and the M.D. in 1868. He became a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians of London in 1870; was Harveian Orator of that College in 1895, and Senior Censor in 1896. He has been the representative for the University of Oxford in the General Council of Medical Education since 1889. After holding several junior posts in the Medical School of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, he was appointed Assistant Physician in 1867, and became Physician to the Hospital in 1875. He is Consulting Physician to the Royal General Dispensary, to which he was formerly Physician, and he was also Assistant Physician to the City of London Hospital for Diseases of the Chest. He is the author of the article on "Acute Rheumatism" in Allbutt's "System of Medicine," 1897; and of various papers in the "St. Bartholomew's Hospital Reports," and other journals. Dr. Church is a J.P. for Hertfordshire, and a member of the Hatfield Rural District Council. Addresses: 130 Harley Street, W.; and Woodside, Hatfield, Herts.

CLAIRMONTE, Mrs. Egerton ("George Egerton"), was born at Melbourne, Australia, and is the eldest daughter of Captain John J. Dunne, Queen's County, Ireland, and Isabel George Bynon, Glamorganshire. She married (1), in 1888, H. W. Melville, Esq., who died in 1889; and (2), in 1891, Egerton Clairmonte, Esq., eldest son of Adolphus J. Clairmonte, of Lakelands, Nova Scotia. She was educated privately, and was originally intended for an artist. Family affairs, however, stood in the way, and prevented her from following this career. She has been a great traveller, having visited the United States, South America, and most of the countries of Europe. Her publications are: "Keynotes," 1893; "Discords," 1894; "Young Ofig's Ditties," 1895; "Symphonies," "Fantasies," 1897; "The Wheel of God," 1898. Addresses: 5 Danes Inn, Strand, W.C.; and Milford, near Witley, Surrey.

CLANCY, John Joseph, M.A., M.P., son of William Clancy, of Carragh, was born in Galway on July 15, 1847, and was educated at the College of the Immaculate Conception, Athlone, at Queen's College, Galway, and at the Royal University of Ireland, where he graduated with honours in Classics. After spending three years as Classical Master of the Holy Cross School, Tralee, he became, in 1870, assistant editor of the Nation, remaining on the staff of that journal till 1885. He was called to the Irish Bar in 1887, acted as editor of the Irish Press Agency in England from 1886 to 1890, and has been a member of the staff of the Irish Daily Independent since 1891. He has represented the Northern Division of Dublin county, as a Parnellite Member, in the House of Commons since 1885. Mr. Clancy has written a good many political pamphlets, and has published various essays in the Nineteenth Century, the Fortnightly Review, and the Contemporary Review. Address: 53 Rutland Square, Dublin.

CLANWILLIAM, Earl of, Sir Richard James Meade, Bart., G.C.B., K.C.M.G., Admiral of the Fleet, is the son of the 3rd Earl by Elizabeth, daughter of the 11th Earl of Pembroke, and was born on Oct. 3, 1832. He entered the Navy in 1845, and was promoted Lieutenant in 1852. In that rank his Lordship served in H.M.S. Impérieuse, which was employed during 1854 in blockading the Gulf of Finland. On his return to England he received the Baltic medal. In 1857 he proceeded to China, and took part in the destruction of the Chinese fleet at Escape Creek, and also the destruction of the Fatschau flotilla. At the capture of Canton his arm was broken by a ginal ball, and he was specially mentioned in despatches for various services. He was promoted to the rank of Commander, and received the China medal with two clasps. His Lordship was appointed aide-de-camp to the Queen in 1872, holding that appointment until promoted to the rank of Rear-Admiral in 1876. The following year he was created a C.B. He was also a Lord Commissioner of the Admiralty from 1874 to 1880, when he hoisted his flag as Commander-in-Chief of a flying squadron. H.M.S. Bacchante, in which were the late Duke of Clarence and the Duke of York, formed part of that fleet, and after a cruise of about two years, during which time many parts of the world were visited for the benefit of the two princes, the squadron returned to England and was dismissed. Lord Clanwilliam was created a K.C.M.G. in commemoration of the cruise. He was appointed Commander-in-Chief on the North American Station in 1885, and also held the Portsmouth command from 1891 to 1894. His Lordship is a Commissioner of the Patriotic Fund, and an F.R.G.S. He married the eldest daughter of Sir Arthur Kennedy, late Governor of Queensland, in 1867, and his son and heir, Lord Gillford, is a Lieutenant in the Royal Navy. Addresses: 32 Belgrave Square, S.W.; and Gill Hall, Dromore, co. Down.

CLARETIE, Jules Arsène Arnaud, a French writer, was born at Limoges, Dec. 3, 1840, and was educated in the Lycée Bonaparte at Paris. Adopting literature as a profession, he contributed a very large number of articles to various French and Belgian journals, including La Patrie, La France, La Revue Française, Le Figaro, and L'Indépendance Belge. In 1866 he followed in Italy the campaign against Austria, in the capacity of correspondent of L'Avenir National. Two series of lectures, delivered by him in Paris in 1865 and 1868, were interdicted by the Imperial authorities. In 1869 he was condemned to pay a fine of 1000 francs for having described, in Le Figaro, under the pseudonym of "Candide," the double execution of Martin, called Bidouré, by order of the Prefect Pastoureau, in the department of the Var. In the following year he succeeded M. Francisque Sarcey as dramatic critic of L'Opinion Nationale, and subsequently he followed the French army to Metz, and sent letters from the seat of war to L'Opinion Nationale, L'Illustration and Le Rappel. After the fall of the Empire he was appointed by M. Gambetta to the post of secretary of the Commission of the papers of the Tuileries; but he soon resigned that office, and he was next charged by M. Etienne Arago, Mayor of Paris, with the duty of organising a library and lecture-hall in each of the twenty arrondissements of Paris. For a very short time he commanded the second battalion of the volunteers of the National Guard, which was dissolved

1 Clément Thomas when those were replaced by the mobilised Guards. M. Jules Claretie was at nearly all the engagements took place under the walls of Paris; on 20, 1871, in the capacity of an aide-de-camp of the Crown Prince of Prussia, he negotiated with the staff of the Crown Prince of Prussia the truce which gave an opportunity of removing the dead from the battle at Buzenval. At the general election of Feb. 8, 1871, he stood as a candidate in the department of Haute-Saône in the Republican interest; but, unsuccessful, he resumed his journalistic and literary pursuits. He has published thirty or forty volumes of poetry, history, and fiction, of which the celebrated are: "Une Drôlesse," 1864; "L'Assassin," 1866; "La Libre Pensée," 1868; "La Débâcle," 1871; "Assiégé," 1871; "Portraits Contemporains," 1875; "Le Troisième Descente," 1878; "Le Drapeau," 1879; "Mon Ami le Ministre," 1881; "Le Prince de Joinville," 1884; "La Cigarette," 1890; and "L'Épave." On the death of M. Perrin, Claretie was appointed Director of the Théâtre-Français, 1885, and in the summer of 1886 brought the company of the theatre to London, where a successful season was played at Drury Lane. A poem by Claretie, commemorative of this artistic event, was distributed in the theatre at the first-night representation. Claretie was created Officer of the Légion d'honneur in 1887, and Commander in 1894, elected into the Académie Française in 1895, where he succeeded Cuvillier-Fleury. His address is 10 Rue de Douai.

CLARK, Charles E., United States naval officer, was born in Vermont, Sept. 10, 1829. He finished his education at the United States Naval Academy, which he entered Sept. 29, 1850; became Acting Master, Oct. 1, 1863; Master, May 10, 1866; Lieutenant, Feb. 21, 1867; Lieutenant-Commander, March 12, 1868; Commander, May 15, 1881; and Captain, June 21, 1896. On March 1898 he was in command of the battleship Oregon on the Pacific coast of the United States, and received orders to take his ship to the North Atlantic. He took her through the Strait of Magellan and up the Atlantic coast touching at Callao, Peru, Punta Arenas, Rio de Janeiro, Bahia, Barbadoes, and arrived at Key West, Florida, May 26, 1898, his ship in perfect order and ready to start on duty at once, after a journey of over 10,000 miles. His vessel performed an important part in the battle of July 3, 1898, in which the American fleet destroyed the Spanish fleet commanded by Admiral Cervera.

CLARK, Edwin Charles, LL.D. of Cambridge, F.S.A.; Barrister-at-Law of Lincoln's Inn; Regius Professor of Civil Law, Cambridge; late Professor of Roman Law to the London Council of Legal Education; Present Fellow of St. John's, and late Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge; was born in 1835 at Ellinthorpe Hall, Boroughbridge, Yorkshire; educated at Richmond School, Yorkshire, Shrewsbury School, and Trinity College, Cambridge, and was 7th Senior Optime in Mathematical Tripos, Senior Classic, and Senior Chancellor's Medallist (Classical), 1858. His publications are: "Early Roman Law," 1872; "An Analysis of Criminal Liability," 1880; "Practical Jurisprudence," 1883; "Cambridge Legal Studies," 1888; and various papers published by the Royal Archaeological Institute, and the Cambridge Antiquarian Society. Address: Newnham House, Cambridge.

CLARK, Latimer, C.E., F.R.S., F.R.A.S., M.I.C.E., Past President of the Institution of Electrical Engineers, and Chevalier of the Légion d'honneur, was born at Great Marlow, in Buckinghamshire on March 10, 1822, and in the year 1847 he commenced railway surveying, and his brother, Mr. Edwin Clark, who had been engaged in making a number of experiments preliminary to the construction of the Britannia Tubular Bridge across the Menai Strait, having been appointed Superintending Engineer of that great work, Mr. Latimer Clark became his Assistant Engineer, and afterwards published a small work entitled, "A Description of the Britannia and Conway Tubular Bridges," which has run through several editions. In 1850 he entered the service of the Electric Telegraph Company as Assistant Engineer, under his brother. He afterwards became their Engineer-in-Chief and Consulting Engineer, an office which he held until the General Post Office finally took over the telegraphs in January 1870. In the year 1853 he made a long series of researches on the subject of the underground telegraph wires, the results of which were afterwards fully set forth in the Government Report, issued in 1861, on Submarine Telegraph Cables. In the course of the experiments he was the first to witness the retardation of electric signals in submarine lines, and to demonstrate that currents of low tension travel as fast as those of high tension. At the request of Professor Airy, the late Astronomer-Royal, some of these experiments were repeated before Professor Faraday, and formed the subject of a lecture at the Royal Institution, delivered in January 1854. They are fully described in Faraday's "Experimental Researches." He also aided Professor Airy in the simultaneous announcement of time throughout the country, and assisted in magnetic research, and in 1857 was the means of affording the interesting information that during a display of Aurora Borealis the magnetic needles were strongly affected by the magnetic storm of which this northern light is a sign. He wrote to the Astronomer Royal suggesting that magnetic observatories should be furnished with wires stretching out towards the four cardinal points, to act as feelers for electric currents. This suggestion has since been acted upon, with valuable results to science. During his brief intervals of leisure he amused himself with photography, and in 1853 devised a plan of obtaining stereoscopic pictures with a single camera. In 1858 he became a member of the Institution of Civil Engineers. In the succeeding year, after the failure of the first Atlantic cable, he became for a short time Engineer to the Atlantic Cable Telegraph Company, and in 1860 he was chosen a member of the Committee appointed jointly by the Government and that Company to inquire into the whole subject of Submarine Telegraph Cables. This investigation lasted for some time, and resulted in the publication of an elaborate and valuable report of considerable extent, embodying all that up to the period of its issue was known with relation to submarine telegraphy. In 1861 he read a paper before the British Association, "On the Principles to be observed in Forming Standards of Electric Measurements." In this paper he suggested the names of Ohm, Farad, and Volt, to be employed for the electrical units, names which have since become so familiar to electricians. Mr. Latimer Clark also for many years was Engineer to the Indian Government Cable lines in the Persian Gulf. On one occasion the expedition of which he had charge was wrecked in the Carnatic on the Island of Shadwan, in the Red Sea, and he narrowly escaped with his life. As head of the firm of Clark, Forde & Co., and in connection with other engineers, he has superintended the submergence of about fifty thousand miles of submarine cables in all parts of the globe. In 1868 he published a work in which he laid down with great clearness the principles of electric measurement. It was translated into French, Italian, and Spanish, and eagerly perused by foreign savants, whose idea of its value may be gathered from the fact that when, some time afterwards, Mr. Latimer Clark was in Paris, and entered a scientific meeting then sitting, the President rose from his seat, and hailing with delight the advent of their visitor, stated that he had never fully appreciated the laws of electricity until he had read that work. In 1871 Mr. Latimer Clark published, in conjunction with Mr. Robert Sabine, "Electrical Tables and Formulæ for Operators in Submarine Cables." In 1873 he read before the Royal Society a paper on "A Single-Cell Battery as a Standard of Electromotive Force," now in general use under the name of "Clark's Standard Cell." In 1875 he was elected the fourth President of the Society of Electric Telegraph Engineers, and in his inaugural address gave some highly interesting outlines of the harbingers, and even what might be called premonitions of the electric telegraph, mentioning the idea of some old writers, that two magnetic needles would vibrate in unison at any distance apart, though unconnected with each other. He referred to the fact that a Scotchman, named Charles Marshall, or Morrison, of Paisley, had in 1758 published a full and clear description of a practicable electric telegraph, suggesting that the wires should be coated with an insulating material; and he referred to the electric telegraph erected by the late Sir Francis Ronalds, in the year 1816, in his garden at Hammersmith. He bore testimony to the remarkable foresight of Sir F. Ronalds with regard to the value of the telegraph, which, in 1823, he had proposed that the Government should establish all over the kingdom. Mr. Latimer Clark has taken out about 150 patents in different countries to secure the value of his various inventions, relating not only to electrical telegraphy, but also to engineering work in general. He is the inventor of the well-known system of covering submarine cables with "Clark's Compound," which is in universal use. He also designed the well-known double-cupped insulators, which are in use on almost all land lines throughout the world. Mr. Clark also invented and introduced the system of pneumatic tubes for the mechanical transmission of messages, which is also in universal use. He published in 1868 his "Elementary Treatise on Electrical Measurement"; and in 1882, "A Treatise on the Transit Instrument," besides several smaller works. Addresses: 31 The Grove, Boltons, South Kensington, S.W.; and Little Halt, Maidenhead.

CLARKE, Lieut.-General the Hon. Sir Andrew, R.E., G.C.M.G., C.B., C.I.E., eldest son of the late Colonel Andrew Clarke, of Belmont, co. Donegal, Governor of West Australia, was born at Southsea on July 27, 1824, and educated at the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich. He entered the Royal Engineers as second-lieutenant, 1844; became captain, 1854; lieutenant-

lonel, 1867; colonel, 1872; major-general, 1884; lieutenant-general, 1886. He was de-camp and then private secretary to Sir W. Denison, the Governor of Van Diemen's Land; subsequently a member of the Legislative Council of that colony; served in New Zealand during the years 1847-48 (medal). In 1853 he was appointed Surveyor-General of Victoria. He was elected to the Victorian Assembly for Melbourne, under the new constitution, and became Minister for Public Lands; but he resigned office in 1857, and returned to this country in the following year. He commanded the Royal Engineers of the Eastern and Midland districts of England till 1863, when he went on special service to the West Coast of Africa respecting the Ashanti difficulties. On his return he was appointed, in August 1864, Director of the Works of the Navy, which office he held till June 1873. From the latter date till February 1875, he was Governor of the Straits Settlements, and when there brought the Malay States under the protection of Great Britain. He was next appointed Minister for Public Works in India. He was Commandant of the School of Military Engineering at Chatham from 1881 to 1882, when he was appointed Inspector-General of Fortifications. In November 1882, he was despatched to Cairo, charged with the duty of inquiring into the causes of the sickness and mortality which were prevailing among the British army of occupation, and was invested with full power to make any alterations which he might consider necessary in the sanitary arrangements. From 1881 to 1886 Sir Andrew Clarke was Inspector-General of Fortifications. He has constructed defences for coaling-stations from plans of his own. Sir Andrew Clarke is the author of several works on engineering. Addresses: 42 Portland Place, W., and Athenæum.

CLARKE, Sir Campbell, was born Oct. 3, 1835, and was educated at Bonn on the Rhine. He was during eighteen years a Librarian in the British Museum, 1852-78. He has since 1872 been Paris Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph. He was appointed one of the Lieutenants of the City of London in 1874. He is an Officer of the Legion of Honour; Officer of Public Instruction; Grand Officer of the Medjidie; Officer of the Lion and Sun of Persia, and of the Redeemer of Greece; Knight of Charles III. of Spain, &c. He has been a special correspondent in several European countries, was a member of the Jury at the two Paris Exhibitions of 1878 and 1889, and has translated papers for the Philological Society. He married in 1870 Annie, daughter of the late J. M. Levy, J.P. Addresses: 116 Avenue des Champs-

Elysées, Paris; and Athenæum Club, London.

CLARKE, Caspar Purdon, Director of the Arts Department of the South Kensington Museum, may be said to be a son of the Museum, having been trained there for the profession of architect, and having gained, in 1865, the National Medallion for a set of designs for an old English house. When Dr. Percy began to reorganise the heating and ventilation of the Houses of Parliament, young Purdon Clarke was employed to make a complete set of drawings of the whole of Barry's masterpiece, the great architect's original plans being undiscoverable. The task was executed in two years. Promoted to be assistant to General Scott, Director of the Museum Works, he was sent to Italy as Superintendent of Reproductions for South Kensington, afterwards travelling in Egypt and Turkey in Europe and Palestine, where he made extensive purchases for the Museum. He was next sent to Persia as Superintendent of H.M.'s works at the Embassy, which he completed. The task was semi-political, and was thoroughly well performed. He at the same time made an exhaustive artistic tour of Persia in the interests of South Kensington Museum. In 1878 he acted as agent of the Indian Government at the Paris Exhibition, being created Chevalier of the Legion of Honour, and in the same year was so fortunate as to obtain the loan of the Prince of Wales's collection, thereby making the finest display of Indian art ever seen in Europe. In 1880 the Science and Art Department sent him to India, and his tour was so successful that he was made C.I.E. In 1885 he was again sent to India on special duty. In 1883 he was appointed Divisional Keeper of the Indian Section, and rearranged the collections three times. In 1890 he was made Keeper of the Art Collections, and soon after Assistant Director of the Museum. He was promoted to his present position in the summer of 1896. Mr. Purdon Clarke is an authority on textile manufactures, wood and stone carving, &c., furniture, and the embroideries, pottery, and tiles of Southern Europe. He saved Paul Pindar's beautiful house-front for the Museum. He has read technical papers before the Iron and Steel Institute, the Society of Arts, the Royal Institute of British Architects, and the Society of Antiquaries (his paper there being on the subterranean rooms under St. Clemente in Rome). Address: South Kensington Museum.

CLARKE, Charles Baron, M.A., F.R.S., F.L.S., F.G.S., born June 17, 1832, at Andover, Hants, is the eldest son of the late Turner Poulter Clarke, of Andover, J.P., and was educated, from eight to fourteen, under the Rev. Lewis Tomlinson, of Salisbury, from fourteen to nineteen at King's College School, London, then at Trinity and Queen's Colleges, Cambridge, where he took the degree of B.A. in January 1856 (bracketed third Wrangler). He was called to the Bar in 1858 at Lincoln's Inn, was elected Fellow of Queen's College, Cambridge, 1857. He was Mathematical Lecturer of Queen's College, Cambridge, from 1858-65, entered the Bengal Educational Service in 1866, was superannuated 1887. He has published "Speculations from Political Economy," 1886; and numerous other papers on Political Economy; various papers on music (as in Nature, January 1883); the "Class-Book of Geography," 1889; and other textbooks; also an account of Khasi Dolmen in the Journal of the Anthropological Society. He is a Fellow of the Royal Society, of the Linnean Society, of the Geological Society of London, &c.; and has been for some years past almost exclusively devoted to the studies of Morphological Botany and English History. His principal botanic work is published in the De Candolle Monographies, in Sir J. D. Hooker's "Flora of British India," and in the Journals and Transactions of the Linnean Society. Address: 13 Kew Gardens Road, Kew, Surrey

CLARKE, Sir Edward George, Q.C., M.P., eldest son of Mr. J. C. Clarke, of Moorgate Street, E.C., and Frances, daughter of H. George, Bath, was born on Feb. 15, 1841, and educated at College House, Edmonton, and the City Commercial School, Lombard Street, E.C. In 1859 he obtained a writership in the India Office, but retired, 1860. Afterwards he was a reporter in the House of Commons, and was on the literary staff of the Standard and Morning Herald. He obtained the Tancred Law Studentship in 1861, and was called to the Bar in 1864 at Lincoln's Inn, and joined the Home Circuit. In 1880 he was created a Queen's Counsel, and two years later was elected a Benchman of his Inn. He was elected member for Southwark a few weeks before the dissolution of 1880, but lost his seat at the general election. Since July 1880 he has represented Plymouth in the Conservative interest. His first great professional success was made in the well-known "Penge Mystery," and he made a great impression by his able speech in the Pimlico case, in defence of Mrs. Bartlett, in the Baccarat case, 1891, and in the Jameson case, 1896. On the accession of Lord Salisbury's second Government to power in August 1886, Sir (then Mr.) Edward Clarke was made Solicitor-General, and received the honour of Knighthood. He declined to resume this office upon the formation of Lord Salisbury's third Administration in 1895. He is author of a "Treatise on the Law of Extradition," of which a third edition appeared in 1888, and has published two series of Public Speeches, the second being chiefly forensic. He married (1) Annie, daughter of G. Mitchell, in 1866 (she died in 1881), and (2) Kathleen Mathilda, daughter of A. W. Bryant, in 1882. Addresses: 37 Russell Square, W.C.; Thorncote, Staines.

CLARKE, Colonel Sir George Sydenham, K.C.M.G., F.R.S., the eldest son of the Rev. W. J. Clarke, was born on July 4, 1848. He was educated at Rossall and Haileybury, and had the advantage of being a sixth-form boy under the Rev. A. G. Butler at the latter school. Although early showing a decided taste for mechanical science, he owes much to the classical training he received at Haileybury. After a year's special preparation at Wimbledon school he passed first in the open competition for the R. M. Academy, Woolwich, in December 1866, and in June 1868 he passed first out of the Academy, winning the Pollock medal and seven prizes. In July he received a commission in the Royal Engineers, and in 1871 he was selected by the late Sir G. Chesney to be instructor in engineering drawing at the R. I. Engineering College. While carrying out the duties of this appointment, he published four books: "Practical Geometry and Engineering Drawing," a translation of Von Ott's Graphischen Statik, "Principles of Graphic Statics," and "Plevna," a study of the Russo-Turkish War, together with many miscellaneous papers on military and scientific subjects. He also became an Examiner to the Science and Art Department, which post he held for years. On promotion to the rank of Captain in 1880, he resigned his appointment at Cooper's Hill, ceiving the thanks of the India Office, and served as a regimental officer in Bermuda and Gibraltar till the outbreak of hostilities in Egypt in 1882, writing several military papers during this period, and especially a study of "Provisional Fortifications." He took part in the Egyptian Expedition of 1882, and wrote an exhaustive official report on the defences of Alexandria and the effects of the bombardment. Returning to England in October 1882, Captain Clarke was employed at the War Office until 1892. This was a turning-point in his career. The experience obtained at Alexandria not only led him to take strong views on the altered conditions of fortifications, but caused him to study the question of Imperial defence, more fully in relation to the Navy. From 1863 he began to write largely upon naval matters, and all matters relating to Imperial defences," a term which he used. While still connected with the War Office, he served on the staff of General Graham's expeditionary force in Egypt in 1885, was present in several campaigns, and was mentioned in despatches. He was also employed on special missions to Bucharest, Sweden, Gibraltar, United States, Halifax, Paris, Belgium, Linz, and Magdeburg.

He was appointed Secretary of the Colonial Defence Committee on return from the Sudan, and received a C.M.G. in 1886 and a K.C.M.G. in 1893 for his services in organising the Colonial defences.

His services were also acknowledged by the Colonial Office and Admiralty. Major Clarke was Secretary of the Commission on the Administration of the Admiralty and War Office, prepared by Lord Hartington. During this period he wrote many papers and reports on naval and military subjects, and issued "Fortifications, Past, Present, and Future," which work has exercised a great influence upon the science of fortifications at home and abroad. After 1893 he was second in command of the garrison at Malta, and becoming a Colonel on April 1, 1894, he was appointed Superintendent of the Royal Artillery Department at Woolwich, which he still occupies, receiving a brevet of Major in the present year. At the Artillery Department he has proposed and carried out great changes in the mounting of guns for coast defence, has taken out important patents, which have been referred to the Secretary of State for War, and devised and perfected an auto-sight lately adopted into the service, which will have an important effect in increasing the powers of coast artillery. His publication of many professional papers and magazine articles on various subjects, during the last three years, published "The Navy and the Nation," in conjunction with Mr. J. R. Thursfield, and "Imperial Defence," dedicated to H.M. Queen. Imperial and naval questions are to be his principal interest, and he has been present at six of the naval manoeuvres in the endeavour to understand naval matters so far as is possible for a landsman. In 1896 he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society. Address: 24 Arncliffe Gardens, Kensington and Athenæum.

CLARKE, Lieut.-Col. Sir Marshal Clarke, K.C.M.G., Resident Commissioner of the Cape Colony, is the eldest son of the Rev.

Mark Clarke, of Shronell, Tipperary. He was born in 1841, and entered the Army as a Lieutenant of Royal Artillery in 1863, becoming Captain in 1875, Major in 1880, and two years afterwards retired from the Army with the honorary rank of Lieutenant-Colonel. In 1874, Captain Clarke was appointed Resident Magistrate and Administrator of native law at Pietermaritzburg, Natal, and in 1876 he was chosen to be aide-de-camp to Sir Theophilus Shepstone, the Special Commissioner in South Africa, and in that capacity was employed on a mission to the Chief Sikukuni. From 1877 to 1880 he was Commissioner at Lydenburg, Transvaal, and acquired there a knowledge of the Boers and their national traits, which afterwards stood him in good stead. During the South African war he was appointed Political Officer and Special Commissioner, and sent to help to pacify the Boers. He was mentioned in despatches, and awarded a C.M.G. and the brevet of Major. In December 1880, Major Clarke arrived at Potchefstroom, the old capital of the Transvaal, and took over the command of the regulars and volunteers, numbering in all rather less than 300 men. A rumour having reached him that the Boers meant to appeal to arms, he moved the troops into a fort outside the city, and there waited the attack. He protested against the action of the Boers, but in vain. Close to the fort were the gaol and court-house, and Major Clarke himself, with thirty-four men, took charge of the latter. They were then attacked in great force, many of the Boers stationing themselves behind a wall within twelve feet from the court-house, from which they threw fire-balls on the thatched roof. After a gallant defence, their ammunition being exhausted and several men killed, Major Clarke and his little band surrendered unconditionally. In 1881 he was appointed Resident Magistrate at Outhing, Basutoland, and shortly after Commander of the Kaffrarian Police. He was much appreciated by the blacks, of whose prejudices and ideas he has a vast knowledge. He does not believe that it is necessary for the advance of civilisation that the native tribes should adopt the industrial or political methods of the whites; and his plan is, so far as possible, to leave their old customs untouched, and to employ their own chiefs to govern them. For about two years Sir Marshal Clarke was the Commander of the Turkish Reserve Egyptian Constabulary, but he returned to Basutoland in 1884 as Resident Commissioner; and in 1893 he was appointed to the same office in Zululand. He was created a K.C.M.G. in 1886, and also holds the Medjidie of the third class. He was appointed Resident Commissioner in Rhodesia.

desia in May 1898. Sir Marshal Clarke married in 1880 Annie, daughter of the late Major-General Bannastre Lloyd. Address: Eshowe, Zululand.

CLAUSEN, George, A.R.A., was born in London April 18, 1852, his father being a decorative artist, and studied at South Kensington, under the late E. Long, R.A. Here he gained several medals in the National Competitions and a National Scholarship. He continued his studies in Paris, under Fleury. He first exhibited at the Academy in 1876, his picture representing High Mass in a Zuyder Zee fishing village, and has since exhibited there, and at most other exhibitions. He paints principally rustic pictures and people in the open air—mowers, ploughmen, &c.; his picture, "Girl at the Gate," was purchased for the Chantry Collection in 1889. Mr Clausen was elected an Associate of the Royal Water Colour Society in 1889, and a full Member in April 1898, and an Associate of the Royal Academy in 1895, and has received medals at Paris, Chicago, and Brussels (1897). He married in 1881 Agnes, daughter of George Webster, of Lynn. Address: Widdington, Newport, Essex.

CLAYDEN, Arthur William, M.A., Principal of the Technical and University Extension College, Exeter, born Dec. 12, 1855, at Boston, in Lincolnshire, is the eldest son of Mr. P. W. Clayden and his first wife Jane, and was educated at University College School and Christ's College, Cambridge. Mr. Clayden entered the University at the early age of seventeen, obtained a foundation scholarship in 1875, and graduated in the second class of the Natural Science Tripos of 1876, finishing all his examinations before his twenty-first birthday. In 1878 he was appointed Science Master at Bath College, a post which he held for nine years. In 1887 he resigned his post at Bath and removed to London on his appointment as a Lecturer on the University Extension Schemes of Cambridge and London. At the 1890 meeting of the British Association he was appointed Hon. Secretary of the Committee on Meteorological Photography. In 1893 he was made a Staff Lecturer to the Cambridge University Extension Syndicate, and was selected to fill the post of Principal in the Technical and University Extension College at Exeter, a new type of institution, under the joint control of the Exeter City Council and the University Syndicate. In addition to these appointments he was, in 1895, also made Superintendent Lecturer for the whole of the Devonshire district. Mr. Clayden is the author of numerous contributions to the Proceedings of the Physical Society, and the Quarterly Journal of the Royal Meteorological Society, and other scientific publications, being best known for his work in connection with meteorological photography, and for his working models of ocean currents. In recent years he has conducted a series of measurements of cloud altitudes by an original photographic method. He is a Fellow of the Chemical, Physical, Geological, Royal Astronomical, and Royal Meteorological Societies, and was for some years a Member of the Institute of Journalists. He married in 1883 Ethel, second daughter of A. S. Paterson, Esq. Address: St. John's, Polsloe Road, Exeter.

CLAYDEN, Peter William, eldest son of Peter Clayden, of Wallingford and Faringdon, Berks, was born at Wallingford, Oct. 20, 1827, educated privately for a business career, became minister of the Unitarian Congregation at Boston in 1855, Rochdale in 1859, and Nottingham in 1860. He joined the staff of the Daily News as a leader writer on the retirement of Miss Martineau, and on her recommendation, in 1866. In 1868, when the Daily News was reduced in price to one penny, Mr. Clayden removed to London, and became assistant editor. He acted as assistant editor and leader writer till August 1887, and then, till February 1896, was associated with Sir John Robinson in the editorship. Mr. Clayden was Liberal candidate for Nottingham, in conjunction with Mr. Charles Seely, now Sir Charles Seely, at the General Election in 1868. He unsuccessfully contested the Norwood Division of Lambeth in the Liberal interest in 1885, and the Northern Division of Islington in 1886. During his residence at Boston he edited the Boston Guardian, and at Rochdale wrote leaders for the Rochdale Observer. While at Nottingham he contributed to the Edinburgh Review, the Fortnightly Review, the Theological Review, the Cornhill Magazine, and later to various other periodicals. In 1873 he established the Reading Observer as an organ of Liberal principles in his native county, disposing of it to its present proprietors in 1879. Mr. Clayden is the author of many political and other pamphlets and books, of which these may be mentioned: "Religious Value of the Doctrine of Continuity," 1866; two works on Samuel Rogers; "England under the Coalition," 1892. He published "England under Lord Beaconsfield," 1880; "Samuel Sharpe, Egyptologist and Translator of the Bible," 1884; "The Early Life of Samuel Rogers," 1887; "Rogers and his Contemporaries," 2 vols., 1889; and "England under the Coalition" in 1892. Mr. Clayden is a member of the Executive of the National Liberal Federation, and Hon. Secretary of "The Liberal Forwards." Mr. Clayden has been President of the Institute of Journalists (1893-94), and took an active part in the successful effort to procure for the Institute a Royal Charter. He was also a President of the International Congress of the Press, held at Antwerp in 1894. Mr. Clayden has been twice married; first to Jane, eldest daughter of the late Mr. Charles Fowle, of Dorchester, in 1853 (died 1870); and second, in 1887, to Ellen (died 1897), eldest daughter of the late Mr. Henry Sharpe, whose recollections of his uncle, Samuel Rogers, have an important place in "Rogers and his Contemporaries." Address: 1 Upper Woburn Place, W.C.

CLEEVE, Lucas (Mrs. Kingscote), daughter of Sir Henry Drummond Wolff, and wife of Colonel Kingscote, is an authoress, and amongst her publications there may be mentioned: "Tales of the Sun," "Life of Eugénie Berni," "In the Ricefields," "Woman Who Wouldn't," 1895; "Lazarus," "Epicures," 1896; "The Monks of the Holy Tear," 1898, &c. She has, moreover, contributed articles to the Nineteenth Century. Address: The Beeches, Headington, Oxford.

CLELAND, Professor John, M.D. (Edinburgh), LL.D. (St. Andrews), D.Sc. (Q.U.I.), L.R.C.S.E., F.R.S., born at Perth, June 15, 1835, is the second son of the late John Cleland, surgeon at Perth, for some time Assistant Surgeon in 1st Dragoons. Dr. Cleland was appointed, in 1863, to the Chair of Anatomy and Physiology in Queen's College, Galway, and in 1877 Regius Professor of Anatomy in the University of Glasgow. He is the author of numerous Anatomical Contributions, and the following books: "Directory for the Dissection of the Human Body," 1876; "Animal Physiology," 1877; "Evolution," Expression, and Sensation," 1881; also "Scala Naturæ and other Poems," 1887. In conjunction with others he took part in the 7th edition of Quain's "Elements of Anatomy," 1867. In 1889 he published Vol. I. of "Memoirs and Memoranda in Anatomy," and "Human Anatomy, General and Descriptive," Cleland and Mackay, in 1896. He married in 1888 Ada, eldest daughter of the late Professor J. H. Balfour of the University of Edinburgh. Address: 2 University, Glasgow.

CLÉMENTEAU, Georges Benjamin, M.D., a French physician and politician, born at Mouillerson-en-Pareds (Vendée) Sept. 28, 1841, began his professional studies at Nantes, and completed them in Paris, where in 1869 he was created a Doctor of Medicine, and practised at Montmartre. After the revolution of Sept. 4, 1870, he was appointed Mayor of the 18th arrondissement of Paris, and a member of the Commission of Communal Education. At the election of Feb. 8, 1871, he was elected a representative of the Department of the Seine in the National Assembly, where he took his place among the members of the Extreme Left, and voted against the preliminaries of peace. On the 18th of March he endeavoured to save the lives of the Generals Lecomte and Clément Thomas, but in vain, for he did not arrive at the Rue des Rosiers until after their execution. On this occasion the Central Committee of the Communists, which was sitting at the Hôtel de Ville, resolved that Dr. Clémenteau should be arrested; but he was fortunate enough to elude the vigilance of the insurrectionary police. When the murderers were put upon their trial, Nov. 29, 1871, some of the witnesses accused him of not having interfered as early as he might have done, but he was warmly defended by Colonel Langlois, whose testimony appeared to clear Dr. Clémenteau from all blame in the matter. However, the accusations led to a duel between Dr. Clémenteau and M. le Commandant de Poussargues, who was wounded in the leg by a pistol-shot. Dr. Clémenteau was prosecuted for this affair a month later, the result being that he was condemned by the Seventh Chamber of Correctional Police to be imprisoned for a fortnight, and to pay a fine of twenty-five francs. In the sitting of the 20th of March he introduced in the National Assembly a bill, signed by the Radical fraction of the Deputies of the Department of the Seine, to authorise the election of a Municipal Council for the city of Paris, to consist of eighty members; and he was one of those who signed the manifesto of deputies and mayors fixing the municipal elections on the 26th of that month. As a candidate at those elections he polled 752 votes, but was not elected. After having taken part in the unsuccessful attempts at conciliation between the Government and the Commune, he sent in his resignation both as Mayor and as Deputy, and retired for a short period into private life. On July 23, 1871, he was elected a member of the Municipal Council of Paris for the Clignancourt quarter, and he took a prominent part in the discussions concerning primary secular instruction and financial questions. On Nov. 29, 1874, he was re-elected a member of the Municipal Council, of which he became successively Secretary and Vice-President, and eventually President in November 1875. He was elected a Deputy for the Department of the Seine by the 18th arrondissement of Paris, Feb. 20, 1876, and afterwards he became Secretary of the Chamber. In the following April he resigned his place in the Municipal Council. He was again re-elected to the National Assembly by the 18th arrondissement of Paris at the General Elections of Oct. 14, 1877. Since that time he has been generally regarded as the leader of the Advanced Left, and as such he has made and unmade many Governments. His opposition to the Tonquin policy decided the fall of M. Ferry, and his support kept M. de Freycinet in office. He is editor and chief proprietor of the influential Radical journal La Justice. It was a resolution moved by M. Clémenceau, and insisting on a thorough investigation of the Wilson scandal, that led to the overthrow of the Rouvier Government, and the consequent fall of M. Grévy. M. Clémenceau was asked by the President to form a Ministry, but declined, and told the President plainly that the crisis was not a political, but a presidential one. He is regarded as one of the most expert swordsmen in France, and acted as one of the seconds to M. Floquet in his duel with General Boulanger in July 1888. At the General Elections of September 1889 M. Clémenceau was returned by a large majority for Draguignan, and in Parliament again made himself the mouthpiece of Radicalism. As such he uttered the famous epigram, "La Révolution est un bloc, dont on ne peut rien détacher, rien rejeter." This was spoken during a debate (January 1891) on Sardou's "Thermidor," the suppressed play. Somewhat later, on being asked if the Socialist Deputy Lafargue could be let out of prison, he announced that, Boulangism being no longer a danger, the alliance between the Radical and Opportunist Republicans was at an end, and thenceforward became an opponent of the Freycinet Ministry. During the Panama scandals he was persistently and violently attacked by opponents, who accused him of selling his country, but these accusations were found to be based on forgeries. He was, however, defeated at the General Election in September 1893, and has not since sat in the Chamber. Paris address: 8 Rue Franklin.

CLEMENS, Samuel Langhorne, generally known by his pseudonym of "Mark Twain," was born at Florida, Missouri, Nov. 30, 1835. At the age of thirteen he was apprenticed to a printer, and worked at the trade in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, and New York. In 1855 he became for a short time pilot on the Mississippi River, and in 1861 went to Nevada as private secretary to his brother, the Secretary of the territory. He then went to the mines, and afterwards for several months acted as reporter for Californian newspapers. He spent six months in the Hawaiian Islands in 1866, and after delivering humorous lectures in California and Nevada, returned to the East in 1867, where he published "The Jumping Frog." In that year he embarked, with a large number of other passengers, on a pleasure excursion up the Mediterranean to Egypt and the Holy Land, which he describes in "The Innocents Abroad," 1869. For a time he was editor of a daily newspaper published in Buffalo, New York State, where he married a lady possessed of a large fortune. In 1872 he visited England, giving several humorous lectures; and a London publisher made a collection, in four volumes, of his humorous papers, adding, however, many which the author asserts were never written by him. In 1874 he produced in New York a comedy, "The Gilded Age," which had a remarkable success, owing mainly to the personation, by Mr. Raymond, of the leading character, "Colonel Mulberry Sellers." Mr. Clemens is a frequent contributor to the magazines, and in addition to the books mentioned above has published: "Roughing It," 1872; "Adventures of Tom Sawyer," 1876; "Punch Brothers, Punch," 1878; "A Tramp Abroad," 1880; "The Prince and the Pauper," 1882; "The Stolen White Elephant, and other Tales," 1882; and "Life on the Mississippi," 1883. In 1884 he established in New York the publishing house of C. L. Webster & Co. (since gone out of business), which issued in 1885 a new story by him entitled "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," a sequel to "Tom Sawyer," and brought out in that and the following year General Grant's "Memoirs," of which Mrs. Grant's share of the profits amounted to $480,000. Since then he has published "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," 1889; "The American Claimant," 1892; "Pudd'n-head Wilson," 1893; "Tom Sawyer Abroad," 1893; "The Tragedy of Pudd'n-head Wilson and The Comedy of those Extraordinary Twins," 1895; "Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc," 1896; "Following the Equator," 1897; and "How to Tell a Story, and other Stories," 1897. His books have been republished in England, and translations of the principal ones in Germany. Mr. Clemens is understood to have lost a fortune in a typesetting machine, but his deliverance from his financial troubles is, we trust, only a question of time. He is credibly rumoured to have acted heroically in the several transactions connected with his loss. In November 1897 and February 1898 he was brilliantly fêted in Vienna, and, before a German audience, had the courage to give one of his fine descriptions of the German language. His description of the Jubilee Procession in London in 1897 was published in the New York Journal, and was considered in America a magnificent performance. Address: Hartford, Connecticut.

CLEVELAND, Grover, late twenty-second President of the United States, was born at Caldwell, New Jersey, March 18, 1837. When he was three years of age his father, who was a Presbyterian minister, moved to Fayetteville, Onondaga County, New York, where they lived until 1851, when the family went to Clinton, Oneida County, leaving Grover in Fayetteville, where he remained about two years as a clerk in the village store. On the death of his father in 1853 he went to New York, and for about a year was book-keeper and assistant teacher in the Institution for the Blind. Thence he removed to Buffalo in 1855, where he studied law, and began its practice in 1859. In 1863 he was appointed Assistant District Attorney for Erie County, and in 1865 was the Democratic nominee for District Attorney, but failed to secure the election. From Jan. 1, 1871, to Jan. 1, 1874, he was Sheriff of that county, and in 1881 was elected Mayor of Buffalo. The reformed methods of administering the city's affairs instituted by him while filling that office, led to his election in the following year as Governor of the State of New York by a majority of 192,000 votes over his opponent, Judge Folger, the Republican Secretary of the United States Treasury. This phenomenal success, as indicative of the probability of his carrying New York and of attracting the Independent vote, secured him the Democratic nomination for the Presidency in 1884, and in November of that year he was elected over Mr. Blaine, the Republican candidate. Mr. Cleveland's administration, 1885-89, was marked by great prosperity to the country at large, by the admission of four new States—Washington, Montana, North Dakota, and South Dakota—to the Union, by an extension of the reform in the Civil Service begun under his predecessor, Mr. Arthur, and by a freer use of the veto-power than had generally been exercised by other Presidents. On the meeting of Congress in December 1887 he devoted his annual message mainly to the advocacy of a reduction in tariff duties in order to prevent the further increase of the surplus in the United States Treasury, which was already large, and which threatened to cause financial difficulties. This message occasioned a prolonged discussion of the principles of protection, and furnished the issue in the National Political Campaign of 1888, when Mr. Cleveland was renominated by the Democrats, and Mr. Harrison was chosen as the Republican candidate. Although the former received a popular majority larger than he had had in 1884, the latter had the greater number of electoral votes, and accordingly on March 4, 1889, Mr. Cleveland left Washington and removed to New York, where he remained in the practice of law till 1893. At the Presidential Election of Nov. 9, 1892, Mr. Cleveland defeated Mr. Harrison by another very large majority. The second inauguration of President Cleveland took place at Washington on March 4, 1893, amid great popular enthusiasm. In his inaugural address the President declared that the nation could never be prosperous without a sound and stable currency. On July 1 he convened Congress by proclamation for August 7, to consider the financial condition of the country. After a prolonged debate, and largely through the personal exertions and influence of Mr. Cleveland, the silver purchase provisions of the Sherman law were repealed by Congress, Nov. 1, 1893. The two other most important events in this administration were the controversy with Great Britain over the Venezuelan boundary line, and the passage of the Wilson tariff law. The former was happily settled without producing the serious difficulties between the two great English-speaking nations that at one time seemed possible. The Wilson Bill slightly reduced the tariff rate from that of the preceding Republican (McKinley) measure, but it also contained an income-tax clause of which President Cleveland could not approve. He did not, however, veto it, but allowed it to become a law without his signature. This provision of the Bill was subsequently declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court. Mr. Cleveland was not a candidate for renomination, and since his retirement (March 4, 1897) has resided at Princeton, New Jersey.

CLIFFORD, Frederick, Q.C., was born in 1828, and called to the Bar of the Middle Temple in 1859. He served as Assistant Boundary Commissioner under the Reform Act of 1867, and was appointed one of her Majesty's Counsel in 1894. Mr. Clifford, who was for many years on the literary staff of the Times, and practises at the Parliamentary Bar, is the author of a treatise on "The Steamboat Powers of Railway Companies," 1865; and is joint author (with Mr. Pembroke Stephens, Q.C.) of a treatise on "The Practice of the Court of Referees on Private Bills in Parliament," 1870, a standard text-book in Private Bill Practice. He is also joint author of yearly volumes of Reports of cases as to the locus standi of Petitioners, decided each Session by the Court of Referees from 1867 down to the year 1884. But his chief work in this connection is a "History of Private Bill Legislation," in 2 vols., 1885-86, dedicated by permission to her Majesty the Queen; a work of great labour, research, and of general interest to historical students for the light it throws upon social progress in Great Britain. He published in 1875, "The Agricultural Lock-out of 1874; with Notes upon Farming and Farm Labour in the Eastern Counties," founded on a series of letters which appeared in the Times; and he is the author also of a treatise on "The Agricultural Holdings Act, 1875"; of other Papers reprinted from the Journal of the Royal Agricultural Society; and of an article on "English Land Law," forming one of the treatises prepared under the direction of the Royal Agricultural Society, and translated and published by "La Société des Agriculteurs de France," for the "Congrès International de l'Agriculture" held in Paris in 1878. Mr. Clifford is joint proprietor with Sir William Leng of a Conservative provincial newspaper, the Sheffield Daily Telegraph, and the group of journals published by the firm of Leng & Co. in Sheffield and London. He was one of the founders and served as Chairman of the Press Association, a body of provincial newspaper proprietors, formed for the purpose of mutual and general news-supply, now developed into a very important and wide-spreading organisation, with its centre in London. Sir John Robinson, manager of the Daily News, and Mr. Clifford were the last surviving members of the Council of the Guild of Literature and Art, a charitable society, constituted by private Act of Parliament in 1858, under the patronage of the Queen and Prince Albert, chiefly by the efforts of Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton, Charles Dickens, and some of the best-known literary men and artists of the day. As the benevolent objects of the founders were not fulfilled, a private Bill was promoted by Sir John Robinson and Mr. Clifford, and was passed in 1897, to dissolve the Guild and hand over its landed property (consisting of almshouses at Knebworth) and funded assets, to the Royal Literary Fund and the Artists' General Benevolent Fund, in equal shares. This work is now (in 1896) being carried out. Mr. Clifford married in 1853 Caroline, third daughter of Thomas Mason, ship-builder, of Hull. Residence: 24 Collingham Gardens, South Kensington.

CLIFFORD, John, D.D., B.Sc., LL.B., F.G.S., minister of Westbourne Park

Church, was born at Sawley, near Derby, Oct. 16, 1836, educated at the Nottingham Baptist College, 1855-58, and at University College, London, 1858-66, taking the London University degrees of B.A., 1861, B.Sc., 1862, with honours in Geology, Logic, and Moral Philosophy; M.A., 1864, bracketed first; LL.B., 1866, with honours in Principles of Legislation. Since 1858 he has been Pastor of the Westbourne Park Church, Paddington, London. He was President of the General Baptist Association, 1872; and Secretary, 1876-78, of the London Baptist Association; President, 1879; and from 1870 to 1883 (inclusive) edited The General Baptist Magazine; and was President of the Baptist Union of Great Britain and Ireland, 1888; and President of the National Council of Free Evangelical Churches of England and Wales, 1898. He is the author of "Familiar Talks on 'Starting in Life,'" London, 1872; "George Mostyn," 1874; "Is Life Worth Living? an Eightfold Answer," 1880, 7th edit., 1894; "English Baptists: Who they are, and What they have Done" (edited), 1883, 2nd edit., 1884; "Daily Strength for Daily Living, Expositions of Old Testament Themes," 3rd edit., 1890; "The Dawn of Manhood," a book for Young Men, 1886, 7th edit., 1894; "Baptist Theology," Contemporary Review, March, 1888; "The Great Forty Years," 1888; "The New City of God," 1888; "The Place of Baptists in the Evolution of British Christianity," Time, 1889; "Who are Christian Ministers?" Lippincott's Magazine, March 1890, &c.; "Christian Certainties," 1893, 4th thousand, 1897; and "The Inspiration and Authority of the Bible," 10th thousand, 1895. In 1862 Dr. Clifford married Rebecca, daughter of Dr. Carter of Newbury, Berks. Address: 50 St. Quintin Avenue, North Kensington.

CLIFFORD, Mrs. William King-don, novelist, is the daughter of John Lane, formerly of Barbados, son of a Speaker of Assembly in that Colony. She was married in 1875 to Professor W. K. Clifford, F.R.S., the brilliantly distinguished mathematician and philosopher, who died in 1879. At his death at the early age of thirty-three, she was granted a civil list pension, and was the recipient of a public testimonial, subscribed for by the many admirers of her husband's genius. As a girl Mrs. Clifford had already written stories, magazine articles, and an anonymous novel, and, in 1882, she published her first well-known book, "Very Short Stories and Anyhow Stories." This was followed by the powerful and painful novel or psychological study, "Mrs. Keith's Crime," 1885, by which she became famous, and this again was succeeded by "Love

Letters of a Worldly Woman," 1891; "A Sad Comedy," "The Last Touches," and "Aunt Anne," 1893; "A Wild Proxy," 1894; "A Flash of Summer," 1895, and "Mere Stories," 1896. Address: 27 Colville Road, W.

CLIFTON, Professor Robert Belamy, M.A. (Cantab. et Oxon.), F.R.S., F.R.A.S., only child of the late Robert Clifton, Esq., was born at Gedney, Lincolnshire, March 13, 1836. After receiving his early education at private schools he entered University College, London, in 1852, and studied Mathematics under the late Professor de Morgan. In 1855 he proceeded to St. John's College, Cambridge, and in 1859 graduated (B.A.) as sixth Wrangler, gaining also the second Smith's Prize for proficiency in Mathematics and Natural Philosophy. In 1860 he was elected to a Fellowship in St. John's College, and also became Professor of Natural Philosophy in Owens College, Manchester, an appointment which he retained until elected Professor of Experimental Philosophy in the University of Oxford in 1865. In 1868 he was admitted a Fellow of the Royal Society. In 1869 a Fellowship in Merton College, Oxford, was conferred upon him, and he subsequently became also a Fellow of Wadham College, Oxford. Professor Clifton is the author of some papers on subjects connected with optics and electricity, but he has principally devoted himself to the development of physics as a branch of study, in the University of Oxford. The Clarendon Laboratory—the first laboratory erected in England specially for instruction in practical physics—was designed and organised by him. From 1879 to 1886 he was a member of the Royal Commission on Accidents in Mines, and he took an active part in the investigations involved in the prosecution of the inquiry. Professor Clifton has been President of the Physical Society of London, 1882–84; he is a Fellow of the Royal Astronomical Society, and of several other scientific societies in London, Cambridge, and Manchester. He is also a member of the Board of Visitors of the Royal Observatory at Greenwich. Addresses: 3 Bardwell Road, Banbury Road, Oxford; and Athenæum.

CLOGHER, Bishop of. See STACK, THE RIGHT REV. CHARLES MAURICE.

CLOWES, William Laird, is the eldest son of William Clowes, sometime one of the Registrars in Chancery, and was born at Hampstead, Feb. 1, 1856. Educated successively at Aldenham, King's College, London, and Lincoln's Inn, he at the last moment abandoned the Bar for journalism; and, as a special correspondent, or as a writer on technical subjects, chiefly naval, he afterwards served the Daily News, the Standard, and finally the Times, until 1895. Towards the end of the period he gradually relinquished journalism, and became a frequent contributor to the Nineteenth Century, the Fortnightly Review, the Contemporary, Blackwood, and similar publications, French and German, as well as British. Since 1883, moreover, he has specially devoted himself to the subject of naval improvement and reform, and to researches in naval history. His papers on the condition of the Navy, under the pseudonym "Nauticus"; on "The Needs of the Navy" (reprinted from the Daily Graphic); on the gunning of battleships (reprinted from the St. James's Gazette); on quick-firing guns; on the mission of torpedo-boats in war-time; and on the value of the ram, have been translated into many languages, and have probably, for good or evil, had an enormous influence upon naval as well as public opinion. Mr. Laird Clowes, who in 1882 married Ethel, second daughter of the late L. F. Edwards of Mitcham, served on the arts and general committees of the Royal Naval Exhibition of 1891; gained the gold medal of the United States Naval Institute in 1892; was elected a Fellow of King's College, London, in 1895; and was chosen an Hon. Member of the Royal United Service Institution, before which he has more than once lectured, in 1896. He has always been much interested in the cause of cheap literature, and it was he who induced Messrs. Cassell to begin the periodical publication of their "National Library." Equally interested in the cause of naval archaeology, he first suggested in the columns of the Times the idea which later gave birth to the Navy Records Society. He is the author of numerous books, including "The Naval Pocket Book" (continued annually), "The Captain of the Mary Rose," "Blood is Thicker than Water," "The Great Peril," "The Double Emperor," and "Black America: a Study of the ex-Slave and his late Master," and he is now the editor of, and principal contributor to, "The Royal Navy: a History, from the Earliest Times to the Present," of which Vols. I., II., and III. have been published, and of which the two concluding volumes may be expected to appear in 1899. Mr. Laird Clowes, who is now permanently exiled from England on account of his health, lives at Davos, Switzerland.

CLUSERET, Gustave Paul, a French military adventurer and Communist general, was born at Paris, June 23, 1823. His father was an ancien officier of the First Empire, and became colonel of a regiment of the line under the monarchy of July. Young Cluseret studied in the military school of St. Cyr, and upon leaving, in 1845, was appointed a sub-lieutenant of his father's regiment, the 55th. In the revolution of February 1848, Cluseret was in command of a section of grenadiers told off for the protection of the Bank. When the National Guard of the quartier relieved the troops, Baron d'Argoult hid the young officer and his soldiers for two days, and then assisted them to escape in disguise from the fury of the people. In the days of June, Cluseret was elected a chief of a battalion of National Guards, and for his bravery under fire was named Chevalier of the Legion of Honour. After the dissolution of the Garde Mobile he returned to his old regiment with the grade of lieutenant, and shortly afterwards was put on the retired list in consequence of a manifestation of politics adverse to the Prince-President. He was replaced at the intercession of Marshal Magnan, an old friend of his father's, and in 1853 was transferred to the Chasseurs-à-pied, with whom he went through the campaign in the Crimea, was made Captain, and, after the peace, went to Africa, where, as his biographer, M. Jules Richard, delicately puts it, "the elasticity of his principles in the matter of the ownership of property made it necessary for him to resign." In 1860 he turned up with the army of Garibaldi, where he became Lieutenant-Colonel. When the war broke out in America he joined the Federals, and fought against the South with the grade of a Colonel. After the close of the American war Cluseret founded the New Nation newspaper, and returned to France and took up the profession of journalism. Another indication of "elasticity of principles" led to the necessity of his quitting Paris, and he came over to England, where he mixed himself up with the Fenian agitation. Returning again to France, he got into trouble by reason of the publication of a newspaper article to which his name was appended, and was condemned to two months' imprisonment in St. Pelagie. There, in addition to the acquaintance of his biographer, he made that of certain agents of the International Society, the effect of which was shortly afterwards seen in his organising the strike of the shop-assistants in Paris in 1869. After the elections of June in that year, Cluseret was expelled from France at the instance of the Minister of War, who had reason to believe that the ex-captain was tampering with the sous-officiers of the garrison. Immediately upon the proclamation of the Provisional Government of Sept. 4, 1870, the exile turned up again, and his subsequent history is legibly written in the records of revolution at Marseilles, Lyons, and Paris. For a short time he was at the head of the military operations of the Paris Commune, but, like nearly all the other agents of that body, he soon fell under suspicion, and was arrested, though he was released from custody shortly before the entrance of the Versailles troops. It was reported that he was shot before Sept. 22-26, 1871; but, notwithstanding the vigilant search made for him by the police, he remained in concealment in Paris till the end of the month of December 1871, when he escaped to London. Soon afterwards he went to the United States. The Third Council of War, sitting at Versailles, condemned him to death, par contumace, Aug. 30, 1872. Cluseret and his publisher were, on Jan. 27, 1881, sentenced by default to two years' imprisonment and 3000 francs' fine for an article inciting soldiers to mutiny. He again left France and returned in 1884, when he exhibited his paintings, of which some have lately appeared in the Salon. In 1887-88 he published his Memoirs. They deal with the Second Siege of Paris, and are an apology for the Commune. In 1888 General Cluseret stood for Parliament in the Var, and was elected as a "revolutionist." He was re-elected at Toulon in 1889.

COBBE, Frances Power, daughter of Charles Cobbe, of Newbridge House, co. Dublin, D.L., J.P. (who fought at Assaye as lieutenant in the 19th Light Dragoons), was born Dec. 4, 1822, and educated at Brighton. She has been a frequent contributor to the periodicals of the day, and is the author of the following works: "An Essay on Intuitive Morals," 1855 (3rd. edit., 1859); "Religious Duty," 1857 (2nd edit., 1864); "Pursuits of Women," 1863; "Cities of the Past," 1863; "Broken Lights," 1864 (3rd edit., two American edit.); "Italics," 1864; "Studies Ethical and Social," 1865; "Hours of Work and Play," 1867; "Dawning Lights," 1868; "Alone, to the Alone," 1871 (3rd edit., 1881); "Darwinism in Morals," 1872; "Hopes of the Human Race," 1874, 1880; "Echoes," 1876; "False Beasts and True," 1875; "Duties of Women," 1880 (3rd English, 8th American edit., 1889); "The Peak in Darien," 1881; "A Faithless World," 1885; "The Scientific Spirit of the Age," 1888; "The Modern Rack," 1889; "The Friend of Man" (2nd edit., 1890. Beside these books Miss Cobbe has issued a great number of pamphlets, among which are: "The Workhouse as an Hospital," 1861; "Friendless Girls, and How to Help Them," 1861, containing count of the original Preventive at Bristol; "Female Education," (a plea for granting University to women), and more than two hundred pamphlets and leaflets on the education question. Miss Cobbe resided many years in Bristol with the late Carpenter, for the purpose of working her reformatory and ragged schools; subsequently originated, in concert with Miss Elliot, a scheme for befriending young servants (now worked by the Temperance Association founded for that purpose); and another for the relief of the incurables. After journeys to Palestine, and Greece, and several to Italy, Miss Cobbe joined her daughter, Miss Lloyd, of Hengwrt, in taking up her abode in South Kensington, where she has resided for twenty years. She was for a part of her time on the staff of the Echo, and has frequently contributed to that of the Standard, and has contributed largely to other newspapers and periodicals, the Quarterly Review, the Englishman, &c. She was engaged, besides her literary work, in promoting the Act (41 Geo. III. c. 19) of 1818, whereby wives whose husbands have been convicted of aggravated assaults upon them are enabled to obtain Separation Orders; and also in the movement for obtaining Parliamentary suffrage for women. In 1880-81 she delivered to audiences of ladies a series of lectures on the Duties of a Woman, which have been largely circulated in America, and also translated and published in Danish, Italian, and French. During the last fifteen years Miss Cobbe has been principally occupied in founding and conducting as Hon. Secretary the Victoria Street Society for the Protection of Children from Vivisection, an Association of which the late Lord Shaftesbury was the first President. She resigned in 1884 her position and the editorship of the Zoophilist and the Society (now called the National Anti-Vivisection Society). Having subsequently modified its name, Miss Cobbe has withdrawn altogether. Miss Cobbe resides at 10, Portland Road, near Dolgelly; but continues to work on behalf of the cause of sentimentality in animals as opposed to the demands of physiological science. Address: Hengwrt, Gwynedd, N. Wales.

FIN, Charles Hayden, was born in Manchester in 1862, his father and mother being Americans, who had come from New England, U.S.A. He was educated at University College, London, and originally intended to enter the medical profession, and passed the preliminary examinations. In 1885, however, he went to the Continent, and being possessed of a good voice, he has gained a high reputation as a singer in comic and light opera.

He has recently appeared in "The Geisha" at Daly's Theatre, and was in 1898-99 engaged in "The Greek Slave" at the same theatre. He was married in 1892 to Adeline, daughter of Frederick de Leuw, of Gräfrath, Germany. Address: Campden Hill Cottage, Kensington, W.

COLCHESTER, Bishop Suffragan of. See JOHNSON, THE RIGHT REV. H. F.

COLERIDGE, The Hon. Stephen, second son of the 1st Lord Coleridge, was born in 1854, and married in 1879 Geraldine, daughter and co-heiress of the late Charles Manners Lushington, jun., of Norton Court, Kent, M.P. He was educated at Bradfield, and at Trinity College, Cambridge, graduating B.A. in 1876, and M.A. in 1880. He was called to the Bar in 1886. After leaving Cambridge he travelled in the East, and then went to South America for a year, where he was in Chili and Peru during the war between those countries. He visited Panama when Lesseps cut the first sod of the Canal, and he has frequently visited the United States. He was private secretary to his father, the late Lord Chief-Justice of England, from 1882 to 1890, when he was appointed Clerk of Assize on the South Wales Circuit, which office he still holds. He is the author of "Demetrius," 1887; and "The Sanctity of Confession," 1890; and has reviewed for several papers for some years. He is an artist, exhibiting his pictures regularly in the London and Provincial Galleries. But perhaps his greatest interest is in humanitarian causes. He is one of the Council of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and is a leader of the Anti-Vivisection Movement, being Hon. Secretary of the National Anti-Vivisection Society, into whose internal regulations he has introduced reforms, and over whose methods of carrying on the agitation he has exercised considerable influence. Addresses: 7 Egerton Mansions, South Kensington; and The Ford, Greywell, Hants.

COLLEN, Sir Edwin Henry Hayter, K.C.I.E., was born in 1843, and entered the Royal Artillery in 1863. He served in the Abyssinian War, 1868, in the Afghan War, 1880, and in the Soudan Expedition in 1885. In 1893 he was created a K.C.I.E. He is also a C.B. He is a Colonel on the Indian Staff Corps, and Secretary to the Military Department of the Government of India. Address: Calcutta.

COLLET, Sir Mark Wilks, Bart., J.P., was born in London in September 1816, is the second son of Mr. James Collet, a London merchant, and was educated abroad. He is a partner in the house of Brown, Shipley & Co., London; was elected a Director of the Bank of England in 1866; filled the office of Deputy Governor of the Bank from 1885 to 1887, and of Governor from 1887 to 1889. He was created a Baronet in 1888 in recognition of services rendered as Governor of the Bank in connection with the Conversion of the National Debt, effected in that year. He is a J.P. and Deputy Lieutenant for the County of Kent, and for the County of London, and also a Commissioner of Lieutenancy for the City of London. Addresses: St. Clere, Kemsing, Kent; and 2 Sussex Square, W.

COLLIE, John Norman, Ph.D., F.R.S., was born at Alderley Edge, Cheshire, on Sept. 10, 1859, and was educated at Charterhouse and Clifton College. He is Professor of Chemistry to the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain, Bloomsbury Square, London, W.C. He is a member of the Royal Society of Edinburgh; of the Geographical Society; of the Chemical Societies of London and Berlin; and of the Alpine Club, &c. &c. Address: 16 Campden Grove, Kensington.

COLLINGS, The Right Hon. Jesse, M.P., was born in 1831 in the parish of Littleham-cum-Exmouth in Devonshire. He comes of humble parentage, but received what in those days was considered a fair education, and at an early period of his life entered, as clerk, the Birmingham firm of Messrs. Samuel Booth & Co., subsequently becoming their representative in the South and West of England. He at length acquired their business and settled in Birmingham in 1866 as head partner in the firm of "Collings & Wallis." Taking, as he did, an active part in public work, he was in 1867 elected a member of the Birmingham Education Society, and early in 1868 published a vigorous pamphlet entitled "An Outline of the American School System: with Remarks on the Establishment of a Common School System in England." In this pamphlet, which had a large circulation, he advocated the formation of "a Society on the Principle of the Anti-Corn-Law League, national in name and constitution, refusing all compromise, its platform being National Secular (or unsectarian) Education, compulsory in rating and in attendance." Later in the same year "The National Education League" was formed, Mr. George Dixon being President, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain Chairman of the Executive Committee, and Mr. Jesse Collings Honorary Secretary. The action of the League materially assisted the passing of the National Education Act in 1870, and Mr. Collings was to the front in all its deliberations. In 1868 he became a member of the Town Council of Birmingham, and in 1878 was unanimously elected Mayor. His tenure of office was notable in many ways. In 1878-79 he did much to alleviate the prevalent distress among the poor of Birmingham by instituting the "Mayor's Fund," which gave relief to more than 10,000 families. In 1879 he was mainly instrumental in rebuilding the Central Free Libraries of Birmingham, which had been destroyed by fire. He became notorious in 1878 for his severe action against certain "Jingo" dissentients who disturbed a political meeting of which he was chairman. These persons—of whom there were some hundreds—created a disturbance at a political meeting called at the Town Hall "to consider the Afghan Policy of the Government," and were ejected by the police at Mr. Collings's request. Several of the rejected brought actions against the Mayor and others, and the case was tried in the Criminal Court, where Mr. Collings was defended by Sir Henry James. The Stipendiary, Mr. Kynnersley, declined to state a case, and the right of a chairman to eject uproarious opponents remains unsettled. About twenty years ago Mr. Collings assisted in the formation of the Agricultural Labourers' Union, and was for some time a member of its Executive Committee. His political life is intimately associated with the aims of this association. In 1880 he entered Parliament as Radical member for Ipswich, and represented that constituency till 1885. On entering Parliament he determined to devote himself chiefly to the cause of the agricultural labourer, and in 1882, after several defeats, he succeeded in passing the Allotments Extension Act. At the same time he introduced a General Allotments Bill and a Small Holdings Bill, which embodied the policy known as "Three Acres and a Cow." These bills were repeatedly defeated, until in 1886 Mr. Collings moved an amendment to the Address, setting forth the necessity for legislation favourable to the agricultural labourers. The amendment was carried, and caused the fall of the Conservative Government. In 1887 the Unionist Government passed the Allotments Bill with but slight alteration. The Small Holdings Bill was also adopted and passed in 1892, and the administration of the Act was placed in the hands of the County Councils. The Act tends to produce a peasant proprietary, and Mr. Collings holds "that not only the rural labourers, but the working men in towns and centres of industry, as well as shopkeepers, manu-

rs, and traders generally, will all be ed by the increased production of aller articles of food, which can be produced" by owners of small gs. Mr. Collings has been a warm nt of the action of the Charity ssioners in rural districts. He has d their schemes, and to a great modified their policy towards the classes in country districts. When a bill was passed for disfranchising who had received parochial relief, eeded in carrying a proviso that a r who had been attended by a Poor edical Officer should not lose his In 1883 he founded the Allotments tion, but was turned out of it in owing to his having become a st. He thereupon formed the Rural Labourers' League, which t securing to the labourer the s given him under recent Acts. Mr. Collings was re-elected in 1892 to rdesley Division of Birmingham, he has represented since 1886. He or of several pamphlets on free on and peasant proprietorship. In e married the daughter of Mr. l Oxenbould, by whom he has one r, married to Mr. H. C. Field. He itarian in creed. In 1886 he was entary Secretary to the Local ment Board, and in 1891 was a r of the Royal Labour Commission. s he became a member of Lord ry's Government as Under Secre- State for the Home Department. s: The Woodlands, Edgbaston, gham.

COLLINGWOOD, Outhbert, M.A. M. Oxon., F.L.S., &c., was born at ich, Dec. 25, 1826, and educated g's College School, Christ Church, Edinburgh University, and Guy's l. He also studied in Paris and

From 1858 to 1866 he resided in ol, occupying during that period ir of Botany in the Medical School, t of Biology in the School of Science. also Senior Physician to the Liver- orthern Hospital. Dr. Collingwood n a Fellow of the Linnean Society 53, and sat on the Council in 1868. 67 he undertook as a volunteer, he sanction of the Admiralty, a c voyage for the study of marine , &c., visiting China, Formosa, and Singapore, the results being d in "Rambles of a Naturalist on res and Waters of the China Sea," n numerous papers read before c societies, and in scientific jour- He is the author of "A Vision of a," "The Travelling Birds," and as scientific papers. In 1876-77

Dr. Collingwood travelled in Palestine and Egypt, and published an account of his journey.

COLLINS, Right Hon. Sir Richard Henn, Lord Justice of Appeal, third son of Mr. Stephen Collins, Q.C., of Dublin, and Frances, daughter of William Henn and Susanna, sister of Sir Jonathan Lovett, of Liscombe, Bucks, Bart., was born in 1842, and was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, where he took the highest honours in classics and moral science. He left Dublin without taking a degree, and proceeded to Downing College, Cambridge. He was bracketed fourth in the Classical Tripos, and was elected a Fellow of Downing in 1865, becoming an Hon. Fellow on the expiration of his Fellowship. Called to the Bar at the Middle Temple in November 1867, he joined the Northern Circuit, and was created a Q.C. in 1883, and elected a Bencher of his Inn in 1884. He enjoyed a large practice both as junior and as Queen's Counsel, and appeared latterly in the important licensing appeal of "Sharp v. Wakefield" in the House of Lords, and in the Clitheroe Abduction Case, in which he appeared as leading Counsel for Mr. Jackson in the Court of Appeal. He was for long well known as a sound and careful lawyer. In April 1891 he was elevated to the Bench in succession to the late Mr. Justice Stephen, who had then recently retired. He was for four years President of the Railway Commission. In 1897 he was raised to the Court of Appeal and made a Privy Councillor. He was for some years a member of the Bar Committee, and is joint editor of "Smith's Leading Cases." He married in 1868 Jane, daughter of the Very Rev. O. W. Moore, Dean of Clogher. Addresses: 3 Bramham Gardens, S.W.; and Athenæum.

COLLINS, Dr. William Job, M.D., B.Sc., F.R.C.S., D.L., J.P., is the eldest son of the late Dr. Collins of Regent's Park, and comes of a Warwickshire family. He is related through his mother and the Huguenot family of Garnault to Sir Samuel Romilly. He was born on May 9, 1859, and was educated at University College School and St. Bartholomew's Hospital, where his career was distinguished. He graduated M.B. at the University of London, with double first-class honours, and became F.R.C.S. before he was twenty-six. He was appointed Ophthalmic Surgeon to the North West London Hospital in 1884, and Assistant Surgeon and in 1896 Surgeon to the Royal Eye Hospital at Southwark. Since 1888 Dr. Collins has been Surgeon to the London Temperance Hospital. In 1892 he became a candidate, in the Progressive interest, for West St. Pancras, for the

Hallett in Siam and the Siamese Shan States in 1883-84, during which they succeeded in tracing out the best route for their proposed system of railways. On his return to England Mr. Colquhoun was awarded the gold medal of the Royal Geographical Society; published "Across Chryse," a book in two volumes, giving an account of his travels. He contributed many important letters to the Times on China and Indo-China, addressed several Chambers of Commerce, and awakened general interest in those parts of the East and in the proposed system of railways. "Among the Shans" was published in 1883. In June 1883 he left England for China and Tonquin as special correspondent of the Times; his able letters and descriptions of the people and country at once placed him in the foremost rank of correspondents, and were quickly republished. Returning to England in October, he again left for the Times in November, remaining in the East until the close of the Franco-Chinese war. He came back to England in July 1885, addressed the London Chamber of Commerce upon "English Commercial Policy in the East," proposed the annexation of Upper Burma, and the alliance of England and China so as to frustrate the aims of France and Russia in the East, and to advance the development of our commerce with China. Whilst in China he did all in his power to increase the friendly feeling of the Chinese Government for the English, and was entrusted by Li Hung Chang with a message to the Viceroy of India, proposing the early connection of India and China by telegraph, via Burma and the Burmese Shan States. In Siam he saw the King, and explained the proposed system of railways, and was subsequently informed by our Minister at Bangkok that the Siamese would construct their portion of the railway if the British would meet them with a line to the frontier. Mr. Colquhoun acted from 1885 to 1889 as Deputy-Commissioner in Upper Burma, where he gained much credit for his able administration of affairs. In 1889 he left Burma on leave, and was appointed by Mr. Rhodes to the British South Africa Company, and employed in drawing up regulations for Mashonaland. In 1890 he accompanied the Pioneer Expedition for the occupation of Mashonaland, invested with a commission to assume the duties of Administrator and Chief Magistrate, which post he filled in 1890-91, organising the first settlement of that important colony. The Manika Treaty, which secured a valuable territory for Britain, was executed by him. In 1891 Mr. Colquhoun was invalided home, and retired from the service of the British South Africa Company in 1892. In November 1893 he retired on a pension from the service of the Government of India. In December 1893 he published "Matabeleland and our Position in South Africa," and subsequently addressed many of the leading Chambers of Commerce on "Matabeleland and our New Colony in South Africa." In 1892-93 he visited the United States, and in 1895 Central America, in order to examine the Nicaragua and Panama canal routes. He subsequently went to China. His last book (1895) is entitled "The Key of the Pacific." Club: Savage.

COLVILLE, Major-General Sir Henry Edward, K.C.M.G., C.B., was born at Kirkby Hall, Leicestershire, on July 10, 1852, his father being Charles Robert Colville, Esq., of Lullington, Burton-on-Trent, and his mother Katherine Sarah Georgina Russell, daughter of the 22nd Baroness de Clifford and Commander John Russell, R.N., son of Lord William Russell, brother of the 5th and 6th Dukes of Bedford. He is head of the senior branch of the families of Colville and Colville, which separated in the twelfth century. He was educated at Eton, and entered the Grenadier Guards in 1870. He was appointed A.D.C. to General the Hon. Sir Leicester Smythe, commanding the forces in South Africa, in 1880. He served on the Intelligence Department of the Suakim Expedition of 1884, was present at the battles of El Teb and Tamai, mentioned in despatches, and received the bronze star, medal, and clasp. He was employed on special service in the Sudan prior to the Nile Expedition of 1884-85, and during that Expedition served as D.A.A.G.; was mentioned in despatches; received the clasp, and was created C.B. At the close of the Expedition he was Chief of the Intelligence Department of the Frontier Force; was present at the action at Giniss; was mentioned in despatches, and was promoted to the rank of Colonel. He was then attached to the Intelligence Department at headquarters, and wrote the official history of the Sudan Campaign. In 1893 he succeeded the late Sir Gerald Portal as Commissioner (Acting) for Uganda, commanded the Nyoro Expedition, which resulted in the inclusion of that country into the Protectorate; received the Central African medal, was created K.C.M.G., and received the second-class Brilliant Star of Zanzibar. He was selected for promotion to the rank of Major-General, April 12, 1898. He is the author of "A Ride in Petticoats and Slippers," 1879; an account of exploration in the Lesser Atlas; "The Accursed Land," 1884; an account of exploration in the Wady el Arabah; "History of the Sudan Campaign," compiled for the War Office, 1887; "The Land of the Nile Springs," 1895, an account of the Unyoro Campaign. He married (1) in 1880 Alice Rosa, daughter of the Hon. Robert Daly, who died in Natal in 1882; (2) in 1886 Zélie Isabelle, daughter of M. Pierré Richaud de Préville, Château des Moudrans, Basses Pyrénées, by whom he has issue, Gilbert de Préville, born 1887. Addresses: Lullington, Burton-on-Trent; Lightwater, Bagshot.

COLVIN, Sir Auckland, K.C.M.G., K.C.S.I., C.I.E., son of the late John Russell Colvin, B.C.S., late Lieut.-Governor of the North-West Provinces of India, by Emma Sophia, daughter of the Rev. W. Sneyd, was born in 1838. He was educated at Eton and at Haileybury (East India) College, and entered the Indian Civil Service in 1858. In 1879 he was nominated to the charge of the Cadaastre in Egypt, and became later in that year the British member of the Caisse de la Dette Publique. He was a member of the International Commission of Egyptian Liquidation in 1880, and was appointed British Controller-General in Egypt the same year. In 1881 he was created a Knight Commander of the Order of SS. Michael and George, in 1883 C.I.E., and in 1892 K.C.S.I. Sir Auckland Colvin took a prominent part in assisting and advising the Khedive on the occasion of Arabi Pasha's military demonstration on Sept. 9, 1881, and in July 1883 he received the thanks of her Majesty's Government for his services prior and subsequent to that event. After the abolition of the Dual Control (January 1883), he became Financial Adviser to the Khedive. In October 1883 he became Financial Member of the Council of the Governor-General of India, and in 1887 he was appointed Lieut.-Governor, North-West Provinces, and Chief Commissioner, Oudh, India. In 1892 he retired. He is Chairman of Burmah Railways Company and Egyptian Delta Light Railways Company. He has received the grand cordons both of the Order of the Medjidieh and of the Osmanieh. He has published "John Russell Colvin" in the "Rulers of India" Series, 1895. In 1859 he married Charlotte Elizabeth, daughter of the late Lieut.-General Charles Herbert, C.B. She died in 1865. Address: Earl Soham Lodge, Wickham Market, Suffolk.

COLVIN, Sidney, M.A., was born at Norwood, Surrey, June 18, 1845. He is the youngest son of the late Mr. Bazett D. Colvin, of the firm of Crauford, Colvin, and Co., of 71 Old Broad Street, and of Sealings, Woodbridge, Suffolk, by his wife Mary Stewart, eldest daughter of the late Mr. William Butterworth Bayley, of the East India Company's Civil Service. Mr. Colvin was educated at home and at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he was Chancellor's English Medallist in 1865, and where he graduated as third in the first class of the Classical Tripos in 1867. He was elected a Fellow of Trinity College in 1869; Slade Professor of Fine Arts, 1873 (re-elected 1876, 1879, 1882, and 1885); and was appointed Director of the Fitzwilliam Museum, Cambridge, in 1876. Having been appointed Keeper of the Department of Prints and Drawings in the British Museum in December 1884, Mr. Colvin resigned the direction of the Fitzwilliam Museum at that date, and the post of Slade Professor in January 1886. He is a Member of the German Archaeological Institute, and Corresponding Member of the Historical Society of Maine, U.S. Since 1867 he has been a frequent contributor, chiefly as a critic and historian of art and literature, to the Portfolio, Fortnightly Review, Cornhill Magazine, Nineteenth Century, Edinburgh Review, Macmillan's Magazine, and other periodicals. In addition to his being a contributor to periodical literature, he is the author of the following books: "Children in Italian and English Design," 1872; "Landor," in the "English Men of Letters" series, 1882; and "Keats," in the same series, 1886. He has also edited "Selections from the Writings of Walter Savage Landor," 1884; and "Letters of Keats," 1887. He is now preparing the "Life and Letters of Robert Louis Stevenson," and has during recent years edited the magnificent Edinburgh edition of Robert Louis Stevenson's collected works. Addresses: British Museum; and Athenæum.

COMMERELL, Admiral of the Fleet Sir John Edmund, G.C.B., &c., J.P., second son of Mr. John W. Commerell, of Stroud Park, Horsham, Sussex, by Sophia, daughter of Mr. William Bosanquet, of Harley Street, London, was born in London in 1829. Entering the Royal Navy in 1842, he became Lieutenant in 1848, Commander in 1855, Captain in 1859, Rear-Admiral in 1877, and Vice-Admiral in 1881. He served in China and South America, and took part in all the operations in the Parana (1845-46), especially at Punta Obligado, where he assisted in cutting the chain that defended the river. Afterwards he served in the Baltic and the Gulf of Bothnia (1854), and as Lieutenant of H.M.S. Weacer was present at Sebastopol, and in several operations in the Sea of Azov. He was twice mentioned in despatches, and received the Victoria Cross for hazardous service in the Putrid Sea. He commanded H.M.S. Fury in 1859, and in July of that year he led a division of seamen in the attack on the Taku Forts. For this service he was highly praised in despatches, and promoted to H.M.S. Magicienne, in which he served during the subsequent operations in China. In 1866 he was in command of H.M.S. Terrible, and rendered active service in laying the Atlantic cable. He commanded H.M.S. Monarch on particular service in 1868-69, and in 1872-73 he served as Commodore of the second class, and senior officer in command off the Cape of Good Hope and West Coast of Africa. In August 1873, whilst reconnoitring up the river Prah to discover the position of the Ashantees, the boats were fired upon from the banks, and Commodore Commerell was so dangerously wounded as to necessitate his relinquishing the command of the station. After going to Cape Town for the cure of his wounds he returned to England, when he was nominated a Knight Commander of the Order of the Bath, and appointed a Groom-in-Waiting to the Queen. Sir J. E. Commerell was second in command of the Mediterranean Fleet from July 1877 to October 1878, and was a Lord of the Admiralty from October 1879 to May 1880. He was appointed Commander-in-Chief, North American and West India Stations, in 1882. Admiral in 1886, and Admiral of the Fleet in 1892. He was Commander-in-Chief at Portsmouth at the time of the Emperor of Germany's first visit to England in 1889, and was presented with a large bronze medal by the Queen to commemorate this event. From the Emperor he received a sword and an autograph letter in commemoration of the Naval Review at Spithead. Appointed Groom-in-Waiting to the Queen in June 1891, he was selected by her to be Senior Naval Officer in attendance on the German Emperor in 1891 and 1893. In December 1893 he was presented by the Sultan with the insignia of the Order of the Medjidieh of the First Class. He represented Southampton in Parliament from 1885 to 1888, and voted as a Conservative. He married in 1853 a daughter of J. Bushby, Esq. Address: 45 Rutland Gate, S.W.

COMMON, Andrew Ainslie, F.R.S., F.H.A.S., was born Aug. 7, 1841, at Newcastle-on-Tyne, and is the son of Thomas Common, surgeon. He was educated privately, was elected a Fellow of the Royal Astronomical Society in 1876, Fellow of the Royal Society in 1885, was President of the Royal Astronomical Society in 1895-96, and Gold Medallist for work in Celestial Photography, carried on principally at his observatory at Ealing, near London, where he has one of the largest equatorial telescopes, and has been most successful in obtaining photographs of the heavens, including nebulae and stars of the eleventh magnitude. He has also made many large reflecting equatorials, one of which is the largest known. Address: Eaton Rise, Ealing.

COMPTON, The Right Rev. Lord Alwyne Frederick, D.D. Bishop of Ely, is a younger son of the 2nd Marquis of Northampton, by the eldest daughter of the late Major-General Douglas Maclean Clephane, of Torloisk, N.B. He was born in 1825, and educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he took the degree of M.A., coming out as a wrangler in 1848. He was appointed rector of Castle Ashby, Northamptonshire, in 1852, and nominated to an honorary canonry in Peterborough Cathedral in 1856. He was made rural dean of Preston Deanery in 1874, and in 1875 was appointed to the Archdeaconry of Oakham, which he held till October 1879, when he was nominated by Lord Beaconsfield to the Deanery of Worcester, in succession to the late Dr. Yorke. He held this post until 1885, when he was appointed Bishop of Ely in succession to the late Dr. Woodford. Lord Alwyne Compton was for some years an active and zealous member of the Convocation of the Clergy, both as Proctor for the diocese of Peterborough and also as Archdeacon. He was appointed Lord High Almoner in 1882. His Lordship is married to a daughter of the late Rev. Robert Anderson, of Brighton. Addresses: The Palace, Ely; Ely House, 37 Dover St., W.; and Athenæum.

CONGER, Edwin H., was born in Knox County, Illinois, March 7, 1843, and was graduated from Lombard University, Galesburg, Illinois, in 1862. Immediately after graduating he entered the Army, and became Lieutenant, Captain, and Brevet-Major for gallant and meritorious action in the field. After the war between the States was over he studied law, was admitted to the Bar, and practised his profession in Galesburg. In 1868 he removed to Iowa, and engaged in stock-raising and banking. He was Treasurer of the State of Iowa from 1882 to 1885, and was elected to Congress in 1884; served three terms in Congress, and was made United States Minister to Brazil by President Harrison. In 1897 he was sent as United States Minister to China.

CONGREVE, Richard, M.A., M.R.C.P. (1866), third son of Thomas and Julia Congreve, born at Leamington, Hastings, Warwickshire, Sept. 4, 1818, was educated at Rugby under Dr. Arnold, and became successively Scholar, Fellow, and Tutor of Wadham College, where he graduated B.A. in 1840, taking first-class Honours in Classics. Having acted for some time as an Assistant Master at Rugby, he returned to Oxford, where he resumed his Tutorship at Wadham College. In 1855 he published a small volume on the history of the Roman Empire of the West, and an edition of Aristotle's "Politics," with notes (2nd edit. 1874). He resigned his Fellowship, and after deeply studying the social and religious system of the late M. Comte, embraced it as the best solution of the social and religious difficulties which surrounded him. Mr. Congreve has since published "Gibraltar," a pamphlet on Indian matters, in which he recommends England to give up its Indian Empire as indefensible; "Italy and the Western Powers"; "Elizabeth of England"; various translations from Comte, such as "The Catechism of Positive Religion," 1858; "Essays: Political, Social, and Religious," 1874; and some sermons.

CONNAUGHT and STRATHEARN, Duchess of, Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise Margaret of Prussia, born July 25, 1860, and married at Windsor Castle March 13, 1879, is the third daughter of the late Prince Frederick Charles, and grand-niece of the late Emperor William of Germany. Her Royal Highness has three children—the Princess Margaret Victoria Charlotte Auguste Norah, born at Bagshot Park Jan. 16, 1882; the Prince Arthur Frederick Patrick Albert, born at Windsor Castle Jan. 13, 1883; and the Princess Victoria Patricia Helena Elizabeth, born March 17, 1886.

CONNAUGHT and STRATHEARN, Duke of, His Royal Highness Arthur William Patrick Albert, K.G., K.T., K.P., G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., G.C.V.O., G.C.B., G.C.M.G., A.D.C., General, Prince of the United Kingdom, the third son of her Majesty Queen Victoria, was born at Buckingham Palace May 1, 1850. He entered the Military Academy at Woolwich as a cadet in 1866, became a Lieutenant in the Royal Engineers in 1868, and a Lieutenant in the Royal Artillery in February 1869. He was appointed a Lieutenant in the Rifle Brigade in August 1869, and a Captain in excess of the establishment of the regiment in 1871. On attaining his majority in the last-named year, Parliament voted him a grant of £15,000 per annum, and an addition of £10,000 was voted on his marriage in 1879. Prince Arthur was created Duke of Connaught and Strathearn, and Earl of Sussex, May 26, 1874, and took his seat in the House of Lords on the 8th of the following month. At a Council held at Windsor May 16, 1878, the Queen declared the intended marriage of the Duke of Connaught and Strathearn to Princess Louise Margaret of Prussia, third daughter of the late Prince Frederick Charles, and grand-niece of the late Emperor William of Germany. The marriage was celebrated at Windsor March 13, 1879. His Royal Highness's staff services are: Brigade-Major at Aldershot in 1873; Brigade-Major to the Cavalry Brigadier at the same quarters in 1875, in the October of which year he was appointed Assistant Adjutant-General at Gibraltar, which post he held until April 1876. In 1880 he was made a General of Brigade at Aldershot. He commanded the Guards Brigade in the First Division in the Expedition to Egypt in 1882; was present at the battles of Mahshuta and Tel-el-Kebir, and was three times mentioned in despatches. He thus fulfilled one of his dearest ambitions, which was to see active service. It was suggested at the time that he had been expressly kept out of danger, but this was categorically denied by Lord Wolseley. He was appointed in October 1882 Honorary Colonel of the 13th Bengal Lancers serving in Egypt. In 1883 he assumed command of the Meerut Division in the Bengal Presidency, and in 1886 was appointed to the command of the Bombay army. In September 1886 the Duke, accompanied by the Duchess, left England for India, arriving at Bombay September 27. His Royal Highness was Commander-in-Chief of the forces in the Bengal Presidency until 1890, and, on his returning home, of the Southern District in England. He was promoted to the full rank of General (April 1893), and was appointed Commander-in-Chief at Aldershot in August, in succession to Sir Evelyn Wood, vacating this post, in which he has been deservedly popular with all ranks, October 1898. In June 1898 he was made G.C.B. In 1898 he was present at the French autumn manoeuvres as the guest of the late President Faure.

CONNEMARA, Lord, The Right Hon. Robert Bourke, G.C.S.I., third son of the 5th Earl of Mayo, was born at Hayes, co. Meath, June 11, 1827, and educated at Enniskillen School, at Hall Place, Kent, and at Trinity College, Dublin. Called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1852, he went the South Wales Circuit, and attended the Knutsford sessions for twelve years. Mr. Bourke also had a large business at the Parliamentary Bar. He was elected M.P. for Lynn Regis, in the Conservative interest, at the general election of December 1868, and continued to represent that borough in the House of Commons until 1886. When Mr. Disraeli came into power in February 1874, Mr. Bourke was appointed Under-Secretary of State for lently on his descent from the tribune. The vote was defeated by 339 votes to 43. M. Constans resigned his position in 1892, and has not since taken part in any Ministry. He has been often called "the strong man of France." Paris address: 93 Avenue des Champs Elysées.

CONSTANT, Jean Joseph Benjamin, a French painter, born at Paris, June 10, 1845, studied in the École des Beaux-Arts, and then entered the atelier of M. Cabanel. The first picture which he sent to the Salon was "Hamlet et le Roi," 1869; and he has since exhibited "Trop tard," 1870; "Samson et Déilah," 1872; "Femmes du Riff (Maroc)" and "Bouchers maures à Tanger," 1873; "Coin de Rue" and "Carrefour à Tanger," 1874; "Prisonniers Marocains," "Femmes de Harem à Maroc," and "Le Dr. Guéneau de Massy," 1875; "Mohamed II, le 29 Mai 1453," a picture of colossal dimensions, afterwards sent to the Exposition Universelle of 1878; "M. Emmanuel Arago," 1876; "La Soif," "Le Harem," and "Hamlet au Cimetière," 1878; "Le Soir sur les Terrasses au Maroc" and "Favorite de l'Emir," 1879; "Le dernier Rebelle," 1880; "Herodiade," 1881; "Le Lendemain d'une Victoire à l'Alhambra," 1882; "La Vengeance du Chérif," 1885, a large picture, which is typical of M. Constant's latest manner—an Oriental subject, as melodramatic as possible; ample opportunities for painting the nude; and strong effects of colour. He exhibited "Judith" and "Justinien," 1886; "Orphée" and "Theodora," 1887; decorative panels for the new Sorbonne, 1888; "Le Jour des Funérailles," a scene in Morocco, 1889; "Beethoven" and "Victrix," 1890. The painter has received several medals, and is one of the most successful and most studied members of the modern French school. M. Constant, who was promoted to the rank of Officer of the Legion of Honour in 1884, married one of the daughters of M. Emmanuel Arago. Paris address: 27 Rue Pigalle.

CONWAY, Dr. Moncure Daniel, lately minister of the South Place Ethical Society, was born in Virginia on March 17, 1832, and is the son of Americans of the best Revolutionary stock, his father being Walker Peyton Conway, Justice of Stafford County, descended from the Washingtons, and his mother Margaret Eleanor Daniel, granddaughter of Thomas Stone, who was one of the signatories of the Declaration of Independence. Educated at Dickinson College, Pennsylvania, he studied law and entered the Methodist Ministry in 1850. In 1852 he entered the Unitarian Divinity College at Harvard, followed a course in Divinity, and became a Unitarian preacher at Washington in 1854. So strenuously did he denounce slavery from the pulpit that he was compelled to leave this cure. He became Unitarian minister in Cincinnati in 1857. In 1861 the war between North and South broke out, and he proceeded on a lecturing campaign against slavery in the Northern States. For this tour he accepted no pecuniary reward. Putting his belief in emancipation into practice, he colonised his father's slaves in Ohio. For a short time he lived at Concord, and while there was editor of the Boston Commonwealth. In 1863 he came to England to lecture on the war, and in the following year began his much-talked-of career as minister of South Place Chapel, the ethical or religious teaching of which community is of the most advanced kind. In the Franco-German War he was with the Germans as correspondent of the New York World. Mr. Moncure Conway, besides being well known as a lecturer and preacher of advanced views, has been for years a leading figure in the literary world of London and New York. He has written voluminously for the reviews and magazines, and has published: "Tracts for To-day," 1857; "The Rejected Stone," 1861; "The Golden Hour," 1862; "The Earthward Pilgrimage;" "The Sacred Anthology," 1872; "Idols and Ideals," 1874; "Travels in South Kensington," 1875; "Demonology and Devil-lore," 1879; "The Wandering Jew," 1880; "Emerson at Home and Abroad," 1882; "Thomas Carlyle," 1886; "Life of Edmund Randolph," 1887; "Nathaniel Hawthorne," 1890; "Barons of the Potomack and Rappahanock," and "Life of Thomas Paine," 1892; and a standard edition of Tom Paine's works, which appeared between the years 1893 and 1896. In 1897 Dr. Moncure Conway resigned his ministry. He married in 1858 Ellen Davis Dana. Address: 305 West Seventieth Street, New York.

CONWAY, Sir William Martin, was born at Rochester in 1856, and is the son of the late Rev. William Conway, who became eventually Canon of Westminster. He was educated at Repton, and Trinity College, Cambridge, where he took his M.A. degree, and continued to reside until about 1880. At Cambridge he was much influenced by Henry Bradshaw, the celebrated University Librarian, who took a keen interest in the early history of printing and wood-engraving; and at his suggestion Mr. Conway, after visiting the most important libraries of Europe, for the purpose of collecting material, published his "History of the Wood-cutters of the Netherlands," an authoritative work.

charge of and was referee on all subjects connected with fungi. Some years ago his entire herbarium and portfolios of drawings of fungi were acquired by the authorities for the National Herbarium at Kew. Any one glancing over the pages of the eight volumes of Saccardo's "Sylloge" will find evidence of his activity in Mycology, since there is scarcely a page in which his name does not occur. Since the death of the Rev. M. J. Berkeley he has been the oldest active mycologist in Europe, having been continuously working and writing on the subject for more than thirty years. Address: 146 Junction Road, N.

COOLEY, Thomas McIntyre, LL.D., was born at Attica, New York, Jan. 6, 1824. In 1843 he removed to Michigan, where he was in 1845 admitted to the Bar. In 1857 he was appointed to compile and publish the laws of the State, and in 1858 he was made reporter of the decisions of the Supreme Court, a position which he held for several years, during which he published eight volumes of reports, followed by a digest of all the decisions of the State. In 1859 the law department of the University of Michigan was organised, and he was chosen one of the professors, and subsequently became Dean of the Faculty, holding the position until 1885, after which he was for three years Professor of Constitutional History in the same institution. For three years he was Lecturer on Governmental subjects in Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore. In 1864 he was appointed to fill a vacancy on the Bench of the Supreme Court of the State, a position which he held for twenty-one years, being a part of the time Chief Justice. In 1887 he was appointed by the United States Circuit Court at Chicago Receiver of the Wabash Railway Company, and took upon himself the management of that road, but resigned it after a few months' service at the urgent request of President Cleveland to accept the appointment of Commissioner under the Interstate Commerce Law for the Regulation of Railroads. He was chosen by his Associates Chairman of the Commission, and held the office for four years, when his health so completely gave way in consequence of overwork that he was obliged to resign, and since then has held no public office. He has published "The Constitutional Limitations which rest upon the Legislative Power of the States of the American Union," 1868, which has gone through several editions; an edition of Blackstone's "Commentaries," 1870, and of Story's "Commentaries on the Constitution of the United States, with Additional Chapters on the New Amendments,"

1873; "Law of Taxation," 1876; "Law of Torts," 1879; "General Principles of Constitutional Law in the United States," 1880; and, for a series of State histories, "Michigan: a History of Governments," 1885. He published "The Elements of Torts," 1895. He furnished nearly all the legal articles in Appleton's "American Encyclopædia," 1873-76, and has been a voluminous writer for magazines and reviews, mostly on legal subjects. His articles which of late have attracted most attention have been one in opposition to the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands to the United States, and a number insisting upon the right, the power, and the duty of the Senate of the United States to proceed to put a stop to the obstructive measures of the minority on such questions as the repeal of the Silver Purchase Clause of the Sherman Act, and to vote upon such subjects directly. He has received the degree of LL.D. from both Michigan University and Harvard University.

COOPER, Alfred, F.R.C.S., F.R.C.S.E., was born at Norwich on December 28, 1838, and is the son of William Cooper, Esq., B.A. Oxon., Barrister-at-Law of the old Norfolk Circuit, and late Recorder of Ipswich. He was educated at Merchant Taylors' School, and entered St. Bartholomew's Hospital in 1858. He is a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of England and Scotland, and a member of Council of the Royal College of Surgeons of England. He was appointed Surgeon-in-Ordinary to his Royal Highness the Duke of Saxe-Coburg Gotha (Duke of Edinburgh) in 1897; is Consulting Surgeon to the West London Hospital; Senior Surgeon to St. Mark's Hospital for Fistula, &c.; and Surgeon to the Royal Society of Musicians. He has published "Diseases of Rectum and Anus" (1st edit. 1887, 2nd edit. 1892). He is Chevalier of the Order of St. Stanislaus. 1874; has the Victoria Decoration and the Jubilee Medal. In 1882 he married the Lady Agnes, sister of the Duke of Fife. Addresses: 9 Henrietta Street, Cavendish Square, W.; and Cooper Angus Lodge, Whiting Bay, Isle of Arran.

COOPER, Charles Alfred, F.R.S.E., editor of the Scotsman, was born at Hull, Yorkshire, on Sept. 16, 1829. He is the eldest son of Charles Cooper, architect, and was educated at the Hull Grammar School, and early in life entered the office of the Hull Packet, a weekly newspaper of good standing. There he became a reporter, and took a share in sub-editorial work. In 1861 he removed to London, and entered the gallery of the House of Commons as a reporter for the Morning Star. Of this paper he subsequently became the sub-editor, and held the post until 1868, when he became assistant-editor of the Scotsman, in which capacity he served for several years. In 1876 he became editor of the Scotsman, and in 1881, in recognition of his services to the Liberal party, he was made a member of the Reform Club, without a ballot, on the nomination of the political committee. Earlier he had taken a great interest in the opening of the gallery of the House of Commons to the reporters of provincial newspapers, and he had the gratification of seeing this object gained. He has published "Seeking the Sun," a series of letters from Egypt, 1891; "Letters on South Africa," 1895; "An Editor's Retrospect," 1896. He married in 1852 Susannah, eldest daughter of Thomas Towers, of Hull. She died in 1887. Address: 41 Drumsheugh Gardens, Edinburgh, &c.

COOPER, Sir Daniel, Bart., acting Agent-General for New South Wales in England, was born at Bolton-le-Moors, Lancashire, on July 1, 1821, and was educated at University College, Gower Street. He went out to New South Wales, and was for some years a merchant at Sydney, where he was elected member of the Legislative Council in 1848. Under the new constitution, he was first Speaker in 1856. From 1855-61 he was President of the Bank of New South Wales. He owns large estates in that colony, and has represented it thrice in this country as acting Agent-General, and at all the great International Exhibitions of recent years. He married in 1846 Miss Elizabeth Hill. Address: 6 De Vere Gardens, Kensington, W.

COOPER, Edward Herbert, novelist, was born at Newcastle-under-Lyne, on Oct. 6, 1867, and is the eldest son of the late Samuel Herbert Cooper, of New Park, Prentiss, Staffordshire. He was educated at University College, Oxford, where he gained a third class in Modern History in 1889 (B.A. 1890). In 1896 he was Secretary of the Suffolk Liberal Unionist Association, and Secretary in 1893 of the Ulster Convention League. In 1896 he was appointed Paris correspondent of the New York World. His novels are: "Geoffrey Hamilton," 1893; "Richard Escott," 1893; "The Enemies," 1896; "Mr. Blake of Newmarket," and "The Marchioness against the County," 1897. He resides in Paris. Address: Authors' Club.

COOPER, Thomas Sidney, R.A., was born at Canterbury Sept. 26, 1803. At the age of seventeen he became painter at the Hastings Theatre, and for three years gained a moderate income by scene-painting. Then he became a drawing-master at Canterbury till the year 1827, when he set out from Dover to Calais, and literally "sketched his way" from that French port to the Belgian capital, paying tavern bills by likenesses of hosts and hostesses. At Brussels his talents secured him patrons and employment; and having settled there, he married, and enjoyed the friendship of various Flemish artists. There, too, his pencil was first directed to the study of landscape, and the branch of art, animal-painting, which secured him his present high reputation, with abundant and profitable employment. The revolution of 1830 involved him and his family in difficulties, and forced him to return to England. He first exhibited in the Suffolk Street Gallery in 1833. His picture attracted attention, and he received a commission from Mr. Vernon for a picture now in the Vernon Gallery. About ten years later his Cuyt-like groups of cattle, "Going to Pasture," "Watering at Evening," "Cattle Reposing" in the heat of a summer afternoon, "The King of the Meadows," attracted general notice. Mr. Cooper was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy in 1845, and a Royal Academician in 1867, and still continues to exhibit, painting, it is understood, in bed. He exhibited as many as four typical pictures in the 1898 Royal Academy Exhibition. In 1882 he presented to the city of Canterbury the Gallery of Art which he had founded some ten or twelve years earlier, and in which he had since given gratuitous instructions to students. A condition made by the donor was that only a nominal fee should be charged to the artisan classes for tuition, the original object for which the gallery was built having been the teaching of drawing to poor boys. At the meeting at which Mr. Cooper's gift was announced it was determined to convert the gallery into a school, and to affiliate it to the Science and Art Department at South Kensington. Mr. Cooper has published his reminiscences, under the title of "My Life," 1890. He has found innumerable imitators, and at one time was constantly called upon to decide upon the authenticity of cattle-pictures reputed to be the work of his brush. He has latterly charged a fee to the persons sending such paintings for his inspection. Address: Vernon Holme, Harbledown, Canterbury.

COPELAND, Ralph, Ph.D., F.R.A.S., F.R.S.E., Astronomer-Royal for Scotland, and Professor of Astronomy in the University of Edinburgh since 1889, in the place of Professor Piazzzi Smyth, who resigned, was born in 1837 at Woodplumpton, Lancashire. Having determined to devote his life

Romance of Two Worlds," 1886; "Vendetta," 1886; "Thelma," 1887; "Ardath: the Story of a Dead Self," 1889; "The Soul of Lilith," 1892; "Wormwood"; "Barabbas: a Dream of the World's Tragedy," 1893; "The Sorrows of Satan," 1895; "The Mighty Atom," 1896; "The Murder of Delicia," 1896; "Ziska: the Problem of a Wicked Soul," 1897; and "Jane," 1897. Of these, "Barabbas" and "A Romance of Two Worlds" have been translated into all the languages of Europe, including Russian and modern Greek. "Barabbas" is also to be had in Persian and Hindustani, and has an immense vogue throughout India. "The Mighty Atom" has been accorded the unusual distinction of being translated and published in Russia under the auspices of the Holy Synod. The late Mr. Eric Mackay, the poet, was Miss Corelli's stepbrother. Miss Corelli has no London address, having given up her town residence in this present year (1898) on account of her intention to reside abroad for the future.

CORFIELD, William Henry, M.A., M.D. (Oxon.), F.R.C.P., Hon. A.R.I.B.A., was born in December 1843 at Shrewsbury, and was educated at the Cheltenham Grammar School, and obtained a Demysbip in Natural Science at Magdalen College, Oxford, in March 1861, at the early age of seventeen. In the subsequent October he matriculated, and in 1863 took a first class in Mathematics at Moderations. In the same year he had the honour of being selected by Professor Daubeny, the eminent Chemist, Botanist, and Vulcanologist, to accompany him in his examination of the volcanic appearances in the Montbrison district of Auvergne. In 1864 he passed in the final Classical Schools, and took a first class in Mathematics for the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Early in the following year Mr. Corfield obtained, in open competition, the Medical Fellowship at Pembroke College, and thus the line of his future career was decided. He next gained first-class honours in the Natural Science Schools, taking Chemistry and Geology as special subjects. Other successes followed rapidly, and the Burdett-Coutts University Scholarship in Geology and the Allied Sciences fell to him in 1866, to which, a year later, was added the Radcliffe Travelling Fellowship in Medicine. This gave him an opportunity of visiting the professional centres of the Continent, including, of course, Paris, where he studied analysis, with special reference to hygienic matters, under Berthélot, at the Collège de France, and took the opportunity then afforded of clinical study under Béhier, Sée, Hardy, and other

eminent teachers, besides attending Bouchardat's lectures on Hygiene. He next proceeded to Lyons, where he worked at clinical medicine and surgery, and also made a special study of the remains of the remarkable aqueducts of ancient Lugdunum, and then passed over into Algiers, visiting afterwards some of the medical schools in Italy and Sicily. In 1868 he took his M.B. degree, and was appointed Examiner for Honours in Natural Science at the University of Oxford; and in 1869 he received the further appointment of Professor of Hygiene and Public Health at University College, London. His Introductory Lecture was printed in the British Medical Journal on June 18 and 23, 1870, and was afterwards published in pamphlet form, under the title of a "Résumé of the History of Hygiene." He still directs the Hygienic Laboratory which he started at this College, and in which many pupils, who have subsequently gained important sanitary posts, have been trained. He became a member of the Royal College of Physicians of London in 1869, and, in the same year, was elected a member of the Committee appointed by the British Association for the Advancement of Science, to report on the Treatment and Utilisation of Sewage. The alarming illness of the Prince of Wales at Londesborough Lodge, Scarborough, where he was attacked by typhoid fever at the close of the year 1871, called attention very prominently to the subject of house sanitation, and Professor Corfield made, at Lord Londesborough's request, a careful inspection of the condition of the Lodge, and described the results in a letter which appeared in the Times on Jan. 22, 1872. In 1871 he was elected Medical Officer of Health for Islington, and in 1872 obtained, and still holds, the same post for St. George's, Hanover Square. He took his M.D. degree at Oxford in 1872, and was next year appointed Lecturer on the Law of Health at the Birmingham and Midland Institute, an office which he held for five years. Afterwards he accepted a similar post at the Saltley Training College. In 1873 he delivered a course of lectures on "Water Supply, Sewerage, and Sewage Utilisation" to the Royal Engineers stationed at Chatham; these lectures were at once reprinted in the United States. Dr. Corfield, in 1874, read a paper before the Epidemiological Society "On the Supposed Spontaneous Origin of the Poison of Enteric Fever," in which he vigorously combated the possibility of the de novo origin of the disease. In 1875 Professor Corfield was elected a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians; and he has published some "Remarks on the Study and Practice of Public Medicine," which were delivered

ry Lecture to the Students college in that year. In 1871 a course of Cantor Lectures was given by the Society of Arts, taking the title "Dwelling-houses, their Construction and Arrangements." Dr. Corfield's most recent publication is the third edition of his work on "Preparation and Utilisation of Lead," in preparation of which he was assisted by his former pupil, Dr. J. H. Annandale. His Anniversary Address to the Society in 1891 was on "The Water Supply of Roman Cities, with especial reference to the city of Lyons," in which he described the Romans employed in the construction of lead for the purpose of aqueducts across deep chasms, as illustrated by lithographs made by himself on paper on "Outbreaks of Cholera," and his Harveian Lecture before the Society of Medicine in London in 1893, on "Defective House Sanitation." Corfield is prominently known as Professor of Public Health at University College, and for some years one of the examiners for the Diploma in Public Health at the University of Cambridge. He is a Fellow of the Institute of Chemistry, the Chemical Society, the Geological Society, a Past President of the Society of Medical Officers, Vice-President and Past President of the Sanitary Institute, an Honorary Member of the Société d'Hygiène, and of many foreign societies. He was President of the Public Health Section of the British Medical Association in 1894, and of Section I. of the Sanitary Institute in 1896, and was a member of Council of the Royal Sanitary Institute in 1898. He has for twenty years, Chairman of the Sanitary Society, and has taken a leading part in the work which has resulted in the opening of public museums to the public. In 1884 he gave the International Congress at The Hague, on "La Science et la Maladie." He was then President of the Congress had never been before; he felt that it was a duty of Hygienists that this should be done, and determined that it should be done at that time forth he presented the invitation to the Sanitary Institute and Parkes

Museum to the Permanent Committee, at the Congress at Vienna in 1887, with the result that the next Congress was held in London in 1891, under the presidency of the Prince of Wales, and with Sir Douglas Galton, K.C.B., as Chairman of the Organising Committee, and was the largest Congress of Hygienists ever held. Professor Corfield acted as Foreign Secretary to that Congress, and through his personal acquaintance with many of the leading Hygienists in various countries, was able to obtain the formation of committees for making the Congress known abroad, and for thus insuring the attendance of foreign Hygienists. He is the only Englishman who has received the honour of being elected an Hon. Member of the Royal Society of Public Health of Belgium, of which the other Hon. Members are chiefly ambassadors, ministers, and high State officials. He is an enthusiastic geologist, angler, and collector of Bewick wood engravings. Professor Corfield married in 1876 Emily Madelina, youngest daughter of the late John Pike, F.S.A. Addresses: 17 Savile Row, W.; and Whindown, Bexhill, Sussex.

CORK, Bishop of. See MEADE, THE RIGHT REV. W. E.

CORK and ORRERY, Earl of, The Right Hon. Richard Edmund St. Lawrence Boyle, K.P., a descendant of the Hon. Robert Boyle, the natural philosopher, was born in Dublin in 1829, and succeeded to the title in 1856. He was educated at Eton and Christ Church, Oxford, of which he is B.A. From 1854 to 1856 he represented Frome in the Liberal interest in Parliament. He has been thrice Master of the Buckhounds, in 1866, 1868-74, 1880-85; and twice Master of the Horse, in 1886 and 1894-95. He is Hon. Colonel of the North Somersetshire Yeomanry, and A.D.C. to the Queen. He married Emily, second daughter of the 1st Marquis of Clanricarde, and his heir, Viscount Dungarvan, was born in 1861. Addresses: 40 Charles Street, Mayfair; and Marston Biggott, Frome.

CORNO DI BASSETTO. See SHAW, GEORGE BERNARD.

CORNU, Marie-Alfred, was born March 6, 1841, admitted into the École Polytechnique in 1860, whence he passed to the School of Mines, and became an engineer in 1866. In 1867 he was appointed Professor of Physics at the École Polytechnique, and since then he has succeeded Becquerel as member of the Académie des Sciences. He owed this to his important experiments in determining the velocity of light, perfecting Fizeau's method, which extended over two years. He has also experimented on the mean density of the earth, following Cavendish's work. He received the Rumford Medal of the Royal Society of London in 1878, has been President of the French Association for the Advancement of Science, is Officier de la Légion l'Honneur, and member of the Bureau des Longitudes (1886). Professor Cornu's researches have been chiefly devoted to optical subjects, and he is one of the first living authorities upon light, having greatly improved Fizeau's toothed wheel, and so given to measurements of the velocity of light a precision which was previously impossible. His principal experiments upon this subject are recorded in the "Annals of the Paris Observatory"; many of his other papers are in the Comptes Rendus, and deal with crystalline reflection, the reversal of the lines in the spectrum of metallic vapours, the spectre of the aurora borealis, and the normal solar spectrum. Paris address: 9 Rue de Grenelle.

CORRIGAN, The Most Rev. Michael Augustine, D.D., American (R.C.) prelate, was born at Newark, N.J., Aug. 13, 1839. He was educated at St. Mary's College, Wilmington, Delaware; and at Mount St. Mary's, Emmetsburg, Maryland, graduating at the latter institution in 1859. He was ordained to the priesthood at Rome in 1863, and in the following year received the degree of D.D. After filling for a few years the chair of Dogmatic Theology and Sacred Scripture at Seton Hall College, Orange, N.J., he became its President in 1868. In 1873 he was appointed by Pius IX. to the See of Newark, and in 1880 was made coadjutor to Cardinal McCloskey, Archbishop of New York, under title of Archbishop of Petra; and on the death of the Cardinal in 1885 he became Metropolitan of the diocese of New York.

CORSER, Haden, M.A., J.P., Metropolitan Police Magistrate sitting at Worship Street, was born in 1845, and is the only son of Charles Corser of Wolverhampton. He was educated at Cheltenham College, and Christ Church, Oxford, where he took a third class in the School of Law and History in 1869. He was called to the Bar at the Middle Temple in 1870, and was appointed Deputy Stipendiary Magistrate at Wolverhampton in 1878. He held this post till 1880. From 1888 to 1889 he was Recorder of Wenlock, and in the latter year was appointed Metropolitan Police Magistrate (North London). He married in 1870 Mary, daughter of W. T. Blacklock, Pendleton, Lancashire. Address: The Hyde, Ingatestone, Essex.

COSSON, Charles Alexander Baron de, F.S.A., F.R.G.S., born at Durham, Aug. 26, 1846, is descended from an ancient French family established in Guienne at the period of the Revolution, when his grandfather emigrated, serving first in the army of the Princes, and then in the Hompesch regiment of the Hussars. When that regiment was incorporated in the British army as the 10th Hussars, he came to England, his father having been guillotined and his estates forfeited. He returned to France in 1855, and died there in 1867, at the age of ninety-eight, his life thus reaching from the reign of Louis XV. almost to the close of that of Napoleon III. Baron de Cosson was educated at home, and travelled much on the Continent with his family. In December 1868 he had written to the Times a long account of the insurrection at Cadiz, which the leading article described as the first exact narrative of that event received in England. In the winter of 1872 he went to Egypt, and thence proceeded to Abyssinia, in company with his brother the late Major de Cosson, who published an account of this journey in "The Cradle of the Blue Nile." He visited Adowa and Axum, and crossed the Lamalmon Pass to Gondar and Lake Tsana. The travellers were well received by the late King John of Abyssinia. In the summer of 1873, his brother, having to return to England, left him, and travelled via Khartoum and the desert, to Suakim. The experience thus gained led to his being appointed to the water transport of Sir Gerald Graham's Field Force in 1885, when he was mentioned in despatches, and gazetted Major. Baron de Cosson remained in Abyssinia some months longer, returning to Massowah, by Debra Tabor, Sokota, and the interior of the country. He is best known, however, for the attention he has given for the last twenty years to the study of ancient armour and weapons. In conjunction with the late William Burges, A.R.A., he organised an exhibition of helmets and mail at the Royal Archaeological Institute in 1880, and undertook the description of the European helmets. In that work he formulated the principles which he considered ought to regulate the scientific study of ancient armour. He especially insisted that each fine piece of armour was a well-considered and skilfully wrought piece of metal work, having its definite purpose, for which it was admirably adapted, and that armour should not be looked at, as was so often the case, simply as people regard the objects at Madame Tussaud's Exhibition. Since then he has contributed various papers to the Archæological Journal, and other antiquarian publications. He has also, at at Chertsey, a small but carefully collection of arms and armour. f late been engaged in conjunction the Conde de Valencia de Don Madrid, in collecting, as far as all notices and marks of ancient s and swordmakers. In 1878 he Cecilia Nefeseah Bonomi, second of the late Joseph Bonomi, well r his travels in the East and his ancient Egypt and Assyria.

AKI, Anthopoulos Pasha, Ottoman-adorat the Court of St. James', is two predecessors—Mousouros tem—a Christian. He was born parentage at Constantinople in s admitted an Advocate of the Bar in 1870, and was appointed rosecutor in 1880. When troubles Crete in 1888 he was sent out to nor, as the Cretans would have a , and the Powers supported their f however, his amnesty was illusory, gh he tried to calm the rebels, he backed up at headquarters, and the end of the year he was re- Chakir Pasha. He was appointed resent post, Jan. 31, 1896. In Sultan conferred upon him the and star of the Osmanieh in brill- a token of high satisfaction and . for services rendered in diplo-

S, Mrs. Everard, née Sara e Duncan, was born at Brant- nada, in 1861, and is a daughter es Duncan, merchant. She was chiefly at Brantford, and began ary career as a journalist. She : of all correspondent to the on Post. Afterwards she joined rial staff, as well as writing for Canadian papers. She wrote articles for the Montreal Star, hich were her letters from Japan East. These letters were subse- embodied in an altered form in al Departure: how Orthodoxia nt Round the World by Ourselves," er other works are: "An American London," 1891; "The Simple es of a Mem-ahib," 1893; 's Aunt," 1894; "The Story of ahib," and "A Daughter of To- 94; "His Honour and a Lady," id "A Voyage of Consolation, a 98. She married Everard Cotes, one of the chief Calcutta daily in 1890. Address: 19 British treet, Calcutta.

ERILL, James Henry, M.A., he youngest son of the late Rev. otterill, was born in Norfolk, Nov.

2, 1836. He was educated at Brighton College, and was then apprenticed to the engineering firm of Fairbairn & Co.; eventually, however, he proceeded to St. John's College, Cambridge. In 1866 he was appointed Lecturer at the old Royal School of Naval Architecture at South Kensington, becoming its Vice-Principal in 1870. Three years later he became Professor of Applied Mechanics at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich, and only resigned that position when he retired in 1897. He is the author of "The Steam Engine considered as a Thermodynamic Machine," 1878, and 3rd edit., 1895; "Applied Mechanics," 1884, and 4th edit., 1895. Mr. Cotterill was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1878. Address: 18 Gloucester Place, Greenwich, S.E.

COTTESLOE, Lord, Sir Thomas Francis Fremantle, Bart., M.A., J.P., was born Jan. 30, 1830, and succeeded his father as 2nd Baron in 1890. He was educated at Eton and Balliol College, Oxford, where he graduated in 1852, obtaining first-class honours in Classics, and he was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1855. He sat in the House of Commons as member for Buckinghamshire from 1876 to 1885. Lord Cottesloe is Vice-Chairman of the Bucks County Council, and Deputy-Chairman of the Bucks Quarter Sessions. He was married in 1859 to Augusta, daughter of the 2nd Earl of Eldon, and has a son and heir, the Hon. Thomas Fremantle, born in 1862. Address: 43 Eaton Square, S.W.; and Swanbourne, Winslow, Bucks.

COTTON, General Sir Arthur Thomas, K.C.S.I., son of the late H. C. Cotton, Esq., and a cousin of the late Lord Combermere, born at Woodcot House, Oxfordshire, in 1803, was educated at Addiscombe. He entered the Madras army in 1819, became Colonel of Engineers in 1854, and served in the first Burmese war from 1824 to 1826. In 1861 he received the honour of knighthood for his activity in developing the irrigation and internal navigation of India. He was nominated a Knight Commander of the Star of India on the re-organisation of that Order in 1866. In the following year he was nominated a Lieut.-General in the army, and placed on the fixed establishment of general officers. He attained the rank of General in 1876, and was placed on the retired list in the following year. In 1841 he married Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Learmonth, of Hobart, Tasmania. Address: Woodcot, Dorking.

COTTON, James Sutherland, M.A., was born at Coonoor, in the Madras

Presidency, on July 17, 1847, and is the third son of J. J. Cotton, H.E.I.C.S. He was educated at Winchester and at Oxford, where he was successively Exhibitioner of Lincoln, Scholar of Trinity, and Fellow of Queen's. He obtained a first class in Classical Moderations, and also in the Final Classical School, and was for a time Secretary and Treasurer of the Union Debating Society. He was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn (1874), and joined the Western Circuit. He assisted Sir W. W. Hunter in compiling the "Statistical Account of Bengal" (20 vols., 1875-77); the "Statistical Account of Assam" (2 vols., 1879); and the "Imperial Gazetteer of India" (9 vols., 1881; also 2nd edit., 14 vols., 1885-87). He is the author of the "Decennial Statement," exhibiting the Moral and Material Progress of India for the period 1873-74 to 1882-83 (issued as a Blue-book, 1885); of "India," in the volume of the "English Citizen Series," entitled "Colonies and Dependencies" (1883); and of "Mount-stuart Elphinstone," in the series of "Rulers of India" (1892). He also contributed an essay on "The Intentions of the Founders of Fellowships" to "Essays on the Endowment of Research" (1876); and has been a contributor to the "Encyclopædia Britannica," "Chambers's Encyclopædia," and the "Dictionary of National Biography." Since 1887 he has edited "Paterson's Practical Statutes," an annual volume containing the important Acts of Parliament of the year, with introductions and notes. He is best known as the editor of the Academy, having conducted that important review from 1881 until 1896. He married in 1873 Isabella, daughter of John Carter, of Clifton. Address: 107 Abingdon Road, Kensington, W.

COUNTY, Rev. Thomas J., American Prelate (R.C.), was born in Dublin in 1856, but went with his parents to America when very young. He was educated at the College of the Holy Cross by the Jesuits, and at the Seminary at Troy, New York. He subsequently became Rector of the Church of the Sacred Heart at Worcester, Massachusetts, and was for a number of years at the head of the Catholic Summer School at Plattsburg, New York; was editor of a weekly paper called The Catholic School Gazette, and is known as a temperance lecturer. He received the degree of D.D. from the Jesuit College of Georgetown in 1889, and was appointed Rector of the Catholic University at Washington, D.C., in November 1896, to succeed Bishop Jno. J. Keane.

COUCH, Arthur Thomas Quiller, who writes as "Q," is the eldest son of the late Thomas Quiller Couch, of Bodmin, and was born in Cornwall on Nov. 21, 1863. He was educated at Newton Abbot College, Clifton College, and Trinity College, Oxford. He was a Scholar of his College, and obtained a first-class in Moderations, and a second in Lit. Hum. in 1886, when he graduated B.A. At the University he was more than once a candidate for the Newdigate, and, after taking his degree, he was a classical lecturer at his College for about a year. On leaving Oxford, he remained for some years in London, but in 1891 he went back to Cornwall, where he continues to reside. Mr. Quiller Couch has written for the Speaker since its first appearance, and his principal novels are the following: "Dead Man's Rock," 1887; "Troy Town," 1888; "The Splendid Spur," 1889; "Noughts and Crosses," 1891; "The Blue Pavilions," 1891; "I Saw Three Ships," 1892; "The Warwickshire Avon," 1892; "The Delectable Duchy," 1893; "Wandering Heath," 1895; "The Golden Pomp," 1895; "Ja," 1896; "Adventures in Criticism," 1896; "Poems and Ballads," 1896. He has completed Robert Louis Stevenson's unfinished novel, "St. Ives," in a manner which proves him to be a master of imitation. Address: The Haven, Fowey, Cornwall.

COUCH, The Right Hon. Sir Richard, born July 4, 1817, is the only son of Richard Couch, was called to the Bar at the Middle Temple in 1841, and practised for many years on the Norfolk Circuit. He was for some years Recorder of Bedford, but in 1862 was appointed a Puisne Judge of the Bombay High Court, entering upon office in August of that year. In April 1866, on the retirement of the late Sir Matthew Sausse, he was promoted to be the Chief Justice of the High Court of Judicature at Bombay, receiving soon afterwards the honour of knighthood; and in 1870 he succeeded Sir Barnes Peacock as Chief Justice of the High Court of Calcutta. He resigned the latter post in 1875, when his name was added to the roll of the Privy Council. In the same year he was President of the Commission appointed to inquire into the charges against the Gaekwar of Baroda. He was appointed a member of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in January 1881. In 1845 he married Anne, daughter of R. T. Beck, Combs, Suffolk. Addresses: 25 Linden Gardens, Kensington, W.; and Athenæum.

"COUNTRY PARSON." See BOYD, REV. A. K. H.

COURCEL, Baron de, Alphonse Chodron, French diplomatist, born July

30, 1835, was educated at the Lycée Charlemagne, and studied law at Paris, Bonn, and Berlin. In 1859 he entered the French diplomatic service and was made an attaché at Brussels, and in 1861 passed to St. Petersburg. After work at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs he succeeded in 1881 the Comte de St. Vallier as Ambassador at Berlin, a post he retained until 1886. In 1892 he was elected Senator for his department, Seine et Oise, in which he owned much land at Athis. He is the Chairman of the Orleans Railway, and a Grand Cross of the Legion of Honour. In October 1894 he succeeded M. Decrais as Ambassador at the Court of St. James's, and distinguished himself for careful diplomacy during a very stormy period. He resigned in October 1898, and was succeeded by Monsieur Paul Cambon. Address: 10 Boulevard Montparnasse, Paris, &c.

COURTHOPE, Professor William John, C.B., Hon. D. Litt., was born on July 17, 1842, and is the eldest son of the Rev. William Courthope, Rector of South Malling. He was educated at Harrow and New College, Oxford, where his career was distinguished. He gained a first class in Classical Moderations in 1863, and a first class in Lit. Hum. in 1865, besides obtaining the Newdigate Prize in 1864, and the Chancellor's Prize for an English Essay in 1868. He was appointed a Civil Service Commissioner in 1887, and First Civil Service Commissioner in 1892, and in 1893 was elected Professor of Poetry at his old University without opposition. In this position he has lectured admirably on poetry, his course on "Life in Poetry," including such subjects as "Law in Taste," and "Poetical Decadence," forming in itself a weighty, valuable, and conservative Ars Poetica. Professor Courthope is well known for his standard edition of Pope's Works and for his life of that poet. His other publications are: "Ludibria Lunæ," 1869; "The Paradise of Birds," 1870; "Addison" (Men of Letters Series), 1882; and the two opening volumes of a "History of English Poetry," published respectively in 1895 and 1897. He married Mary, eldest daughter of John Scott, H.M. Inspector-General of Hospitals, Bombay. Addresses: 29 Chester Terrace, Regent's Park, N.W.; and Athenæum.

COURTNEY, The Right Hon. Leonard Henry, M.A., M.P., eldest son of the late Mr. John Sampson Courtney, banker, of Penzance, Cornwall, by Sarah, daughter of Mr. John Mortimer, of St. Mary's, Scilly, was born at Penzance, July 6, 1832. He was educated at the Regent House Academy in that town, under Mr.

Richard Barnes, and afterwards privately under Mr. L. R. Willan, M.D. Mr. Courtney was for some time in the bank of Messrs. Bolitho, Sons & Co., but went to St. John's College, Cambridge, in 1851, and graduated B.A. as Second Wrangler in 1855, being bracketed First Smith's Prizeman. In the following year he was elected a Fellow of his College, and for some years he has been an Honorary Fellow. For some time he was engaged in private tuition at the University. In 1858 he was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn. He was appointed in 1872 to the Chair of Political Economy at University College, London, and held that professorship until a lengthened visit to India in the winter of 1875-76 necessitated his retirement. For two years he was Examiner in Constitutional History in the University of London, 1873-75. In 1874 he contested Liskeard, but polled only 329 votes against 334 recorded for Mr. Horsman, but at the election which was held after that gentleman's death, Mr. Courtney gained the seat, Dec. 22, 1876, polling 388 votes against 281 votes given to his opponent, Lieut.-Colonel Stirling. He held the seat as long as Liskeard remained a parliamentary borough, and when it was merged in the Division of South-East Cornwall he won the enlarged constituency at the General Election of 1885, and has been returned ever since. He was appointed Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department in December 1880. In August 1881, he was appointed Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies, in succession to Mr. Grant Duff, who had been nominated Governor of Madras; and in May 1882 he succeeded the late Lord Frederick Cavendish as Financial Secretary to the Treasury, but resigned his appointment on finding that the last Reform Bill did not include the principle of proportional representation, which he and the late Mr. Fawcett had long advocated. In 1885 and again in 1886, having been returned as a Unionist Liberal, he was appointed Chairman of Committees in the House of Commons. He was a member of the Labour Commission (1893-94), of the Indian Currency Commission, the Commission for the Unification of London, and the Commission on Lighthouse Dues. Mr. Courtney was for some years a regular writer for the Times. In 1860 he published a pamphlet on "Direct Taxation"; and to the Journal of the Statistical Society, 1868, he contributed a paper on the "Finances of the United States, 1861-67." He is the present chairman of the Statistical Society. Mr. Courtney has written various papers in the Fortnightly Review, the Nineteenth Century, and the International Review. He was made a Privy Councillor in 1889; and was presented with the hon. freedom of Penzance. He married, March 15, 1883, Catherine, eldest unmarried daughter of Mr. Richard Potter, a lady well known for her exertions in providing decent homes for the poor. Addresses: 15 Cheyne Walk, Chelsea, S.W.; and Athenæum.

COURTNEY, William Leonard, M.A., LL.D. St. Andrews, Fellow of New College, Oxford, was born Jan. 5, 1850, at Poona in India. He is the youngest son of William Courtney, late of the India Civil Service, and of Anne Edwardes Scott, and was educated at University College, Oxford, of which society he was a scholar. First Class first Public Examination, 1870; First Class Greats, 1872; Fellow of Merton College, 1872; became Head Master Somersetshire College, Bath, 1873; was elected Fellow of New College, Oxford, 1876; and for many years was a prominent member of University Society, Treasurer O. U. B. C., and one of the chief supporters of the University Dramatic Club, with whom he often acted; resigned Tutorship to come to London in 1890, when he joined the Editorial Staff of the Daily Telegraph as literary critic. He became editor of Murray's Magazine in 1891; was made editor of the Fortnightly Review in 1894, in succession to Mr. Frank Harris; and in 1898 was elected one of the directors of Messrs. Chapman & Hall. He has published: "The Metaphysics of John Stuart Mill," 1879; "Studies in Philosophy," 1882; "Constructive Ethics," 1886; "Studies New and Old," 1888; "Life of John Stuart Mill," 1889; "Studies at Leisure," 1892; "Kit Marlowe" (produced at St. James's Theatre), a blank-verse drama, 1893. Mr. Courtney married in 1874 Cordelia Blanche, daughter of Commander Place, R.N. Address: 53 Belsize Park, N.W.

COVENTRY, Earl of, The Right Hon. George William Coventry, son of Viscount Deerpur, the eldest son of the 8th Earl of Coventry, was born on May 9, 1838, at Wilton Crescent, London. He was educated at Eton, and at Christchurch, Oxford, and in 1843 he succeeded his grandfather in the title. He has been the Lord-Lieutenant of Worcestershire since 1891, has been chairman of the Worcester Quarter Sessions for a period of seven years, and has been a member of the Worcester County Council since its first establishment. He was Master of the Buckhounds from 1886 to 1892, and has again occupied that position since 1895. He has been twice Captain of the Hon. Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms, is a Privy Councillor, and a member of the Council of the R.A.S. He is the possessor of many valuable historical pictures and tapestries, which are kept at Croome Court, Worcestershire. He is married to Blanche, daughter of the Earl of Craven, and has a son and heir, Viscount Deerpur, born in 1865. Addresses: 1 Balfour Place, Park Lane, W.; and Croome Court, Worcester.

COWELL, Professor Edward Byles, Hon. LL.D., D.C.L., Professor of Sanskrit, Cambridge University, born at Ipswich, Jan. 23, 1826, eldest son of Charles Cowell, was educated at the Ipswich Grammar School and at Magdalen Hall, Oxford, where he took his B.A. degree in Classics, December 1854, and M.A. 1857. In 1856 he went to Calcutta as Professor of History in the newly-established Presidency College, and was appointed soon afterwards Principal of the Sanskrit College also. He returned to England in 1864, and in 1867 was elected Professor of Sanskrit in the University of Cambridge. In 1874 he was elected to a Fellowship in Corpus Christi College. Professor Cowell's chief published works are: "The Prākṛit Grammar of Vararuci" (Sanskrit and English), 1854; "Kaushitaki Upanishad" (Sanskrit and English), 1861; "Maitrāyaṇīya Upanishad" (Sanskrit and English), 1870; "Kusumāñjali; or Hindoo Proof of the Existence of a Supreme Being" (Sanskrit and English), 1864; "Taittirīya, or Black Yajur Veda" (Sanskrit), Vols. I. II., edited with Dr. Roer, 1860-64; "Elphinstone's History of India," edited with notes, 1866; "Colebrooke's Essays," edited with notes, 1873; "The Aphorisms of Sāṅdilya," translated from the Sanskrit, 1873; "The Nyāya-Māla-Vistara," a Sanskrit work on the "Pūrva-mīmāṃsā," left unfinished by the original editor, Professor Goldstücker, and completed, 1878; "The Sarva-Darsana-Samgraha, or Review of the different Schools of Hindoo Philosophy," translated in conjunction with Professor A. E. Gough, 1882; "The Divyāvadāna," a collection of early Buddhist legends in Sanskrit, edited in conjunction with R. A. Neil, Fellow of Pembroke College, Cambridge, 1886; "The Buddha-Carita," edited in 1893, and translated in 1894; and the historical romance, the "Harsha-carita," translated from the Sanskrit in conjunction with F. W. Thomas, Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, 1897. He married Elizabeth Charlesworth in 1847. Address: 10 Scrope Terrace, Cambridge.

COWEN, Frederic Hymen, composer, born of English parents on Jan. 29, 1852, at Kingston, in Jamaica, exhibited as an infant an extraordinary love of music. He was brought to England at the age of four, and from that time showed so much musical talent, both in composition and in playing, as to render it advisable to place him under the tuition of Sir Julius (then Mr.) Benedict and Sir John (then Mr.) Goss, whose pupil he remained until the winter of 1865. He then studied at the conservatoires of Leipzig and Berlin, and returned to London in 1868. His first essay in composition was a waltz, written at six years old. This was followed by numerous small pieces, including an operetta entitled "Garibaldi." On his return from Berlin he wrote a fantasia sonata, a trio, a quartet, a concerto for piano, and a symphony in C minor, the latter played firstly at the composer's own concert, and then at the Crystal Palace. Mr. Cowen's more important works comprise two cantatas, "The Rose Maiden," 1870; and "The Corsair" (written for the Birmingham Festival), 1876; an opera, "Pauline," 1876; an oratorio, "The Deluge," unpublished; Symphonies No. 2 and No. 3 (Scandinavian), which latter has made his name known throughout Europe; a sacred cantata, "Saint Ursula" (produced at the Norwich Festival, 1881); Symphony No. 4 (the Welsh); cantata, "Sleeping Beauty" (written for the Birmingham Festival), 1885; Symphony No. 5, in F; the oratorio "Ruth" (written for the Worcester Festival), 1887; "A Song of Thanksgiving" (for the opening of the Melbourne Centennial Exhibition), 1888; the cantata, "St. John's Eve" produced at the Crystal Palace, December 1889; an opera, "Thorgrim," produced at Drury Lane by the Carl Rosa Company, April 1890; a cantata, "The Water Lily," produced at the Norwich Festival, 1893; the opera "Signa," produced at Milan in November 1893, being the first opera by an Englishman produced in Italy for over half a century; the opera "Harold," produced at Covent Garden Theatre, June 1895; a church cantata, "The Transfiguration" (written for the Gloucester Festival, September 1895); Symphony, No. 6, "The Idyllic," 1897; Scena for tenor, "The Dream of Endymion," 1897. Mr. Cowen's works also comprise several overtures, a sinfonietta, two suites de ballet ("The Language of Flowers," and "In Fairyland"), pieces for the pianoforte, and more than 250 songs and ballads, many of which have attained great popularity. In 1888 Mr. Cowen was engaged by the Victorian Government to direct the series of concerts at the Melbourne Centennial Exhibition, extending over a period of six months, and returned to England in the spring of 1889. He was elected Conductor of the Philharmonic Society in 1888, but resigned in 1892. In 1896 he accepted the positions, rendered vacant by the death of Sir Charles Hallé, of Conductor of the Manchester Concerts, Liverpool Philharmonic Society, Bradford Festival Choral Society, &c., which positions he still occupies. Address: 73 Hamilton Terrace, N.W.

COWEN, Joseph, late M.P. for Newcastle, eldest son of the late Sir Joseph Cowen (who represented Newcastle-on-Tyne from 1865 till his death in December 1873), by Mary, daughter of Mr. Anthony Newton, of Winlaton, co. Durham, was born at Blayden Burn in that county in 1831. He received his education at the University of Edinburgh. Early in life Mr. Cowen contracted close friendship with Mazzini, Garibaldi, Kossuth, Herzen, and other political exiles. He was unceasing in his advocacy of the cause of the oppressed European nationalities. To aid their propaganda he established a private press, at which their revolutionary manifestoes were printed and smuggled into Italy, Hungary, and Poland. He was intimately and actively identified with the different Garibaldian expeditions to establish a free and united Italy, and with Langiewicz's unsuccessful effort for Polish independence. At the death of his father Mr. Cowen was elected for Newcastle, which he represented until 1886. In home politics he is a democrat, and in foreign affairs an imperialist. He disregards conventional party ties, and in Parliament has always acted independently. He would have England to keep her empire, and assert and maintain her position as an active and efficient member of the European Areopagus. He believes this can be best done by a system of Imperial Federation, and he would carry federation the length of granting Home Rule to Ireland, which he advocates as a means of consolidating and strengthening the empire. Mr. Cowen is a member of most of the representative bodies in Tyneside. He was one of the pioneers of co-operation, and has been an ardent advocate of education and social progress, on which subjects he has written several pamphlets. In Parliament Mr. Cowen has promoted bills for the extension of County Courts, for the establishment of Licensing Boards, and for amendments in the electoral law. He is an extensive coal owner, and fire-brick and clay retort manufacturer. He is also proprietor of the Newcastle Daily and Weekly Chronicle, and has contributed largely to these and other periodicals. His addresses to his constituents have been collected and published in three volumes. His life, by Major Jones, and a selection of the speeches he has delivered in the House of Commons and at literary institutions, also have been published. After the dissolution of 1886, Mr. Cowen did not offer himself for re-election. He has since his retirement from Parliament written extensively for his own newspapers and for other political and literary publications. He married in 1854 Jane, daughter of Mr. John Thompson, of Fatfield. Address: Stella Hall, Blaydon-on-Tyne.

COWIE, The Very Rev. Benjamin Morgan, D.D., Dean of Exeter and Precentor of Exeter Cathedral, born June 8, 1816, was educated at St. John's College, Cambridge, where he graduated B.A., as Senior Wrangler, in 1839, and was elected Fellow of his College. In 1844 he was appointed Principal of the College of Civil Engineers at Putney. He was a Select Preacher in his University, and preached the Hulsean Lectures in 1853 and 1854; was elected Professor of Geometry at Gresham College in 1854, and became a Minor Canon of St. Paul's in 1858. He also held the vicarage of St. Laurence Jewry, in the City of London, from 1858 to 1873. In 1859 he was appointed a Government Inspector of Training Schools, and in 1866 Warburtonian Lecturer at Lincoln's Inn. He was nominated one of the Chaplains in Ordinary to Her Majesty, Jan. 14, 1871, and was appointed Dean of Manchester in October 1872. In 1880 he was elected Prolocutor of the Lower House of Convocation of the Province of York, in succession to the late Dean of York, the Hon. A. Duncombe. In 1882 Dr. Cowie was appointed Dean of Exeter. He published in 1846 a "Catalogue of the Library of St. John's College, Cambridge"; and he is the author of some theological works. He married Gertrude, daughter of C. Carnsew, of Flexbury Hall, Cornwall. Address: The Deanery, Exeter.

COWIE, Most Rev. William Gardén, D.D., the son of Alexander Cowie, of Auchterless, Aberdeenshire, was born in 1831, and was educated at Trinity Hall, Cambridge, where he was a scholar, and graduated with first-class honours in Civil Law. Ordained in 1854, he was, four years later, appointed Chaplain to Lord Clyde's army at Lucknow, and from 1863 to 1864 he acted in the same capacity with Sir Neville Chamberlain's column, in its march against the Afghans. He held the rectory of Stafford from 1867 to 1869, and in the latter year was appointed Bishop of Auckland, becoming Primate of New Zealand in 1895. Dr. Cowie is the author of "Notes on the Temples of Cashmere," "A Visit to Norfolk Island." He was married, in 1869, to Eliza, daughter of W. Webbers, of Moulton, Suffolk. Address: Bishops court, Auckland, New Zealand.

COWPER, Earl, The Right Hon. Francis Thomas De-Grey Cowper, K.G., D.L., J.P., eldest son of the sixth Earl, was born on June 11, 1834, and educated at Christ Church, Oxford, where he took a first class in law and modern history in 1855. He succeeded to the title on his father's death, in 1856. He was Captain of the Gentlemen-at-Arms from April 1871 to December 1873. On May 5, 1880, he was installed Lord Lieutenant of Ireland at Dublin Castle, and he held that post till April 28, 1882, when he and Mr. Forster resigned together, he being succeeded by Earl Spencer. Henceforward he did not take much part in public affairs until Mr. Gladstone promulgated his Home Rule policy, when Lord Cowper declared himself opposed to it. He was Chairman of the celebrated "Opera House" meeting of Unionists, and took other measures against Mr. Gladstone's bill. After the accession of Lord Salisbury, Lord Cowper was appointed Chairman of the Commission for investigating the working of the Irish Land Act of 1881. He was appointed Chairman of the Gresham University Commission in 1892. Lord Cowper has been, since 1861, Lord-Lieutenant of Bedfordshire, and was married, in 1870, to Katrine, daughter of the 4th Marquis of Northampton. Addresses: 4 St. James's Square, S.W.; Panshanger, Herts; and Athenæum, &c.

COX, The Rev. Sir George William, Bart., M.A., eldest son of George Hamilton Cox, H.E.I.C.S., born in Benares on Jan. 10, 1827, was educated at Rugby and at Trinity College, Oxford, of which he was scholar, and where he graduated S.C.L. in 1849, and proceeded B.A. and M.A. in 1859. He entered holy orders in 1860, and was Curate of Salcombe Regis, Devon, in 1850-51, of St. Paul's, Exeter, 1854-57, held an Assistant-Mastership in Cheltenham College in 1860-61, was Vicar of Bekebourne, Kent, 1881, and Rector of Scrayingham, York, 1881-97. With his friend Edward A. Freeman (afterwards the historian of the Norman Conquest and of Sicily) he published in 1850 a volume of "Poems Legendary and Historical." His "Life of St. Boniface" was published in 1853. He is also author of "Tales from Greek Mythology" and "The Great Persian War," 1861; "Tales of the Gods and Heroes," 1862; "Tales of Thebes and Arzoi," 1863; "A Manual of Mythology in the form of Questions and Answers," 1867; "Tales of Ancient Greece," collected edition, 1868; "Latin and Teutonic Christendom," 1870; "The Mythology of Aryan Nations," 2 vols., 10 "Popular Romances of the Middle Ages," 1871; and "Tales of the Teutonic Lands," oth in conjunction with Mr. Eustace Jones; "A History of Greece," 1874; "The Crusades," 1874; "Greeks and the Persians," 1876; "Athenian Empire," 1876; "A History of Greece, from the period to the death of Alexander the Great, with a sketch of the subsequent history to the present time," 1876; "History of Greece," 1877; "His British Rule in India," 1881; "Introduction to the Science of Comparative Mythology and Folklore," 1881; "The Great," and other articles in the ninth edition of the "Encyclopaedia Britannica"; "Lives of Greek men," 2 vols., 1886; "A Concise History of England and the English," 1887. He has been a contributor to the Edinburgh Review since

In 1861 he became literary adviser to the publishing firm of Messrs. Chapman, and this relation continued thirty-five years. He edited (jointly with Mr. W. T. Brande) the "Dictionary of Science, Literature, and Art" (3 vols. 1874; new edition, 3 vols. 1875), and edited the "Glossary of Terms and Phrases," edited by the Rev. H. Smith, 1883. To Dr. Colenso, Bishop of Natal, during his sojourn in England, 1863-65, he gave all the help in power, and the intimate associations of these years supplied him with an abundance of materials of which, after the Bishop's death, he was enabled to avail himself in drawing up the story of his work on the Pentateuch and the testamentary history generally. In 1865 he published his "Life of Bishop Colenso," avowing that his motive in writing it was to lay before the world the words and his acts generally a full and complete vindication, and to record that that for his method and its conclusions a decisive justification is furnished by the series of judgments which have issued from the highest courts of law in England. Claiming for the Bishop of Natal a genuine and hearty devotion for the Church of England, for throughout his whole life he worked faithfully, and seeing the prevalent disposition to turn the controversy to false issues, he put forth, later in the same year, under the title of "The Church of England and the Teaching of Bishop Colenso," a series of 154 propositions, laying all that is of any importance in the several volumes published by the Bishop, the conclusion being that the law of the Church of England, and with it a law which implies acquiescence on the part of all schools and parties, make it in every way competent for any clergyman to teach any of these propositions. On the death of his uncle, Sir Edmund Cox, which occurred in Canada in 1877, he succeeded to the baronetcy; and he is the 14th Baronet in succession from Sir Richard Cox, Chancellor of Ireland. In 1896 he was granted a Civil List Pension of £120 per annum. He resigned his living in 1897, owing to ill-health. He married in 1850 Emily Marian, daughter of Lieutenant-Colonel William Stirling, H.E.I.C.S. Address: Woodside, Pembury, Tunbridge Wells.

COX, Horace, the second son of William Cox, was born in London on May 31, 1842, and was educated privately. He has during the past thirty-five years been employed in the Field and Queen publishing offices, and he is now the manager of the Field, the Queen, and the Law Times. Address: Windsor House, Bream's Buildings, E.C.; and The Hermitage, Harrow-on-the-Hill.

COX, Irwin Edward Bainbridge, J.P., D.L., eldest son of the late Sergeant E. W. Cox, was born at Taunton on July 9, 1838, and was educated at Crewkerne and Magdalen College, Cambridge, where he took his degree in 1861. He was called to the bar in 1862, and after four years' successful practice, retired in order to enter on a journalistic career, for which he always had a great liking. The papers owned by the late Mr. Sergeant Cox at that time were the Field, Queen, Law Times, Critic, County Courts Chronicle, and others. The death of the late Mr. John Crockford, which deprived Mr. Sergeant Cox of an old and valued servant, afforded Mr. Irwin Cox the journalistic opening he had so long desired. He therefore threw up his practice at the bar, and devoted himself to the conduct of the newspapers. During his management, from 1865 to 1880, the Field passed through one of, if not the most successful transition ever known in journalism, turning as it did from a comparatively small unimportant newspaper to a large and valuable journal, whose opinions carried great weight. The Queen has had almost as remarkable an experience as the Field. The billiard room at Moat Mount, Mill Hill, Mr. Cox's principal seat, has a great history, being really the dining hall of the late Serjeants' Inn. At the dissolution of the Honourable Society of Serjeants in 1877, Mr. Sergeant Cox, who then purchased the whole of the property of the Serjeants, removed the hall at their especial request to Moat Mount, and constituted it, together with its furniture, an heirloom in his family. It is perhaps one of the most unique monuments existing of a formerly very powerful legal Order. Its stained windows are preserved, and it is adorned with the arms of Serjeants from the earliest times. Mr. Cox, who became a magistrate at the early age of 22, is Chairman of several Conservative Associations, and has represented Pinner at the Middlesex County Council since County Councils were established. In 1865, Mr. Cox married Katharine, the fourth daughter of the late Rev. Bartholomew Nicholls, M.A., then vicar of Mill Hill. Address: Moat Mount, Mill Hill, N.W.

COX, Palmer, American author and artist, was born at Granby, Province of Quebec, April 28, 1840, and educated at Granby Academy. He devoted himself to mercantile pursuits, and drifted to California, where an artist who saw his work advised him to place himself under instructors, and to seek a market for his drawings. From 1863 to 1875, he wrote stories for the periodicals of San Francisco, and drew cartoons. Returning east, he settled in New York. He has distinguished himself chiefly by illustrating his own writings with characteristic drawings, as shown in the "Brownie Stories," the first of which was published in St. Nicholas in 1881. Among other works by him are "Squibs of California," 1874; "Hans von Pelter's Trip to Gotham," "How Columbus found America," and "That Stanley," 1878; "Comic Yarns" and "Queer People," 1888; a cantata for children called "The Brownies in Fairyland," and a spectacular play called "Palmer Cox's Brownies."

COXWELL, Henry Tracy, was born, March 2, 1819, at the Parsonage House, Wouldham, near Rochester Castle. He is the grandson of the Rev. Charles Coxwell, deputy-lieutenant for Gloucestershire, and son of Commander Joseph Coxwell, R.N., and was educated at the Military School, Chatham. In 1844 the young balloonist, who at that time was an enthusiastic amateur, ascended from White Conduit Gardens in North London. In 1845 he projected and edited the Aërostatic Magazine; after that he made numerous ascents with Mr. Hampton, Mr. Gypson, and Lieutenant Gale. He was a fellow-traveller with Albert Smith when a balloon (Gypson's) burst over London in a storm of lightning and thunder, and it was owing to Mr. Coxwell's promptitude in cutting a line which turned the balloon into a parachute that the lives of the four aerial travellers were saved. This incident was one of the means used by his friends to induce him to undertake the management of a balloon himself, which he did most successfully in the year 1848 at Chelmsford. In the same year he commenced an aeronautic campaign on the Continent: starting at Brussels, with his typical war balloon, he demonstrated a new plan of discharging aerial torpedoes. The torpedoes were dropped from a second car or battery connected by a rope ladder, 40 feet long, below the passenger car. Down this rope ladder Mr. Coxwell descended in order not to risk the gas exploding when the shells were lighted and discharged. They fell over the city and exploded in mid-air. With this balloon a succession of experiments took place at Elberfeld, Berlin, and the principal towns of Germany and Austria. In the year 1851 Mr. Coxwell returned to London, and about the time of the Crimean War he called the attention of the military authorities to his system of signalling, by using semaphore arms attached to the ring and car. Some years later he adopted other codes more in accordance with the telegraphic improvements of the present day. In 1862 Mr. Coxwell, after making numerous ascents in Great Britain, turned his attention to meteorological ballooning. Mr. James Glaisher, F.R.S., having undertaken to make observations for the British Association, Mr. Coxwell was invited to co-operate. On Sept. 5, 1862, Messrs. Glaisher and Coxwell accomplished an exploration to the unprecedented elevation of seven miles, where Mr. Glaisher was in a state of insensibility, while Mr. Coxwell had to mount up into the ring to seize the valve cord between his teeth, as he had lost power in his hands, they being frost-bitten, and he could not effect a descent until he had opened the valve. It was here that Mr. Coxwell observed an aneroid to indicate their maximum elevation, which was confirmed by other meteorological instruments as read and verified by Mr. Glaisher before and after his temporary unconsciousness of thirteen minutes, during which time a vast dip had been made of nearly 19,000 feet. Lofty flights above our highest mountain-tops were continued for some time, but never equalled the first. About this time Mr. Coxwell ascended from Woolwich Arsenal and from Aldershot camp for purely military objects. In the year 1870 Prussia formed in Cologne two detachments of *aéronaute*s, in order to use them during the Franco-German War, and Mr. Coxwell was engaged to instruct the officers and soldiers in this service. Some time before the Egyptian Campaign Mr. Coxwell showed at the Crystal Palace how one large balloon and two smaller ones could, by a variation in their positions while in a captive state, illustrate a system of signalling. He retired in the year 1885, when his last public ascent seen made from York, where he had led consecutively for twenty-eight

He has written two volumes of Life and Ballooning Experiences; were published in 1887-89.

ZENS-HARDY, Herbert Hardy, e of the High Court, was born at ringsett Hall, Dereham, Norfolk, on 12, 1838, and is the second son of the William Hardy Cozens-Hardy. He educated at Amersham School and at rsity College, London, where he ed a law scholarship and was subtly elected Fellow and Member of il. In 1862 he was called to the t Lincoln's Inn, having previously ed a certificate of honour and a tship. He became a Q.C. in 1882, 1885 was elected a Bencher of his Up to the time of his appointment of the Justices of the High Court tice in February 1899, he was leader Chancery Bar, being popular and nown as the senior of the specials. as also Chairman of the General il of the Bar, being succeeded in fice by Mr. Joseph Walton, Q.C., in 1899. From 1885 to the time of vation to the Bench he represented Norfolk in the House of Commons Liberal and Radical interest. Ad- : 50 Ladbroke Grove, W.; and ingsett Hall, Norfolk.

ACKANTHORPE, Montague es (formerly MONTAGUE COOKSON), D.C.L., younger son of Christopher n, of Nowers, Somerset, Esq., and on of Dr. Cookson, Canon of Wind- ose sister married William Words- the poet, was born in 1832. His e late Mr. Hubert Crackanthorpe, brilliant writer of short studies and , and promised at the time of his to rival Maupassant or Kipling in hool of writing. In 1850 Mr. Mon- crackanthorpe went to St. John's . Oxford, of which he was succes- Scholar and Fellow. In Easter 1852, he gained the Junior Uni- Mathematical Scholarship ('open undergraduates), and was in the erm second for the Hertford Latin rship. He took a double first class ics and Mathematics in Moder- and the like double honours in the Schools. In 1856 he was elected Law Scholar, and entered as a t at Lincoln's Inn. Here he was in the chambers of Mr. Thomas whom he afterwards assisted in g out a new edition of his treatise "Law of Trusts," and he also read r. John Wickens, better known as hancellor Sir John Wickens. In 1859 he was awarded the Studentship of the Four Inns of Court. In 1862 he was appointed Lecturer in Equity and Real Property to the Incorporated Law Society, a post which he relinquished in 1866, owing to his increasing practice at the Bar. In 1875 he was made a Q.C., and in 1877 became a Bencher of Lincoln's Inn. For many years he was a recognised leader in the Chancery Division, notably in the Court presided over by Mr. Justice (after- wards Lord Justice) Fry. Of late he has ceased to attach himself to any court, and practises mainly before the House of Lords and Privy Council. In 1888 he succeeded, on the death of his cousin, William Crack- anthorpe, Esq., to the Newbiggin Hall estate, situate partly in Westmorland and partly in Cumberland, a property which has continued in the Crackanthorpe family since the reign of Edward III. In the same year he obtained a grant of a royal license to change his name from Cookson to Crackanthorpe, and to bear the arms of Crackanthorpe, quartered with his own arms. From time to time Mr. Crackan- thorpe has contributed to many of our leading periodicals, writing usually on so- cial, political, and legal subjects. Among his best known articles are "The Morality of Married Life" in the Fortnightly Review, "The Nation before Party" in the Nine- teenth Century, and divers papers on legal reform. He is the author of an essay on the "Immigration of Destitute Aliens," published by Swan Sonnenschein & Co. in their Social Science Series. His letters to the Times on Ireland, written in 1887, after making a tour of political inspection in that country, have been frequently quoted by Unionist speakers in support of the case against Home Rule. He is a Liberal- Unionist, and as a Liberal he has contested two divisions of the Metropolis. He has delivered a large number of political and social addresses in the North of England. In London, Mr. Crackanthorpe was until lately a member of the Council of Legal Education. He is also a member of the Bar Committee, and he is Vice-Chairman of the Council of Law Reporting. In Oxford he is Standing Counsel to the University and an honorary Fellow of St. John's College. In Westmorland he is a Justice of the Peace, and Deputy- Lieutenant, and Chairman of Quarter Ses- sions. In 1896 he attended the meeting of the American Bar Association at Sara- toga, in company with the Lord Chief- Justice and the late Sir Frank Lockwood, and delivered an address on the Historical Method of Studying English Law, which was subsequently published in the Law Quarterly Review. In 1897 he attended the First International Congress of Advocates at Brussels, as the accredited representative of the English Bar, and delivered an address in French on Methods of Legal Education, which was published in the Compte Rendu of the Congress. He is married to the younger daughter of the Rev. Eardley Chauncy Holt, a descendant of Sir John Holt, Chief-Justice of the Court of King's Bench, and also of Sir John Eardley Wilmot, Chief-Justice of the Court of Common Pleas. Addresses: 65 Rutland Gate, S.W.; Newbiggin Hall, Westmorland; and Athenæum.

CRAMER-ROBERTS, The Right Rev. Francis Alexander Randal, D.D., Assistant to Bishop of Manchester, and Vicar of Blackburn, was born at Armagh, on Dec. 3, 1840, and is the son of Colonel Cramer-Roberts, of the 68th Regiment. He was educated at Rugby, and at Trinity College, Cambridge, was Curate at Frant, near Tunbridge Wells, from 1864 to 1868, and of Hawley, in Hants, from 1868 to 1870, when he was appointed to the Rectory of Llandinaboo, Herefordshire. Here he remained for two years, and then returned to Hawley, Hants, after which he was Vicar of Bindley, Heath, Surrey, for five years (1873-78), Bishop of Nassau, Bahamas, from 1878 to 1886, and Assistant to the Bishop of Winchester from 1886 to 1887. In 1887 he was appointed to the Vicarage of Blackburn.

CRANBORNE, Viscount, James Edward Hubert Gascoyne Cecil, M.A., M.P., eldest son of the present Marquis of Salisbury, was born in London, Oct. 23, 1861, and was educated at Eton and University College, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. in 1884. He sat in the House of Commons as Conservative member for the Darwen Division of Lancashire from 1885 to 1892, and he has since 1893 represented Rochester in the same interest. Lord Cranborne is Chairman of the Church Parliamentary Committee, and he was in 1896 elected Chairman of the Hertfordshire Quarter Sessions. He is married to Cicely, daughter of the 5th Earl of Arran, and has a son and heir, Robert, born in 1893. Addresses: 9 Park Place, St. James's, S.W.; and Athenæum.

CRANBROOK, Earl of, The Right Hon. Gathorne Gathorne-Hardy, G.C.S.I., is the third son of the late Mr. John Hardy, of Dunstall Hall, Staffordshire (who for many years represented the town of Bradford in Parliament), and of Isabel, daughter of Mr. Richard Gathorne, of Kirkby Lonsdale. He was born at Bradford, Oct. 1, 1814, and educated at Shrewsbury School, and at Oriel College, Oxford, where he gained a second class in Classics, and took the degree of B.A. in 1836. He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1840, and practised as a barrister for several years. Mr. Hardy unsuccessfully contested Bradford in the Conservative interest in 1847, but was returned to the House of Commons in 1856 as member for Leominster, which borough he continued to represent till the celebrated Oxford election in July 1865, when, after an exciting contest, he defeated Mr. Gladstone by a majority of 180, this being the principal Conservative success at the General Election of that year. In 1858 Mr. Hardy was appointed Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department in Lord Derby's second administration; on the formation of Lord Derby's third administration in July 1866 he became President of the Poor-Law Board; and on the resignation of Mr. Walpole in May 1867, he was nominated Secretary of State for the Home Department, which office he held till the resignation of the Conservative ministry in December 1868. On the formation of Mr. Disraeli's administration in February 1874, Mr. Hardy was nominated Secretary of State for War. In May 1858 he was raised to the House of Peers by the title of Viscount Cranbrook, of Hemsted, in the county of Kent; and he assumed, by royal license, the additional surname of Gathorne. In the same year he succeeded the Marquis of Salisbury as Secretary of State for India, and held that office until the Conservatives retired from office in May 1880. In Lord Salisbury's cabinet of 1885, and again in 1886, Lord Cranbrook held the office of Lord President of the Council; and in 1892, on the resignation of the Government, he was created Earl of Cranbrook and Baron Medway of Hemsted in the county of Kent. Lord Cranbrook is a D.L. and J.P., and a Bencher of the Inner Temple. He married in 1838 Jane, daughter of Mr. James Orr, of Holyrood House, co. Down. She died in 1897. His eldest son, the Hon. J. S. Gathorne-Hardy, now Lord Medway, sat in Parliament for the Medway Division of Kent, and his third son, the Hon. A. E. Gathorne-Hardy, for the East Grinstead Division of Sussex. Addresses: Hemsted Park, Cranbrook; 2 Cadogan Square, S.W.; and Athenæum.

CRANE, Stephen, author, was born in 1870, at Newark, New Jersey, and is the son of J. I. Crane, D.D. He was educated at Lafayette College, Syracuse University. He sprang into fame with his series of vivid and sufficiently revolting descriptions of modern warfare, entitled "The Red Badge of Courage." This was published in 1895, and purports to be the sensations of a raw recruit in the war between North and South. The work, so far as that campaign was concerned, is a brilliant imaginative effort. Mr. Stephen Crane was employed as war correspondent to the Westminster Gazette, to which he sent home some vivid letters, and to the New York Journal during the Greco-Turkish War, 1897. He was correspondent to the latter before Santiago, in Puerto Rico, and Havana, before the Spaniards had gone. Other volumes from his pen are, "Maggie," a realistic tale of the Boweries, "The Black Riders and other Lines," "George's Mother," "The Little Regiment," "The Third Violet, a Romance," "The Open Boat," "The Eternal Patience," "Pictures of War," 1898, &c. Address: Hartwood, Sullivan Co., New York.

CRANE, Walter, painter and decorative designer, second son of Thomas Crane, of Chester, miniature and portrait painter, sometime Secretary and Treasurer of the Liverpool Academy, was born at Liverpool, Aug. 15, 1845; apprenticed, 1859, to W. J. Linton (the eminent wood engraver, poet, and Chartist), for three years, to learn the craft of drawing on wood for engraving. This turned his work largely in the direction of book illustration, which he followed side by side with painting and decorative designing. He was appointed a member of the committee of the General Exhibition, known as the Dudley Gallery, of Water-Colour Drawings in 1879, and resigned that position in 1881. He was Examiner at the National Competition of Drawings, South Kensington, 1879, and has so acted since. He was elected a member of the Institute of Painters in Water-Colours in 1882, also of the Institute of Painters in Oil, but resigned membership of both in 1886. He was elected an Associate of the Royal Society of Painters in Water Colours (the old society) in March 1888, and has since exhibited there. He became a member of the Società d'Acquarellisti of Rome in 1883. He first exhibited at the Royal Academy (a small picture, "The Lady of Shalott") in 1862; and he exhibited at the Grosvenor Gallery every year from its foundation in 1877, on which he ceased to appeal to the Academy. His principal pictures are: "The Renaissance of Venus," 1877; "The Fate of Persephone," 1878; "The Sirens," 1879; "Truth and the Traveller," 1880; "Europa," "The Laidley Worm," 1881; "The Roll of Fate" and "Dunstanborough Castle," 1882; "Diana and the Shepherd," 1883; "The Bridge of Life," 1884; "Freedom," 1885; "Pandora," 1885; "The Chariots of the Hours," 1887; "Sunrise," 1888; "Flora," 1889; "Pegasus," 1889. "A Diver," 1885, won a silver medal at the Paris Universal Exhibition, 1889. He has published "Walter Crane's Toy Books," 1869-75; "Picture Books," 1874-75; "The Baby's Opera," 1877, &c.; "The Sirens Three," a poem written and illustrated by himself, 1886, which appeared originally in the English Illustrated Magazine. He was associated with the movement against the Royal Academy, 1886, and in favour of the establishment of a National Exhibition in which all the arts should be represented. Afterwards, in conjunction with other well-known decorative artists, he founded the Arts and Crafts Exhibition Society, 1888, and became its President. The society opened its first exhibition at the New Gallery in the autumn of 1888. In 1884 he became associated with the Socialist movement, and has since worked for it by means of lectures, writings, and designs. In 1889 he gave the Cantor Lectures (course of three) at the Society of Arts, "On the Decoration and Illustration of Books." He was President of the Section of Applied Art at the National Art Congress at Liverpool, 1888; and designed the Seal of the London County Council, 1889. Since 1889 he has illustrated "Flora's Feast" (written by himself); "The Book of Wedding Days," "Echoes of Hellas," "Queen Summer," 1891 (written by himself); "A Wonder Book" (Nathaniel Hawthorne), 1892; "The Old Garden" (Margaret Deland), 1892; "Illustrations to Shakespeare's Tempest," "The Glittering Plain" (William Morris), issued by the Kelmescott Press; "Renaissance, a Book of Verse," 1891 (by himself); more recently "Spenser's Fairie Queene," published by George Allen, an elaborate edition with many illustrations, which was commenced in 1894 and finished in 1897; and "The Shepherd's Calendar" (Harper Bros.), 1897-98. He has also written "The Claims of Decorative Art," 1892 (Lawrence & Bullen), which has been translated into German and also Dutch; "The Decorative Illustrations of Books" (Bell & Sons), 1892; and "The Bases of Design" (Bell & Sons), 1898; "Cartoons for the Cause" (Twentieth Century Press), 1897. In 1891 an exhibition of Walter Crane's works was held at the Fine Art Society in Bond Street, comprising book designs, decorations, and easel pictures in oil and water colours. This collection was afterwards shown in the United States of America (in 1891-92), whither Mr. Crane accompanied it, and in Germany, opening at Berlin (Kunstgeunbe Museum), and afterwards at the principal cities, Leipzig, Frankfurt, Crefeld, Dresden, Darmstadt, Munich, &c., also at Prague and Brünn, and later at Basle and Brussels, finishing its Continental tour at Copenhagen, Christiania, Stockholm, and Gothenburg. This is probably the first instance of a collection of the works of an English artist being shown over so large a Continental area. One of the results — monograph on the works of Walter Crane by Herr von Bestepsch, published by Dr. Carl Masner of Der Graphischekunst of Vienna. Mr. Crane's principal easel pictures since 1889 are a "Masque of the Senses," "Poppies and Corn," "A Masque of Spring Flowers," and "Neptune's Horses." The two latter were exhibited at the New Gallery in 1893; also "The Swan Maidens," 1894; "England's Emblem," 1895; "The Rainbow and the Wave," 1896; "Britannia's Vision," 1897. Just prior to his visit to America he sat to G. F. Watts for his portrait, which was exhibited at the New Gallery in 1893. In September 1893 he was appointed Director of Design at the Manchester Municipal School of Art. He resigned this post in 1896. In August 1898 the Lords of the Committee of Council appointed Mr. Walter Crane to the Principalship of the Royal College of Art at South Kensington, vacant by the retirement of Mr. Sparkes. In 1871 Mr. Walter Crane married Frances, daughter of the late Thomas Andrews, Hempstead, Essex. Address: Holland Street, Kensington, W.

CRANWORTH, Lord, Robert Thornhaugh Gurdon, is the eldest son of Brampton Gurdon, of Letton, Norfolk, and was born in 1829. He was educated at Eton and Trinity College, Cambridge (M.A., 1852). He was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn in 1856. As a Liberal he represented South Norfolk in the House of Commons from 1880-85, and Mid Norfolk in 1885-86 and 1886. As a Liberal Unionist he sat for the same constituency from 1886-92, and from April to July in 1895. He is extremely popular in his county, and is D.L., J.P., Chairman of Quarter Sessions, and Colonel of the 4th Volunteer Battalion of the Norfolk Regiment. He is Chairman of the Norfolk County Council. He was raised to the peerage for his services to the cause of Liberal Unionism at new year 1899, with the title of Baron Cranworth, of Letton and Cranworth in the county of Norfolk. His second wife, whom he married in 1874, is a daughter of the Rev. R. Heathcote. Address: Letton, Norfolk.

CRAWFORD, Mrs. Emily, Paris correspondent of the Daily News, daughter of Andrew and Grace Johnstone, was born in Dublin on May 31, 1841. Her education was a home one until she went to Paris in 1857. Her reading was extensive, and when a young girl she was engaged to write a daily letter to the Morning Star. She married, in 1864, George Morland Crawford, Esq., of Chelsfield Court Lodge, Kent, and member of Lincoln's Inn, who was then Paris correspondent of the Daily News. After her marriage she greatly aided her husband in his work, remained in France during the war of 1870, and was in Paris during the Communal Civil War. She frequently contributed leading and miscellaneous articles to the Daily News, and wrote for many papers, besides English and American magazines and reviews: amongst others, Truth, the Illustrated London News, the Illustrated Journal, the Pall Mall Gazette, the New York Tribune, the Gentleman's Magazine, the Century, and Macmillan's, to which she furnished, in October 1877, a monograph on M. Thiers. She also wrote the biography of that statesman which appeared after his death in the Daily News. Her first review article was asked for by the editor of the Museum of Edinburgh, on the suggestion of the late Matthew Arnold, who, when he made it, was not acquainted with her, but had been struck with some observations which she had made on the weak side of the system of higher education in France, and had entered into a correspondence with her on the subject. Mrs. Crawford has also contributed to the Contemporary and Universal Review, and Subjects of the Day. Mrs. Crawford was proposed for the Cross of the Legion of Honour, but preferred that the decoration offered her should be given to her son, Mr. Robert Crawford. Mrs. Crawford is an Hon. Member of the Cobden Club. Address: 60 Boulevard de Courcelles, Paris.

CRAWFORD, Francis Marion, American writer, the son of Thomas Crawford, the sculptor, was born at Bagni di Lucca, Italy, Aug. 2, 1854. He was educated partly in America (Concord, N.H.), partly in Italy, and partly in England, 1870-74, where he had a private tutor and was a member of Trinity College, Cambridge. From 1874-76 he studied at Karlsruhe, and for a short time at Heidelberg. He passed 1876-78 at the University of Rome, studying Sanskrit. In 1879 he went to India and was editor of a daily paper, the Indian Herald, published at Allahabad. He returned to America in 1881, remaining there till 1883, when he went to Italy, where (with the exception of a visit to Turkey in 1884) he has since principally resided, his home being near Sorrento. Mr. Crawford's writings have been chiefly novels, though he has done some work in critical philosophy and philology. His books include "Mr. Isaacs," 1882; "Dr. Claudius," 1883; "To Leeward," 1883; "A Roman Singer," 1884; "An American Politician," 1884; "Zoroaster," 1885; "A Tale of a Lonely Parish," 1886; "Saracinesca," 1887; "Marzio's Crucifix," 1887; "Paul Patoff," 1887; "With the Immortals," 1888; "Greifenstein," 1889; "Sant' Ilario," 1889; and "A Cigarette Maker's Romance," 1890; "Khaled," "The Witch of Prague," "Don Orsino," "Pietro Ghisleri," "The Children of the King," and "The Novel: What it is," 1893; "Katharine Lauderdale," "Love in Idleness," "The Ralstons," "The Upper Berth," and "By the Waters of Paradise," 1894; "Casa Braccio," "Constantinople," and "Adam Johnstone's Son," 1895; "Bar Harbour," "Taquisara," 1896; and "A Rose of Yesterday" and "Corleone," 1897. Mr. Marion Crawford a few years ago was awarded a prize of 1000 francs by the French Academy, as an acknowledgment of the merit of his novels, and especially of two of them, "Zoroaster" and "Marzio's Crucifix," which were written in French as well as in English. He is married to Elizabeth, daughter of General Berdan, U.S. Army. Address: Sant' Agnello di Sorrento, Sorrento.

CRAWFORD, Earl of, James Ludovic Lindsay, K.T., J.P., LL.D., F.R.S., was born at St. Germain-en-Laye, France, on July 28, 1847, and succeeded his father as 26th Earl in 1880. He was educated at Eton and Trinity College, Cambridge, and was a Lieutenant in the Grenadier Guards for some time. He represented Wigan in the House of Commons from 1874 to 1880, was formerly President of the Astronomical Society, and is the author of several works on Astronomy. Lord Crawford is the premier Earl of Scotland, is a Commander of the Legion of Honour, and is a Trustee of the British Museum. He was married, in 1869, to Emily, daughter of Colonel Hon. Edward Wilbraham, and granddaughter of the 1st Baron Skelmersdale. Addresses: 2 Cavendish Square, W.; Balcarres, Colinsburgh, Fifeshire; and Athenæum.

CRAWFORD, Oswald, C.M.G., son of the late John Crawford, sometime Envoy Plenipotentiary to the Court of Siam, and subsequently Governor of Singapore, was educated at Eton and Oxford. Leaving the University he entered the Foreign Office, and was appointed Consul at Oporto in 1867. He is the author of the following novels: "World we Live In," "Sylvia Arden," "Beyond the Seas," and of several works dealing with Portuguese matters. In 1890 he was created C.M.G., and in the same year published "Round the Calendar in Portugal." He is editor of Chapman's Magazine and literary editor of the London Review. He is Chairman and Managing Director of Chapman and Hall, Limited, and Chairman of the Authors' Club. He married Margaret, youngest daughter of the late Richard

Ford. Addresses: Queen Anne's Mansions, S.W.; and Athenæum.

CREAGH, Charles Vandeleur, C.M.G., was born Oct. 4, 1842, and is the second surviving son of Captain James Creagh, R.N., of Cahirbane, Co. Clare, Ireland, and grandson of the O'Moore, of Cloghan Castle, King's Co. He was educated at the Royal Naval School, New Cross, and at Eastman's Naval Academy, Southsea; passed the examination for admission to the India Navy in 1857, and entered the Punjab Police, as Assistant District Superintendent, in 1865. He obtained a second-class certificate in Oriental languages, and in 1867 was supported by the Indian Government in raising a Sikh Police Corps, for which service he had been selected by the Governor of Hong Kong. He has held the following appointments in Hong Kong: 1868, J.P.; Acting Captain Superintendent of Police in 1869-70, and 1877-78; Sheriff, 1874; Aide-de-Camp, 1878; Superintendent of the Fire Brigade, 1878-80. He studied law in the Middle Temple during eight terms, and passed the examinations in Roman and Common Law. He passed with credit the six Acting Police Magistrate and Coroner examinations in Chinese prescribed by Government; and was Arbitrator for Government under the Opium Ordinance in 1879; was appointed Assistant British President and Member of the State Council, Perak, on the application of the President, Sir Hugh Low, in 1882; and Judge of the Presidency Court, Perak. He acted frequently for the President during his absence. In 1888 he was selected for the post of Governor and Commander in Chief and Chief Judicial Officer of the British North Borneo Company's territory, with the approval of the Secretary of State. On Jan. 1, 1890, he was appointed Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Labuan. In 1892 he was made a C.M.G., and was called to the Bar. He retired in 1895.

CREDITON, Bishop of. See TREFUSIS, THE RIGHT REV. ROBERT EDWARD.

CREIGHTON, The Right Rev. Mandell, Bishop of London, D.D. Oxford and Cambridge; Hon. LL.D. Glasgow, Hon. D.C.L. Durham, LL.D. of Harvard University, Litt.D. Dublin, Fellow of the Società Romana di Storia Patria, was born at Carlisle, in 1843, educated at Durham Grammar School, and elected Postmaster at Merton College, Oxford, in 1862. At Oxford he was placed in the first class in Classical Moderations, and in the first class in Literæ Humaniores, and in the second class in Law and Modern History in 1866. In the same year he was elected Fellow of Merton College, and remained at Oxford as tutor of Merton. He was ordained deacon in 1870, and priest in 1873, and in 1875 accepted the living of Embleton, in Northumberland. He was appointed by Bishop Lightfoot rural dean of Alnwick in 1879, and on the formation of the diocese of Newcastle, in 1882, was made honorary canon of Newcastle and examining chaplain to the Bishop. In 1883 the University of Glasgow conferred on him the honorary degree of LL.D. In 1884 he was elected to the newly founded professorship of Ecclesiastical History in the University of Cambridge. In 1885 he received the honorary degree of D.C.L. from the University of Durham, and was appointed by the Crown Canon Residentiary of Worcester Cathedral. He has frequently acted as public examiner and select preacher in the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge. He has also been examining chaplain to the Bishop of Worcester. He is the author of several historical works:—"Primer of Roman History," 1875; "The Age of Elizabeth," 1876; "The Life of Simon de Montfort," 1877; "Primer of English History," 1877; "Cardinal Wolsey," in the series of English Statesmen, 1888; "Carlisle," in Historic Towns, 1889. His principal work is a "History of the Papacy during the Period of the Reformation," of which the first two volumes were published in 1882, two others in 1887, and a fifth in 1894. Other more recent works of his are:—"Persecution and Tolerance," 1894; "The Early Renaissance in England," 1895; "The English National Character," 1896; and "The Story of Some English Shires," 1897. He was founder and first editor of the English Historical Review, the first number of which appeared in January 1886. Professor Creighton represented Emmanuel College at the 250th anniversary celebration of Harvard College, Massachusetts, in November 1886, when he received the degree of LL.D., and was elected a corresponding member of the Historical Society of Massachusetts. In 1889 he was elected Honorary Fellow of Merton College, Oxford. In 1890 he was appointed by the Crown Canon of Windsor, but before entering on that office was appointed Bishop of Peterborough, and was consecrated on April 25, 1891. In the same year he was elected Honorary Fellow of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and in 1892 received the honorary degree of Litt.D. at the tercentenary of the University of Dublin. In 1893 he was elected Hulsean Lecturer in the University of Cambridge. In 1898 he was elected Professor of Ancient Literature in the Royal Academy of Arts, and in March of that year was appointed a Trustee of the National Portrait Gallery in succession to Lord de L'Isle and Dudley deceased. Dr. Creighton was translated to London in 1897, when he was also appointed a Member of the Privy Council. Addresses: Fulham Palace, S.W.; and Athenæum.

CREMER, William Randal, ex-M.P., was born in 1838, of poor parents, at Fareham, in Hampshire, and lost his father, who was a herald painter, at an early age. As soon as he was old enough he was apprenticed to the carpenter's trade, and in Brighton, as well as in London, where he worked as a joiner, he found time to associate himself in all the Progressive movements of the day, and in 1859 took a leading part in the "nine hours' movement," which resulted in the memorable lock-out in the building trade. In 1860 he advocated and succeeded in getting united the various small local Unions in the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners. In the same year he took an active part in the demonstration arranged for the reception of Garibaldi on his visit to England, and to him also were mainly due the organising arrangements for the great demonstrations of the Reform League in Hyde Park and the Agricultural Hall. Since then he has been associated in all the movements on behalf of the working-classes, such as the Education League (before the passing of Mr. Forster's Act), the agricultural labourers' agitation, and the Workmen's Peace Association (at the time of the Franco-German War). Mr. Cremer is the author of several addresses to the working-classes upon the folly of war, and has repeatedly visited Paris, arranging demonstrations and addressing meetings. At the General Election of 1885 he was returned as a working-class Radical member for the Haggerston Division of Shoreditch, and was again elected in 1886 and in 1892. In 1895 he was defeated by the small majority of 31. He is Secretary of the International Arbitration League, and editor of the Arbitrator. In 1864 he was first Hon. General Secretary of the "International." In 1890 he was made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honour. Mr. Cremer originated, and was the chief organiser, of the Inter-Parliamentary Conferences, which were first held at Paris and London in 1889 and 1890, to promote friendly relations between the nations of Europe. M. Jules Simon presided at the Paris Conference, and Lord Herschell at the Conference in London. These Conferences have since been followed by others held in the Parliamentary Chambers at Rome, Berne, The Hague, Buda-Pesth, and Brussels. Every Parliament in Europe except the Spanish has new groups, numbering from 50 to 100 members, adhering to the movement. In 1887 he secured the adhesion of 234 members of the House of Commons to a Memorial to the President and Congress of the United States in favour of a Treaty of Arbitration with this country, and a similar Memorial in 1891 signed by 354 M.P.s. Both these Memorials he presented to the President and Congress at Washington, and in 1893 succeeded in carrying, by a unanimous vote, a resolution in the House of Commons in favour of such a treaty. Mr. Cremer is a widower, and has been twice married. Address: 11 Lincoln's Inn Fields, W.C.

CREMONA, Professor Luigi, F.R.S., F.R.S.E., LL.D., Professor of Higher Mathematics at the University of Rome, and Senator of the Kingdom of Italy, &c., was born at Pavia on Dec. 7, 1830. In 1848, leaving school and home, he fought for eighteen months for the independence of Italy, taking part in most engagements in Venetia. Subsequently he went to the University of Pavia and continued his studies, having Brioschi as a master. He very soon entered upon his career as a teacher, at first at the Gymnasium of Cremona, and at the Lyceum of Milan; then as Professor of Higher Geometry at the University of Bologna. In 1886 he passed to the Higher Technical Institute of Milan. In 1873 he was called to reorganise the School of Engineers in Rome, of which he has been director for many years. Luigi Cremona has devoted the whole of his scientific life to the study of higher geometry, and to the reform of mathematical instruction in the secondary and higher schools. The introduction of projective geometry and of graphic statics in public instruction in Italy is almost exclusively his work. He is a Senator of the Realm, and Vice-President of the Council of the Italian Parliament. No question on higher teaching is ever discussed in the Chamber without Cremona ably taking up the subject, for he does this with a perfect knowledge of it. He is the author of a large number of memoirs and works dealing chiefly with geometry, of which two have been translated into French, "Les Éléments de Géométrie Projective" in 1873 and "Les Figures Reiproques en Statique Graphique" in 1885. Address: San Pietro in Vincoli, Rome.

CREWE, Earl of, The Right Hon. Robert Offley Ashburton Crewe-Milnes. Baron Houghton of Great Houghton in the county of York, is the son of the poet, the late Moulton Milnes, first Lord Houghton, by Annastasia Hungerford, a daughter of the second Baron Crewe. He was born in London on Jan. 12, 1858, and received his education at Harrow and Trinity, Cambridge, his father's old college. He entered political life as unpaid Private Secretary to the late Earl Granville, and continued to hold his post during his chief's reign at the Foreign Office. Entering the House of Lords on the death of his father in 1885, as Lord Houghton, he was warmly welcomed by the Liberal peers, and in 1886, on the creation of Mr. Gladstone's Government, he became a Lord-in-Waiting, and represented the Board of Trade in the Upper House. In 1892, on the return to power of the Liberal party, he was appointed Viceroy of Ireland. The appointment caused general surprise, as Lord Brassey had been confidently promoted to the post by the newspapers. Lord Houghton was one of the youngest Viceroys of modern times. The honours of Dublin Castle were dispensed by his sisters, the wives of the Hon. Arthur Henniker and of Sir Gerald Fitzgerald, K.C.M.G. He was succeeded in 1895 by the Right Hon. Gerald Balfour. He is President of the Literary Fund, and is himself a poet. Like his father he is a bibliophile, and is interested in all literary matters. He played an important part at the unveiling of the American bust of Keats in Hampstead Parish Church in 1895. He married, in 1880, Sybil Marola, daughter of Sir Frederick Graham, Bart., and a daughter of the 12th Duke of Somerset. This lady died in 1887, leaving him a widower during his tenure of the Irish Viceroyalty. His second marriage took place on April 20, 1899, his bride being Lady Margaret Primrose, youngest daughter of Lord Rosebery. Addresses: Crewe Hall, Crewe; and 23 Hill Street, W., &c.

CRICHTON-BROWNE, Captain Harold W. A. F., was born at Bensham, in the county of Durham, on July 3, 1866, and is the only son of Sir James Crichton-Browne, M.D., LL.D., F.R.S. He was educated at University College School, at a private tutor's, and at Magdalen College, Cambridge. He became Lieutenant in the 3rd Battalion King's Own Scottish Borderers, and F.R.G.S. and Captain in 1893. In 1888 he joined Mr. Joseph Thomson's exploring expedition to the Atlas Mountains, and with that traveller traversed the interior of southern and northern Morocco, crossed the mountains in these districts, not before entered by Europeans, and reached the summit of Tizi Tikumpt, 15,000 feet high. On the recall of Mr. Thomson to England to take charge of an Emin Pasha Relief Expedition then contemplated, Crichton

Browne remained for three months in sole charge of the expedition. He is the author of "In the Heart of the Atlas," a lecture delivered at the Royal Institution of Great Britain; "Two African Cities"; "Across the Veldt to Buluwayo," &c. He received a commission in the Bechuanaland Border Police in 1890, and served in South Africa for three years. While on an expedition in Matabeleland in 1892 he was taken prisoner by a Matabele impi and carried to Buluwayo, where he was hospitably entertained by Lobengula. Permanent address: Easton Court, W. Tenbury.

CRICHTON-BROWNE, Sir James, M.D., LL.D., F.R.S., F.R.S.E., Knt. B. 1866. born in 1840 at Edinburgh, is the son of Dr. W. A. F. Browne, H.M. Commissioner in Lunacy for Scotland, who was eminent as a physician and introduced many ameliorations in the treatment of the insane. Sir James Crichton-Browne was educated at the Dumfries Academy, Trinity College, Glenalmond, the University of Edinburgh, and the Medical Schools of London and Paris, and is Honorary Member and was formerly Senior President of the Royal Medical Society of Edinburgh. He is Fellow of the Academy of Medicine of New York, and of many learned Societies; has been President of the Medico-Psychological Association and of the Neurological Society of London; is Vice-President and Treasurer of the Royal Institution of Great Britain; J.P. for Dumfries-shire; was formerly Medical Superintendent of the Newcastle-on-Tyne Borough Asylum; Lecturer on Psychological Medicine in the Newcastle College of Medicine; is Medical Superintendent of the West Riding Asylum; Lecturer on Mental Diseases in the Leeds School of Medicine; and is Lord Chancellor's Visitor in Lunacy. He has published a large number of monographs on the Physiology and Pathology of the Nervous System, and on Mental Diseases; a work on "Education and the Nervous System," 1884; and many lectures and addresses and contributions to medical journals. He founded and edited for six years the West Riding Asylum Medical Reports, the first British Journal of Neurology, and has edited translations from the Danish of Kestel on "Overpressure in Schools," 1885. While at the head of the West Riding Asylum, where he had 1500 insane patients under his professional care, Sir James not only raised that institution into the first rank amongst kindred institutions, and made it famous for good management and successful results, but converted it into a great Medical School, in which important researches were carried on, and in which young medical men were trained for asylum practice. He established a laboratory, in which original investigations were conducted, and in which Ferrier's first discoveries in the functions of the brain were made. He also established a museum, and periodically gave lectures, and brought the moral treatment of the inmates and discipline of the staff to a high pitch of perfection. His reports and letters on overpressure in elementary schools led to a number of modifications in the curriculum of such schools, all tending to mitigate the severity of the pressure upon the children, and especially on such children as are dull or delicate. His writings also, by calling attention to the half-starved condition of large numbers of the children in elementary schools, led to the establishment of free breakfasts. At the meeting of the Congress of the Sanitary Institute at Liverpool, October 1894, he lectured to a working-man audience on "The Prevention of Tubercular Disease." Address: 61 Carlisle Place Mansions, Victoria Street, S.W.

CRIPPS, Henry William, M.A., Q.C., was born March 20, 1815, at Crencester. He is the eldest son of the Rev. Henry Cripps, and was educated at Winchester College and New College, Oxford. He was appointed Recorder of the City of Lichfield in 1853, Queen's Counsel in 1866, and Bench of the Middle Temple in the same year. He was Chairman of the first County Council of Bucks, and has been Chairman of Quarter-Sessions of Bucks since 1886. Since 1883 he has been Chancellor of the Diocese of Oxford, and is an Acting Governor of Queen Anne's Bounty. He is author of a treatise on the "Laws of the Church and Clergy," 1845. Addresses: 1 Essex Court, Temple; and Beechwood, Marlow.

CRISPI, Francesco, an Italian statesman, born at Ribera, in Sicily, Oct. 4, 1819, studied law at Palermo, and became a member of the Bar at Naples, where he took part in the conspiracies which led to the overthrow of the kingdom of the Two Sicilies in 1848. He was one of the chief promoters of the insurrection of Palermo, became a Deputy and General Secretary of War, and for two years was the heart and soul of the resistance offered by the Sicilian people. After the victory gained by the Swiss regiments, Signor Crispi fled to France. In 1859 and 1860 he organised the new Sicilian revolution, landed at Palermo with Garibaldi and his volunteers, and after fighting as a simple soldier became a Minister, in which capacity he paved the way for the annexation of the Two Sicilies to the kingdom of Italy. In 1861 he was returned by the city of Palermo to the first Italian

ment, in which he took a prominent influential position, becoming in a time the acknowledged leader of institutional opposition. It was the standing between Signor Crispi and the Piedmontese "third party" which led to the formation of the new Ratazzi ministry. He was chosen as a Deputy at the election of November 1876 by several electoral colleges, and "opted" for that year. On the 22nd of that month he was elected President of the Chamber of Deputies by 232 votes against 115. The following year the party of "Moral Reform" returned to power in France, and the interests of Italy seeming neglected by them, Signor Crispi undertook semi-official journeys in search of support against the Republic. He was finally received in London and at Paris (1877). Some weeks later he became Minister of the Interior in the Depretis Cabinet, but retired in March 1878. During the ten following years in which M. Depretis was intently in power, he remained one of the leaders and principal orators of the left. On May 15, 1880, he delivered a speech which was commented on by the European press, and unfolded therein the policy of his party. The Chamber, he declared, to be directed by a vigorous hand. "Italia Irredenta," "unredeemed" Italy of the Adriatic, which is still under Austrian sway, to be encouraged in its desire to become Italian. Italy was to take a more prominent position in the concert of nations, and was to aim at the acquisition of increased influence in the East. In the delivery of this speech he addressed electoral reform and the adoption of scrutin de liste. In March 1881 he went to attack France in his journal l'Informa, and afterwards advocated an alliance and an increase of the national armaments and defences, and a complete military reorganisation. In November 1883 he declared war against the clerical party as being hostile to the Italian institutions, and thus neglected what he calls the "traditional aim of the Left." After the reverses in Africa in 1887, Signor Crispi asked the Government to vote an extraordinary credit in order to send reinforcements to Massowah. The credit was voted, the Depretis Government went out of office, and Crispi asked the Chamber to express utter condemnation of the fallen Ministry. This was done, and in the end Signor Crispi became Minister of Foreign Affairs in a Depretis cabinet, and after the death of the statesman in July 1887, succeeded as President of the Council and

Home and Foreign Minister. On October 1 Signor Crispi began paying a series of visits to Prince Bismarck at Friedrichsruhe, the result of which was the entry of Italy into the Triple Alliance. The country was now asked to vote enormous sums for the maintenance of an increased army and navy. Financial crises ensued, and disturbances in Rome and Naples. Crispi became very unpopular, and in September 1889 two attempts were made on his life in the above-named towns. In 1888 the commercial treaty with France was broken and not renewed, and the relations between the Government and the Papacy became increasingly strained, owing to the anti-clerical legislation of the former. Signor Crispi, however, thought it expedient to go to the country, and after a brilliant electoral campaign, in which he made a great speech at Florence, in November 1890, containing a declaration of foreign policy and repudiating the Irredentists as hostile to Austria, he brought his party back into power with a majority in the Chamber of 236. The Premier himself was returned by four electoral colleges. Two months later, however, the Crispi Ministry fell on a question of taxation, the chief Minister having made himself unpopular by his high-handed refusal to consider the necessity of retrenchment in military and naval expenditure. Though out of power, Signor Crispi continued for some time to express his views on political questions at public banquets and meetings throughout the country, as well as in the Chamber, and in December 1891 made a notable attack on his successor, Signor di Rudini, apropos of the Papal question. But he retired from the strife before the attack had been fully rebutted. In 1892 he gave up the leadership of the opposition, but retained his seat. After the ensuing bank scandals, and the resignation on Nov. 24, 1894, of Signor Giolitti, the Premier who succeeded Rudini (q.v.), Signor Crispi was again called on to form a Cabinet. He succeeded in forming a Ministry of all parties on Dec. 10, and afterwards called on politicians in general to aid him in restoring the national credit. On May 14, 1895, Signor Crispi gained a victory in the Chamber on the question of the Budget, but in June his Cabinet resigned on the Finance question. They, however, retained office on Baron Sonnino's ceasing to be Finance Minister. Signor Crispi's government nevertheless supported Sonnino's proposed financial reforms, and pledged themselves to effect an economy of 20,000,000 lire in national expenditure in 1895-96. In October 1894 the Crispi government suppressed the Socialist Corporation of Italian Workers, after having taken severe measures against the revolutionary move-mont, Waterloo"; "At the Farm of Mont St. Jean, Waterloo," 1882; "At the Sign of the Blue Boar, Holborn"; "Charles I. on his Way to the Scaffold," 1883; "Wallenstein," 1884; "William III. at London," 1885; "Farewell," 1886; "Napoleon leaving Moscow," 1887; "Marston Moor," 1888; "The Knight's Farewell," 1889; "Whitehall, Jan. 30th, 1649," 1890; "Prince Rupert," 1893; "Roundheads Victorious," 1894; "Napoleon's Last Grand Attack: Waterloo," 1895; "The Capture of a French Battery by the 52nd Regiment at Waterloo," 1896; "The Attack on the Gate-House of the Château of Hougomont, Waterloo," 1897; "To the Rescue: an Episode of the Civil War" (diploma work); and "Charles II. at Whiteladies," 1898. Address: 45 Grove End Road, N.W.

CROKE, The Most Rev. Thomas W., D.D., Roman Catholic Archbishop of Cashel, was born near the town of Mallow, co. Cork, May 19, 1824, and was educated partly at home, but principally at the Chorleville Endowed School, which he left at the age of fourteen. He then went to Paris and entered the Irish College, read there the usual course of philosophy and theology, and left in the year 1844. After spending a year in the College of Menin in Belgium, where he taught English, mathematics, and rhetoric, he went in November 1845 to the Irish College in Rome, where he remained nearly three years, attending lectures in the celebrated Roman University, and reading theology under the Jesuit Fathers Perrone and Passaglia. In 1846 he won the gold and silver medals, and in the following year took his degree as Doctor of Divinity, and was ordained priest, afterwards returning to Ireland. In 1848 he taught rhetoric in Carlow College, and in 1849 theology in the Irish College at Paris. For the next nine years he was engaged in missionary work in the Diocese of Cloyne, co. Cork, and in 1858 was appointed President of St. Colman's College, Fermoy. In 1865 he was appointed parish priest of Doneraile and Chancellor of the Diocese of Cloyne. Five years later he accepted the Bishopric of Auckland, New Zealand, where he remained until 1874. In 1875 he was promoted to the Archiepiscopal See of Cashel. Of late years Dr. Croke's name has been conspicuous by its connection with the Land League and Irish Nationalist movements. Address: Cashel.

CROKER, Mrs. Beatrice M., the only daughter of the late Rev. W. Sheppard, Rector of Kilgefin, co. Roscommon, was educated at Rockferry, Cheshire, and is married to Lieut.-Colonel J. Croker. She has written a large number of novels, amongst which there may be mentioned: "Proper Pride," 1882; "Pretty Miss Neville," 1883; "Some One Else," 1884; "Diana Barrington," 1888; "Two Masters," 1890; "A Family Likeness," 1892; "A Third Person," 1893; "To Let," 1893; "Mr. Jervis," 1894; "Village Tales, and Jungle Tragedies," 1894; "Married or Single," 1895; "Beyond the Pale," 1897; "Miss Balmaine's Past," 1898. Many of Mrs. Croker's books have been translated into French and German, and a few into Norwegian. Address: 3 Radnor Cliff, Sandgate, Kent.

CROMER, Viscount, The Right Hon. Sir Evelyn Baring, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., K.C.S.I., "Maker of Modern Egypt," was born at Cromer Hall, Norfolk, on Feb. 26, 1841. He is the son of the late Henry Baring, M.P., by a daughter of the late Vice-Admiral Windham. After some private tuition at home, young Baring was sent to the Ordnance School, Carshalton, and subsequently joined the Woolwich Academy, to qualify for a commission in the army. He became a Lieutenant of the Royal Artillery in 1858, and was promoted Captain in 1868, in which year he entered the Staff College. Some two years later he published a volume of military essays which attracted a good deal of attention. This was followed by a translation of a German work on military organisation. In the early sixties, Mr. Baring was stationed at Corfu, and served as A.D.C. to the High Commissioner of the Ionian Islands, Sir Henry Storks. In 1865 he accompanied that gentleman to Jamaica when he went to preside over the Commission which was sent to inquire into the circumstances of the outbreak that had been suppressed by Governor Eyre. From 1872 to 1876 he was private secretary to his cousin, Lord Northbrook, who was then Viceroy of India. About this time he retired from the army with the rank of Major. In 1879, soon after the purchase by England of the Suez Canal shares, he was made a Commissioner of the Egyptian Debt, and was also appointed one of the Controllers-General representing England and France, when the Khedive Ismail was deposed by the Sultan's firman and Tewfik Pasha became ruler of Egypt. In co-operation with his French colleague, M. de Bignonères, Major Baring successfully carried on the Control until he accepted, towards the close of 1880, the office of Financial Member of the Council of India left vacant by the resignation of Sir John Strachey. His new appointment was one of much dignity, and afforded great opportunities of public service. During his term of office he framed and carried three successful Budgets. In 1883 he returned to England and was created a K.C.S.I. for his services. Shortly after, he succeeded Sir Edward Malet at Cairo as Consul-General and Minister Plenipotentiary, and thus became virtually Viceroy of Egypt. Sir Evelyn Baring began his work on September 11, just two days after Hicks Pasha started on his ill-fated journey from Khartoum. All the anxious events in the Soudan in connection with the fall of Khartoum and the death of Gordon, with whom he was in constant correspondence, added very materially to the difficulties which Lord Cromer had to meet. At that time Egypt was practically bankrupt, but Lord Cromer's masterly finance has entirely transformed the situation, and the country is now in a prosperous condition. The old corrupt administration has been replaced by local governors who are under strict surveillance; land and other taxes have been reduced; irrigation is scientifically and honestly distributed; the prison system has been reformed, and the army, instead of being hated, is now popular. There has been a vast extension of the railway, postal, and telegraph services, and a corresponding augmentation of the receipts. Trade has steadily increased and public credit been considerably raised, and slavery almost abolished. It is therefore difficult to over-estimate what the work of England in Egypt owes to the sagacity, fortitude, and patience of Lord Cromer, who is one of the best living examples of the iron hand within the velvet glove. In the early part of 1898 he issued a report containing the history of the British administration in Egypt. The publication is, in a modest and indirect way, a testimony to his own services. The most important point in the Report is the question of the Mixed Tribunals established by the Powers in 1876. Lord Cromer is of opinion that it would be undesirable for Egypt to withdraw from them, and that to abolish the Mixed Tribunals altogether would cause a serious dislocation of Egyptian affairs. In concluding his report Lord Cromer says: "For the present what Egypt most requires, and for many years to come will require, is an honest, just, and orderly administration, and the establishment of the supremacy of the Law in the widest sense of the term. It is conceivable that at some future time the Egyptian question may pass from the administrative into the political stage. For the present, however, that moment would appear distant." Lord Cromer has been at the back of the successive expeditions which, under the command of the Sirdar of the Egyptian army, Sir H., now Lord, Kitchener, have won back Dongola, Berber, and Khartoum from the Khalifa. Before the battle at Atbara he issued an edict against war correspondents accompanying the forces, but had to withdraw it in consequence of the storm it raised in England. He was created a peer in 1892, taking his title from his birthplace. In the same year Oxford conferred upon him the degree of D.C.L. Lord Cromer has also the order of the Medjidie of the first class. He married, in 1876, Ethel, a daughter of Sir Rowland Errington, and has issue. Lady Cromer died at Cairo on Oct. 16, 1898. Her loss will be much felt by all classes who came under the influence of her charming personality. Lord Cromer was created a Viscount at New Year 1899.

CROMMELIN, May de la Cherois (May Crommelin), daughter of the late S. de la Cherois Crommelin, of Carrowdore Castle, co. Down, was born in Ireland, and was educated privately. She is a popular novelist, who has achieved some success, and amongst her publications there may be mentioned: "Queenie," "A Jewel of a Girl," "My Love, she's but a Lassie," "Black Abbey," "Orange Lily," "In the West Country," "Brown Eyes," "Goblin Gold," "Mr. and Mrs. Herries," "For Sake of the Family," "Love Knots," "Dead Men's Dollars," "Dust before the Wind," "Half-round the World for a Husband." Club: Albemarle.

CRONWRIGHT-SCHREINER, Mrs. See SCHREINER, OLIVE.

CROOKES, Professor Sir William, F.R.S., was born in London in 1832. In 1848 he entered the Royal College of Chemistry as a pupil of the distinguished chemist Dr. Hofman, and at the age of seventeen he gained the Ashburton Scholarship. After two years' study he became, first junior, then senior assistant to Dr. Hofman until 1854, when he was appointed to superintend the meteorological department of the Radcliffe Observatory at Oxford. In 1855 he became Professor of Chemistry at the Training College, Chester. In 1859 he founded the Chemical News, and is still its proprietor and editor; and in 1864 he became editor of the Quarterly Journal of Science. Mr. Crookes' earliest original researches were begun whilst at the Royal College of Chemistry, and his first paper, "On the Seleno-Cyanides," was published in the Quarterly Journal of the Chemical Society in 1851. Since that date he has been much engaged in original research on questions connected with chemistry and physics. In 1861 Mr. Crookes discovered by means of spectrum observations and chemical reactions, the metal thallium, and he also determined its position among elements by a and produced a series of salts.

the new metal. In 1863 Mr. Crookes was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society; in 1865 he discovered the sodium amalgamation process for separating gold and silver from their ores. In 1866 he was appointed by the Government to report upon the application of disinfectants in arresting the spread of the cattle plague, which in that year excited much alarm in England. In 1871 he was a member of the English expedition to Oran to report upon the total phase of the solar eclipse which occurred in December of that year. In June 1872 he laid before the Royal Society laborious researches on the atomic weight of thallium, researches that extended over a period of eight years. In 1872 he began his experiments on "Repulsion resulting from Radiation." His first paper on the subject was read before the Royal Society Dec. 11, 1873, and between that time and 1880 Mr. Crookes sent to the Society other communications on collateral subjects, which are all published in the Philosophical Transactions. One important result of these investigations is the Radiometer. In 1875 Mr. Crookes received from the Royal Society the award of a Royal Medal for chemical and physical researches. In 1876 he was elected a Vice-President of the Chemical Society, and the next year a Member of the Council of the Royal Society. In 1877 he described the Otheoscope—a greatly modified Radiometer, susceptible of an almost endless variety of forms. In 1878 he gave before the Royal Society a "Bakerian Lecture," containing another long series of experiments and observations on "Repulsion resulting from Radiation." In 1879 the Royal Society published in its Philosophical Transactions records of Mr. Crookes' experiments on "Molecular Physics in High Vacua." In the same year appeared a further paper on "Repulsion resulting from Radiation"; and he was again appointed Bakerian Lecturer to the Royal Society, his subject being the "Illumination of Lines of Molecular Pressure, and the Trajectory of Molecules." In 1880 the French Académie des Sciences bestowed on Mr. Crookes an extraordinary prize of 3000 francs and a Gold Medal, in recognition of his discoveries in Molecular Physics and Radiant Matter. In 1881 Mr. Crookes acted as a Juror at the International Exhibition of Electricity in Paris. In this official position he was not entitled to a medal, but in the official report his fellow jurors, after discussing the merits of four systems of incandescent lamps, declared, "None of them would have succeeded had it not been for these extreme vacua which Mr. Crookes has taught us to obtain." Mr. Crookes is the author of "Select Methods in Chemical Analysis"

(2nd edit., revised and extended, 1886): of the "Manufacture of Beetroot-Sugar in England"; of a "Handbook of Dyeing and Calico-Printing"; and of a manual of "Dyeing and Tissue Printing," 1882,—one of the Technological Handbooks prepared for the examinations of the City and Guilds of London Institute. He is also joint author of the English adaptation of Kerl's "Treatise on Metallurgy." He has edited the three last editions of Mitchell's "Manual of Practical Assaying," and has translated into English and edited Reimann's "Aniline and its Derivatives," Wagner's "Chemical Technology," Auerbach's "Anthracen and its Derivatives" (2nd edit. 1890), and Ville's "Artificial Manures" (2nd edit. 1882). Mr. Crookes is an authority on the subject of water supply and sanitary questions, especially the disposal of town-sewage, and his views have been laid before the public in two pamphlets, "A Solution of the Sewage Question" and "The Profitable Disposal of Sewage." Since the year 1881 he has, in conjunction at the present time with Professor Dewar, carried out daily analyses of the waters supplied to the Metropolis, and has published monthly reports on their quality and composition. Since 1883 Mr. Crookes has been almost exclusively engaged with researches on the nature and constitution of the Rare Earths as interpreted by the "Radiant Matter" test, a new method of spectroscopic examination, the outcome of his earlier discoveries on "Radiant Matter," which seems likely to throw a side-light on the origin and constitution of the elements. On this subject he has communicated many papers to the Royal and other societies, some of the most important being the following: "Radiant Matter Spectroscopy"; the "Detection and Wide Distribution of Yttrium," the Bakerian Lecture for 1883; "On Radiant Matter Spectroscopy, Part II., Samarium"; "Notes on the Spectra of Erbium, and the Earth Yt"; "On some New Elements in Gadolinite and Sarmarskite, detected Spectroscopically"; "On the Crimson Line of Phosphorescent Alumina." In 1882 Mr. Crookes was elected a member of the Athenæum Club, under Rule 2. In 1886 Mr. Crookes was elected President of the Chemical Section of the British Association, and at their Birmingham meeting that year he delivered an address in which he propounded some novel speculations on the probable origin of the Chemical Elements, showing that the balance of evidence was in favour of the view that our so-called elements have been formed by a process of evolution from one primordial matter. In 1887 he delivered a Friday evening discourse before the members of the Royal

Institution on the "Genesis of the Elements." In the same year he was elected President of the Chemical Society; he held office for the usual period of two years, and at the anniversary meetings he delivered two addresses, one on "Elements and Meta-Elements," and the other on "The Spectroscopic History of the so-called Rare Earths." In 1888 Mr. Crookes was awarded the Davy Medal of the Royal Society for his Radiant Matter researches. In 1897 he received the honour of knighthood "in recognition of the eminent services he had rendered to the advance of scientific knowledge during Her Majesty's reign." In the same year he was selected for the office of President of the British Association at their meeting at Bristol. Addresses: 7 Kensington Park Gardens, W.; and Athenæum.

CROSS, Viscount, The Right Hon. Richard Assheton Cross, G.C.B., G.C.S.I., D.C.L., LL.D., F.R.S., D.L., J.P., Lord Privy Seal, was born at Red Scar, near Preston, May 30, 1823, being the third son of the late William Cross, Esq., by Ellen, daughter of the late Edward Chaffers, Esq. He was educated at Rugby School under Dr. Arnold, and at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he took the degree of B.A. in 1846. In 1849 he was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple, and for several years he went the Northern Circuit. He was elected M.P. for Preston in the Conservative interest in March 1857, and continued to represent that borough till March 1862. At the general election of December 1868, he was elected Conservative Member for South-West Lancashire. At the general election of 1874, Mr. Cross was returned without opposition. On the formation of Mr. Disraeli's administration, Mr. Cross was appointed Home Secretary, Feb. 21, 1874, on which day he was sworn of the Privy Council. He was elected a Bencher of the Inner Temple in 1876, received the Hon. degree of D.C.L. from the University of Oxford in 1877, and that of LL.D. from the University of Cambridge, Oct. 24, 1878, and LL.D. St. Andrews. He resigned the seals of the Home Department when the Conservatives went out of office in April 1880. At that period he was created a G.C.B., and was again returned for South-West Lancashire. He was appointed Home Secretary in Lord Salisbury's short administration of 1885, and at the general election of the same year was returned for the Newton Division of South-West Lancashire. After the general election of 1886, at which he was again returned for Newton, he was made a Viscount, and became Secretary of State for India in Lord Salisbury's administration. Lord

Cross was a Member of the Council on Education, and an Ecclesiastical Commissioner for England; and is a Magistrate for Cheshire and Lancashire, a Deputy-Lieutenant for the latter county, and was formerly Chairman of the Lancashire Quarter Sessions. He became Treasurer of the Inner Temple in 1895, in which year he was appointed Lord Privy Seal. He is the compiler of two legal works: "The Acts relating to the Settlement and Removal of the Poor, with notices of cases, indices, and forms," 1853; and "The General and Quarter Sessions of the Peace: their jurisdiction and practice in other than criminal matters" (written in conjunction with Mr. H. Leeming), 1858, 2nd edit., 1867. In 1852 he married Georgiana, daughter of the late Thomas Lyon, Esq., of Appleton Hall, Wallington. Addresses: 12 Warwick Square, S.W.; Eccle Riggs, Broughton-in-Furness; and Athenæum.

CROSTHWAITE, Sir Charles Haukes Todd, K.C.S.I., is the second son of the Rev. John Clarke Crosthwaite, and was born in Ireland on Dec. 5, 1835. He was educated at Merchant Taylors' School and St. John's College, Oxford. Entering the Bengal Civil Service in 1857, he eventually reached the position of Chief Commissioner of British Burmah in 1883. Two years later he was appointed Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, in 1887 Chief Commissioner of Burmah, and in 1892 Lieutenant-Governor of the North-West Provinces and Oudh. He retired in 1895, and was in the same year appointed a Member of the Council of India. He is the author of "Notes on the North-Western Provinces of India," 1870. He was created a K.C.S.I. in 1888. Address: Coombefield, Malden, Surrey.

CROSTHWAITE, Sir Robert Joseph, K.C.S.I., Agent to Governor-General for Rajputana and Chief Commissioner of Ajmere, born Jan. 17, 1841, third son of Rev. J. Crosthwaite, Rector of St. Mary-at-Hill, was educated at Merchant Taylors' School and Brasenose College, Oxford, where he became Pusey and Ellerton Scholar in 1860. In 1863 he entered the Indian Civil Service, and in 1868 he was called to the Bar at the Middle Temple. He became Judicial Commissioner of Burmah and Agent to the Governor-General for Central India. He married, firstly, the daughter of W. W. T. Baldwin in 1868, and in 1877 the daughter of S. H. James of St. Just, Cornwall. Address: The Residency, Mount Abu, Rajputana, India.

CROUDACE, Camilla Mary, Lady- Resident of Queen's College, was born

Jan. 1, 1844, as Marsh House, Hammersmith, and is the youngest child of Thomas Crowlace and his wife Camilla, whose father, Charles Vignoles, had with distinction in great engineering works in various parts of Europe. Amongst these was the suspension bridge at Bessé, and father Mrs. Crowlace went in 1846 to superintend her father's establishment, taking with her the little Camilla and one other of the children. Very soon after their arrival in Russia, about the month of May, newspapers arrived, much mutilated and purged of revolutionary taint, but containing a paragraph, destined to bear much fruit in the little girl's after career: it told of the foundation of Queen's College, Harley Street. Mrs. Crowlace's interest was aroused, and she determined to enter her daughter as a pupil in that the first college for the higher education of women, started by F. D. Maurice. An opportunity, however, did not offer itself until eight years later, and in 1856 the present Lady-Resident of Queen's College made her debut as a "new girl." Among the ranks of the Professors at that time were such names of eminence as Dr. Plumptre, Dean of the College; Frederick Denison Maurice, the founder; C. G. Nicolay, the Librarian of King's College; R. C. Trench, later Archbishop of Dublin; Dr. John Hullah; Sir William Sterndale Bennett; the Rev. T. A. Cook, and many others. At the age of fourteen Camilla Crowlace won the Professor's Scholarship, and on leaving the College in 1861 obtained a first-class certificate in general proficiency, which entitled her to be received as an "Associate" when that honour was instituted ten years later. From 1861 to 1869 Miss Crowlace was engaged in teaching, for which she had a passion, but did not enter school work. From 1869 to 1872 she travelled with her mother in Italy, spending long months in different cities studying art and archaeology. On their return to England in 1872 mother and daughter settled at North End, Hampstead, and remained there nine years, spending fifteen months in Italy during that period; and in 1880 Miss Crowlace, who longed to return to teaching, became an assistant mistress in the Kensington High School, wishing to see what modern methods were, and if there were any improvements on the education she had received at Queen's College. She found, however, that though the work was interesting to the teacher, it could be by no means so inspiring to the pupil as the College system. Fortunately, in the following year, 1881, she was able to resume her connection with Queen's College, where she was appointed Lady-Resident by the very Professors who had educated her twenty years before. It has been her sad duty to mourn one by one the death of these venerable teachers, while a new generation has arisen. In her appointment the Rev. J. E. Davis was Principal, and he was succeeded by the Rev. Canon Elvyn from 1884 to 1894, who shortly before his death was followed in office by the Rev. Dr. T. J. Robinson, whose death took place in November 1903. Great exertions were made by Miss Crowlace in the spring of 1896 to celebrate the College Jubilee worthily. The buildings had been enlarged and beautified, and the first week in May was given up to entertaining the crowds of old pupils, who came from far and near to commemorate the event, while the crowning honour of the celebration was a visit from her Majesty the Queen on May 24th. An address was offered by the Council and Committee, and a basket of roses was presented by the Lady-Resident's niece, Kathleen Camilla Crowlace. It is the Lady-Resident's aim to keep up among past and present students the feeling of devotion to the College and veneration for its founders which she has herself experienced, and she has indeed been the means of handing on the torch kindled in the enthusiasm of fifty years ago. Address: Queen's College, Harley Street, W.

CROWE, BYRE, A.R.A., an historical and a genre painter, son of Eyre Evans-Crowe, historian, born in London in October 1824, studied painting in the atelier of Paul Delaroche at Paris. He went with that distinguished artist and his other pupils to Rome in 1844. Acting as amanuensis to Mr. W. M. Thackeray, he visited the United States in 1852-53, writing in 1893 on that subject, "With Thackeray in America," and in the year 1897, "Haunts and Homes of W. M. Thackeray," in Scribner. He is an occasional inspector of the Science and Art Department. Mr. Eyre Crowe was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy in April 1876. Amongst his paintings may be mentioned: "Goldsmith's Mourners," 1863; "Friends," 1871; "Blue Coat Subjects," 1872; "French Savants in Egypt," 1875; "The Rehearsal," 1876; "Sanctuary," "Prayer," and "Bridal Procession at St. Maclou, Rouen," 1877; "School Treat," 1878; "Blue Coat Boys returning from their Holiday," "Marat: 13 July 1793," "The Blind Beggar," and "The Queen of the May" in 1879; "Queen Eleanor's Tomb" and "Forfeits" in 1880; "Sandwiches" and "Sir Roger de Coverley and the Spectator at Westminster Abbey," 1881; "How Happy could I be with Either!" and "The Defence of London in 1643," exhibited in 1882; "Old Porch, Evesham," in 1884; "School at the Aitre, St. Maclou, Rouen," "A Rifle Match at Dunnotar, "1890; "Peg of Limavaddy," 1893; "The Brigs of Ayr," 1894; "Baptism e Cathedral of Newcastle-on-Tyne," as Carlyle, &c., 1895; "Drawing for the Guelph Succession," 1896; al for Bigamy," "The Gipsy's Rest," 1897; "James II. at the Battle of La e, May 1692," 1898. Address: 27 otte Street, Portland Place, W.

CROWE, Mrs. George, née Kate phine Bateman, was born in Balti- Maryland, in October 1842. Both arents were actors, and she and her , two years younger than herself, red in public as the "Bateman ren" as early as 1851, at the St. s's Theatre. She afterwards pre- herself assiduously for the stage, in 1859 played successfully in the g American theatres, her principal ters being those of Evangeline, ed on Longfellow's poem; Geraldine, lay written for her by her mother; in the "Hunchback"; Pauline, in Lady of Lyons"; and Juliet and Macbeth. She arrived in England : autumn of 1863, and appeared 210 in the character of the Jewish n Leah, in an adaptation of the an play "Deborah," at the Adelphi re. After a provincial tour, she red at the Adelphi, playing Julia in "Hunchback," and other characters. ok a farewell of the English public r Majesty's Theatre, in the character iet, in "Romeo and Juliet," Dec. 22, and was married to Mr. George : in October 1866. Mrs. Crowe el- to the stage in 1868, retaining her name of Kate Bateman. In 1868 layed the part of Mary Warner, in ay of that name written for her by te Tom Taylor, at the Haymarket re. In 1872, and subsequently, she red with great success in London as , in the play of that name. In 1875, eival of "Macbeth" at the Lyceum rving as Macbeth), she played the f Lady Macbeth. She also sustained le-rôle in Tennyson's "Queen Mary," was produced at the same house in 1876.

OZIER, The Right Rev. John st, D.D., Bishop of Ossory, Ferns, Leighlin, eldest son of the Rev. t Barton Crozier, B.A., of Rockview, aise, co. Cavan, was born April 8, He was educated at Trinity College, , where he took honours and prizes in s, Hebrew, and Irish, was Junior ator in Logic and Ethics, gained a ass Divinity Testimonium, was Pre- of the University Philosophical So- Auditor of the College Theological Society, and graduated B.A. in 1872, M.A. in 1876, B.D. and D.D. in 1888. He was Curate of Belfast from 1877 to 1880, and in the latter year was appointed to the Vicarage of Holywood, co. Down, which preferment he held until 1897. After acting as domestic and examining chaplain to Dr. Knox from 1885 to 1893, during which time that Prelate was successively Bishop of Down and Archbishop of Armagh, he became chaplain to the Bishop of Down in 1892, and chaplain to the Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland in 1891, both of which offices he held until 1897. He was Hon. Sec. of the Diocesan Synod of Down and Connor from 1892, and Hon. Sec. of the General Synod of the Church of Ireland from 1896; and Canon of Downpatrick Cathedral from 1889, and Canon of St. Patrick's National Cathedral from 1896. Dr. Crozier was, in 1897, elected Bishop of Ossory by the House of Bishops, and was consecrated on November 30 of that year. He was married in 1877 to Alice Isabella, daughter of the Rev. John Hackett, M.A. The Bishop's family have been settled in the co. Fermanagh for the past 300 years, having migrated from Liddesdale and the Debateable Land in the sixteenth century. One of his ancestors was High Sheriff for co. Fermanagh in 1766, and the present head of the family, who lives at Gortra House, co. Fermanagh, was High Sheriff in 1897. Address: The Palace, Kilkenny.

CUDLIP, Mrs. Pender, née Annie Thomas, was born at Aldborough, in Suffolk, where her father, Lieutenant George Thomas, was in charge of the Coast-guard station. She is a voluminous writer. Her first novel, "The Cross of Honour," appeared in 1863, and has been followed by "Sir Victor's Choice," "Denis Donne," 1864; "Theo Leigh," and "Barry O'Byrne," 1865; "Played Out," and "High Stakes," 1866; "Called to Account," 1867; "A Noble Aim," 1868; "Only Herself," "Mrs. Cardigan," "On Guard," "The Dower House," and "False Colours," 1869; "The Dream and the Waking," 1870; "A Passion in Tatters," 1872; "He Cometh Not, she said," 1873; "No Alternative," 1874; "A Narrow Escape," 1875; "Blotted Out," 1876; "A Laggard in Love," 1877; "A London Season," and "Stray Sheep," 1879; "Fashion's Gay Mart," and "Society's Verdict," 1880; "Eyre of Blendon," 1881; "Allerton Towers," and many other novels, stories, and sketches, of which one of the most recent is "Four Women in the Case," 1896. Miss Annie Thomas was married in 1867 to the Rev. Pender Hodge Cudlip. Address: Sparkwell Vicarage, Plympton, Devon.

1. The first group of respondents (n = 10) was composed of individuals who had been employed by the company for a minimum of 10 years and had been in their current position for a minimum of 5 years. This group was selected to provide a baseline of knowledge and experience with the company's operations and procedures.

1. The first step in the process is to identify the problem or issue that needs to be addressed. This involves gathering information and understanding the context of the problem.

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions and activities. It emphasizes that proper record-keeping is essential for transparency and accountability, particularly in financial matters. The text suggests that organizations should implement robust systems to track every detail, from budget allocations to expenditure reports.

2. The second part of the document addresses the challenges faced by organizations in managing their resources effectively. It highlights the need for strategic planning and efficient allocation of funds. The author argues that without a clear vision and structured approach, organizations may struggle to achieve their long-term goals. The text provides several practical tips for improving resource management, such as regular audits and performance evaluations.

3. The third part of the document focuses on the role of leadership in driving organizational success. It discusses the qualities of effective leaders, including vision, communication skills, and the ability to inspire and motivate their teams. The text also touches upon the importance of ethical leadership and the role of leaders in fostering a positive organizational culture. The author concludes by emphasizing that strong leadership is the cornerstone of any successful organization.

4. The fourth part of the document explores the impact of technology on modern organizations. It discusses how digital tools and platforms have transformed various aspects of business operations, from marketing and sales to human resources and customer service. The text highlights the benefits of automation and data analytics, while also acknowledging the challenges associated with digital transformation, such as cybersecurity and the need for continuous learning.

5. The fifth and final part of the document provides a summary of the key points discussed throughout the text. It reiterates the importance of record-keeping, strategic planning, effective leadership, and the integration of technology. The author encourages organizations to embrace change and innovation to stay competitive in a rapidly evolving market. The document concludes with a call to action, urging leaders to take proactive steps to implement the strategies discussed.

SECRET

Mr. Cummings presents the autograph which shows how readily the composer consented to some "cuts" which the singer suggested. Mr. Cummings has also done much useful work as a lecturer on musical subjects and is rich in a knowledge of antiquarian music. He has composed a good deal of music, a large number of songs, a cantata ("The Fairy Ring"), and some glees. His first glee prize was won as long ago as 1847. Mr. Cummings' primer, "The Rudiments of Music," in Novello's series, is well known. The eighty-first thousand has recently been issued; also a Spanish edition, for Spain and South America. Mr. Cummings has also published a "Biographical Dictionary of Musicians," and a biography of Purcell; and has contributed articles to Sir George Grove's "Dictionary of Music and Musicians," and to the "Dictionary of National Biography." As a teacher of singing Mr. Cummings has had great experience, for from 1879 to 1896 he was one of the professors of singing at the Royal Academy of Music, of which he is now an Hon. Member, and he still serves on the Committee of Management. In 1882 he became Chorus Master of the now defunct Sacred Harmonic Society, and subsequently Conductor, in succession to Hallé. Among his other important appointments may be mentioned the Precentorship of St. Anne's, Soho, which he held from 1886 to 1888. In June 1896 Mr. Cummings was elected Principal of the Guildhall School of Music, in succession to the late Sir Joseph Barnby, and since his accession to office he has planned many new schemes, which greatly increase the value of the school curriculum. Address: Sydcote, West Dulwich, S.E.

CUNNINGHAM, Professor Daniel John, M.D. (Gold Medal) Edinburgh, M.D. (Hon.) Dublin, D.Sc. (Hon.) Dublin, LL.D. (Hon.) St. Andrews, D.C.L. (Hon.) Oxon., F.R.S., was born at Crieff, Perthshire, in 1850. He is the son of the late Rev. Principal Cunningham, D.D., of St. Mary's College, St. Andrews, and Susan Porteous Murray, of Crieff. He was educated at Morison's Academy, Crieff, and at the University of Edinburgh. He has been Professor of Anatomy in the University of Dublin since 1883; he is Vice-President of the Royal Dublin Society, and Hon. Secretary of the Royal Zoological Society of Ireland. He is the author of the "Dissector's Guide," Parts I. to III.; "Report on Marsupialia" in Challenger Reports, and of numerous memoirs on morphological subjects. Address: Trinity College, Dublin.

CUNNINGHAM, William, D.Sc. and Hon. LL.D. (Edin.), D.D., Hon. Fellow Caius College (Cambridge), is the son of James Cunningham, W.S., and was born in Edinburgh, Dec. 29, 1849. He was educated at the Edinburgh Academy and Edinburgh University, entered Caius College, Cambridge, in 1869, and migrated to Trinity College on his election to a scholarship in 1873. His literary activity commenced immediately after his degree (bracketed Senior in the Moral Sciences Tripos), and he published several academic exercises: "Influence of Descartes on Metaphysical Speculation in England" (D.Sc. Degree Thesis), "Epistle of St. Barnabas" (Hulsean Prize, 1873), "Churches of Asia" (Kaye Prize, 1879), "Christian Civilisation" (Maitland, 1879), "Christian Opinion on Usury" (B.D. Thesis, 1884). He began to lecture on Economics in 1874 as one of the pioneers of the University Extension movement in Leeds, Bradford, Liverpool, Bolton, Wigan, and other towns. Since his return to Cambridge in 1878 he has been lecturing on English Economic History, and has carried on the work to which Professor Thorold Rogers devoted himself, though on rather different lines, as he has set himself to interpret the economic facts of each period in the light of the ideas current at that time. He has made important researches both in the economic interpretation of history and in the history of economic doctrine. The results of his work are mostly embodied in his "Growth of English Industry and Commerce" (Vol. I. in the Middle Ages, 2nd edit. 1896; Vol. II. in Modern Times, 2nd edit. 1892); but he has also been successful in inducing his pupils to undertake special researches; the late Miss E. Lamond's "Walter of Henley" (1890) and "Discourse of the Common Weal" (1893) would not have appeared but for the encouragement he gave, and several of his pupils have contributed to his "Alien Immigrants to England," 1897. He has acted as examiner in Philosophy both in Edinburgh and Cambridge, was deputy for the Professor of Moral Philosophy in Cambridge in 1881, and University Lecturer in History in 1884, a post which he resigned on being elected to a Trinity Fellowship in 1891. He was also President of Section F, British Association, at Cardiff, and Professor of Economics at King's College, London, 1891-97. During his tenure of that office he engaged in a vigorous crusade in favour of a more realistic treatment of Economic Science, and inveighed especially against attempts to formulate "economic laws" as unnecessary, inconvenient, and misleading (articles in Economic Journal, ii., and Economic Review, ii. and iv.). He has also exemplified the realistic mode of treatment in "Modern Civilisation," 1896; "Outlines of English Industrial History," with Miss M'Arthur (2nd edit. 1898); and "Essay on Western Civilisation in Ancient Times," 1898; as well as in his "Politics and Economics," 1885; and "Use and Abuse of Money," 1891. Since his ordination in 1873 he has been regularly engaged in clerical as well as academic work; he has been Vicar of Great St. Mary's, Cambridge, since 1887; Proctor for the Diocese of Ely since 1892; he is Rural Dean of Cambridge, and Hon. Canon of Ely. He has published his Hulsean Lectures on St. Austin, 1886, as well as various sermons and addresses on questions of the day—"Path towards Knowledge," 1891; "True Womanhood," 1896. He was married in 1876 to Adile Rebecca, daughter of Andrew A. Dunlop, Esq. Address: Trinity College, Cambridge.

CURNOW, Professor John, M.D., was born on Jan. 26, 1846, at Towednack, near Penzance, Cornwall. He is the son of Andrew and Esther Curnow, née Grylls, and was educated at Penzance and privately. He entered King's College, London, as a medical student on Oct. 1, 1864, and gained the second Warneford Entrance Scholarship. In 1865 he obtained a Junior Medical Scholarship, and matriculated with honours at the University of London. In 1868, having passed as M.R.C.S. and L.S.A., he was appointed Assistant House Physician to King's College Hospital, and in 1869 House Physician. In 1868 he passed the Intermediate M.B. Examination at the University of London, taking the Exhibitions and Gold Medals in Anatomy and in Chemistry and Materia Medica, and in 1870 he took his degree of M.B., being University Scholar and gold medallist in Medicine and in Obstetric Medicine. In 1871 he obtained the full degree of M.D. London, being placed first and awarded the Gold Medal. He became a Member of the Royal College of Physicians of London in 1873, and a Fellow in 1878, and was appointed to give the Gulstonian Lectures to the College in the next year, taking as his subject "The Lymphatic System and its Diseases." In 1869 he was elected an Associate, and in 1872 a Fellow of King's College, London. After studying at Dublin and abroad, he was asked in 1870 to undertake the duties of Demonstrator of Anatomy under the late Professor Partridge, and in 1873 succeeded his old teacher in the chair, and resigned it in 1897, thus teaching anatomy actively for twenty-seven years. During this period he wrote many papers and showed many specimens of abnormal anatomy, especially as affecting nerves and muscles. For thirteen years (1883-96) he also undertook the duties of Dean of the Medical Faculty of King's College. On entering on the duties of the office he was presented with an illuminated address of congratulation by the students, and on his retirement a complete breakfast service of plate was given to him by past and present pupils as a token of their appreciation of his services. In 1874 he was appointed Assistant Physician to King's College Hospital, in 1882 Physician with care of out-patients, and in 1890 full Physician. In 1896 he succeeded the late Sir George Johnson as Professor of Clinical Medicine. In 1880 he was appointed Physician to the Seamen's Hospital (late Dreadnought), and is now the Senior Visiting Physician. He has been Examiner in Anatomy at the University of London (twice), of Durham, and the Victoria University. He has also contributed several papers and articles on medical subjects to the medical journals, and has taken much interest in the different phases of modern medical education. He is now writing historical sketches of King's College and King's College Hospital in the King's College Hospital reports. Addresses: 9 Wimpole Street, Cavendish Square, London; and Penzance, Cornwall.

CURRIE, Sir Donald, G.C.M.G., D.L., J.P., M.P., is the son of the late Mr. James Currie, and was born in 1825. He is at the head of the firm of Donald Currie and Co., owners of the Castle Line of steamships between London and South Africa. Sir Donald takes an active interest in all questions connected with South Africa, and he has rendered great services to the country and to the Government. For his services in the settlement of the Diamond Fields dispute and the Orange Free State boundary he was made a C.M.G. in 1877, in 1881 a K.C.M.G. for further assistance during the Zulu War, and especially in connection with the relief of Ekowe, and a G.C.M.G. in 1897. He entered Parliament in 1880 as Liberal Member for Perthshire, and in 1885, and again in 1886, 1892, and 1895, was returned for the new division of West Perthshire. At the last three general elections he stood as a Liberal Unionist. Sir Donald Currie, it will be remembered, has on several occasions taken the late Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone long trips in his ocean steamers when he was in need of a voyage to restore him to health. He married Margaret, daughter of J. Miller, in 1851. Addresses: 4 Hyde Park Place, London, W.; and Garth, Aberfeldy, Perthshire.

CURRIE, Sir Edmund Hay, second son of Leonard Currie of Bromley and Tunbridge Wells, and Caroline Christina, daughter of General Sir James Hay, was born in 1834, and educated at Harrow. He is the grandson of the late Sir James Hay, K.C.B., and has for many years been associated with various philanthropic movements for promoting the education and improving the social condition of the poor in the east end of London. He took an active part in promoting the success of the People's Palace, and was chairman of the trustees of that institution. Sir Edmund was formerly a Member and Vice-Chairman of the School Board for London and Chairman of the Metropolitan Asylums Board and of the London Hospital. He is Chairman of the People's Palace. He was knighted in 1876. He married in 1877 Harriet Anne, daughter of the late Rev. Edward Golding, Vicar of Brimpton and Maiden-Erleigh, Berkshire. Address: Seafield Park, Crofton, Hants.

CURRIE, Lady (Violet Fane) (née Mary Montgomerie Lamb), is the eldest daughter of the late Charles J. S. Montgomerie Lamb, only son of Sir Charles Montolieu Lamb, Bart., and Mary Montgomerie, daughter and heiress of the 11th Earl of Eglinton. As "Violet Fane" she has won a high reputation as a poetess, and has published "From Dawn to Noon," 1872; "Denzil Place," 1875; "The Queen of the Fairies," 1877; "The Edwin and Angelina Papers," 1878; "Collected Verses," 1880; "Sophy; or The Adventures of a Savage," 1881; "Through Love and War," 1886; "Autumn Songs" and "The Story of Helen Davenant," 1889; "Mémoires of Marguerite de Valois," 1892; "Under Cross and Crescent," 1896. She was married (1) in 1864 to Henry Sydenham Singleton, who died in 1893, and (2) in 1894 to Sir Philip Wodehouse Currie, then Ambassador at Constantinople, with whom she shared the honours of the leave-taking accorded him on quitting Turkey recently. Address: British Embassy, Rome.

CURRIE, Lord, The Right Hon. Sir Philip Henry Wodehouse, G.C.B., fourth son of the late Raikes Currie, Esq., M.P., and the Hon. Laura Sophia Wodehouse, was born in 1834, and educated at Eton. He entered the Foreign Office in 1854, and became senior clerk in 1874. In 1876 he accompanied the Marquis of Salisbury as Secretary on his Special Embassy to Constantinople, and in 1878 was appointed (jointly with Mr. Montagu Corry, now Lord Rowton) secretary to the Special Embassy during the Congress at Berlin, and was made a C.B. He was in charge of the correspondence respecting the affairs of Cyprus from August 1878 to April 1880, and in 1882 was appointed Assistant Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs. He was Joint Protocolist to the Conference in London on Egyptian Finance from June 28 to Aug. 2, 1884, and was made a K.C.B. Dec. 1, 1885. He was appointed Permanent Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs April 2, 1889.

In the same year he was one of the British Delegates to examine the question of boundary between the Netherlands possessions in Borneo and those under British protection. He was made a G.C.B. in 1892. In 1894 he was appointed Ambassador at Constantinople in succession to the Right Hon. Sir Clare Ford, and has been the object of many flattering attentions from the Sultan. His position in Constantinople during the Armenian troubles was one of the most difficult in which a British ambassador can be placed. Appointed to be Her Majesty's Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary in Italy, Sir Philip Currie, together with Lady Currie, left Constantinople at the end of May 1898, the occasion marking their great popularity in Constantinople. Many British residents and the heads of all the ambassadorial staffs were present at the farewell, and the Sultan, the Grand Vizier, and Tewfik Pasha sent their representatives. Sir Philip Currie arrived in Rome, in order to take up his new duties, in June. He was raised to the peerage at New Year 1899. He married Lady Currie (q.v.) in 1894. English address: Hawley, Blackwater, Hants.

CURZON, Lord, The Right Hon. George Nathaniel, Viceroy of India, eldest son of the Rev. Alfred, 4th Lord Scarsdale, by Blanche, second daughter of the late Mr. Joseph Pocklington-Senhousie of Netherhall, Cumberland, was born at Kedleston Hall, the family seat in Derbyshire, on Jan. 11, 1859. In 1872 he went to Eton and began his successful career by carrying off innumerable prizes. Some eight years later he entered Balliol College, Oxford, where he again took a large share of honours. In 1883 he won the Lothian Prize for an essay on "Justinian," and soon after was elected to a Fellowship at All Souls. He was awarded in 1884 the Arnold Historical Prize for an essay on "Sir Thomas More," and he graduated B.A. in the same year and M.A. in 1886. Mr. Curzon soon showed great power of debate, and was the most conspicuous orator of modern times in the Oxford Union, of which he afterwards became President. In 1885, when he acted as assistant private secretary to the Marquis of Salisbury, Mr. Curzon unsuccessfully contested South Derbyshire in the Conservative interest; but in the following year he succeeded in capturing the Southport division of Lancashire from the Gladstonian Liberals by a majority of nearly 500 votes. His popularity in the constituency has steadily increased since 1886, and his majorities have grown at every succeeding election. Before leaving college Mr. Curzon, who is a born traveller, decided to study Asiatic countries at first hand. His determination was the result of a voyage round the world which he made after leaving Eton. In 1888 he undertook a journey along the newly-constructed Transcaspian Railway and other parts of Central Asia within the dominions of the Czar, and during the course of the next year he published his work on "Russia in Central Asia." In 1889 he explored Persia, and acted as correspondent for the Times, to which paper he contributed a number of articles on the subject of Persia. He became acquainted with the Shah, and spent six months in his country. He embodied his experiences in a large work of two volumes, entitled "Persia and the Persian Question." Mr. Curzon believes that the British Empire is the greatest instrument for good the world has ever seen, and holds that its work in the Far East is not yet accomplished. His book on the Far East, therefore, which was the outcome of his journeys in China, Japan, and Corea during 1887-88 and 1892-93 was read with the greatest interest, and, coming as it did at a critical time, it was found to be of the highest value. Mr. Curzon's last journey was to the Pamirs, and he "believes he knows better than any one can tell him what Russia intends in those high regions." The chief outcome of that trip was that Mr. Curzon became a staunch supporter of the "Forward Policy" on the north-west frontier of India, and he has recently ratified his allegiance to the forward doctrine. While in Afghanistan he became intimate with the Ameer, and a friendly correspondence has been kept up between them ever since. His appointment, therefore, to the Viceroyalty of India is exceedingly opportune, and gave great satisfaction to the Ameer. The value of his contributions to geographical knowledge was recognised in 1895 by the Royal Geographical Society, which awarded to him its gold medal. Mr. Curzon's Parliamentary career has been remarkably successful. He early caught the ear of the House, and towards the close of the last Conservative Government he became Under-Secretary for India. When Lord Salisbury formed his present administration Mr. Curzon was made Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and it has been his good fortune to fill that post, and to represent British Foreign Policy in the House of Commons at a time when foreign affairs have held the first place in public interest. His reputation for being able to combine hard work with extreme readiness of speech, and sometimes even with eloquence, has grown steadily, though in his more recent speeches and replies on the Chinese question he has laid himself open to very serious criticism. In August 1898

it was announced that the Queen had been pleased to approve of the appointment of Mr. Curzon to be Viceroy and Governor-General of India in succession to the Earl of Elgin. It was felt that the appointment was something of an experiment, but it was generally conceded at home and in India that Mr. Curzon was eminently fitted for the post. Some surprise was expressed that he should give up a brilliant parliamentary career to go to India; but Asia has always possessed a great fascination for him; and to obtain at the age of thirty-nine years what is truly called the most splendid position under the Crown, falls to the lot of very few. For the British Empire in the Far East Mr. Curzon has the greatest hope. He says, "This splendid future is no idle dream of fancy, but is capable of realisation at no indefinite period. Moral failure alone can shatter the prospect that awaits this country in the impending task of regeneration." On Sept. 24, 1898, it was announced that the Queen had been pleased to confer the dignity of a peerage upon the Right Hon. George N. Curzon, Viceroy designate of India, by the name, style, and title of Baron Curzon of Kedleston, in the Peerage of Ireland. By this creation Lord Curzon is not deprived of his eligibility to the House of Commons in case he ceases to be Viceroy and returns to England before becoming Lord Scarsdale. Lord Curzon, who is a J.P. and D.L. for Derbyshire, married in 1895 Mary, the daughter of Mr. L. T. Leiter of Washington, U.S.A. Lady Curzon is said to have brought her husband great wealth. A daughter was born to them in 1896. In February 1899 Lady Curzon received the decoration of the Imperial Order of the Crown of India. English addresses: The Priory, Reigate; 4 Carlton Gardens, S.W.; and Athenæum.

CUST, Henry John Cockayne, is the son of Major H. F. Cockayne Cust, of Cockayne Hatley, and was born on Oct. 10, 1861. He was educated at Eton, and Trinity College, Cambridge, and sat in the House of Commons as Member for Stamford from 1890 to 1895. Mr. Cust was until lately the editor of the Pall Mall Gazette. He was married in 1893 to Emmeline, only daughter of Sir William Welby-Gregory, Bart., and he is the heir to the earldom of Brownlow. Address: Cockayne Hatley, Sandy, Bedfordshire.

CUST, Robert Needham, LL.D. Edinburgh, J.P., son of the Hon. and Rev. Henry Cockayne Cust and Lady Anna Maria Needham, daughter of the Earl of Kilmorey, was born Feb. 24, 1821, at Cock-

ayne Hatley, Bedfordshire, and educated at Eton. He entered her Majesty's Indian Civil Service and took honours in four Oriental languages in the College of Fort William, Calcutta. He held the highest judicial and revenue posts in Northern India, and served many years with Lord Lawrence in the Punjab, being present at the battles of Múdkí, Ferozeshah, and Sohraon, and at the taking of Lahore, 1845-46. He took part in the Punjab War, 1848-49, and in the pacification of the country after the Mutinies in 1858. He was a member of the Legislative Council of the Viceroy, 1864-65, and is Barrister-at-Law, J.P. for the counties of London and Middlesex, Honorary Secretary of the Royal Asiatic Society, and has been Member of the Council of the Royal Geographical Society. He is also Honorary Lay Secretary of the Board of Missions of the Church of England. He has published "Modern Languages of East Indies," 1878; "Modern Languages of Africa," 1882; "Modern Languages of Oceania," 1887; "Modern Languages of the Caucasian Group," 1887; "Linguistic and Oriental Essays" (Series I.-V.), 1880-1898; "Sketches of Anglo-Indian Life"; "The Shrines of Lourdes, Zaragossa, and Loretto," 1892; "Essays on Bible Diffusion," 1892; "Notes on Missionary Subjects"; "Poems of Many Years and Places" (Series I. 1887, Series II. 1897); "Bible Translation," 1890; "Africa Rediviva, or Missionary Occupation of Africa," 1891; "Methods of Evangelisation of the Word," 1894; "Common Features which appear in all the Religions of the World," 1895; "Clouds on the Horizon, or the Various Forms of Religious Errors," 1890; "Gospel-Message," 1896; "Five Essays on Religious Conceptions," 1898; and is a constant contributor to oriental, literary, and religious publications, and an earnest supporter of all Protestant Missionary Societies. He was called upon to read a paper on "The Progress of African Philology," at the Chicago Congress, 1893, which has been published. Dr. Cust is a Member of Committees of the British and Foreign Bible Society, the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, and the Church Missionary Society, a Member of the German and French Oriental Societies, Hon. Secretary of the Royal Asiatic Society, and Honorary Member of the Geographical Society of Holland and the American Board of Foreign Missions, Boston, United States. He married (1), in 1855, Maria, daughter of the Hon. and Rev. Louis Hobart, Dean of Windsor, brother of the Earl of Buckinghamshire, and (2), in 1868, Elizabeth, daughter of J. Matthews. Address: 63 Elm Park Gardens, S.W.

D

DAGONET. See SIMS, GEORGE ROBERT.

DAHN, Professor Geheimrath Julius Sophus Felix, German historian, a writer on German law, a novelist, and poet, son of the celebrated actors Friedrich and Constance Dahn of Munich, was born at Hamburg, Feb. 9, 1834, and educated at the Gymnasium and University of Munich. In 1862 he was appointed Professor of Jurisprudence at Würzburg, and in 1872 proceeded to Königsberg, where he still resides. He distinguished himself as a volunteer in the war of 1870-71. Amongst his historical works the chief are: "The Germanic Kings" (Die Könige der Germanen), 6 vols., 1861-72; "Procopius of Caesarea," 1865; "West Gothic Studies," 1874; "Lombard Studies," 1876; "Reasons in Law," 1879; "The Early History of the Germanic and Romance Peoples, I.-IV., 1881-90; "German History," I. 1883, II. 1889. As a poet, Professor Dahn has written a number of ballads which take high rank: "Twelve Ballads," 1875; "Ballads and Songs," 1878, and others. As a novelist he ranks still higher. "Ein Kampf um Rom," which appeared in 1876, made a great impression throughout Germany; it was followed in 1878 by "Kämpfende Herzen," and "Odhins Trost," which reached a 6th edit. in 1883. He has written also: "Kleine Romane aus der Völkerwanderung," I.-VII., 6 editions; "Bis zum Tode getreu," 6th edit., 1887; "Weltuntergang," 6th edit., 1889, and several novels on subjects from Northern and Scandinavian history. In 1888 he accepted a vocation to the University of Breslau. In 1890-93 he published his "Erinnerungen."

DALBY, Sir William Bartlett, M.B., F.R.C.S., is the son of the late Charles Allsopp Dalby, and was born at Ashby-de-la-Zouche, Dec. 10, 1840. He was educated at Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, where he graduated B.A. in 1863, subsequently taking the degree of M.B. in 1866. He studied medicine at St. George's Hospital, and became a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of England in 1867. He was for several years Aural Surgeon, and Lecturer on Aural Surgery, at St. George's Hospital, and is now Consulting Aural Surgeon to that institution. He was President of the Medical Society from 1894 to 1895; and is the author of "Lectures on Diseases and Injuries of the Ear;" "The Education of Deaf and Dumb by means of Lip-reading and Articulation," 1872; "Educational treatment of Incurably Deaf Children;" the article "Diseases and Injuries of the Ear," in Holmes's "System of Surgery"; the article "Diseases of the Ear," in Quain's "Dictionary of Medicine"; and of numerous articles in connection with Aural Surgery, which have appeared in the various medical journals and periodicals. He was knighted in 1886; and was married in 1873 to Hyacinthe, daughter of the late Major Edward Wellesley, of the 73rd Regiment. Addresses: 18 Savile Row, W.; and the Athenæum.

DALLINGER, the Rev. William Henry, LL.D., D.Sc., D.C.L., F.R.S., F.L.S., son of Joseph S. Dallinger, artist, etcher, and line engraver, was born at Devonport on July 5, 1841, and educated privately. He entered the Wesleyan ministry in 1861, and was appointed successively to Faversham, Cardiff, Bristol, and Liverpool, remaining in the last place twelve years. From there he was appointed Principal of Wesley College, Sheffield, which he resigned, in 1888, in order to devote himself wholly to the pursuit of minute biological research. For that purpose he has constructed a microscopical laboratory near London, where the work he is engaged in is still progressing. Fond of nature and science, from early school-days he made himself master of the use of the best and most powerful microscopical lenses, and being duly interested in the discussion then rife amongst biologists as to the origin of life, he, without leaning either to biogenesis or abiogenesis, gave himself to the working out, by microscopical research, of the life-histories of the minute forms of life the mode of whose origin was in dispute. The best lenses and appliances obtainable were employed; but under the influence of this work the defects and deficiencies of lenses of enormous power were disclosed, and all the years since have been employed by opticians and mathematicians in bringing them nearer perfection. The result has been that the life-histories of these minutest organisms have been worked out successfully by Dr. Dallinger; and it has been shown that, so far from their having origin in not-living matter, they actually arise in spores or germs, fertilised by a genetic process like all the higher and more complex forms above them. Dr. Dallinger's latest work (1885-96) has been, by the aid of still more nearly perfect lenses, to demonstrate that the cell-nucleus in these minute organisms (and probably in all simple cells) undergoes profound changes prior to the several changes of the body, and he is endeavouring by a study of the changes undergone by the nuclei of the majority of the unicellular animals to approximate an interpretation of what is involved in cellular multiplication. Dr. Dallinger's earliest work was rewarded by an unsought grant of £100 from the Royal Society for further research. He was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1888; gave a series of discourses on his researches at the Royal Institution, London, and was appointed Rede Lecturer to the University of Cambridge. He also discoursed on his researches before the University of Oxford. He was appointed President of the Royal Microscopical Society in 1883; and, at the request of the committee of the British Association, went to Montreal to give the principal results of his work to the British Association assembled there in 1884, receiving on that occasion the honorary degree of LL.D. from the Victoria University; and in 1892, at the celebration of the ter-centenary of Trinity College, Dublin, he received, honoris causa, the Doctor of Science degree of that University. The University of Durham in like manner conferred on him the degree of D.C.L. in 1896. The work done is recorded in the Proceedings of the Royal and the Royal Microscopical Societies, and has been, in connection with other more general biological work, communicated to several of the leading journals. He has also been for many years, and still is, a lecturer on the Gilchrist educational staff. As a minister he has ever sought to inculcate the wisdom of a fearless acceptance of scientific truth, and has endeavoured to show that this may comport with a firm hold on the fundamental truths of Christianity. He married Emma J., daughter of David Goldsmith, of Bury St. Edmunds. Permanent address: Ingleside, Newstead Road, Lee, Kent.

DALMACOND. See MACDONALD, GEORGE.

DALRYMPLE, Sir Charles, M.A., M.P., J.P., is the second son of Sir Charles Dalrymple-Fergusson, Bart., and was born at Kilkerran, Ayrshire, on Oct. 15, 1839. He was educated at Harrow, and Trinity College, Cambridge, where he graduated M.A. in 1865. Called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn in the same year, he was in 1868 elected to represent Bute in the House of Commons, and he continued to hold that seat until 1885. In the latter year he opposed Mr. Gladstone in his candidature for Midlothian, and in 1886 he was elected Conservative member for Ipswich, a seat which he has since continuously held. He was a Junior Lord of the Treasury from 1885 to 1886, and has served on several important Commissions, viz.: The Cathedral Establishments Commission, 1879-1885; the Reformatories and Industrial Schools Commission, 1882-1883; the Vaccination Commission, 1890-1896; the Scottish Universities Commission, 1889-1896. Sir Charles Dalrymple acted as Grand Master Mason of Scotland from 1893 to 1896, is a Director of the Bank of Scotland, and was created a Baronet in 1887. He is a Justice of the Peace for Haddingtonshire, Midlothian, and Ayrshire; and he was married to Alice Mary, second daughter of Sir Edward Hunter-Blair, Bart. (she died in 1884). Addresses: Newhailes, Musselburgh, N.B.; 20 Onslow Gardens, S.W.; and the Athenæum.

DALTON, Rev. Herbert Andrew, M.A., is the son of the late Rev. Charles Browne Dalton, Vicar of Highgate and Prebendary of St. Paul's, and of Mary Frances, daughter of Dr. Blomfield, Bishop of London, and was born in London on May 18, 1852. He was educated at Highgate School, and Corpus Christi College, Oxford, being elected Scholar of his College in 1871, and gaining a first-class both in Classical Moderations and in the Final School of Litt. Hum. in 1875. He was a Senior Student of Christ Church from 1875 to 1878, and in 1877 was appointed Head-Master of St. Edward's School, Oxford. In 1884 he became an Assistant-Master at Winchester College, and was in 1890 appointed Head-Master of Felsted School. Mr. Dalton has edited "Select Epodes, and the Ars Poetica of Horace," 1884; and is the author of "Helps to Self-Examination for Boys in Public Schools," 1892. He was married in 1879 to Mabel, daughter of Captain Charles Simeon. Address: Schoolhouse, Felsted, Essex.

DALY, Frederic. See AUSTIN, LOUIS F.

DANA, Marvin, M.A., LL.B., Ph.D., F.R.G.S., &c., editor of Judy, was born in Cornwall, Vermont, U.S.A., March 2, 1867, and is the son of Edward Summers Dana and Mary Howe Squier Dana, his wife, of "The Poplars," Newhaven, Vermont, being also lineal descendant of the Count de Dunois, 1400. His earlier education was gained at Middlebury College, Vermont (B.A., 1886; M.A., 1889). He also studied at the Sauveur College of Languages, and received the diploma of that institution. He attended lectures in the law department of Union University, Albany, New York, and gained the degree of Bachelor of Laws in 1886. He then travelled for a time, after which, in 1890, he entered the General Seminary, New York, where, after three years of study, he was honoured with the Litterati's degree. At the same time, he matriculated in the post graduate department of the University of New York, where he won distinction for his work in philosophy. Already his writings were beginning to attract attention. Indeed, as early as 1889, when he was only twenty-two years of age, a volume of his verses was published, under the title, "Mater Christi, and Other Poems," and was successful. His interest in economical subjects caused him to be elected Councillor of the American Institute of Civics in 1892. Two years later he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society. He had been unanimously chosen class-poet by his fellow-students, both in the University and in the Seminary. He was now, in 1894, elected by the Alumni of Middlebury College to deliver the annual Alumni Poem. In this year he married Gertrude, daughter of the late J. Mortimer Hill, of "The Arbors," Pasadena, California, U.S.A. Mr. Dana's literary labours have been remarkably varied. In addition to the many poems he has contributed to the leading periodicals, English and American, he has written a large number of short stories, while his first novel is about to be published simultaneously in London and New York. Moreover, he is the author of many essays on scientific, philosophical, and historical subjects. Among these "The Sepulture of the Living," which appeared in the Arena Magazine (Boston), for May 1897, perhaps attracted most attention at home and abroad. A "History of the Mormons," and "Wars of the Century," are among his other works. In 1897, he wrote a review of the last decade in the world's history, to form the final volume in a new edition of Dr. Ridpath's "History of Events." At present he is accumulating material for another historical volume, and he has nearly completed his notes for a general history of the literature of the world. In October, 1897, Mr. Dana came to London, where he became editor of Judy. Despite the demands made upon him by his editorial duties, he finds time to do other work in the world of letters. A recent example of this is to be found in the six sonnets contributed by him to the Pall Mall Magazine for January 1899. Mr. Dana is a skilled musician, his favourite instrument being the violin, and a good linguist, knowing at least a dozen languages. Mr. Dana, when in town, takes his chief exercise in fencing, of which he is very fond, and in which he is an adept. In the country he is an enthusiastic lover of all sports, and is particularly devoted to hunting and mountain-climbing. Mr. Dana is a member of the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, and he is a charter member of the Order of Founders and Patriots. His address is 1 Army and Navy Mansions, Victoria Street, S.W.

DANCKWERTS, William Otho Adolph Julius, is the son of Adolph Victor Danckwerts, of Somerset East, Cape of Good Hope, and was born in 1853. He was educated at Peterhouse College, Cambridge, and was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in July 1878. He is a Special Pleader on the South-Eastern Circuit; and is Counsel to H.M. Commissioners of Works and Public Buildings, and also junior Standing Counsel to the Commissioners of the Inland Revenue. Address: 7 New Court, Carey Street, W.C.

D'ANNUNZIO, Gabriele, Italian novelist, was born in 1864 on board the ship Ircine in the Adriatic Sea. He was educated in the College at Prato, and in 1880, having been impressed by reading Carducci's "Odi Barbare," he wrote his first book of poems, entitled "Primo Vere." He then proceeded to the University at Rome, and published in 1882 a volume of prose, "Terra Vergine," and a volume of verse, "Canto Novo," and another, "Intermezzo di Rime," in the next year. Finding that the attractions of the capital interfered with his work, he retired to his native province of Chieti; and thence in 1884 he published a volume of short stories, "Il Libro delle Vergini," and another in 1886, "San Pantaleone," both of which are filled with pictures of brutality and violence. He also issued the following volumes of poetry: "Isotheo," "Chimera," "Elegie Romane" and "Poema Paradisiaco," but he holds that prose is the best medium to express the complexities of the modern soul. He is best known in England by his "Trionfo della Morte," a novel of great power, but distinctly decadent tendency; it was published in January 1896, and has been translated into many European languages, notably into English in 1898. In 1897 he wrote "The Dream of a Spring Morning" for Signora Duse, a play that was forbidden by the Lord Chamberlain when Madame Bernhardt proposed to play it in London in June 1898. He proposes to write three more of the same series. The second was written in 1898, "The Dream of a Summer Afternoon." He is now said to be writing a drama on the subject of St. Francis, to be called "Frate Sole," and a novel "The Fire." He is proposing to build a theatre at Florence in which Signora Duse can act his plays. He has recently been elected a Deputy for his native village to the Italian Parliament. Address: Villa Cappuccina, Florence.

DARLING, Charles John, Justice of the High Court, is the eldest son of the late Charles Darling, of Langham Hall, Essex, and was born in 1849. Educated by private tutors, he was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1874, went the Oxford Circuit, was made Q.C. in 1885, and was elected a bencher of his Inn. 1892. He was appointed a Commissioner of Assize for the Oxford Circuit in 1896. In 1885 and 1886 he stood for South Hackney, but was on both occasions beaten by the present Lord Chief-Justice. In February 1888 he was returned for Deptford at a bye-election, and sat as a Conservative till his elevation to the Bench in October 1897. Many years ago he gained a reputation as a satirist by his skit on things legal, entitled "Scintillæ Juris." "Meditations in the Tea-Room" is also from his pen. He married, in 1885, Mary Caroline, daughter of Major-General Wilberforce Greathed, C.B., R.E.

DARLING, Lord. See STORMONTH-DARLING, LORD.

DARMESTER, Madame, née Agnes Mary F. Robinson, the eldest daughter of Mr. G. F. Robinson, F.S.A., was born at Leamington, Feb. 27, 1856. She is the widow of the late celebrated French Orientalist, James Darmesteter. For seven years she studied at University College, giving especial attention to Greek literature. She has published a volume of verses, "A Handful of Honeysuckles," 1878; "The Crowned Hippolytus," a translation of Euripides, 1880; "Arden," a novel, and "Emily Brontë" and "Marguerite, Queen of Navarre," in the Eminent Women Series, 1883; "The New Arcadia, and other poems," 1884, and "An Italian Garden," 1886. Her younger sister, Frances Mabel Robinson, has won praise as a writer. Madame Darmesteter has of late been busily engaged in working up documentary material for her history of the Italian campaigns of the French King Charles V., which, until recently, have been strangely neglected by historians. In 1891 appeared "Lyrics selected from the Works of A. M. F. Robinson," &c. In 1893 Madame Darmesteter published "Retrospect and other Poems," and, in 1897, a "Life of Renan," and "A Mediæval Garland."

DARTMOUTH, Earl of, The Right Hon. William Heneage Legge, J.P., was born on May 6, 1851, and succeeded his father as 6th Earl in 1891. He was educated at Eton, and Christ Church, Oxford. In 1878 he was elected Conservative member for West Kent, and he retained the seat until 1885, when he became member for Lewisham, in the same interest; this latter constituency he continued to represent until 1891, when he succeeded to the Peerage. He was for some years a Conservative whip in the House of Commons, and he acted as Vice-Chamberlain of the Household for part of 1885, and again from 1886 to 1891. Lord Dartmouth was appointed Lord Lieutenant of Staffordshire in 1891, and he became Provincial Grand-Master of Freemasons for Staffordshire in 1893. He was married, in 1879, to Mary, daughter of the 2nd Earl of Leicester. Address: Patshull House, Wolverhampton.

DARWIN, Francis, M.A., M.B., F.R.S., son of the late Charles Darwin, was born at Down, in Kent, Aug. 16, 1848, and was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, and afterwards at St. George's Hospital, London. At College, he took the Degrees of M.A. 1874, M.B. 1874, and was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society, 1882. He was appointed University Lecturer in Botany, 1884; Reader in Botany, 1888; and became Fellow of Christ's College, 1888. He acted as his father's assistant from 1874 to 1882; and is the joint author of "The Power of Movement in Plants," 1880, and author of various papers on Physiological Botany, and is editor of "Life and Letters of Charles Darwin," 1887. In 1892 he published "Charles Darwin"; in 1894, jointly with the late E. H. Acton, "Practical Physiology of Plants," 1894; and, in 1895, "Elements of Botany." Addresses: Wychfield, Cambridge, and Athenæum.

DARWIN, George Howard, M.A., F.R.S., D.Sc., is the second son of the late Charles R. Darwin. He was born at Down, Kent, on July 9, 1845, and is married to a daughter of Mr. Charles Du Puy, of Philadelphia. In October 1864 he entered Trinity College, Cambridge. He graduated in 1868 as Senior Wrangler, and was awarded the Second Smith's Prize. He was elected to a Fellowship at Trinity College in October 1868, and afterwards studied for the Bar, and was called at Lincoln's Inn, April 30, 1872; but he never pursued the profession of the law, and in 1873 he returned to Cambridge. In 1879 he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society, and in 1885 "a royal medal" was awarded to him by the Royal Society in recognition of his scientific work. He also received a medal from the Royal Astronomical Society. In 1875 he presented two papers to the Statistical Society on consanguineous marriages, and in 1876 he contributed to the Transactions of the Royal Society a paper "On the Influence of Geological Changes on the Earth's Axis of Rotation." This was followed by a series of papers on the part played by the tides in the history of planets and satellites. He has also been engaged in experimental investigations on the pressure of loose sand (Inst. C.E.), and jointly with his brother, Mr. Horace Darwin, on small changes of level in the earth's surface, and minute earthquakes (Brit. Assoc. Reports). In 1882 he assisted Sir William Thomson (Lord Kelvin) in the preparation of the second part of the new edition of "Thomson and Tait's Natural Philosophy." He was for several years occupied with the theory and prediction of the tides, especially with reference to the operations of the tidal department of the survey of India. An account of his work in this branch will be found in Reports to the British Association for 1883-85. Besides a number of papers on various astronomical subjects, he has written on ripple marks in sand. On Jan. 16, 1883, he was elected to the Plumian Professorship of Astronomy and Experimental Philosophy at Cambridge, vacant by the death of the Rev. James Challis, M.A., F.R.S. In 1885 he was appointed a Member of the Council of the Meteorological Office. He is an honorary graduate of the Universities of Glasgow, Dublin, and Padua, and a Member of several British and Foreign Academies of Science. Address: Newnham Grange, Cambridge.

DARYL, Sidney. See STRAIGHT, SIR DOUGLAS.

DAVENPORT, Sir Samuel, K.C.M.G., LL.D., fourth son of the late George Davenport, Esq., of Oxford, and of Great Wigston, Leicestershire, was born in 1818, and settled in South Australia in 1842. He became an enterprising cattle and sheep farmer, and also occupied himself with the cultivation of the olive and the manufacture of olive oil, and with vineyards and wine. He was Crown Nominee of Legislative Council in 1846-47, and Member from 1857 to 1866. He has taken a prominent part in the organisation of the various exhibitions that have been held in different parts of the world, being Executive Commissioner in London, 1851, Philadelphia, 1876, Sydney, 1879, Melbourne, 1880, and London, 1886. He was also for many years President of the Royal Agricultural and Horticultural Society and of the Chamber of Manufactures of South Australia. In 1885 he was appointed President of the South Australian branch of the Geographical Society of Australasia. He was knighted in 1884, and in June 1886 he was created a K.C.M.G., and in July 1886 received the honorary degree of LL.D. from the University of Cambridge. He married in 1842 Margaret, daughter

"ligament," "Baily's beads," &c., are due solely to the unsteadiness of our atmosphere at the time and place of observation. In 1893 he was placed in charge of the location and measurement of the diagonal part of the boundary line between the states of California and Nevada. He has devised new forms of instruments, notably the new meridian instrument for latitude and time named after him, break circuit chronometer, new vertical clamp for transit instruments, &c., and the spirit-level horizon to sextant, and has shown the obscure mechanical defects of micrometers, &c. In 1874 he was elected a Member of the National Academy of Sciences. From the inception of the Geographical Society of the Pacific in 1881 he has yearly been elected President, and has published papers upon the ascent of Makushin Volcano, the eruptions of Bogoslov, and other volcanoes of the Aleutian Islands. Professor Davidson has held the position of honorary Professor of Geodesy and Astronomy in the University of California since 1873, and was a regent of the same institution from 1877 to 1884. Since 1873 he has had charge of the main triangulation of the Pacific Coast. During his forty-eight years of active field service on the Survey, his itinerary shows over 385,500 miles travelled, and always with instruments, note-book, and sketch-block in hand. In answer to recent inquiries from the Geographical Society of France, he has shown that he has written over 2500 octavo pages of geographical matter, illustrated by 530 views, maps, &c.

DAVIDSON, John, poet, was born on April 11, 1857, at Barrhead, Renfrewshire, where his father was Evangelical Union Minister. He went to school at Greenock, whither his father removed in 1862, and in his thirteenth year entered the chemical department of a sugar refinery. On the Food Act becoming law about a year after, he went to the Public Analyst's Office. In his fifteenth year he returned to school as a pupil-teacher, and, on finishing his apprenticeship, spent one session at Edinburgh University. He subsequently taught in various Scotch towns. He came to London in 1890, and has since busied himself as an author, chiefly of poetry. Mr. John Davidson has published: "The North Wall," 1885; "Bruce: a Drama," 1896; "Smith: a Tragic Farce," 1898; "An Unhistorical Pastoral," "A Romantic Farce," and "Scaramouch in Naxos" (his best known volume of verse), 1899; "Perfervid," 1890; "The Great Men" and "In a Music-Hall," 1891; "Fleet Street Eclogues," 1893 (second series, 1895); "A Random Itinerary," "Baptist Lake," "The Wonderful Mission of Earl Lavender," and "Plays: Collected Edition," 1894; "New Ballads," 1896. Address: Rayleigh House, Shoreham, Sussex.

DAVIDSON, The Right Rev. Randall Thomas, D.D., Bishop of Winchester, son of Henry Davidson, Muirhouse, Edinburgh, and Henrietta, daughter of John Swinton, Kimmerghame, was born in 1848, and educated at Harrow and at Trinity College, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. in 1871, and M.A. in 1875. Owing to a serious gunshot accident in 1866 he was for several years incapacitated from active work, and during his Oxford career he spent much time out of England. Ordained in 1874 to the curacy of Dartford, in Kent, he was appointed in 1877 Chaplain and Private Secretary to Dr. Tait, Archbishop of Canterbury. This position he held until the Archbishop's death in December 1882. On him devolved, in large measure, the arrangements connected with the great Lambeth Conference of 100 Bishops in 1878. During those years, he contributed articles on various historical and ecclesiastical subjects to the Contemporary Review, Macmillan's Magazine, and other periodicals. Bishop Lightfoot of Durham appointed him Examining Chaplain in 1880, and in 1882 he became Sub-almoner and honorary Chaplain to the Queen, and one of the six preachers of Canterbury Cathedral. Archbishop Benson, on succeeding to the Primacy, retained Mr. Davidson's services as Resident Chaplain and Private Secretary, and after holding that office for six months, he was, in June 1883, appointed by the Queen to the deanery of Windsor, and became also Resident Chaplain in Ordinary to the Queen, and Registrar of the Order of the Garter. In the same year he received from the University of St. Andrews the honorary degree of D.D. In 1884 he became a trustee of the British Museum, in the management of which he takes an active part. In 1887 he was elected by the Masters of Eton College as their representative on the governing body of the School. This post he held until 1896. He is also a member of the governing bodies of Charterhouse School, Wellington College, and the Royal Holloway College for Women. In 1888 Dr. Davidson acted as Hon. Secretary to the third Lambeth Conference, attended by 145 Bishops from all parts of the world, and a few months after the conclusion of its sessions he published, through the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, a volume containing a History of these Conferences from their commencement, together with all the official and other documents connected with them. In 1891 he published, in conjunction with Canon Benham, the biography of his father-in-law, Archbishop Tait, whose daughter, Miss Edith Tait, he had married in 1878. In April 1891, Dr. Davidson was consecrated Bishop of Rochester, and in the same year he became, in succession to Bishop Philpott, Clerk of the Closet to the Queen. This office he still holds. On the death of Bishop Thorold, in July 1895, Bishop Davidson was nominated to the See of Winchester. At the request of Archbishop Benson (who, however, died before the Conference assembled) he undertook the duties of chief Episcopal Secretary to the fourth Lambeth Conference of Bishops, which met in July 1897. He edited the official Reports of its proceedings. Addresses: Farnham Castle, Surrey; Lollards' Tower, Lambeth, S.E.; and Athenæum.

DAVIES, Cushman Kellogg, American statesman, was born at Henderson, Jefferson Co., New York, June 16, 1838. He graduated from University of Michigan in 1857, and chose law as his profession. He was First Lieutenant in 28th Wisconsin Infantry in 1862-1864; was a Member of the Minnesota Legislature, 1868-1873; was Governor of Minnesota, 1874-1875; was elected to the United States Senate and took his seat, Mar. 4, 1887; was re-elected in 1893, and in August 1898 was appointed on the Commission to arrange terms of peace with Spain.

DAVIES, The Right Hon. Alderman and Colonel Sir Horatio D., K.C.M.G., M.P., late Lord Mayor of London, was born in 1842, and educated at Dulwich College. He was destined to be an engraver, and was apprenticed to the trade, but preferred commerce, and has had a prosperous career at the head of more than one enterprise of his own initiation. In 1885 he was Common Councilman for the Ward of Cheap; in 1888 Sheriff; in 1889 was elected Alderman of Bishopsgate Ward. Returned to Parliament as Conservative member for Rochester in 1892, he was unseated on petition, and in 1895 was returned for Chatham. He was elected Lord Mayor of London in 1897, and towards the close of his mayoralty, in October 1898, was presented by about 500 of his Chatham constituents with a silver scroll inscribed with a congratulatory address. He is a Lieut.-Colonel, retired, of the 3rd Middlesex Artillery, and is Chairman of the Visiting Justices of Holloway Prison and of the City of London Asylum at Dartford. He married, in 1867, Lizzie, daughter of J. C. Gordon. During the Mayoralty (August and September 1898) this lady was very seriously ill. He was created K.C.M.G. in November, 1898. Address: Wateringbury Place, Kent.

DAVIES, The Rev. John Llewelyn, M.A., D.D., Chaplain to the Queen, born at Chichester, Feb. 26, 1826, his father being the Rev. J. Davies, D.D., afterwards Rector of Gateshead, and Hon. Canon of Durham. He was educated at Repton School and Trinity College, Cambridge, and was elected a Fellow of that Society in 1850. He was appointed Incumbent of St. Mark's, Whitechapel, in 1852, and Rector of Christ Church, St. Marylebone, in 1856. He was appointed, in February 1881, a Chaplain in Ordinary to the Queen; and in October 1882, Rural Dean of the deanery of St. Marylebone. In 1889 he became Vicar of Kirkby-Lonsdale, and in 1890 Hulsean Lecturer at Cambridge. He has received the honorary degree of D.D. from the University of Durham, and has been Select Preacher at Oxford. Mr. Davies has translated (jointly with D. J. Vaughan) "Plato's Republic;" and has published several volumes of sermons; an edition of Ephesians, Colossians, and Philemon; contributions to "Peaks, Passes, and Glaciers," and to periodical literature, also "Theology and Morality, Belief and Practice," 1873; "The Christian Calling," 1875; and "Social Questions," 1885. One of his most recent works is "Order and Growth as involved in the Spiritual Constitution of Human Society," 1891. He was a contributor to Dr. William Smith's "Dictionary of the Bible," and "Dictionary of Christian Biography." For some years he was a member of the London School Board for the Marylebone Division, and Principal of Queen's College in Harley Street. He is a theologian of the school of the Rev. F. D. Maurice, and read at the Nottingham Church Congress of 1897 a paper on "The Influence of the Broad Church Movement on the Thought and Life of the Church." He married the eldest daughter of Mr. Justice Crompton, and became a widower in 1896. He has six sons, three of whom have been elected Fellows of Trinity College, Cambridge, and one daughter, who is the General Secretary of the Women's Co-operative Guild; and Miss Emily Davies, the founder of Girton College, is his sister. He was one of the original members of the Alpine Club, and made first ascents of the Dom in 1858, and the Täschorh in 1862. Address: Vicarage, Kirkby-Lonsdale.

DAVIES, Sir Louis Henry, K.C.M.G., the son of the Hon. Benjamin Davies, was born in Prince Edward Island, Canada, in 1845, and was educated at the Prince of Wales College in the same island. Called to the Bar in 1867, he became Solicitor-General of Prince Edward Island in 1869, and filled the same position again from 1871 to 1872. After being Leader of the Opposition from 1873 to 1876, he filled the offices of Premier and Attorney-General of the island from 1876 to 1879. Since 1882 Sir L. Davies has had a seat in the Dominion House of Representatives at Ottawa, and he was in 1880 appointed a Q.C. At the International Fisheries Arbitration between Great Britain and the United States, which was held at Halifax in 1877, he acted as Counsel for the British side. In 1896 Sir Louis was appointed Canadian Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and became a member of the Privy Council in Canada. Address: Ottawa, Canada.

DAVIES, Mrs. Mary, vocalist, born in London, of Welsh parents. Feb. 27, 1855, was Welsh scholar at the Royal Academy of Music for three years, studying principally under Signor Randegger, and winning successively bronze and silver medals, as well as the Parepa-Rosa gold medal, and the Christine Nilsson prize. After remaining at the Royal Academy five years, she was elected an Associate, and afterwards a Fellow, of the Academy; acted as Honorary Examiner for the vocal competitions of the Academy in 1889 and subsequently; and delivered the medals and prizes to the successful students at the Royal Academy Annual meeting in 1887. She has sung at various festivals in the provinces, including those of Worcester, Gloucester, and Norwich, and in London at the concerts of the Sacred Harmonic Society, the Philharmonic Society, and at the Richter Concerts, whilst she has been associated as leading soprano with Mr. Boosey's London Ballad Concerts since 1878. She also sang at the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893. Mrs. Mary Davies, in 1880, created the part of Margaret in the English version of Berlioz's "Faust," produced by Sir Charles Hallé; the other artists associated with the work being Mr. Charles Santley and Mr. Edward Lloyd. She was married to Mr. W. Cadwaladr Davies, of the Inner Temple, March 22, 1888. Mrs. Davies acts as Examiner for Scholarships at the Royal College of Music and the Guildhall School of Music. Address: 5 Douro Place, Victoria Road, Kensington, W.

DAVIES, The Hon. Sir Matthew Henry, K.B., M.P., Speaker of the Legislative Assembly of Victoria in 1887 and 1889, was born at Geelong, 1850, and is the son of Ebenezer Davies, Esq., and Ruth, daughter of Mark Bartlett, Esq., Berkshire, and grandson of the Rev. John Davies, of Trevecca College, South Wales. He was educated at Geelong College, matriculated at Melbourne University in 1869, and was admitted as a Solicitor of the Supreme Court in 1875. For five years he was Honorary Secretary to the Council of the Law Institute of Victoria. He is a J.P. for the Central Bailiwick, and was Mayor of the city of Prahran, 1881-82, and represented the electoral district of St. Kilda in Parliament from 1883 to 1888. He was a member of the Royal Commission on the Transfer of Land and Titles to Land in 1885; was sworn an ex-Councillor, February 1886; and joined the Gillies-Deakin Government as Minister without responsible office. He visited England in connection with the Indian and Colonial Exhibition, 1886-87; was Chairman of the Royal Commission on Banking, 1887; elected Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, October 1887 (from which post he retired in 1892); Chairman of the Royal Commission on the Electric Lighting and Ventilation of the Parliament Houses, 1888; Executive Commissioner and a Vice-President of the Centennial International Exhibition, Melbourne, 1888; returned unopposed for the electoral district of Toorak, 1889; and was unanimously re-elected Speaker, 1889. Sir Matthew Davies was created a K.B. in 1890. He married Elizabeth Locke, eldest daughter of the Rev. Dr. Mercer, Presbyterian minister, of Melbourne. Address: Invermay, Melbourne.

DAVIES-COLLEY, John Neville Colley, M.A. Cantab., M.B., F.R.C.S., received his medical training at Cambridge University and Guy's Hospital, taking his M.A. degree in 1867, his M.B. and M.C. in 1868, and becoming F.R.C.S. in 1870. At Guy's he has been Demonstrator of Anatomy, Lecturer on Experimental Philosophy, Surgical Registrar, and is now Surgeon and Lecturer on Surgery at that hospital. Among many important positions of a similar nature, he is Member of Council and Member of the Court of Examiners of the Royal College of Surgeons of England, and was Examiner in Anatomy for their Fellowship. He is also Examiner in Anatomy at the "Conjoint Board." He is a Fellow of the Royal Medical and Chirurgical Society and Medical Society, London. He has contributed the article on "Injuries and Diseases of the Neck and Throat and Oesophagus," together with three others, to Heath's "Dictionary of Surgery," and in Morris's "Treatise of Anatomy," 1893, is the author of the article on "Muscles." To the medical journals, especially to the "Guy's Hospital Reports," he has been a frequent contributor of articles and reports. Address: 36 Harley Street, W.

DAVIS, Henry William Banks, R.A., J.P., eldest son of the late H. J. Davis, of the Middle Temple, was born at Finchley, Aug. 26, 1833, and educated at home and at Oxford. When a student at the Royal Academy, in 1854, he obtained two silver medals—one for perspective, the other for a model in the Life School. He matriculated at Oxford in 1856, but after residing a few terms at the university, he resumed his art pursuits, and was elected an associate of the Royal Academy in January 1873. In 1861 Mr. Davis painted "Rough Pasturage," exhibited at the Royal Academy; in 1865, "The Strayed Herd"; in 1866, "Spring Ploughing" (engraved); in 1870, "Dewy Eve"; in 1871, "Moonrise," and "The Prætorium at Neufchâtel"; in 1872, "A Panic" (engraved), and "Trotting Bull," in bronze, which obtained a medal for sculpture at the Vienna Exhibition; in 1873, "A Summer Afternoon"; in 1874, "A French Lane," "The End of the Day," and "In Picardy"; in 1876, "Early Summer," "A Spring Morning," "The Rustling Leaves," and "Mares and Foals: Picardy"; in 1877, "After Sundown," "Reconnoitring," "Contentment," and "The Approach of Night"; in 1878, "Mid-day Shelter," "Afternoon on the Cliffs," "Evening Light," and "The Lowing Herd winds slowly o'er the lea"; in 1879, "Cutting Forage on the French Coast," "A Midsummer Night," "Wanderers," "Picardy Sheep," and "Cloud and Sunshine"; in 1880, "Family Affection," and "Returning to the Fold," which was purchased by the President and Council of the Royal Academy under the terms of the Chantry bequest; in 1881, "Mother and Son," "Noon," and "The Evening Star"; in 1882, "In Ross-shire," "Sea and Land Waves," "Broken Weather in the Highlands," and "Showers in June"; in 1883, "Gathering the Flock," "Ben Eay," "At Kinlochewe"; in 1886, "A Flood on the Wye," and "Fording"; in 1887, "Now came still evening on," and "Summer"; in 1890, "A Placid Morning on the Wye," "The Picardy Dunes," and "A Ford on the Wye." All the above-mentioned pictures, as well as similar Highland scenes painted during recent years, were exhibited at the Royal Academy. Mr Davis was elected a full member of the Academy, June 18, 1877. In 1889 Mr Davis was one of the British jurors in the Fine Arts Department of the Paris International Exhibition. In 1892 he exhibited at the Champ de Mars Salon, and was elected associate (Associé) of the Société Nationale des Beaux Arts in Paris, and the following year was elected full member (Sociétaire). In 1893 he was appointed one of the British judges in Fine

Arts at the Chicago Columbian Exposition, and was President of the International Committee of Judges in Fine Arts there. He was also elected Chairman of the Judges in the section of painting. In June of the same year he was appointed Justice of the Peace for Radnorshire. In 1894 he exhibited at the Vienna International Exhibition of Art, and was awarded a large gold medal; also at the International Exhibition held the same year at Antwerp, where he was awarded a first-class medal diploma. In 1896 he was appointed British Delegate and Juror to the International Exhibition, in commemoration of the centenary of the Berlin Royal Academy of Arts, in Berlin. He exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1896, "An Orchard in Wales"; in 1897, "Flow'ry May," and "The Banks of the Upper Wye." Address: Glaslyn, Rhayader, Radnor.

DAVIS, General Sir John, K.C.B., was born in April 1832, and entered the army as an Ensign of the 35th Foot (Royal Sussex Regiment) in February 1862. He obtained his company in September 1859, and was promoted to Major in August 1866. He served with his regiment in the Shahabad District during the Indian Mutiny. He obtained the brevet of Colonel in February of 1873, and in that rank served on the Staff at Shorncliffe for two years. He was promoted Major-General in August 1883, and commanded the 2nd Infantry Brigade in the Egyptian Expedition of 1884, and was present at the engagements at El Teb and Tamai, being several times mentioned in despatches. He received a C.B., the medal, and Khedive's star for his services, and was also employed in the Suakin Expedition of the following year. From April 1886 until the end of 1887 he commanded the troops at Malta, when he was transferred to the Dublin District. He was promoted Lieutenant-General in April 1891, being soon after chosen to succeed the Duke of Connaught as Commander-in-Chief at Portsmouth. General Sir John Davis obtained his present military rank in May 1896, and was made a K.C.B. on the occasion of the Queen's Birthday in 1898. Address: Headquarters of Southern District, Portsmouth.

DAVIS, Lucien, artist, was born at Liverpool, 1860, being the fourth son of William Davis, artist, and was educated at St. Francis Xavier's College, Liverpool. He was elected a Member of the Royal Institute of Painters in Water-colours in 1893; gained a studentship at the Royal Academy of Arts in 1877; and twice won the Armitage Prize for Figure Composition. His first important black and white drawing was published in the Graphic in 1881, and he joined the staff of the Illustrated London News in 1885, since which time he has carried out important drawings, taken from life, of the most celebrated social events of the day, including the Queen's Drawing-room, the Queen's Garden Parties, events at the Houses of Parliament, &c. Since 1879 his work has been reproduced in most of the leading magazines of the day, and the Badminton volumes on Billiards, Cricket, and Tennis were illustrated by him. Amongst his portraits have been those of Mrs. Cornwallis West and her daughter and the Princess of Pless. The Queen, moreover, honoured him in 1894 by purchasing one of his drawings at the Royal Institute. Address: 49 South Hill Park, Hampstead, N.

DAVISON, Mrs., née Arabella Goddard, pianist, daughter of Mr. T. Goddard, of Welbeck Street, born at St. Servan, near St. Malo, in Brittany, in January 1836, almost from infancy showed an extraordinary taste for music. On her first appearance in public, at a concert given in her native village of St. Servan, when she played a fantasia on themes from Mozart's "Don Juan," she was little more than four years of age. At this time the promise of future celebrity in the child was so great that her parents removed with her to Paris, where she received lessons from Kalkbrenner. Returning to London soon after the revolution of February 1848, Mr. and Mrs. Goddard confided the cultivation of their daughter's musical talents to Mrs. Anderson, her Majesty's pianist. She was only eight years of age when she was called upon to perform at Buckingham Palace before her Majesty and the late Prince Albert, who highly complimented her on her playing. The completion of her musical education was entrusted to Thalberg. She first appeared in public, at a matinée at her father's residence, Mar. 30, 1850; and in October made her début at the Grand National Concerts, when she played the "Elsire" fantasia, and the "Tarantella" of Thalberg, with marked success. From that time she appeared frequently in public and established her fame by her performance of various fantasias by Thalberg, Prudent, &c. The first performances of Miss Goddard at the concerts given at Her Majesty's Theatre were confined principally to works of the modern romantic school. She has since become equally distinguished as a pianiste in more classical compositions. Miss Goddard afterwards became the pupil of Mr. G. A. Macfarren, under whom she studied harmony; and left England for a tour on the Continent in 1854, visiting nearly all the principal cities of France, Germany, and Italy; giving concerts, and meeting with great success. She returned to England in May 1856, and in 1860 was married to Mr. Davison, a musical critic, though in public and private concerts she has retained her maiden name. Miss Goddard took her farewell of the British public at St. James's Hall, Feb. 11, 1873, and soon afterwards went on a professional tour through Australia, the Sandwich Islands, and the United States. She returned to England in April 1876.

DAVITT, Michael, M.P., Irish Nationalist, was born on March 25, 1846, in the village of Straide, co. Mayo. His parents were of the poorer class of western Irish peasantry, with some American antecedents, his mother having been born in the States, and when Michael was five years old his father was evicted from the small holding on which the family subsisted. This early experience of landlord power has doubtless largely tended to influence his action in the fierce crusade which he has waged of recent years against Irish landlordism. The family then emigrated to Lancashire, where he was employed in a cotton factory, and at the age of eleven lost his right arm through a machinery accident. He was then sent to the Wesleyan School at Haslingden, and at fifteen obtained work in a printing-office, where he remained for seven years. In 1866 he joined the Irish Revolutionary movement initiated by James Stephens, and in 1870 was arrested in London, tried on an indictment of "treason-felony," and sentenced to fifteen years' penal servitude. After undergoing seven years and a half of imprisonment, chiefly in Dartmoor Convict Prison, Mr. Davitt was released on ticket-of-leave. In conjunction with other amnestied Fenian prisoners he was tendered a public reception by the people of Dublin, and after making a tour of the West of Ireland and paying a hurried visit to America, he started the Land Agitation in his native county of Mayo early in 1879. In October of that year he, in conjunction with Mr. Parnell and others, founded the Land League organisation, and became its guiding spirit. He was arrested and prosecuted in November of that year for a seditious speech, but after a week's imprisonment and an abortive trial the prosecution was abandoned. During the partial famine of 1879-80, he had the chief direction of the Land League relief funds. In May 1880 he proceeded to America to superintend the organisation of the American branch of the Land League, and made an organising tour of the Northern States from New York to San Francisco and back. Recalled to Ireland by the State prosecution of the executive of the Land League, he was again arrested on Feb. 3, 1881, by order of the Government, and consigned to Portland Convict Prison on a revocation of his original ticket-of-leave. After an incarceration of fifteen months, during which, on his own admission, he was exempt from ordinary convict labour, he was again released on ticket-of-leave. Mr. Parnell and other Irish members going down to Portland to receive him on his discharge. On the very day of this release, May 6, 1882, Lord Frederick Cavendish and Mr. Burke were assassinated in the Phoenix Park. In conjunction with Messrs. Parnell and Dillon, he issued a manifesto to the Irish race condemnatory of the murder. After again visiting America and submitting to a meeting of Irish American representatives in New York a plan for the amalgamation of existing national organisations in the United States, he returned to Ireland, and succeeded in persuading Mr. Parnell to summon a National Convention in Dublin to effect the revival of the Land League movement. The National League organisation was the outcome of this convention—with the restoration of Irish legislative independence as the first plank in its platform. In February 1883 Mr. Davitt was again prosecuted for a violent speech against rent and landlordism, and, refusing to enter into bail to keep the peace, he underwent four months' imprisonment in Richmond Bridewell, Dublin. Since then he has been an incessant propagandist of Land League principles and Nationalist aspirations in Ireland and Great Britain. While imprisoned in Portland in 1882 he was elected M.P. for Meath, but was disqualified by a vote of the House of Commons. When legally eligible on the expiration of his ticket-of-leave in 1885, he was solicited to become a candidate by several Irish constituencies, but refused to enter the Imperial Parliament from an objection to take the oath of allegiance. He at the same time refused to accept a national testimonial for his services to the Irish people. In December 1884 Mr. Davitt published "Leaves from a Prison Diary," a work which was written during his imprisonment in Portland, and which has had a very large circulation. In 1891 appeared his "Defence of the Land League." Occupied with literary work as a means of livelihood, Mr. Davitt is a constant contributor to American and Colonial newspapers, and an occasional writer in Irish and English journals and reviews. In 1896 he wrote several letters to the Times, in which he contended that the conquering Anglo-Saxon race is in America largely Celtic in origin, and, therefore, anti-Saxon in feeling. In the same year he wrote a series of articles in the Daily Chronicle entitled "Prisons Revisited." He has a decided leaning towards Socialistic doctrines in his writings and speeches, and is far from being in union with the other Irish leaders; his theories of land being more in accordance with those of the late Henry George than with those of the late Mr. Parnell. He is a member of the Dublin Corporation, and is a delegate from that body to the Port and Docks Board of the city. He is a director of the Dublin North City Milling Co., and a member of the Executive Council of the Irish National League. He has undergone altogether over nine years' imprisonment for his connection with Irish political movements. He was one of those who were implicated in the charges made in the articles on "Parnellism and Crime," and conducted his own case with an ability which called forth commendations even from the presiding Judge (1889). In 1890 he started the short-lived Labour World, and in 1891 stood for Parliament at Waterford, but was not returned. In July 1892 he was elected member for North Meath, but was unseated for alleged "clerical intimidation." He was subsequently returned unopposed for North-East Cork, but had again to retire from Parliament in May 1893, in consequence of proceedings in bankruptcy connected with the costs of the North Meath petition. In 1895 he was returned unopposed for East Kerry and South Mayo. He was in Australia at the time. He has travelled in most parts of the world. Address: House of Commons Library.

DAWKINS, Professor William Boyd, M.A., F.R.S., F.G.S., F.S.A., Assoc. Inst. C.E., geologist and palaeontologist, only son of the late Rev. Richard Dawkins, was born Dec. 26, 1838, at Buttington Vicarage, Welshpool, Montgomeryshire. He received his education at Rossall School and at the University of Oxford, where he became a scholar of Jesus College, and first Burdett-Coutts geological scholar. He was appointed assistant-geologist in her Majesty's Geological Survey of Great Britain in 1862; geologist in 1867; Curator of the Manchester Museum, 1869; Lecturer on Geology in Owens College, Manchester, in 1870; Professor in 1874; and President of the Manchester Geological Society in 1874. Professor Dawkins is the author of numerous essays in the Proceedings of the Geological, Anthropological, and Royal Societies, relating principally to fossil mammalia; "British Pleistocene Mammalia" in the Proceedings of the Palaeontological Society, 1866-78, and "Cave-Hunting: Researches on the Evidences of Caves respecting the Early Inhabitants of Europe," 1874. In 1875 he went round the world, by way of Australia and New Zealand. In 1880 he published a work on "Early Man in Britain, and his place in the Tertiary Period"; and gave a series of lectures before the Lowell Institute, Boston, Massachusetts. He was appointed, in 1882, a Member of the Scientific Committee of the Channel Tunnel, and entrusted with the geological survey of the English and French coasts for that enterprise. He presided over the Anthropological section of the British Association at Southampton, in August 1882; and in the same year he was elected an Honorary Fellow of Jesus College, Oxford. In 1883-4 he was engaged in laying down the line for a tunnel under the Humber, and in 1885 made a preliminary survey of the antiquities of the Isle of Man, in the same year being elected Examiner in the University of London. In 1886 he began the search for coal at Dover, which has recently resulted in the discovery of a coal-field in South-Eastern England. He was appointed President of the Geological Section of the British Association in 1888; and, in 1889, Lyell Medallist, and Examiner in the University of Oxford. In 1895 and 1897 he was President of the Antiquarian Section of the Royal Archaeological Institute at Scarborough and Dorchester respectively, and was elected to give the James Forrest Lecture at the Institute of Civil Engineers in 1898. During the last twenty years he has advised on various engineering works—the water-supply of the Metropolis, of Croydon, Cardiff, Bristol, Southport, Sheffield, Tynemouth, Folkestone, Eastbourne, Newhaven, Seaford, Bacup, Manchester, and Liverpool, the salt of Northwich, the Manchester Ship Canal, and the kerosene shales of New South Wales. He married Frances Evans in 1866. Addresses: Woodhurst, Fallowfield, Manchester, and Athenæum.

DAWSON, George Mercer, C.M.G., LL.D., F.R.S., son of Sir J. William Dawson, was born at Pictou, Nova Scotia, on Aug. 1, 1849. He was educated at McGill University, Montreal, and at Royal School of Mines, London, Murchison and Edward Forbes Medallist at Royal School of Mines. He was appointed Geologist and Naturalist to H.M. North American Boundary Commission in 1873, and in 1875 he published a detailed report on the country traversed from the Lake of the Woods to the Rocky Mountains, entitled "Geology and Resources of the 49th Parallel." He was appointed to the Geological Survey of Canada in 1875, and has since been principally engaged in the survey and exploration of the North-West Territory and British Columbia, and was placed in charge of the Yukon Expedition, undertaken by the Canadian Government in 1887. He was appointed (with Sir George Baden-Powell) one of H.M.'s Behring Sea Commissioners in 1891, and spent the summer of that year in investigating the facts connected with the fur-seal fishery on the Northern Coasts of America and Asia. Meetings of the International Commission were subsequently held at Washington, and a Report of the Commissioners was published as a parliamentary paper in 1892. In 1893 he was on the staff of the Behring Sea Arbitration, convened at Paris. In 1890 he received the honorary degree of LL.D. from Queen's University, Kingston, and in 1891 from McGill University, Montreal. He was awarded the Bigsby Medal of the Geological Society of London in 1891, for his researches into the Geological Structure of Canada. He was made a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George in 1892, and was elected President of the Royal Society of Canada, 1893. His geological work includes the first detailed account of the surface geology and glacial phenomena of the northern part of the continent of America west of the great Lakes, as well as the investigation of the great coal and lignite deposits of the North-West Territory and of large portions of British Columbia and the Queen Charlotte Islands. The results of these investigations are published in the Annual Reports of the Geological Survey of Canada, from 1875 to the present time. In January 1895, he was appointed Director of the Survey. He is the author of numerous original scientific papers, principally geological, but including geographical, ethnological, and other observations made in the course of his explorations, published in the Quarterly Journal of the Geological Society, Transactions of the Royal Society of Canada, Canadian Naturalist, Canadian Record of Science, and elsewhere. Address: Geological Survey, Ottawa, Canada.

DAWSON, Sir J. William, C.M.G., LL.D., D.C.L., F.R.S., F.G.S., geologist and naturalist, was born at Pictou, Nova Scotia, on Oct. 30, 1820. He studied in the University of Edinburgh, and returning home devoted himself to the study of the natural history and geology of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. The results of these investigations are embodied in his "Acadian Geology," 3rd edit., 1878. In 1842, and again in 1852, he accompanied Sir Charles Lyell in his explorations in Nova Scotia, aiding him materially in his investigations. Since 1843, he has contributed largely to the Proceedings of the London Geological Society, and to scientific periodicals. He has also published numerous monographs on special subjects connected with geology, more especially on the Land Animals and Plants of the Palæozoic Period and on the Pleiocene Deposits of Canada. His two volumes on the "Devonian and Carboniferous Flora of Eastern North America," published by the Geological Survey of Canada, are among the most important contributions yet made to the palæozoic botany of North America; and he first described the Eozoön Canadense, of the Laurentian limestones, the oldest known form of animal life. In 1850 he was appointed Superintendent of Education for Nova Scotia, and in 1855 became Principal of the M'Gill University at Montreal. He is a member of many learned societies in Europe and America. Among his works not already mentioned are: "Archæia, or Studies on the Cosmogony and Natural History of the Hebrew Scriptures," 1858; "The Story of the Earth and Man," 1872, in which he gives a popular summary of geological history; "The Dawn of Life," 1875, an account of the oldest known fossil remains, and of their relations to geological time and the development of the animal kingdom; "The Origin of the World," 1877; "Fossil Men and their Modern Representatives," 1878; and "The Chain of Life in Geological Time," 1880, a sketch of the origin and succession of animals and plants. He has also contributed largely to the Canadian Naturalist and Canadian Record of Science, and to many educational, scientific, and religious publications in Great Britain, the United States, and Canada. In 1882 he received the Lyell medal of the Geological Society of London for eminent geological discoveries, was created a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George; was selected by the Governor-General, the Marquis of Lorne, to take the (first) Presidency of the Royal Society of Canada, and was President of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. In the following year he attended the meeting of the British Association at Southport, and travelled in Egypt and Syria, on the geography and geology of which he has published several papers and a little popular work, "Egypt and Syria, their Geology and Physical Geography in relation to Bible History." He received the degree of LL.D. from the University of Edinburgh, and was knighted by her Majesty in 1884, and in 1885 was elected President of the British Association for the Advancement of Science for the meeting at Birmingham in 1886; and at that meeting he delivered a remarkable address, taking for his subject the geological history of the Atlantic Ocean. He has been elected an honorary Fellow of the Geological Society of Edinburgh, and honorary member of the Philosophical societies of Liverpool, Glasgow, Manchester, and Leeds. He was elected President of the American Geological Society in 1893. He retired from the office of Principal of M'Gill University, July 31, 1893, and was at once appointed Emeritus Principal and Professor and Hon. Curator of the Peter Redpath Museum. Sir W. Dawson's more recent works are: "Modern Science in Bible Lands," London, 1888; "The Geological History of Plants," International Scientific Series, 1888; "Modern Ideas of Evolution," London, 1890; "Salient Points in the Science of the Earth," 1893; "The Canadian Ice Age," 1893; "The Meeting-Place of Geology and History," 1894; "The Historical Deluge in its Relations to Scientific Discovery and to Present Questions," 1895; "Eden Lost and Won," 1896; "Relics of Primeval Life," 1897. Address: 293 University Street, Montreal.

DAY, Sir John Charles, son of Captain John Day, of the 49th Regiment, by Emily, daughter of Jan Caspar Hartsinck, was born at the Hague, June 20, 1826. He was educated at Fribourg, and at the Benedictine College of St. Gregory, at Downside, near Bath, and graduated B.A. at the University of London. He entered the Middle Temple in 1845; was called to the Bar in January 1849; joined the Home (now the South-Eastern) circuit; was made a Queen's Counsel in 1872; and elected a Bencher of his inn in 1873. For many years he enjoyed a very extensive practice both in London and on circuit. In June 1882, he was appointed a Judge in the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice, in succession to Mr. Justice Bowen, who had been elevated to the Court of Appeal; and he received the usual honour of knighthood. Mr. Justice Day is the editor of the "Common Law Procedure Acts," and joint editor of Roscoe's "Evidence at Nisi Prius." In 1886 he was made President of the special Commission sent to inquire into the origin and circumstances of the Belfast riots. In 1889 he was one of the Judges on the Royal Commission in the Parnell Inquiry. He married, in 1846, Henrietta, daughter of J. H. Brown. She died in 1893. Addresses: 25 Collingham Gardens, S.W.; and Athenæum.

DAY, The Right Rev. Maurice Fitzgerald, D.D., Protestant Bishop of Cashel, is the youngest son of the late Rev. John Day, rector of Kiltallagh, co. Kerry, by Arabella, daughter of Sir

William Godfrey, Bart., of Bushfield, in the same county. He was born at Kiltallagh in 1816, and received his academical education at Trinity College, Dublin, (B.A. 1838; M.A. 1858). For several years he was Vicar of St. Matthias, Dublin; was appointed Dean of Limerick, and Vicar of St. Mary's, Limerick, in 1868; and was chosen to succeed the late Dr. Daly in the united Sees of Cashel, Emly, Waterford, and Lismore, in March 1872, the consecration ceremony being performed in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, on April 13. He married Jane, daughter of J. Gabbett, of Dublin, in 1852. Residence: The Palace, Waterford.

DAY, William R., American jurist, was born at Ravenna, Ohio, April 17, 1849, and comes of a race of lawyers, his father having been a Chief-Justice of the State of Ohio, and both paternal and maternal grandfathers having been Justices of the Supreme Court of Ohio. He graduated from the University of Michigan in 1870, studied law in the law department of the same university, and was admitted to the Bar in 1872. In October of that year he settled in Canton, Ohio, and in 1886 he was elected Judge of the Common Pleas Court by both political parties. In 1889 he was appointed Judge of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio, but failing health compelled him to resign before taking the office. He became Assistant-Secretary of State in March 1897, and was made head of that department, April 26, 1898, but later in that year he resigned to become one of the Commissioners to settle terms of peace between Spain and the United States.

DEACON, George Frederick, M. Inst. C.E., eldest son of the late Mr. Frederick Deacon, solicitor, was born at Bridgewater, in the county of Somerset, on July 26, 1843, and was educated at Heversham and Glasgow University. Having given proof of a strong taste for physical science, he was apprenticed in 1859 to Messrs. Robert Napier & Sons, the eminent mechanical engineers of the Clyde. Glasgow University had then taken the lead in the establishment of a curriculum of engineering science, and in 1863 Mr. Deacon changed from the workshop to the University, where Macquorn Rankine held the Chair of Civil Engineering and Mechanics, and William Thomson (now Lord Kelvin) that of Natural Philosophy. In the first term Mr. Deacon took several prizes, and his work in the physical laboratories, especially in connection with submarine telegraphy, was such that Sir William, then scientific referee to the Atlantic Telegraph Company, recommended him at the age of twenty-one to fill a remunerative office in that company. This change prevented the completion of his University course; but the late Professor Rankine has recorded the fact that he highly distinguished himself. Mr. Deacon now inspected the manufacture, in the contractors' works at Greenwich, of the first successful Atlantic cable, and in the expedition of 1865 accompanied the Great Eastern to lay it. The temporary loss of this cable, its remarkable recovery, repeated loss, its abandonment until the following summer, the subsequent lifting of the broken end, and its completion and success, are now matters of history. In the autumn of 1865 Mr. Deacon's services were again sought for Atlantic work; but a business engagement previously made prevented his further connection with the company, and he commenced practice in Liverpool as a consulting Civil and Mechanical Engineer. In 1869-70 he was Lecturer on Civil Engineering and Mechanics at Queen's College, Liverpool. In 1871 Mr. James Newlands, the Borough Engineer, and Mr. Thomas Duncan, the Waterworks Engineer of Liverpool, having died, their offices were amalgamated, and out of a large number of candidates, Mr. Deacon, at the age of twenty-eight, was unanimously appointed to the joint office. Under him the reconstruction of the sewers, of the pavements, and of the tramways of Liverpool was rapidly undertaken. The supply of water, though good in quality, had become insufficient in quantity, and from the year 1865 only an intermittent supply could be afforded. Mr. Deacon's invention, now widely known as the differentiating waste-water meter, and applied to about thirteen millions of persons, showed conclusively that the whole difficulty arose from leakage. By its aid the waste was automatically recorded, its localities separately detected, and, without any additional water, the Liverpool people were, before the end of 1875, in possession of a constant supply under higher pressure than before. Between 1873, when this work was begun, and 1890, the population supplied had increased by 218,000 persons, and the value of the water saved from leakage and supplied to this additional population is estimated at considerably over £50,000 per annum. During Mr. Deacon's tenure of the office of Borough Engineer, which he resigned in 1881, the relative zymotic death-rate of Liverpool decreased about 34 per cent., a result which is still substantially maintained. The rapid growth of population having made it necessary to seek for an additional supply of water, Mr. Deacon investigated, at the instance of the Liverpool Corporation, the lake district of Cumberland and Westmorland, North Lancashire, and Wales. Mr. Deacon, in the beginning of 1877, projected his great scheme of water supply, involving the restoration of an ancient lake—now known as Lake Vyrnwy—in Montgomeryshire, and the construction of an aqueduct 76 miles in length therefrom to Liverpool. The project received the support of the late Mr. Bateman and the late Mr. Hawksley, at that time the leading authorities on hydraulic engineering. A Bill was obtained in 1880, and, until 1885, Mr. Hawksley and Mr. Deacon acted in conjunction as the engineers. Thenceforth Mr. Deacon was engineer-in-chief, and he completed the work in 1891. This undertaking was the first in the country by which water was obtained from a great distance. Manchester now draws water from Thirlmere; Birmingham is constructing works of supply from central Wales; while Sir Alexander Binnie has surveyed and recommended large mountain areas of Wales as sources of supply to London, a scheme which is supported by a joint report of Sir Benjamin Baker and Mr. Deacon recently made at the instance of the London County Council. Mr. Deacon was also consulted about the aqueduct now in progress for the supply of the Coolgardie Gold-fields in Western Australia. This eclipses all others in length, for the water is to be pumped from a source 328 miles distant. Mr. Deacon has received, among others, the Telford, the Watt, and the George Stephenson medals of the Institution of Civil Engineers. He is the author of many scientific and engineering papers, is a member of the Institution of Civil Engineers, of the Institution of Mechanical Engineers, of the Iron and Steel Institute, of the Royal Meteorological and of other scientific societies, and Past President of the Association of Municipal and Sanitary Engineers, of the Engineering Section of the Sanitary Institute Congress, Liverpool, 1894, and of the Mechanical Science Section of the British Association, Toronto, 1897. Addresses: 19 Warwick Square, S.W.; and Victoria Mansions, Victoria Street, S.W.

DEAKIN, Alfred, was born in Melbourne on Aug. 3, 1856, and is the son of William Deakin, a well-known coach proprietor in the early days of the colony, and of Sarah Deakin, daughter of a Monmouthshire farmer. He was educated at the Church of England Grammar School, Melbourne, and at Melbourne University; became a barrister-at-law in 1877; journalist also till 1883; was elected for West Bourke in Feb. 1879, but owing to an informality at one polling place, which occasioned much ill-feeling, resigned and was defeated by 15 votes on a heavy poll in August 1879; and was again defeated early in 1880; but returned at the head of the poll six months later and continued to represent that constituency until it was divided in 1889, when he was returned for Essendon and Flemington, a portion of the same district. He joined the Service-Berry Ministry in March 1883, as Minister of Public Works and Water Supply. In 1884 he exchanged the latter office for that of Solicitor-General. In 1886 he was elected leader of the Liberal party, and joined Mr. Duncan Gillies in forming a Government, in which he held office as Chief Secretary, Minister of Water Supply and Minister of Health. The former two offices he resigned in November 1890. In 1885 he was appointed President of a Royal Commission on Water Supply, and in that capacity visited the United States, presenting upon his return an elaborate report upon irrigation as practised in the States, upon which Victorian legislation, introduced by himself, has since been largely founded. In 1887 he was the senior representative of the Colony at the Imperial Conference in London, when he was offered and declined the title of K.C.M.G. On the way thither he visited Egypt and Italy, and published a second report upon irrigation as practised in those countries. He was the second Victorian delegate to the Australian Conference at Sydney on the Chinese question in 1888. In 1889 he was appointed a member of the Federal Council of Australasia, and took an active part in its session at Hobart in the same year. In 1890 he was one of the two representatives of Victoria at the Federation Conference held in Melbourne; and, later in the same year, was appointed one of the seven representatives of the Colony at the Convention in the early part of 1891, which was entrusted with the task of framing a constitution for a Federal Australasian State for submission to the several Colonies. He was Chairman to the Committee of Public Accounts in 1896, and Member of the National Australian Federal Convention in 1897. He has published works on Irrigation in Australia and other countries, and, in 1894, "Temple and Tomb." He is married to Pattie, daughter of Hugh Junor Broune, J.P., of Ventnor, Melbourne. Address: Llanarth, South Uarra, Melbourne.

DE AMICIS, Edmondo, a popular Italian writer, was born at Oneglia, Oct. 21, 1846, of a Genoese family. He began his studies at Cuneo, and after a preliminary training in the Instituto Candallero at Turin, he entered the military school of Modena, which he quitted in 1865 as sub-lieutenant in the 3rd Regiment of the line. In 1866 he took part in the battle of Custoza. The following year he was established at Florence as Director of the Italia Militare. After the seizure of Rome by the troops of King Victor Emmanuel, it appeared to him that his career as a volunteer in the army of Italian independence had naturally come to an end. He took up his abode at Turin, and devoted his energies exclusively to literature, in which he had already made a mark by his sketches of military life—"La Vita militare: bozzetti" (sketches), (Milan, 1868). After composing his "Ricordo del 1870-71," he wrote a volume of "Novelle," comprising "Gli Amici di Collegio," "Camilla Furio," "Un Gran Giorno," "Alberto," "Fortezza," and "La Casa paterna" (Florence, 1872; 2nd edit. Milan, 1879). A series of tours through Spain, Holland, and Morocco, with visits to London, Paris, and Constantinople, afforded him the material for several works which, written in a lively and attractive style, increased the author's fame, had a wide circulation, and were translated into several European languages. Their titles are: "La Spagna" (Florence, 1873); "Recordi di Londra," 1874; "Olanda" (Florence, 1874); "Constantinopolia" (6th edit., 2 vols., Milan, 1877-8); "Morocco" (Milan, 1879); "Ricordi di Parigi" (3rd edit., Milan, 1879). Of these the following have appeared in London in English versions by Caroline Tilton: "Constantinople," 1878; "Morocco, its People and Places," 1879; and "Holland," 1880. Signor De Amicis has also published "Ritratti letterari" (Milan, 1881); "Poesie" (2nd edit., Milan, 1881); "La Porta d'Italia," 1884; "Sull'Oceano," 1889, and "Scènes de la Vie militaire."

DEANE, Henry Bargrave, is the only surviving son of Sir James Parker Deane, Q.C., and was born on April 28, 1846. He was educated at Winchester, and Balliol College, Oxford, where he obtained the International Law Essay Prize in 1870. In the same year he was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple, and he now practises on the South-Eastern circuit. Mr. Deane was, in 1885, appointed Recorder of Margate, and he acts as Official to the Archdeaconry of Middlesex. He was the Secretary of the Royal Commission on Wellington College in 1879-1880; and he is the author of "A Treatise on the Law of Blockade." Address: 2 King's Bench Walk, Temple, E.C.

DEANE, Rt. Hon. Sir James Parker, D.C.L., the son of the late Henry Deane, of Hurst Grove, Berks, was born in 1812, and was educated at Winchester, and St. John's College, Oxford, where he graduated in 1834, becoming eventually a Fellow of his College. Called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1841, he became a Q.C. in 1858, and has for some years held the position of Vicar-General of the Province and Diocese of Canterbury, and Chancellor of the Diocese of Salisbury. He received the honour of Knighthood in 1885, and he is a member of the Privy Council. Address: 16 Westbourne Terrace, W.

DEARMER, The Rev. Percy, M.A. Oxon., was born in London in 1867; his father was Thomas Dearmer, an artist. He was educated at Westminster School and at Christ Church, Oxford. He was ordained Deacon in 1891, and Priest in 1892, his first curacy being at St. Anne's, South Lambeth. In 1897 he became senior curate of St. Mark's, Marylebone Road. Since 1890 he has been Secretary of the London Branch of the Christian Social Union. He has done much journalistic work (Daily Chronicle, Clarion, &c.), and is part editor of the Commonwealth, a paper devoted to the interests of the Christian Social Union. He has been for three years on the Executive of the Fabian Society, and is on the Committee of the Clergy and Artists' Association. Besides contributing to "Some Aspects of Disestablishment" (1894); "The New Party" (1894); "The Church of the People" (1894); he has edited "Lombard Street in Lent" (1894) contributed to and edited "A Lent in London" (1895); and "Lombard Street Sermons" (1897). He has also written "The Cathedral Church of Oxford" (1897); "Religious Pamphlets" (1897); and "The Cathedral Church of Wells" (1898). Address: 9 Devonport Street, Hyde Park, W.

DEARMER, Mrs. Percy (Mabel Dearmer), the daughter of Surgeon-Major William White, of Penrhos, Carnarvon, was born in 1872. She studied art first at Richmond, Surrey, and in 1890 at the Herkomer School, Bushey, for about one year; but in 1891 she married the Rev. Percy Dearmer and gave up her work. In 1893 she gave a dramatic representation of Brand by Henrik Ibsen, Act IV., at Princes Hall, Piccadilly. This performance excited some attention, and in order to advertise it she designed a poster. This poster (since named "The Reading Lady") was at once bought up, and has been exhibited in Paris, Chicago, and London (Earl's Court Exhibition), and is reproduced in many works on the poster in German, French, and English. She then turned her attention exclusively to work for reproduction both in colour and in black and white, and she has designed a number of book plates, the two best known of which are those of Mrs. Fawcett and Richard Le Gallienne. During 1894-95 she had work reproduced in a good many magazines, including the Studio, the Savoy, and the Yellow Book. For Christmas 1896 she designed a frontispiece for the Parade in two colours, and illustrated "Wymps," by Evelyn Sharp, these pictures being in four colours. For Christmas 1897 she illustrated another work on the same lines, "All the Way to Fairyland." These pictures, which are in a style never before attempted, are like miniature posters, bright and flat in colour. Mrs. Dearmer is now exclusively engaged in illustrating children's books in this particular style. Address: 9 Devonport Street, Hyde Park, W.

DEBUS, Heinrich, F.R.S., Ph.D., chemist, was born at Hessen, Germany, July 13, 1824, and was educated at the University of Marburg. He occupied the post of Lecturer in Chemistry at Queenwood College, Clifton, Guy's Hospital, and Royal Naval College, Greenwich, from 1851 to 1888. He also examined for the University of London between 1864 and 1882. In 1888 he retired to Cassel, where he occupies himself with his favourite subject. Address: Cassel, Hessen.

DE CASSAGNAC, Paul Granier, son of Adolphe Granier de Cassagnac, born about 1840, became at an early age a contributor to the minor Parisian journals, and soon acquired notoriety by the fierceness of his personal attacks on his contemporaries, and the numerous duels to which they gave rise. In 1866, under the auspices of his father, he joined the staff of Le Pays, of which soon afterwards he became the principal editor. Since then he has been perpetually embroiled in quarrels with his brother journalists and anti-Bonapartist politicians. It would be difficult to enumerate all the "affairs of honour" in which he has been engaged, but his duel with the late M. Gustave Flourens, in 1869, may be mentioned as being one of the most desperate fought in modern times. M. Paul de Cassagnac was decorated with the Legion of Honour on the Emperor's fête-day in 1868, and in July 1869 was elected a member of the Conseil Général for the Department of Gers. On the declaration of war against Prussia in August 1870, M. Paul de Cassagnac, who was still suffering from a recent wound in the chest, and who had just been appointed a Major of the Garde Mobile of the Department of Gers, preferred to enrol himself as a volunteer in the first regiment of Zouaves. Taken prisoner at Sedan, he was imprisoned eight months at Kösel in Silesia. On recovering his liberty he went to Venice for the benefit of his health; and afterwards established in the Department of Gers, L'Appel au Peuple, a political journal which met with considerable success. Returning to Paris in January 1872, he resumed the editorship of Le Pays. In July of that year he was condemned to a week's imprisonment, and to pay a fine of 100 francs in consequence of his duel with M. Lockroy. On July 7, 1873, he fought a duel on the Luxembourg frontier with M. Ranc, a Paris journalist, both combatants being wounded, and M. Ranc disabled. He was tried in Paris, July 2, 1874, for the publication in Le Pays of articles calculated to disturb the public peace, and to stir up hatred and contempt between citizens. M. Paul de Cassagnac undertook his own defence and obtained a verdict of "Not Guilty," a result which was regarded by the Bonapartists as a signal triumph. In 1874 he published in his journal a series of violent articles in reference to the capitulation of Sedan, the whole responsibility of which was thrown on to General Wimpffen's shoulders. The General accordingly instituted a prosecution for libel in the Assize Court of the Seine, but M. Paul de Cassagnac was acquitted by the jury (February 1875). On Nov. 24, 1875, he delivered, at a meeting at Belleville, a speech in which he contended that the restoration of the Empire was the essential condition of the welfare of the people. The Pays and other newspapers were prosecuted for printing a report of this discourse, but they were all acquitted. M. Paul de Cassagnac was returned to the National Assembly by the arrondissement of Condom in the Department of Gers, at the general elections of February 1876 and October 1877. The latter election was annulled by the Chamber, Nov. 11, 1878, but in the following February M. de Cassagnac was elected, and he has been at subsequent general elections. Of late years his fiery zeal has somewhat abated, chiefly on account of the unfortunate dissensions in the Bonaparte family, but during the Boulangist agitation he sided strongly with the party of the late General, and in the September elections of 1889 his followers were directed to support Revisionist candidates wherever Conservatives failed to present themselves. In 1884 he ceased editing the Pays, and founded the Autorité, in the columns of which he constantly attacks the present Republican order. Address: 161 Boulevard Malesherbes, Paris.

DECRAIS, Pierre Louis Albert, French diplomatist, born Sept. 18, 1838, was educated for the bar. On the fall of the Empire he was appointed by M. Thiers Prefect of the department of the Indre-et-Loire, and in 1876 he was transferred to the Gironde. In 1879 he was appointed Minister of France to Belgium; being recalled in 1882, he was placed at the head of the political department of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. In November of the same year he went as Ambassador to Rome, whence he was promoted in 1886 to Vienna as successor to M. Foucher de Careilles. He succeeded M. Waddington in London in 1893, but stayed only till September 1894, being succeeded by the Baron de Courcel. He is a Grand Cross of the Legion of Honour. Address: 62 Avenue du Bois de Boulogne, Paris.

DEFREGGER, Franz, an Austrian painter, born at Stronach, in the Tyrol, April 30, 1835, showed from his infancy a strong inclination for artistic pursuits, and received his first lessons from a sculptor at Innsbruck in 1860. Then he went to Munich, entered the School of Arts there, and continued his artistic studies under the direction of Piloty. In 1863 he proceeded to Paris, where he stayed two years, and then returned to Munich, where he painted a series of genre pieces representing the life of the people in his native country. Among his works may be mentioned: "The Last Return of the Forester"; "The Poachers"; "Joseph Speckbacher and his Son"; the "Zither Player," and the large painting "La Dernière Levée en 1809." In 1878 he sent the "Zither Player" to the Paris Exhibition and obtained a third prize. In 1883 the King of Bavaria raised this celebrated painter to noble rank, by bestowing on him the Bavarian Order of the Crown.

DE FREYCINET, Charles Louis de Saulces, French senator and engineer, was born at Foix, Nov. 14, 1828. He received his professional training in the Polytechnic School, was fourth in the examination for the Corps des Mines in 1848, and was employed by the Government in the same year on several important public works. Appointed engineer of the mines at Mont-de-Marsan, he was, in the regular course of promotion, transferred to Chartres in 1854, and to Bordeaux in 1855. In the latter year he was appointed chief engineer to the Compagnie du Chemin de Fer du Midi; and during the five years of his tenure of this important post, he gave to the Compagnie du Midi a typical organisation which the other French railway companies did not fail to imitate. M. de Freycinet was next employed by the Government in various scientific or industrial missions in France and in foreign countries. In 1864 he was nominated ordinary engineer of the first class, and he was likewise a member of the Conseil Général of the department of Tarn-et-Garonne, when the war of 1870 broke out. After the revolution of September 4, he was appointed Prefect of Tarn-et-Garonne. On the 10th October following, M. Gambetta having taken possession, in the provinces, of the office of Minister of War, chose M. de Freycinet as his delegate, and entrusted him with the supreme control of that department. On the conclusion of peace M. de Freycinet retired for a time from public life. He was elected a senator by the department of the Seine, Jan. 30, 1876, being placed first on the list of successful candidates; his term of office expired in 1882. When the Dufaure Ministry was formed in Dec. 1877, he accepted the portfolio of Public Works. On May 8, 1878, he was elected a member of the Academy of Sciences as successor to M. de Bussy. His former studies on water supply, sewage, and engineering won for him this distinction. M. de Freycinet continued in his office of Minister of Public Works in the Cabinet presided over by M. Waddington (Feb. 4, 1879), after M. Grévy had succeeded Marshal MacMahon as President of the Republic. At the close of that year (Dec. 27), he was appointed President of the Council in place of M. Waddington, and he took the portfolio of Foreign Affairs. He resigned Sept. 19, 1880, in consequence of the difficulties relative to the execution of the decrees against the unauthorised religious Orders; and M. Jules Ferry was then entrusted with the formation of a new Cabinet. In January 1882, M. Gambetta's Ministry was overthrown on the Scrutin de Liste proposal, by a majority in the Chamber of 305 to 110. M. de Freycinet was then recalled to power, and again held, with the Presidency of the Council, the portfolio of Foreign Affairs. His proposals for safeguarding the Suez Canal were rejected by a majority of 416 to 75 (July 29). The Ministry at once resigned, and, as the Chamber had declared in the plainest possible terms against intervention in Egypt, France became a passive spectator of England's action. After M. de Freycinet's resignation, President Grévy, after many difficulties, succeeded in forming a "Ministry of Affairs" under M. Duclerc. Then followed the second Government of M. Ferry, who in his turn was succeeded by M. Brisson; and he, after a short and feeble tenure of office, gave place to M. de Freycinet, who took the Presidency of the Council and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. He went out of office in December 1886, and was succeeded by M. Goblet. At the Presidential election of December

1887, he was one of the three candidates for the presidency, the other two being MM. Ferry and Floquet. But he retired from the contest in view of the improvised candidature of the late M. Carnot. In April 1888, he returned to power as Minister of War in the Floquet Cabinet. He was the first civilian to hold that position since the days of the Ancien Régime, but he retained his portfolio during successive ministries, and in March 1890 was for the fourth time Premier and Minister of War. In February 1892 he was defeated and succeeded by M. Loubet, in whose ministry he nevertheless retained the position of Minister of War. On the reconstruction of the Cabinet in January 1893, he had to resign his post, having been to some extent affected by the Panama scandals. As Minister of War M. de Freycinet has left his mark on the constitution of the French army. To him is owing the establishment of the three years' system of obligatory military service, and the extension of such obligatory service to students preparing for the priesthood, and to young men in the learned professions. He has created a Conseil Supérieur de la Guerre, and has instituted the post of a General Chief of Staff to whom in war time are to be entrusted plans of mobilisation and all kinds of military preparations. During the four years he was at the Ministry of War he increased the number of fortresses on the frontiers, greatly strengthened those already in existence, gave an immense extension to the annual French military manoeuvres, which now involve the movements of armies, and applied several secret improvements to French arms and ammunition. These important secrets were partially revealed by the Turpin-Tripoin affair, which occurred in May and June of 1891. As President of Council, M. de Freycinet has frequently taken up a strong attitude, especially in matters affecting the clergy. In December 1891, he called for stern repressive legislation in the matter of clerical associations, and the discussion of the law in which these measures were embodied, led to the fall of the strong ministry over which he presided. M. de Freycinet was re-elected Senator of the Seine in January 1891. He has made his mark as an author, both scientific and literary, having published a "Traité de Mécanique rationnelle," 2 vols., 1858; "De l'Analyse infinitésimale," 1860; "Des Pentes économiques en Chemin de Fer," 1861; "Emploi des Eaux d'Égout en Agriculture," 1869; "Principes de l'Assainissement industriel," 1870; and "La Guerre en Province pendant le Siège de Paris," 1871; besides a series of literary Pensées Contemporaines. In May 1882, he was elected a member of the Academy of Sciences, and in 1890 he was chosen a member of the Academy in succession to Emile Augier. In 1898 he endeavoured to form a Coalition Ministry on the fall of the Méline Cabinet, but was unsuccessful.

DE HAAS, Maurits, F. H., marine painter, was born at Rotterdam, Dec. 12, 1832. He studied under J. Spoel and at the Academy of Fine Arts in his native city, and finished his artistic education under Louis Meyer at the Hague. In 1857 he was made artist to the Dutch Navy, and in 1859 he went to New York, where he has since lived. The subjects of his earlier pictures are chiefly from the English Channel and French Coast; and among them are: "Storm off the Isle of Jersey," "After the Wreck," "Seashore near Hastings," "Calm off Newport," "Wreck off St. Heliers," "Yacht Henrietta," "Clearing Up," "British Channel," "The Rescue," "The Old Wreck," and "Moonrise at Sunset." His best known American works are "The Rapids above Niagara Falls" and "Farragut passing the Forts at New Orleans." He was elected an Associate of the National Academy in 1863, and an Academician in 1867, and was one of the original members of the American Society of Painters in Water-Colours. Of late years he has painted most of his subjects on the New England coast.

DELAND, Margaretta Wade, née Campbell, an American writer, was born at Alleghany, Pennsylvania, Feb. 23, 1857. She was educated at Pelham Priory, New Rochelle, N.Y., then studied at Cooper Union (N.Y. City), and in 1878-79 taught industrial design in the Girls' Normal College, at New York. In 1880 she was married to Lorin F. Deland, of Boston, Massachusetts. She has published: "The Old Garden and other Verses," 1886; "John Ward, Preacher," 1888, a novel which has attracted very much attention; "Florida Days," 1889; "Sidney," 1890; "Philip and his Wife," 1894; "The Wisdom of Fools," 1897. In 1893 "The Old Garden and other Verses," was republished with decorations by Walter Crane.

DELCASSÉ, Théophile, French statesman, was born at Pamiers, March 1, 1852, and having passed his licence-ès-lettres, he took up journalism and became one of the staff of La République Française, where he dealt with questions of foreign politics. In 1889 he defeated the monarchist candidate in the arrondissement of Foix, and entered the Chamber. He defended the credits for the Soudan and Tonkin in the Budget of 1892 very warmly, pointing out the vital necessity of France keeping up with the other Great Powers in their work of colonisation. On May 30, 1894, he was appointed Colonial Minister in the Dupuy Cabinet, and, as such, was noted for his anti-English feeling. On M. Brisson (q.v.) taking office in June 1898, he succeeded M. Hanotaux as Minister of Foreign Affairs. In September 1898, the "Marchand" incident filled the journals of Europe, and for a time disturbed a continent. On the overthrow of M. Brisson's Ministry in October 1898, M. Delcassé was requested to continue the personal superintendence of his foreign policy, and, consequently, joined the new combination under the leadership of M. Charles Dupuy. The particular honour of this re-appointment becomes emphasised when it is recalled that M. Delcassé succeeded in office one of the most distinguished French statesmen of his generation, namely, M. Hanotaux (q.v.). Paris address: 11 Boulevard de Clichy.

DELOMBRE, Paul, French statesman, was born at Maubeuge in 1848. He studied for the law, and subsequently practised at the Paris Court of Appeal. He then, like many others, took to journalism, and, for a time, held the important position of financial editor of the Temps. He entered the Chamber in 1893 as Deputy for Barcelonnette, and, in October 1898, accepted office under M. Dupuy as Minister of Commerce, this being his first portfolio. M. Delombre is an economist of wide repute in France.

DENBIGH, Earl of, Rudolph Robert Basil Aloysius Augustine Fielding, son of the 8th Earl and Mary, daughter of Robert Berkeley, of Spetchley Park, Worcestershire, was born at Downing Hall, Holywell, North Wales, on May 26, 1859, and succeeded his father in 1892. He was educated at Oscott College, Birmingham, and at the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich. He entered the army in December 1878, and, as a Captain of the Royal Artillery, saw service in Egypt in 1882, and was present at the battle of Tel-el-Kebir. In 1883 he was appointed to the Royal Horse Artillery, and served in India during 1886. The following year he went to Ireland as Aide-de-Camp to the Lord-Lieutenant, and shortly afterwards retired from the army. Lord Denbigh at one time intended to contest the Rugby Division of Warwickshire, and after three years' hard work, was unable to do so owing to the death of his father just before the general election. He moved the Address in the House of Lords in August 1892. In 1895 he was elected to the Warwickshire County Council, but resigned the seat on being elected to the London County Council in February 1896 as one of the four representatives of the City. He did not seek re-election in the City in 1898, but contested Battersea and was beaten. In 1897 he was appointed Lord-in-Waiting to the Queen. Lord Denbigh takes an active interest in politics, and has charge of the Irish Government business in the Upper House. He also took charge of the Infant Life Protection Bill, which became law in 1897. He is the Lieutenant-Colonel Commanding the Honourable Artillery Company. In 1884 he married the Hon. Cecilia Clifford, daughter of Lord Clifford of Chudleigh, and has issue. Lord Denbigh, besides possessing various Irish titles, is Count of Hapsburg of the Holy Roman Empire. Addresses: Newnham Paddox, Lutterworth; and Downing, Holywell, Flintshire.

DENMAN, George Lewis, LL.M., J.P., Metropolitan Police Magistrate, is the eldest son of the late Justice George Denman, and was born in London, May 5, 1854. He was educated at Rugby and Trinity College, Cambridge; was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn in 1877, and was Recorder of Queenborough from 1882-85. He was appointed a Metropolitan Police Magistrate in 1890, and sits at Lambeth. He has edited the 2nd edit. of Broom's "Constitutional Law," 1885. Addresses: 8 Cranley Gardens, S.W.; and Athenæum.

DENMARK, King of. See CHRISTIAN IX.

DENMARK, The Crown Prince of, K.G., was born in Copenhagen in 1843. He was educated at an ordinary school, and then underwent a thorough military training in the Swedish army. He was married in 1869 to the Princess Louise of Sweden; his second son, Prince Charles, is married to the Princess Maud, third daughter of the Prince and Princess of Wales.

DENNING, William Frederick, F.R.A.S., was born at Braysdown, near Bath, Somerset, on Nov. 25, 1848. His father was Isaac Poyntz Denning (born in the East Indies in December 1819, and son of Isaac Denning, who served in the 53rd Regiment during the Indian wars about a century ago), then manager of the Braysdown Collieries; but who in January 1850 removed to Bristol and became a public accountant. The son attended several private schools, and early evinced a love for natural history. In October 1865, when acting as clerk to a manufacturing firm at Bristol, he was attracted to the study of astronomy. He had probably inherited this taste from his mother, who had long been led to "consider the heavens," and had first aroused in him that love for the science which developed itself in his after life. Procuring some lenses he soon constructed a small telescope, and commenced that observational work which he pursued with so much diligence in later years. His father encouraged these initiatory efforts by presenting him with a 3-inch refracting telescope, and afterwards with one of 4½ inches. The latter was superseded by a 10-inch reflector by With and Browning in 1871, and this has since formed the chief working instrument of Mr. Denning. He has effected many planetary observations, and obtained some interesting results with regard to the varieties and motions of the spots on Jupiter. On the morning of Oct. 4, 1881, he discovered a periodical comet of 8½ years; on March 26, 1894, he detected another periodical comet, the computed time of which is 7½ years. Other comets were found by him on July 23, 1890, March 30, 1891, and March 18, 1892. Mr. Denning's chief work has, however, been effected in the field of meteoric astronomy. For many years he watched the fall of meteors and recorded their numbers and directions. A large quantity of materials was accumulated in this way, and in May 1890 a paper by Mr. Denning was published by the Royal Astronomical Society in which he gave the positions of 918 radiant points of meteoric showers deduced from observations of 12,083 meteors. No other observer has obtained such extensive results in this branch of astronomy. In 1877 he discovered that the August meteors (called "Perseids") present a radiant which changes its position, from night to night, amongst the fixed stars, and he subsequently detected many showers of long duration and stationary position. Mr. Denning has written about seventy-five papers which have been printed in the Monthly Notices of the Royal Astronomical Society, and he has been a very frequent contributor to English and foreign scientific journals. A large number of his papers have appeared in Nature, the Astronomical Register, the Observatory, the English Mechanic, Knowledge, and the Astronomische Nachrichten. He acted as President of the Liverpool Astronomical Society in 1877-78, and is the author of books entitled "Telescopic Work for Starlight Evenings" and "The Great Meteoric Shower of November." He became a Fellow of the Royal Astronomical Society in June 1877, and was elected an Hon. Member of the Liverpool Astronomical Society in 1882. In December 1895 he was awarded the "Valz" prize by the Academy of Sciences, Paris, for his observations and discoveries of meteoric showers and comets. In February 1898, at the anniversary meeting of the Fellows, he was awarded the Gold Medal of the Royal Astronomical Society in recognition of his labours in various departments of the science, and particularly in that of meteoric astronomy. Address: 102 City Road, Bristol.

DEPEW, Chauncey Mitchell, LL.D., American lawyer, was born at Peekskill, New York, April 23, 1834. He graduated at Yale College in 1856; studied law, and was admitted to the Bar. In 1861-62 he was a Member of the New York Assembly, and from 1863-65 was New York Secretary of State. He was also a tax-commissioner for New York City, and for a brief time Minister to Japan. In 1866 he became Attorney for the New York and Harlem Raised Railway Company, and on its consolidation in 1869 with the New York Central Railway Company he was appointed the general counsel of the united companies. The Legislature, in 1874, chose him a Regent of the State University, and he was also placed on the Commission for building the Capitol at Albany. In 1882 he became Second Vice-President of the New York Central Railway, and in 1885 its President. He was also President of the West Shore Railway, and of the Union League Club of New York, and for ten years of the Yale Alumni Association, and also of the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution. In 1888 he was a candidate before the Republican National Convention for President of the United States, receiving 100 votes. In the Convention of 1892 he led the forces of President Harrison. Mr. Depew is distinguished not only as an eminently successful railway manager and as a prominent leader of his political party, but also as one of the most popular speakers of his country, his orations on public occasions and his after-dinner addresses being in great demand. In 1887 the degree of LL.D. was conferred upon him by Yale College. A volume of his "Orations and After-dinner Speeches" was published in 1890.

DERBY, Bishop of. See WERE, THE RIGHT REV. EDWARD ASH.

DERBY, Earl, The Right Hon. Frederick Arthur Stanley, K.G., K.C.B., A.D.C., J.P., LL.D., younger son of the 14th and brother of the late Earl of Derby, by Emma, second daughter of the first Lord Skelmersdale, was born in London on Jan. 15, 1841, and received his education at Eton. He entered the Grenadier Guards in 1858, was appointed Lieutenant and Captain in 1862, and retired in 1865. He represented Preston in the House of Commons, in the Conservative interest, from July 1865 till December 1868, when he was elected for North Lancashire. He was a Lord of the Admiralty from August to December 1868, and Financial Secretary for War from February 1874 till August 1877, when he became Financial Secretary to the Treasury. On April 2, 1878, Colonel Stanley was appointed Secretary of State for War, in succession to Mr. Hardy, now Lord Cranbrook, and was sworn of the Privy Council. In the autumn recess of that year he and Mr. W. H. Smith, the First Lord of the Admiralty, with a numerous suite, visited the island of Cyprus. He went out of office with his party in April 1880. In Lord Salisbury's government he was Secretary of State for the Colonies from June 1885 till February 1886, and in the Cabinet of August 1886 was appointed President of the Board of Trade, and raised to the peerage with the title of Lord Stanley of Preston. In 1888 he became Governor-General of Canada, and was succeeded in 1893 by Lord Elgin. In the same year he succeeded to the title of the late Lord Derby. He was Mayor of Liverpool 1895-96, and since 1897 has been Lord-Lieutenant of Lancashire. He married, in 1864, Lady Constance, eldest daughter of the 4th Earl of Clarendon. Addresses: 33 St. James's Square, S.W.; Knowsley Park, Prescott, &c.

DERING, Sir Henry Nevill, Bart., Envoy Extraordinary to Mexico, was born Sept. 21, 1839, and is the fourth son of the 8th Baronet and a daughter of Lord Kensington. He was educated at Harrow, and entered the Diplomatic Service in 1859. From 1892 to 1894 he was Consul-General in Bulgaria, when he was appointed to his present post. He was made a C.B. in 1895, and in 1896 succeeded his father as 9th Baronet, the creation dating from 1626. In 1863 he married the daughter of J. Underwood, Esq. Address: Surrenden Dering, Ashford, Kent.

DÉROULEDE, Paul, French politician and journalist, was born at Paris on Sept. 2, 1846, and is the nephew of Émile Augier. He was educated at the Lycée Louis-le-Grand, and in 1867 had his first verses printed in the Revue Nationale. He travelled all over Europe, and in 1869, "Jean Strenner," his drama, was acted at the Théâtre Français. He was wounded at Sedan, and taken prisoner to Breslau, whence he escaped and fought in the Loire campaigns. As a result he issued two volumes of "Chants du Soldat" (1872 and 1875), which became popular all through France, and were crowned by the French Academy. His "Hetman" was played at the Odéon in 1877, and his "Moabite," although accepted by the Français, was forbidden by the Censor on account of its religious opinions. It was read to the press in the salon of Madame Adam (q.r.) in 1880. In 1882 he acquired great notoriety by founding the "Ligue des Patriotes," which was destined to unite all Frenchmen in a desire for revenge. He supported General Boulanger violently in 1884, and undertook an German crusade in Russia in 1883, and in 1887, on the death of the famous journalist, Katkoff. In 1888 he was defeated at the elections of the Charente, but in 1889 he was successful at Angoulême, and became one of the most violent partisans of Boulanger after his flight. He was forcibly ejected from the Chamber on Jan. 20, 1890, and soon after returned to literary work. He has recently been extremely active as an anti-Dreyfusard, and was arrested and imprisoned for seditious behaviour on the occasion of M. Loubet's election to the Presidency of the French Republic early in 1899. He published "Histoire d'Amour" in the same year, and in 1895 wrote a play for the Ambigu, "Bertrand Duguesclin," which was violently patriotic and Anglophobe. He is the finest specimen of the French Chauvinist. He lives at 108 Avenue Kléber, Paris.

DERRY AND RAPHOE, Bishop of. See CHADWICK, THE RIGHT REV. G. A.

DE RUTZEN, Albert, B.A., J.P., was born in 1831, and was called to the bar at the Inner Temple in 1857. He occupies at present the position of Metropolitan Police Magistrate at Marlborough Street. Address: 90 St. George's Square, S.W.

DESART, Earl of, Hamilton John Agmondesham Cuffe, C.B., Solicitor to the Treasury, Director of Public Prosecutions, and Queen's Proctor, was born Aug. 30, 1848, and is the second son of the 3rd Earl of Desart and Lady Elizabeth Campbell. He was educated at Radley and Trinity College, Cambridge, and served in the Royal Navy from 1860-1863. He was called to the Bar in 1872. In 1878 he was appointed Assistant-Solicitor to the Treasury, and in 1894 was promoted to his present post. On Sept. 14, 1898, he succeeded to the earldom of Desart, on the death of his elder brother. In 1876 he married Margaret, daughter of the 4th Earl of Harewood. Address: 2 Rutland Gardens, S.W. Clubs: St. James', Travellers'.

DESCHANEL, Émile Martin, was born at Paris, Nov. 14, 1819, and, after a course of study at the Collège de France, was appointed Professor of French Literature at the Collège of Bourges; afterwards he returned in the same year to Paris. He wrote successively Revue Indépendante, the Revue des Deux Mondes, and the National, and several other literary criticisms for La Liberté.

To this last-named journal he contributed also a series of essays on modern social philosophy, entitled Socialisme et Socialisme, and in consequence was cited to appear before the Chamber of Public Instruction, and, in spite of a recent appeal, was suspended from office. He then gave his entire energies to the Republican press. On Dec. 10, 1876, he was arrested, imprisoned for a few days, and subsequently banished. He resided in Brussels, when he returned to France and became one of the editors of the Journal des Débats. In 1869 he was on the staff of the National. At the elections of February 1876, M. Deschanel was returned for the Seine, and on the 16th of May 1877, he was one of the deputies who refused a vote of confidence in the Broglie Ministry. He was the author of "Les Courtisanes de la Révolution," 1854; "Histoire de la Conversation," 1858; "La Vie des Comédiens," 1860; "Physiologie des Écrivains et des Écrivains," 1864; "Études sur Aristote," 1867; "À Bâtons rompus," 1868; "Références à Paris et en France," 1869; "La Question des Femmes et la République," 1876; "Le Peuple et la République," 1881; "Le Romantisme des Écrivains," which is a carefully re-edited edition of many of his lectures. He conducted the Indépendance Belge under the pseudonym of ΔΕΞ. In June 1881 he was elected a Life Senator and Honorary Member of French Literature at the Académie de France.

DESCHANEL, Paul Eugène Louis, of the Chamber of Deputies, son of Émile Martin Deschanel, the eminent writer, was born at Brussels, Feb. 13, 1841, educated at the Lycée Ste. Barbe, Lycée Condorcet. In 1876 and 1877 he was secretary to Marcère and then when Ministers of the Interior, he was appointed Sous-préfet of Brest and of Meaux. In 1880 he resigned his post to put up for election, and failed to get in for Dreux, but was elected in the department of the Loire, in 1885, as a moderate Republican.

From the first he was distinguished as an orator. His maiden speech was in favour of duties on cereals, 1886. In 1888, after a speech on French interests in the East, the Sultan made him a Grand Cross of the Medjidie and Grand Officer of the Osmanieh. He also spoke on the Navy Estimates, and exposed the needs of the French fleet. In 1889 he was returned unopposed for Nogent-le-Rotrou. In the new Parliament his chief speeches were on the Liberty of the Press and the Customs. He was sent on an official mission to the United States in 1891. He has visited the Socialist leader, M. Jaurès, at Carmaux. He is a frequent contributor to the Débats and the Revue Politique, and has written the following works: "La Question du Tonkin," 1883; "La Politique Française en Océanie," 1884, with a preface by M. de Lesseps; "Orateurs et Hommes d'État," 1888, which was crowned by the Academy, as was his "Figures de Femmes" in 1889. These works prove his powers as a stylist. His last work is entitled "La République Nouvelle," and gives an account of his social and political theories. At the beginning of the new Parliament in May 1898, M. Deschanel was chosen by the Moderates to oppose M. Henri Brisson, the well-known Radical, for the Presidency of the Chamber. It was a bold move, even for one who had been Vice-President, for M. Brisson had held the office in the two preceding Parliaments, and when M. Deschanel was elected by a majority of four the confusion and scenes of violence were remarkable even for the French Chamber.

DESHUMBERT, Marius, born in Lyons in 1856, began public life as a teacher in the same town at the age of 18, and was visiting master for five years at the École de la Martinière, the École de Commerce, the École Centrale, and the École des Mines. He came to London in 1879, and prepared candidates almost exclusively for army examinations, and was appointed Professor of French at the Staff College in 1889, and Professor at the Royal Military College in 1897. By the decision of the Under Secretary of State for War these two posts may be held by the same Professor. The best known works of Prof. Deshumbert are: "A Dictionary of Difficulties met with in Reading, Writing, and Speaking French" (5th thousand), 1890; "A Public Examination French Hand-Book" (2nd thousand), 1892, to which have been added "Hints on the Study of the French Language"; "A French and English List of Military Terms" (4th thousand). Prof. Deshumbert's hobby is the Study of Ethics and he has written several pamphlets on the subject; among others, "First Principles of Common-Sense Ethics," 1894; "Life and Doctrines of Confucius," 1895;

and has edited a "blank-page" journal called "Daily Record of my Physical, Moral and Intellectual Development." He is also the editor of a new quarterly magazine for "the harmonious development of the faculties" called "Common-Sense Ethics." Address: Montclair, Cambridge.

DE STAAL, Georges, entered the diplomatic service as Secretary of Embassy at Constantinople. He subsequently became Minister to the Court of Wurtemberg, and was thence transferred to London as Russian Ambassador in July 1884. He, with M. Lassar as special coadjutor, had the management of the delicate diplomatic negotiations that attended the despatch of the Afghan Frontier Commission, the "unfortunate incident" of Penjdeh, &c.; and those also which followed the various crises in Bulgarian affairs, 1885-86. Address: Chesham House, S.W.

DES VŒUX, Sir George William, G.C.M.G., is a younger son of the late Rev. Henry Des Vœux, and brother of the present baronet of that name. He was born at Baden-Baden on Sept. 22, 1834, and was educated at the Charterhouse and at Balliol College, Oxford. Intended for the Church, he preferred to seek his fortune in the Colonies. In 1862 he was called to the Bar of Ontario (then Canada West); and having passed his legal examinations with distinction, he was appointed in 1863 to be a special magistrate in British Guiana by the Duke of Newcastle, then Secretary of State for the Colonies. After five years' service in Demerara, his representations to the Home Government caused the appointment of a Royal Commission to inquire into the treatment of the Coolie immigrants, and resulted in a large amelioration of their condition. In 1869 Mr. Des Vœux was appointed Administrator of St. Lucia, and on taking charge of that post he found the colony in a state of extreme depression, due largely to corruption in the administration of justice and other official misconduct. But the severe measures which he adopted quickly brought about improvement, and within three years the revenue nearly doubled. During his tenure of office in this island he initiated a great number of useful measures, and also, with the assistance of Chief-Justice Armstrong, prepared the code of law now in force, which, being based on the ancient law of the island (the Coutume de Paris), embodies with it improvements taken from the code of Quebec, the Code Napoleon, and the code of Louisiana, as well as many modifications required by modern and local conditions. This code, unlike other codes of a similar character, contains a chapter of definitions which was entirely the work of Mr. Des Vœux. In 1877 he was appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Trinidad, and though received there with coolness, owing to his views and action with reference to contract-labour, he, on leaving the colony after a year's administration, had won the regard of all classes—employers as well as employed. In 1878 he was appointed to act for Sir Arthur Gordon (now Lord Stanmore) in the government of Fiji, and during this administration her Majesty's Government recognised by special despatch his "energy and resource" as displayed in the protection of the colony under peculiarly difficult circumstances on the arrival of a ship containing six hundred coolies infected with cholera and smallpox. In May 1880 he was appointed Governor of the Bahamas; but when on the point of departure for that colony he, on the request of the Secretary of State, proceeded again to Fiji, being appointed Governor in succession to Sir A. Gordon, and arrived there in December of that year. In 1882, on the resignation by Sir Arthur Gordon of the government of New Zealand, Mr. Des Vœux, by virtue of a commission, until then dormant, assumed the functions of High Commissioner of the Western Pacific, an office which he retained until his departure from Fiji in 1885. In that capacity he attended the Australasian Convention held at Sydney in 1883, forming one of the committee which drafted the Federal Council Bill, and initiating some of the resolutions of the Convention with reference to New Guinea and the Western Pacific. Mr. (now become Sir G. William) Des Vœux returned to England in ill-health in the spring of 1885; and being in 1886 appointed Governor of Newfoundland, received on his departure for that colony a joint address from the Anti-Slavery and Aborigines Protection Societies, bearing testimony to his "prolonged and successful efforts in the cause of humanity and civilisation." Sir William arrived in Newfoundland at a time of great political and sectarian excitement (aroused by an appointment to the office of Governor, which had to be withdrawn and was superseded by his own), and at once set himself to bring about peace, with so much success that within a few months three Catholic members were taken into the Government, which had been formed as exclusively Protestant. When leaving the colony after a year's administration, Sir William received addresses of very unusual warmth from both Houses of the Legislature, while the leaders of the two most opposed sects (Catholics and Wesleyans) separately attributed to him a religious peace such as had not been known for many years. Appointed in 1887 Governor of Hong Kong, Sir William proceeded thither in October of that year, and when after an administration of little more than two years he was compelled by ill-health to seek a change of climate, he experienced on his departure for England a demonstration of respect on the part of all classes of the community, Europeans and Chinese alike, such as was said to have been unprecedented in the history of the Colony. Sir William returned to Hong Kong in December 1880, when, his health having again broken down, he felt compelled to resign his office, and returning to England via Japan and America, he for the fourth time during his service completed the circuit of the globe. Sir William was appointed C.M.G. in 1877, was promoted to K.C.M.G. in 1882, and in 1883 to G.C.M.G., in recognition of his "long and valuable services." Sir William's writings have been mostly of an official character, and except some articles in the Nineteenth Century, and letters in the Times, have been published exclusively in Blue-books. He was for the second time elected President of the China Association in 1898, and is a principal authority on the Far Eastern Question. He married in 1875 Marion Denison, daughter of Sir John Pender, G.C.M.G., M.P., and has four children living. Address: Victoria, Hong Kong.

DETAILLE, Jean Baptiste Edouard, French painter, was born in Paris, Oct. 5, 1848. He was one of Meissonnier's favourite pupils, but his first picture, "Coin d'Atelier," in the Salon, attracted little notice in 1867. In 1869 his "Repos pendant la Manœuvre" was one of the successes of the year. During the war of 1870 he was secretary to General Appert, and took advantage to study military life at close quarters. His most famous pictures have been "Le Régiment qui passe," 1875; "En Reconnaissance," 1876, which was much admired at the Guildhall Loan Collection in 1898; "Le Rêve," 1888, his masterpiece, in the Luxembourg Museum at Paris, together with his "Sortie de la garnison de Huningen en 1815," noted for its wondrous perspective. Monsieur Detaille is the most famous military painter in France, and his work is noted for its care and accuracy. He is a Commander of the Legion of Honour and a Member of the Académie des Beaux Arts.

DEUCHER, Adolph, was elected Vice-President of the Swiss Confederation for 1896, and in May 1 in that year opened the National Exhibition at Geneva, which aimed at presenting a complete illustration of Swiss trade and industry. He was elected President for 1897 on Dec. 17, 1896.

DE VERE, Aubrey Thomas, poet, third son of the late Sir Aubrey de Vere, Bart., of Curragh Chase, co. Limerick, was born in 1814, and educated at Trinity College, Dublin. His father, who died in 1846, was descended from Vere Hunt, a Cromwellian officer who settled in Curragh during the Commonwealth. He was himself a distinguished poet, whose sonnets were pronounced by Wordsworth to be the "most perfect of our age." Mr. Aubrey de Vere is also famous as a sonnet writer, and has published many volumes of verse, viz., "The Waldenses," 1842; "The Search after Proserpine," 1843; "Poems, Miscellaneous and Sacred," 1863; "May Carols," 1857; "The Sisters," 1861; "The Infant Bridal," 1864; "Irish Odes," 1869; "The Legends of St. Patrick," 1872; "Alexander the Great," 1874; "St. Thomas of Canterbury," 1876; "Legends of the Saxon Saints," 1879; "The Foray of Queen Meave, and other Legends of Ireland's Heroic Age," 1882; "Legends and Records of the Church and the Empire," 1887; "St. Peter's Chains," 1888. He is also a prolific writer of prose, and has published, among other works, "English Misrule and Irish Misdeeds," 1848; "Picturesque Sketches of Greece and Turkey," 1850; "Ireland's Church Property and the Right Use of It," 1867, and several other works on the Church of Ireland; "Constitutional and Unconstitutional Political Action," 1881; two volumes of essays on literary and ethical subjects; "Proteus and Amadeus," a selection of his own poems, 1890; "Religious Poems of the Nineteenth Century," 1893; "Mediæval Records and Sonnets," and an important and interesting account of his long life among the distinguished men of several generations, entitled "Recollections of Aubrey de Vere," 1897. Club: Athenæum.

DE VILLIERS, Right Hon. Sir John Henry, K.C.M.G., was born in 1842. He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1865, and he served as Attorney-General of Cape Colony from 1872 to 1874. He is at present Chief-Justice at the Cape, and also occupies the position of President of the Legislative Council of that colony. On the occasion of the Queen's Diamond Jubilee, in June 1897, Sir John Villiers came to this country, accompanied by the Cape Premier, and was present at most of the important functions connected with the celebration. He was married in 1871 to Aletta, daughter of J. P. Jourdan, of Worcester, Cape of Good Hope. Address: Wynberg, Cape of Good Hope.

DEVONSHIRE, Duke of, The Right Hon. Spencer Compton Cavendish, K.G., D.C.L., LL.D., eldest surviving son of the late William 7th Duke of Devonshire, by Lady Blanche Georgina Howard, daughter of George, 6th Earl of Carlisle, was born July 23, 1833, and educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he graduated B.A. in 1854, and was made LL.D. in 1862. He was attached to Earl Granville's special mission to Russia in 1856. In March 1857 he was returned to the House of Commons in the Liberal interest as one of the members for North Lancashire. At the opening of the new Parliament in 1859, he moved a vote of no confidence in Lord Derby's Government, and it was carried by 323 votes against 310. In March 1863 he was appointed a Lord of the Admiralty, and in April in the same year Under-Secretary for War. On the reconstruction of Lord Russell's second Administration, in February 1866, the Marquis of Hartington, as he then was, became Secretary for War, and retired with his colleagues in July of that year. At the general election of December 1868, he lost his seat for North Lancashire, but was immediately afterwards returned for the Radnor boroughs, having first received the office of Postmaster-General in Mr. Gladstone's Cabinet. He held that office till January 1871, when he succeeded Mr. Chichester Fortescue as Chief Secretary for Ireland. His lordship went out of office with his party in February 1874. When Mr. Gladstone, shortly before the assembling of Parliament in 1875, announced his intention of abandoning the post of leader of the Liberal party, a meeting of the members of the Opposition was held at the Reform Club (February 3), under the presidency of Mr. John Bright. On the motion of Mr. Villiers, seconded by Mr. Samuel Morley, a resolution was unanimously passed to the effect that the Marquis of Hartington should be requested to undertake the leadership of the Liberal party in the House of Commons. His lordship accepted this responsible position, and became the acknowledged leader of the Opposition in the Lower House. He received the freedom of the city of Glasgow, Nov. 5, 1877; and was installed as Lord Rector of the University of Edinburgh, Jan. 31, 1879. At the general election of April 1880, he was elected M.P. for North-East Lancashire. On the resignation of the Conservative Government, the Marquis of Hartington was sent for by the Queen to form an Administration; but this task, having been declined by him and Earl Granville, eventually devolved on the former leader of the Liberal party, Mr. Gladstone, who constructed a Cabinet, in which the Marquis of Hartington occupied a seat as Secretary of State for India, from May 1880 to Dec. 16, 1882, when he was transferred to the War Office in succession to Mr. Childers, who had become Chancellor of the Exchequer. He resigned with the Government in June 1885, and was elected for the Rossendale division of Lancashire, December 1885. In 1886, on the formation of Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule Cabinet, Lord Hartington declined to join it; but, on the contrary, took up the position of leader of the Unionist Liberals. He moved the first resolution at the great Open House meeting; and also, in the House of Commons, the rejection of the Bill at the debate on the second reading. His election for the Rossendale division in 1886 was looked upon with immense interest. He was returned by 5399 votes against 3949. When the new Government was formed, he declined to become a member of it, preferring to give Lord Salisbury an "outside support." After the secession of Lord Randolph Churchill, Lord Salisbury again endeavoured to induce Lord Hartington to join the Cabinet, but in vain. He has since allied himself closely with Lord Salisbury, and his antagonism to the policy of Home Rule has become more and more decided. In 1890 he was severely ill for some time. In April 1891 he was appointed Chairman of the Royal Commission on Labour. At the close of the same year he succeeded his father as Duke of Devonshire, and in January 1892 was inaugurated as Chancellor of Cambridge University in succession to the late Duke. His installation took place in June. In August he was married at Christ Church, Mayfair, to Louise, Duchess of Manchester, widow of the 7th Duke, who died in 1890. Shortly afterwards the Duke of Devonshire was invested with the Order of the Garter. In 1892 he was appointed Lord-Lieutenant of Derbyshire. On Sept. 5, 1893, he moved the rejection of the Home Rule Bill in the House of Lords. In 1895 he became Lord President of the Council. He is President of a Cabinet Committee of National and Imperial Defence, is Lord Lieutenant of co. Waterford, and was Mayor of Eastbourne in 1897-98. Of late years he has been prominently before the public in connection with the scheme for a Teaching University for London. Speaking on Aug. 15, 1895, for Lord Salisbury's Government, the Duke of Devonshire took the side of the majority of the Convocation of the existing University of London, who were then, as now, warmly opposed to the scheme for a Teaching University as recommended by Lord Cowper's Commission. In July 1897 he presented the London University Commission Bill, proposing the appointment of a new commission for the reconstitution of the University of London, in accordance with the well-known Gresham University scheme, but this Bill, though amended and sent down to the legislators of the Lower House, was withdrawn in August owing to the opposition of Convocation and others. The Duke is also keenly interested in technical education, and presided at the Fourth International Congress on Technical Education held at the rooms of the Society of Arts, London, in June 1897. Addresses: 78 Piccadilly, W.; Chatsworth, &c.; and Athenæum.

DEWAR, Professor James, M.A., LL.D., F.R.S., F.R.S.E., was born on Sept. 20, 1842, at Kincardine-on-Forth, Scotland, and was educated at Dollar Academy and the University of Edinburgh. He was assistant to Sir Lyon Playfair, when Professor of Chemistry in the University of Edinburgh, from whom he received his chemical training. Subsequently he studied at Ghent, under the celebrated Professor Auguste Kekulé. He has been Lecturer on Chemistry at the Dick Veterinary College, Chemist to the Highland and Agricultural Society, and Examiner in the Universities of London and Edinburgh. At present he is Jacksonian Professor of "Natural Experimental Philosophy" in the University of Cambridge, and Fullerian Professor of Chemistry in the Royal Institution of Great Britain. He is M.A. and Fellow of St. Peter's College, Cambridge, and F.R.S. of London and Edinburgh. On March 31, 1897, Professor Dewar was elected President of the Chemical Society, Hon. LL.D. Glasgow, St. Andrews, and Edinburgh, and one of the Directors of the Davy-Faraday Research Laboratory of the Royal Institution. He is a Past President of the Society of Chemical Industry. Professor Dewar is the author of papers on organic and physical chemistry, viz., on "The Oxidation Products of Picoline," "Transformation of Chinoline into Aniline," "Physical Constants of Hydrogenium," "Specific Heat of Carbon at High Temperatures," "The Physiological Action of Light," "Spectroscopic Investigations," &c. The Professor has taken an active part in the conduct of recent Exhibitions, having occupied the respective positions of Chairman of the Heating and Lighting Jury of the Health Exhibition, and a member of the Executive Council of the Inventions Exhibition. He has several times given demonstrations at the Royal Institution to the Prince and Princess of Wales on the formation of liquid oxygen and air and the production of temperatures approaching that of the absolute zero, and during the past fourteen years he has been engaged on experimental researches at low temperatures, and has published numerous papers on liquid air and the behaviour of bodies at low temperature in the Proceedings of the Royal Institution, Proceedings of the Royal Society, &c. He was a member of the Government Committee on Explosives, and, in association with Sir Frederick Abel, has made inventions with regard to smokeless powders, and their application to military purposes. With Sir F. Abel he invented cordite. In 1897, in conjunction with M. Moissan, Professor Dewar succeeded in liquefying fluorine. He has delivered many Christmas courses of lectures to young people at the Royal Institution. Of late years, in conjunction with Professor Fleming, he has carried on researches on the electric and magnetic properties of metals and other bodies at low temperature. The Rumford medal of the Royal Society was awarded to Professor Dewar in 1894, in recognition of his investigations on the properties of matter at lowest temperatures. Professor Dewar's latest chemical triumph is the liquefaction of hydrogen, which he effected at the Royal Institution on May 10, 1898. The liquid was exhibited to Lord Rayleigh, who happened to be present. Subsequently, at a meeting of the Royal Society, Professor Dewar contributed a preliminary note on the liquefaction of hydrogen and helium. The feat is without precedent. "Liquid hydrogen," says a man of science writing to the Times, "in quantity is not only of enormous scientific interest in itself, but is also of immense importance as placing a new and potent instrument in the hands of investigators, who have hitherto found their progress barred by its absence." Helium is a rare gas, which has hitherto never been liquefied. Permanent address: Royal Institution, Albemarle Street, W. Club: Athenæum.

DEWEY, George, Rear-Admiral, American Navy, was born Dec. 26, 1838, in Vermont. He graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1858. He became Passed Midshipman, Jan. 19, 1861; Master, Feb. 23, 1861; Lieutenant, April 19, 1861. He was with Farragut when the fleet forced an entrance to the Mississippi River and captured New Orleans in April 1862. He was on the warship Mississippi when she grounded in front of the batteries at Port Hudson, where she was torn to pieces by the shot from the guns of the Confederates, the crew being forced to hurry away in small boats. The Lieutenant shared in the attack on Fort Fisher, on the coast of North Carolina, in December 1864 and January 1865, and was promoted to Lieu-ments which in rapid succession tried to rule Mexico. During this period he displayed great abilities as a leader and military commander; and as early as 1861, at the request of General Ortega, his superior officer, was made a General. Twice (1863 and 1865) he was taken prisoner, but each time effected his escape. His first administration as President was a stormy one, and much of his time was occupied in quelling revolts. At the end of his term (1880) he secured the election of General Gonzalez (his Secretary of War) as his successor; and he himself took charge of one of the departments of the Government, and was also appointed Chief-Justice of the Supreme Court, but never took his seat. When Gonzalez's term expired in 1884, Diaz was elected for a second term; and by successive re-elections has been continued in the presidential office to the present time. His administration on the whole has been a successful one. The country has been pacified, its trade increased, its resources developed, its education advanced, and its railroads and telegraphs extended. On Sept. 16, 1897, when he was attending the public celebrations of the anniversary of Mexican independence, an attempt was made to assassinate him, which was happily unsuccessful, the criminal being dragged from prison by the mob and lynched.

DIBBS, Sir George Richard, K.C.M.G., has for many years been representative of Murrumbidgee in the New South Wales Legislature. From 1883 to 1885 he was Colonial Treasurer under Sir Alexander Stuart, whom he succeeded in the Premiership. He was Colonial Secretary in 1886-87, and in 1889 was again Premier for a short period. On the defeat of Sir H. Parkes in 1891 he became Premier for the third time, and signalised his tenure of power by introducing a strong Protectionist tariff. In 1892 he received the honour of knighthood, having come to England to establish confidence in Australian, and more especially in New South Wales, Stock. In 1893 he became bankrupt, and resigned his seat in the Legislative Assembly whilst retaining the Premiership, but he was at once re-elected. He was defeated at the elections of 1894, and resigned office. Address: Riverside, Emu Plains, N. S. Wales.

DICEY, Professor Albert Venn, M.A., B.C.L., and Hon. LL.D. of Glasgow and Edinburgh, was born in 1835, and is a son of the late T. E. Dicey, Esq., of Claybrook Hall, Leicestershire. He was educated at Balliol College, Oxford, where he obtained a first class in Classical Moderations in 1866, and a first class in the Final School of Litt. Hum. in 1858. He eventually became a Fellow of his College, and a Fellow of Trinity College, and now holds a Fellowship at All Souls' College. Mr. Dicey gained the Arnold Essay Prize in 1860, his subject being "The Privy Council"; and in 1882 he was appointed Vinerian Professor of English Law in the University. He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1863, and he acted as Public Examiner in the Final School of Jurisprudence from 1874 to 1875. He is the author of: "Treatise on Rules for Selection of Parties," 1870; "The Law of Domicil," 1879; "England's Case against Home Rule," 1886; and "The Privy Council" (Arnold Essay), 1860 and 1887; and an important work on "The Law of the Constitution," 1886. Mr. Dicey was appointed a Q.C. in 1890, and in 1899 succeeded Sir John Lubbock as principal of the Working Men's College, Great Ormond Street. Address: All Souls' College, Oxford.

DICEY, Edward, C.B., second son of the late T. E. Dicey, Esq., was born in 1832, and educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he took honours both in the Mathematical and in the Classical Tripos. He has frequently contributed to the Nineteenth Century, Fortnightly Review, St. Paul's, and Macmillan's Magazine, and other periodicals, and was for some years a leader-writer on the staff of the Daily Telegraph, for which he has acted as special correspondent in different parts of the Continent. While travelling in the East, Mr. Dicey was asked to undertake the editorship of the Daily News. He held this post for about three months in 1870. Immediately on quitting the Daily News Mr. Dicey was offered and accepted the editorship of the Observer, a position which he held up to 1889. He is the author of: "A Memoir of Cavour"; "Rome in 1860"; "The Schleswig-Holstein War," 1864; "The Battlefields of 1866," published in 1866; "A Month in Russia during the Marriage of the Czarewicz," 1867; "The Morning Land," an account of three months' tour in the East, 1870; "Victor Emmanuel" in the New Plutarch Series, 1882; "England and Egypt," 1884; "Bulgaria, the Peasant State," 1895. Mr. Dicey is an authority on Egypt, and has been a strong advocate of a British annexation of that country. He was made a C.B. in 1885. Of late years he has taken much interest in South African affairs, and has paid a long visit to the Transvaal. He has also travelled in Bulgaria, and has published a work on the Bulgarian people and politics, mentioned above. His brother, Mr. Albert Dicey, is Vinerian Professor of English Law at Oxford. He married, in 1867, Anne Greene Chapman, an American lady, who died in 1878. Addresses: Piccadilly Mansions, W.; and Athenæum.

DICKENS, Henry Fielding, Q.C., is the son of the late Charles Dickens, of Gadshill Place, Higham, Kent, and was born on Jan. 16, 1849. He was educated at Trinity Hall, Cambridge, where he graduated B.A. in 1872, and was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in November 1873. He practises on the South-Eastern Circuit, was appointed Recorder of Deal in 1883, and became Recorder of Maidstone in 1892. Mr. Dickens acted as Revising Barrister for Mid-Kent and Greenwich in 1884, and was appointed a Q.C. in 1892. Address: 2 Paper Buildings, Temple, E.C.

DICKINSON, William Howship, M.D., F.R.C.P., J.P., was born June 9, 1832, at Brighton, and educated at Caius College, Cambridge, and St. George's Hospital, London. He is an Honorary Fellow of Caius College. After holding the offices of Medical Registrar and Curator of the Museum he became Assistant-Physician to St. George's, then Physician and Lecturer on Medicine, and finally Consulting Physician. He was also in succession Assistant-Physician, Physician, and Consulting Physician to the Hospital for Sick Children. Dr. Dickinson held at different times the offices of Examiner in Medicine to the Universities of Cambridge, London, and Durham, and the Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons. He was appointed in 1869 Secretary to the Pathological Society, and in 1889 President. In 1885 he became Censor to the College of Physicians. He has made researches in connection with pathology and other branches of medicine, of which the following are the more important: On the Action of Digitalis upon the Uterus, describing for the first time its contractile effect upon that organ (1885); on the Pathology of the Kidney, distinguishing disease of the intertubular structures from that of the tubes, and asserting the intertubular origin of granular degeneration (1859, 1860, 1861); on the Function of the Cerebellum, assigning to that organ an especial effect upon the lower limbs (1865); on the nature of the so-called Amyloid or Lardaceous Degeneration, pointing out its connection with Suppuration (1867); on the Nature of the enlargement of the Viscera, which occurs in rickets, showing the affection of those organs to be analogous to that of the bones (1869); on the Futility of Counter-irritation as a Method of Treatment; on the changes produced in the Nervous System by the Amputation of Limbs: on Chronic Hydrocephalus, pointing out the frequent origin of the disease in cranial relaxation; on Diabetes, showing the general presence of structural changes in the nervous system, and referring the symptoms to organic change, instead of, as hitherto, to functional derangement; on the Pathology of Tetanus and of Chorea, with reference to structural alterations in the nervous centres; on the Pathological Results of Alcohol; and on the Presystolic Murmur, falsely so called. Most of the preceding papers are published in the Transactions of the Medico-Chirurgical Society. Dr. Dickinson is also the author of works on Albuminuria, Diabetes, and Renal and Urinary Affections, of a course of Lumsden Lectures on "The Tongue as an Indication of Disease," and of a volume of "Occasional Papers on Medical Subjects." In 1891 he delivered the Harveian Oration. He married Laura, daughter of James Arthur Wilson, M.D. Addresses: 9 Chesterfield Street, Mayfair; and Athenæum.

DICKSEE, Frank R.A., son of Thomas Francis Dicksee, was born Nov. 27, 1853, and received his first artistic instruction from his father. In 1870 he became a student of the Royal Academy, and in 1872 obtained a silver medal for a drawing from the antique. In 1875 he gained the gold medal for an historical painting, "Elijah confronting Ahab and Jezebel in Naboth's Vineyard," and in the following year exhibited the picture. At that time he worked also at drawings for book illustrations and made some designs for stained glass. In 1877 he exhibited "Harmony," which was purchased by the trustees of the Chantrey Bequest Fund; this was followed in 1879 by "Evangeline." He has since exhibited "The House-Builders," 1880; "Portraits of Sir William and the Hon. Lady Welby-Gregory," "The Symbol," 1881; "The Love Story," 1881; "The Foolish Virgins," 1883; "Romeo and Juliet," 1884; "Chivalry," 1885; and "Memories," 1886. In 1887 "Hesperia"; in 1888, "Within the Shadow of the Church"; in 1889, "The Passing of Arthur"; and in 1890, "The Redemption of Tannhäuser," were exhibited. In 1881 he was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy. In 1891 Mr. Dicksee was elected a Royal Academician, and in the same year exhibited the "Mountain of the Winds," and the "Crisis." In 1892 he exhibited "Leila" and "Startled," the latter being his diploma work; in 1893, "The Funeral of a Viking"; in 1894, "The Magic Crystal," and "A Summer Sea"; in 1895, "Paolo and Francesca," and "A Reverie"; in 1896, "The Confession," and "The Mirror"; in 1897, "Dawn and Meditation"; in 1898, "An Offering," and "The Infant Christ." Addresses: Greville

House, 3 Greville Place, St. John's Wood, N.W., and Athenæum.

DICKSON, Sir Collingwood, R.A., U.C., G.C.B., was born in 1817, and is the son of the late Major-General Sir A. Dickson, G.C.B., K.C.B., and Eularia, daughter of Don Stephen Briones. He entered the army, and became Second Lieutenant, Dec. 18, 1835; First Lieutenant, Nov. 29, 1837; Captain, April 1, 1846; Brevet-Major, May 22, 1846; Brevet Lieut.-Colonel, June 20, 1854; Lieut.-Colonel, Feb. 23, 1856; Brevet Colonel, June 29, 1855; Colonel, April 5, 1866; Colonel-Commander, Nov. 17, 1875; Major-General, Aug. 24, 1866; Lieut.-General, June 8, 1876; General, Oct. 1, 1877. Sir Collingwood Dickson served on the staff of Lord Raglan during the Eastern Campaign, 1854-55, and was present at the affairs of Bulganac and M'Kenzie's Farm, the battles of Alma and Inkerman, the charge at Balaclava, the Expedition to Kertch, and the siege of Sebastopol (wounded Feb. 4, 1855). He commanded the right siege train, and was present at the bombardments of October 17, April 9, and June 17 (medal with four clasps, C.B., Aide-de-Camp to the Queen, and Colonel, Victoria Cross, Officer of the Legion of Honour, 2nd Class of the Medjidieh, and Turkish medal). He was awarded the U.C., "for having, on Oct. 17, 1854, when the batteries of the Right Attack had run short of powder, displayed the greatest coolness and contempt of danger in directing the unloading of several waggons of the field battery which were brought up from the trenches to supply the want, and having personally assisted in carrying the powder-barrels under a severe fire from the enemy." Sir Collingwood is also a Knight of Charles the Third; 1st class St. Fernando; and Knight of Isabella the Catholic. He has retired. Address: 79 Claverton Street, N.W.

DICKSON-POYNTER, Sir John Poynder, Bart., M.P., was born in 1866. He is the son of Admiral Dickson, C.B., grandson of Admiral Sir Archibald Dickson, and grand-nephew of General Sir Alexander Dickson, G.C.B. He was educated at Harrow, and Christ Church, Oxford, and in 1881 inherited estates in Wiltshire and in London from his uncle, Mr. William Poynder of Hilmarton Lodge, Calne, and Hartham Park, Corsham, Wiltshire. He was returned in the Conservative interest for the Chippenham Division of Wiltshire in 1892, and he still holds the seat. He represents Holborn in the London County Council, and is a Justice of the Peace for Wiltshire. He has travelled considerably in past years, especially in India, and along the North-West Frontier of India, and has written articles on the subject. He was at one time a Lieutenant in the Royal Scots Lothian Militia, and is now a Lieutenant in the Royal Wilts Yeomanry. He was married in 1896 to Anne, daughter of Henry Dundas, Esq. Address: Hartham Park, Corsham, Wilts, and 39 Hill Street, W., &c.

DIDON, Henri, a celebrated French Dominican preacher and author, was born at Touvet, Isère, on March 17, 1840. At an early age he came under the influence of Lacordaire, and became a novice in a Dominican convent, taking his vows in 1862 and being shortly afterwards sent to Rome to complete his studies. At the age of twenty-eight he made his first appearance as a preacher in Paris, and was thenceforward regarded as a disciple of Lacordaire, whose Liberal Catholicism he warmly espoused. In 1871 he preached the funeral sermon at Nancy on Monseigneur Darboy. He was subsequently appointed Prior of the Dominicans of the Rue St. Jean de Beauvais in Paris, and in their chapel began giving a series of addresses which made him famous. Science and faith chiefly occupied his attention. He was himself a student of physiology, and his friendship for Claude Bernard was well known. In 1879, however, he treated of divorce, and alarmed his clerical superiors, who forbade him to continue his lectures on that subject. He was summoned to Rome, and was sent into disciplinary seclusion in the Convent of Corbara in Corsica. At the end of eighteen months spent in study and retirement, he went into Germany and, as a student, followed courses of lectures on Greek, Hebrew, &c. He made a very thorough study of German opinion, manners, and customs, and on his return to France published an interesting work on that country, in which he pointed out that theory and practice, speculation and reality, have nothing in common in the Fatherland. Père Didon has published numerous volumes of sermons, of which the first, "What is a Monk?" appeared in 1868. His best known work is his "Vie de Jésus," in the writing of which he sought impressions in Palestine itself, as M. Renan had done before him. The work was published in 1890, and has had an immense circulation. At the beginning of that year Père Didon was appointed director of the College of Albert le Grand at Arcueil, and solemnly installed on March 27. In January 1891, he preached a notable sermon at the Madeleine in Paris, the subject of which was "The Church and the Papacy." In Lent, 1892, he preached in the same church, and he of Antiquaries and of the Royal Archaeological Institute, late lieutenant Rifle Brigade, and Major 4th Oxon. Light Infantry, was born on Jan. 24, 1844, and succeeded his father, the 16th Viscount, in 1892. He was educated at Eltham in Kent, an old town full of interesting relics of the past, which may have imbued him with his love of antiquity. He is well known for his interest in antiquarianism and archaeology, has contributed frequently to the journals devoted to those subjects, and was elected P.S.A. in 1897. He is an ex-officio Trustee of the British Museum, has been a Trustee of the National Portrait Gallery since 1894, and is Curator of the Tower Armouries. He was elected to the Athenæum under Rule II. in February 1898. He married in 1870 Miss Julia Stanton, a Canadian. Address: Ditchley, Eton, Oxfordshire.

DILLON, John, M.P., second son of the late Mr. John Blake Dillon (M.P. for Tipperary, and one of the rebels of 1848), was born in 1851, and educated at the Roman Catholic University of Dublin, where he was distinguished for his proficiency in mathematics. He afterwards studied medicine, and became a licentiate of the Royal College of Surgeons of Ireland. In 1880 he was returned as member for Tipperary, but in March 1883 was obliged to resign his seat on account of ill-health. During his parliamentary career he was one of Mr. Parnell's most active supporters, and on Feb. 2, 1881, was the first member "suspended" on the occasion of the suspension of the whole Parnellite party. He was twice imprisoned as a "suspect" under Mr. Forster. In 1885 he was returned unopposed for East Mayo; and in 1886 was re-elected, and continues to represent that constituency. Mr. Dillon was a chief agitator for the well-known "Plan of Campaign," in accordance with which he received the rents of tenants at Loughrea in November 1886. For this offence he was arrested, tried, but not convicted. In May 1888 he was, however, sentenced to six months' imprisonment for having taken part in "the criminal conspiracy" of the Plan of Campaign at Tullyallen. On appeal this sentence was confirmed. Imprisoned at Dundalk, he was liberated in September. In 1890 he collected large sums in Australia in aid of his party, and returning to Ireland, was arrested and tried on a political charge. Mr. Dillon, in company with Mr. W. O'Brien, having been liberated on bail, pending a further hearing in November 1890, forfeited the bail and escaped, first to Cherbourg and then to the United States, to fulfil a lecturing engagement there. In February 1891 he gave himself up to the authorities, and was imprisoned in Ireland. He was released on July 30 from Galway Gaol, and in a speech, delivered at Mallow on August 9, threw in his lot with the McCarthyites, as opposed to the Parnellites. At the beginning of the session of 1896 Mr. Dillon, who is certainly the most earnest and formidable of the Nationalist leaders, was elected Chairman of the Irish Party in succession to Mr. McCarthy, and was re-elected in 1897. He married in 1895 Elizabeth, daughter of the Hon. Sir James Mathew, and grand-niece of the famous Father Mathew. Address: 2 North Great George Street, Dublin.

DIMSDALE, Sir Joseph Cockfield, a managing director in the well-known banking house of Prescott, Dimsdale, Cave, Tugwell, & Co., Lim., 50 Cornhill, E.C., was born in 1849, and educated at Eton. He has been an Alderman of the City of London since 1891, and was Sheriff of London in 1894, when he received the honour of knighthood. He was elected a Member of the London County Council in 1898. In 1873 he married Beatrice, daughter of R. H. Holdsworth. Address: 3 Lancaster Street, Hyde Park, W.

DIVERS, Edward, M.D., D.Sc., F.R.S., was born in London, Nov. 27, 1837, and was educated at the City of London School, the Royal College of Chemistry, and at the Queen's College, Galway, Ireland. He became Lecturer on Medical Jurisprudence at the Middlesex Hospital Medical School in 1870, but three years later he was appointed Professor of Chemistry in the Imperial College of Engineering, Japan; and in 1886 he succeeded to the Chair of Chemistry in the Imperial University of Japan. Professor Divers is a Knight Commander of the Order of the Rising Sun of Japan, and is the author of numerous articles on subjects connected with chemistry. He unfortunately lost the sight of his right eye through an explosion in 1885. Address: Hongo, Tokyo, Japan.

DIX, Morgan, D.D., American clergyman, was born at New York City, Nov. 1, 1827, and was graduated from Columbia College in that city in 1848. He studied at the Theological Seminary of the Protestant Episcopal Church (New York), and became a deacon in 1852 and priest in 1853. In 1855 he was appointed an assistant minister in Trinity Parish (the largest and most important in New York), of which he has been Rector since 1862. His principal publications are: "Commentary on the Epistle to the Romans," 1864; "Exposition of the Epistles to the Galatians and Colossians," 1865; "Lecture on the Pastheistic Idea of an Impersonal-Substance Deity," 1865; "Essay on Christian Art," 1853; "Lectures on the Two Estates, that of Wedded in the Lord and that of Single for the Kingdom of Heaven's Sake," 1872; "Memoirs of John A. Dix," 1883; "The Gospel and Philosophy," 1866; "Harriet Starr Cannon, first Mother Superior of the Sisterhood of St. Mary," 1897; and some volumes of sermons and devotional manuals.

DIXON, Professor Harold Bailey, F.R.S., Professor of Chemistry, Owens College, Manchester, second son of the late William Hepworth Dixon, was born in London, Aug. 11, 1852. He was educated at Westminster School, where he was elected on the Foundation in 1867. In 1871 he obtained a Junior Studentship at Christ Church, Oxford. At Oxford he studied Chemistry under Mr. A. G. Vernon Harcourt in the Christ Church Laboratory. In 1874 he accompanied his father through the United States and Canada, visiting the mines of Nevada and California. At the end of 1875 he took a first class in the Natural Science School, and became assistant to Mr. Vernon Harcourt. In 1876 he began the researches on the reactions of pure gases, to which he has since devoted himself. In 1879 he was appointed Millard Lecturer at Trinity College, and in 1881 Bedford Lecturer at Balliol College, Oxford, of which College he was afterwards elected Fellow. In 1880-81 Mr. Dixon experimented for the Board of Trade on Standards of Light to be used in Photometry, and in 1884-85 he made photometric determinations of various illuminants at the experimental lighthouses erected at the South Foreland by the Elder Brethren of the Trinity House. In 1886 he was elected Fellow of the Royal Society, and in the same year was chosen to succeed Sir Henry Roscoe as Professor of Chemistry and Director of the Chemical Laboratories of the Owens College, Manchester. At the meeting of the British Association at Manchester in 1877 Professor Dixon gave, in a lecture in the Free Trade Hall, a popular account of his researches on the explosions of gases. Professor Dixon acted as Secretary of the General Board of Studies of the Victoria University in 1888-90. In 1890 he was elected Deputy Chairman of the Board, and in 1892 Chairman. In 1891 Mr. Dixon was appointed a Member of the Royal Commission to investigate the explosive action of dust in coal-mines. In carrying out this inquiry he visited the scenes of all the colliery explosions during three years, examining the air and analysing the dust of the mines. In 1893 he delivered the Bakerian Lecture of the Royal Society,

"On the Rate of Explosion in Gases." In 1894 Professor Dixon was President of the Chemical Section of the British Association at the Oxford meeting; in his presidential address he pleaded for the recognition of research work as part of the University training in science. His chief papers are: "The Conditions of Chemical Change in Gases," Philosophical Transactions of Royal Society, 1884; "On the Combustion of Cyanogen," "On the Decomposition of Carbonic Acid by the Electric Spark," and "On the Combustion of Carbonic Oxide and Hydrogen," in the Journal of the Chemical Society; "On the Oxidation of Sulphurous Acid," and "On the Rate of Explosions in Gases," Philosophical Transactions, 1893; "On the Explosion of Cyanogen," and "On the mode of formation of Carbonic Acid in the burning of Carbon Compounds." Mr. Dixon married, in 1885, Olive Beechey Hopkins, daughter of the late Edward Martin Hopkins, of Montreal, and granddaughter of Admiral Beechey, F.R.S. Address: Birch Hall, Rusholme, Manchester.

DIXON, Canon Richard Watson, poet, is the son of Dr. Dixon the celebrated Wesleyan minister, and grandson of Richard Watson, the Wesleyan theologian. He was born in London, 1833, and educated at King Edward's School, Birmingham, where on the occasion of the Tercentenary he shared the prize for an essay on the Influence of the Reformation upon Literature with Sir Ed. Burne Jones and the late Dr. Hatch. At Oxford, where he entered at Pembroke College, he took a moderate class, but won the Arnold Prize for history and the Cramer Prize for poetry. At Oxford, in conjunction with Mr. (now Sir Ed.) Burne Jones and the late Mr. William Morris, he started the Oxford and Cambridge Magazine, advocating Pre-Raphaelitism, to which Rossetti and other leading men contributed. This periodical lasted a year. Mr. Dixon became curate of St. Mary the Less, Lambeth, under the present Dean Gregory, in 1858; Second Master of the High School of Carlisle in 1863; he was made Hon. Canon of Carlisle in 1874, accepted the Vicarage of Hayton in Cumberland in 1875, and of Warkworth in Northumberland in 1883. In 1861 he published "Christ's Company and other Poems," followed in 1863 by "Historical Odes." In 1873 he gained the second Peek Prize for an essay on the "Maintenance of the Church of England as an Established Church." In 1875 he published the "Life of James Dixon, D.D.," his father. He has since been engaged in writing a "History of the Church of England from the Nicene Christian Library, and articles to the ninth edition of the "Encyclopædia Britannica," to the Expositor, and other periodicals. He also edited the Gospel of St. John for Nicholl's "Expositor's Greek Testament," 1897. Address: 23 Great King Street, Edinburgh.

DOEHME, Madame, better known by her stage name of Madame (Lilian) Nordica, is the youngest of the six children of Edwin and Amanda Elvira Norton. She was born at Farmington, Maine, Dec. 12, 1859. Her parents were distinguished amateur musicians, and she received her early musical education at the Boston Conservatoire of Music, where she greatly distinguished herself. She afterwards proceeded to Italy to complete her training. Her chief triumph on the operatic stage has been her impersonation of the part of Marguerite in Gounod's "Faust." Gounod was said to regard her Marguerite as second only to that of Madame Patti. Mdlle. Nordica married (1) Mr. Gower, who is now deceased, and (2) Herr Doehme.

DOLE, Sanford Ballard, was born at Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands, in 1844, where his father and mother had gone as missionaries in that year. He received his early education at Pubahan College on the island, choosing the profession of the law and then finishing his education at Williams College in America. He was admitted to the Bar at Boston, Mass., after which he returned to Hawaii, and practised his profession there, until in 1887 he was appointed to the Supreme Court of the Kingdom. In 1884 he was a member of the Legislature, taking a prominent part in the Reform movement which culminated in 1887. In 1889 he was again a member of the Legislature, and was on the Executive Committee of that body. He was made the head of the Provisional Government set up by the Revolution of January 1893, and was made President of the Republic, July 4, 1894. He was married in 1873 to Miss Anna P. Cate of Massachusetts.

DONALDSON, James, M.A., LL.D., F.R.S.E., Vice-Chancellor and Principal of the University of St. Andrews, born April 26, 1831, at Aberdeen, was educated at the Grammar School and Marischal College and University in Aberdeen, New College in London, and the University of Berlin. He was appointed Greek Tutor in Edinburgh University in 1852, Rector of the High School of Stirling in 1854, Classical Master in the High School of Edinburgh in 1856, Rector of the same school in 1866, and Professor of Humanity in the University of Aberdeen in 1881, and Principal of the United College of St. Salvator and St. Leonard in St. Andrews University in 1889; and in 1890, by the Universities (Scotland) Act, he became Principal of the University of St. Andrews. He has published a "Modern Greek Grammar for the use of Classical Students," 1853; "Lyra Græca: Specimens of the Greek Lyric Poets from Callinus to Soutsos," with Critical Notes and a Biographical Introduction, 1854; "Critical History of Christian Literature and Doctrine from the Death of the Apostles to the Nicene Council," 3 vols., 1864-66; "The Ante-Nicene Christian Library," edited by him in conjunction with the Rev. Alexander Roberts, D.D., 24 vols., 1867-72; the article "Greek Language" in Kitto's "Cyclopædia," 3rd edit.; "Lectures on the History of Education in Prussia and England, and on kindred topics," 1874; the article "Education" in Chambers's "Information for the People," 1874; a paper "On the Expiatory and Substitutionary Sacrifices of the Greeks," read before the Royal Society of Edinburgh, May 17, 1875; and articles on the Characters of Plautus, on the Position of Women in Ancient Greece, Rome, and early Christianity, and, in the Contemporary Review, on University Reform. Besides these, he edited the Museum, or English Journal of Education, for several years, and he has contributed to the "Encyclopædia Britannica," and Edinburgh Review, Scottish Review, and other periodicals. Address: The University, St. Andrews.

DONNELLY, Major-General Sir John Fretchville Dykes, K.C.B., was born in 1834, and was educated at the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich. Entering the Royal Engineers in 1853, he was engaged in the Crimean War from 1854 to 1855. After retiring from the service, he was, in 1844, appointed Secretary of the Science and Art Department at South Kensington, a position which he continues to hold. Sir John Donnelly is a Knight of the Legion of Honour, and was created a K.C.B. in 1893. Address: 59 Onslow Gardens, S.W.; Felday, Dorking; and the Athenæum.

DOUDNEY, Sarah, youngest child of G. E. Doudney, was born in a suburb of Portsmouth, Hants, on Jan. 15, 1843. A great portion of her childhood, and nearly the whole of her girlhood, were spent in a remote village in Hampshire. She studied with Mrs. Kendall, of Southsea, and also at Madame Dowell's College at Southsea, a small establishment, chiefly for French girls. Sarah Doudney began to write verses and stories at an early age.

At eighteen she wrote two poems, which Charles Dickens commended, and published in All the Year Round. Some of her earliest verses, which attracted notice, appeared in the Churchman's Family Magazine, conducted by the Rev. F. Arnold. For this serial she wrote a story in verse, entitled "Sister Margaret," and in 1864 "The Lesson of the Water-Mill," which has since become one of the national songs of America. But it is as a writer of tales for girls that she is most widely known. The following is a list of her publications: "Under Grey Walls," 1871; "Monksbury College," 1872; "Faith Harrowby," 1872; "Wave upon Wave," 1873; "The Pilot's Daughters," 1874; "Miss Irving's Bible," "Marion's Three Crowns," "Loser and Gainer," "Oliver's Oath," 1877; "Archie's Old Desk," 1877; "The Great Saltens," "Old Anthony's Secret," "Janet Darney's Story," "Strangers Yet," 1880; "Stepping Stones," 1880; "Thy Heart's Desire," 1880; "When We Two Parted," 1880; "Michaelmas Daisy," 1882; "Stories of Girlhood," 1882; "Nothing but Leaves," 1882; "Anna Cavaye," 1882; "Nelly Channell," 1883; "What's in a Name," 1883; "A Woman's Glory," 1883; "When We Were Girls Together," 1884; "A Long Lane with a Turning," 1884; "The Strength of Her Youth," 1884; "Prudence Winterburn," 1886; "A Son of the Morning," 1887; "The Missing Rubies," 1888; "Miss Willowburn's Offer," 1888; "Under False Colours," 1889; "Where the Dew Falls in London," 1889; "Gatty Fenning," 1890; "A Romance of Lincoln's Inn," "Through Pain to Peace," 1892; also the following volumes of verses: "Psalms of Life," 1871; "Drifting Leaves," 1881; "Thistle Down," 1890; "Godiva Durlough" and "My Message," a poem, 1892, and "Violets for Faithfulness," 1893. (Novels) "Pilgrims of the Night," 1897; "A Cluster of Roses," "A Flower of Light," 1898. Sarah Doudney is the author of the well-known hymn, "Sleep on, Beloved," which was sung by order of the Queen at the Duchess of Teck's funeral. Address: Pioneer Club, 5 Grafton Street, W.

DOUGLAS, The Hon. and Right Rev. Arthur Gascoigne, D.D., D.C.L., Bishop of Aberdeen and Orkney, is the youngest son of George Sholto, late Earl of Morton, by Frances Theodora, eldest daughter of the late Right Hon. Sir George Henry Rose, G.C.B., of Sandhills, Hants. He was born Jan. 5, 1827, and graduated at University College, Durham, taking his B.A. degree in 1849, and proceeding M.A. in 1850, in which year he was ordained deacon by Dr. Maltby, Bishop of Durham. He was admitted into priest's orders by the Bishop of Worcester in 1851. Having held for a short time the curacy of Kidderminster, Mr. Douglas was appointed in 1855 to the rectory of St. Olave, Southwark, and in the following year was collated to the Rectory of Scaldwell, Northamptonshire, which living he held till 1872, when he accepted the vicarage of Shapwick, in the diocese of Salisbury. On May 1, 1883, he was consecrated, in the church of St. Andrew, Aberdeen, to the Scottish Bishopric of Aberdeen and Orkney, in succession to the late Bishop Suther. He married in 1855 Anna Maria Harriett, youngest daughter of the late Richard Richards, Esq., of Caernarvon, M.P. for Merionethshire. Address: Bishop's Court, Aberdeen.

DOUGLAS, Robert Kennaway, was born Aug. 23, 1838, at Larkbear House, near Ottery St. Mary, Devon, and is the son of the Rev. Philip W. Douglas. He was educated at a private school at Bath, and at the Blandford Grammar School. He was appointed, by the Foreign Office, Student Interpreter in the China Consular Service in 1858; in 1860 he became Secretary to the Allied Commission for the Government of the City of Canton; was temporarily attached to her Britannic Majesty's Legation at Peking in 1861; was the same year appointed Interpreter on the staff of General Sir Charles Staveley, K.C.B.; and was appointed Acting Vice-Consul at Taku in 1862, which post he held until his return to England on leave in 1864. In the following year he resigned his appointment in the Consular Service in order to take up the post of Assistant of the Upper Section of the first class in the Library of the British Museum, with special charge of the Chinese and Japanese Libraries; he was promoted to the office of Assistant-Keeper in 1880, with the additional charge of the Sub-Department of Maps; and was made Keeper of the Department of Oriental Printed Books and MSS. in 1892. In 1873 he was appointed Professor of Chinese at King's College, London. Prof. Douglas is the author of "Two Lectures on the Language and Literature of China," 1875; "The Life of Jenghiz Khan," 1877; "Confucianism and Taoism," 1879; "China," in 1882; "A Chinese Manual," 1889; "Chinese Stories," 1893; "Society in China," 1894; and the "Life of Li Hung Chang," 1895. He was Honorary Secretary to the International Conference of Orientalists during the session in London in 1874, and edited the Proceedings; he also represented England at the session held at St. Petersburg in 1876. He compiled and edited a catalogue of the Chinese books and manuscripts in the British Museum, which was printed by order of the Trustees in 1876; and he added a companion catalogue of the Japanese books and MSS. in 1898. He further edited a catalogue of the Printed Maps, Plans, and Charts in the British Museum, which was published in 1885. He is the author of several articles on China and the Far East, in the ninth edition of the "Encyclopædia Britannica"; he has also contributed linguistic and other articles relating to the same subjects to the periodicals of the day. During the summer and autumn of 1894 he contributed many letters to the Times relative to the Korean War, and has constantly published letters on the Chinese Question in the Times since that year. He was elected a member of the Athenæum under Rule II. in February 1899. He married, in 1866, Rachel, daughter of Kirkby Fenton, Caldecote Hall, Warwickshire. Prof. Douglas is a governor of Dulwich College, and resides at 5 College Gardens, Dulwich; and Athenæum.

DOVER, Bishop of. See WALSH, THE RIGHT REV. W.

DOWDEN, Professor Edward, M.A., Litt.D., LL.D., D.C.L., was born in Cork, May 3, 1843, and is the son of John W. Dowden and Alicia Bennett. He was educated by private teachers, and at Queen's College, Cork, and Trinity College, Dublin. He obtained in Trinity College the Vice-Chancellor's prizes in English Verse and English Prose; was elected President of the Philosophical Society; and gained the first Senior Moderatorship in Logic and Ethics, 1863. In 1867 he was elected to the Professorship of English Literature. He has published the following works: "Shakspeare: A Study of his Mind and Art," which has been translated into German and Russian; "Poems"; "Shakspeare Primers," which have been translated into Italian; "Introduction to Shakspeare"; "Studies in Literature"; "New Studies in Literature"; "Transcripts and Studies"; "Southey" (in English Men of Letters); "Southey's Correspondence with Caroline Bowles"; "The Correspondence of Sir Henry Taylor"; an edition of "Shakspeare's Sonnets," with notes; an edition of "The Passionate Pilgrim"; an edition of "Lyrical Ballads, 1798"; "Wordsworth's Poetical Works," edited in seven vols.; "Shelley's Poetical Works"; "The Life of Percy Bysshe Shelley," two vols., founded on the papers in the possession of the Shelley family, &c.; this last, his most important work, will probably remain the standard Life of Shelley. He has also written articles in the Contemporary Review, the Fortnightly Review, the Nineteenth Century, and other periodicals. He has received the Cunningham Gold Medal of the Royal Irish Academy, is an honorary LL.D. of the University of Edinburgh, and an honorary D.C.L. of Oxford. He was elected President of the English Goethe Society in 1888, in succession to Prof. Müller. In 1889 he was appointed the first Taylorian Lecturer, in the Taylor Institution, University of Oxford. In 1893 he was appointed Clark Lecturer, Trinity College, Cambridge, and held the lectureship during three years. He is a Commissioner of National Education, Ireland, a trustee of the National Library, Ireland, Secretary to the Liberal Union of Ireland, a Vice-President of the Irish Unionist Alliance, and has taken an active part in opposing Home Rule. In 1896 he delivered a course of lectures at sesquicentennial celebration of Princeton College, New Jersey, and received the hon. LL.D. of that University. The lectures were subsequently published with the title "The French Revolution and English Literature." In 1897 he published a "History of French Literature," and a selection with introduction and notes from the poems of Wordsworth. He married in 1866 (1) Mary, daughter of David Clerke, Esq., whose death, in 1892, deprived him of an active helper and adviser in all his literary work; (2) Elizabeth Dickinson, daughter of the Very Rev. John West, Dean of St. Patrick's, Dublin. Permanent address: Buona Vista, Killiney, Co. Dublin.

DOWDEN, The Right Rev. John, D.D., Bishop of Edinburgh, was born in Cork, June 29, 1840 (elder brother of Prof. Edward Dowden), and was educated at Queen's College, Cork, and Trinity College, Dublin. He graduated as B.A., obtaining a Senior Moderatorship and Gold Medal in Logic and Ethics in 1861. After studying for two years in the Divinity School of the University of Dublin, and taking a first class at the final examination, he was ordained deacon in 1864 and priest in 1868 by the Bishop of Kilmore. He served as curate at St. John's, Sligo, till 1867, when he became perpetual curate of Calry, in the same town. In 1870 he was appointed one of the chaplains to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland (Earl Spencer), and the following year became assistant at St. Stephen's Chapel of Ease, Dublin. In 1874 he accepted an invitation of the Scottish bishops to become Pantonian Professor of Theology and Bell Lecturer at the Theological College of the Scottish Church, then situated at Trinity College, Glenalmond, in Perthshire. After two years the Theological Department of Trinity College was removed to Edinburgh, and there he served as Head of the Theological College and Canon of of the Korosko," 1898. In 1894 Mr. Conan Doyle achieved great success as a playwright with his delightful "Story of Waterloo," produced by Sir Henry Irving at the Lyceum, and now forming part of the great actor's repertoire. He has travelled in the Arctic regions and in Africa. Address: Hind Head, Surrey.

DRAGE, Geoffrey, M.P., was born in 1860, and is the second surviving son of Dr. Charles Drage. He was educated at Eton and at Christ Church, Oxford, where he graduated after obtaining a first class in Classical Moderations and a second-class in Lit. Hum. (B.A., M.A.). He completed his academic training in Berlin and at various foreign universities, and was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn. After leaving College he travelled much on the Continent, in the United States, and in the Colonies. He first came prominently into notice as Secretary to the Labour Commission, 1891-94. His services in this capacity were of the first importance, and he was sent by the Commission on missions to France, Germany, the United States, and other countries. In February 1895 he was returned as Conservative junior Member of Parliament for Derby, which he continues to represent. His profound knowledge of economics and social questions, especially of Poor Law Reform, has rendered him a valuable addition to the ranks of his party in the House of Commons. He was Vice-President of the International Congress on Accidents, held in Milan in 1894, and was a delegate at the International Congress on the Housing of the Working Classes, which sat at Brussels in 1897. Besides writing many pamphlets and widely-read letters in the Times on his own special subjects, he has published "The Criminal Code of the German Empire, with Prolegomena and Commentary," 1885; "Foreign Reports of the Royal Commission on Labour," "Eton and the Labour Question," and "The Unemployed," 1894; "The Aged Poor," 1895; and "The Labour Problem," 1896. A novel from his pen entitled "Cyril" has run through seven editions since its original date of publication in 1889. "Eton and the Empire" is another popular work from his pen. In March 1899 he was elected Chairman of the General Committee of the Imperial South African Association in succession to Mr. Wyndham, M.P., Under-Secretary for War. He is married to Ethel Sealby, daughter of T. H. Ismay, D.L. of Dawpool. Address: 15 Wilton Place, S.W.

DRAGOUIMROW, General, one of the most distinguished generals in the Russian army during the Russo-Turkish

war, and the author of a well-known manual on the preparation of troops for battle. He commanded the advanced guard at the passage of the Danube in 1877. He has strong French tendencies, and at the French manoeuvres of 1886 he was in close attendance on General Saussier and Boisdeffre.

DRAPER, William F., was born April 9, 1842, in Massachusetts. He enlisted in the war between the States, and soon distinguished himself by his valour. He was breveted Brigadier-General before the close of the war. He declined a nomination for Governor of Massachusetts, but served four years in Congress, from March 4, 1893. For many years in England and America the ancestors of General Draper have been engaged in textile manufacturing, and he has himself patented more than fifty different inventions, covering substantially the entire field of cotton machinery, but with special reference to spinning and weaving. He has been the head of the firm of George Draper's Sons, of Hopedale, Mass., for ten years. In 1897 he was sent as United States Minister to Italy.

DREYER, John Louis Emil, M.A. and Ph.D., Copenhagen University, Director of the Armagh Observatory, born Feb. 13, 1852, at Copenhagen, is the third son of Lieut.-General Dreyer, late Inspector-General, Royal Danish Engineers. He was appointed Astronomer at the Earl of Rosse's Observatory, Birr Castle, 1874; Assistant Astronomer at the Observatory of Trinity College, Dublin, 1878; Director of Armagh Observatory, 1882; and was Joint Editor of Copernicus: an International Journal of Astronomy, Vols. I.-III., 1881-84. He is the author of "Second Armagh Catalogue of 3300 Stars for 1875, from Observations made in the Years 1859-83 under the Direction of T. R. Robinson," 8vo, 1886; "A New General Catalogue of Nebulae and Clusters of Stars," 4to, 1888 (Mem. R. Astr. Soc.); "Tycho Brahe: a Picture of Scientific Life and Work in the Sixteenth Century," 8vo, 1890 (German translation, Karlsruhe, 1894); and many papers in Proc. R. Irish Acad., Trans. R. I. Acad., Monthly Notices R. Astr. Soc., Copernicus, and in the "Encyclopædia Britannica," 9th edit. He married Katherine H., daughter of John Tuthill, formerly of Kilmore, co. Limerick. Address: The Observatory, Armagh.

DRIVER, Professor the Rev. Samuel Rolles, D.D., Regius Professor of Hebrew, Oxford, born in Southampton, Oct. 2, 1846, is the only son of Rolles Driver, Southampton, and Sarah, daughter of H. F. Smith, Darlington. He was educated at Winchester College and New College, Oxford, of which he was elected Scholar in 1865, and graduated with First-Class honours in Literæ Humaniores in 1869, was Fellow of New College from 1870 to 1882, and Tutor from 1875 to 1882. He applied himself early to the study of Hebrew and of other Semitic languages, and obtained the two University Hebrew Scholarships in 1866 and 1870 respectively; and in 1875 he was elected a member of the Old Testament Revision Company. In 1882, upon the death of Dr. Pusey, he was appointed to the Regius Professorship of Hebrew at Oxford (with a Canonry of Christ Church attached), a position which he still holds. Since 1884 he has also been Examining Chaplain to the Bishop of Southwell. He is the author of "A Treatise on the Use of the Tenses in Hebrew, and some other Syntactical Questions," 1874, 3rd edit., 1892; of "Isaiah: his Life and Times, and the Writings which Bear his Name," 1888, 2nd edit., 1893 (in the series known as Men of the Bible); of "Notes on the Hebrew Text of the Books of Samuel, with an Introduction on Hebrew Palæography, &c.," 1890; of a Commentary on Deuteronomy (1895, 2nd edit., 1896) in the "International Critical Commentary"; of one on Joel and Amos (1897) in the "Cambridge Bible for Schools"; and of various articles relating to the Old Testament and Hebrew Philology, in the Philological Journal, the Expositor, the Contemporary Review, Hastings' "Dictionary of the Bible" (1898), &c. In 1891 he published an "Introduction to the Literature of the Old Testament," which attracted considerable attention (6th edit., 1897); and in 1892 a volume of Sermons on subjects connected with the Old Testament. In these works he claims to show that the modern critical view of the origin and structure of the Old Testament can be presented in a form compatible with a sincere belief in its inspiration and religious authority. In 1898 he designed and published, for the elucidation of the Prayer-Book Version of the Psalms, the "Parallel Psalter," being the Prayer-Book Psalter, together with a new version, arranged on opposite pages, and accompanied by brief explanatory notes. He is also the joint editor (with Professors Cheyne and Sanday) of "The Holy Bible (authorised version), with Various Renderings and Readings from the best Authorities," published by the Queen's Printers, 3rd edit., 1889; and joint translator (with Dr A. Neubauer) of a catena of Jewish commentaries on the 53rd chapter of Isaiah, called "The 53rd Chapter of Isaiah according to the Jewish Interpreters." He is at present engaged (with Professors C. A. Briggs and Francis Brown, of New York) upon a new Hebrew Lexicon, which is now in course of publication by the Clarendon Press. As a Hebraist and student of the Old Testament, he enjoys a reputation upon the Continent and America. He married, in 1891, Mabel, daughter of the late Edmund Burr, of Burghnext, Aylsham, Norfolk. Address: Christ Church, Oxford.

DRUMMOND, The Rev. Professor James, M.A., LL.D., D.Litt., Principal of Manchester College, Oxford, was born in Dublin on May 14, 1835, and is the son of the Rev. William Hamilton Drummond, D.D., M.R.I.A. He went to school at the Rev. D. Flynn's, Dublin, and entered Trinity College, Dublin, in 1851, passing the examination for the degree of B.A. in 1855, and obtaining the first gold medal in classics. Subsequently, in 1882, the University conferred on him the degree of LL.D., and in 1893, on the occasion of its tercentenary, added, honoris causa, the degree of D.Litt. In 1889 he incorporated at Oxford University, after the removal of Manchester New College to Oxford, and took the degree of M.A. In 1856 he went to Manchester New College, London, where he studied for the ministry under the Rev. J. J. Tayler and the Rev. James Martineau, and in 1859 he settled at Cross Street Chapel, Manchester, as colleague to the late Rev. William Gaskell. In 1869 he was appointed Professor of Theology at Manchester New College, London, and in 1885 succeeded Dr Martineau as Principal; a position which he retained on the removal of the College to Oxford in 1889, and which he still holds, the College having recently entered a new and commodious building, and changed its designation to Manchester College. His principal works are "Spiritual Religion: Sermons on Christian Faith and Life," 1870; "The Jewish Messiah: a Critical History of the Messianic Idea among the Jews from the Rise of the Maccabees to the Closing of the Talmud," 1877; "Introduction to the Study of Theology," 1884; "Philo Judæus; or, the Jewish-Alexandrian Philosophy in its Development and Completion," in 2 vols., 1888: the Hibbert Lectures for 1894, on "Christianity"; and three sermons on "The Pauline Benediction," 1897. He married Frances, daughter of John Classon, Dublin, in 1861. Address: 18 Rawlinson Road, Oxford.

DRUMMOND, Victor Arthur Wellington, is the son of Andrew Robert Drummond of Cadlands, Southampton, his mother being the eldest daughter of the 5th Duke of Rutland, and was born tory." He has written on Colonial and Irish questions in the Contemporary Review, Nineteenth Century, and National Review. In 1891 he became President of the newly-founded Irish Literary Society (London), and delivered its inaugural address. Since that period he has resided chiefly at Nice. In January 1898 he published his Memoirs, in two volumes. The first edition was sold in a month, and the critical press in London, Dublin, and the provinces received it with great favour, and American and Australian editions have been welcomed by leading journals in both countries. Though he has commenced his eighty-third year, his health is fairly good, and he is able to pursue literary work without intermission. Address: 12 Boulevard Victor Hugo, Nice.

DUGDALE, John Stratford, Q.C., is the second son of W. S. Dugdale, of Merevale Hall, Warwickshire, and was born on July 30, 1835. He was educated at Eton and Merton College, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. in 1857, and was subsequently called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in June 1862. He practises on the Midland Circuit, was appointed Recorder of Grantham in 1874, and became Recorder of Birmingham in 1878. Mr. Dugdale is Chancellor of the diocese of Worcester, was appointed a Q.C. in 1882, and is the author of "Punishments and Conviction at Quarter Sessions." Address: 1 Paper Buildings, Temple, E.C.

DULEEP SINGH, Prince Victor Albert Jay, was born in London, July 10, 1866, and is the eldest son of the late Maharajah of Lahore. He was educated at Eton and Trinity College, Cambridge. He was gazetted to the 1st Dragoons in 1888, and until 1890 was honorary aide-de-camp to General Ross at Halifax, Nova Scotia. In January 1898 he married the second daughter of the Earl of Coventry. Club: Boodle's.

DÜMMLER, Ernst Ludwig, a German historian, was born at Berlin, Jan. 2, 1830, studied at Bonn and Berlin, and settled in 1855 at Halle, where he was appointed Extraordinary Professor of History in 1858, and ordinary Professor in 1866. He is a Member of the Academy of Munich, and since 1871 he has been an ordinary Member of the Historical Commission of Munich, and of the central committee for the publication of Monumenta Germaniæ. He was elected a corresponding Member of the French Academy of Sciences, March 30, 1882. Among his works we may mention: "The Pilgrim of Passau, and the Archbishopric of Lorch," 1854; "On the Early History of the Slavs in Dalmatia," 1856; "The Formula of Bishop Salomo III. of Constance," "History of the Kingdom of the Franks," 2 vols., 1862-65, his prize work, which was "crowned" with prizes; "Auxilius and Bulgarius," 1 "Anselm the Peripatetic," 1872; and "Emperor Otho the Great," 1876.

DUNCAN, Sara Jeanette. See COTES, MRS. EVERARD.

DUNMORE, Earl of, Charles Adolphus Murray, was born March 24, 1841, and succeeded his father as 7th Earl in 1845. He was for Lord-Lieutenant of Stirlingshire, and served the office of Lord-in-Waiting from 1874 to 1880. Lord Dunmore was for a time in the army, and retired after reaching the rank of Captain in the Scots Guards. He is the author of "Pamirs, Kashmir, Western Tibet, &c.," 1893; and "Ormsdale," 1895. He was married in 1866 to the third daughter of the 2nd Earl of Leicester. Addresses: 61 Great Cumberland Place, W.; and Dunmore Park, Falkirk, Stirlingshire.

DUNN, James Nicol, journalist, editor of the Morning Post, eldest son of Joseph Dunn and Margaret Macleod, was born in Kincardineshire, N.B., on Oct. 12, 1856, and was educated at Aberdeen. During his student days he wrote for magazines and journals; and, after a brief period in a law office, he received a position on the staff of the Dundee Advertiser before he was twenty years of age. Shortly afterwards he obtained an appointment on the Scotsman, and he remained connected with that journal for many years, being finally transferred from Edinburgh to Glasgow, where he had charge of the West of Scotland staff. On several occasions he acted as the special correspondent of the Scotsman, notably in the crofter disturbances in the Hebrides. While in Glasgow he contributed to Quiz along with A. S. Boyd, William Canton, John Davidson, and others, and he assisted in launching Art and Literature and Pen and Pencil. In 1888 he became managing editor of the Scots Observer, and was associated along with William Ernest Henley in the direction of that journal after its title was changed to the National Observer and its place of publication was removed from Edinburgh to London. He joined the Pall Mall Gazette as news editor, under H. C. Cust, in 1893. From 1895 to 1897 he was editor of Black and White and the Ludgate. He entered on the editorship of the Morning Post on the 1st May 1897. Address: Morning Post Office, Strand, W.C.

physical science. Professor Dunstan was a Vice-President of the Society from 1882 to 1889, and when in 1890 the Society decided to publish a journal he became its first editor. In 1883 he was appointed Demonstrator of Chemistry in the University Laboratories, Oxford, and from that time forward he has devoted his attention almost exclusively to educational and scientific work in this subject. At Oxford he organised a systematic course of practical instruction in Organic Chemistry, which had not then attained the importance as a branch of chemical instruction which it now has. At this time the University had commenced to develop the scientific teaching of medicine, and Mr. Dunstan was entrusted by the Waynflete Professor of Chemistry with the organisation of the teaching of chemistry in its relations to medicine. For several years he was Lecturer in Organic Chemistry in its relations to physiology and medicine, and afterwards University Lecturer in Chemical Pharmacology, an appointment which he resigned in 1892 on becoming Lecturer on Chemistry at St. Thomas's Hospital. Mr. Dunstan was for some years Professor of Chemistry to the Pharmaceutical Society, in which capacity he initiated the work of a laboratory for scientific research, from which numerous contributions to chemistry and chemical pharmacology have been made by him and his pupils. Professor Dunstan took a prominent part in the movement in favour of reforming the methods of teaching elementary science in schools, which led in 1887 to the appointment by the British Association of a Committee which was charged to inquire into and report upon the methods of teaching then adopted. Of this Committee, which sat for three years, Professor Dunstan was the secretary, and he was largely concerned in drawing up the several reports which it made. The recommendations of the Committee have been widely adopted, and the improvement which has taken place during the last few years, both in the status and mode of teaching elementary science in schools, has been chiefly due to its action. In 1896 Professor Dunstan was requested by the Council of the Imperial Institute to undertake the Directorship of the Scientific and Technical Department of the Institute, which was brought into existence with the aid of the Royal Commissioners of the 1881 Exhibition. This Department is intended to serve as an Imperial Bureau of Scientific and Technical Advice. It includes a staff of skilled assistants and Scientific and Technical Referees and large Laboratories intended chiefly for the investigation of various Indian and Colonial natural products with a view to their commercial utilisation. It has already rendered important service to certain of the Colonies and especially to the Government of India, in advising as to the utilisation of new or little-known products, including timbers, minerals, fibres, food materials, drugs, &c., and has demonstrated the practical value of science in its application to the development of the natural resources of India and the Colonies. In 1886 Professor Dunstan received the degree of Master of Arts, honoris causa, from the University of Oxford, and in 1893 he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society. He is also Senior Secretary of the Chemical Society, and an Examiner in the Universities of Oxford and London and to the Science and Art Department. He has been Examiner in the University of Cambridge, the Royal College of Physicians, and the Institute of Chemistry. He is also a Governor and Member of Council of the London School of Medicine for Women. Professor Dunstan is the author of numerous scientific contributions, which have appeared in the Philosophical Transactions and Proceedings of the Royal Society, the Transactions of the Chemical Society, and in other journals. In 1886 he married Emilie Fordyce, daughter of George Francis Maclean, Haremere Hall. She died in 1893. Addresses: Queen Anne's Mansions, St. James's Park, S.W.; and White Hill, Criss, Hants.

DU PLAT, Sir Charles Taylor, K.C.B., late Major-General in the Royal Artillery, and since 1893 Extra Equerry-in-Ordinary to the Queen, was born in 1822, and is the son of Brigadier-General G. C. D. Du Plat, R.E., K.H., and the late Pauline, Countess Hardenberg. After passing through Woolwich, he served in the Royal Artillery from 1841 to 1880, when he retired on full pay. From 1854 to 1861 he was Equerry to the Prince Consort, and from 1861 to 1893 he was Equerry-in-Ordinary to the Queen. Sir Charles Du Plat is decorated with the first class of the Prussian Order of the Red Eagle and the Grand Cross Ducal Saxon Order of Ernestine. He married (1), in 1855, Maria Christina, daughter of the late Sir William C. C. Dalryell, Bart. (she died in 1867), and (2), in 1897, Ann, eldest daughter of J. S. Forbes, of Chelsea. Addresses: 2 Carlisle Place, Victoria Street, S.W.; and Ashley, Winchfield, Hants.

DUPRÉ, August, Ph.D., F.R.S., F.I.C., &c., born at Mainz (Mayence), on Sept. 6, 1835, where his father, although a citizen of the then free city of Frankfurt, at that time resided. Both father and mother were descendants of Huguenot families who, after the revocation of the of Nantes, had immigrated into the an Palatinate. After passing through polytechnic schools of Giessen and tadt, he studied for three years at niversities of Giessen and Heide- under Bunsen, taking his degrees of and Ph.D. in 1855 at the latter uni- . In the same year he came to n, where he has remained ever since. 3 he was elected Lecturer on Chem- o the Westminster Hospital Medi- hool (a post which he resigned in

He has since that time been y engaged as a scientific and con- ; chemist. He has published many ul papers on subjects connected with stry, Physiology, Toxicology, Food is, and Water, in the Philosophical ctions, Proceedings of the Royal , Journal of the Chemical Society, t, and in the Annual Reports of edical Officer to the Local Govern- Board, &c. In 1871 he was ap- l Chemical Referee to the Medical ment of the Local Government ; in 1872, Chemical Adviser to the ive Department of the Home Office ; 3, Public Analyst for the West- r District ; and in 1888 he was ap- l a member of the War Office Com- on Explosives, under the presidency F. Abel, C.B. (which post he now

In his connection with the Home his name came prominently before blic in relation to the various dyna- utrages. He has frequently been ed by various Government Depart- viz., the Treasury, the Board of the Wreck Commissioners' Court, and also by the late Metropolitan of Works, especially with regard atment and disposal of the metro- sewage. He has, in conjunction r. Thudichum, published a book on Nature, Origin, and Use of Wine," and, in conjunction with Dr. H. Hake, "A Short Manual of Chem- 1886. He was elected a Fellow of yal Society in 1875, and was Presi- of the Society of Public Analysts in ars 1877-78 ; was one of the chief ic witnesses on behalf of the Crown famous Dr. Lamson's poisoning and was President of Section III. of tish Sanitary Congress held at Bol- 1887. In 1870 he was for some time d to a field-hospital, established by ighish Red Cross Society, for the ent of both German and French ed in the Franco-Prussian War. rried, in 1876, Florence M. Rob- daughter of H. T. Robberds, of ester, by whom he has a family r sons and one daughter. Ad- 2 Edinburgh Mansions, Howich

DUPUIS, Jean Baptiste Daniel, French sculptor and engraver, was born at Blois, Feb. 15, 1849, and entered the Ecole des Beaux Arts, where he was a pupil of Cavellier. His first bust was seen in the Salon in 1869, and, in 1872, he carried off the Prix de Rome. His chief works have been : "Posterity crowning the Genius of the Arts," "The Union of Paris and the Republic on the Altar of the Native Land" (1880), which gained the prize in the competition of the Town of Paris. He has exhibited many medals and portrait medallions, and was decorated with the Legion d'Honneur in 1881.

DUPUY, Charles Alexandre, French statesman, was born at Le Puy on Nov. 5, 1851. His parents were in humble circumstances, his father having been an official at the local prefecture. M. Dupuy began life as a professor of philosophy at the colleges of Nantua and Aurillac, and at various Lycées. In 1880 he was appointed School Inspector at Mende, and afterwards inspected schools at Caen and at Ajaccio, where he was appointed Vice-Rector of the Corsican College. At the elections of 1885 he was returned to the Chamber of Deputies as Opportunist Republican Member for the Haute-Loire. In Parliament he has been particularly devoted to the interests of primary education, and in 1886 brought forward a proposal to transfer the nomination of schoolmasters from the prefects of departments to the rectors of academies, but he withdrew his proposition in face of the opposition it met with. He has been a member of various Public Instruction Committees. At the elections of September 1889 he was returned for the Puy by a large majority over his monarchist opponent. In December 1892 he took office, for the first time, under M. Ribot, and succeeded that statesman as Premier in March 1893. He was one of the candidates for the Presidency of the French Republic, his marked courage on the occasion of the bomb explosion in the Chamber having made a great impression in his favour. He went out of office at the beginning of 1895, and was succeeded by M. Ribot. In consequence of the Dreyfus inquiry, it has become known that M. Dupuy, by concealing the alleged dealings of that officer with Germany from the then President, M. Casimir-Périer, brought about the latter's resignation. On the fall of the Brisson Cabinet in October 1898, the President appealed to M. Dupuy to form its successor, which he did with little delay, retaining MM. Delcassé, Lockroy, Peytral, and Vigel, and obtaining the support of MM. de Freycinet and Leygues. He decided to allow the Dreyfus case to pass from the domain of politics to that of justice. Paris address : 18 Quai de Béthune.

DURAND, Alice Marie Céleste, French authoress (who writes under the name of Henri Gréville), was born in Paris. She was carefully educated at home, and when, at the age of fourteen, she accompanied her father, Professor Fleury, to St. Petersburg, she was familiar with several modern languages. She soon began to publish novels and stories on Russian life and character, and continued writing after her marriage with M. Durand, a French professor of law. In 1872 she returned to France, and began to write for the Revue des Deux Mondes, Figaro, Le Temps, and other periodicals and papers. Under the name of Henri Gréville she has published a large number of novels, amongst which may be mentioned, "Dusia," "L'Expiation de Savéli," 1876; "Nouvelles Russes," "Sonia," "La Maison de Maurèze," "Autour d'un Phare," 1877; "Bonne Marie," "L'Amie," "Un Violon Russe," "Lucie Rodey," 1879; "Croquis," "Cité Menard," 1880; "Mme. de Dreux," "Perdue," 1881; "Le Fiancé de Sylve," "Rose Rozier," 1882; "Une Trahison," "Le Vœu de Nadier," "Louis Breuil," 1883; "Le Mors aux Dents," 1885; "Cleopâtre," 1886; "La Fille de Dusia," 1887; "Comédies de Paravent," 1888; "L'Avenir d'Aline," 1889; "Le Passé," and "Un Mystère," 1890; and "L'Héritière," 1891. One of her last works is "Un Peu de Marvie." Her Paris address is 174 Rue de Grenelle.

DURAND, Charles Auguste Emile, known as Carolus-Duran, French painter, was born at Lille, July 4, 1838. He received his early art education at the municipal school in his native town, and in 1855 went to Paris. He gained the Wicar travelling scholarship and went to Italy, and at Rome painted "La Prière du Soir," exhibited at the Salon in 1865. For "L'Assassiné," 1866, he was awarded his first medal. This picture was purchased by the Government for the Museum at Lille. M. Carolus-Duran resided for a year in Spain, and the influence of Velasquez is clearly seen in his "St. Francis of Assisi," exhibited at the Paris Salon in 1868. But the fame of Carolus-Duran rests principally on his portraits, which are very numerous. Among them may be mentioned that of Emile Girardin, those of his daughter, and the equestrian portrait of Mlle. Croizette, the well-known actress. In 1890 he joined the dissentient party among French painters, who in that year opened the Champ-de-Mars exhibition in opposition to the old Salon. Here he exhibited five portraits of ladies. He is a

Commander of the Legion of Honour, and of several foreign orders. He is represented at the Luxembourg Museum by his famous picture of "La Dame au Gant" and another portrait, "Lillia." His Paris address is 11 Passage Stanislas.

DURAND, Sir Henry Mortimer, K.C.S.I., K.C.I.E., is the second son of the late Major-General Sir Henry Marion Durand and Anna, daughter of Sir J. McCaskill, K.C.B., and was born in 1850. Entering the diplomatic service he became Junior Attaché (Foreign Department) in 1874, and Assistant-Secretary in the same in 1877. In 1879 he was sent out on political duty with the Kabul field force. From 1880 to 1885 he was Under-Secretary in the Foreign Department of the Government of India, and subsequently became Secretary. In 1885 he was made C.I.E. and C.S.I. In 1893 he conducted an important diplomatic mission at Kabul, the object of which was to establish cordial relations between the Ameer's Government and our own. On his return from Afghanistan he was made K.C.S.I. and K.C.I.E. He was subsequently appointed British Minister Plenipotentiary to Persia, and started for the Shah's dominions on Oct. 2, 1894. Sir Mortimer Durand married in 1875 Ella, daughter of T. Sandys, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn. Addresses: Teheran; and Athenæum.

DUSE, Signora Eleonora, was born in Venice in 1861. Her father and grandfather were well-known actors, and she herself appeared on the stage before she was thirteen. She received her dramatic training in a company of strolling players, and found recognition at Naples. She learned the gospel of self-restraint at an early age, and has kept it. Her dramatic method is remarkable. "She does not 'make up' her face—she uses no cosmetics, no rouge, no powder. She does not make an artificially-prepared entry, but mingles with the crowd on the stage, glides silently among them, all unnoticed by the audience, but when she steps out of the ranks, and speaks . . . she throws herself into her work with so much spirit and feeling that the play seems an actuality." She won her first laurels in New York in 1893, and enjoyed an immense success at Boston. In 1893 and 1894 she played in London at the Lyric Theatre during the season, her répertoire including the best-known plays of Victorien Sardou and Dumas, Ibsen's "Doll's House," and the Italian dramatists. She had the honour of appearing before the Queen at Windsor in 1894, the comedy chosen for representation being "La Locandiera," by Goldoni. She again appeared in London during 1896 and 1897, and Gabrielle d'Annunzio wrote for her his "Songe d'une Matinée de Printemps."

DVORÁK, Pan Antonin, Bohemian musician, was born on Sept. 8, 1841, at the village of Nelahozeves, near Prague, where his father was a butcher and innkeeper. As a child he showed great aptitude for the violin; but for a long time he was ignorant of the most elementary rules of music. After leaving school he earned his living by playing in a band of wandering village minstrels, and his first attempt at composition was a dance which the members of this band tried to play; but as the young composer was unaware that the music should have been written in different clefs for the different instruments, the result was terrible discord and utter failure. He then gave up composing, and went to Prague in 1857, where for the first time he heard the names of the great composers, and was present at the performance of an opera; here he was able to hire a piano and give lessons, and in 1874, a year after his marriage, he gained a competition scholarship at Vienna. In 1875 he gained £50, and in 1876 £60, but it was not until 1878 that his name became at all well known; at that time he published his "Moravian Duets" at Berlin, which were at once favourably received, and opened the way for further compositions. His dances, songs, and symphonies have all found favour with the best critics; but the "Stabat Mater" (performed at the Birmingham Festival) and "König und Köhler (The King and the Charcoal Burners) are perhaps his most popular works. One of his later works is the oratorio "St. Ludmila," founded on the poem of the young Bohemian poet, Yaroslav Vrchlicky, the subject being the introduction of Christianity into Bohemia. This was performed with great success at the Leeds Musical Festival, October 1886, under the personal direction of Herr Dvorák. He has also composed several operas, which have been either performed or published in Germany. Of these "Le Paysan Mutin," may be mentioned. His most ambitious work is the Symphony in D, and a cantata, "The Spectre's Bride," produced at the Birmingham Festival in 1885. His opera "Jacobin" was favourably received in 1889. He left his post at the Conservatoire of Prague in 1892 to accept the Directorship of that of New York.

DWIGHT, Timothy, D.D., LL.D., was born at Norwich, Connecticut, Nov. 16, 1828. He graduated from Yale College in 1849, continued his studies at New Haven for two years, and then entered the Theological Seminary connected with Yale College, 1851-53, filling meanwhile a tutorship at the College, 1851-55. He was licensed to preach in 1855; spent 1856-58 in Europe; and on his return was appointed, 1858, Professor of Sacred Literature at Yale. On May 20, 1886, he was elected President of the College, to succeed Dr Noah Porter, resigned. President Dwight was an associate editor of the New Englander, and was an active member of the American Committee for the Revision of the English Version of the Bible from 1872 to 1885. He has published many articles on various topics, and has annotated the English translation of Meyer on Romans, and on other Epistles. In 1886 he translated (with notes) Godet on the Gospel of John.

DYKE, The Right Hon. Sir William Hart, Bart., M.P., J.P., D.L., second son of the late Sir Percyvall Hart Dyke, and Elizabeth, daughter of W. Wells, Bichley Park, Kent, was born at East Hall, St. Mary Cray, Kent, Aug. 7, 1837, and educated at Harrow and Christchurch, Oxford, where he took his degree in 1861. He represented West Kent in the Conservative interest from 1865 to 1867, and the Mid-Division of the same county until 1885, when he was returned for the NW. or Dartford Division. He was Whip of the Conservative party from 1868 to 1890; Patronage Secretary to the Treasury from 1874 to 1880, and Chief Secretary for Ireland in Lord Salisbury's Government from June 1885 to January 1886. At the general elections in 1886, 1892, and 1895, he was again returned for North-West Kent. From 1887 to 1892 he was Vice-President of the Committee of Council on Education. He is a J.P. and D.L. for Kent. He married Emily, daughter of the 7th Earl of Sandwich, in 1870. Address: Lullingstone Castle, Dartford, Kent.

E

EADE, Sir Peter, M.D., F.R.C.P., J.P., the son of Peter Eade of Blofield, was born at Acle, Norfolk, in 1825, was educated at Yarmouth Grammar School and King's College, London. He has practised as a Physician in Norwich since 1856, and is now Consulting Physician to the Norfolk and Norwich Hospital. Sir Peter has, besides, interested himself in municipal matters, inasmuch as he has served the office of Sheriff of Norwich from 1880 to 1881, and he has been Mayor of that city on three separate occasions, viz., 1883-84, 1893-94, and 1895. He is a great advocate of temperance, and has also studied the question of providing fresh air, and suitable recreations, for the working classes. He is the author of: "Local Notes on Health and Archæology"; "Medical Notes on Diphtheria and Influenza"; "The Parish of St. Giles, Norwich," 1886. He was knighted in 1885. Address: 68 St. Giles's Street, Norwich.

EAMES, Madame Emma. See STORY, MADAME ENMA EAMES.

EARLE, The Right Rev. Alfred, D.D., Suffragan Bishop of Marlborough, is the son of Henry Earle, F.R.C.S., and was born in 1828. He was educated at Eton, and Hertford College, Oxford, where he was a scholar of his college, and graduated in 1854. Ordained in 1858, he became curate of St. Edmond's, Salisbury, and then held the rectory of Monkton-Farleigh, Wilts, from 1863 to 1865. In the latter year he was appointed Vicar of West Alvington, Devon; and during his tenure of that living, he became Rural Dean, Archdeacon of Totnes in 1872, and a Prebendary of Exeter Cathedral. He acted as Examining Chaplain to Bishops Temple and Bickersteth, and was installed a Canon Residentiary of Exeter Cathedral in 1886. Mr. Earle was, in 1888, appointed Suffragan Bishop of Marlborough, the west and north-west of London being under his charge; at the same time he was presented to the rectory of St. Botolph's, Bishopsgate, and became a Prebendary of St. Paul's Cathedral. He received the hon. degree of D.D. from his University. The Bishop is the author of various charges, which have been printed at the request of the clergy, the most important being upon "Church Reform"; "The Reform of Patronage"; "Reform of Episcopal Visitations"; "Our Duty to the Nonconformists"; "Our Duty to the Masses"; "Some Pressing Duties of Churchwardens and Clergy," 1874; "On Consecutive and Systematic Church Education," 1873; "Work in West and North-West London," 1897.

EARLE, Professor the Rev. J., of Swanswick Rectory, Bath, son of John Earle, landowner, was born Jan. 29, 1824, at Elston, in the parish of Churchstowe, near Kingsbridge, South Devon. He became a private pupil in the house of the Rev. Orlando Manley, then incumbent of Plymstock; and from Mr. Manley's he went to the Plymouth New Grammar School, where he stayed, until, the ancient Grammar School at Kingsbridge having been reconstituted, he was entered there for the last year before he went to Oxford. He began to reside in 1842. In 1845 he was in the first class of Litteræ Humaniores, and took his B.A. In 1848 he was elected Fellow of Oriel on a Devonshire foundation. In 1849 he took the d of M.A., and was elected Professor of Anglo-Saxon, an office at that time valuable for only five years. In the same year he was ordained Deacon by Samuel Wilberforce, Bishop of Oxford. In 1852 he became College Tutor in succession to Mr. Buckle, now Canon of Wells. On March 5, 1856, in a game of racquets, he was struck in the left eye, which caused a permanent infirmity of sight. In 1857 he was presented by Oriel College to the rectory of Swanswick, near Bath. He was appointed by the Bishop of Bath and Wells (Lord Arthur Hervey), in 1871 to the prebend of Wanstraw in Wells Cathedral; and in 1873 to be Rural Dean of Bath, an office which he discharged until 1877. In 1876 he was re-elected Professor of Anglo-Saxon in the University of Oxford, the tenure of this Professorship having in the meantime been made permanent. The following is a list of his chief publications: "Gloucester Fragments (St. Swithun, &c.)," 1861; "Bath, Ancient and Modern," 1864; "Two of the Saxon Chronicles Parallel," 1865; "The Philology of the English Tongue," 1871 (5th edit., 1892); "A Book for the Beginner in Anglo-Saxon," 1877 (3rd edit., 1884); "English Plant Names from the Tenth to the Fifteenth Century," 1880; "Anglo-Saxon Literature," 1884; "A Hand-Book of the Land Charters and other Saxon Documents," 1888; "English Prose: its Elements, History, and Usage," 1890; "The Psalter of 1539: A Landmark in English Literature," 1894; "A Simple Grammar of English now in Use," 1898. He married Jane, daughter of the Rev. George Rolleston, of Maltby, West Riding, in 1863. Addresses: Swanswick Rectory, Bath; and 15 Norham Road, Oxford.

EASTLAKE, Charles Locke, a younger son of the late Mr. George Eastlake, Deputy Judge Advocate to the Fleet, was born at Plymouth and educated at Westminster School, where he gained a Queen's Scholarship. He is now a member of the Governing Body. At an early age he was closely associated with his uncle, Sir Charles Eastlake, then President of the Royal Academy, by whose advice he became a pupil of the well-known architect, Mr. Philip Hardwick, R.A., and afterwards passed through the Royal Academy Schools, obtaining the Silver Medal for Architectural Drawings in 1854. Mr. Eastlake subsequently travelled for three years on the Continent, sketching architecture in France, Italy, and Germany. During a protracted stay at Nuremberg he studied in the atelier of Kreling, and at that time was half inclined opt the profession of a painter. On return to England, having but little chance as an architect, Mr. Eastlake directed his attention to design in those arts which had hitherto been scarcely noticed as a field for the exercise of education, viz.: domestic furniture, textiles, wall-papers, and metal-work. Some years he was largely consulted on such matters, and an illustrated book, to be published under the title of Notes on Household Taste went through several editions, becoming especially popular in America. In 1867 Mr. Eastlake was elected Secretary of the Royal Institute of British Architects, an appointment which he held for eleven years, conducting the correspondence, editing the transactions, and managing the official work of the Society. While thus engaged, he published, in 1870, a "History of the Revival" in English architecture, a work of more than merely professional interest, and one which was extensively read at the time. In 1878 Lord Salisbury (then Prime Minister) appointed Mr. Eastlake Keeper and Secretary of the National Gallery. The present wing, of which the front portion was completed in 1832-8, had up to 1869 been tenanted by the Royal Academy. The removal of that body to Burlington House, many rooms on the ground floor of the National Gallery long remained unoccupied. These were at length devoted to an exhibition of the Turner Watercolour Collection, including several hundred drawings, previously unseen by the public. They were disposed on the walls in cases under the personal superintendence of the Keeper. In the larger galleries on the upper floor, pictures had, want of space, been hung with but little regard to method. An extension of the building in 1888 enabled Mr. Eastlake to re-arrange them, systematically grouped under the several schools of painting to which they belong. They have also been protected by glass from the deleterious effect of London atmosphere and compare favourably in point of preservation with many pictures abroad. Other improvements effected during Mr. Eastlake's term of office is the additional accommodation provided for the use of art-students and copyists, who, in acknowledgment of the service, presented him with a testimonial on his retirement in 1898. He was at the same time thanked by the Trustees of the National Gallery for the efficient manner in which he had discharged his duties during his twenty years' tenure of office. In addition to the literary works above mentioned, Mr. Eastlake has recently published one on "Pictures at the National Gallery," illustrated in photogravure by Franz Hausfaengl, as well as a series of social essays entitled "Our Square and Circle." He has also been an occasional contributor to several magazines and journals, including the Nineteenth Century, Fraser, the Cornhill, Scribner, Punch, the London Review, and the Building News. Addresses: 41 Leinster Square, Bayswater; and Athenæum.

ECHEGARAY, José, Spanish dramatist, was born at Madrid in 1835. Having finished his studies, he was appointed in 1858 Professor of Mathematics at the Engineering College in Madrid, and in consequence of his mathematical works on Analytical Geometry and Physics he was made a Member of the Academy of Sciences in 1866. It is, however, chiefly as a dramatist that Señor Echegaray is known. His first work was "La Esposa del Vendador" (1874), which was a great success, and led him to continue in the same path. His other chief works have been: "La Ultima Noche," 1875; "El Gran Galeoto," 1881, which has been translated into most European languages; "Dos Fanatismos," 1887. His "Folly or Saintliness" was translated into English in 1895, and in the next year a performance of his "Mariana" was given at the Court Theatre by the Independent Theatre Society, in which Mr. H. B. Irving and Miss Elizabeth Robins much distinguished themselves.

EDEN, The Right Rev. George Rodney, Bishop of Wakefield, formerly Suffragan Bishop of Dover in succession to the late Bishop Parry, was born in Sunderland on Sept. 9, 1853, and is the third son of the late Canon Eden, Rector of Sedgfield. Educated at Pembroke College, Cambridge, of which he was a scholar, he took his B.A. in 1876, after being placed in the second class of the Classical Tripos. He was afterwards in the second class of the Theological Tripos, and obtained the Carus Greek Testament prize in 1878. He was ordained in 1878. He has been Assistant-Master at Aysgarth School, 1878-79; Domestic Chaplain to the Bishop of Durham, 1879-83; Vicar of Auckland St. Andrew with St. Anne and St. Philip, 1883-90; Rural Dean of Auckland, 1887-90; Canon and Archdeacon of Canterbury, 1890. He was consecrated Bishop of Dover in October 1890. In 1892 he was appointed Chaplain to the Cinque Ports, and was translated to the See of Wakefield on Nov. 4, 1897. In 1889 he married Constance, daughter of Canon Ellison. Address: Bishopgarth, Wakefield; and Athenæum.

EDEN, The Rev. Robert, M.A., son of the late Rev. Thomas Eden, born at Whitehall, near Bristol, was educated at a private school near that city. Having first entered at St. John's College, Oxford, as Bible Clerk, he became Scholar, and afterwards Fellow of Corpus Christi College, where he graduated B.A. in 1825, and M.A. in 1827. He was appointed an Examiner at Oxford in 1828-29, was successively Head-Master of Hackney and Camberwell Collegiate Schools between 1829 and 1838; and held the post of Examiner for the East India Civil Service from 1839 to 1856; was Chaplain to the Bishop of Norwich in 1849; Vicar of North Walsham in 1851; Honorary Canon of Norwich in 1852; and Vicar of Wymondham in 1854. Canon Eden is the author of the "Churchman's Theological Dictionary"; "The Examination and Writings of Archdeacon Philpot, with Biography," for the Parker Society; "Some Thoughts on the Inspiration of the Holy Scriptures," 1864; and "The Title Page of the Revised Version," 1887. He has also edited theological works for the Clarendon Press, and has published a volume of sermons. Address: Wymondham Vicarage, Norfolk.

EDGE, The Hon. Sir John, Q.C., was born in 1841, educated at Trinity College, Dublin, called to the Irish Bar in 1864, and to the English Bar at the Middle Temple in 1866. In 1886 he was appointed Chief-Justice of the High Court of Judicature of the North-Western Provinces of India. In March 1898 he was appointed Member of the Council of India in succession to Sir Charles Turner, K.C.I.E. Club: East India United Service.

EDINBURGH, Bishop of. See DOWDEN, THE RIGHT REV. JOHN, D.D.

EDINBURGH, Duke and Duchess of. See SAXE-COBURG AND GOTHA.

EDIS, Robert William, J.P., F.S.A., F.R.I.B.A., architect, born at Huntingdon in 1839, was educated at the Local Grammar School, and afterwards at the Brewers' Company's School at Aldenham. He became a member of the Architectural Association early in his professional life, and was elected President for two successive years; Associate of the Royal Institute of British Architects in 1862, a Fellow in 1867, a member of Council in 1888, and Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries in 1870. He has travelled much in many countries, and in the early part of his career made a series of architectural sketches in France, Italy, and Germany, some of which were published in the Building News and other professional journals. He has written and lectured on domestic art and sanitation, and published various books on those subjects. He is one of the leaders of the modern revival of red brick and so-called "Queen Anne" architecture. In 1882 he went to America to advise as to the laying out of a new city in Kansas State. In 1888 he was invited by the Society of Arts to give a series of Cantor Lectures on the "Decoration and Furniture of Town Houses," since illustrated and published in book form. He wrote the article on "Internal Decoration from a Sanitary Point of View," in Our Homes; and the hand-book on "Healthy Furniture," for the Council of the International Health Exhibition. Amongst his principal and latest works are: the additions to the Inner Temple Library, the Constitutional Club in Northumberland Avenue, the Junior Constitutional Club in Piccadilly, enlargement of the London School Board offices (Victoria Embankment), various blocks of houses on the Duke of Westminster's estate in Green Street and other parts of London, ball-room and additions at Sandringham for H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Hotel Grand Central, Marylebone, mansion at Cheney Park, &c. In 1893 Mr. Edis acted as Honorary Architect to the Royal Commission for the Chicago Exhibition, and from his designs the "Victoria" House at the World's Fair was erected. He is also Honorary Architect to the Gordon Boys' Home, and has recently designed a new chapel and various other buildings for the Home. Mr. Edis joined the "Artists' Corps at its formation in 1859, and is now Colonel of the regiment. He was Aide-de-Camp to Lord Bury in the French and German war under the General Convention; and was in Paris during the last days of the Commune, when he wrote, as the result of his observations, a paper on "Fireproof Materials," which was read before the Royal Institute of British Architects. He was elected a member of the London County Council for South St. Pancras. Colonel Edis is a Justice of the Peace for Norfolk (1897). Addresses: The Old Hall, Great Ormesby, Norfolk; and 14 Fitzroy Square.

EDISON, Thomas Alva, was born at Milan, Erie Co., Ohio, Feb. 11, 1847, being of Dutch descent on his father's side, and Scotch on his mother's. His father died at the age of ninety-one in February 1896. His early education was derived chiefly from his mother's lessons and from his omnivorous reading, his entire school attendance not exceeding two months. When about twelve he became a railway newsboy, conducting at the same time (with the help of boy associates) three small stores at Port Huron, Michigan.

Later he established an amateur paper, which he printed and sold on the train, and also improvised a laboratory in a baggage-car for chemical experiments. Having at great peril saved the life of the little son of a station-master, the father, out of gratitude, assisted him to learn telegraphy; and in a short time he acquired so much skill as an operator that he was successively employed at Port Huron, Stratford (Canada), Indianapolis (Indiana), Cincinnati (Ohio), Memphis (Tennessee), Boston, and at many other places. During the years he was thus engaged he was constantly experimenting in every direction. At Indianapolis he made his first essay towards an automatic telegraphic repeater, which he completed while at Memphis. His first patent was for a chemical vote-recording apparatus (for use in legislative bodies), and was taken out while he was at Boston. It was at Boston also that he began work upon duplex telegraphy, but it was not until 1872 that it was perfected. He went to New York in 1871, and shortly afterwards was appointed Superintendent of the Law Gold Indicator Co., which supplied gold and stock quotations to brokers' offices. From this point his career has been an uninterrupted success. He invented the gold and stock printing telegraph; the system for quadruplex and sextuplex telegraphic transmission; the carbon telephone transmitter; the microtasmeter for detection of small variations in temperature; the aërophone and megaphone for amplifying and magnifying sound; the electric pen; the electric railway, &c. One of his latest inventions is the kinetograph, an instrument for photographing or recording and then reproducing motion, which performs the same service for the eye that the phonograph does for the ear; it is designed for use in combination with the latter instrument, and when so combined effects simultaneously the duplex sensation of vision and sound. The total number of patents issued to him already exceeds 400, and is constantly increasing; one-fourth of them refer to telegraphy. But it is with the phonograph and electric lighting that his name is the most closely associated, and by which he is best known. He resigned his superintendency in 1876, to devote himself entirely to invention and research, and has a large laboratory at Orange, New Jersey, the most ample in the world for electrical experiment. Mr. Edison has devoted much time to the milling of ores poor in iron, which were afterwards concentrated by electricity, and made available for profitable smelting. Large mining and milling plants were erected in the northern part of the State of New Jersey to demonstrate his views.

EDLIN, Sir Peter Henry, Q.C., J.P., was born in 1819. He was called to the Bar at the Middle Temple in 1847, and was appointed a Queen's Counsel in 1869. He became Recorder of Bridgwater in 1872, acted as Assistant-Judge of the Middlesex Sessions from 1874 to 1889, and was Chairman of the County of London Sessions from 1889 to 1896. He received the honour of Knighthood in 1888. Address: 64 Queensborough Terrace, W.; and Wentworth House, Clifton, Bristol.

EDMUNDS, The Hon. George Franklin, LL.D., American lawyer and statesman, was born at Richmond, Vermont, Feb. 1, 1828. He was educated at the common schools and by a private tutor, studied law at an early age, and began to practise in 1849. In 1851 he removed to Burlington, Vermont. From 1854 to 1859 he was a member of the lower branch of the State Legislature, serving as Speaker for three of those years. In 1861-62 he was a State Senator, acting as President pro tem. On the death of Mr. Foote in 1866 he was appointed to the vacancy in the U.S. Senate, which position he continued to fill by successive re-elections until his retirement from public life in 1891. He was one of the prominent Republican leaders of that body, a member and chairman of some of its most important committees, and was twice its President pro tem. He was a member of the Electoral Commission in 1876, which decided the Presidential controversy between Mr. Hayes and Mr. Tilden. At the Republican National Conventions in 1880 and 1884 he received some votes for the nomination to the Presidency. The degree of LL.D. was conferred upon him in 1887 by Trinity College, Hartford.

EDWARDS, The Right Rev. Alfred George, D.D., Bishop of St. Asaph, youngest son of the late Rev. William Edwards, Vicar of Llangollen, born Nov. 2, 1848, Scholar of Jesus College, Oxford, second class in Classical Moderations, 1872, third in the Final Classical School, was ordained Deacon in 1874, and Priest in 1875, by Dr. Basil Jones, D.D., Bishop of St. David's. He was appointed Warden and Headmaster of Llandoverly College in 1875. During the ten years he was at Llandoverly the school obtained a high position in University distinctions, and changes were made which have enabled the school to gain at the present time a foremost place amongst the public schools of England, and to lead the movement for Higher Education in Wales. In 1885 Dr. Edwards was appointed Vicar of Carmarthen and Private Secretary and Chaplain to the late Bishop of St. David's. During the three years that he was at Carmarthen he took an active part in the discussion of Welsh Disestablishment, a subject which was now being brought by the Tithe Agitation within the sphere of practical politics. In 1889 Dr. Edwards was appointed, upon the nomination of Lord Salisbury, to the vacant See of St. Asaph. A Welshman by birth, language, residence, and descent, he has been a consistent opponent of the cry - Wales for the Welsh. He was instrumental in securing the passing of the Tithe Act of 1891, which finally ended the Tithe wars in Wales. The opposition to the Welsh Disestablishment campaign fell largely into the hands of Dr. Edwards, and in recognition of his services in this cause a number of Churchmen, including the Duke of Westminster, Lord Powis, Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, and leading laymen in Wales presented the Bishop with his portrait and an address at the Diocesan Conference in 1897. He married (1) Caroline Elizabeth, daughter of E. Edwards, in 1875; and (2) Mary, daughter of W. J. Garland, of Lisbon and Worgrett, Dorsetshire, in 1885. Addresses: The Palace, St. Asaph; and Athenæum.

EDWARDS, Lieutenant-Colonel the Right Honourable Sir Fleetwood Isham, K.C.B., son of Thomas Edwards and Hester, daughter of the Rev. William Wilson, of Harrington Rectory, Northamptonshire, and Knole Hall, Warwickshire, was born April 21, 1842, at Thames Ditton, and was educated at Harrow. He entered the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich in 1861, became a Lieutenant in the Royal Engineers in 1863, Captain in 1877, Major in 1883, Lieutenant-Colonel in 1890, and retired in 1895. He held the appointments of A.D.C. to the Governor of Bermuda from 1867 to 1869, and to the Inspector-General of Fortifications, 1875-78, and was attached to the Special Embassy to the Congress at Berlin in 1878. He acted as Groom-in-Waiting to the Queen, 1880-95, and has been Extra Equerry since 1888. He was made a C.B. in 1882, a K.C.B. in 1887, and a Privy Councillor in 1895. Sir Fleetwood Edwards now holds the post of Keeper of Her Majesty's Privy Purse, to which he was appointed in 1895, and of Receiver-General of the Duchy of Lancaster. He is also Secretary of the Royal Victorian Order. He married, 1871 (1), Edith, daughter of Rev. Allan Smith Masters, of Camer, Kent (she died 1878), and (2) Mary, daughter of Major John R. Majendie, 92nd Highlanders. Addresses: St. James's Palace, N.W.; and Norman Tower, Windsor Castle.

EDWARDS, John Passmore, was born in Cornwall in 1824. He began as a temperance lecturer and then went into trade. He came to London when eighteen years of age, and entered a publishing house. He bought the well-known London halfpenny evening paper the Echo for the sum of £18,000, eventually sold it for £75,000, or, according to some accounts, £50,000, and again bought it back. He is a newspaper proprietor on a large scale, owning the Building News, the English Mechanic, and the important Weekly Times. He has brought out many magazines of the second order. Posterity will probably best remember him as the munificent founder of some score of public institutions in Cornwall, and some thirty public institutions in the Metropolis, which include art galleries, reading-rooms, and free libraries. Mr. Passmore Edwards represented Salisbury in Parliament from 1880 to 1885. He has published "The War, a Blunder and a Crime," 1855; "The Triple Curse, or the Evils of the Opium Trade on India, China, and England," 1858. He married Eleanor, daughter of H. Humphreys. Address: 51 Bedford Square, W.C.

EDWARDS-BETHAM. See BETHAM-EDWARDS, MISS MATILDA BARBARA.

EGERTON, Sir Edwin Henry, K.C.B., Envoy Extraordinary to the King of the Hellenes, was born Nov. 8, 1841. He entered the Diplomatic Service in 1859, and, after being Secretary of Legation at Buenos Ayres and Athens, was appointed Consul-General in Egypt in 1884. In 1885 he was Secretary of Embassy at Constantinople and afterwards at Paris, whence he was appointed to his present post in 1892. In 1886 he was created C.B. and in 1897 K.C.B. He married in 1895 the widow of M. Michael Catkoff, the daughter of Prince Rostowski. Address: British Legation, Athens.

EGERTON, George. See CLAIR-MONTE, MRS.

EGERTON OF TATTON, Earl, Wilbraham Egerton, 2nd Baron, is the eldest son of the late Lord Egerton of Tatton, 1st Baron, and was born at Tatton Park, Knutsford, on Jan. 17, 1832. He was educated at Eton and Christ Church, Oxford, where in 1854 he was in Class II. of the Final School of Law and Modern History. In 1858 his Lordship (then Mr. Wilbraham Egerton) succeeded his father as M.P. for North Cheshire, which he continued to represent in the Conservative interest till 1868, when he was returned, at the head of the poll, for Mid-Cheshire. This constituency he represented until 1883, when he succeeded his father in his present title, being raised to the rank of Earl in 1897, and in the same year created Viscount Salford. Lord Egerton has always taken an active interest in matters relating to agriculture, education, and the Church, and has given evidence bearing on these subjects before committees of the House of Lords. In 1880 he was appointed an Ecclesiastical Commissioner by Lord Beaconsfield. He was Chairman of the Church Defence Institution from 1874 to 1896, is President of the Central Council of Diocesan Conferences, and has contributed many papers to Church Conferences and Congresses. He is Chairman of the Queen Victoria Clergy Fund. He has served on the Royal Commission on Noxious Vapours, was Chairman of the Royal Commission on the Education of the Blind, Deaf, &c., 1884-87, and has been President of the Royal Agricultural Society, the Shire Horse Society, &c. He is Knight of Justice of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem. From 1887 to 1894 he was prominently before the public as Chairman of the Manchester Ship Canal Company, with which he was actively connected from 1886, when he became a member of the Consultative Committee; he rendered material assistance to the undertaking in Parliament. He has written on the Manchester Ship Canal and on Agriculture in the Nineteenth Century, &c. In 1857 Lord Egerton married Lady Mary Sarah Amherst, daughter of Earl Amherst. She died in 1892. In 1894 he married the Duchess of Buckingham and Chandos. Addresses: 7 St. James's Square, S.W.; and Tatton Park, Knutsford.

EGGLESTON, Edward, S.T.D., L.H.D., was born at Vevay, Indiana, Dec. 10, 1837. After holding several posts as a Methodist minister, and acting as editor of two periodicals at Chicago, he removed, in 1870, to Brooklyn, New York, and became literary editor of the New York Independent, a religious weekly, of which he had previously been the western correspondent. A few months later he was made superintending editor, which position he resigned in July 1871, to take charge of Hearth and Home. His first two novels, contributed as serials to this latter paper, having opened a new and tempting path to him, he resigned the editorship of Hearth and Home about the end of 1872, and has not since acted as editor to any periodical. In 1874 he carried out a long-cherished plan of establishing an Independent Church without a creed. This "Church of Christian Endeavour" was located in the eastern district of Brooklyn, and was remarkably successful in its philanthropic work, carried out on original plans, many of which have been widely copied. He was obliged, in 1879, to resign this pastorate on account of the complete breaking-down of his health; and since his recovery he has wholly given up preaching, and has devoted himself entirely to literature. He has published in all seven novels, some of which have been translated into several European languages. They are: "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," 1871; "The End of the World," 1872; "Mystery of Metropolisville," 1873; "The Circuit Rider," 1874; "Roxy," 1878; "The Graysons," 1888; "The Faith Doctor," 1891. His other books are: "Schoolmasters' Stories for Boys and Girls," 1874; "The Hoosier Schoolboy," 1883; "Queer Stories for Boys and Girls," 1884; "A History of the United States and its Peoples for Schools," 1888; "The Household History of the United States," 1888; "A First Book in American History," 1889; a volume of short stories under the title "Duffels," 1893; "Stories of American Life and Adventure" and "Stories of Great Americans for Little Americans," 1895; and "The Beginners of a Nation," 1896. In connection with others he published, 1878-80, a series of books for young people under the title, "Famous American Indians." Mr Eggleston has been a contributor to the Century Magazine since the issue of its first number in 1870. To its pages he has contributed, besides works of fiction and essays of various sorts, a series of papers, published at intervals, 1882-90, on early American life and manners.

EGYPT, Khedive and Viceroy of.
See ABBAS PACHA.

EIFFEL, Gustave, engineer of the Eiffel Tower, Paris, was born at Dijon, in the Côte d'Or, Dec. 15, 1832, and educated at the Central School of Arts and Manufactures, Paris. His professional reputation was established by his construction of the Bordeaux Bridge, the Garabit Viaduct, and other important works. He has introduced many improvements in the art of bridge-building upon arches, and the germ of his tower may be seen in the huge framework he erected for Bartholdi's statue of Liberty at New York. An elaborate description of the famous Tower, from a popular point of view, was given in the Times of April 30, 1889, when it was asserted that it was a M. Nonguier, a young engineer in M. Eiffel's employment, who first conceived the idea, and worked it out with the aid of an architectural friend. M. Eiffel himself described the Tower in a paper read before the Society of Travail Professionnel in 1889, and since published with six plates. In April 1889 he was promoted to the rank of Officer of the Legion of Honour. He offered himself for election to the Senate in January 1891, and was returned in the Côte d'Or, but desisted from his candidature in favour of M. Joigneaux. In 1893 he was condemned to two years' imprisonment, and a fine of £500, for breach of trust in connection with the Panama Canal Works. His Paris address is 1 Rue Rabelais.

EISENLOHR, Professor August, Ph.D., Egyptologist, was born Oct. 6, 1832, at Mannheim, in the Grand-Duchy of Baden, where his father was a physician. After a preliminary training in the Lyceum of his native town he entered the University of Heidelberg in 1850, applying himself to the study of Protestant theology, which he continued at Göttingen till 1853, when he returned to Heidelberg, and entered the theological Seminary. Illness compelled him to avoid serious study for several years, and on his recovery he abandoned theology, and devoted his attention to the natural sciences, especially chemistry, under the instruction of Professors R. Bunsen and Erlenmeyer. He graduated Ph.D. in 1859, and afterwards established a chemical manufactory. By commercial intercourse with China he became acquainted with the Chinese language, and was thus led to the study of hieroglyphics, which he has prosecuted with great zeal since 1864, aided by the advice of MM. Chabas and Brugsch. On giving up commercial pursuits, he entered, after some years, the academical career as Privat-docent of the Egyptian language and Archeology by a dissertation "Die Analytische Erklärung des demotischen Theils der Rosettana," Theil I., Leipzig, 1869. In the same year, generously aided by the Grand-Duke of Baden, he undertook a scientific exploration of Egypt. Having been present at the inauguration of the Suez Canal, he sailed up the Nile to the second cataract of Wadi Halfa, studying, copying, and photographing the inscriptions. On this occasion he had the good fortune to be allowed to study the celebrated Harris Papyrus in the house of the late Consul Harris, at Alexandria. In March 1870 he left Egypt and returned home. Coming to this country in 1872, he assisted Miss Harris in selling to the British Museum for £3300 her valuable collection of Greek and Egyptian papyri. Of this collection, and especially of the great Harris Papyrus, he gave a description, translation, and commentary in a pamphlet "Der grosse Papyrus Harris. Ein wichtiger Beitrag zur Aegyptischen Geschichte. ein 3000 Jahr altes Zeugniß für die Mosaische Religion stiftung enthaltend." Leipzig, 1872. In December 1872, he was nominated a Professor Extraordinary in the University of Heidelberg, and was elected an Hon. Member of the Society of Biblical Archeology of London, and of the Society "El Chark" at Constantinople. In 1885 he became Hon. Professor at the University of Heidelberg.

ELGAR, Francis, LL.D., F.R.S., F.S.A., &c. was born at Portsmouth on April 24, 1845, and educated at the Royal School of Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering, South Kensington. He graduated in 1867, and was awarded the highest diploma as naval architect; was afterwards employed by the Admiralty in public and private shipbuilding yards and in the construction department till 1871. At the end of 1871 he became chief professional assistant to Sir E. J. Reed in London, and assisted him in the design and survey of numerous warships and mercantile vessels. He was manager of Earle's Shipbuilding and Engineering Company, Hull, of which Sir E. J. Reed was Chairman, from 1874 to 1876, and then returned to his former post in London. He went to Japan in 1879 to advise the Japanese Government upon Naval Construction, and there surveyed and reported upon the management of the Dockyards and the arrangements for keeping the ships of the navy in efficient working order. He returned to London in 1881, and practised there as a consulting naval architect, designing and surveying the building of vessels of all classes, and advising upon questions that arose from time to time in connection with the construction of, and accidents to ships. In 1883 he was appointed Professor of Naval Architecture in the University of Glasgow; and, in 1886, accepted the then newly-created appointment offered to him of Director of H.M. Dockyards at the Admiralty, in which post he had responsible charge, under the Controller of the Navy, of the arrangements for improving the working efficiency of the Dockyards, and reducing the cost of, and the time occupied in building ships in them. A description of the improvements made is given in a paper by Mr. Elgar in the thirty-sixth volume of Transactions of the Institution of Naval Architects on "The Cost of Warships." Retired from the Admiralty service late in 1891, he became a Director of and Naval Architect to the Fairfield Shipbuilding and Engineering Company of Glasgow, and has since been responsible in that capacity for the designs of numerous vessels of all classes, including the fast Cunard liners Campania and Lucania. He was a member of the Board of Trade Loadline Committee of 1884, which first framed successful rules for regulating the safe loading of ships, and of the Board of Trade Committee for Life-Saving Appliances in Ships. He was Vice-President of the Jury for the Marine Section at the International Exhibitions in Paris, 1889, and Chicago, 1893; President of the same Jury at Antwerp, 1894; and President of the British Jury Committee for the Brussels Exhibition, 1897. Mr. Elgar is an hon. LL.D. of Glasgow University, a Fellow of the Royal Societies of London and Edinburgh, the Society of Antiquaries, and the Royal School of Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering, Vice-President of the Institution of Naval Architects, Hon. Member of the Society of Engineers, Member of the Institution of Civil Engineers, the Royal Institution, the Royal United Service Institution, the Institution of Engineers and Shipbuilders in Scotland, the Association Technique Maritime of France and the Naval Institute of America; and he is a Chevalier of the Legion of Honour. He is a member of the technical committee of "Lloyd's Register of British and Foreign Shipping," and the author of an illustrated work entitled "Ships of the Royal Navy," and of papers on naval architecture and other subjects in the Transactions of the Royal Society, the Institution of Naval Architects, and other societies. He was President of the Sette, of Odd Volumes in 1894-95. He married Ethel Annie Mitchell, daughter of John Howard Colls, in 1889. Addresses: 113 Cannon Street, E.C.; 18 York Terrace, Regent's Park, N.W.; and Doonbrae, Ayr, N.B.

ELGIN, Earl of, The Right Hon. Victor Alexander Bruce, 9th Earl of Elgin and Kincardine, late Governor-General of India, K.G., G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., LL.D., was born at Montreal, Canada, May 16, 1849. He was educated at Eton and at Balliol College, Oxford, and took his B.A. degree, with a second class in Lit. Hum. in 1873. He succeeded his father, who had also been Viceroy of India, in 1863. In 1866, in Mr. Gladstone's third administration, he was appointed Treasurer of the Household and First Commissioner of Works. Lord Elgin was appointed Governor-General of India in 1893, and assumed office as Viceroy in January of 1894. His term of office has been full of events, particularly in 1897: frontier wars, famine, earthquakes, plague, seditious agitations, and financial embarrassments. Lord Elgin, in order to relieve the misery produced by the famine, succeeded in raising a fund in India, to which was subscribed in three months 91 lakhs of rupees. This was in addition to the million pounds he received for distribution from all parts of the British Empire. He was sworn of the Privy Council in 1886, in which year also the University of St. Andrews conferred upon him their LL.D. degree. He is a University Commissioner for Scotland, and Lord-Lieutenant of Fife. By virtue of his late office as Viceroy, Lord Elgin was the Grand Master of the Order of the Star of India and the Order of the Indian Empire. He was succeeded in the Viceroyalty by Lord Curzon in 1898. In March 1899 he was created K.G. He married in 1876, Lady Constance, daughter of the 9th Earl of Southesk, and has issue. His eldest son and heir, Edward, Lord Bruce, was born in 1881. Addresses: 22 Eaton Square, S.W.; and Broomhall, Fife.

ELIOT, Charles William, LL.D., President of Harvard University, was born at Boston, Massachusetts, March 20, 1834. He was prepared for College at the Boston Public Latin School, and graduated (A.B.) at Harvard in 1853. He was Tutor in Mathematics at Harvard, 1854-58; Assistant-Professor of Mathematics and Chemistry, 1858-61; of Chemistry, 1861-63; Professor of Chemistry in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 1865-69; and was chosen President of Harvard, May 1869. Since his appointment to this post, President Eliot has exercised very great influence over the course of education in the United States. Prior to his accession to the Presidency, he wrote, in conjunction with F. H. Storer, a "Manual of Inorganic Chemistry," 1866, and a "Manual of Qualitative Chemical Analysis," 1869, besides various contributions to scientific journals. Since 1869 his principal publications have been his successive Annual Reports as President of Harvard, and various addresses on educational topics. In 1896 he published "The Happy Life"; and, in 1897, "American Contributions to Civilisation, and other Essays and Addresses."

ELIOT, John, F.R.S., C.I.E., was born at Lamesley, Durham, in 1839, and educated at St. John's College, Cambridge, where he was bracketed second wrangler in 1869, and was also first Smith's Prize-man. He was elected Fellow of his College in the same year, and proceeded to India, where he held various important Professorships of Mathematics and Physics, and in 1887 was appointed to his present post of Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India. He has published "A Handbook of Cyclonic Storms in the Bay of Bengal," and has contributed largely to the scientific journals in India and at home on meteorological topics. Address: Simla.

The first of these is the fact that the Journal of the American Medical Association has been the most influential of the medical journals in the United States since its founding in 1882. It has been the most widely read and the most influential of the medical journals in the United States since its founding in 1882. It has been the most widely read and the most influential of the medical journals in the United States since its founding in 1882.

[illegible]

for a while, the person of Thompson is not yet in the little house and the person of Thompson is not yet in the little house.

ELLERY, Robert Lewis John, C.M.E., F.R.A.S., late Government Astronomer and Director of the Observatory at Melbourne, has contributed largely on astronomical and meteorological topics to the Transactions of the Victorian Royal Society and to European scientific journals. He was elected President of the Royal Society of Victoria in 1883. Address: Melbourne.

ELLCOTT, The Right Rev. Charles John, D.D., Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol, was born April 25, 1819, at Whitwell, near Stamford, of which parish his father, the Rev. Charles Spencer Ellicott, was rector. He received his early education at Oakham and Stamford schools, and then proceeded to Cambridge, where he graduated B.A. with honours in 1841, and was elected a Fellow of St. John's College. In 1842 he carried off the first Member's prize, and in the following year the Hulsean prize on "The History and Obligation of the Sabbath." In 1848 he was collated to the rectory of Pilton, in Rutlandshire, but he resigned this small living ten years later on being chosen to succeed Dr. Trench, the late Archbishop of Dublin, as Professor of Divinity in King's College, London. In 1859 he was appointed Hulsean Lecturer, and in the following year was elected Hulsean Professor of Divinity in the University of Cambridge. The Hulsean Lectures for 1860, "On the Life of Our Lord Jesus Christ," displayed profound theological erudition, and showed that their author possessed a critical knowledge of the Greek language. They attracted much attention even beyond the limits of the University, and it became obvious that Dr. Ellicott would be selected for high preferment in the Church. He was nominated by the Crown to the Deanery of Exeter in 1861, and in 1863 to the united-sees of Gloucester and Bristol, which had been vacated by the translation of Bishop Thomson to York. A principal feature of Bishop Ellicott's episcopate is said to be his hearty sympathy with the clergy of different theological "schools of thought." To him the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol owes its Theological College, and the city of Bristol its Church Aid Society, and its Church Extension Fund for supplying spiritual help of a missionary kind to its overgrown parishes. He has also instituted a plan of issuing every year a Pastoral Letter, in which he comments on passing ecclesiastical events, without waiting to deal with them for the first time in a Triennial Charge. His lordship takes an active part in the deliberations of the Upper House of the Convocation of the Province of Canterbury. Besides his Hulsean Lectures, already referred to, which have reached a 5th edition (1869), Bishop Ellicott has published a "Treatise on Analytical Statics," 1851; "Critical and Grammatical Commentaries" on the Epistles to the Galatians (1854), and Ephesians (1855), Philippians, Colossians, Thessalonians, Philemon, and on the "Pastoral Epistles" (1858); an essay on the "Apocryphal Gospels" in "Cambridge Essays," 1856; "The Destiny of the Creature, and other sermons preached before the University of Cambridge," 1858; an article on "Scripture and its Interpretation" in Archbishop Thomson's "Aids to Faith," 1861; "The Broad Way and the Narrow Way," two sermons, 1863; "Considerations on the Revision of the English Version of the New Testament," 1870; "Six Addresses on Modern Scepticism," published by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, 1877; "Six Addresses on the Being of God," published by the same Society, 1879; "Present Dangers to the Church of England," 1881; "Are we to modify Fundamental Doctrines?" 1885; papers in the publications of the Christian Evidence Society; annual addresses to the clergy of his diocese, published under the title of "Diocesan Progress" (1879-1890); "Salutary Doctrine," 1890; and "Foundations of Sacred Study," 1893. The bishop was for eleven years the chairman of the company of the Revisers of the Authorised Version of the New Testament, published in 1881. He is also the editor of "A New Testament Commentary for English Readers, by various Writers," in 3 vols.; and of a "Commentary on the Old Testament," on a similar plan, in 4 vols. (1884). In 1893 Bishop Ellicott re-edited "Plain Introductions to the Books of the Bible" from his Commentaries. Addresses: 35 Great Cumberland Place, W., &c.; and Athenæum.

ELLIOT, Francis Edmund Hugh, Agent and Consul-General to Bulgaria, was born in 1852, and was educated at Balliol College, Oxford. He entered the diplomatic service in 1874, and served at Constantinople and Vienna. In 1881 he was Acting Chargé d'Affaires at Rio de Janeiro. In 1892 he was Chargé d'Affaires at Athens, and in 1895 he was appointed to his present post.

ELLIOT, The Right Hon. Sir Henry George, G.C.B., second surviving son of the second Earl of Minto, by Mary, eldest daughter of Patrick Brydone, Esq., was born on June 30, 1817. He was educated at Eton, and held the post of Secretary and Aide-de-Camp to Sir John Franklin in Tasmania from 1836 to 1839. He was appointed a précis writer in the Foreign Office in 1840; an attaché to the Embassy at St. Petersburg in 1841; Secretary of Legation at the Hague in 1848; transferred to Vienna in 1853; and nominated Envoy to Denmark, March 31, 1858. In 1859 he was sent on a special mission to the King of the Two Sicilies, and in 1862 to the King of Greece; was appointed Envoy to the King of Italy, Sept. 12, 1863, in succession to Sir James Hudson; and Ambassador to the Sublime Ottoman Porte in 1867. Shortly afterwards he was sworn of the Privy Council, and on Nov. 22, 1869, he was created a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath. He was associated with the Marquis of Salisbury as joint-plenipotentiary at the Conference of the representatives of the great Powers held at Constantinople in 1876-77 for the purpose of considering the critical position of affairs in the East. At the close of that conference the plenipotentiaries returned to England, and Sir Henry Elliot, who happened to be extremely unpopular among the section of the Liberal party who sympathised with Russia, was not sent back to Constantinople, but retained his post as Ambassador to the Sultan, the late Mr. Layard being named Ambassador "ad interim" till Dec. 31, 1877, when, on Sir Henry's nomination as Ambassador to Vienna, he received the permanent appointment. In 1883, Sir Henry resigned the Embassy at Vienna, and was succeeded by Sir Augustus Paget. He married Anne, daughter of the late Sir Edmund Antrobus, Bart. Addresses: 43 Wilton Crescent, S.W.; and Athenæum.

ELLIOTT, Edwin Bailey, M.A., F.R.S., F.R.A.S., is the eldest son of the late E. L. Elliott, and was born on June 1, 1851. He was educated at Magdalen College School, Magdalen College, Oxford, where he took first-class Honours, both in Mathematical Moderations in 1872, and in the Final Mathematical School in 1873. He was Senior Mathematical and Johnson University Scholar in 1875, and was elected a Fellow of Queen's College in 1877. Mr. Elliot was, in 1892, appointed Professor of Pure Mathematics in the University, becoming, at the same time, a Fellow of Magdalen College. He has contributed numerous papers to the various mathematical journals and societies. Address: 4 Bardwell Road, Oxford.

ELLIS, Professor Robinson, LL.D., son of James Ellis, Esq., born Sept. 5, 1834, at Barming, near Maidstone, was educated at Elizabeth College, Guernsey, and Rugby School, then at Balliol College, Oxford. He was elected a Fellow of Trinity College, Oxford, in 1858, and appointed Professor of Latin in University College, London, Jan. 8, 1870. In 1876 he returned to Oxford, where in 1883 he was appointed University Reader in Literature, and in 1893 Corpus Professor of Latin. Professor Ellis published in 1867 a large and elaborate edition of the text of Catullus (2nd edition, 1878); and an English commentary on the poet in 1876 (2nd edition, 1889). In 1881 appeared his edition of the Ovidian or pseudo-Ovidian poem "Ibis"; in 1885 a contribution to the series known as "Anecdota Oxoniensia," containing various unedited materials drawn from MSS. in the Bodleian or other libraries; in 1887, "The Fables of Avianus," edited with prolegomena, critical apparatus, and commentary; in 1888, the Commonitorium of the Christian poet Orientius in Vol. XVI. of the Vienna Corpus Scriptorum Ecclesiasticorum Latinorum; in 1891, "Noctes Manilianæ," a series of dissertations on the astrological poem of Manilius; and in 1894 an "Inaugural Lecture on the Fables of Phædrus" (reprinted in 1897). Besides these works, he translated Catullus into English, retaining the metres of the original, in 1871. He is a contributor to the Cambridge Journal of Philology, the American Journal of Philology, Hermathena, the Academy, the Philologisches Rundschau, the Berlin Hermes, the Göttingen Philologus, the Rheinisches Museum, the Archiv für Lateinische Lexicographie, the American Nation, and the Classical Review. The University of Dublin conferred on him the honorary degree of LL.D. in July 1882, and the University of Königsberg of Ph.D. in 1894. Address: Corpus Christi College, Oxford.

ELLIS, William, F.R.S., F.R.A.S., entered the Greenwich Observatory in 1841, and, save for a short interval in 1853-54 when he superintended the University Observatory, Durham, remained at Greenwich until 1893, latterly either as Superintendent of the Chronometric and Electric Branch or as Head of the Magnetic and Meteorological Department. He has contributed articles on the Greenwich chronometers, and on barometric pressure, &c., to the Quarterly Journal of the Meteorological Society and to the Phil. Trans. He was elected F.R.S. in June 1893. Address: 12 Vanburgh Hill, Blackheath, S.E.

ELWIN, The Rev. Whitwell, M.A., a member of a good family in Norfolk, born Feb. 25, 1816, was educated at Caius College, Cambridge, where he graduated B.A. in 1839. He held for some years the curacy of Hemington-with-Hardington, Somerset, and was appointed, in 1849, rector of Booton, Norfolk, a living in the patronage of his family. He became in July 1853 editor of the Quarterly Review in succession to Mr. Lockhart, and resigned the post in July 1860. He then began to prepare a new edition of "The Works of Alexander Pope," the eighth volume of which appeared in 1872. This work, however, he afterwards resigned. Address: Booton Rectory, Norwich.

ELY, Bishop of. See COMPTON, THE RIGHT REV. LORD ALWYNE SPENCER.

EMDEN, Walter, is the third son of W. S. Emden, Esq., formerly co-proprietor of the Olympic Theatre, and a play-writer. As a boy he showed great skill as a draughtsman, and was offered by Mark Lemon a post on the staff of Punch; he was, however, intended by his father for the career of an architect or a civil engineer. For two years he worked for Messrs. Maudslay, Son, & Field; for eighteen months with Mr. W. Kelly, a well-known church architect; then with the firm of Brassey, for whom he was employed on the Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Railway, the Thames Embankment, and the Thames Tunnel line, in the course of which experiments in iron and concrete construction attracted his attention. After succeeding to the management of Mr. Charles Lawes's business for a time, he began business on his own account in 1870. Among his early commissions in theatrical work may be mentioned the reconstruction of the Globe, the alteration of the St. James's and Royalty, and the rebuilding of the Court theatres. Terry's theatre, which may be regarded as a fireproof structure, was a remarkable instance of Mr. Emden's skill; the original plans for the Garrick, the Trafalgar, and the Tivoli were his work; and the English Opera House, now known as the Palace Theatre, was reconstructed by him. He has lately completed the Royal York Palace of Varieties at Southampton, and has designed the new theatre for Ealing, also one for Folkestone, and the new variety theatre for Swansea. Romano's Restaurant was erected from his designs, as was also the Victoria Hotel at Newmarket; and the Financial Times newspaper offices, and the Hôtel de l'Europe in Leicester Square are being built according to his plans. Mr. Emden has been architect to the St. James's Hall Co., Ltd., for some twenty-eight years, is President of the Society of Architects, 1897-8, a member of the London County Council, Chairman of the Strand District Board, and ex-officio Justice of the Peace. Address: 105 and 106 Strand, W.C.

EMERY (Isabel) Winifred, (Mrs. Cyril Maude,) was born at Manchester

on Aug. 1, 1862. She is the only daughter of the late Sam Emery, comedian, who was famous in such parts as "Captain Cuttle," and the Carrier in the "Cricket on the Hearth." Her grandfather and great-grandfather were also distinguished comedians, and her husband, Mr. Cyril Maude, is one of the most artistic actors on the English stage. Miss Emery was educated in London, and went on the stage as a child-actress, making her début at Liverpool as the child in "Green Bushes." Her next appearance was in a pantomime at the Princess's. She subsequently went to school for five years, and then took an engagement under Mr. Wilson Barrett at the Court Theatre. During a tour in the country Mr. Barrett offered her the alternative of playing leading parts in the provinces or appearing in very small ones in London, and by her mother's advice Miss Emery decided to choose the latter course. She understudied Madame Modjeska as Juliet, and, though never called on to play the part, acknowledges her indebtedness to the great tragedienne's method and manner. Subsequently she played in "A Clerical Error," and then made her first success in "The Old Love and the New." Mr. Barrett's tenancy of the "Court" now expired, and Miss Emery entered upon an important phase in her career as understudy to Miss Ellen Terry at the Lyceum. Her connection with that theatre lasted from about 1881 to 1887, and during these years she often took Miss Terry's place in such plays as "Faust," and the "Vicar of Wakefield," and played on her own account in "Louis XI." and "The Bells." Since 1887 she has played at the Vaudeville as Lydia Languish, as Fanny in "Joseph's Sweetheart," and as Clarissa. Other important parts have been the Mother in "Little Lord Fauntleroy," Vashti Dethic in "Judah" at the Shaftesbury Theatre, Lady Windermere in "Lady Windermere's Fan" at the St. James's, Rosamond in "Sowing the Wind" at the Comedy, the Old-Fashioned Wife in "The New Woman," and as Lady Babbie in "The Little Minister" at the Haymarket, and Jane in the "Manœuvres of Jane," &c., &c. She was married to Cyril Francis Maude in 1888. Address: 33 Egerton Crescent, S.W.

EMLYN, Viscount, Frederick Archibald Vaughan Campbell, is the eldest son of the present Earl of Cawdor, and was born on Feb. 13, 1847. He was educated at Eton and Christ Church, Oxford. He sat in the House of Commons as Member for Carmarthenshire from 1874 to 1885. Lord Emlyn has been, since 1895, Chairman of the Great Western Railway, and he is Lord-Lieutenant of Pembroke-shire. He has been since 1880 an Ecclesiastical Commissioner, and is an Hon. Commissioner in Lunacy. He was married in 1868 to Edith, daughter of Christopher Turnor, of Stoke-Rochford, Lincolnshire. Addresses: 7 Prince's Gardens, S.W.; and Golden Grove, Carmarthen.

EMMA, Queen Regent of the Netherlands, Adelaide Emma Wilhelmina Thérèse, is the second daughter of the Duke of Waldeck Pyrmont, and consequently the sister of our Duchess of Albany. Queen Emma was born Aug. 2, 1858, at Arolsen, the capital of her father's state, Waldeck. Four daughters and one son formed the family circle. She was married to King William III. of Holland on Jan. 7, 1879, and her daughter was born in 1881. As years went on, and the King, who was in ill-health, became gradually insane, she shut herself up in the sick-room, and it was with difficulty the physicians prevailed upon her to take air and exercise. When in March 1889 Ministers proposed to convoke the States-General, and, with the consent of physicians, to declare the King incapable of reigning, and Queen Emma Regent until the Princess Wilhelmina had attained her majority, the Queen earnestly opposed the scheme. At the last moment she unwillingly accepted the offered Regency; and in a few days afterwards the King died (November 1890). Queen Wilhelmina I. nominally succeeded to the throne on her father's death. The Queen has watched with unceasing vigilance over the bringing-up of her child, and her maternal zeal has deepened the esteem felt for her by her subjects. On Sept. 6, 1898, Queen Wilhelmina came of age, and Queen Emma resigned her onerous charge. She figured with regal pomp at the coronation ceremonies at Amsterdam.

EMMAUS, Bishop of. See PATERSON, THE RIGHT REV. JAMES LAIRD.

ENGLISHMAN in Paris. See VANDAM, ALBERT DRESDEN.

ENOTRIO ROMANO. See CARDUCCI, GIOBUÉ.

ERNE, Earl of, John Henry Crichton, K.P., was born in Dublin on Oct. 16, 1839, and succeeded his father as 4th Earl in 1885. He was educated at Eton, and Christ Church, Oxford. As Viscount Crichton he represented Enniskillen in the House of Commons from 1868 to 1880, and sat as member for Fermanagh from 1880 to 1885. He was a Lord of the Treasury from 1876 to 1880, and acted as Conservative Whip from 1876 to 1885. Lord Erne is Lord-Lieutenant of co. Fermanagh, and was married, in 1870, to Lady Florence Mary Cole, daughter of the 3rd Earl of Enniskillen. Address: Crom Castle, Newtown Butte, co. Fermanagh; and 12 St. George's Place S.W.

ESCOMBE, The Right Hon. Harry, LL.D., D.Sc., Q.C., Ex-Prime Minister of Natal, was born at Notting Hill in 1838, and educated at St. Paul's School. Having emigrated to Natal, in 1872 he entered the Legislative Council as Member for Durban. In 1880 he was appointed to the Executive Council; from 1881 to 1894 he was Chairman of the Natal Harbour Board. When responsible government was granted in 1893, he became Attorney-General and in 1896 Prime Minister. He attended the Queen's Diamond Jubilee in 1897, on which occasion he was made a Privy Councillor and Hon. LL.D. of Cambridge. On returning to Natal, he resigned office and was succeeded by Mr. Aston Binns. Address: Bay View, Durban, Natal.

ESCOTT, Thomas Hay Sweet (who does not use the first of the two surnames), was born at Taunton, April 26, 1844, being the eldest son of the Rev. Hay Sweet-Escott, and member of a very old West Somerset family, whose seat is Hartrow Manor, near Taunton. He was educated at Oxford, where he graduated second class in the final examination in Litteræ Humanioribus in June 1865. Mr. Escott was lecturer in logic at King's College, London, from 1868 till 1872, and during the year 1870 he acted as Professor Lonsdale's deputy as Professor of Classics. He adopted journalism as a profession immediately after he came up to London, in 1865, from Oxford, and he has been closely and actively connected with the London daily and weekly press ever since. He has also written much for the chief monthly magazines, for the most part anonymously. He edited the "Satires of Juvenal and Persius" in 1866, and "The Comedies of Plautus" in 1867. In 1879 he published "England, its People, Polity, and Pursuits," since translated into most European languages, and accepted as a standard work, followed by a sequel, bringing it up to date, viz., "Social Transformations of the Victorian Age," 1897. Mr. Escott was appointed Editor of the Fortnightly Review in October 1882, on the resignation of Mr. John Morley, but was obliged to resign in 1886 on account of a physical weakness, since nearly cured, brought on by the exhausting overwork of five-and-twenty years. In the autumn of 1894 Mr. Escott once more appeared before the literary public, contributing to the Contemporary Review, Blackwood's, and other leading reviews. Since then, though still out of on, he has resumed his normal acti-of pen. Address: 90 Buckingham J., Brighton.

Viscount, The Right
a Balioi Brett, late Master and eldest surviving son of the
v. Joseph George Brett, of Ranelagh, sa, by Dora, daughter of the late George Best, Esq., of Chilston Park, Kent, was born Aug. 13, 1815. From Westminster School he was sent to Caius College, Cambridge (B.A. 1840; M.A. 1845). In 1846 he was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn. In March 1860 he obtained his silk gown, and at the same time he was made a Bencher of his Inn. His political career began in 1866, when, in view of a general election, he went down to Rochdale to oppose Mr. Cobden, and in this advanced Liberal borough declared himself to be, not merely a Conservative, but a Tory.
Nevertheless he made so much progress among the constituents, that Mr. Cobden deemed it prudent to visit Rochdale personally, in order to defend his seat. Mr. Brett did not succeed in his bold attempt, and he failed in the contest against Mr. T. B.
Potter. In July 1866 he stood for Helston, in Cornwall. This election became famous from the circumstance of there being a tie, and the Mayor assuming to give after four o'clock a casting vote.
For doing this the Mayor was summoned before the House of Commons, and Mr.
Brett was seated on petition. Mr. Brett represented Helston till 1868, being in February of that year appointed Solicitor-General, on which occasion he received the honour of knighthood. During the short period he remained in office he took a prominent part in passing, in 1868, the Registration Act, which enabled the general election to be taken in that year, and the Corrupt Practices Act, which is now in force. In August 1868, when it was known that the Conservative party had failed to gain the support of the country, he was appointed a Justice of the Court of Common Pleas, and by the operation of the Judicature Act he became a Judge of the High Court of Justice in 1875. In October 1876 he was made a Judge of the intermediate Court of Appeal, and added to the Privy Council. In April 1883 he was appointed Master of the Rolls, on the recommendation of Mr.
Gladstone, in the place of the late Sir George Jessel. In 1885 he was raised to the peerage in recognition of his long and eminent services as a Judge. He retired from the Mastership of the Rolls in October 1897, and was succeeded by Lord Justice Lindley. He was created Viscount on his retirement. He married, in 1850, Eugenie, daughter of Louis Mayer, Esq.,

and step-daughter of the late Captain Gurwood, C.B. (editor of "The Duke of Wellington's Despatches"). Address: 6
Ennismore Gardens, S.W., &c.; and Athenæum.

ESMOND, Henry V., actor and dramatist, born at Hampton Court on Nov. 16, 1869, his father being Richard George Jack, a physician; was educated at home by tutors, but went for a year to the Grammar School at Pocklington, in Yorkshire. He determined to become an actor, and in January 1886 made his first appearance on the stage as a super under Mrs. Langtry's management at the Prince of Wales' Theatre. After three months spent thus, he went into the country to play parts, and to endeavour to learn his business. He remained in the country for three years, during which time he played thirty-six parts, ranging from Uriah Heep to Hamlet. On March 28, 1889, he made his reappearance in London at the Opéra Comique in the "Panel Picture"; but the play proving a failure, he went back to the country, returning on July 11 of the same year to play Rafael in the "Marquisa" at a matinée at the Opéra Comique, which performance resulted in his engagement by E. S. Villard for his season at the Shaftesbury Theatre. Then followed engagements at the Lyric, Terry's, Comedy, Haymarket, Garrick, and St. James' Theatre. The principal parts he has played in London are: Algy in "Sweet Nancy," 1890; Howard Bompus in "The Times," 1892; Cayley Drummie in "Second Mrs. Tanqueray," 1894; Eddie Remon in "The Masqueraders"; Uncle Archie in "Bogey," 1895; Touchstone in
"As You Like It," St. James' Theatre, 1896. Mr. Esmond began writing plays in 1891, his first play, entitled "Rest," being produced at the Avenue Theatre on June 10, 1892. Then followed "Bogey," at the St. James' Theatre, Sept. 10, 1895;
"The Divided Way," St. James' Theatre, in November 1895; "The Courtship of Leonie," produced by Daniel Frohman in America, 1896; "One Summer's Day," produced by Charles Hawtrey at the Comedy Theatre, Sept. 15, 1897. He was married on Nov. 19, 1891, to Miss Eva Moore, herself an actress, now playing in
Mr. Hawtrey's company. Address: 21
Whiteheads Grove, Chelsea.

ESMONDE, Sir Thomas Henry Grattan, Bart., M.P., J.P., is the son of the late Colonel Sir John Esmonde, M.P., and the great-grandson of Henry Grattan, through his mother Louisa, daughter of Henry Grattan, M.P. He was born at Pau on Sept. 21, 1862, and educated at Oscott.
He entered Parliament in 1885, and represents

sented co. Dublin, South, from that year to 1892, when he was returned for West Kerry, which he now represents. He is a leading Nationalist, and is whip to his party. He was Sheriff of co. Waterford in 1886-87, and from 1881 to 1886 was Lieutenant in the 6th Brigade (Militia) of the South Irish Division of the Royal Artillery. In October 1898 he was created by the Pope a Chamberlain in the Vatican household. He succeeded his father, the 10th Baronet, in 1876. He has travelled in all parts of the world, and has published a book on his travels. Lady Esmonde is a daughter of Patrick Donovan, of Frogmore, Tralee. Address: Ballynastragh Gorey, co. Wexford.

ESSON, William, Professor, M.A., F.R.S., was educated at St. John's College, Oxford, and graduated with first-class honours in the Final School of Mathematics in 1859. He had obtained the Junior Mathematical Scholarship of the University in 1857, and he was in 1860 elected Senior Mathematical Scholar. He became a Fellow of Merton College in 1862. Mr. Esson was appointed Deputy Savilian Professor of Geometry in 1894, and three years later he succeeded to the chair, becoming at the same time a Fellow of New College. He has published several papers in the Transactions of the Royal Society on "The Laws of Connection between the Conditions of Chemical Change and its Amount"; and "Notes on Synthetic Geometry," in the Proceedings of the London Mathematical Society, 1897. Professor Esson is a Curator of the University Chest, and acts as Bursar of Merton College. Address: Merton College, Oxford.

EU, Comte d', Prince Louis Philippe Marie Ferdinand Gaston d'Orléans, born at the Château de Neuilly, in the department of the Seine, April 28, 1842, is the eldest son of the Duc de Nemours, and one of the grandsons of King Louis Philippe. Brought up in exile, he was educated in England, and entered the military service of Spain in 1859, serving in Morocco. Later he joined the Artillery College at Segovia, from which he graduated in 1863. In 1864 he married Isabella, the eldest daughter of Dom Pedro II. of Brazil. He was made a Field-Marshal in the Brazilian army in 1865, and in 1869 was appointed Commander-in-Chief of all the forces on land and sea, a position he retained until the war with Paraguay (begun in 1864) was ended in 1870 by the death of Lopez, Dictator of Paraguay. From 1865 to 1889 he held the post of Commander-General of the Brazilian Artillery, and was President of various Commissions. In the many absences of Dom Pedro from the empire during this period, the Comte d'Eu had the virtual direction of all Brazilian affairs. When the revolution of November 1889 occurred, establishing the Republic of Brazil, and deposing the Emperor, the Comte d'Eu, with his wife, accompanied Dom Pedro to Portugal, and he has since resided in Europe.

EVAN-SMITH, Sir Charles Beaumont, K.C.B., C.S.I., was born in 1842, and entered the Indian army in 1859, became Captain in 1870, Major in 1879, Lieutenant-Colonel in 1881, and Colonel in 1885. He retired in 1889. He served through the Abyssinian War of 1867, acted as Secretary to Sir Fred. Goldsmid's Persian Mission in 1870, was Military Attaché and Private Secretary to Sir Bartle Frere's Anti-Slave Trade Mission in 1872, and was appointed Consul-General at Zanzibar in 1875. In the year following he was Resident at Hyderabad, and in 1879 occupied the same position at Muscat. In the Afghan War of 1880 he was Chief Political Officer with the forces taking part in the flank march upon Candahar. During this campaign he was constantly mentioned in despatches, and, as a reward for his services, received the medal and clasp and the bronze star, being at the same time made Brevet Lieut.-Colonel. In 1891 he was appointed Her Majesty's Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at Tangier, this appointment being at the time held to be a suitable recognition of the services rendered by him at Zanzibar, where he represented British interests throughout a critical and trying period. He remained at Tangier until 1893, his period of office being disturbed by troubles with Morocco so acute that at one time a Moroccan Question seemed imminent. At the end of July 1898 his appointment to be Minister Resident at Bogota was gazetted, and in October 1898 he became Her Majesty's Minister Resident in the Republic of Colombia, and British Consul-General in the same republic. He retired Dec. 1896. K.C.B. 1890. In 1877 he married Edith, daughter of Col. Frederick Alexander, Royal Artillery. Address: 11 Draycott Place, Cadogan Gardens, S.W.

EUGÉNIE, ex-Empress of the French, Eugénie-Marie de Guzman, Countess of Téba, born May 5, 1826, is the daughter of Doña Maria Manuela Kirkpatrick, of Closeburn, Dumfriesshire, Countess-dowager de Montijos, whose father was English Consul at Malaga at the period of her marriage with the Count de Montijos, an officer in the Spanish army, connected, more or less closely, with the houses of the Duke de Frias, representative of the ancient admirals of Castile, of the Duke of Fyars, and others of the highest rank, including the descendants of the Kings of Aragon. On the death of the Count de Montijos, his widow was left with a fortune adequate to the maintenance of her position, and two daughters, one of whom married the Duke of Alba and Berwick, lineally descended from James II. and Miss Churchill. For Eugénie, the second, a still higher destiny was reserved. In 1851 the Countess Téba, accompanied by her mother, paid a lengthened visit to Paris, and was distinguished at the various entertainments given at the Tuilleries by the dignity and elegance of her demeanour, and by great personal beauty—of the aristocratic English rather than the Spanish style. Her mental gifts were not less attractive, for her education, partly conducted in England, was very superior to that generally bestowed upon Spanish women, who seldom quit their native country. Shortly after the opposition of the higher Northern Powers had put an end to the idea of a union between the Emperor Napoleon III. and the Princess Carola Wasa of Sweden, he apprised the Council of Ministers of his intended marriage with the daughter of the Countess Montijos; a measure which excited some disapproval among them, and even led to their temporary withdrawal from office. During the short time which intervened between the public announcement of the approaching event and its realisation, the Countess Téba and her mother took up their abode in the palace of the Elysée. The marriage was celebrated with much magnificence on Jan. 29, 1853, at Notre Dame. The life of the Empress Eugénie after her marriage was comparatively uneventful, being passed chiefly in the ordinary routine of state etiquette; in visits to the various royal maisons de plaisance, varied by an extended progress through France in company with her husband; by an annual sojourn for the benefit of her health at Biarritz, her favourite summer resort in the days of her girlhood; by a journey in England and Scotland in the autumn of 1861, and in 1864 to some of the German baths. The Empress Eugénie, who became the mother of an heir to the house of Bonaparte, March 16, 1856, was a devoted supporter of the claims of the Holy See, and to her influence much of the policy of the Emperor towards Italy has been attributed. Accompanied by the Emperor, she visited the cholera hospitals in Paris in October 1865, and her conduct on that occasion was very highly commended. In July 1866 she made with the Prince Imperial an official tour in Lorraine, and was present at the fête held at Nancy in commemoration of the reunion of that province with France. On the occasion of the centenary of Napoleon I., in August 1869, she proceeded with the Prince Imperial to Corsica. In October of the same year, her Majesty made a voyage to the East on board the steam yacht l'Aigle. She went first to Venice, thence to Constantinople, next to Port Said, where she was present at the formal opening of the Suez Canal (November 17), visited the most interesting places in Turkey and Egypt, and returned to France at the end of November. On the outbreak of the war between France and Germany she was appointed Regent (July 27, 1870) during the absence of the Emperor. Immediately after the revolution in Paris, on September 4, she hurriedly left the Tuilleries, and escaped from France. She landed at Ryde, in the Isle of Wight, Sept. 9, 1870, and shortly afterwards proceeded to join the Prince Imperial at Hastings. Camden House, Chislehurst, was subsequently selected as a residence by the Imperial exiles. In October 1871, the Empress went to Spain on a visit to her mother. The Emperor died at Chislehurst, Jan. 9, 1873; and in 1879 the Prince Imperial, who had accompanied the English army in the Zulu war, was killed. His body was brought to England and buried at Chislehurst, and the following year the Empress went to Zululand to visit the fatal spot on the anniversary of her son's death. At the beginning of the year 1881 the Empress removed from Camden House to the Farnborough estate in Hampshire, close to the borders of the county of Surrey. The estate, which was purchased for £50,000, consists of about 257 acres, with a picturesque mansion. Since 1870 the Empress has several times crossed France on her way south, and in 1883 and on other occasions she spent some days in Paris, but no political significance was attached to these sojourns. In the summer of 1894 the Emperor of Germany visited her during his stay at Aldershot. Address: Farnborough.

EUSTIS, Hon. James Biddle, American statesman, was born in New Orleans, Aug. 27, 1834. He graduated at Harvard Law School in 1854, and was admitted to the bar in 1856. He practised in his native city until the outbreak of the Civil War, when he entered the Confederate Army and served as Judge-Advocate until the close of the war. He was elected a member of the Louisiana Legislature prior to the passage of the Reconstruction Acts by Congress, and was one of the Commissioners sent to Washington to confer with President Johnson on the re-admission of Louisiana to the Union. From 1872 to 1874 he was a member of the lower branch of the Louisiana Legislature, and from 1874 to 1876 of the State Senate. In 1876 he was elected U.S. Senator. This position he retained until 1879, when he became Professor of Civil Law in the University of Louisiana. In 1885 he again entered the U.S. Senate, where he remained until 1891, when he resumed his law practice in New Orleans. At the beginning of Mr. Cleveland's second term as President (March 1893) Mr. Eustis was appointed American Minister to France, and a few weeks later was made Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary to the same country, a position which he retained till the close of Mr. Cleveland's administration (1897).

EVANS, Arthur John, M.A., F.S.A., eldest son of John Evans, D.C.L., F.R.S., &c., born in 1851 at Nash Mills, Hemel Hempstead, Herts, was educated at Harrow School and Brasenose College, Oxford, of which he is now an Hon. Fellow, taking a first class (in History) 1874, and continuing his historical studies at Göttingen University, under Dr. Pauli. At an early period he undertook a series of journeys having for their object antiquarian and ethnological researches through some of the least-known European regions. In the course of these he twice explored the Finnish and Lapp countries between the Arctic and Baltic Seas, in company with Mr. F. M. Balfour (afterwards Professor), and obtained interesting materials regarding the survival of heathen rites in those regions. In 1875 he travelled through the Slavonic parts of South-Eastern Europe, and after the insurrection broke out, took up his residence at Ragusa, in Dalmatia, and, while continuing to explore the antiquities and study the languages and ethnology of the Peninsula, followed the revolutionary movement with warm interest, and described the course of events from the camps of the insurgents. His correspondence, mostly communicated to the Manchester Guardian, and partly republished as "Illyrian Letters," afforded Parliamentary weapons to the enemies of Turkish dominion in Europe. He was also instrumental in calling attention to the state of the Bosnian refugees, and he gave active assistance to Miss Irby's Relief Fund. During the comparatively tranquil period that succeeded he was able to continue his explorations of the interior, the archaeological results of which have appeared in Archæologia, under the title of "Antiquarian Researches in Illyricum," and in accounts of new discoveries of Illyrian coins in the Numismatic Chronicle, &c. In 1882 a revolt broke out in the Crivoscian Highlands of South Dalmatia, consequent on the attempt of the Austrian Government (in violation of their agreement) to introduce military service into the country. The Austrian Government highly irritated with Mr. Evans, had him arrested on a charge of complicity with the insurgents, and confined him in the prison at Ragusa. After seven weeks' solitary confinement he was released by Imperial orders, but expelled from the Austrian dominions. He then settled in Oxford, and continued his archaeological studies. In 1883 he was chosen as University Lecturer on the Ilchester Foundation, and delivered a course of Lectures "On the Slavonic Conquest of Illyricum." In 1884, on the death of Mr. J. H. Parker, he was made Keeper of the Ashmolean Museum, Oxford, with the re-organisation of which he has since been occupied. He has also been engaged in archaeological researches in Sicily and Great Greece, and in 1889 published "The Horsemen of Tarentum," a monograph on the coinage of that city, in 1892 "Syracusan Medallions and their Engravers," and in 1893-4 edited, with supplements, the fourth volume of Mr. Freeman's "Sicily," from his posthumous MSS. In 1895 he discovered in Crete the evidences of a "pre-Phœnician system of writing," upon which his continued researches in that island have now enabled him to publish two works. He has married a daughter of the late Prof. Freeman. Address: Taylorian Museum, Oxford.

EVANS, Sir John, K.C.B., Honorary D.C.L. Oxford, and Trinity University, Toronto, LL.D. Dublin and Toronto, and Sc.D. Cambridge, Treas. and V.P.R.S., V.P., S.A., For. Sec. G.S., &c., is son of the late Rev. A. D. Evans, D.D., who was Head-master of Market Bosworth Grammar School, Leicestershire. He was born on Nov. 17, 1823, and educated by his father. He has devoted much attention not only to archæology, but to geology and numismatics, as well as to other branches of science. For many years he was engaged in business as a paper manufacturer, and is the President of the Paper-Makers' Association. In 1864 he published "The Coins of the Ancient Britons," for which he received the Allier d'Hauteroche Prize from the French Academy. He brought out a supplement to this work in 1890. In 1872, "The Ancient Stone Implements, Weapons, and Ornaments of Great Britain," which was translated into French and published in Paris in 1875. "The Ancient Bronze Implements, Weapons, and Ornaments of Great Britain and Ireland," appeared in 1881, and a French translation of it in the following year. He has also written on the "Flint Implements in the Drift," in the Archæologia, vols. 38 and 39; and a variety of papers in the Archæologia, and in the Numismatic Chronicle, of which he is one of the editors. He was President of the Geological Society in 1875-76, and of the Anthropological Institute in 1878-79, and of the Society of Antiquaries from April 1885 to 1892, and has been President of the Numismatic Society since 1875. In 1891-92 he was President of the Society of Chemical Industry, and in 1897-98 of the British Association for the Advancement of Science. He is a Trustee of the British Museum, a correspondent of the French Institute (Académie des Inscriptions), and an honorary member of a large number of foreign learned societies; and his antiquarian and numismatic collections rank among the first in this country. He is a J.P. and D.L. for Hertfordshire, of which county he was High Sheriff in 1881-82. He is Chairman of Quarter Sessions for the St. Albans Division of Herts, and also Vice-Chairman of the Hertfordshire County Council. He married (1) Harriett Anne, daughter of John Dickinson, F.R.S.; (2) Frances, daughter of Joseph Phelps; and (3), in 1892, Maria, daughter of Charles C. Lathbury, Wimbledon. Addresses: Nash Mills, Hemel Hempstead; and Athenæum Club.

EVANS, Robley D., American naval officer, was born in Virginia in 1846, but was appointed to the United States Naval Academy from Utah in 1860, graduating there in 1863 as Acting Ensign. He was made Master in May 1866; Lieutenant in July 1866; Lieut.-Commander, March 1868; Commander in July 1874; and Captain in June 1893. He was in command of the U.S. battleship Iowa during the naval engagement of July 3, 1898, off the coast of Cuba, in which the Spanish fleet under Admiral Cervera was entirely destroyed. His nickname in the navy of "Fighting Bob Evans" arises from a belief in his ready bravery.

EVANS, Sebastian, M.A., LL.D., a distinguished member of a family eminent in literature, science, and art, was born on the 2nd of March 1830, at Market Bosworth, in Leicestershire. From his grandfather, the Rev. Lewis Evans, a well-known astronomer and Professor of Mathematics at the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich, and from his father, the Rev. Arthur Evans, a professor, an artist, and a somewhat voluminous writer, he derived a literary and artistic training. He was educated by his father, and afterwards at Cambridge, where he gained a Scholarship at Emmanuel College. He graduated B.A. in 1853, M.A. in 1857, and LL.D. in 1868. On leaving Cambridge he became Secretary to the "India Reform Association," and was the first person in England to receive the news that the Mutiny had actually broken out in India. Retiring shortly afterwards to undertake the management of the artistic department in the celebrated glass works of Messrs. Chance Brothers & Co., near Birmingham, he not only designed innumerable stained-glass windows for various churches and cathedrals at home and abroad, but in 1862 he designed the "Robin Hood" window for the Great International Exhibition, a coloured lithograph of it being published in Mr. Waring's "Masterpieces of Industrial Art." In 1867, having previously begun to interest himself in politics, and sharing with Mr. Joseph Chamberlain a local celebrity—owing to the facility of speech and the freedom with which they both expressed their opinions in a Birmingham Debating Society called "The Tobacco Parliament,"—he undertook the editorship of the Birmingham Daily Gazette, and in 1868 he unsuccessfully contested Birmingham in the Conservative interest. After severing his connection with the Gazette he was called to the Bar, and in 1873 joined the Oxford Circuit, practising successfully for some years, and writing for many of the leading Conservative newspapers in London, his leading articles in the Observer specially attracting attention. He took an active part in the organisation of the Conservative party in connection with the National Union of Conservative Associations, and in 1878, in company with Earl Percy and Mr. W. H. Smith, he started The People newspaper in the interests of his party, editing it himself for nearly three years till its success was assured. He is the author of innumerable essays and papers, political, historical, and archæological. Many of his lectures on history and art have also been separately published, as have many translations and original short stories which have appeared in various periodicals and magazines, the most noteworthy being "King Solomon, Ben-David, and the Players at the Chess," and "The Cavern of the Great Death," both of which appeared in Longman's Magazine. In 1881 he wrote "The Dialect of Leicestershire, with a glossary of Leicestershire words, phrases, and proverbs," for the English Dialect Society, by whom it was published, and this was followed by "Contributions to a History of the Thames," which first appeared in parts in Notes and Queries. He is part author with his son of "The Upper Ten," a story of the very best society, founded on M. Pailleron's "Le Monde, ou l'on s'ennuie," and published by Messrs. Sampson, Low & Co., uniform with their early editions of Mr. Rudyard Kip-

1862. He was Pathological Curator at the Royal College of Surgeons of England from 1861-90, and is co-editor of the "Pathological Catalogue of the Museum of the R.C.S.E.," 1885. In 1882-84 he was Erasmus Wilson Lecturer at the College, his subject being Tumours. He is Surgeon and Ophthalmic Surgeon and Lecturer on Pathology at the London Hospital, and Surgeon to the Evelina Hospital. He has contributed largely to Mr. Trever's "Manual of Surgery" and to the leading medical journals. Address: 125 Harley Street, W.

EVE, Henry Weston, M.A., Headmaster of University College School, is a son of the late Mr. H. W. Eve, of Maldon, Essex. He was born in 1838, and educated at Mill Hill, Rugby, and Trinity College, Cambridge, of which he was elected a Fellow in 1862, after graduating with both mathematical and classical honours. From 1860 to 1876 he was, with some intervals, a Master at Wellington College, and, for most of the time, at the head of the modern side, which educated a good many boys for the scientific branches of the army. In 1866 he acted as an Assistant-Commissioner to the School Inquiry Commission. In 1876 he succeeded the late Prof. Key in the Headmastership of University College School, an office which he still holds. Since 1883 he has been Dean of the College of Preceptors. He has published several books designed to promote the more scholarly study of French and German, including a French Grammar (jointly with F. de Baudiss, first edition, 1870), a German Grammar (first edition, 1880), and several editions of French classics (1892, &c.). Address: University College School, Gower Street, W.C.

EVERETT, Joseph David, M.A., D.C.L., D.Sc., F.R.S., F.R.S.E., was born Sept. 11, 1831, at Rushmere, near Ipswich, where his father was a yeoman farmer; was educated at a small school, and acquired some knowledge of advanced mathematics by private study. He was Mathematical Master from 1850 to 1854 in a school at Totteridge, Herts; and in 1854 he entered the University of Glasgow, where he took the degrees of B.A. and M.A. with honours in all the subjects of the curriculum. After successively occupying the posts of Secretary to the Meteorological Society of Scotland, Professor of Mathematics at King's College, Nova Scotia, and Assistant-Professor of Mathematics in the University of Glasgow, he was appointed in 1867 Professor of Natural Philosophy in Queen's College, Belfast, from which position he retired in the beginning of 1897. He was elected F.R.S. in 1879, and F.R.S.E. in 1862. He has been secretary to the Underground Temperature Committee of the British Association, from its appointment in 1867, and has directed the observations taken for determining the rate at which temperature increases downwards in the earth. His reports on this subject have appeared in the British Association volumes; the most notable being a "Summary" of principles, methods, and results in the volume for 1882. He moved in 1871 the appointment of a Committee of the British Association for the selection and naming of dynamical and electrical units, and, after two years' discussion, drafted for the meeting in 1873 a Report, the adoption of which originated the C.G.S. system now generally employed. The names "dyne," "erg," and "C.G.S. unit" were introduced at his suggestion, and a small volume of "Illustrations of the C.G.S. System," which he prepared, was published by the Physical Society in 1875, and has been enlarged for subsequent editions, besides being translated into French, German, Dutch, and Russian. His version of the "Traité élémentaire de Physique" of M. Privat Deschanel, published 1870-1872, has been so largely re-written, partly in the first and still more in succeeding editions, that it is in the main an original work. He has also published an Elementary Text Book of Physics in 1877; "Outlines of Natural Philosophy," intended as a school reading book, 1885; and "Vibratory Motion and Sound," 1882. He has contributed to the Greenwich Observations, and to the Royal Societies of Edinburgh and London, papers on Underground Temperature, on Atmospheric Electricity, and on Rigidity; to the Philosophical Magazine papers on Mirage, Atmospheric Circulation, Forced Vibrations, Brightness of Images, and Resultant Tones; and to the Messenger of Mathematics an application of Quaternions to Sir R. Ball's "Theory of Screws." His "Universal Proportion Table," published (and described in Philosophical Magazine) in 1866, was the first application of the parallel-column arrangement for obtaining a slide-rule with very open scale, it being printed from copper plates on two large cards, with one of them cut away like a gridiron. He is a skilled shorthand writer, on a system invented by himself in his youth (printed for private circulation in 1851 and published in 1877), which has numerous adherents both at home and in the colonies. It gives greater facility for vowel insertion than the older systems, and is constructed with a view to certainty of reading, and freedom of writing, rather than extreme brevity. The chief "Everett Shorthand" publications are: "Shorthand for General Use," 1877; "School Short-hand," 1883; "Shorthand Lessons," 1892; "Everett Leaflets," issued to members of the Everett Shorthand Society since 1884. He married in 1862 Jessie, daughter of the Rev. A. Fraser, Glasgow. Address: Queen's College, Belfast.

EWART, James Cossar, M.D., F.R.S., Regius Professor of Zoology at Edinburgh University, was born at Penicuik, Midlothian, Nov. 26, 1851. He is the youngest son of the late John Ewart, and was educated at Penicuik and at the University of Edinburgh, where, in 1874, he was appointed Demonstrator of Anatomy. In 1875 he was elected Conservator of the Museums of University College, London. While at University College, he completely reorganised the Museums and investigated the life-history of the bacillus of splenic fever and of other minute organisms. In 1878 he was appointed by the Crown to the Chair of Natural History in the University of Aberdeen, and in 1882 he was transferred to the corresponding chair in the University of Edinburgh—the most desirable post a naturalist can hold in this country. In the same year he was elected a member of the Fishery Board for Scotland. While in Aberdeen Professor Ewart introduced classes for the practical study of zoology, and organised a small marine laboratory. At this, the first marine laboratory started in Britain, Professor Ewart and the late Mr. Romanes made their investigations for their memoir on the Echinoderms, which the Royal Society constituted the Croonian lecture for 1881. Since returning to Edinburgh, Professor Ewart has devoted himself to developing the Natural History Department, and to creating a scientific department in connection with the Fishery Board; considerable progress has already been made in working out the natural history and development of the herring and other food fishes. In this work Professor Ewart has the use of three marine stations, and is assisted by a staff of three naturalists and several fishery officers; and the Government, in addition to voting grants for carrying on the scientific work, has provided boats for trawling and other operations. Of late years he has been endeavouring to discover improved methods for preserving fish, and to introduce the famous Loch Fyne herring to the Antarctic Ocean. In addition to the laborious work of his chair, Professor Ewart has found time to have two lectureships instituted in the University—one on "Embryology," and one on the "Philosophy of Natural History," and he has done much to obtain for the students a much wanted Union such as exists at Oxford and at Cambridge. He has published a number of works on general and marine zoology, among which mention may be made of "The Locomotor System of the Echinoderms," 1884, written in conjunction with the late Prof Romanes, with whom he studied the urchins; "The Cranial Nerves and Lateral Sense Organs of Elasmobranchs," 1889-91; "The Development of the Horse," 1894; "The Birth of a Zebra Hybrid," 1896, this being a subject in which he is now practically interested; "The Penicuik Experiments: I. Telegony and Reversion," 1897. Addresses: Edinburgh University; and the Bungalow, Penicuik.

EWING, Professor James Alfred, B.Sc. Edin., Hon. M.A. Cantab., F.R.S. M.Inst.C.E., Professor of Mechanism and Applied Mechanics in the University of Cambridge, son of the Rev. James Ewing, of Dundee, was born March 27, 1855, and was educated at the High School of Dundee, and at Edinburgh University, where he graduated in Science. He assisted Lord Kelvin (Sir William Thomson) and the late Professor Fleeming Jenkin for four years in their work as engineers, taking part in a number of telegraph cable expeditions on their behalf. In 1878 he was appointed by the Japanese Government Professor of Mechanical Engineering in the University of Tokio, which office he held till 1883, when he resigned his chair in Japan to become Professor of Engineering in University College, Dundee. In 1890 he was elected Professor of Mechanism at Cambridge, where he has organised an Engineering Laboratory, with teaching adapted to the new Tripos in Mechanical Science which was established by the Senate of the University in 1892. While in Japan he gave special attention to the study of earthquakes, and devised seismographs by which a complete analysis of the motion of the ground was obtained. His apparatus for earthquake measurement is now used in many observatories, and was the subject of a Friday evening discourse at the Royal Institution in 1888. He is the author of a treatise on "Earthquake Measurement," published by the University of Tokio, 1883, and of many papers on the same subject in the Transactions of the Seismological Society of Japan. He has given much attention to electricity and its applications, and especially to the study of Magnetism, and is the author of a treatise on "Magnetic Induction in Iron," 1890, and of many papers, containing the results of original research, on this and kindred subjects, of which the chief are: "Experimental Researches in Magnetism," Phil. Trans., 1885; "Effects of Stress and Magnetisation on the Thermo-electric Quality of Iron," Phil. Trans., 1886; "Magnetic Qualities of Nickel," Phil. Trans., 1888; "Magnetism of Iron in Strong Fields," Phil. Trans., 1889; "Time-Lag in the Magnetisation of Iron," Proc. Roy. Soc., 1889; "Contributions to the Molecular Theory of Magnetism," Proc. Roy. Soc., 1890; "Magnetic Qualities of Iron," Phil. Trans., 1893; "Magnetic Testing of Iron and Steel," Min. Proc. Inst. C.E., 1896. His "Magnetic Curve-Tracer," for exhibiting these qualities, was shown in an evening lecture at the Edinburgh Meeting of the British Association (1892), and his experiments in illustration of the molecular process in magnetic induction were shown at the Royal Institution in 1891. His "Hysteresis Tester" and "Permeability Bridge" are practical instruments of magnetic measurement which are now extensively used by steel-makers and electrical engineers. In 1895 he was awarded a Royal medal by the Royal Society for his researches in Magnetism. Professor Ewing is the author of a treatise on "The Steam-Engine and other Heat Engines" (2nd edit., 1897), and of several of the longer articles on engineering subjects in the ninth edition of the "Encyclopædia Britannica," and is also a contributor to Chambers's Encyclopædia (articles, "Dynamo," "Electric Light," &c.). He is a member of the Institution of Civil, Mechanical, and Electrical Engineers, and was elected F.R.S. in 1888. He married, in 1879, Anne, daughter of the late T. B. Washington, Claymont, West Virginia. Address: Engineering Laboratory, Cambridge.

EXETER, Bishop of. See BICKERSTETH, THE RIGHT REV. EDWARD HENRY.

EYRE, The Most Rev. Charles, LL.D., Roman Catholic prelate, son of the late John Lewis Eyre, Esq. (Count Eyre, in the Papal dominions), and brother of the late Very Rev. Monsignor Eyre, of Hampstead, was born 1817, at Askam Bryan Hall, York, and educated at Ushaw College, Durham, and in Rome. He was appointed assistant-priest at St. Andrew's Church, Newcastle-on-Tyne, in 1843; removed to St. Mary's, Newcastle, in 1844; became senior priest at St. Mary's Cathedral, Newcastle, in 1847, and remained there, with a short interval, till Christmas, 1868. He was for many years Canon of the diocese of Hexham and Newcastle, and for some time was Vicar-General; was appointed Roman Catholic Archbishop for the Western District, and Delegate-Apostolic for Scotland in December 1868; and was consecrated in the church of St. Andrea della Valle, Rome, Jan. 13, 1869, by the title of Archbishop of Anazarba, in partibus infidelium. When the ancient hierarchy was restored in Scotland by Pope Leo XIII., on March 4, 1878, Mgr. Eyre was appointed Roman Catholic Archbishop of Glasgow. Archbishop Eyre is the author of a "History of St. Cuthbert," 1849 (3rd edit., 1889); "Children of the Bible," "Papers on the Old Cathedral of Glasgow." He is a "Grand Cross" of the Order of Isabella the Catholic, a chaplain of the Order of Malta, and a Knight of the Holy Sepulchre. Address: 6 Bowmont Gardens, Glasgow.

EYRE, Edward John, for some time Governor of Jamaica, son of the late Rev. Anthony Eyre, Vicar of Hornsea and Long Riston, in the East Riding of Yorkshire, and Sarah, daughter of Dr. Mapleton, Bath; lineal descendant of the Eyres of Hope, Derbyshire, temp. Henry II., was born on Aug. 5, 1815, and educated at the Louth and Sedburgh Grammar Schools. Finding he would have to wait nearly a year to obtain a commission in the army (for which the purchase-money was lodged) he elected, when only seventeen years of age, to accept the purchase-money (£450) and go out to Australia at once to try his fortune. He arrived in New South Wales early in 1833 with £400, engaged in sheep farming, and then in transporting stock overland from New South Wales to South Australia. In the latter colony he purchased property on the Lower Murray River, where he remained several years, having been appointed resident magistrate of his district, and protector of the aborigines. In a work entitled "Discoveries in Central Australia," published in 1845, he earnestly pleads the cause of the wandering native tribes. In the meantime he distinguished himself as an Australian explorer, opening out an extensive tract of previously unknown country to the north of Adelaide in South Australia, and traversing the whole distance from Spencer's Gulf in 138° east longitude to King George's Sound in 118° east longitude, thus proving the practicability of an overland route between the colonies of South Australia and West Australia, for which achievement he received the Founder's Medal of the Royal Geographical Society. In 1845 Mr. Eyre returned to England, and in 1846 received from Earl Grey, then Secretary of State for the Colonies, the appointment of Lieut.-Governor of New Zealand, as second to the Governor, Sir George Grey. Having served his full term as a colonial governor he returned to England in 1853, and about a twelvemonth afterwards was appointed Lieut.-Governor of the island of St. Vincent. This post he held for six years; and in the years 1859 and 1860 he was in the island of Antigua, filling the place of the Governor of the Leeward Islands, who was on leave of absence. In 1860, upon the termination of his Governorship of Antigua, Mr. Eyre returned to England to recruit his health; and in 1862 he was chosen by the late Duke of Newcastle, Secretary of State for the Colonies, to administer the Government-in-Chief of Jamaica and its dependencies during the absence of Governor Darling, who had returned to England on account of ill-health. In consequence of the non-return of Governor Darling, Mr. Eyre was appointed Captain-General and Governor, General-in-Chief and Vice-Admiral of the Island of Jamaica, July 15, 1864; and an insurrection having broken out in October 1865, he proclaimed martial law, and used very vigorous measures for its suppression. As a result, what was believed to be a dangerous insurrection was crushed. But his measures, more especially in the trial by court-martial and condemnation to death of George William Gordon, a mulatto of property, excited much resentment among certain sections at home, and a commission of inquiry was despatched to Jamaica, Governor Eyre being superseded, and Sir Henry Storks temporarily appointed in his place. The report of the committee, published in June 1866, exonerated Governor Eyre from the heavy charges brought against him, but he was recalled, and Sir P. Grant appointed his successor. As regards the nature and extent of the emergency Mr. Eyre had to cope with, the commissioners reported: "The disturbances had their origin in a planned resistance to lawful authority; and not a few had for their object the extirpation of the white inhabitants, and it spread with singular rapidity over a vast tract of country;" and Sir Peter Grant (Mr. Eyre's successor) reported in reference to certain evidence taken before a special commission of oyer and terminer held on and after Jan. 24, 1866: "It appears to me that, as far as it goes, this judicial evidence is even of greater value than any evidence which could be obtained by the Royal Commission in their admirably conducted inquiry. . . . Moreover, this trial, which was held according to all the rules of English law, and was presided over by a legal judge, was necessarily deliberate, regular, fair, and full. . . . The judicial evidence in this case proves that the march and attack upon the Court-house on the 11th October were premeditated as part of an intended insurrection. . . . That the murder of certain persons who were murdered on that occasion was predetermined, was openly spoken of the day before the occurrence amongst those engaged in the attack, and was boasted of afterwards by others so engaged. The evidence throws no light upon the cause which may have led to the conspiracy; but it proves that the assailants proclaimed, upon making their attack their object to be war; that the war announced was a war of colour; and that they themselves understood, the day after the slaughter, that what they had taken was war." Mr. Eyre's health ^{being} suffered from long service in the tropics, he retired from the Public Service in upon pension as a retired Colonial Governor. Governor Eyre married, in 1 Adelaide, daughter of Captain Ormiston R.N. Address: Walreddon Manor, Tavistock, Devon.

EYTON, Canon Robert, M.A., was born, June 21, 1845, in Shropshire. His father was the Rev. R. W. Eyton, Rector of Ryton, Shropshire, author of "The Antiquities of Shropshire"—a well-known antiquary. He was educated at Shrewsbury Grammar School, under Dr. Kennedy, from 1859 to 1864, and at Christ Church, Oxford, from 1864 to 1868. He was ordained Deacon and Priest in 1870. He was Curate at St. Nicholas, Guildford, from September 1870 to April 1871, and then at St. Paul's, Knightsbridge, from 1871 to 1874, and was in charge of St. Mary's, Graham Street, from 1874 to 1884. He was appointed Sub-Almoner in 1883 by the Bishop of Ely; and Prebendary of St. Paul's Cathedral, in 1885, by Mr. Gladstone. He was Rector of Holy Trinity, Upper Chelsea, from 1884 to 1895, and was appointed Rector of St. Margaret's, and Canon of Westminster, in 1895, by the Earl of Rosebery. He is the author of: "The True Life," 1889; "The Apostles' Creed," 1890; "The Lord's Prayer," 1892; "The Search for God," 1893; "The Ten Commandments," 1894; "The Beatitudes," 1895; "The Temptation of Jesus," 1895; "The Glory of the Lord," 1897. Address: 17 Dean's Yard, Westminster, S.W.

F

FAED, John, R.S.A., artist, born in 1820, at Burley Mill, in the Stewartry of Kirkcudbright, where his father was an engineer and millwright, showed an early taste for art, and, encouraged by a successful painting, which he finished at the age of twelve, began to paint miniatures in his own neighbourhood. He repaired in 1841 to Edinburgh, where he exhibited in 1850 some pictures of humble life, which met with a ready sale. His principal works are: "Shakespeare and his Contemporaries"; and two series of drawings, illustrating "The Cottar's Saturday Night" and "The Soldier's Return." Since coming to London in 1864, Mr. Faed has painted: "The Wappenschaw, or Shooting Match"; "Catherine Seiton"; "The Old Style"; "Tam o' Shanter"; "Haddon Hall of Old"; "The Ballad"; "Old Age"; "The Stirrup Cup"; "The Old Crockery Man"; "John Anderson, my Jo"; "Parting of Evangeline and Gabriel"; "The Old Brocade"; "Auld Mare Maggie"; "Gamekeeper's Daughter"; and "The Hiring Fair."

FAED, Thomas, R.A. (brother of Mr. John Faed), born at Burley Mill, in the Stewartry of Kirkcudbright, in 1826, lost his father in his boyhood, but, aided by his brother, who was working his way to reputation as an artist in Edinburgh, resolved to follow the bent of his genius. While a student at the School of Design in Edinburgh, where for a short period he was under the tuition of Sir W. Allan, he was annually successful for the competition for prizes in various departments. The earliest work of art he exhibited in public was a drawing in water colours from the "Old English Baron." He soon after took to oil painting, exercising his brush on such subjects as draught-players and shepherd boys. Mr. Faed became an Associate of the Royal Scottish Academy in 1849, settled permanently in London in 1852, and began to exhibit at the Royal Academy, generally choosing domestic and pathetic subjects, or subjects appealing to Scotch religious sentiment. In 1855 his "Mitherless Bairn" elicited very high praise. Other works by Mr. Faed are: "Home and the Homeless"; "The First Break in the Family"; "Sunday in the Backwoods"; "The Last o' the Clan"; "Hush! Let him Sleep"; "The Anxious Look Out"; "Highland Tramp crossing a Headland"; and "The Shepherd's Wife." He exhibited "The Rustic Bather" in the Royal Academy's Exhibition, 1893. Mr. Faed was made A.R.A. in 1859 and R.A. in 1864, and retired in 1893. He was elected an Honorary Member of the Vienna Royal Academy in January 1875. Addresses: 24A Cavendish Road, St. John's Wood, S.W.; and Athenæum.

FAIRBAIRN, Sir Andrew, D.Sc., J.P., D.L., born at Glasgow on March 5, 1828, is the only son of Peter Fairbairn, afterwards Mayor of Leeds, and knighted by the Queen. He was educated at Leeds, Geneva, and Glasgow, and in 1846 became a pensioner at Christ's College, Cambridge, but migrated to Peterhouse in January of the following year. He graduated B.A. in January 1850, and took his M.A. degree in 1853. He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple on April 30, 1852, and attended the West Riding Sessions and Northern Circuit until 1856. He then relinquished practice, and in 1860 became a partner in the firm of his father, on whose death in 1861 he succeeded to the business. In 1866 he was elected Mayor of Leeds, and was re-elected to the same office in 1867. During the latter year he was a Commissioner of the Leeds Exhibition of Fine Arts, and was knighted (by patent) in 1868, during the Ministry of Mr. Disraeli. He resigned his mayoralty in September 1868, in order to stand as Liberal candidate for Leeds. He was unsuccessful, as also in 1874, when he contested Knaresborough. He became a director of the Great Northern Railway in 1878, and the same year he was appointed Royal Commissioner to the Paris Exhibition. In 1880 he was elected Member for the Eastern Division of the West Riding, and when the Division was split up into six sub-divisions in 1885 he was chosen as the first representative of the Otley Division. The same year he was appointed Vice-President of the Railway Congress at Brussels, and was made a Knight Commander of the Order of Leopold by the King of the Belgians. Having become a Liberal Unionist he successfully contested the Otley Division in 1886. He was President of the First Section of the International Railway Congress (Paris, 1889), when he was made a Commander of the Legion of Honour. He was High Sheriff of Yorkshire in 1892-93. In 1862 he married Clara, daughter of Sir John L. Loraine, Bart. Addresses: Askham Grange, York; 47 Brook Street, W., &c.

FAIRBAIRN, Andrew Martin, M.A., D.D., Principal of Mansfield College, Oxford, second son of John Fairbairn, born near Edinburgh, Nov. 4, 1838; was educated there, and studied in the Universities of Edinburgh and Berlin, and became minister of the Independent Church, Bathgate, West Lothian, in 1860. He was transferred to Aberdeen in 1872; appointed Principal of Airedale Independent College in 1877; and Chairman of the Congregational Union of England and Wales in 1883; and became first Principal of Mansfield College, Oxford, in 1886. Is D.D. of the University of Edinburgh, 1878, and of Yale, 1889; is M.A. (by decree of Convocation) of the University of Oxford, 1896; was Muir Lecturer on the Philosophy and History of Religion in the University of Edinburgh, 1878-83; Lyman Bucher Lecturer in the University of Yale, 1891; and Gifford Lecturer in the University of Aberdeen, 1892-94. Dr. Fairbairn is the author of "Studies in the Philosophy of Religion and History," 1876; "Studies in the Life of Christ," 1880; "The City of God," 1882; "Religion in History and in Modern Life," 1884; enlarged edition, with Essay on "The Church and the Working Classes," 1894; "The Place of Christ in Modern Theology," 1893 (7th ed. 1896); "Christ in the Centuries" (sermons), 1893, and has been a frequent contributor to the Contemporary and other reviews. In 1883 he was Chairman of the Congregational Union of England and Wales, and in 1894-95 a Member of the Royal Commission on Secondary Education. He married the youngest daughter of the late John Shields, Byres, Bathgate, in 1868. Address: Mansfield College, Oxford.

FAIRBANKS, Charles Warren, United States Senator, was born in Union County, Ohio, May 11, 1852, and was educated in the schools of the neighbourhood and at Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio, graduating from that institution in 1872. He was admitted to the Bar in 1874, and removed to Indianapolis, Indiana, the same year, where he has practised his profession. He was elected a trustee of Wesleyan University, Ohio, in 1885; was Chairman of the Republican Convention of the State of Indiana in 1892, and was an unsuccessful candidate for election to the United States Senate in 1893. He was elected U.S. Senator in 1897, and took his seat March 4 in that year. In 1898 he was appointed on the Joint Commission to settle questions at issue between Canada and the United States.

FAIRFAX, Admiral Sir Henry, K.C.B., F.R.G.S., the son of Colonel Sir Henry Fairfax, Bart., was born in June 1837, and entered the navy in 1850. His first memorable service was in H.M.S. Amphitrite, which went two voyages to Behring Strait and the Arctic Sea, reaching a very high latitude. As Lieutenant in H.M.S. Ariel, on the south-east coast of Africa, he was constantly employed in boat service for the suppression of the slave-trade, and on several occasions performed distinguished service. He was specially promoted to the rank of Commander in 1862 for great gallantry exhibited in the capture of a piratical slaver. He was promoted Captain in 1868, and in 1872 accompanied Sir Bartle Frere as Naval Attaché on his special mission to the Sultan of Zanzibar. On his return, Sir Henry was appointed private secretary to the First Lord of the Admiralty. As captain of H.M.S. Volage he conveyed the astronomical expedition to Kerguelen for the purpose of observing the Transit of Venus in 1874, and in the following year he was appointed Senior Officer on the South-East Coast of America. In 1877 he took over the command of

H.M.S. Britannia, and personally superintended the studies of Prince Albert Victor and Prince George of Wales, who were then on board as cadets. For this service he received the C.B., Civil Division. In 1881 he became an Aide-de-camp to the Queen, and the year following was appointed to command H.M.S. Monarch. In this ship he took part in the bombardment of Alexandria, and at the finish of the operations, Captain Fairfax was appointed to command the naval and marine forces which were landed at Port Said in August 1882 for the preservation of order. He received a C.B. and the thanks of the Egyptian Government for these services, and also the Egyptian medal, bronze star, and the Osmanieh of the third class. Sir Henry was promoted Rear-Admiral in 1885, and was appointed Commander-in-Chief on the Australian Station in 1887. He returned to England in 1889, and became a Lord Commissioner of the Admiralty, and also a member of the Committee appointed to take evidence and to report upon the manning of the Navy. He commanded the Red Fleets in the naval manoeuvres of 1892 and 1893 with his flag in H.M.S. Royal Sovereign, and was also senior officer in command of the Channel Squadron from May 1892 to May 1894. Sir Henry was promoted K.C.B. in May 1896, and is a J.P. and a Deputy-Lieutenant of Roxburghshire. He married in 1872 Harriet, daughter of Sir David Kinloch, Bart. Addresses: Ravenswood, Melrose; and 5 Cranley Place, S.W.

FAITHFULL, Lilian, was born 12th March 1865, at Hoddesdon, Herts, and is the daughter of the late Mr. Francis Grantham Faithfull, for twenty years Clerk to the Merchant Taylors' Company. Her early education was conducted at home, and she was also privately coached by her uncle, the Rev. Charles Crittenden. In 1883 she entered Somerville College, Oxford, where she gained an Exhibition, and successively passed the 1st and 2nd Examinations for women in 1884 and 1885, achieving First Class Honours in the final school of English Literature in 1887. Throughout her career at Oxford she evinced great interest, not only in her studies, but in athletics and the various societies connected with college life. From 1887 to 1888 she remained at College as Secretary to the Principal, Miss Shaw Lefevre. Subsequently she was for a year a form mistress in the Oxford High School. She was appointed Lecturer on Modern History and English Literature at the Royal Holloway College in 1889, where she remained for five years preparing several successful students for the London B.A. degree. In 1896 the Council of King's College, London, appointed her Vice-Principal of the Ladies' Department, which is carried on at 13 Kensington Square, W., where she resides during each term. Miss Faithfull is a niece of the late Sir Monier Monier Williams, Sanscrit Professor at Oxford, and cousin to the late Miss Emily Faithfull, one of the pioneers of women's work. Since her appointment to King's College, she has become President of the All England Ladies' Hockey Association, and her interest in sports makes her specially popular with the students. Address: 13 Kensington Square, W.

FALGUIÈRE, Jean Alexandre Joseph, a French painter and sculptor, was born at Toulouse, Sept. 7, 1831. He was a pupil of Jouffroy, and at the École des Beaux Arts gained the Prix de Rome in 1859. In 1857 he sent to the Salon al plaster statue of the Infant Theseus, which was reproduced in marble and exhibited in 1865. Since then he has executed "A Christian Martyr," now in the Gallery of the Luxembourg, 1867; "Ophelia," 1869; "Vainqueur au Combat de Coq," 1870, also in the Luxembourg; "Pierre Corneille," 1872 (purchased by the Government); "Danseuse Égyptienne," 1873, for the Théâtre Français; "La Suisse accueillant l'Armée Française," 1874, presented to the town of Toulouse by the Federal Council; a bust of Lamartine, 1876, which was solemnly unveiled at Mâcon in August 1878; "Coquelin Cadet," 1886; "Diane," 1887; "La Musique," 1889; "La Femme au Paon," 1890; and many other busts and statues, including a monument of Admiral Courbet at Abbeville and a monument of Lafayette for Washington. M. Falguière is also well known as a painter. His first picture, "Près du Château," 1873, attracted much attention; "Les Lutteurs," 1875, was warmly praised, as were also "Cain and Abel," 1876; and "The Beheading of John the Baptist," 1877. Amongst more recent paintings may be mentioned: "Acis et Galatée," 1885; "Madeleine," 1887; "Nain Mendiant," 1888; and "Juno," 1889. At the Paris Exhibition of 1888 he was awarded a medal of the first class. He is a Commander of the Legion of Honour, and was elected a member of the Académie in succession to his master, Jouffroy, in 1882. His "Fan and Dagger," a revengeful Spanish beauty, is now in the Luxembourg. In 1898, when the Société des Gens de Lettres refused to accept M. Rodin's (q.v.) statue of Balzac, the commission was given to M. Falguière.

FALK, Dr. Paul Ludwig Adalbert, a German statesman, born at Metschkau, in Silesia, in 1827, is the son of a Lutheran minister, who was a "liberal theologian." He studied first in the Realschule of Landeshut, then at the Gymnasium in Breslau, and finally at the University of the latter city. In 1847 he began his legal career; in 1850 he became an assistant of the Public Prosecutor in Breslau; in 1853 chief of this office at Lyck; in 1861 he assumed the same functions before the Kammergericht or Superior Court, with duties in the Ministry of Justice; in 1862 he became Judge of the Court of Appeals at Glogau; and in 1868 he was permanently assigned as Privy Councillor, or Geheimrath, to the Ministry of Justice. He sat in the Prussian House of Deputies from 1858 to 1861; he was elected to the Constituent North German Reichstag in 1867; and he has been a member of the Imperial Parliament ever since its establishment. When Prince Bismarck resolved to weaken the influence of the Roman Catholic Church in Prussia, he caused Dr. Falk to be nominated Minister of Public Worship (Jan. 22, 1872), in succession to Dr. Von Mühler. During his tenure of office, Dr. Falk succeeded in passing various repressive laws directed against the hierarchy and the clergy, and his name has thus become known beyond the limits of the German Empire. He resigned the post of Minister of Public Worship, July 14, 1879, and was succeeded by Herr von Puttkamer. In January 1892 he was appointed President of the Higher Tribunal of Westphalia at Hamm, and retired from Parliamentary life. The Emperor has decorated him with the order of the Black Eagle.

FALMOUTH, Viscount, Major-General Evelyn E. T. Boscawen, C.B., 7th Viscount, was born July 24, 1847, and succeeded his father in 1889. He was educated at Eton, entered the army as Lieutenant in the Coldstream Guards in July 1866, and was promoted Captain in 1870. He was appointed Adjutant of his regiment in 1876, after having served as aide-de-camp to the Commander-in-Chief in Ireland. From March 1878 to September 1880 he acted as Assistant-Military Secretary at Headquarters, Ireland, and attained the command of a battalion of his regiment as Lieut-Colonel in November 1893. Lord Falmouth served with distinction in the Egyptian campaign of 1882, being present at the action of Mahuta and the battle of Tel-el-Kebir. He received a medal with clasp, the bronze star, and the Osmanieh of the fourth class. In the Soudan war of 1884 he served in the Nile Expedition, had command of the Guards' Camel Corps, and was present at the action of Abu Klea. He also had sity, and received his medical training at Edinburgh, Paris, Berlin, and Vienna. He was formerly Assistant Surgeon to the Coldstreams, Physician to the Belgrave Hospital for Children, Assistant-Physician, Joint-Physician (Skin Department), and Lecturer on Materia Medica at St. Mary's Hospital. He has published several works on Therapeutics, notably "A Guide to Therapeutics," now in its fifth edition, and, as Medical Officer to Rugby School, was the author of "School Hygiene, the Diseases Incidental to School Life," and a work on the influence of athletics on health. He has contributed various papers to the leading medical journals. Dr. Farrarson is an extensive landowner, and in 1880 he entered political life, and was elected Liberal Member for West Aberdeenshire, a constituency he continues to represent. London address: Migvie Lodge, Porchester Gardens, W.

FARRAR, The Very Rev. Frederic William, D.D., F.R.S., Dean of Canterbury, son of the Rev. C. P. Farrar, Rector of Sidcup, Kent, was born in Bombay Aug. 7, 1831. He received his education at King William's College, in the Isle of Man, and at King's College, London. He became a classical exhibitor of the University of London in 1850, graduated B.A. there, and was appointed a University scholar in 1852. Mr. Farrar was successively a Scholar and Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, and in 1854 he took his Bachelor's degree in that University as fourth in the first class of the Classical Tripos, and a Junior Optime in Mathematics. He had already obtained the Chancellor's Prize for English Verse by his poem on "The Arctic Regions," and he subsequently gained the Le Bas Classical Prize, and became also Norrisian Prizeman. In 1854 he was ordained deacon by the Bishop of Salisbury, and in 1857 he was admitted into priest's orders by the Bishop of Ely. For many years he was one of the Assistant Masters at Harrow under Dr. Vaughan, and under his successor Dr. Butler; and he held, with great distinction, the Head-Mastership of Marlborough College from January 1871 till April 1876. Dr. Farrar was a select preacher before the University of Cambridge in 1868, and again in 1874-75, and often since, and he preached the Hulsean Lectures in 1870. He has frequently been appointed to preach before the University of Oxford, and was Bampton Lecturer in 1885. He was an Honorary Chaplain to the Queen from 1869 to 1873, when he was nominated one of her Majesty's Chaplains in Ordinary. In April 1876 he was appointed to a canonry in Westminster Abbey and the rectory of

St. Margaret's, vacant by the death of Canon Conway. He was appointed Archdeacon of Westminster, April 24, 1883; and has three times been elected by the clergy of Westminster as their Rural Dean. In 1890 Archdeacon Farrar was offered by the Speaker, and accepted, the Chaplaincy of the House of Commons, rendered vacant by the death of the Rev. Henry White. He was appointed Dean of Canterbury in 1895, and in the same year became Deputy Clerk of the Closet to the Queen. Dr. Farrar is the author of the following works of fiction: "Eric, or Little by Little," 1858; "Julian Home," 1859; and "St. Winifred's, or the World of School," 1863; "Darkness and Dawn," 1895; "Gathering Clouds," 1891; "Allegories," 1898. His philological works are: "The Origin of Language," 1860; "Chapters on Language," 1865; "Greek Grammar Rules," 6th edit., 1865; "Greek Syntax," 3rd edit., 1867; "Families of Speech," 1870; and "Language and Languages," being a revised edition of "Chapters on Language" and "Families of Speech," comprised in one volume, 1878. He has also published "A Lecture (before the Royal Institution) on Public School Education," with notes, 1867; and edited "Essays on a Liberal Education," 2nd edit., 1868. Both of these works contributed powerfully to enlarged ideas on the subject of Public School Education. His theological works are: "Seekers after God" (Sunday Library), 1869; "The Witness of History to Christ; being the Hulsean Lectures for 1870," 1871; "In the Days of thy Youth," sermons preached in the Chapel of Marlborough College, 1877; "The Life of Christ," 2 vols., 1874, which reached its twelfth edition in a single year; "Life of St. Paul," 1879; and "The Early Days of Christianity," 2 vols., 1882; besides several volumes of sermons; and notably that bold work, "Eternal Hope," 1880, in which Canon Farrar combats the doctrine of eternal torture in hell. In his work on "The Bible: its Meaning and Supremacy," he brought to a head and helped to perpetuate a very necessary change of view on the subject of inspiration. All Dr. Farrar's works have passed through many editions, and many of them have been translated into French, German, Dutch, Russian, Swedish, and Italian. Besides these works, Dr. Farrar has been a contributor to the Speaker's Commentary (Book of Wisdom) and Bishop Ellicott's Commentary (Book of Judges); to the Cambridge Bible for Schools he has contributed commentaries on St. Luke and the Epistle to the Hebrews, both in the Greek and in the English editions. To the "Expositor's Bible" he contributed commentaries on the First Book of Kings and the Book of

Daniel. He also furnished articles to Smith's "Dictionary of the Bible," Kitto's "Biblical Cyclopædia," the "Encyclopædia Britannica," &c. In 1883 he was appointed Rural Dean by the late Bishop of London, and was re-elected by the clergy to the same office in 1885. Archdeacon Farrar is Honorary Chaplain of the 2nd Volunteer Battalion Royal Fusiliers, and of the Church Lads' Brigade. In 1885 he was appointed Bampton Lecturer before the University of Oxford, and delivered a course (since published) on "The History of Interpretation." In 1885 he visited America, where he received a hearty welcome from all classes, and especially from the members of all religious denominations. He has taken a prominent part in temperance reform, in the Diocesan Council for the welfare of young men, in the Westminster Sanitary Aid Associations, in the Westminster Sunday School Association (of which he was the founder), in the formation of a seaside camp for London youths, in the support of brotherhoods, and in many other philanthropic works. As Dean of Canterbury he has already raised more than £18,000 for the restoration of the Cathedral. Addresses: The Deanery, Canterbury; and Athenæum.

FARREN, Ellen (Mrs. R. Soutar), best known as Nellie Farren, was born in Lancashire, and is the daughter of Henry Farren. She first appeared on the London stage at the Victoria Theatre in March, 1864, as Ninetta in "The Woman in Red." In the same year she joined the company at the Olympic. It is at the Gaiety Theatre, however, that her best triumphs have been won. She joined that theatre, on its opening under the management of Mr. John Hollingshead, in December 1868, appearing in the piece entitled "On the Cards." Her connection with the Gaiety, in its palmy days, was a long one, and she took a leading part in most of the plays produced here. For twenty-five years, it will be remembered, she took the leading part in every burlesque, including the famous "Ruy Blas." She became the idol of the public at the Gaiety Theatre. Owing to illness, this gifted comédienne was latterly compelled to withdraw for a long period from the scene of her former triumphs. On March 17, 1898, the "Nellie Farren Benefit" proved one of the greatest events of the London theatrical year. Over £6000 was raised by the performance, the sale of programmes and photographs of Miss Farren realising £500. All the talent of the London stage contributed to the success of this unique entertainment, and the final scene of the performance showed Miss Nellie Farren in person, seated on a rostrum, and encircled by all the principal assistants in the success of the afternoon. It is understood that the large sum realised by the performance has purchased a respectable annuity for one who, in a gloomy age, has added materially to the gaiety of nations. This annuity the Messrs. Rothschild have very fittingly guaranteed to pay Miss Farren annually. Two-thirds of the total she will be allowed to dispose of by testament, while £1000 will be devoted to the establishment of a "Nellie Farren" cot in a children's hospital, and another £1000 will be equally divided between the two principal theatrical benevolent funds.

FARRER, Lord, Sir Thomas Henry Farrer, Bart., J.P., was born on June 24, 1819, and is the son of Thomas Farrer, of Lincoln's Inn. He was educated at Eton, and at Balliol College, Oxford, graduating as B.A. in 1841, became a barrister in 1844, and in 1850 was appointed Assistant-Secretary of the Marine Department of the Board of Trade. He was subsequently appointed Permanent Secretary of the Board of Trade, and resigned in 1886. He was formerly very active on the London County Council, was Vice-Chairman of the same, and was appointed Alderman (Progressive) in 1889, being reappointed recently until 1901, but he resigned in March 1898. He is a staunch and eloquent Free-Trader, and has published "Free Trade versus Fair Trade," and other works. As a politician he made a vigorous attack on the Sugar Convention Bill, and on the Civil Service Superannuation Bill, both which bills were withdrawn by Lord Salisbury's first Government. In 1883 he was made a Baronet, and in 1893 was raised to the Peerage for his long public services by the title of Lord Farrer of Abinger in Surrey. In Feb. 1899, he was appointed President of the Cobden Club, a new office. He married (2), in 1873, Katherine Euphemia, daughter of Hensleigh Wedgwood. Addresses: Abinger Hall, Dorking; and Athenæum.

FAUDEL-PHILLIPS, Sir George Faudel, Bart., G.C.I.E., J.P., D.L., was born in 1840, and is the second son of Sir Benjamin Phillips, who was Lord Mayor of London in 1865-66. He was educated at University College School, and in Berlin and Paris, and is now famous among his friends as a book-collector. He was Sheriff of London and Middlesex, 1884-85; became Alderman of Ward of Farringdon Within, in succession to his father, in 1888; was High Sheriff of the County of London in 1895, and was Lord Mayor of London, 1896-97. In 1894 he was appointed a Governor of the Irish Society, which is the managing body of Irish Estates of the Corporation of the City of London. He is also Governor of St. Bartholomew's and other hospitals, and Chairman or President of many important bodies. During his Mayoralty he superintended the raising of the Indian Famine Fund of half-a-million pounds. He assumed the additional name of Faudel (his mother's maiden name) in 1895, and received the honour of a baronetcy and the G.C.I.E. at the time of the 1897 Jubilee, at which great function he received the Queen, in her progress through London, at Temple Bar. He has many Foreign Orders. He married, in 1867, Helen, sister of Sir Edward Lawson, the first Bart. Addresses: 52 Grosvenor Gardens, S.W., &c.; and Ball's Park, Hertford.

FAURE, Jean-Baptiste, a famous French baritone singer, born at Moulins, Jan. 15, 1830, was educated at the Conservatoire from 1843 to 1852, and made his début at the Opéra Comique in the latter year. M. Faure performed at the Opera House in Paris, in "Pierre de Medicis," Oct. 14, 1861. In 1857 he was appointed Professor of Singing to the Conservatoire, in succession to M. Frédéric Pouchard, and appeared during several seasons at the Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garden. For many years M. Faure was acknowledged head of the French lyric stage. He was nominated a Chevalier of the Legion of Honour in December 1881. He is the possessor of a fine collection of works of art.

FAWCETT, Edgar, American man of letters, was born at New York, May 26, 1847, and graduated at Columbia College in 1867. He has published "Short Poems for Short People," 1871; "Purple and Fine Linen," 1874; "Ellen Story," 1876; "Fantasy and Passion," poems, 1877; "A Hopeless Case," 1880; "A Gentleman of Leisure," 1881; "An Ambitious Woman," 1883; "Tinkling Cymbals," "Adventures of a Widow," "Song and Story, Later Poems," "Rutherford," and "The Buntling Ball," 1884; "Social Silhouettes," 1885; "Romance and Revery," 1886; "The Confessions of Claud," "The House at High Bridge," "Douglas Duane," and "The New King Arthur," 1887; "A Man's Will," "Olivia Delaplaine," and "Divided Lives," 1888; "A Demoralising Marriage," "Agnosticism and other Essays," "Miriam Balestier," and "Solarrion," 1889; "The Evil that Men Do," "Fabian Dimitry," "A Daughter of Silence," and "How a Husband Forgave," 1890; "A Romance of Two Brothers"; "A New York Family," "Loaded Dice," and "Songs of Doubt and Dream," 1891;

"Women must Weep," "An Heir to Millions," "American Push," and "The Adopted Daughter," 1892; "The New Nero," and "A Round Unvarnished Tale," 1893; "Outrageous Fortune," 1894; "Life's Fitful Fever," 1895; "A Romance of Old New York," 1896; "Two Daughters of One Race" (Lippincott's Magazine), 1897. London address: 109 Great Portland Street, W.

FAWCETT, Mrs. Millicent Garrett, born at Aldeburgh, in Suffolk, June 11, 1847, is sister to Mrs. Garrett Anderson, M.D. In 1867 she married the late Professor Fawcett, and soon after her marriage she began to take a part in the Women's Suffrage movement. She is also an urgent pleader on the subject of girls' education. In 1870 she published "Political Economy for Beginners"; "Tales in Political Economy," 1874; "Janet Doncaster," a novel, 1875; "Some Eminent Women of our Time," a series of twenty-four short biographical sketches, in 1889; a "Life of Queen Victoria," in 1895. In conjunction with her husband, Mrs. Fawcett wrote a volume of "Essays and Lectures," 1872; the article on "Communism" in the ninth edition of the "Encyclopædia Britannica" is by her, as is also the article on Henry Fawcett in the 1888 edition of "Chambers's Encyclopædia." Mrs. Fawcett is the mother of the Miss Fawcett who, in the Mathematical Tripos at Cambridge in 1890, was declared "above the Senior Wrangler." Address: 2 Gower Street, W.C.

FAYE, Professor Hervé Auguste Etienne Albans, astronomer, was born at Saint Benoît du Sault (Indre), Oct. 1, 1814, and finished his studies at the Ecole Polytechnique. He afterwards went to Holland, and on returning to France, became, on the recommendation of M. Arago, a pupil in the Observatory. He discovered, Nov. 22, 1843, a new comet, to which his name was assigned, and received the Lalande prize from the Academy of Sciences, to which learned association he submitted in 1846 a paper, entitled "La Parallaxe d'une Étoile anonyme de la Grande Ourse." This was followed by a work entitled "Sur un Nouveau Colli-mateur zénithal et sur une Lunette zénithale nouvelle." He was elected a member of the section of Astronomy in place of Baron de Damoiseau, Jan. 18, 1847; a member of the Bureau of Longitudes, March 26, 1862; and was decorated with the Cross of the Legion of Honour in 1843. In 1864 he was appointed a member of the Imperial Council of Public Instruction, and was promoted to the rank of

Officer of the Legion of Honour. M. Faye was Professor of Geodesy at the Ecole Polytechnique from 1848 to 1854, and in the latter year he was appointed Rector of the University Academy of Nancy. He succeeded M. Delaunay as Professor of Astronomy in the Polytechnic School in 1873. In 1877 M. Faye was for a short time at the Ministry of Public Instruction, and from the end of that year until 1888 he was Inspector-General of Higher Education. In addition to the works already mentioned, M. Faye is the author of "Sur l'Anneau de Saturne," published in 1848; "Sur les Déclinaisons Absolues," in 1850; "Des Leçons de Cosmographie," in 1852; "Cours d'Astronomie nautique," 1880; "Cours d'Astronomie de l'Ecole Polytechnique," 1881; and "Sur l'Origine du Monde," 1889. M. Faye was promoted to the rank of Grand Officer of the Legion of Honour in 1889.

FAYRER, Sir Joseph, Bart., K.C.S.I., LL.D., M.D., F.R.S., F.R.S.E., second son of the late R. J. Fayrer, Esq., Commander R.N., by Agnes, daughter of W. Wilkinson, Esq., of Westmorland, was born at Plymouth, Dec. 6, 1824. He was brought up under private tuition in Scotland, and afterwards continued his studies in London, in Edinburgh, and on the Continent. He took the degree of M.D. in the University of Edinburgh, and became a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians of London, a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of London and Edinburgh, and a Fellow of the Royal Societies of London and Edinburgh, entered the medical service of the Navy, served in the military hospital of Palermo during the siege of that city (1847-48); and was also present at the siege of Rome (1848). In 1849 he entered the medical service of the army. In 1850 he entered the Bengal Medical Service, from which he retired in 1874. He served throughout the Burmese war of 1852, and the Indian Mutiny of 1857; also at the defence of Lucknow, where he was Political Assistant and Residency Surgeon. For these services he received medals and clasps and the brevet rank of Surgeon, and was allowed to count one year's service towards retirement. He was Professor of Surgery in the Medical College of Bengal from 1859 to 1874; was Fellow, Member of Senate, and during two years President of the Medical Faculty of the Calcutta University; and was successively Vice-President and President of the Asiatic Society of Bengal. He was created C.S.I. Dec. 22, 1868; and advanced to K.C.S.I. in March 1876, at an investiture of the Order held at Allahabad by the Prince of Wales, whom during his travels in India he accompanied as physician. In acknowledgment of this service he received a letter from the Queen. He had previously accompanied the Duke of Edinburgh in his visit to India in 1870. He was appointed Surgeon-General and President of the Medical Board of the India Office in December 1874. He is honorary physician to the Queen, the Prince of Wales, and physician to the Duke of Edinburgh. Sir J. Fayrer has written "Clinical Surgery in India"; a work on the poisonous snakes, "The Thanatophidia of India," which he presented to the Indian Government, from whom he received thanks, and by whom it was published in 1872; "Clinical and Pathological Observations in India"; "Lettsomian Lectures on Dysentery"; "Croonian Lectures on Climate and Fevers of India"; and many contributions to European and Indian journals, including papers on "Disease in India"; "European Child Life in Bengal"; "Malarial Splenic Cachexia of Tropical Climates"; "Bronchocele in India"; "Liver Abscess"; "Physiological Action of the Poison of Naja Tripudians" (in conjunction with Dr. Brunton); "Some of the Physical Conditions of the Country that Affect Life in India"; "Health in India"; "Rainfall and Climate of India"; "The Claws of Felidae"; "Anatomy of the Rattlesnake"; articles on "Sunstroke," "Tropical Diarrhoea and Liver Abscess" in Davidson's "Hygiene and Diseases of Warm Climates"; and on "The Climate and Some of the Fevers of India," and "Sunstroke" in Clifford Allbutt's "System of Medicine." More recently he has published "On the Preservation of Health in India" (Macmillan); and "Sir Ranald Martin" (A. D. Innes & Co.), 1898. He has received the second class of the Order of the Conception from the King of Portugal, the third class of the Redeemer of Greece from the King of Greece, and the third class of the Medjidieh from the Khedive of Egypt. In August 1878 the hon. degree of LL.D. was conferred on him by the University of Edinburgh, and in April 1890 by the University of St. Andrews. He was Vice-President of the Zoological Society of London. In December 1892 he represented the Royal College of Physicians of London and the University of Edinburgh at the Tercentenary of Galileo at Padua, and was made Ph.D. of Padua. He is a Foreign Associate of the Académie de Médecine de Paris, a Foreign Corresponding Member of the Royal Academy of Sciences of Lisbon, and member of other foreign societies. He was created a Baronet in 1896, and has the Jubilee medal. In 1855 he married Bethia, daughter of Major-General Spens. Addresses: 16 Devonshire Street, Portland Place, W.; and Athenæum.

FEARON, Daniel Robert, M.A.
Oxon. 1842. Barrister-at-law, eldest son of the late Rev. Daniel Rose Fearon, successively Vicar of Assington, Suffolk, and St. Mary Church, Devon, by Frances Jaue, daughter of the late Rev. Charles Andrews, Rector of Hempton, Suffolk. was born at Assington, Dec. 1, 1845, and educated at Marlborough College and Balliol College, Oxford, where he took a First Class in Moderations and in the Final Schools. He entered as a student at Lincoln's Inn, Nov. 19, 1859, and was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn, Nov. 17, 1874. He was appointed in 1864 one of H.M. Inspectors of Schools; and in 1870 an Assistant Commissioner to the State Inquiry Commission, and in that capacity reported on Secondary Education at London and the neighbourhood, and on the system of education in the Board Schools of Scotland. In 1871 he was appointed a Commissioner to inquire into the condition of elementary education at Manchester at the instance of the Education for Mr. Forster, London. In 1872 the Act of 1870, in 1873 he was appointed an Assistant Commissioner to the Education
Schools Commission, and that the Lord Lyttelton was chairman. In 1875 he was Commissioner to inquire into together with Mr. W. H. Stansfeld, M.P.
Sir Robert Hamilton, H. J. Stansfeld, M.P.
Murray, to inquire into the condition
tion of the Irish Education Commission.
In 1875 he was appointed an Assistant Commissioner to inquire into the condition for England and Wales, and in 1876 to that Commission, and in 1877 he was of the Endowed Schools Commission, and he was appointed an Assistant Commissioner that Commission, and in 1878 he was dated June 18, 1878, he was appointed to be Secretary to the Education Commission.
Mr. Fearon is the author of "The "School Inspection," and "The Margaret, daughter of the late Rev. Dr.
Price. Address: 11, Bedford Square, W.
S.W.; and Athenaeum.

FEARON. The Rev. William Andrews, D.D., F.R.S., of Exeter College, Oxford, was born at Rev. D. R. Fearon, of Suffolk, afterwards of Devon. He was born in 1841. His mother was the daughter of the late Rev. Rector of Feggey, and of the same family as the Andrews. He was educated till he entered Winton as a scholar in 1859. In 1862 he twice obtained the first prize also the Goddard, Smeaton and the Duncan Mathematics ships. In 1856 he gained a Scholarship at New College, Oxford. In 1860 he took a doctorate in Classics in the Final School. In 1861, Honors in Mathematics. In 1864 he was elected Fellow of New College, and also became Tutor of that College, retaining his post until 1867, when he was asked by Dr. Ridding to open a tutors' house at Winchester College, and to undertake the Junior Sixth Form. He was ordained a deacon in 1867, priest in 1868. In 1882 he was elected Headmaster of Durham School, and was appointed Examining Magistrate for the Bishopric of Winchester when there to hold till 1884, when he was appointed to the Headmastership of Winchester School. In the same post he continued to be engaged, and in 1890 he was Headmaster of Winchester College. Dr. Pease married Mary, eldest daughter of the late Archdeacon of Exeter, Lady Pease, of Tisbury, Wilts.

FENN, George Manville. b. 1871, d. 1941, m. 1894, 1901, 1904, 1907, 1910, 1913, 1916, 1919, 1922, 1925, 1928, 1931, 1934, 1937, 1940, 1943, 1946, 1949, 1952, 1955, 1958, 1961, 1964, 1967, 1970, 1973, 1976, 1979, 1982, 1985, 1988, 1991, 1994, 1997, 2000, 2003, 2006, 2009, 2012, 2015, 2018, 2021, 2024, 2027, 2030, 2033, 2036, 2039, 2042, 2045, 2048, 2051, 2054, 2057, 2060, 2063, 2066, 2069, 2072, 2075, 2078, 2081, 2084, 2087, 2090, 2093, 2096, 2099, 2102, 2105, 2108, 2111, 2114, 2117, 2120, 2123, 2126, 2129, 2132, 2135, 2138, 2141, 2144, 2147, 2150, 2153, 2156, 2159, 2162, 2165, 2168, 2171, 2174, 2177, 2180, 2183, 2186, 2189, 2192, 2195, 2198, 2201, 2204, 2207, 2210, 2213, 2216, 2219, 2222, 2225, 2228, 2231, 2234, 2237, 2240, 2243, 2246, 2249, 2252, 2255, 2258, 2261, 2264, 2267, 2270, 2273, 2276, 2279, 2282, 2285, 2288, 2291, 2294, 2297, 2300, 2303, 2306, 2309, 2312, 2315, 2318, 2321, 2324, 2327, 2330, 2333, 2336, 2339, 2342, 2345, 2348, 2351, 2354, 2357, 2360, 2363, 2366, 2369, 2372, 2375, 2378, 2381, 2384, 2387, 2390, 2393, 2396, 2399, 2402, 2405, 2408, 2411, 2414, 2417, 2420, 2423, 2426, 2429, 2432, 2435, 2438, 2441, 2444, 2447, 2450, 2453, 2456, 2459, 2462, 2465, 2468, 2471, 2474, 2477, 2480, 2483, 2486, 2489, 2492, 2495, 2498, 2501, 2504, 2507, 2510, 2513, 2516, 2519, 2522, 2525, 2528, 2531, 2534, 2537, 2540, 2543, 2546, 2549, 2552, 2555, 2558, 2561, 2564, 2567, 2570, 2573, 2576, 2579, 2582, 2585, 2588, 2591, 2594, 2597, 2600, 2603, 2606, 2609, 2612, 2615, 2618, 2621, 2624, 2627, 2630, 2633, 2636, 2639, 2642, 2645, 2648, 2651, 2654, 2657, 2660, 2663, 2666, 2669, 2672, 2675, 2678, 2681, 2684, 2687, 2690, 2693, 2696, 2699, 2702, 2705, 2708, 2711, 2714, 2717, 2720, 2723, 2726, 2729, 2732, 2735, 2738, 2741, 2744, 2747, 2750, 2753, 2756, 2759, 2762, 2765, 2768, 2771, 2774, 2777, 2780, 2783, 2786, 2789, 2792, 2795, 2798, 2801, 2804, 2807, 2810, 2813, 2816, 2819, 2822, 2825, 2828, 2831, 2834, 2837, 2840, 2843, 2846, 2849, 2852, 2855, 2858, 2861, 2864, 2867, 2870, 2873, 2876, 2879, 2882, 2885, 2888, 2891, 2894, 2897, 2900, 2903, 2906, 2909, 2912, 2915, 2918, 2921, 2924, 2927, 2930, 2933, 2936, 2939, 2942, 2945, 2948, 2951, 2954, 2957, 2960, 2963, 2966, 2969, 2972, 2975, 2978, 2981, 2984, 2987, 2990, 2993, 2996, 2999, 3002, 3005, 3008, 3011, 3014, 3017, 3020, 3023, 3026, 3029, 3032, 3035, 3038, 3041, 3044, 3047, 3050, 3053, 3056, 3059, 3062, 3065, 3068, 3071, 3074, 3077, 3080, 3083, 3086, 3089, 3092, 3095, 3098, 3101, 3104, 3107, 3110, 3113, 3116, 3119, 3122, 3125, 3128, 3131, 3134, 3137, 3140, 3143, 3146, 3149, 3152, 3155, 3158, 3161, 3164, 3167, 3170, 3173, 3176, 3179, 3182, 3185, 3188, 3191, 3194, 3197, 3200, 3203, 3206, 3209, 3212, 3215, 3218, 3221, 3224, 3227, 3230, 3233, 3236, 3239, 3242, 3245, 3248, 3251, 3254, 3257, 3260, 3263, 3266, 3269, 3272, 3275, 3278, 3281, 3284, 3287, 3290, 3293, 3296, 3299, 3302, 3305, 3308, 3311, 3314, 3317, 3320, 3323, 3326, 3329, 3332, 3335, 3338, 3341, 3344, 3347, 3350, 3353, 3356, 3359, 3362, 3365, 3368, 3371, 3374, 3377, 3380, 3383, 3386, 3389, 3392, 3395, 3398, 3401, 3404, 3407, 3410, 3413, 3416, 3419, 3422, 3425, 3428, 3431, 3434, 3437, 3440, 3443, 3446, 3449, 3452, 3455, 3458, 3461, 3464, 3467, 3470, 3473, 3476, 3479, 3482, 3485, 3488, 3491, 3494, 3497, 3500, 3503, 3506, 3509, 3512, 3515, 3518, 3521, 3524, 3527, 3530, 3533, 3536, 3539, 3542, 3545, 3548, 3551, 3554, 3557, 3560, 3563, 3566, 3569, 3572, 3575, 3578, 3581, 3584, 3587, 3590, 3593, 3596, 3599, 3602, 3605, 3608, 3611, 3614, 3617, 3620, 3623, 3626, 3629, 3632, 3635, 3638, 3641, 3644, 3647, 3650, 3653, 3656, 3659, 3662, 3665, 3668, 3671, 3674, 3677, 3680, 3683, 3686, 3689, 3692, 3695, 3698, 3701, 3704, 3707, 3710, 3713, 3716, 3719, 3722, 3725, 3728, 3731, 3734, 3737, 3740, 3743, 3746, 3749, 3752, 3755, 3758, 3761, 3764, 3767, 3770, 3773, 3776, 3779, 3782, 3785, 3788, 3791, 3794, 3797, 3800, 3803, 3806, 3809, 3812, 3815, 3818, 3821, 3824, 3827, 3830, 3833, 3836, 3839, 3842, 3845, 3848, 3851, 3854, 3857, 3860, 3863, 3866, 3869, 3872, 3875, 3878, 3881, 3884, 3887, 3890, 3893, 3896, 3899, 3902, 3905, 3908, 3911, 3914, 3917, 3920, 3923, 3926, 392

d'Orchestration"; and "Les Origines du Chant Liturgique de l'Eglise Latine," 1890. In 1871 he succeeded Fétis as Director of the Conservatoire at Brussels, and was elected a Member of the Académie des Beaux-Arts in 1873.

GIARD, Professor Alfred, former Député du Nord, was born at Valenciennes, Aug. 8, 1846, and educated in his native city, and also at Donai until 1867, when he entered l'Ecole Normale Supérieure. He took his degree in 1875; and, after holding some minor appointments, became Professor of Zoology at the Faculté des Sciences de Paris, in 1880. He is the author of numerous papers on zoological subjects, respecting which he is a strong supporter of Darwinianism. He is a member of the Comité Consultatif des Pêches Maritimes; and founder and director of the Laboratoire de Zoologie Maritime de Wimereux. In 1887 he was appointed Maître des Conférences at l'Ecole Normale Supérieure, and was subsequently appointed first occupant of the chair of Zoology founded at the Faculty of Sciences by the town of Paris. After his election to the Chamber, in 1882, he took an active part in politics, holding the views of the extreme Left, but retired when the Scrutin de liste was re-established. His Paris address is 14 Rue Stanislas.

GIBBONS, Cardinal James, Archbishop of Baltimore, was born in Baltimore, U.S.A., on July 23, 1834, entered St. Charles's College, transferred in 1857 to St. Mary's Seminary, and on June 30, 1861, was ordained priest there. He was made assistant-priest at St. Patrick's, Baltimore; made pastor of St. Bridget's, Canton; was promoted to the Cathedral, and made Secretary to Archbishop Spalding. He became Assistant-Chancellor of the Second Plenary Council of Baltimore in 1866; was made Vicar-Apostolic of North Carolina in 1868, and opened schools, built asylums, erected churches, and increased the number of priests from five to fifteen. He was translated to Richmond in 1872, and made its bishop and the coadjutor of Archbishop Boyle of Baltimore in 1877, and succeeded him the same year. At the age of forty-three he was Archbishop of the greatest See in North America. Working with the same activity in establishing asylums, schools, homes, &c., he was appointed by Leo XIII. to preside over the Third Plenary Council of Baltimore, and was rewarded for his services by a Cardinal's hat, June 30, 1886. The silver jubilee of his episcopal consecration, which occurred on August 16, 1893, was celebrated with great pomp by a concourse of Archbishops and Bishops on October 18 of the same year. He has written many pastorals and two books; "The Faith of our Fathers," 1876, said to be the most popular book of the kind of our day; and "Our Christian Heritage," 1889. These books have been translated into many languages, and have served to increase his popularity with all classes. In 1897 he published "The Ambassador of Christ."

GIBSON, The Right Hon. John George, youngest son of the late Mr. William Gibson, of Rochforest, co. Tipperary (who was Taxing Master in Chancery), and brother of Lord Ashbourne, was born in Dublin on Feb. 13, 1846, and educated at Trinity College, Dublin, where he had a brilliant career, taking the first two gold medals in Classics and History and Political Science. He was called to the Irish Bar in 1870, and joined the Leinster Circuit. He was created a Queen's Counsel in 1880, and in 1885 was elected Conservative member for the Walton Division of Liverpool, which he represented also in the next Parliament until 1888, when he was raised to the Bench. In 1885 he was appointed her Majesty's Third Serjeant-at-Law, and in Lord Salisbury's second administration (1886) held the posts of Attorney-General and Solicitor-General for Ireland. Since 1888 he has been Justice of the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice, Ireland. He married, in 1871, Anna, daughter of the Rev. John Hare.

GIDDENS, George, actor, was born at Bedford on June 17, 1855, and is descended from Berkshire and Wiltshire farmers. He was educated at National Schools, and first went on the stage at the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh. He subsequently toured with Charles Wyndham in America, and in 1878 joined the latter at the Criterion Theatre, London, where he was a popular favourite until 1894 in "The Two Roses" and other plays. Since 1894 he has played at Drury Lane Theatre in "The Derby Winner," "Cheer, Boys, Cheer," and "The Passport," and latterly has played the extremely humorous principal part in "A Night Out" at the Vaudeville Theatre. Address: 4 Albert Road, Regent's Park, N.W.

GIFFEN, Sir Robert, K.C.B., F.R.S., LL.D., was born at Strathaven, Lanarkshire, in 1837, and educated chiefly at the parish school in that town. He was employed as clerk in a solicitor's office, partly in Strathaven and partly in Glasgow, from 1850 to 1867, attending for two sessions at Glasgow College in 1856-57 and 1867-68; and was afterwards employed in a commercial house in Glasgow from 1858 to 1860, becoming connected with the press in the latter year as sub-editor and reporter on the staff of the Stirling Journal. In 1862 he left Stirling for London, to occupy a position on the staff of the Globe newspaper, with which he was connected, as sub-editor and contributor, until 1866. For a short time after that he assisted Mr. Morley in the Fortnightly Review; from 1868 to 1876 he was assistant-editor and principal contributor to the Economist, under Mr. Bagehot, being also from 1873 to 1876 City editor of, and writer of the Trade and Finance article in, the Daily News. In 1876 he was appointed chief of the Statistical Department of the Board of Trade. This office was merged in 1882 in that of Assistant-Secretary, Commercial Department, and in 1892 the branch was again enlarged, and Sir R. Giffen was appointed Controller-General of the Commercial, Labour, and Statistical Departments. During his connection with the press he was a contributor to the Fortnightly Review, Saturday Review, Spectator, and other journals, and in his official capacity has written numerous reports on commercial matters, besides giving evidence on similar subjects, e.g., sugar bounties, gold and silver, Channel tunnel, labour, financial relations, &c., before numerous Committees of the House of Commons and Royal Commissions. In 1892 he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society; he was a member of the Royal Commission on Agriculture, 1894-97, and was created C.B., 1891, and K.C.B., 1895. In 1881 Mr. Giffen resigned his post at the Board of Trade, and was understood to be for some time on the staff of the Times, but the post was not actually vacated, only leave of absence was given for a considerable time to enable him to fulfil the engagements which he had made in view of his resignation. He retired finally in 1897, on reaching the age of sixty. He is the author of "Stock Exchange Securities: an Essay on the General Causes of Fluctuation in their Price," published 1878; "Essays in Finance," 1st series, 1879 (4th ed. 1886), 2nd series, 1886, &c. Several of the papers published in the two volumes of "Essays in Finance," above noticed, consisted of papers read before the Statistical Society, or addresses as President; among the principal being a paper on Recent Accumulations of Capital in the United Kingdom, read 1878; the Use of Import and Export Statistics, read 1882; and the Progress of the Working Classes, read 1883. Among other subjects treated are the Depreciation of Gold, 1848-72 (1887); Trade Depression and Low Prices, 1885, and Gold Supply, the Rate of Discount and Prices, 1886; The Growth of Capital, 1890; and The Case against Bimetallism, 1892. He married (1) Isabella, daughter of D. M'Ewen, in 1864; and (2) Margaret Anne, daughter of George Wood, of Aberdeen, in 1896. Addresses: 9 Bina Gardens, South Kensington; and Athenæum.

GIGLIUCCI, Countess, née Clara Anastasia Novello, fourth daughter of Mr. Vincent Novello, musical composer, born in London, June 10, 1818, at an early age displayed so much musical talent as to induce her father to give her a thoroughly professional education. Her progress repaid the care bestowed upon her, for at the early age of eleven years she won, by competition, her admission as a pupil into the Conservatoire de Musique Sacrée at Paris, where for two years she studied assiduously, and at one of the public examinations of the pupils was complimented by Charles X. and his Court. On the closing of the institution, in the Revolution of 1830, she returned home, fitted to take a prominent part among the singers of the day, at the concerts of the Philharmonic Society, and other leading musical entertainments. When only seventeen years of age she was elected an Associate of that Society, and soon afterwards accepted an invitation from Mendelssohn to take part in the Leipzig Gewandhaus Concerts. In Berlin and Vienna she was equally well received; and so great was her success at the first-mentioned place, that the late King presented her with introductions to his sister the Empress of Russia, and to the Court of Vienna. Before this time Malibran and Rubini advised her to go to Italy, and study for the stage. Her success at Vienna induced her to take part in the musical festivals in Lombardy, and she felt disposed to follow their advice; but, owing to engagements at St. Petersburg and in Germany, could not carry out this plan until 1839-40. She appeared at Padua, in 1841, in the character of Semiramide, with such success that engagements at Bologna, Modena, and Genoa followed, and in 1842 both Rome and Genoa endeavoured to secure her for the Fies of the Carnival. In 1843 she returned to England, and sang in London and Manchester; and having married Count Gigliucci, she withdrew from the stage in 1844. Circumstances, however, induced her to return in 1850; and she constantly appeared in concerts, oratorios, and operas, on the Continent and in London, until 1860, when she finally retired.

GILBERT, Alfred, R.A., D.C.L., sculptor, was born in Berners Street, London, in 1854, and is the son of Alfred Gilbert, musician. He first studied his art under Boehm, in 1874, after which he went to Paris, where he studied at the École des Beaux-Arts under M. Cavellier. At the end of three years he went to Rome, where he executed the "Kiss of Victory" in marble. He first attracted attention by his "Perseus Arming," and some time later he exhibited a small bronze head, which made a great impression on all the artists who saw it. In Rome he also executed "Icarus" amongst many other works. In 1886 he exhibited at the Royal Academy the plaster model of the "Enchanted Chair," and at the Grosvenor Gallery a small statuette. He has executed the tomb of the late Duke of Clarence in the Memorial Chapel, Windsor, and the Shaftesbury Fountain, in the middle of Piccadilly Circus. He has also executed a number of busts of eminent men, such as the late Henry Fawcett, the Bombay statue of Lord Reay, and the late Sir Richard Owen. Mr. Alfred Gilbert, R.A., was elected an honorary member of the Society of Designers in the place of the late Sir Edward Burne-Jones in December 1898. The other honorary members of the Society are Princess Louise, Marchioness of Lorne, and Sir E. J. Poynter, President of the Royal Academy. The election of honorary members is only made by the unanimous vote of the Council. He was elected an A.R.A. in 1887, and a Royal Academician in December 1892. In 1875 he married a daughter of Francis Gilbert, of Oshawa. Addresses; 16 Maida Vale, W.; and Athenæum.

GILBERT, Sir (Joseph) Henry, Ph.D., LL.D., Sc.D., F.R.S., son of the late Rev. Joseph Gilbert, was born at Hull, Aug. 1, 1817. After his school education, he met with a gun-shot accident, which much impaired his health for some time, and also deprived him of the sight of one eye. He commenced his College course at the University of Glasgow, where as elsewhere he devoted special attention to Chemistry, working in the laboratory of the late Professor Thomas Thomson. He next studied at University College, London; attending the classes of Professor Graham and others, and working in the laboratory of the late Dr. Anthony Todd Thomson, then the Professor of Materia Medica, Therapeutics, and Toxicology. A short time was then spent in the laboratory of Professor Liebig, at Giessen, where he took the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. Returning to University College, London, Dr. Gilbert acted as class and laboratory assistant to Professor A. T. Thomson, in the winter and summer sessions of 1840-41; attending other courses at the College at the same time.

He next devoted some time to the industry of calico-printing, dyeing, &c. in the neighbourhood of Manchester. Dr. Gilbert became associate (now Sir) J. B. Lawes, of Rothamsted, Hertfordshire; and from that time continued to be engaged with a systematic series of researches in cultural Chemistry and Physiology, the results of their investigations being published in a series of papers, numbering more than 100, in various journals among which may be mentioned Proceedings and Transactions of the Royal Society, the Journal of the Royal Society of England, the Journal of the Chemical Society, the Reports of the Association for the Advancement of Science, the Journal of the Society of Arts, &c.; also in some official reports where. Dr. Gilbert was elected a member of the Chemical Society in 1841, and of its formation; and he contributed the first volume of its "Memoirs," a translation from the original German paper on the Atomic Weight of Oxygen by Professors Redtenbacher and Liebig. He was President of the Society from 1841 to 1842. He was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1860, and in 1867 the Society awarded to him, in connection with Mr. Lawes, one of the Royal Medals. He is also Fellow of the Royal Society, and of the Royal Meteorological Society. In 1880 he was President of the Chemical Section of the British Association for the Advancement of Science. In 1882 and 1884 he visited Canada and the United States, travelling over to study the conditions of the agriculture of those countries. In 1884 he was appointed Sibthorpian Professor of Political Economy in the University of London, and he was reappointed for a period of three years in 1887. He was knighted in 1893, the Jubilee year, in recognition of his Rothamsted experiments. He has been the Directorship of the Rothamsted Experiment Station ever since 1843, and in February 1893 the Society of Arts awarded him the Albert Medal in recognition of the work he has there achieved. Sir Henry received the honorary degree of D.Sc. from Oxford in 1884, that of LL.D. from Glasgow in 1883, and in Edinburgh in 1885, and of Sc.D. at Cambridge in 1886. He is Honorary Member of the Royal Society of England, the Chemical-Agricultural Society, the Society of Arts, the Academy of Agriculture of Petrovskoe, and of the Agricultural Society of Hanover. He is also a Member of the Royal Agricultural Society of Sweden; and Corresponding Member of the Institute of France (Académie des Sciences), of the Society of Agri-ance, of the Society for the Engagement of National Industry in and of the Institut Agronomique orogoretsk. He is also Ohevalier du Agricole (France); and (in con-sion with Sir J. B. Lawes) Gold allist of Merit for Agriculture (Gery). He married (1), in 1850, Eliza, ghter of the Rev. George Laurie (she in 1853); and (2), in 1855, Maria, ghter of B. Smith. Addresses: Harden, St. Albans; and Athenssum.

GILBERT, Josiah, born at the Indedent College, Rotherham, Yorkshire, 7, 1814, son of the Rev. Joseph Gilt, grandson of the Rev. Isaac Taylor, Ongar, was educated chiefly at home, ame afterwards a student in the Royal ademy, practised as a portrait-painter some years in London, but has lived nce 1843 at Marden Ash, Ongar, engaged literary and artistic pursuits. He is the thor of "Art, its Scope and Purpose," 358; "Cadore, or Titian's Country," 369; "Art and Religion," 1871; was int author of "The Dolomite Mountains," 864; edited "Autobiography and other emorial of Mrs. Gilbert (formerly Ann Taylor)," 1875, which has gone through our editions, and he published "Landscape n Art before Claude and Salvator," in 1885. Mr. Gilbert is a member of the Alpine Club. Address: Ongar.

GILBERT, William Schwenck,
B.A., J.P., was born Nov. 18, 1836, at 17
Southampton Street, Strand, London, and educated at Great Ealing School. His intention was to enter the Royal Artillery, but while studying for his examination the Crimean War came to an end, and the examination was postponed until he had passed the age of admission. He took the degree of B.A. at the University of London, was called to the Bar of the Inner Temple in November 1864 (having been a clerk in the Privy Council office from 1857 to 1862), and was appointed Captain of the Royal Aberdeenshire Highlanders (now the 3rd Battalion Gordon Highlanders) in 1867, from which he retired in 1883 with the honorary rank of Major. Mr. Gilbert is well known as a dramatic author and contributor to periodical literature. His first piece, "Dulcamara," was produced at the St. James's Theatre in January 1866. He is also author of: "Robert the Devil,"
"The Merry Zingara," "La Vivandière," and
"The Pretty Druidess" (burlesques); "An Old Score," "The Princess," "Ages Ago," "Randall's Thumb," "Creatures of Impulse," "A Sensation Novel," "Happy Arcadia" (Gallery of Illustration), and many other minor pieces; "The Palace of Truth," a fairy comedy, November 1870;

"Pygmalion and Galatea," a fairy comedy,
December 1871; "The Wicked World," a fairy comedy, January 1873; "Charity," a play, January 1874, at the Haymarket Theatre, where the three preceding pieces had also first appeared; "Sweethearts," a dramatic contrast, Prince of Wales's Theatre, November 1874; "Broken Hearts," a fairy comedy, Court Theatre, 1876;
"Tom Cobb," a farcical comedy, St.
James's, in the same year; "Thespis, or the Gods grown Old," and "Trial by Jury" (both written in conjunction with Sir Arthur Sullivan), at the Gaiety and Royalty respectively; "Dan'l Druce," a drama, at the Haymarket; and "Engaged," a farcical comedy, at the same theatre; "The Ne'er-do-Weel," Olympic, 1878; "Gretchen," Olympic, 1879; "Fogerty's Fairy," Criterion; "Comedy and Tragedy," Lyceum; "Princess Toto," "The Gentleman in Black," and "Topsy-Turveydom"; and
"The Sorcerer," an opera, Opera Comique, September 1877; "H.M.S. Pinafore," which ran two years at that theatre; the "Pirates of Penzance, which ran more than a year; and "Patience, or Bunthorne's Bride," Opera Comique and the new Savoy Theatre in 1881, which ran twenty months. This was followed by "Iolanthe, or the Peer and the Peri," which ran thirteen months; "Princess Ida, or Castle Adamant," which ran nearly as long; "The Mikado, or the Town of Titipu," which ran nearly two years;
"Ruddigore, or the Witch's Curse," which ran ten months; "The Yeomen of the Guard," which ran fifteen months; "The Gondoliers," which was produced in 1889, and ran eighteen months. "The Mountebanks," which was written in collaboration with the late Alfred Cellier, was produced in January 1892, and ran eight months; and "Utopia, Limited," and "The Grand-Duke," which were written in collaboration with Sir Arthur Sullivan, were produced in October 1893, and had long runs. He also wrote "His Excellency," a comic opera, in conjunction with Dr. Osmond Carr; and "Brantingham Hall" and "The Fortune-Hunter," neither of which were successful.
"The Mikado" has been performed in Berlin, Vienna, Amsterdam, and other Continental towns. These operas were, with three exceptions, all written in conjunction with Sir Arthur Sullivan. "The Palace of Truth" is based on a story of Madame de Genlis; "Gretchen" on the Faust legend; and "Princess Ida" on Tennyson's poem; but the other pieces are original. Mr. Gilbert's "Bab Ballads," originally published in Fun, have since been printed in a separate form; so likewise have many of the lyrical pieces from his operatic libretti, under the title of "Songs of a Savoyard." In 1897 the

"Bab Ballads" and "Songs of a Savoyard" were incorporated in one volume, with illustrations by the author. In June 1891 Mr. Gilbert was appointed a Magistrate for Middlesex. Address: Grimsdyke, Harrow Weald, Middlesex.

GILBERTSON, Edward, was born in London in 1813. The early years of his life were passed in various parts of Russia, the language of which country he speaks fluently. He left Russia in 1840, and for several years after his return to London was a frequent contributor of leading articles to the Daily News and other papers. In 1857 he became Secretary to the Ottoman Bank in London, and during the following four years paid several visits of inspection to the branches at Beyrout, Smyrna, and Constantinople. In 1861 he undertook the management of the bank in the latter city, and in 1862, as member of the Financial Commission, had the chief direction, under Edhem Pacha, of the operations for withdrawing the Caimé, for which service he received the third class of the Medjidieh. In 1863 he was one of the signatories of the concession of the Imperial Ottoman Bank; and from that date until May 1871 was Assistant Director-General of the Bank at Constantinople. He has taken an active part in negotiating all the Turkish public loans in which the Bank was interested since 1858, and has been a member of various financial commissions formed by the Ottoman Government, such as that for the improvement of the system of public accounts, for the Budget of 1867, &c. The Sultan, in recognition of his services to the imperial treasury, has conferred on him the Order of the Osmanieh of the third class. Upon his arrival in England in May 1871, he was unanimously elected a member of the committee of the bank in London.

GILBEY, Sir Walter, Bart., fifth son of the late Henry Gilbey, of Bishop Stortford, and Elizabeth, daughter of the late William Bailey, of Stansted, Essex, was born in that town on May 2, 1831. His active life commenced when, as a boy, he was articled to his cousin, an estate agent at Tring. He afterwards held a clerkship in one of the offices located at that time in the House of Lords, which he held until the Crimean War broke out, when, through Sir Benjamin Hawes, he obtained an appointment to go out to the Crimea as a civil servant of the Crown in the Pay Department. His duties carried him to the Convalescent Hospital on the Asiatic shore of the Dardanelles, where he passed nearly two years. On arriving in England the two brothers founded the firm of W. & A. Gilbey, wine merchants, of which he was, until 1893, the head. In 1893 the firm was registered under the Limited Liability Act as a private company, of which Sir Walter is the chairman. It is not, however, in the regions of commerce that Sir Walter is best known. Agriculture and horse-breeding have found in him one of their most liberal patrons. He is one of the trustees and was president in the year from June 1885 to June 1896 of the Royal Agricultural Society of England. He was largely instrumental in raising funds for the show of the Royal Agricultural Society held at Kilburn in 1879, and in 1889 he was Chairman of the Show Committee on the occasion of the Jubilee show of the Society held at Windsor, when he received the Gold Medal from the Mansion House Committee in commemoration of his efforts in raising funds for this show. He is on the Councils of the Smithfield Club, of which he was President in 1896, and the Royal Agricultural Benevolent Institution. Sir Walter has issued an appeal since 1887, on behalf of this institution, and claims to participate in church offertories at harvest ing services, which has resulted in an increase of the Institution's funds to the amount of over £5000 annually. He is also on the Council of the English Jersey Society, of which he was President in the year 1886. He also occupies the position of Chairman of the Royal Agricultural Hall Company; and the Horse Shows held there for a number of years past have been largely under his management. Sir Walter Gilbey is also one of the Governors, and a member of the General Purposes Committee, of the Royal Veterinary College. He has in addition taken an active part in the formation of the Shire Horse Society, of which he was President in 1883, succeeding the Earl of Powis. He is the first Commoner who has held that position, his Vice-President in that year being the Duke of Westminster, K.G. After an interval of twelve years his name was removed under the bye-laws from the list of Vice-Presidents and ex officio members of the Council, when he was again elected President of the Society (in 1898). The Hunters' Improvement Society, the Hackney Horse Society, and the London Cart Horse Parade Society may be said to have been created by him. He was President of the Hackney Society in 1893, of the Hunters' Improvement Society in 1883, and has been Chairman of the Cart Horse Parade Society since its foundation. Sir Walter Gilbey, when residing, some fifteen years ago, at Hargrave Park, Stanstead, Essex, was a successful breeder of Jersey cattle, and he has been also a very successful breeder of shire, hackney, hunter, and thoroughbred horses, at the paddocks attached to Elsenham Hall, Essex, where he resides. He twice won the Champion prize for the best horse in all classes at the Shire Horse Society's London shows, viz., in 1883 and 1886. He has twice won the Champion Prize for hackney stallions at the London Hackney Show. He was also a successful exhibitor at the Hamburg International Show in 1883, the International Exhibition at Amsterdam in 1884, and the International Exhibition at Brussels in 1888 and 1897. After the latter show, the King of the Belgians appointed him a Chevalier of the Order of Leopold for his assistance in promoting the success of the show. He originated the Table d'Honneur Show in connection with the Smithfield Fat Cattle Show in the year 1894, having for its objects the encouragement of farmers and others in the production of an increased supply of table poultry, and has borne the whole expenses of the show himself. He is the author of various articles and pamphlets having for their object the encouragement and improvement of horse-breeding, notably the "Old English War Horse and the Shire Horse," identifying the present breed of shire horses with the old English war horse, a pamphlet which was very favourably reviewed by the press, and has since run to a second edition. He has also published two books on "Harness Horses" and "Young Racing Stock and How to Feed Them," and is about to publish in book form a series of articles on "Animal Painters and their Works," which have appeared in Baily's Magazine. He has also published (Vinton & Co., New Bridge St., Blackfriars) a life of George Stubbs, R.A., the famous animal painter. He was created a Baronet in 1893. He married Ellen, daughter of the late John Parish, of Bishop Stortford, in 1858. She died in November 1896. Addresses: Cambridge House, Regent's Park; and Elsenham Hall, Essex.

GILCHRIST, Percy Carlyle, F.R.S., M.I.C.E., was born at Lyme Regis, Dorsetshire, on Dec. 27, 1851, and is the eldest son of the late Alexander Gilchrist, Barrister, and Anne Burrows. He was educated at Felstead Grammar School, and at the Royal School of Mines, of which he is an Associate. He is well known as a metallurgist, and is one of the founders of the Thomas Gilchrist process for making steel. He is a Director, and was a founder, of the North-Eastern Steel Company, Ltd., of Middlesbrough. Address: Frognal Bank, Muchley Road, N.W.

GILDER, Richard Watson, LL.D., American poet, was born at Bordentown,

N.J., Feb. 8, 1844. He was educated mainly by his father, the late Rev. W. H. Gilder, a Methodist minister and writer, who established a seminary at Bordentown, and afterwards at Flushing, L.I. For a brief time, when the Confederates invaded Pennsylvania in 1863, he served in the Union army, and took part in the defence of Carlisle. He began the study of law, but the death of his father (1864) compelled him to abandon it in order to earn his own living. For a year he was a paymaster on the Camden and Amboy Railway, and then became journalist. From 1865-68 he was on the staff of the Newark (N.J.) Advertiser. In 1868 he, with Newton Crane, established the Newark Register, to the editorship of which in the following year he added that of Hours at Home, a New York monthly. The Register not proving profitable, Mr. Gilder in 1870 accepted the associate editorship of Scribner's Monthly (now the Century Magazine), then recently started, into which Hours at Home was incorporated. On the death of Dr. Holland in 1881, Mr. Gilder was made editor-in-chief of the Century, a position which he still holds. In addition to his editorial and literary labours, Mr. Gilder takes an active interest in all public matters. He is a member of many clubs in New York, and was the first President of the Fellowcraft. He was the first President of the Kindergarten Association, and is one of the founders of the Society of American Artists, the American Copyright League, the Authors' Club, the Free Art League, the City Club, and the Sculpture Society. He received the degree of LL.D. from Dickinson College in 1883, and of A.M. from Harvard University in 1890. His published works (all poems) are: "The New Day," 1875; "Lyrics," 1885; "The Celestial Passion," 1887; "Two Worlds, and other Poems," 1891; "The Great Remembrance, and other Poems," 1893; five books of song, 1894; and "For the Country," 1897.

GILKES, Arthur Herman, headmaster of Dulwich College, was born Nov. 2, 1849, is the son of William Gilkes, chemist, of Leominster, Herefordshire, and was educated at Shrewsbury School, 1859-68; Christ Church, Oxford, 1868-72; was first class in Moderations, 1870, and first class in Literis Humanioribus, 1872. He was Assistant-Master at Shrewsbury School, 1873-85, and was appointed Headmaster of Dulwich College, 1885. He is the author of "School Lectures on Electra and Macbeth"; "Boys and Masters"; "The Thing that hath been"; and "Kallistratus." In 1892 he married the daughter of B. M. Clarke, Clairville, Sydenham Hill. Address: The College, Dulwich.

GILL, Charles Frederick, Q.C., son of Charles Gill, of Dublin, by Kate, the second daughter of Joseph Moyers of Dublin, was born at Rathmines, Dublin, on June 10, 1851. He was educated at the Royal School, Dungannon, Ireland; and he married on Nov. 6, 1878, Ada, the youngest daughter of John Crossley Fielding, the Grange, Forest Hill. He became a student of the Middle Temple in June 1871, and was called to the Bar on April 30, 1874. He practised on the South-Eastern Circuit, and Sussex Sessions; he was appointed Junior Counsel to the Post Office in 1886, Senior Counsel 1887; Junior Counsel to the Treasury at the Central Criminal Court in January 1889, Senior Counsel in September 1892; Junior Counsel to the London Bankers' Association in 1889. He was appointed Recorder of Chichester in March 1890, and he is a member of the General Council of the Bar. He has, during the past fifteen years, been engaged in a great many of the important criminal trials which have taken place. In January 1899 he was made a Q.C. Addresses: 4 Embankment Gardens, Chelsea, S.W.; 3 Temple Gardens, E.C.

GILL, David, F.R.S., LL.D., Hon. F.R.S. Edin., Astronomer Royal at the Cape, born June 12, 1843, is the eldest son of the late David Gill, Esq., J.P., of Blair-ythan and Savock, Aberdeenshire, by Margaret, daughter of Gilbert Mitchell, Esq., of Savock, in the same county. He was educated at Marischal College, Aberdeen. He obtained his first experience in practical astronomy in the observatory at Aberdeen, and in a private observatory which he erected in the same city. Mr. Gill was associated with Lord Lindsay in the designs and details of the large observatory founded by that nobleman at Dunecht in 1870, taking the position as chief of the staff. He thus became engaged in the organisation of the expedition to the Mauritius, fitted out by Lord Lindsay, for the observation of the transit of Venus, on which occasion advantage was taken of the circumstance of a heliometer forming part of the equipment, to determine the sun's distance by measures of the planet Juno. The details of this work were published by Lord Lindsay as the joint work of himself and Mr. Gill. In connection with the same expedition, Mr. Gill arranged and personally conducted the whole of the chronometric and telegraphic longitude determinations connecting Berlin, Malta, Alexandria, Suez, Aden, Bombay, Seychelles, Réunion, Mauritius, and Rodriguez. It was while engaged upon these operations that he undertook, at the request of the Khedive, the measurement of the first base line of the geodetic survey of Egypt. He then went to Ascension to observe the transit of Mars. In 1881 he published the Memoirs of the Royal Astronomical Society, an account of a determination of the Solar Parallax from observations of Mars, at Ascension, in 1877. The same year a difficult task, the execution of elaborate longitude connections connecting Aden, Zanzibar, Mozambique, Delagoa Bay, Durban, Port Elizabeth, and the Cape, was performed with great care; 1882 saw him organising expeditions of the minor planets Victoria and Sappho, which were carried out from principal observatories of the world. The same year he made the arrangements for the observation of the transit of Venus in South Africa. In 1883 he set on foot the geodetic survey of South Africa, a scheme which he had urged on the Government without ceasing since 1860. From 1881 to 1883 he was likewise engaged in researches on the Parallax of stars, an elaborate memoir on which subject he has published in the Memoirs of the Royal Astronomical Society. In 1884 (recently (1893) this has been regarded as "Heliometer Observations for the determination of Stellar Parallax made at the Royal Observatory, Cape of Good Hope.") In 1875 he received the Medjidie (third class) from the Khedive for his labours in Egypt. In 1881 he was elected LL.D. of Aberdeen University; the same year he received the Valz from the Paris Academy of Sciences for his researches on the Solar Parallax; in 1882 the Gold Medal of the Royal Astronomical Society of London for his meridian observations of Mars and discussion of his results. In 1883 he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society, and in 1884 made LL.D. of Edinburgh University. Dr. Gill is a magistrate for the county of Aberdeen, one of the trustees of the South African Museum, and some time a Member of the South African University Council. Address: Royal Observatory, Cape of Good Hope.

GILL, Edmund, landscape painter, was born Nov. 29, 1820, in the parish of Clerkenwell. His father was by profession a jannet, but Edmund soon turned his attention to painting, and succeeded occasionally exhibiting pictures at the Royal Academy. After passing some time in Shropshire, Edmund Gill came to London, and became a student of the Royal Academy. He has since been an exhibitor of landscapes, storm scenes, and waterfalls, with few exceptions from Welsh and Scottish subjects, painted in the minute style that characterised the manner of the early Dutch artists.

GILLIAT, John Saunders, M.P., J.P., was born in 1829, and is a son of the late J. K. Gilliat, of Fernhill, Berks. He was educated at Harrow and at University College, Oxford, where he took a fourth class in Lit. Hum. in 1851. From 1886 to 1892 he was M.P. for Clapham and Battersea, S., and since the latter year has represented Widnes, Lancs., as a Conservative. Mr. Gilliat is a Director of the Bank of England, and in 1883 was its Governor. He is a member of John K. Gilliat & Co., American merchants and bankers. He married, in 1860, Louisa, daughter of M. Babington. Addresses: 18 Prince's Gate, S.W.; and Chorleywood Cedars, Rickmansworth.

GILLIES, The Hon. Duncan, ex-Premier of Victoria, was born in Glasgow in 1834, and went out to Victoria in 1852. He was elected a Member of the Victorian Parliament in 1859, and was Minister for Lands in 1868, and again from 1875 to 1877. He held the office of Minister for Railways from 1872 to 1875, and from 1880 to 1883; and became Premier in 1886. He was Chairman of the Federal Conference held at Melbourne in 1890; on November 5 of which year, his Ministry being defeated, he resigned, and Mr. Munro became Premier. He, on taking office, gave, in a few plain figures, the sort of damnum hereditas to which he had succeeded. He said: "The late Treasurer took office early in 1886. He had a large income from revenue during the specially-favoured Exhibition and land-boom years. He supplemented his actual income by mortgaging our future income from the sale of valuable city and suburban lands. He borrowed £1,500,000 in February 1886; £3,000,000 in January 1887; £1,500,000 in January 1888; and £3,000,000 in January 1889. From the Victorian stock he got £130,000 in December 1888. He borrowed £4,000,000 in April 1890, and got from the Victorian stock £26,411 in June 1890. In all he received £13,156,411 of borrowed money in a little over four years. He went out of office on Nov. 5, 1890, leaving to his successor a debit balance in the revenue account of £502,282, and the ear-marked farmers' bonuses to be provided for, contracts in hand between one and a half and two millions, the trust funds reduced to £337,271, the loan funds to £394,404, and matured debentures amounting to £850,000 to meet immediately!" In 1887 he was offered and refused a K.C.M.G. In 1894 he was appointed Agent-General for Victoria. Address: Melbourne.

GILMAN, Daniel Coit, LL.D., President of the Johns Hopkins University, was born in Norwich, Conn., July 6, 1831. After graduating as Bachelor of Arts at Yale College, in 1852, he devoted two years to travel and study in Europe, and subsequently became Librarian and Professor of Physical Geography in Yale College, where he remained from 1856 to 1872. He took an active part in the organisation of the Sheffield Scientific School, the Yale School of Fine Arts, and the Winchester Observatory of Yale College. His interest in public instruction led to his appointment, in 1856, as Superintendent of the Public Schools of New Haven, and afterwards, in 1855-66, as Superintendent of the Public Schools of Connecticut. In 1872 he became President of the University of California; and in 1875 he was called as President to take part in the organisation of a university in Baltimore, to which Johns Hopkins had given a large endowment. This institution is devoted to the advancement of the higher education of young men, the encouragement of research, and the publication of learned works. Mr Gilman was one of the judges in the Centennial Exhibition of 1876, one of the original trustees of the Slater Fund for the education of Freedmen, an official visitor of the United States Military Academy in 1875, and of the United States Naval Academy in 1876 and 1888. He has been President of the American Social Science Association, an active promoter of Civil Service reform, and of charity organisation, and of training handicrafts. He became, in 1893, President of the American Oriental Society, President of the Slater trustees (above mentioned), and a trustee of the Peabody Educational Fund. During the period of organising the Johns Hopkins Hospital he was for several months its Director. He has travelled widely in the United States and Europe, and on the Mediterranean. His addresses, reports, and reviews, chiefly but not wholly pertaining to educational subjects, would make, if collected, several octavo volumes. His views upon higher education may be gathered from eighteen reports to the Johns Hopkins University, from many addresses delivered in Baltimore, from an address before the Phi Beta Kappa Society of Harvard University, 1887, and from three articles in the North American Review, "On American Education, 1776-1876"; "On the Idea of the University," 1881; "On the Idea of the College," 1882. He delivered opening addresses at Sibley College (Cornell University), Adelbert College (Cleveland), Bryn Mawr College (near Philadelphia), the Women's College (Baltimore), the Slater Museum of the Fine Arts (Norwich), the Dearborn Astronomical Observatory (near Chicago), the College for Promoting Manual Instruction (New York), and the Sage Library of Cornell University. The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws has been conferred on him by Harvard, Yale, and Columbia.

GINSBURG, Christian David, LL.D., an eminent Rabbinical scholar, was born in Warsaw in 1830, and educated there in the Rabbinic College. He was one of the original members appointed by Convocation for the revision of the English version of the Old Testament Scriptures, and is the author of "An Historical and Critical Commentary on the Song of Songs," and on "Ecclesiastes," 1857; "The Kariates, their History and Literature," 1862; "The Essenes," 1864; "The Kabbalah, its Doctrines, Development, and Literature," 1865; "The Massoretha-Massoreth of Elias Levita," in Hebrew, with Translation and Commentary, 1867; "Jacob ben Chajin's Introduction to the Rabbinic Bible," Hebrew and English, with notices, 1867; "The Moabite Stone," 1871; "A Commentary on Leviticus," 1882; "The Massorah," four imperial folio volumes, 1880-86, a work of vast erudition. Dr. Ginsburg has been a contributor also to Kitto's "Encyclopædia of Biblical Literature"; Smith's "Dictionary of the Bible"; and the "Encyclopædia Britannica." In 1897 he published "Fac-similes of the Manuscripts of the Hebrew Bible," and "Introduction to the Massoretico-critical Edition of the Hebrew Bible."

GIOLITTI, Francesco Giovanni, Italian statesman, was born at Mondovì, Oct. 27, 1842, and became a barrister at the age of eighteen, taking the degree of LL.D. four years later. In 1866 he entered the magistracy at Turin, and soon after was given a post under the Minister of Justice by Signor Vigliani, whence he passed to the Ministry of Finance under Signor Sella, where he showed rare aptitude, and was made a Councillor of State in 1882. The same year he entered Parliament as Deputy for Cuneo, and at once distinguished himself by his grip of financial questions. At that period he supported Signor Crispi (q.v.), and was appointed by him Minister of Finance, Sept. 19, 1890. In this position, without opposing the large expense necessitated by the Triple Alliance, he endeavoured to bring about economies in the Ministry of Public Works, to which he was unable to gain the adhesion of the Chamber. In consequence, he resigned on December 8, and this was one of the causes leading to the fall of the Crispi Cabinet. In May 1892, on the fall of the Marquis di Rudini, he was charged to form a Cabinet in which he held the posts of Premier and Minister of the Interior. A fortnight after, he tendered his resignation, which the King refused to accept. This rendered a dissolution necessary, and Signor Giolitti having cleverly obtained a vote of supply for six months, the elections of November of the same year, resulted in a great triumph for the Government. At this time the scandals in connection with the Bank of Naples and the Bank of Rome led to a demand for a parliamentary inquiry, and the Premier not conducting the investigation with sufficient vigour for the Parliament, a coalition was formed against him, and he again tendered his resignation in May 1893. The King again refused to accept it. However, in November of the same year, he resigned definitely, and was succeeded by another Crispi Ministry.

GIPPS, General Sir Reginald Ramsay, K.C.B., son of Sir George Gipps, K.C.B., R.E., sometime Governor of Australia, was born in 1831, and educated at Eton. He entered the Scots Guards as Ensign in the year 1849, and was promoted Lieutenant and Captain in 1854; Major by brevet in 1856, Colonel by brevet in 1871, and Major-General in 1881. He took part in the Crimean War, being wounded at the battle of the Alma. He was also engaged in the sortie from the garrison of Sebastopol, in which the Russians were repulsed with the loss of 2000 killed and wounded, and was again severely wounded at the battle of Inkermann. He was mentioned in despatches, and was awarded the Crimean Medal with four clasps, 5th class of the Legion of Honour, 5th class Medjidie, the Turkish Medal, and the Brevet of Major. During 1881 he was a Brigadier-General in Ireland, and from 1884 to 1889 was Major-General in Command of the Home District, being shortly afterwards appointed Deputy Adjutant-General for the Militia, Yeomanry and Volunteers at Head-Quarters. He was promoted to a K.C.B. in 1888. In 1892 Sir Reginald Gipps acted as Military Secretary to the Duke of Cambridge, and was promoted full General in 1894. He married (2), in 1886, Evelyn, daughter of Colonel Feilden of Dulac Court, Hereford. Addresses: 11 Chester Street, S.W.; and Sycamore House, Farnborough, Hants.

GISSING, Algernon, novelist, born at Wakefield on Nov. 25, 1860, is the son of Thomas Walter Gissing, late of that town (originally from Suffolk), and Margaret, his wife, née Bedford, Worcestershire. Educated at private schools, and trained originally for the law, he was admitted a solicitor early in 1882. He practised for a short time in his native town, but ultimately abandoned the legal profession and took entirely to that of letters. This brought him to London for two or three years, but love of the country impelled him to withdraw thither, and for the last few years he has spent the bulk of his time in rural seclusion. He has published several novels, all of which deal with country life, and amongst which are: "A Village Hampden," published in 1890; "A Moorland Idyl," in 1891; "Between Two Opinions," in 1893; "At Society's Expense," in 1894; "The Sport of Stars," in 1896; and "The Scholar of Bygate," in 1897. Address: Willersey, near Broadway, Worcestershire.

GISSING, George, novelist, was born at Wakefield on Nov. 22, 1857, and educated at Owens College, Manchester. His writings, which may be said to belong to the school of English realism, are "The Unclassed," 1884; "Demos," a satire on the seamy side of the Labour movement, 1886; "A Life's Morning," 1888; "Thyrza," 1887; "The Nether World," 1889; "The Emancipated," 1890; "New Grub Street," a picture of the less showy aspects of modern authorship, 1891; "Denzil Quarrier," 1892; "Born in Exile," 1892; "The Odd Women," 1893; "In the Year of Jubilee," 1894; "The Whirlpool," 1897; "Eve's Ransom," 1895; "Human Odds and Ends" (short stories), 1897; "The Town Traveller," 1897; and "Charles Dickens: a Critical Essay," 1898. Address: c/o Messrs. Lawrence & Bullen, 16 Henrietta Street, Covent Garden, W.C.

GLADSTONE, Catherine, was daughter and heiress of Sir Stephen Glynne, who died when she was very young, her mother being left in charge of the estates during the minority of her son Stephen, then only eight years of age. The Rector of Hawarden, the Hon. George Neville, was Lady Glynne's brother. In those days Hawarden was but a Cheshire village, and not of good reputation, as the great coach road to Holyhead passed through it, and four times a day the mails made the road ring with their bugles and the bustle they brought with them. Mr. Neville called a meeting and remonstrated with the inhabitants on the bad character Hawarden had gained, saying that as one means of promoting a better state of things he would urge his sister, Lady Glynne, to lessen the number of local public-houses, and to cause those that were left to shut on Sundays during divine service. Thus was the work of social reform begun in the parish of Hawarden. In 1839, Catherine Glynne married the rising young statesman, W. E.

Gladstone, on the same day as her younger sister married Lord Lyttleton, and the double wedding was honoured with great rejoicings. In her long married life she was the devoted companion of her illustrious husband, aiding and assisting him in all manner of ways, and carrying out many charitable designs mutually projected. One of the first of these was the New Port Market Refuge, suggested by Mr. Gladstone, who saw how very many homeless wanderers were out of a night on his road to the House. It is designed to give temporary shelter and help to men out of work, and so enable them to get employment again. In 1866 the East End of London suffered a terrible epidemic of cholera, and Mrs. Gladstone, visiting the London Hospital, saw much of the distress caused by it, and took a great interest in the many orphans left by its ravages. She took a house at Clapton and installed them there, and wrote an appeal to the Times on their behalf. It was amply responded to, and £5000 were raised for them. Seeing the need of helping those who had struggled through so terrible an illness, she organised a Convalescent Home at Woodford, in Essex. This establishment she visited for twenty-five years, when in town, going down to the London Hospital every Monday morning to examine into the claims of would-be patients. There is another Orphanage Home under her auspices at Hawarden: it was set on foot after the American War and the Lancashire Cotton Famine. The young girls there are trained for domestic service at Notting Hill. Indeed, Mrs. Gladstone's kindly help and influence have been called forth in a thousand ways. The touching and heroic part played by her at the death-bed and funeral of her late husband is fresh in the recollection of all. That she was present at the solemn ceremony in the Abbey, on which occasion the Prince of Wales kissed her hand, is only an additional proof of her fortitude and of her life-long devotion to her hero.

GLADSTONE, Helen G., fourth daughter of the late Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, by his wife Catherine, daughter and heiress of Sir Stephen and the Hon. Lady Glynne, was born on Aug. 29, 1849, at Hawarden Castle, Flintshire. She was educated at home and at Newnham College, Cambridge, of which she eventually was appointed Vice-Principal, holding that position from October 1882 to Christmas 1896. She was during the closing period of his life constantly with her father, and acted as his secretary. After his death she managed the immense mass of correspondence which that sad event naturally entailed upon his family. Address: Hawarden Castle, Chester.

GLADSTONE, The Right Hon. Herbert John, M.A., M.P., is the youngest son of the late Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone and Catherine, eldest daughter of Sir Stephen Glynne, Bart. He was born at 12 Downing Street, London, on Jan. 7, 1854, when his illustrious father was Chancellor of the Exchequer for the first time. He was educated at Eton and at University College, Oxford, where he obtained a third-class in Classical Moderations in 1874, and a first-class in the Modern History School in 1876 (M.A. 1879). From 1877 to 1880 he was History Lecturer at Keble College. In the latter year he contested Middlesex County, and entered Parliament. He was Private Secretary to his father in 1880-81; a Lord of the Treasury, 1881-85; Financial Secretary at the War Office in 1886; Under-Secretary at the Home Office, 1892-94; and First Commissioner of Works, 1894-95. Since 1880 he has represented Leeds in Parliament. He has (April, 1899) succeeded the late Mr. Thomas Ellis as Chief Whip to the Liberal party in the House of Commons. Addresses: 4 Cleveland Square, St. James's, S.W.; and Hawarden Castle, Chester.

GLADSTONE, Professor John Hall, Ph.D., D.Sc., F.R.S., was born March 7, 1827, and educated at home. He studied chemistry at University College, London, under Professor Graham; and at Giessen, under Professor Liebig. He took the degree of Ph.D. in 1848; lectured on Chemistry at St. Thomas's Hospital from 1850 to 1852; was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1853; was a member of the Royal Commission on Lighthouses, Buoys, and Beacons, from 1859 to 1862; a member of the Gun Cotton Committee (appointed by the War Office) from 1864 to 1868; Fullerton Professor of Chemistry at the Royal Institution from 1874 to 1877; President of the Physical Society from its formation in 1874 to 1876; and President of the Chemical Society from 1877 to 1879. He was made Honorary Doctor of Science at the Centenary of Trinity College, Dublin, in 1892. Since 1846 Dr. Gladstone has been constantly engaged in scientific research, principally in chemistry, electricity, and optics, and the points of contact between these sciences. The results have been published by the Royal, Chemical, and other Societies, and by the British Association. For many years he has been engaged also in various philanthropic and religious movements; and from 1873 to 1894 he was one of the representatives of the Chelsea Division on the School Board for London. He was for three years Vice-Chairman of the Board, and for eighteen years Chairman of the Books and Apparatus Sub-Committee, where he paid special attention to methods of instruction. He is the author of: "The Biography of Michael Faraday," 1872; "Points of Supposed Collision between the Scriptures and Natural Science: a lecture delivered in connection with the Christian Evidence Society," 1872; "Miracles as Credentials of a Revelation: a lecture delivered in the new Hall of Science, Old Street City Road, under the auspices of the Christian Evidence Society," 1873; "Spelling Reform, from an Educational Point of View," 1878; "The Chemistry of Secondary Batteries," 1883; and upwards of fifty memoirs in the Philosophical Transactions and other Proceedings of the learned societies. For these investigations, and especially for the application of optical methods to chemical research, he has lately received the Davy medal of the Royal Society. He married (1) May, daughter of the late Charles Tilt; and (2) Margaret, daughter of the late Rev. D. Kirk, and niece of Lord Kelvin. He is now a widower. Addresses: 17 Pembroke Square, W.; and Athenæum.

GLAISHER, James, F.R.S., was born in London on April 7, 1809. In 1829 he was appointed Assistant on the Principal Triangulation of the Ordnance Survey of Ireland, and in that capacity was charged with the meteorological observations of the mountains Bencorr in Galway, and the Keeper mountains near Limerick. These observations were published by Sir Henry James in 1856. From 1833 to 1836 Mr. Glaisher was Assistant at the Cambridge Observatory. In 1836 he was appointed Assistant in the Astronomical Department of the Royal Observatory, Greenwich, and in 1840, on the establishment of the Magnetical and Meteorological Department, he was appointed its Superintendent, and continued to hold that office until his retirement from the public service at the end of 1874. In 1841 he began the series of quarterly and annual meteorological reports which have been published by the Registrar-General in his Quarterly and Annual Reports, without any interruption from that time to the present. These meteorological reports are the result of the reduction and discussion of the observations of about sixty voluntary observers scattered over England. Mr. Glaisher was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1849, and was the founder of the Royal Meteorological Society, of which he was Secretary for nearly twenty years, and President in 1867-68. He is also a past President of the Royal Microscopical Society. On the death of the late Lord Chief-Baron Sir F. Pollock, he succeeded him as third President of the Photographic Society of Great Britain, an office which is still holds. He has also since 1880 been the Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Palestine Exploration Fund. He was a Juror in the Class of Scientific and Philosophical Instruments at the Exhibitions of 1851 and 1862, and was the reporter of this Class in 1851. He is the author of a "Report on the Meteorology of London in relation to the Cholera Epidemic of 1853-54," published by the Board of Health in 1855, and of a "Report on the Meteorology of India in relation to the Health of the Troops," 1863, which formed an Appendix to a Report of a Royal Commission on the Army in India. He was a Member of the Royal Commission on the Warming and Ventilation of Dwellings (1867), for which he conducted most of the experiments, and wrote the report. He is the author of more than a hundred books and papers relating to astronomy, meteorology, and the theory of numbers. In 1845 he published his "Hygrometrical Tables," which has passed through seven editions, and is regarded as a fundamental work in connection with meteorology. "A Memoir on the Radiation of Heat from various Substances," published in the Philosophical Transactions for 1848, and certain papers on the forms of snow crystals, published in 1855, are also noticeable. Between 1863 and 1866 he made twenty-nine balloon ascents for scientific purposes, in one of which (Sept. 5, 1863) he attained the greatest height yet reached (nearly seven miles). He was insensible for more than ten minutes, and Mr. Coxwell, the aeronaut, only just succeeded in opening the valve by pulling it with his teeth. The results are printed in the Reports of the British Association. The observations made were very numerous and varied, and still form a unique series. Some of the results have been published in a popular form in "Travels in the Air." Mr. Glaisher is also President of the Aeronautical Society. He translated and edited "The Atmosphere" (by Flammarion), and "The World of Comets" (by Guillemin). After his retirement from the Royal Observatory he devoted himself to the completion of the Factor Tables begun by Burckhardt in 1814, and continued by Dase in 1862-65. Burckhardt published the first three millions, and Dase the seventh, eighth, and ninth. The three intervening millions have been calculated by Mr. Glaisher, and published, with a full enumeration relating to the whole nine millions, in 3 vols., 4to, 1879-83. In 1885 he published "Hygrometric Tables," which in 1893 attained an eighth edition. On April 8, 1898, the Executive Committee of the Palestine Exploration Fund presented Mr. Glaisher with a eulogistic address of congratulation, containing a survey of his arduous labours in the cause of Palestine Exploration, on his entering his 70th year. Address: The Shola, Heathfield Road, Croydon.

GLAISHER, James Whitbread Lee, Sc.D., F.R.S., is the eldest and only surviving son of James Glaisher, F.R.S., and was born at Lewisham, Kent, on Nov. 5, 1848. He was educated at St. Paul's School, 1858-67, and was senior Campden Exhibitioner in 1867. He proceeded to Trinity College, Cambridge; was elected scholar in 1868; and graduated as second wrangler in the Mathematical Tripos of 1871. In that year he was elected Fellow of Trinity, and was appointed assistant-tutor at the same time; tutor in 1883; and senior tutor in 1886, retaining this position until 1893. In 1887 he received the degree of Sc.D. from his own University. He was elected Fellow of the Royal Society in 1875; was President of the Cambridge Philosophical Society, 1882-84, of the London Mathematical Society, 1884-86, and of the Royal Astronomical Society, 1886-88. He was Moderator in 1877, and examiner for the Mathematical Tripos in 1878, and (second post only) in 1886, 1887, and 1888. Dr. Glaisher's writings, all of which are mathematical, relate principally to the subjects of "Elliptic Functions," "Definite Integrals," "Theory of Numbers," mathematical tables, and mathematical bibliography. In 1894 he edited the "Collected Mathematical Papers" of H. J. S. Smith. He has been editor of The Messenger of Mathematics since 1871, and of the Quarterly Journal of Pure and Applied Mathematics since 1878. Addresses: Trinity College, Cambridge; and Athenæum.

GLANUSK, Lord. See BAILEY, SIR JOSEPH RUSSELL.

GLASGOW AND GALLOWAY, Bishop of. See HARRISON, THE RIGHT REV. WILLIAM THOMAS.

GLAZEBROOK, The Rev. Michael George, Head-master of Clifton College, is the son of M. G. Glazebrook, a merchant, and was born on Aug. 4, 1853. He was educated at Dulwich College, and at Balliol College, Oxford, where he took firsts in Classical and Mathematical Moderations; in 1876, a second in the Final School of Mathematics; and in 1877 a first in Lit. Hum. In 1878 he was appointed an Assistant-Master at Harrow, in 1888 High Master of Manchester Grammar School, and in 1891 Head-master of Clifton College. He has published editions of the classics, "Lessons from the Old Testament," and has written on the subject of education. Address: School House, Clifton College.

Electrical Standards Committee of the Association. He has acted as Examiner in the University of London, the Victoria University, and the University of Wales, as well as for the Mathematical and Natural Science Tripos at Cambridge. He was Hopkins Prizeman, 1888; is the author of various papers on Mathematical and Experimental Physics published in the Transactions of the Royal Society and elsewhere; and of a Text-book of Physical Optics; and (jointly with Mr. W. N. Shaw) a Text-book of Practical Physics. He has also written a Life of Maxwell for the Century of Science Series, and the article on Newton in the "National Dictionary of Biography." He is the author of Text-books on Physics published by the Pitt Press. His writings treat chiefly of optical and electrical questions. One of the most important contains a verification of Fresnel's theory of double refraction for a bi-axial crystal; while others deal with the absolute resistance of the B.A. Unit, and the specific resistance of mercury. In some papers published in the Philosophical Magazine, the theory of double refraction is treated from a de-

South Kensington. At tions of 1886 and 1892, returned for South Kensington that constituency 1886-95 he was Chairman Conservative M.P.'s. He the Press Fund, and a paper Society; Vice-President of the Institute of Journalism Master and Trustee of the League. He was knighted created a baronet in 1887 to the peerage in 1895 by Glenesk, of Glenesk, in married, in 1870, Alice F daughter of the late Lord and sister of the fourth Duke Addresses: 139 Piccadilly House, Hampstead Heath

GLENN, Robert J.P., Recorder of Croydon 5, 1844, in London, and late R. Glenn, by his wife daughter of the Rev. Charles was educated at Christ Church he became a "Grecian," and an exhibition at the and sat there for some years as Advising Assessor. He established the Wood Post, which was contributed to by the late Professor Palmer and other writers of eminence; was appointed first recorder of Croydon in 1889, and is, by virtue of his office, a J.P. for the borough; the author of "A Manual of the Laws affecting Medical Men," and is Standing Counsel to the Hospital Saturday Fund. He married, in 1871, Eleanor, daughter of Harry Hayward, Esq., of Wilsford, Wilts, and has issue two sons, Cecil Hayward and Hugh Wesley, and one daughter, Elsie Glenn. Addresses: Coombe Hill House, South Croydon, Surrey; Chambers, 1 Marcourt Buildings, Temple, E.C.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL,
Bishop of. See ELLICOTT, THE RIGHT
REV. CHARLES JOHN.

GLOUVET, Jules de. See QUESNAY
DE BEAUREPAIRE, JULES.

GLOVER, James Grey, M.D. Edin. (1864), is the sixth son of the late Alderman Glover, J.P., of South Shields, and was born in that town on May 11, 1832. He studied in the University of Edinburgh; has been on the active staff of the Lancet since 1862, first under the late Dr. James G. Wakley, and now under the joint editorship of Mr. Thomas H. Wakley and Mr. Thomas Wakley. Dr. Glover is a member of the General Medical Council of Education and Registration of the United Kingdom. He was elected to that body in November 1886, under the provisions of the Medical Act of that year, as direct representative of the medical profession in England and Wales, together with Mr. Wheelhouse, of Leeds, and Sir Walter B. Foster, M.D., M.P., of Birmingham. Since then Dr. Glover has been twice re-elected, in 1891 and 1896 respectively. In 1897 he was made a Justice of the Peace for the county of London. In politics Dr. Glover is a Liberal Unionist, and is chairman of the Liberal Unionist Association for East Islington. Dr. Glover has been a member of the Metropolitan Hospital Sunday Fund since its formation in 1873. He married, in 1869, Mary, daughter of the late William Muller, Esq., of Clapton. Address: 25 Highway Place, W.

GLYN, The Right Rev. the Hon.
Edward Carr, Bishop of Peterborough, was born in London on Nov. 21, 1843, and is the eighth son of the first Lord Wolverton, and Marion, daughter of Pascoe Grenfell, M.P., of Taplow Court. He was educated at Harrow and at University College, Oxford, where he took his B.A. degree in 1866; M.A., 1870. In 1868 he was ordained, became curate of Doncaster, under the late Dean Vaughan, at that time Vicar of Doncaster, and in 1872 was preferred to the vicarage of Beverley. When, in 1875, Dr. Pigou, then Vicar of Doncaster, resigned, he returned there as Vicar, and, on the appointment of the present Archbishop of York to the Bishopric of Lichfield in 1878, he became Vicar of Kensington, in which cultured centre of the metropolis he ministered with the greatest social and philanthropic success among highly appreciative and sympathetic parishioners until his appointment, in 1897, to the Bishopric of Peterborough. He was chaplain to the Archbishop of York, 1877-93, and, since 1881, has been a chaplain to the Queen, having been appointed Chaplain-in-Ordinary in 1884. He was appointed Proctor for the clergy of London in the Lower House of the Convocation of Canterbury in 1891. Theologically he is described as a Neo-Evangelical, although he is no partisan. He married, in 1882, Lady Mary Campbell, daughter of the Duke of Argyll. Addresses: The Palace, Peterborough; and Athenæum.

GOBLET, René, French statesman, was born at Aire-sur-la-Lys, Sept. 26, 1828. He was called to the Bar at Amiens, and under the Empire took an active part in the establishment of a Liberal newspaper. He resigned his legal appointments in 1871, in order to enter political life, and was elected to the National Assembly. He identified himself with the Republican Left, and in the important debates in which he took part soon made his mark as an orator. At the General Election of 1876 he failed in his candidature for the representation of Amiens, but in the following year was successful, and in 1879 was appointed Under-Secretary of State for Justice. At the same time he took a prominent part in the affairs of his own town, and was Mayor of Amiens, and representative for its north-east division at the Council of the Somme. In August 1881 he was re-elected for Amiens, and in M. de Freycinet's Cabinet of 1892 was appointed Minister of the Interior. He resigned with his colleagues on the Egyptian question on July 29 of the same year. After the fall of M. Ferry, M. Goblet was appointed Minister of Education and Public Worship in the cabinet of M. Brisson, in which capacity he introduced many important reforms. He resigned office with the Brisson Ministry in 1886, but was appointed to the same post under the new Prime Minister, M. de Freycinet (January 1886). In the long and important debate before the Senate on the subject of lay organisation and primary education, Saco, Maine, Aug. 3, 1839. He graduated at Amherst College in 1860, and received his degree of M.D. at Bowdoin College and at Harvard in 1863. He began the practice of his profession at Portland, Maine, and was soon appointed Instructor in Anatomy at the medical school located there. In 1867 he became Professor of Natural Science and Applied Chemistry in Bowdoin; and in 1868 was given the chair of Materia Medica in the Maine Medical School, and was also made a Member of the Board of Agriculture. These positions he resigned in 1872, to accept the Instructorship in Botany, and the University Lectureship on Vegetable Physiology at Harvard. In 1873 he was made Assistant-Professor of Vegetable Physiology; in 1878 Professor of Botany; in 1879 Director of the Botanic Garden; and in 1888 Fisher Professor of Natural History. He was elected a Member of the Council of Harvard College Library in 1875; and a Member of the Faculty of the Museum of Comparative Anatomy in 1881. Professor Goodale was President of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in 1890. He is a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, of the National Academy of Sciences at Washington, and of many other scientific bodies. He has published numerous works on Physiological and Economic Botany, and critical reviews in the American Journal of Science, of which he is an associate editor.

GOODALL, Frederick, R.A., son of the late Mr. Edward Goodall, the eminent engraver (who died April 11, 1870), was born in London, Sept. 17, 1822. Before he was fifteen he had won the "Isis," and the large silver medal of the Society of Arts. In 1838 he went on a sketching tour through Normandy. In 1839, when but seventeen, he exhibited his first picture at the Academy—"Card Players." Subsequent visits to Normandy, Brittany, and Ireland supplied him with materials for a long series of popular pictures. One of these early pictures, "The Return from Christening," received a prize of £50 from the British Institution. Two others, "The Tired Soldier," 1842, and "The Village Holiday," 1847, are now in the National Gallery. Other important pictures drawn from old English life were "Hunt the Slipper" and "Raising the Maypole," 1851. A charming scene from Milton's "L'Allegro" was in a walk he had seldom trod. In 1853 he was elected an Associate of the Academy. Two years later he exhibited "An Episode of the Happier Days of Charles I.," representing a water party in the royal barge at Hampton Court; and after this came

"The Swing," 1855, and "Cranmer at the Traitor's Gate," 1856, engraved in line by his father. In 1857 Mr. Goodall visited Venice and Chioggia, where he made studies for "Felice Ballarin reciting Tasso," which was not completed for the following Exhibition, but exhibited in 1859. The winter of 1858 and the spring of 1859 he spent in Egypt, and seven pictures have been the result of that journey. In 1863 he was elected a Royal Academician. Since then he has exhibited "The Song of the Nubian Slave," his diploma work, and "The Messenger from Sinai at the Wells of Moses," in 1864; "Rising of the Nile," in 1865; "Hagar and Ishmael," in 1866; "Mater Purissima," and "Mater Dolorosa," in 1868; "Jochabed," in 1870; "The Head of the Horse at Prayer," in 1872; "An Arab Improvisatore," and "Subsiding of the Nile," in 1873; "Rachel and her Flock," "Agriculture in the Valley of the Nile," "A Fruit Woman of Cairo," "A Seller of Doves," and "The Day of Palm Offering," in 1875; "An Intruder on the Bedouin's Pasture," "The Holy Mother," and "Sheep-washing near the Pyramids of Ghizeh," in 1876; "Glencoe," "The Time of Roses," and "The Water-carriers: Egypt," in 1877; "Oxhey Place, Herts," "The Daughters of Laban," and "Palm Sunday," in 1883; "Water for the Camp," "Sarah and Isaac," and "Hagar and Ishmael," in 1879; "Moving to Fresh Pastures," "Time of the Overflow, Egypt," "Hannah's Vow," "An Egyptian Pastoral," and "Holy Childhood," in 1880; "The Road to Mecca," "The Return from Mecca," "Artist and Model," and "Rebecca," in 1881; "Memphis," and "The Arrival at the Well," in 1882; "Crossing the Desert," "Returning from the Pasture, Ghizeh," "A Coffee-Shop, Cairo," "Outside the Tent," and "Water for the Camp," 1883; "A New Light in the Harem," "The Flight into Egypt," "Sword of the Faithful," 1884; "Finding of Moses," "The Holy Child," "Gordon's Last Messenger," 1885; "Misery and Mercy," 1887; "Leading the Flock," 1889; and "The Thames from Windsor Castle," 1890; "Isles of Loch Lomond," 1891; "Spinners and Weavers," 1892; "Sheep Shearers in Egypt," 1892; "The Waters of the Nile," 1893; "The Palm Grove," 1894; "Laban's Pasture," 1895. Mr. Goodall has painted many portraits, of which the following is a list: "Alice," "Thomas Tarry, Esq.," "Sir John M'Neill," "Sir Henry Havelock," "Lady Grantley," "Sir Moses Montefiore," "The late Thomas Blackwell, Esq.," "The late Robt. Blackwell, Esq.," "Mrs. Phipps Eyre," "Mrs. Goodall," "Charles Randall, Esq.," "J. Barrow, Esq.," "Mrs. J. Barrow," "Mrs.

Oates," "Miss Beatrice Shaw," "The Hon. Mrs. R. Devereux," "Beatty Kingston, Esq.," "W. K. D'Arcy, Esq.," "Miss Lena D'Arcy," "Sir Oscar Clayton," "Lady Dorothy Nevill," "Miss Rica Goodall," 1871-1894; "Mary Caroline, Duchess of Sutherland," 1897; "Anderson Crichtett," "Henry A. Blyth," 1898. His recent paintings are: "The Way from the Village," 1896; "The Ploughman and Shepherdess" (now in the National Gallery), 1897; and "A Gilded Cage," "The Ancient Causeway, Egypt," and "An Egyptian Village," 1898. Address: Rosenstead, Avenue Road, N.W.

GOODHART, James Frederick, M.D., F.R.C.P., M.R.C.S., received his medical education at Guy's Hospital, and at Aberdeen University, where he graduated M.D. in 1873. In 1871 he obtained his C.M. with highest honours, and special honours for his Graduation Thesis on "Artificial Tuberculosis." This was written while Dr. Goodhart was Assistant in the Pathological Department of the Hunterian Museum at the Royal College of Surgeons (England), where he also largely contributed to the formation of the Museum Catalogue. In 1867 he obtained the Gold Medal in Clinical Medicine at Guy's Hospital. He was at one time Lecturer on Pathology at Guy's, and is now Physician there. He is consulting Physician to the Evelina Hospital, Fellow of the Royal Med. and Chir. Society, and has examined in Medicine at the Royal Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons, and delivered, at the former, the Bradshaw Lectures in 1875, his subject being "Morbid Arterial Tension." He is known for his diagnoses, and has published a number of important articles in the "Guy's Hospital Reports" (1869-90), in Allbutt's "System of Medicine," the New Sydenham Society's "Atlas of Pathology," &c. In 1891 he delivered the Harveian lectures, his subject being "Common Neuroses." His "Students' Guide to the Diseases of Children" has passed through many editions. Address: 25 Portland Place, W.

GORDON, John B., born in Upson County, Georgia, Feb. 6, 1832, was educated at the University of Georgia, and admitted to the Bar. At the beginning of the Civil War he entered the Confederate army as captain, and rose to the rank of lieutenant-general. He became prominent towards the end of the war, especially during the protracted siege of Petersburg by General Grant. He commanded at the close of the war one wing of Lee's army, and led the last assault at Appomattox Court House. The State of Georgia having been "reconstructed" as a member of the Union, he was, in 1868, the Democratic candidate for Governor, but his Republican opponent was declared to be elected. In 1873 he was chosen Senator from Georgia, and re-elected in 1879, but resigned his seat in 1880. He took a leading part in the Senate, and although a Democrat, gave a moderate support to the policy of President Hayes. On his retirement from the Senate he became interested in various railroad enterprises, but in 1886 was elected Governor of Georgia, an office to which he was re-elected in 1888. He has been succeeded therein by Governor Northen. In 1890 he was again elected United States Senator, and served till 1897.

GORDON-CUMMING, Miss Constance Frederica, sixth daughter of Sir William Gordon-Cumming, of Altyre and Gordonstoun, Morayshire, was born at Altyre, May 26, 1837. Homes so beautiful early inspired in her a deep love of nature, but for the first thirty years of her life, her wanderings were entirely confined to Great Britain. Then an invitation to join a married sister in the Himalayas resulted in her penetrating to the boundaries of Chinese Tartary, and, the taste for travel being now fairly awakened, the next twelve years were spent in various Oriental countries and Pacific Isles. Miss Gordon-Cumming has published accounts of her travels in the following volumes: "In the Hebrides"; "Via Cornwall to Egypt"; "In the Himalayas"; "At Home in Fiji"; "A Lady's Cruise in a French Man-of-War"; "Fire Fountains of Hawaii"; "Granite Crags of California"; "Wanderings in China"; "Two Happy Years in Ceylon"; and, "Work for the Blind in China." The latter is now incorporated in "The Inventor of the Numeral Type for China" (published at 1s. nett by Messrs Downay & Co., London), which is an account of the life and work of the Rev. W. H. Murray, of Peking, telling how he adapted Braille's system of dots to represent numerals, and then numbered the sounds in Mandarin Chinese. Consequently books prepared in this type mark numbers only, and thirty of the simplest symbols ever devised, suffice for printing any book in Mandarin dialects, instead of a minimum of 4000 intricate Chinese characters. Books for both blind and sighted persons are printed by the blind students in the School for the Blind at Peking, and by this system the most ignorant peasants, either blind or sighted, can easily acquire the arts of reading and writing fluently in less than three months, whereas six years is the average time required by Chinamen to learn to read books in their own ideograph. There is every reason to believe that this system will prove an invaluable handmaid to common knowledge and civilisation, if not also to Christian missions, throughout the vast provinces in which Mandarin dialects are spoken. Its development is now Miss C. F. Gordon-Cumming's chief interest. Address: Crief, Perthshire.

GORDON-LENNOX, The Right Hon. Lord Walter Charles, was born in London on July 29, 1865, and is the youngest son of the first Duke of Richmond and Gordon. He was educated at Eton and Christ Church, Oxford, and was appointed private secretary to the Marquis of Salisbury in 1890. He represented South-West Sussex in Parliament from 1894 to 1894, and was Treasurer to the Household in 1911-92. He is married to Alice, a daughter of the late Hon. G. Grant. Address: 28 Lower Sloane Street, S.W.

GORE, The Rev. Charles, M.A., D.D. Edin., is the son of the Hon. Charles Alexander Gore, by a daughter of the 4th Earl of Beauchamp, who was widow of the Earl of Kerry, and the nephew of the 4th Earl of Arran, and was born in 1853. He was formerly a Fellow of Trinity College, Oxford, and is now Canon of Westminster. He was the first Principal of the Pusey Memorial Library in Oxford, and was named as one of the literary executors by the will of the late Canon Liddon. He resigned his post at the Pusey House in May 1893. He is probably best known to the world as the editor of "Lux Mundi," and author of the essay on "The Holy Spirit and Inspiration" contained in that volume, 1890. Among his other works may be mentioned, "The Church and the Ministry," 1893; the Bampton Lectures for 1891 on "The Incarnation of the Son of God," "Roman Catholic Claims," an edition of Romanes' "Thoughts on Religion," 1894; "Dissertations" and "The Creed of the Christian," 1895; and expositions of "The Sermon on the Mount," 1896, and "The Epistle to the Ephesians," 1898; all of which have run through several editions. Address: Little Cloisters, Westminster.

GORE, George, LL.D., F.R.S., was born Jan. 22, 1826, at Bristol, and attended a private school until the age of twelve years; but has otherwise been entirely self-educated and self-trained, without the aid of scientific teachers, lectures, or lessons, or the advantage of working with scientific persons. Yet so well did he educate himself, and so important were his scientific discoveries, that he was elected a F.R.S. in 1861, and received the honorary D.D. of Edinburgh University in 1862, was Lecturer on Physics and Chemistry during many years at the University of King Edward VII, Birmingham, the author of "The Principles of Electro-deposition," 1867; "The Principles of Electro-metallurgy," 1877; "The Scientific Basis of National Progress and Wealth," 1882; "Electro-chemistry," 1883; "The Art of Electroplating," 1884; "Refining of Metals," 1884. He has numerous scientific discoveries in chemistry, which have appeared in a series of papers in the Philosophical Transactions of the Royal Society, the Proceedings of that Society, the Proceedings of the Birmingham Philosophical and Scientific Society, the Philosophical Magazine, &c. A list of his original electrical researches in "The Electrician's Directory," p. 37. He is chiefly distinguished by his series in, and writings upon, subjects of Electro-chemistry, Electroplating, and Chemistry; his early investigations of the highly volatile substance anhydrous hydrogen fluoride; the fluorides; his discovery of the "antimony," and his recent invention of a "voltaic balance," by means of which has been enabled to discover and to measure invisible molecular changes (to measure their rates) in a liquid, to measure the effect of chlorine-water, and to detect the presence of one part by weight of a substance in 500,000 million parts of water; the first to observe the remarkable change which occurs in the dull red heat. His original discovery of the decolorising effect of chlorine on crude phosphorus gave rise to the present mode of bleaching, and his solution for electroplating nickel, made known in 1861, was the first to be commercially used in electro-plating articles with his writings on the subject of scientific research an article on "The National Importance of Scientific Research," published in the Review, April 1873, excited attention. In the year 1891 a grant of £150 a year was made in recognition of the national importance of numerous scientific discoveries and laborious experimental researches in the Proceedings of the Birmingham Philosophical Society, 1891-92, p. 63-139, he discovered the fact that the amount of voltaic force per molecular weight of substances in the exciting liquid of a cell is usually increased by the addition Privy Councillor in 1890. Sir John Gorst is greatly interested in all questions concerning education. He was one of the English delegates at the Berlin Labour Conference (1890), and in 1891 he was conspicuous for his advanced attitude with regard to the Labour Question. After a visit to Ireland, he was appointed Financial Secretary to the Treasury in November 1891, and held that office until the following July. In 1892 he was elected Conservative member for Cambridge University, which he now represents in Parliament. He married Mary, daughter of Rev. Lorenzo Moore, Christ Church, New Zealand. Addresses: Queen Anne's Mansions, S.W.; and Howes Close, Cambridge.

GOSCHEN, The Right Hon. George Joachim, M.P., LL.D., D.C.L., F.R.S., son of the late William Henry Goschen, a London merchant, of German extraction, was born Aug. 10, 1831. He received his education at Rugby, under Drs. Tait and Goulburn, and at Oriel College, Oxford, where he graduated B.A., taking a first-class in Lit. Hum. in 1853. Soon after he became a merchant in partnership with Messrs. Fröhling and Goschen, of Austinfriars, and a Director of the Bank of England; but he retired from the partnership on taking office in the Russell-Gladstone ministry. He was returned in the Liberal interest for the City of London in May 1863, on the death of Mr. W. Wood; and he took an active part in the movement for throwing open the universities to dissenters, and the abolition of religious tests. Mr. Goschen, who was re-elected for the City of London, at the head of the poll, at the general election in July 1865, was made Vice-President of the Board of Trade, Nov. 20, 1865, when he was sworn of the Privy Council, and Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster and a Cabinet Minister, Jan. 26, 1866, retiring with the Russell ministry in June of that year. On the accession of Mr. Gladstone to power, in December 1868, he was appointed President of the Poor-Law Board, which office he held to March 1871, when he succeeded Mr. Childers as First Lord of the Admiralty. He went out of office with his party in February 1874. At the general election which was held in that year he was the only Liberal candidate returned for the City. In 1876 Mr. Goschen and M. Joubert were chosen as delegates of the British and French holders of the Egyptian debts to concert measures for the conversion of the debts. They proceeded to Egypt, where they were received by the Khedive (August 14), and eventually an agreement was signed at Cairo (November 18) for a

reorganisation of the finances and the debt of Egypt. On July 17, 1878, Goschen issued an address to the electors of the City of London, declining to come forward again at the next election, on the ground that his vote on the County Franchise question had been in accord with the views generally entertained by the party. Mr. Goschen attended the International Monetary Conference held at the Foreign Office, in August 1878. In May 1880, immediately after Mr. Gladstone's accession to power, Mr. Goschen consented to undertake the special duties of Ambassador Extraordinary at Constantinople, in place of Sir Henry Layard, who retired nominally on leave of absence, but in fact finally. Before proceeding to Constantinople Mr. Goschen visited the most important political centres in Europe; this was the first step towards the negotiation of a European concert for the completion of the unperformed parts of the Treaty of Berlin. In 1881 the ambassadors of the Great Powers in the Conference at Constantinople, after long and painful negotiations, joined in a note to the Government recommending the acceptance of the utmost that Turkey could be made to yield. The new frontier line included a greater part of Epirus, with Janina and Metsovo, to Turkey, giving Greece a session of almost all Thessaly, and placing the command of the Gulf of Arta in the hands of the Greek Government. The Cabinet of Athens was forced, under the pressure of the British Government, to agree to this frontier line. Greece, deprived of nearly one-third of her territory promised to her at Berlin, was admitted by all the Powers to the settlement of Turkey to these terms, obtained chiefly through the persistence and firmness of Mr. Goschen. His mission came to an end in April 1881. Mr. Goschen was appointed an Ecclesiastical Commissioner for England in November 1882. He has written largely on foreign questions, and his treatise on "The Principles of the Foreign Exchanges," 5th edition, has been translated into French by Léon Say. He has published speeches in pamphlet form, among which are "Speech on Oxford University Abolition Bill," 1865, and his "Speech on Bankruptcy Legislation and other Commercial Subjects," 1868, and "Address on Education and Economic Subjects," 1885. At the general election of 1880 Mr. Goschen, who had sat for Ripon since his retirement from the representation of the City of London in 1880, was elected for the City, in a severe contest (in which he was defeated by a Radical, but obtained a majority), to represent the Eastern division of Edinburgh. In 1886, however, he was defeated by a large Gladstone majority. From 1887 to the present time he has represented the St. George's Hanover Square Division. Mr. Goschen had taken a foremost place in the campaign against the Home Rule Bill. On the resignation of Lord Randolph Churchill in December 1886, and when Lord Salisbury had failed to induce Lord Hartington to join his Government, Mr. Goschen was prevailed upon to accept the Chancellorship of the Exchequer, though he declined the leadership of the House. Mr. Goschen's scheme for the reduction of the interest on the National Debt was cordially accepted by all parties, and successfully brought to a conclusion in July 1889. Mr. Gladstone, however, vigorously attacked his proposals with reference to the Death Duties. In 1895 he was appointed first Lord of the Admiralty. He was elected Lord Rector of the University of Aberdeen in 1874 and 1888, and of the University of Edinburgh in 1890. He married, in 1857, Lucy, a daughter of John Dalley. This lady died in February 1898. Addresses: Admiralty House, Whitehall; Seacox Heath, Hawkhurst, Kent; and Athenæum.

GOSCHEN, William Edward, Minister at Belgrade, was born in 1849, and entered the Diplomatic Service in 1869. Having served at Madrid, Buenos Ayres, and Paris, he was promoted to a second Secretaryship at Rio de Janeiro in 1877. In 1880 he was attached to the Right Hon. G. J. Goschen's embassy to Constantinople, where he became Secretary in 1881. In 1885 he went to Peking, to Copenhagen in 1888, and to Lisbon in 1890. In 1893 he was promoted to be Secretary of Embassy at Washington, and was transferred to St. Petersburg in 1894. There he was granted the rank of Minister Plenipotentiary during the absence of the Ambassador in 1897. In July 1898 he was promoted from St. Petersburg to succeed Sir Edmund Fane at Belgrade.

GOSFORD, Earl of, Sir Archibald Brabazon Sparrow Acheson, Bart., K.P., was born on Aug. 19, 1841, and is the son of the 3rd Earl and the only daughter of the 10th Earl of Meath. He succeeded his father in 1864. He was educated at Harrow. He is married to a daughter of the 7th Duke of Manchester. Addresses: 22 Mansfield Street, W.; and Gosford Castle, co. Armagh.

GOSLING, Audley Charles, Minister in Chili, was born in 1836, and having passed through Sandhurst, served for a short time, 1855-57, in the army, but entered the Diplomatic Service in 1859. He was promoted to be second Secretary in 1870, and in 1873 went to Athens, afterwards to Madrid, Copenhagen, and Stuttgart. He became Consul-General to Hungary in 1879, Secretary at Madrid in 1885, and at St. Petersburg in 1888. He was promoted to be Minister to the Central American Republic in 1890, a post which he exchanged for his present post in 1897.

GOSSE, Edmund William, M.A., only son of the late distinguished zoologist, Philip Henry Gosse, F.R.S., was born in London, Sept. 21, 1849, and educated in Devonshire. He was appointed Assistant-Librarian at the British Museum in 1867, but has held since 1875 the post of Translator to the Board of Trade. In 1872 and 1874 he visited Norway, Denmark, and Sweden, for the purpose of studying the literature of these countries; and in 1877 he visited Holland with a similar purpose. His poetical writings consist of "Madrigals, Songs, and Sonnets" (in conjunction with a friend), 1870; "On Viol and Flute," lyrical poems, 1873; "King Erik," a tragedy, 1876; "The Unknown Lover," a drama, 1878; "New Poems," 1879; "Firdausi in Exile, and other Poems," 1886; and "In Russet and Silver," 1894. Mr. Gosse wrote "The Masque of Painters," which was performed by the Royal Institute of Painters in Water-Colours, on May 19, 1885, and on subsequent evenings, with great success. A collected edition of Mr. Gosse's poems, in three volumes, appeared in 1897. His chief prose writings are a volume of "Northern Studies," 1879, consisting of critical essays in Scandinavian, Dutch, and German literature; a life of Gray, 1882 (English Men of Letters Series); about thirty essays contributed to Ward's "English Poets," in 1880-81; "Seventeenth Century Studies, a contribution to the history of English Poetry," 1883; "From Shakespeare to Pope, an inquiry into the causes of the rise of classical poetry in England," 1885; a "Life of Philip Henry Gosse, the naturalist," 1890; "Gossip in a Library," 1891; "The Secret of Narcisse," a romance, 1892; "Questions at Issue," a volume of essays, 1893; and "The Jacobean Poets," 1894; "Critical Kit-Kats," 1896; and "A Short History of English Literature," 1897. He has also edited a volume of "English Odes," 1881; the works of Thomas Lodge, in 4 vols., 1882; a complete edition of the works of Gray, in 4 vols., 1884; the writings of Beddoes, in verse (1890) and prose (1891); and a series of translated foreign novels, "The International Library." He introduced Ibsen to the English public in 1872, and he has published the authorised translations of "Hedda Gabler," 1891, and (with Mr. Archer) of the "Master Builder,"

1893. In the spring of 1884, Mr. Gosse was elected Clark Lecturer in English Literature at Trinity College, Cambridge, in the place of Mr. Leslie Stephen, who retired; and in 1885 he received the honorary degree of M.A. from the University of Cambridge. He was re-elected Clark Lecturer in 1886, and retired in 1889. In the winter of 1884-85, Mr. Gosse, who had been invited to deliver the Lowell Lectures that season, visited America, and lectured not only in Boston, but before Harvard and Yale Colleges, before the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, and in New York. He is now engaged in editing a series of Short Histories of Literature, of which Ancient Greek, French, English, Italian, and Spanish have already appeared. In 1875 Mr. Gosse married Ellen, daughter of the late Dr. G. R. Epps, a lady who is well known as an artist, and as a contributor to the principal exhibitions. Address: 29 Delamere Terrace, W.

GOT, François Jules Edmond, an eminent French comedian, born at Lignerolles, Orne, Oct. 1, 1822, received his education at the Collège Charlemagne, and after being employed for a short time at the Prefecture of the Seine, entered M. Provost's class at the Conservatoire, where, in 1842, he carried off the second, and in 1843 the first, prize for comedy. After a year's compulsory service in the army, he made his first bow to a Parisian audience in 1844 at the Comédie Française, of which Society he became a member in 1850. M. Got's reputation steadily increased, and he is now most deservedly regarded as one of the greatest actors on the French stage. He excels in the representation of the leading comic parts in the old classical dramas, and has created scores of original characters in modern pieces. M. Got's name has been frequently before the public in connection with the internal dissensions of the Comédie Française. When M. Got and his colleagues of the Théâtre Français visited London in 1871, they were entertained at a public dinner at the Crystal Palace. On Aug. 4, 1881, M. Turquet, the Under-Secretary of State for Fine Arts, publicly conferred the Cross of the Legion of Honour on M. Got at the Conservatoire. It was, however, as Professor of the Conservatoire and Maître de Conférences at the Ecole Normale Supérieure, that M. Got received this high recompense for his services to art. M. Got again visited London with his colleagues of the French Theatre in the summer of 1893, and appeared in "Les Plaideurs" and other parts. On Jan. 12, 1895, he married Mdlle. Tréville, one of his pupils, and soon after retired from the stage lives at 11 Rue Hameau, Boulogne, Paris.

GOTCH, Francis, M.A. Oxon, and B.Sc. Lond., M.R.C.S. and F. born at Bristol in 1853, is the son of late Rev. F. W. Gotch, LL.D., one of the Old Testament Revision Committee. Receiving his early education at Amer Hall School, he proceeded to Univ College, London, being appointed a Christ Scholar at University Hall in 1873. In 1873 he became a Graduate in Arts at the University of London, and was appointed University Scholar in Logic and Moral Philosophy. Having turned his study of science, he graduated in that subject in 1875, and subsequently became a member of the Royal College of Surgeons in 1881. From this time he devoted himself to Physiology, and studied in the laboratory of Du Bois-Reymond. In 1882 he was elected Sharpey Physiological Scholar in the laboratory of Univ College, London, under Professor B. Sanderson. In 1883 he proceeded to Oxford as Demonstrator in the Physiological Laboratory of the University, receiving the honorary degree of D. of Arts in 1885. He was appointed Professor of Physiology in Univ College, Liverpool, in 1891, and was Fellow of the Royal Society in the following year. In 1895 he was elected Fife Professor of Physiology at the University of Oxford, and a Fellow of Magdalen College, Oxford. Prof. Gotch's researches have been chiefly directed to the elucidation of fundamental questions as to the functions of excitable structures, muscles, nervous trical organs, spinal cord, and brain in conjunction with Professor Victor H. He carried out a prolonged experimental investigation into the functions of the central nervous system by the use of a method, that of observing and controlling the electrical changes in nerve-fibre nerve-centres when these are in a state of activity and repose respectively. His researches were made the subject of a Croonian Lecture at the Royal Society in 1891. Besides several communications on various physiological and medical questions, Professor Gotch has published the following papers: "Changes in the Membrane of the Spinal Cord, following Excitation of the Cortex Cerebri" (Proceedings of the Society, 1888), in conjunction with Horsley; "The Electrical Organ of the Skate" (Journal of Physiology, Paris, 1889), in conjunction with Prof. Sanderson; "Communication and Demonstration to the Physiological Congress at Bale" (Centralblatt für Physiologie, 1

"The Electrical Relations of the Brain and Spinal Cord" (Proceedings of the Royal Institution of Great Britain, 1890); "The Mammalian Nervous System" (Croonian Lecture, Proceedings of the Royal Society, 1891, Phil. Trans., 1891), in conjunction with Prof. Horsley; and "Temperature and Excitability," communicated to the Physiological Congress at Liège, 1892, and published in the Journal of Physiology, 1896. Other recent publications are: "The Electromotive Properties of Malapterurus" (Phil. Trans., 1896); "The Electrical Changes in Nerve" (Proceedings of the Royal Society, 1898), &c. Address: The Lawn, Banbury Road, Oxford.

GOTT, The Right Rev. John, D.D., Bishop of Truro, was born on Christmas Day 1830, and is the youngest son of William Gott, Wyther Grange, Yorkshire, and Margaret Ewart, Mosley Hall, Liverpool. He was educated at Winchester and Brasenose College, Oxford, where he took his B.A. degree in 1853, and in 1873, when he became Vicar of Leeds, was made D.D. Ordained in 1857, he was for four years Curate at St. Nicholas, Great Yarmouth, and afterwards held the incumbency of the church of St. Andrew in the same town. He was appointed Perpetual Curate of Bramley, Leeds, in 1866, and became Vicar of Leeds in 1873 in succession to Dr. Woodford, who was raised to the See of Ely. He was Vicar and Rural Dean of Leeds until 1886, when, on Lord Alwyne Compton becoming Bishop of Ely, he succeeded his lordship as Dean of Worcester. The vicarage of Leeds has long been a stepping-stone to high preferment in the Church, having been held at different times by Dean Hook and Drs. Atlay and Jayne, in addition to the foregoing. Dr. Gott is a High Churchman, and is the author of "The Parish Priest of the Town," 1877; "The Ideals of a Parish," 1897. He became Bishop of Truro in June 1891. He married in 1858 Harriet, daughter of Whitaker Maitland, Loughton Hall, Essex. Addresses: Treynstown, Par Station, Cornwall; and Athenæum.

GOUGH, General Sir Charles John Stanley, G.C.B., V.C., brother of Sir Hugh Gough, entered the army (Bengal Cavalry) on March 20, 1848; Lieutenant, Sept. 1, 1849; Captain, June 9, 1857; Major, July 20, 1858; Lieut.-Colonel, Jan. 24, 1867; Colonel, Nov. 28, 1875; Major-General, July 2, 1885; Lieut.-General, June 5, 1889. Sir Charles Gough served throughout the Punjab campaign of 1848-49, including the action of Ramnugur, passage of the Chenab, and battles of Sadoolapore, Chillianwalla, and Goojerat (Medal with two clasps); served in the

Indian Mutiny campaign of 1857-58; was with the Guide Corps at the siege and capture of Delhi; was Commander of the Guide Cavalry in the affairs at Kurkonda on the 15th, and Rhotuck on the 17th and 18th of August 1857, engaged in the cavalry affair in rear of the camp on Sept. 11. He served with Brigadier Showers' column in the Delhi and Jhujur districts; was engaged in the action of Narnole on Nov. 16; served with Hodson's Horse in the actions of Gungeeree, Putteallee, Mynpoorie, and Shumshabad (wounded); commanded a squadron of Hodson's Horse in the action of Meangunge; was present throughout the siege and capture of Lucknow (Medal with two clasps, Victoria Cross, and Brevet of Major). He was awarded the V.C., 1st, For gallantry in an affair of Khurkondah, near Rhotuck, on Aug. 15, 1857, in which he saved his brother, who was wounded, and killed two of the enemy; 2nd, For gallantry on Aug. 18, when he led a troop of the Guide Cavalry in a charge, and cut down two of the enemy's sowars, with one of whom he had a desperate hand-to-hand combat; 3rd, For gallantry, on Jan. 27, 1858, at Shumshebad, where in a charge he attacked one of the enemy's leaders, and pierced him with his sword, which was carried out of his hand in the mêlée; he defended himself with his revolver, and shot two of the enemy; 4th, For gallantry, on Feb. 23, 1858, at Meangunge, where he came to the assistance of Brevet-Major O. H. St. George Anson, and killed his opponent, immediately afterwards cutting down another of the enemy in the same gallant manner. Sir Charles Gough served with the Bhootan Expedition in 1864-65, and was present at the capture of Dalingkote and Bala stockades (mentioned in Despatches). He served in command of the Cavalry Brigade in Afghanistan, 1878-80; was present at the capture of Ali Musjid (Despatches); commanded the force at the action of Futtehabad on April 2, 1879, completely defeating the Afghans (Despatches); and in December 1879 he commanded the force at the defence of the Jagdalak Pass and subsequent advance on and relief of Kabul (Despatches). He commanded a brigade at the action of Saidabad (Despatches), and was subsequently made K.C.B. (Medal and two clasps). On the withdrawal of the army from Afghanistan, he was selected to command the force left to hold the Khaibar Pass. Subsequently he served in command of the Hyderabad contingent from 1881 to 1885, and of the Oudh Division, Bengal army, from 1885 to 1890. He was created G.C.B. in 1895. He published in 1897 a work on "The Sikhs and the Sikh War." He married Harriette, daughter of the late

J. W. Power, M.P., in 1859. Address: Innislionagh, Clonmel, Ireland.

GOUGH, General Sir Hugh Henry, G.C.B., V.C., was born Nov. 14, 1833, and is the third son of George Gough, of Rathronan House, Clonmel. He was educated by a private tutor, and entered the Bengal army on Sept. 4, 1853; Lieutenant, Aug. 9, 1855; Captain, Jan. 4, 1861; Brevet Major, Jan. 5, 1861; Major, Sept. 4, 1873; Brevet Lieut.-Col., March 30, 1869; Lieut.-Col., Sept. 4, 1879; Brevet Col., Oct. 1, 1877; Major-General, Feb. 6, 1887. Sir Hugh Gough served as Adjutant of Hodson's Horse throughout the siege of Delhi (wounded); commanding a wing of the regiment in the actions of Bolundshur, Allyghur, and Agra, relief of Lucknow by Lord Clyde, battle of Cawnpore, affairs at Seraighat and Khodagunge, siege and capture of Lucknow (severely wounded and two horses killed), and action of Ranode (mentioned in Despatches on several occasions for "distinguished bravery," and thanked by the Governor-General of India, Brevet Major, Victoria Cross, and Medal with three clasps). He received the V.C. for the following circumstances: "Lieutenant Gough, when in command of a party of Hodson's Horse near Alumbagh on Nov. 12, 1857, particularly distinguished himself by his forward bearing in charging across a swamp and capturing two guns, although they were defended by a vastly superior body of the enemy. On this occasion he had his horse wounded in two places, and his turban cut through by a sword, whilst engaged in a combat with three sepoys. Lieutenant Gough particularly distinguished himself also near Jellalabad, Lucknow, on Feb. 25, 1858, by showing a brilliant example to his regiment, when ordered to charge the enemy's guns; and, by his gallant and forward conduct he enabled his men to effect their object. On this occasion he engaged himself in a series of single combats, until at last he was disabled by a musket-ball through the leg while charging two sepoys with fixed bayonets. Lieutenant Gough on this day had two horses killed under him, a shot through his helmet, and another through his scabbard, besides being severely wounded." He commanded the 12th Bengal Cavalry in the Abyssinian campaign in 1868, and was present at the capture of Magdala (mentioned in Despatches, C.B., and Medal); served throughout the Afghan War of 1878-80; commanded the cavalry of the Koorum Force in 1878-79; and was present at the capture of the Peiwar Kotal, in the pursuit of the Afghans over the Shutargardan, in the affair of the Mangior Pass, and during the operations in Khost. He served with the Kabul

Field Force in 1879-80 as Brigadier-General of Communications, and was present in the engagement at Charasiab, and in the various operations around Kabul in December 1879 (wounded); accompanied Sir Frederick Roberts in the march to Kandahar in command of the Cavalry Brigade, and was present at the reconnaissance of August 31 in command of the troops engaged, and in the cavalry pursuit of the following day (frequently mentioned in Despatches, K.C.B., Medal with four clasps, and bronze decoration). He became a Lieutenant-General in 1891, and was on the staff of the Bengal army from 1887 to March 1892. He was appointed Keeper of the Crown Jewels in the Tower of London in 1898. In 1897 he published "Old Memories." Address: Tower of London.

GOULD, Francis Carruthers, assistant-editor of the Westminster Gazette, was born at Barnstable on Dec. 2, 1844, and is the second son of R. D. Gould, architect. He was educated privately, and was for many years on the London Stock Exchange, which he was glad eventually to forsake. He is famous as a caricaturist, and for many years the Christmas number of Fun was illustrated by him. He was at one time on the Pall Mall Gazette, and, since its foundation, has drawn the notable cartoons in the Westminster. He is also caricaturist to the Sketch. Address: Endsleigh Street, Tavistock Square, W.C.

GOULD, Nathaniel, novelist and journalist, was born on Dec. 21, 1857, at Manchester. He is the son of the late Nathaniel Gould, of Manchester and Farnbury Grange, Derbyshire, and of Mary, daughter of the late William Wright, of Bradbourn, Derbyshire. He was educated at Strathmore House School, Southport. His publications are: "The Double Event," 1891; "Running it Off" and "Jockey Jack," 1892; "Harry Dale's Jockey," "Banker and Broker," 1893; "Thrown Away," "Stuck Up," 1894; "Only a Commoner," "The Miner's Cup," 1895; "The Maggie Jacket," "Who Did It?" "The Doctor's Double," "On and Off the Turf in Australia," "Town and Bush," 1896; "Horse or Blacksmith," "Not so Bad after all," "Seeing him Through," "A Lad of Mettle," 1897; "A Gentleman Rider," "The Famous Match," "War at Last," "Golden Ruin," 1898. He has travelled extensively in different parts of the world and Australasia, where he held several important engagements on the press. Address: Wotton Grange, Bedford, Middlesex.

GOURAUD, Captain, French officer, was born in 1865, and became conspicuous during the "Marchand" incident. He left the Military School of St. Cyr in 1890.

From 1894 to 1897 he served in the French army, seeing considerable active service with the natives. After a short rest, he returned to Gourounsi in November of the same year (1897), and, early in 1898, was twice wounded in conflicts with the Sou-danese. On the conclusion of the Anglo-French Convention for the settlement of the Niger region, Captain Gouraud was appointed Resident at his old station, Gourounsi. While acting in this official capacity, he captured Samory, an act which has brought him some distinction.

GOURKO, Count Joseph Vassil-yévich, one of the most distinguished generals of the Russo-Turkish war, is of Lithuanian origin, and was born in 1828, and educated in the imperial "Corps de Pages." He was created ensign of the regiment of Hussars of the Imperial Body Guard in 1846. In 1857 he was already captain, and commanded a squadron in the same regiment, and was made in 1860 adjutant to the Emperor. In 1861 he received his colonel's commission. In 1866 Gourko was appointed commander of the 4th Hussar regiment of Marinpol. In 1867 the Emperor named him Major-General, and ordered him to be of his suite. Then he commanded the Grenadier regiment of the Imperial Guards, and in 1873 the first brigade of the second division of the Cavallerie de la Garde. We may add that Count Gourko took part, although in inferior rank, in the Crimean war, being stationed at Belbeck. His heroic deeds are almost too well known to be minutely recorded; we will mention only some of the principal feats of this valiant general, who commanded the vanguard of the Imperial army. On June 25, 1877, with a detachment of cavalry and a single battery, he attacked and took by assault the strong and powerfully occupied town of Tyrnovo (Tirnowo). On July 5 he occupied Kazanlyk and the village of Shipka, and after occupying and defending the passes of Shipka, Hanko, and others, he, together with General Radetzky, traversed the Balkans in the middle of the winter snow-storms and frosts, with but few losses, and led the victorious Russian troops into the fertile valleys beyond, thus occupying Sofia, Philippopolis, and Adrianople. The hazardous and almost impossible feat of traversing the Balkans in the middle of winter will for ever remain one of the greatest deeds performed by the soldiers of Russia. Count Gourko has been elevated to the rank of Adjutant-General, is a Knight of St. George of the second class, and of several other high orders. He was made a Count in April 1878, and was appointed Governor-

General of St. Petersburg (1879) after the attempts on Alexander's life, and then, after a period of enforced retirement, Governor-General of Poland. His rule in Poland has been strongly Muscovite in tendency. In 1884 the Czar visited Poland, and General Gourko took extraordinary precautions for his safety. In 1891, during the Russian famine, he made an optimistic report on the food supply in Poland. Events proved him to have been mistaken, and his position was in danger, but he exculpated himself, and in April 1892 returned to Warsaw as Commander-in-Chief of all troops in Poland and Lithuania. Count Gourko is married to a French lady.

GOURLEY, Sir Edward Temperley, M.P., is the eldest son of the late T. Y. Gourley, shipowner, of Sunderland, and was born at the latter place on June 8, 1828. He was educated at a private school in Scotland, and at Sunderland. He is a Sunderland merchant and shipowner, and has represented that borough in the House of Commons, as a Liberal member, since 1868. He is a Justice of the Peace and an Alderman for Sunderland, and has been thrice its Mayor. He was for ten years Hon. Secretary of the Sunday School Union, and was, for twenty years, Commandant of the Sunderland Rifles, a corps of which he is now Hon. Colonel. He received the honour of knighthood in 1895. Address: Roker-on-Sea, Sunderland.

GOW, Andrew Carrick, R.A., was born in London, June 15, 1848. He became a student of Heatherley's School of Art, Newman Street. In 1868 he was elected a Member of the Institute (now Royal Institute), and since 1870 has been a constant exhibitor at the Royal Academy. Amongst his chief works may be mentioned "A Suspicious Guest," 1870; "Introduction of Lady Mary Wortley to the Kit Kat Club," 1873; "Sophy Baddeley at the Pantheon," 1875; "The Relief of Leyden," 1876, now in the National Gallery of Sydney; "The Tumult in the House of Commons in 1640," 1877; "No Surrender," 1878, now in the National Gallery at Melbourne; "The Last Days of Edward VI.," 1880; "Bothwell," 1884; "Absolution for the Lost at Sea," 1885; "Cromwell at Dunbar," 1886, purchased by the Trustees of the Chantry Fund; "The Garrison Marching out with the Honours of War," 1887; "A Lost Cause," Flight of King James II. after the battle of the Boyne, now in the Tate collection, 1888; "Charles I. at Hull"; "After Waterloo: Sauve qui peut," 1890; "Queen Mary's Farewell to Scotland," 1892; "The Flag Maidens of Taunton"; "God save King James"; "On the Sands at Boulogne"; "Wellington crossing the Bidasoa," 1896; "On the Way to Exile," 1897, Napoleon's arrival at Rochefort, purchased by the Emperor of Russia; "A Gentleman of the Road," and "The Signal," 1898. Mr. Gow's works have been mostly historical. He was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy in 1881, and R.A. in 1891. Addresses: 15 Grove End Road, N.W.; and Athenæum.

GOWER, Lord Ronald Sutherland Gower, F.S.A., is the youngest son of the 2nd Duke of Sutherland, and uncle of the present Duke of Sutherland, and was educated at home, at Eton, and at Trinity College, Cambridge. He is known as a sculptor and a writer, and is first President of the Society of Miniaturists. Amongst his works of art there may be mentioned: statues of Marie Antoinette on her way to Execution; "The Old Guard at Waterloo"; and the Shakespeare Monument at Stratford-on-Avon. He is the author of: "My Reminiscences"; "Life of Joan of Arc"; "Rupert of the Rhine"; "Stafford House Letters"; "Bric-à-Brac"; "Last Days of Marie Antoinette"; "De Brosse's Letters from Italy." Lord Ronald Gower was formerly member of Parliament for the county of Sutherland. He has dropped the name of Leveson, his father having first assumed that of Sutherland in 1841. Address: 27 Trebovir Road, S.W.

GOWERS, Sir William Richard, K.B., M.D., F.R.S., son of William Gowers and Ann Venables, was born in London in 1845, and educated chiefly at Christ Church College School, Oxford. He commenced the study of medicine in 1861 as pupil to a surgeon at Coggeshall, Essex, and continued it at University College and Hospital, graduating at the University of London in 1869 and 1870. In 1873 he was appointed Assistant-Physician to University College Hospital, and to the National Hospital for the Paralyzed and Epileptic, and subsequently became Physician to each institution, and a Professor of Clinical Medicine in University College. He was elected F.R.C.P. in 1879, F.R.S. in 1887, and created Knight in 1897. His contributions to medical science have embraced many subjects, but he is chiefly known to the profession on account of his work on the structure and diseases of the nervous system. A special tract of fibres in the spinal cord, which he first described, is generally named after him. The extent to which his work upon this subject has been based on original observation and research, and the manner in which facts thus ascertained have been applied to the elucidation of the practical problems of disease, their diagnosis and treatment, have secured for his works a wide circulation, not only in this country but also in America, and in most European countries, and have made them popular alike with students and practitioners. He was one of the early investigators of the changes that occur within the eye in diseases of the brain, kidneys, &c., and his "Manual and Atlas of Medical Ophthalmoscopy" (of which a third edition was published in 1890) is the chief authority on the subject. It is also of interest as containing the first systematic use of the Autotype process for illustrating the processes of disease, most of the plates having been thus reproduced from the author's own drawings. A course of lectures delivered before the College of Physicians in 1880 formed the basis of a work on "Epilepsy and the Convulsive Diseases." A small book on the "Diagnosis of Diseases of the Spinal Cord" has been described as marking a turning-point in professional knowledge of the subject, and was followed by a similar work dealing with the Diseases of the Brain. His chief work, however, is a general "Manual of Diseases of the Nervous System," in 4 vols., of which a second edition appeared in 1892, and a third is now (1898) in preparation. Besides these subjects he is known in connection with diseases of the blood, and has improved or invented apparatus for counting the number of the blood corpuscles, and ascertaining their quality. Like many members of the medical profession, he has found a recreative occupation in etching, and his work has been seen at the Royal Academy and other exhibitions. He is, indeed, apparently the first F.R.S. whose etching has been seen at the Academy, although many Fellows have exhibited work in oil and water-colour. He received the honour of knighthood in 1897. Sir William Gowers has employed phonetic shorthand most extensively throughout his life to promote his scientific work, making exclusive use of it for personal writing, and strongly advocating its employment as a means of saving time and improving the quality of intellectual work. He has earnestly advocated its use in medicine and other branches of scientific work, and was the founder and first President of a Society of Medical Phonographers which now (1898) contains 300 members. This movement appears likely to attain considerable ultimate importance. In 1875 he married Mary, daughter of Frederick Baines, of Leeds. Addresses: 50 Queen Anne Street, W., and Athenæum.

GRACE, Dr. William Gilbert, the famous cricketer, was born at Downend, ristol, July 18, 1848, and is the son of the late Henry Mills Grace, a keen cricketer and sportsman. He evinced a great aptitude for being trained in the sport by his Mr. Alfred Pocock, and in 1864 with the South Wales team on against the Gentlemen of colouring 170 and 56 not out. The year he was eagerly sought for, reputation established. Between 1864 and 1890 Dr. Grace completed 814 in first-class matches, and obtained all 35,466 runs, being an average of 43½ per innings, the most extraordinary record of batting performances chronicled. He captured 2230 in first-class matches, between years, at a cost of 36,170 runs; per wicket, 16. In July 1879 he presented with a costly testimonial, begged for by all classes of players, in recognition of his merits as an all-round cr. He is said to be the best batsman, a good bowler, an excellent and a first-rate captain. In 1884 he took three innings of over 100 against the Australians, and repeated the feat in 1886 like his father and brother (Dr. E. C. Grace). He is a member of the medical profession, and took his degree in 1879, studied at Bristol Medical School, St. Thomas's and Westminster Hospitals. He has been in practice in Bristol since 1879. He published a book upon "Cricket" in 1891. In 1895 he made nine runs in first-class cricket, and completed his one hundredth run. He had the second of the batting averages, his average being 43½, three not out, total runs, 2346; score, 288; and average, 51. The Telegraph handed him £5000, the value of a great national subscription of his admirers' shillings. On his 50th birthday, or "jubilæe" July 1898, he was the object of an extraordinary demonstration of enthusiasm. He is now at Ashley Grange, Ashley Down,

GRAFTON, Duke of, Augustus Lennox Fitzroy, K.G., C.B., was born on June 22, 1821, and was his brother as 7th Duke in 1842. He was educated at Harrow, and received a commission in the 60th Regt. in 1837, subsequently entering the Grenadier Guards in 1839. He served in the Crimean campaign, being wounded at the battle of Inkermann. He eventually rose to the rank of Major-General, and retired from the army in 1864, acting as Equerry to the Queen from 1864 to 1882, and in the latter year appointed Honorary Equerry. His Grace is Hereditary Ranger of Whittlebury Forest, Northamptonshire, and he was married, in 1847, to Anna, daughter of the late James Balfour of Whittinghame, Haddingtonshire (she died in 1857). Addresses: 17 Carlton House Terrace, S.W.; and Euston Hall, Thetford, &c.

GRAHAM, Sir Gerald, G.C.M.G., G.C.B., V.C., Lieut.-General on the Reserve List, only son of the late Robert Hay Graham, M.D., of Eden Brooms, Cumberland, was born June 27, 1831, and educated at private schools, three years being spent at a school in Dresden, Saxony. He entered the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, in 1847, and received his commission as Second Lieutenant in the Corps of Royal Engineers in 1850. He became Captain in 1858, Major in 1859, Lieut.-Colonel in 1861, Colonel in 1869, Major-General in 1881, and Lieut.-General in 1884. He served throughout the Crimean campaign, landing with the first troops at Old Fort on Sept. 14, 1854, and leaving when the Russian guard took over Balaclava in May 1856. He was present at the battles of Alma and Inkermann, did nearly 100 turns of duty in the trenches, and led a ladder-party at the assault of the Redan on June 18, 1855. He took part in the demolition of the docks and "White Buildings" during the winter of 1855-56, and was twice wounded. For the Crimean campaign he received the medal with three clasps, fifth-class Medjidieh, Turkish medal, Victoria Cross, and was made a Knight of the Legion of Honour. He was twice mentioned in despatches, and obtained the brevet rank of Major. He took part in the China war of 1860, and was severely wounded at the assault of the Taku Forts; was present at the capture of Peking, mentioned in despatches, obtained brevet rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, C.B., and medal with two clasps. In the Egyptian campaign of 1882 Major-General Graham commanded the second brigade of the first division throughout the campaign. He took part in the action of El Magfar, commanded at Kassassin on Aug. 28, took part in the subsequent action of Sept. 9, and in the battle of Tel-el-Kebir; he was mentioned in despatches, thanked by both Houses of Parliament, received K.C.B., second-class Medjidieh, medal with clasp, and bronze star. Major-General Sir Gerald Graham was put in command of the expedition for the relief of Tokar in February 1884, after the destruction of an Egyptian force under Baker Pasha. The British force fought a severely-contested action with the rebel Hadendowas at El Teb, on Feb. 29, 1884, and relieved Tokar on the following day. On March 13 Sir Gerald Graham again defeated a large force of Arabs, with great slaughter, at Tamai. The road to Berber was then open, but the British troops were withdrawn. For these services Major-General Sir Gerald Graham was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-General. In 1885, after receiving news of the fall of Khartoum, another expedition was sent under the command of Lieut.-General Sir Gerald Graham to Suakim to open the road to Berber and to lay down a railway. This expedition arrived at Suakim about March 13, and on the 20th fought the battle of Hasheen. Sir Gerald received the V.C. for "determined gallantry at the head of a ladder-party at the assault of the Redan (Sebastopol), on June 18, 1855; and for devoted heroism in sallying out of the trenches on numerous occasions, and bringing in wounded officers and men." For his services Lieut.-General Sir Gerald Graham was thanked by both Houses of Parliament, and was decorated with the Grand Cross of SS. Michael and George by her Majesty. He has contributed some articles to the Royal Engineers' Professional Corps papers, and translated Von Goetze's "Account of the German Engineers' operations during the campaign 1870-71." In January 1886, he contributed a paper to the Fortnightly called "Last Words with General Gordon." He married Jane, daughter of G. Durrant, of Elmhall, Suffolk, widow of the Rev. G. B. Blocker, Rector of Rudham Norfolk. Club: United Service.

GRAHAM, Peter, R.A., was born, in 1836, in Edinburgh, where he received his artistic training at the School of Design. He is famous as a painter of the Highlands, one of his first well-known pictures being "A Spate in the Highlands," 1866. He has been a constant exhibitor at the Royal Academy's Exhibitions, and of late years has shown "The Sea with Ebb and Flow," 1895; "The Close of Day" and "From Beetling Sea-crag where the Gannet Builds," 1896; "Crossing the Stream" and a sea-piece, 1897; "The Road across the Moor," "Moorland Quietude," "The Grass-crowned Headland of a Rocky Shore," and "Lashed by the Wild and Wasteful Ocean," 1898. He was elected R.A. in 1881. Address: 93 Ladbroke Road, W.

GRANBY, Marquis of, Henry John Brinsley Manners, J.P., is the eldest son and heir to the Duke of Rutland, and was born in 1852, and educated at Eton and Trinity College, Cambridge. He was principal private secretary to Lord Salisbury in 1885-86 and in 1886-88. In 1888 he was returned as Conservative member for the Melton Division of Leicestershire, and sat until 1895. In 1896 he was summoned House of Peers in his father's Bar Manners of Haddon. He has been in the third battalion of the Leicestershire Militia, and is a J.P. for Leicestershire. He has written many articles on sport, and is an ornithologist. The chioness of Granby, whom he married in 1882, is a talented artist in portrait painting. She is the daughter of Colonel C. H. May, C.B., son of the late Earl of Blandford. Address: 16 Arlington Street, Piccadilly, W.

GRAND, Sarah (née Frances), beth Clarke), was born at Donaghadee, in the north of Ireland, where her father, a naval Lieutenant, held a Commission. Though born in Ireland, Sarah Grand is of English age, and has no Irish blood. Her father was Edward John Bellenden Clarke, a Lieutenant R.N., and his family belonged to Hertfordshire; her mother (née Miss Bell) was daughter of the late Henry Sherwood, of Rysome, Yorkshire, and granddaughter of Robert Humbleton House, Yorkshire. Her father died when she was a child, and her mother then settled down among her own people in Yorkshire, where Sarah Grand's childhood was passed. She was the youngest of five children, two of whom were girls. At fourteen she was sent to the Royal Naval School, Twickenham, where the discipline of this large establishment did not suit her, and she was afterwards removed to a school in Holland Road, Kingston. This part of her education, however, terminated at sixteen, when she married. She accompanied her husband, an officer in the army, to the East—Singapore, China, and Japan. She saw something of Egypt. She wrote poetry in those days, and several of which she burnt, her whole life, from marriage, being devoted steadily to expression. Sarah Grand first appeared in print in the columns of Aunt Judy's Magazine, for which she wrote a few pieces. In July 1888 she published her first book "Ideala." Written five years before it eventually appeared from publisher to publisher, until it was printed at her own cost, and published by Mr. Allen, of Ave Maria Lane, whom it was eventually taken over by Bentley. Two years after the publication of "Ideala" Sarah Grand contributed a novel of "The Heavenly Twins" again her work travelled from publisher to publisher, and was rejected by another. In the meantime she had written some of her early work for publication. "Singularity Deluded," one of the

is little more than a girl—long before she began "Ideala"—was accepted and published by Mr. Blackwood in December 1892. And whilst "The Heavenly" were being written and were still in air travels, she wrote several short stories for Temple Bar and other magazines. At last, in the spring of 1892, she decided to publish "The Heavenly" also at her own expense. When printed, however, it was shown to William Heinemann, who took over the risks of the work and published it in January 1893, when it became an immediate literary success. A collection of her stories was published in March 1894, the title of "Our Manifold Nature." In November 1897 appeared the novel, Beth Book. Address: 60 Wynnardens, Kensington, W.

GRANIER DE CASSAGNAC, Paul
les DE CASSAGNAC.

GRANT, Frederick Dent, American; a son of General U. S. Grant, born in the city of St. Louis, Missouri, July 30, 1850. He was educated at public schools and at the Military Academy at West Point, where he graduated in 1871. After travelling in Europe, returned home in 1873, and joined the army soon receiving an appointment as 2nd Lieut. of Lieut.-General Philip H. Sheridan with rank of Lieut.-Colonel. In July 1879 he joined his father in Paris, went with him on his journey around the world. He resigned from the army in 1881 as Minister to Austria under President Harrison; was a Police Commissioner in the city of New York in 1895, and on outbreak of the war with Spain in 1898 entered the army again and was Brigadier-General.

GRANT, The Very Rev. George D.D., LL.D., Principal of Queen's University, Kingston, Ontario, who is of the parentage, was born at Stellarton county, Nova Scotia, Dec. 22, 1850. He received his education at Pictou Academy and at the West River Seminary Presbyterian Church in his native county. At the latter, at the age of sixteen, he won a bursary which entitled him to a collegiate course in the University of Glasgow, the bursary being granted by the Synod of the Old Kirk in Nova Scotia. During his university course at Glasgow he won academic distinction, the highest honours in philosophy examination for M.A., the Lord's Prize for the best Essay on "Literature and Philosophy," and prizes and scholarships. On his return to Nova Scotia, he spent some time as a missionary in the Maritime Provinces, and became pastor of St. Matthew's Church, Halifax, a position which he held until his acceptance, in 1877, of the Principalship of Queen's University. In 1872 he published "Ocean to Ocean," an interesting diary of a tour across the American Continent, in connection with Sandford Fleming's surveying expedition, to locate the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway; and, in 1884, "Picturesque Canada," an elaborate work illustrative of the scenery, the industries, and the social life of the Canadian Dominion. He is a frequent contributor to British, American, and Canadian periodicals, and writes, not only on theological, but on educational, social, and political subjects. Address: Queen's University, Kingston, Ontario.

GRANT, Lieut.-General Sir Robert, R.E., K.C.B., son of Sir Robert Grant, K.C.H., was born in August 1837. He was educated at Harrow and at Woolwich, and entered the army as lieutenant of Royal Engineers in October 1854. He was promoted captain in August 1860, major in July 1872, and lieutenant-colonel in July 1876. He was for several years Aide-de-camp to the Commander-in-Chief in British North America. From 1871 to 1876 he was Deputy-Assistant Adjutant-General of Royal Engineers at Headquarters. Sir Robert Grant was appointed Colonel on the Staff of the Scottish District in 1884, and the following year went to Egypt to take part in the Sudan war. He was employed in the Nile Expedition, and during the latter portion of the operations was the Commanding Royal Engineer. He was mentioned in despatches. He was appointed Deputy Adjutant-General of Royal Engineers in 1886, and succeeded to his present appointment of Inspector-General of Fortifications in 1891. Sir Robert Grant was created a K.C.B. in 1896. He married in 1875 Victoria, widow of T. Owen, Esq., and daughter of John Cotes, Esq., of Woodcote Hall, Shropshire. Address: 14 Granville Place, W.

GRANT, Robert, American writer, was born at Boston, Mass., Jan. 24, 1852. He was graduated from Harvard University in 1873, and from its Law School in 1879. In 1888 he was appointed a member of the Board of Water Commissioners of Boston, of which in the following year he became Chairman. This position he resigned in July 1893 to accept his present office, that of Judge of Probate and Insolvency for the county of Suffolk, Mass. Besides his contributions to magazines he has published "The Little Tin Gods on Wheels," 1879; "The Confessions of a Frivolous Girl," 1880; "The Lambs," 1882; "An Average Man," 1883; "The King's Men," with others, 1884; "The Knave of Hearts," 1885; "A Romantic Young Lady," 1886; "Face to Face," 1886; "Jack Hall," 1887; "Jack in the Bush," 1888; "The Reflections of a Married Man," 1892; "The Opinions of a Philosopher," 1893; "The Art of Living," and "The Bachelor's Christmas," 1895.

GRANT-DUFF. See DUFF, THE RIGHT HON. SIR MOUNTSTUART GRANT.

GRANTHAM, Sir William, J.P., Judge of the High Court of Justice, Queen's Bench Division, son of George Grantham, of Barcombe Place, Sussex, was born at Lewes, Oct. 23, 1835, and educated at King's College School. He was called to the Bar in 1863, after obtaining the studentship given by the four Inns of Court to the most distinguished student of the term; was made Q.C. 1877, and became a Bencher of the Inner Temple in 1878; is J.P. and has been Deputy-Chairman of Sussex. In 1871 he was largely instrumental in securing the return of Mr. Watney for East Surrey, this being the first Conservative victory in the constituency for 27 years. At the general election of 1874 he himself contested the county against the Hon. Locke King, whom he defeated by the large majority of 1107; and in 1880 he was again returned with a majority of 2006. On the passing of the Redistribution Bill of 1885 he was asked to give up his seat for the county, to contest the new borough of Croydon, as no Conservative candidate could be found to contest it owing to the then popularity of the Liberal candidate, Mr. J. S. Balfour, who had been instrumental in getting Croydon made a corporation a few years before, and who had been twice mayor. Mr. Grantham, however, defeated him by a majority of 1157. In January 1886 Mr. Grantham was made a judge of the Queen's Bench Division, and consequently retired from Parliament. He married, in 1865, Emma, daughter of R. Wilson. Addresses: Barcombe Place, Lewes; and Athenæum.

GRAVES, The Right Rev. Charles, D.D., D.C.L. Oxon., F.R.S., Bishop of Limerick, Ardfer, and Aghadoe, youngest son of John Crosbie Graves and Helena, daughter of the Rev. Charles Perceval, was born in Dublin Nov. 6, 1812, and educated at Trinity College, Dublin, where he took high honours, and became a Fellow, and Professor of Mathematics. He was President of the Royal Irish Academy from 1860 to 1865; and was for some time Dean of the Chapel Royal in Ireland, and Chaplain to the Lord Lieutenant, was consecrated Bishop of Limerick in 1866. He was elected to the see under Rule 2 in 1863. He married the eldest daughter of the late John M.D., Physician-General to the Government of Ireland, in 1840. She died in 1866. Addresses: The Palace, Henry Street, and Athenæum.

GRAY, Professor Andrew F.R.S., was born at Lochgelly, in 1847, and is the eldest son of John Gray of that place. His elementary education was obtained at the Subscription School of his native town. After a brief scientific study he entered at the University of Glasgow, where he obtained on graduation the Eglinton Fellowship in Mathematics and Natural Philosophy. While an undergraduate he was named by Sir William Thomson (Lord Kelvin) for an experimental scholarship in Electricity and Magnetism given by Mr. James Tunbridge Wells, to the Anderson University, Glasgow. Afterwards he became Sir William Thomson's secretary and experimental assistant. In 1880 was invited by Sir W. Thomson to become his official assistant in connection with the Chair of Natural Philosophy at the University of Glasgow. In 1881 the foundation of the Institution of Electrical Engineers appointed to his present position of Professorship of Physics in the College of North Wales. During the last ten years of his tenure of the office of Professor Gray has taken an active part in the organisation of Welsh education, and has served for several years in the Executive Committee of the Council of Wales, besides assisting in the academic work of the University of Wales. Member of Senate. Besides various scientific papers chiefly on electric and magnetic phenomena Professor Gray has written "Atmospheric Measurements in Electricity and Magnetism" (a sketch of certain methods of measurement of importance in connection with practical electrical work); a paper entitled "The Theory and Practice of Electrical Measurements" (Macmillan Co., 1892), the first volume of a series entitled "Magnetism and Electricity" (Macmillan & Co., 1898), and in conjunction with Professor G. B. Matthews, "A Treatise on Bessel Functions: Applications to Physics" (Macmillan Co., 1895). Professor Gray is a Fellow of the Royal Societies of London and Edinburgh, and a Member of the Royal Physical Society of London. He has for several years been Examiner in Natural Science in the University of Glasgow, and for the last four years has been Examiner in Physical Science to the University of Zealand. In 1896 the degree of LL.D. (is causâ) was conferred on him by University of Glasgow. Addresses: Bryn, Bangor, North Wales; and the University College of North Wales, Bangor.

GRAY, Miss Frances Helena, LL.D., educated at the Methodist College, fast, and took first place in Ireland in the Intermediate Examinations, gaining at the same time two gold medals. She matriculated with Honours at the Royal University, Dublin, gaining first place in the ensuing scholarship examination in Modern Literature. She took the degree of B.A. in 1888, with first honours in Geology and Biology. In the following year she turned her attention to literature and succeeded in taking the degree of LL.B.; while in 1890 she gained the distinction of LL.D.

GRAY, George, United States senator, born at New Castle, Delaware, May 4. He graduated at Princeton College in 1859, receiving the degree of A.B.; in 1861 he received the degree of A.M., and in 1869 the degree of LL.D. from his alma mater. He was admitted to the Bar in 1867, and was appointed Attorney-General of the State of Delaware in 1879, and re-elected in 1884; was elected to the United States Senate in 1885 to fill a vacancy, and re-elected in 1887 and in 1893. He exercises much influence among his countrymen, and is a member of several important committees, among which are the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, Civil Service, and the Judiciary.

GRAY, Herbert Branston, D.D., Warden and Head-master, and Rector of the Governing Body of Bradfield College, Berks, from 1881 onwards, was born on April 22, 1851, at Layton, Kent, Putney, S.W., and is the son of Thomas Gray, Esq., of a Kentish family, which for several generations had settled at St. Peter's in the Isle of Thanet. He was educated from 1865 to 1869 at Winchester College, of which Foundation he was an Exhibitioner, and proceeded in 1870 to Queen's College, Oxford, of which University he was appointed Classical Lecturer. He gained a first class in the Moral Moderations in 1872, and a second class in Litteræ Humaniores in 1874, and proceeded B.A. and M.A. in the same course. The degree of B.D. and D.D. was conferred on him (by accumulation) in 1893. In 1875 he was appointed a scholar at Westminster School, which he held till 1878, when he was elected to the Head-mastership of Louth Grammar School, Lincolnshire. In 1880

he was offered the Head-mastership of Bradfield College, Berks, and in 1881, on the resignation of the First Warden and Founder of the College, the Rev. Thomas Stevens, he was appointed Warden. At that time the College had fallen to a low numerical level, owing to many difficulties, and the numbers were hardly more than 50. Since that period the institution has grown enormously, and now numbers more than 260, while the buildings have increased to double their original size. The history of the College under Dr. Gray has been an uninterrupted success. Besides winning numerous scholarships and some Fellowships at both universities, it has sent a large number of its sons to Woolwich and Sandhurst. It owns the distinction of holding the Ashburton Shield for shooting, open to all public schools, for the year 1897-98, a distinction which it gained once before, in 1893-94. One of the distinguishing features of the College is the reproduction of Greek plays, which are performed in the only Greek theatre which has been built since the decay of the Attic drama four centuries B.C., the theatre being constructed by Dr. Gray on the model of that of Epidaurus in the Peloponnese, and the most perfect of all the Greek theatres. These unique representations have been performed four times in a cycle of three, the "Antigone" of Sophocles being played in 1890, the "Agamemnon" of Æschylus in 1892, the "Alcestis" of Euripides in 1895, and the "Antigone," for the second time, in 1898. Thither all the learned scholars flock from Oxford, Cambridge, Berlin, Edinburgh, and even from Athens. Dr. Gray is the author of two books of sermons, chiefly preached to Bradfield boys, "Modern Laodiceans" having been published in 1885, and "Men of Like Passions" in 1894. He is also the joint editor of a classical work, "The Westminster Ovid." He holds the Chairmanship of the Council of the College, by virtue of his office as Warden. Address: Bradfield College, Berks.

GRAY, Maxwell. See TUTTIETT, M.G.

GRÉARD, Vallery Clément Octave, Rector of the University of France, was born at Vire in the Calvados, April 18, 1828. He entered the École Normale in 1849, and is a Doctor of Letters. He became a professor at the Lycées of Metz, Versailles, and Paris. In 1865 he was appointed an inspector of the Academy of Paris, and in 1872 Inspector-General. In 1874 he gained the Halphen Prize of the Academy of Sciences, given to the person who has most improved primary education. In 1877, M. Jules Ferry (q.v.) advisedly proclaimed him the best teacher in France.

In 1879 he became Vice-Rector of the Academy of Paris, and devoted himself to questions of organisation and method in secondary education. In 1883 he refused a senatorship in order to give himself up to extending the Paris Lycées, both for boys and girls, and to restoring the Sorbonne. In 1875 he was elected to the Academy of Moral Sciences, and in 1886 to the French Academy itself in place of Comte de Falloux. He is a Grand Cross of the Legion of Honour, and has been a Member of its Council since 1880. His principal works are: "De la Morale de Plutarque," 1866; "L'Éducation de Femmes par les Femmes," 1886; "L'Enseignement Secondaire des Filles," 1883; "Précis de Littérature," 1875. His Paris address is 30 Rue du Luxembourg.

GREECE, King of. See GEORGE I., KING OF THE HELLENES.

GREELY, Brigadier-General Adolphus W., was born at Newburyport, Mass., March 27, 1841. Entering the volunteer service as a private soldier, he was thrice wounded and attained the rank of Captain during the Civil War, and at its close was transferred to the regular army with the rank of Lieutenant. In 1868 he was placed in the Signal Service; and in 1881 was assigned to the command of the International Polar Expedition to Lady Franklin Bay. In addition to completing his scientific work, his expedition made extensive geographical discoveries and attained 83° 24' N. latitude,—the farthest north of all previous time. Visiting ships having failed to reach Greely in 1882 or 1883, he retreated to Cape Sabine, where hardships and starvation spared but seven, who were rescued in 1884 by a squadron under Captain Schley. In the winter of 1896–97 Lieutenant Peary discovered a cache of medical instruments and other relics in the deserted camp, but he failed to find the records of the expedition, as expected. General Greely wrote the "Report of the Expedition to Lady Franklin Bay" (2 vols.), 1886, and published a private account of the expedition in 1885, under the title of "Three Years of Arctic Service," which has been translated into French and German. He was awarded the Founder's Medal by the Royal Geographical Society, the Roquette Medal by the Société de Géographie, Paris, and given the formal thanks of Massachusetts. In 1887 he was raised to the rank of Brigadier-General and Chief Signal Officer, being appointed head of the corps in which he had served for twenty years. Other works of General Greely are "American Weather," N.Y., 1888, and "American Explorers and Travellers," N.Y., 1893.

GREEN, Alice Sophia Am J. R. Green), was born at Kellingland in 1848, and is the daughter of a well-known canon lawyer, Edward Stopford, Archdeacon of Macclesfield, and granddaughter of the Bishop of Croydon. She was privately educated at home, and taught herself Greek, and was married in 1877 to the famous historian of the English people, the late John Richard Green. While he was writing his last work, she greatly assisted her husband in his work of historical research, and his amanuensis, and is herself the author of "Henry II." in the English Series, and of "Town Life in the Middle Ages," published in 1894. She has edited her husband's work on "The History of the English People," and in 1888, after his death, issued a revised edition of the well-known "Short History of the English People," and in 1892 of the illustrated edition of "Town Life in the Middle Ages." Address: 141 Bedford Square, W.

GREEN, Anna Katha ROHLFS, MRS. CHARLES.

GREEN, Professor Jos nolds, F.R.S., D.Sc., F.L.S., was born at Stowmarket, Suffolk, on Dec. 1, 1845, and was educated at private schools and at Trinity College, Cambridge. He was a scholar of his College, and Demonstrator of Physiology at Cambridge from 1865 to 1886, and in the latter year was appointed Professor of Botany at the Pharmaceutical Society of Britain. Professor Green is a Fellow of the Royal Society, and is in Botany at the University of Cambridge, and at the Royal College of Surgeons. He is the author of "The Principles of Botany," 1895. Address: 141 Bedford Square, W.C.; and Amel Road, Cambridge.

GREEN, Mrs. Ma Everett, whose maiden name was born at Sheffield in 1818, a life, resided in several parts of England and Yorkshire. She received a liberal education. Her intellectual life was fostered by the late James M. Green, the "bard of Sheffield," an intimate friend of her father's. In 1841 her husband moved to London, and having access to libraries and MS. she conceived the idea of compiling "Lives of the Princesses of England," the first volume of which appeared in 1845, and the sixth and last in 1851. Green edited "Letters of Royal Ladies," published in 1851.

ohn Rous," printed for the Camety, in 1856; "The Letters of rietta Maria" in 1857; and has d occasionally to periodical chiefly on antiquarian subjects. een entrusted by the Master of vith the duty of calendaring the ers in the Record Office. The the reign of James I., 4 vols., lished in 1857-59, and those II., 7 vols., appeared 1860-68. was then requested to complete ar of the State Papers of Queen left unfinished by the late Mr. nich, with addenda from Edward s I., forms 6 vols., published
 She is now occupied upon s of the Interregnum, of which ere published, 1875-86. These the general historical portion of from 1649-60. She has since d the proceedings of the Com-Advance of Money from 1642 to vols., published in 1888. She is ork upon the papers of the Com-Positions with Royalists, of which one volume of general gs appeared in 1889, and one the cases of the compounders to 1646, in 1890. In 1845 she ed to Mr. G. P. Green, artist, of m, near Hull, and of London.

AWAY, Kate, R.I., artist, her artistic education at the on Art School, the life classes erley's, and the Slade School. studied Reynolds and Romney, ned from old plates and sketches of costumes, until she evolved ghtful child types which are now wide repute. Her first tiny picture in a long series of exquisitely paintings of child life and child was exhibited in the Dudley

Those who are unfamiliar with nals of Miss Kate Greenaway's tures can form no adequate con-of the value and beauty of her e original, for instance, of her
 "slug-a-bed" is not at all the same ts reproductions in our necessarily ide colour-printing. Miss Greene the best kind of social reformer. her proud mission to transform asessed tight-waisted babies, clad urd and orthodox French fashion, it is supposed, by Worth, into the d-world pictures that are one of elights of the London landscape.
 e Greenaway is famous as a book
 r. The following illustrated nd illustrations may be men-Cover to Every Girl's Magazine,
 v Miss A. A. Leith, and published
 . Routledge, also coloured illustrations in the same, the "Pied Piper of Hamelin," "Marigold Garden," "The Language of Flowers," "A Day in a Child's Life," "Mother Goose," "A Painting Book for Boys and Girls," "Kate Greenaway's Alphabet," and last, but not least, "Mavor's Spelling Book," which to many children has rendered the labour of spelling our unphonetic old language almost tolerable. Many of Miss Greenaway's most exquisite paintings are, or were, in the possession of Mr. Ruskin, who showed them to his audience when delivering the Slade lectures at Oxford, and for a time placed them in the cabinets in the Taylorian Art School. Address:

 39 Frognal, Hampstead, N.W.

GREENE, William Conynghame,
 C.B., British Agent and Chargé d'Affaires in the Transvaal, was born in Dublin on Oct. 29, 1854, and is the eldest son of R. J. Greene, and through his mother the great-grandson of the first Lord Plunket.
 His mother, the Hon. Mrs. Greene, was a writer of verses for children, and his brother is the well-known singer, Mr.
 Plunket Greene. He was educated at Harrow and Pembroke College, Oxford, where he held an open classical scholarship and graduated B.A. in 1877, M.A. in 1880. He entered the Diplomatic Service in 1877. He was appointed Acting third Secretary at Athens in 1880. He then held offices at Stuttgart, The Hague, Brussels, and in 1893 was promoted to Teheran. On Aug. 25, 1896, he was appointed to his present post, with the personal rank of Chargé d'Affaires. He was created a C.B. in 1897. He married in 1884 Lily, fifth daughter of the 5th
 Earl of Courtown. Address: British Agency, Pretoria.

GREENWELL, The Rev. William, M.A., D.C.L., F.R.S., F.S.A., J.P., is the eldest son of the late William Thomas Greenwell, Esq., J.P., D.L., of Greenwell
 Ford, co. Durham. He was born there,
 March 23, 1820, and educated at Durham
 School and the University of Durham, where he graduated in 1839, and ultimately became Fellow of University College, and afterwards Principal of Neville Hall, Newcastle-on-Tyne. In 1847 he was preferred to the vicarage of Ovingham, Northumberland, and is now Minor Canon and Librarian of Durham Cathedral, and Rector of St. Mary, in the South Bailey, in the city of Durham. Dr. Greenwell is well known as an archæologist, principally in connection with the sepulchral remains of the early inhabitants of Britain. His investigations with regard to the territorial possessions of the bishopric of Durham, as well as those of the Prior and Convent of the same place, are familiar to all interested in these and cognate subjects. He has written also on Greek numismatics, and other branches of Greek archæology. His large series of skulls, many of which were derived from the barrows of England, was given by him some years ago to the University of Oxford. In 1879 he presented to the nation a collection, second to none in Britain, of urns and other sepulchral pottery, weapons and implements of stone and bronze, and ornaments, the result of above twenty years' researches in the burial mounds of many counties of England. These are now lodged in the British Museum. His principal works are: "Bolden Buke, a Survey of the Possessions of the See of Durham in 1183," 1852; "Bishop Hatfield's Survey," a record of the possessions of the See of Durham, 1857; "Wills and Inventories from the Registry at Durham," 1860; "Feodarium Prioratus Dunelmensis," a survey of the possessions of the Prior and Convent of Durham in the fifteenth century, 1872, being publications of the Surtees Society; "British Barrows," a record of the examination of sepulchral mounds in various parts of England, 1877; "Durham Cathedral," an address illustrative of the building and its history, 1881; "Electrum Coinage of Cyzicus," 1887, &c. Dr. Greenwell is a Justice of the Peace for the county of Durham. Address: 27 North Bailey, Durham.

GREENWOOD, Frederick, publicist, was born many years ago, and throughout his long and honourable career has been identified with all that is best in the traditions of English journalism. He was editor of the Pall Mall Gazette from its start in 1865, but when Mr. Yates Thompson bought the paper in 1880, and inaugurated its brief and brilliant career as a Liberal Journal, he and several of the other members of his staff remained honourably true to their principles and founded the St. James's Gazette. This important journal he edited for some ten years. In 1890, or thereabouts, he started the Anti-Jacobin, which proved unfortunately little more than a witty and entertaining venture in letters. It was too literary to live. An old-fashioned generation of newspaper readers remember with pleasure his brother's (Mr. James Greenwood) articles on workhouse life, signed by "An Amateur Casual." Mr. Frederick Greenwood still occasionally contributes weighty articles, on subjects chiefly political, to the magazines and journals of the day. In 1853 he published "Louis Napoleon Bonaparte, Emperor of the French"; and in 1855, "Life of Napoleon the Third." He is also the author of a work on "Imagination in Dreams and Study." Address: 19 Argyll Road, den Hill, W.

GREENWOOD, Grace. See COTT, SARA JANE.

GREENWOOD, Thomas, b. justly described as the apostle of the Public Library Movement. He was born on May 9, 1851, at Woodley, near Exeter, and comes of old yeoman parents. His father was one of the earliest Cheshire temperance reformers, and took an active part in the Chartist movement during the first half of the century. He died a few months after the birth of his son now named. The early education of Thomas was in the village day school, this was supplemented by private tuition from the Rev. W. Urwick, M.A., who was serving as a boy clerk in Manchester. He was accustomed to make use of the Campfield Library in Exeter. This was the first municipality under the William Ewart Act. It was Greenwood's use of this which formed the groundwork of the extension of these institutions to a large range of reading and study during the period, although only a youth of 18 he covered a large field of high-class literature. At a later date he was a librarian of one of the branch public libraries in Sheffield. After this he connected with trade journalism, and at the present time proprietor of the Public Library Movement, and carries on an extensive publishing business. The hobby of the day, and one to which he has given much of thought and unwearied activity, has been the promotion of public libraries. In 1886 the first edition of his Public Libraries, their Organisation, and Management, was published. The second edition was issued in the following year, a third edition in 1890, and a fourth in 1891, consisting of nearly 600 pages. For each of these editions there was practically a new one, so that the extension of the movement has been largely due to the Prince of Wales, Mr. Gladstone, Lord Rosebery, and many other public men, who have made constant reference to it when opening new libraries. It has in fact been the quarry from which many public speakers, magazine and newspaper writers, have drawn their material for these institutions. In thirty years the number of adoptions of the Public Libraries Acts stood at 133. During the succeeding eleven years the number has been considerably over 200, a result largely due to an awakened interest in the institutions caused by the wide cir-

Libraries," and the propaganda of its author. By means of letters, essays, circulars, leaflets, pamphlets, and other efforts, Thomas Greenwood unstinted outlay, carried on the London Association. The Public Library Movement differs from almost every other organisation, in the fact that no individual has, so far as is known, benefited to the extent of a shilling by the promotion of the movement. Works by him bearing upon library matters have been "Museum Galleries," issued in 1888; "Sunlight and Village Libraries," published in 1892; and "Greenwood's Library," published in 1897. Books upon other subjects have been "Tour in the States," issued in 1883; "Eminent Men," in 1886; and "Grace Monks: An Unfashionable Novel," in the same year. Contributions on a variety of subjects, signed and unsigned, have appeared from his pen in magazines and newspapers. His own journals have for many years contained articles written by him, and covering a wide range of commercial subjects and topics both of an artistic and technical instruction. Greenwood has several times been elected a Member for Parliament, for the County Council, and the London County Council, but has refused to accept public life. He has travelled extensively in most of the leading countries of the world, and visited many foreign cities. Address: Frith Knowl, Elstree, Herts.

GREGORY, Edward John, R.A., an English painter, engineer in the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company's service, was born at Southampton, April 19, 1850. He was educated in the Middle Class School there. David Cruickshank, who did not encourage his artistic proclivities, then placed him in the Engineers' office of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company at Southampton, where he remained till 1869. During this time he attended the Southampton School of Art, and also became acquainted with Mr. J. M. W. Turner, and took part in the formation of the Art Class, chiefly under his direction. He came to London, studied at South Kensington for a few months; and eventually became more or less mechanical in his work for the "department"; and then, at Herkomer's suggestion, he painted his first picture (in water-colours) at the Dudley Gallery, and was afterwards a number of years a regular member of the Graphic artistic staff. In 1875 he was elected a member of the Institution of Painters in Water-Colours, and that time exhibited many admirable drawings in the rooms of that body. His first considerable success dates from 1876, when he exhibited, at Mr. Deschamps' Gallery in New Bond Street, a powerful picture of morning light streaming through the blinds of a ball-room and on to a pair of lingering guests and a wearied and yawning pianist. Among the pictures exhibited by him at the Institute are "Norwegian Pirates"; "Pet of the Crew"; "Sir Galahad" (which gained the Watts Prize at Manchester); "St. George"; and "Last Touches." At the Grosvenor Gallery he has exhibited portraits of the Chairman of Lloyd's Register, Mr. W. T. Eley, and Miss Galloway; and "The Rehearsal" and other pictures; and at the Royal Academy, his own portrait, and portraits of Mr. H. R. Robertson, and the Rev. Thos. Stevens, Warden of Bradford College. His last considerable work exhibited at the Academy was entitled "Sunday Afternoon at Boulter's Lock." Mr. Gregory was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy, Jan. 30, 1883, and R.A. in 1898. He has received a gold and a silver medal from the Paris International Exhibition of 1889, a gold medal from Munich in 1893, and a medal of the first class at the Brussels International Exhibition of 1897. Permanent address: 8 Greville Place, Maida Vale, N.W.

GREGORY, The Very Rev. Robert, D.D., Dean of St. Paul's, son of Robert Gregory, Esq., of Nottingham, and Anne Sophia, his wife, born Feb. 9, 1819, was educated at private schools and at Corpus Christi College, Oxford (B.A. 1843, M.A. 1846). In 1850 he gained the Denyer Theological Prize at Oxford. He was ordained deacon at Christmas, 1843, and priest in 1844 as curate of Bisley in Gloucestershire; and became curate of Panton and Wragby, in Lincolnshire, in 1847; curate of the parish church of Lambeth in 1851; and in 1853 perpetual curate of St. Mary-the-Less, Lambeth, which living he resigned in 1873. In 1868 he was appointed Canon of St. Paul's; and in 1882 he was appointed by the Bishop of London Treasurer of the Cathedral. He became Treasurer of the National Society for the Education of the Children of the Poor in the Principles of the Established Church in 1868, and has taken a decided line of action on the question of religious education. He was a member of the Ritual Commission and also of the Royal Commission upon the Administration and Operation of the Contagious Diseases Act. Canon Gregory was elected in 1868 Proctor for the Clergy of the Archdeaconry of Surrey, which post he held till he was elected for the Chapter of St. Paul's in 1874. He was re-elected for the Chapter in 1880 and 1885. Canon Gregory has taken an energetic share in the action of the Chapter since his appointment to the Canonry, and, in conjunction with Dean Church, did much to popularise the services of the Cathedral. In 1870 he was appointed Rural Dean of Camberwell, which post he resigned in 1873; in which year he was elected a member of the London School Board for the City Division, and he sat on the Board till 1876, when he did not seek re-election. On Aug. 9, 1878, he was appointed a Royal Commissioner to inquire into the Parochial Charities of the City of London; and in January 1886 a Commissioner to inquire into the working of the Education Acts. Dean Gregory is the author of "Plea for Small Parishes," 1849; "The Difficulties and Organisation of a Small Metropolitan Parish," 1866; "Sermons," 1869; "Lectures at St. Paul's," 1871-72; "The Cost of Voluntary Schools and of Board Schools," 1875; "Is the Canadian System of Education Rates possible in England?" 1875; "Position of the Celebrant Aspect in Convocation," 1875; "The Position of the Priest ordered by the Rubric in the Communion Service," 1876; "The Rise and Progress of Elementary Education in England," 1895. In December 1890 the Rev. Canon Gregory was appointed Dean of St. Paul's in succession to the late Dean Church. He has for long been actively engaged in the promotion of the scheme for the interior decoration of the Cathedral. He married first, in 1844, Mary Frances, younger daughter of William Stewart, Esq., of Frescati, near Dublin (she died in 1851); secondly, in 1861, Charlotte Anne, youngest daughter of Admiral the Hon. Sir Robert Stopford, G.C.B. Address: The Deanery, St. Paul's, E.C.

GREIN, J. T., was born in Amsterdam on October 11, 1862, and is, on the mother's side, of English extraction. He was educated in Holland, Germany, and Belgium, and has been occupied in the East India and banking trades since 1879. He came to London in 1885, and is at present attorney in an important City firm. Since the early age of sixteen he has been connected with the press. He was in 1883 dramatic critic of one of the leading dailies in Amsterdam, and is the London editor of three of the most important daily papers of Holland, besides being dramatic critic of Life and of the Westminster Review. He is also correspondent of several German and French papers, and is accustomed to write four languages. The following works have been published by Mr. Grein: (in Dutch) "Dramatic Essays," 1884; "Silhouettes" (short novels), 1885; "London: Wealth Poverty," 1890; (in English) "Light and Dark" (short stories); "A Man's Love," in collaboration with W. Jarvis, in 1889, besides several dramas which have been produced in various London theatres, and a collection of dramatic studies, 1894. In 1885 Grein founded the Independent Society, with a view to producing which have an artistic and literary rather than a commercial value. During seasons this society produced works of Ibsen, Zola, De Banville, Coppée, and original plays, notably "Widowers," by G. B. Shaw; "The Strangers," by George Moore; "Wife" (anonymous); "A Quest of Memory," by Michael Field; and "Black Cat," by John Todhunter. Mr. J. T. Grein founded the Popular Debates Club. He is Correspondent of the Congo Free State, and in 1897 and edited Hollandia. He is also dramatic critic of the Sunday Special. From till 1897 he edited To-Morrow, a literary magazine. Address: 35 Haymarket, London. Club: Constitutional.

GRENFELL, Bernard Prynne, born at Birmingham, Dec. 16, 1866, son of the late John Granville Grenfell, B.A., Assistant-Master at Clifton College, was educated at Clifton College and Queen's College, Oxford (first-class Classical Mods., 1890; first-class Hon., 1892; B.A. 1892; Craven Fellowship, 1894-95). He was elected to a research Fellowship at Queen's College, Oxford, in 1894 (M.A. 1895). In 1894 he has been engaged in excavations in Egypt, especially in connection with the discovery of Greek Papyri. He worked for two seasons with I. Flinders Petrie at his excavations in Egypt (1894-95). In 1895 he joined the Egypt Exploration Fund, and was elected a member of that society in the Fayûm from 1896, and at Behnesa, the ancient rhynchus, from 1896 to 1897, where the large discovery of papyri was made. He was the discoverer of the ruins of the old town, including the temple called "Logia" or "Sayings of the Lord." In 1896 he was joined by Mr. A. S. Hunt, with whom he has since worked in collaboration. His publications are: Revenue Laws of Ptolemy Philadelphus, 1896; "An Alexandrian Erotic Fragment and other Greek Papyri," 1896; in collaboration with Mr. A. S. Hunt, Classical Fragments, and other Greek Papyri, 1897; "Sayings of the Lord, from an early Greek Papyrus," 1897; "A Revised Edition of the Genes of Menander," 1898; "The Rhynchus Papyri I," 1898. Address: 35 Haymarket, London.

Queen's College, Oxford; 62 Holywell, Oxford; Cairo, Egypt.

GRENFELL, Lieut.-General Sir Francis Wallace, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., late Sirdar of the Egyptian armies, was born in London on April 29, 1841, and is the son of the late P. St. L. Grenfell, J.P., and Madelena Du Pré. He entered the army, Aug. 5, 1859; became Lieut., July 16, 1863; Captain, Oct. 28, 1871; Major, Nov. 11, 1878; Lieut.-Colonel, Nov. 29, 1879; Colonel, Nov. 18, 1882; Major-General, Aug. 3, 1889; served as Aide-de-Camp to Sir Arthur Cunynghame, also as Staff Officer to Colonel Glyn, commanding a field force in the Transkei in 1887-88, and was present in the engagement with the Galekas and Gaikas at Quintana Mountain on Feb. 7, 1878 (mentioned in despatches, brevet of Major); was Deputy-Assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster-General at head-quarters in the Kaffir war of 1878; and was Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General at head-quarters in the Zulu war of 1879, where he was present in the engagement at Ulundi (mentioned in despatches) brevet of Lieut.-Colonel, Medal with Clasp; was Assistant-Quartermaster-General, under Sir Evelyn Wood, in the Boer war of 1881; was Assistant-Adjutant and Quartermaster-General on the Head-quarters Staff in the Egyptian war of 1882; and was present at the engagements of Tel-el-Mahuta and Kassassin, and in the battle of Tel-el-Kebir (mentioned in despatches, Aide-de-Camp to the Queen, Medal with Clasp, third class of Medjidieh, and Khedive's Star); was with the Nile Expedition in 1884-85 on the lines of communication (mentioned in despatches, C.B. and Clasp); was with the Egyptian Field Force in 1885-86, and was present in the engagement at Giniss in command of a Division (mentioned in despatches, K.C.B., and promoted to first class of the Medjidieh, and third class of the Osmanieh). Sir Francis Grenfell also commanded the troops during the operations near Suakim in Dec. 1888, including the engagement at Gemaizah, and headed the combined English and Egyptian forces at the battle of Toski (Aug. 3, 1889). On the day previous to General Grenfell's departure from Egypt on leave of absence, his Highness the Khedive presented him with a sword of honour "In souvenir of the victories of Giniss, Gamaiza, and Toski." Major-General Grenfell returned from Egypt in April 1892, and in May was appointed Deputy Adjutant-General for Militia, Yeomanry, and Volunteers. In 1894 he was appointed Inspector-General of Auxiliary Forces, War Office. He was in command of the forces in Egypt in 1897-98. In 1887 he married Evelyn, daughter of General R.

Wood, C.B. He is now (1899) Commander-in-Chief and Governor-General, Malta.

GRENFELL, Lieut.-Colonel Henry Riversdale, J.P., born April 5, 1824, is second son of Charles Pascoe Grenfell, at one time M.P. for Preston, and of Lady Georgina, eldest daughter of Wm. Philip, 2nd Earl of Sefton. He was educated at Harrow and Christ Church, Oxford; was private Secretary to Lord Panmure at the close of the Crimean War, and to Sir Charles Wood during the period of the reconstruction of the Indian administration from 1859 to 1861; was elected M.P. for Stoke-upon-Trent on the death of John Lewis Ricardo in 1862, and sat for that place till 1868, when he stood with Mr. Gladstone for South-West Lancashire, since which date he has not sat in Parliament. He was elected a Director of the Bank of England in 1865, Deputy-Governor in 1879, and Governor in 1881. He is at present a Director of the Bank, and Chairman of the General Council of the Bimetallic League. He was Captain of 2nd Middlesex Militia in 1851, and was made Lieut.-Colonel of that regiment in 1870. He is also a Commissioner of Lieutenancy for the City of London, and sat as Royal Commissioner to inquire into the Metropolitan Board of Works in 1888. Colonel Grenfell is the author of several political pamphlets and magazine articles, principally on economical subjects, banking legislation, and the standard of value. In 1886 he joined with Lord Aldenham in the publication of "The Bimetallic Controversy," a collection of papers on the Bimetallic question. In 1867 he married Alethea Louisa, daughter of H. T. Adeane, M.P. for Cambridgeshire, 1830-32. He is a Liberal-Unionist in politics. Address: Baeres, Henley-on-Thames.

GREVILLE, George, C.M.G., Minister in Siam, eldest son of Algernon William Bellingham Greville, of Brussels, was born in 1851, and, having been educated at Magdalen College, Oxford, entered the Diplomatic Service in 1875. Having held several minor appointments at Lisbon, Buenos Ayres, and Peking, he was appointed Secretary at Rio de Janeiro, 1892. In 1896 he was for a short period Consul-General at Buda-Pesth, before taking up his present appointment. He was made a C.M.G. on May 25, 1895.

GRÉVILLE, Henry. See DURAND, ALICE MARIE CÉLESTE.

GREY, Earl, Albert Henry George Grey, LL.M., J.P., Administrator of Rhodesia, was born November 28, 1851, and is the son of General Hon. Charles

Grey and Caroline, daughter of Sir Harvie Farquhar, Bart. He was educated at Harrow and Trinity College, Cambridge. In 1878 he was elected M.P. for Northumberland, but was unseated on petition. He was M.P. for South Northumberland, 1880-85, and for the Tyneside Division, 1885-86. He was travelling in South Africa when he succeeded his uncle, the 3rd Earl, in the peerage, 1894. After the Jameson Raid, 1896, he succeeded Mr. Rhodes as representative of the British South Africa Company, and quelled the rebellion of the Matabele in 1896 and 1897. In 1877 he married Alice, third daughter of Robert Stayner Holford, M.P. Address: Howick House, Northumberland.

GREY, Sir Edward, Bart., M.P., eldest son of George Henry Grey, was born in London on April 25, 1862, and succeeded his grandfather in the baronetcy in 1882. He was educated at Winchester and at Balliol College, Oxford, where he took a second class in Classical Moderations, and a third class in Law. Since 1885 he has represented Berwick-on-Tweed in the Liberal interest, and from 1892 to 1895 was Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs. As the representative of Lord Rosebery, the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, who was, of course, in the Upper House, Sir Edward Grey occupied a very delicate and responsible position, and his duties became even more onerous when his chief became Premier. In the House he is regarded as a man of infinite possibilities in the future, and is a recognised authority on foreign affairs. It may be mentioned that in 1896 he was the winner of the Marylebone Cricket Club and Queen's Club Tennis Prize. In 1885 he married Dorothy, daughter of S. F. Widdrington, Newton Hall, Northumberland. Address: Falloden, Chathill.

GREY-WILSON, William, C.M.G., Governor of the Falkland Islands, born at Tunbridge Wells on April 7, 1852, is the youngest son of Andrew Wilson, Inspector-General of Hospitals, H.E.I.C.S., and, through his mother, great-grandson of the first Earl Grey. He was educated at Cheltenham College and in France, and became Private Secretary to Sir William Grey, K.C.S.I., Governor of Jamaica, 1874, also to Lieut.-Governor Edward E. Rushworth, General J. R. Mann, R.E., Sir Frederick Barber, and the Earl of Northesk, and clerk of the Executive and Legislative Councils of British Honduras, 1878; Magistrate on the Mexican Frontier and in command of the Frontier scouts, 1879; assistant Colonial Secretary and Treasurer, Sierra Leone, 1883; special commissioner to take over the Sulymah country, West Africa; and subsequently sent on several special missions to native states in West Africa; fourth assistant Colonial Secretary to the Gold Coast Colony, 1884; Colonial Secretary, St. Helena, 1886; administered Government, 1887 to 1890; Governor and Commander-in-Chief of St. Helena, May 1890-97. In 1897 he was appointed Governor of the Falkland Islands. Address: Government House, Stanley, Falkland Islands. Club: Junior Carlton.

GRIEG, Edvard Hagerup, musician, was born at Bergen, in Norway, June 15, 1843. At an early age he received his first musical instruction from his mother, who was a highly gifted musician and an accomplished pianist. In 1858, on the advice of Ole Bull, the violinist, he went to continue his musical training at the Conservatorium of Leipzig, where he became a pupil of Moscheles, Hauptmann, Richter, Reinecke, and Wenzel. In 1860 he went to prosecute his studies at Copenhagen under the late Niels Wilhelm Gade, who, with E. Hartmann, greatly contributed to develop his talent for composition. The turning-point in his career, however, was his coming in contact, for a short period, with Richard Nordraak, a young Norwegian composer of brilliant genius, who shortly afterwards died. With regard to this meeting Grieg himself relates that "The scales fell from my eyes. It was from him that I first learned to appreciate the popular melodies of the North, and to be conscious of my own nature. We became determined adversaries of the effeminate Scandinavianism which was an admixture of Gade and Mendelssohn, and with enthusiasm we struck out the new path now trodden by the Northern school." In 1867 he founded at Christiania a musical society, which he conducted until 1880. In 1865 and 1870 he paid visits to Italy, and became intimate in Rome with Liszt. He also repeatedly visited Germany, especially Leipzig, for lengthened periods. There he brought out his compositions in public, and he himself performed in 1879, at a concert in the Gewandhaus, his concerto for the piano. Madame Grieg is a singer of considerable repute. On the occasion of her husband's visit to England in the autumn of 1897, Madame Grieg came over to England for a time in order to nurse him, when he fell a temporary victim to our island breezes. While here, Madame Grieg sang in London, and charmed metropolitan music lovers with the purity and sweetness of her rich Norwegian voice. At about the same time Grieg himself gave several pianoforte recitals in London and in provincial towns, naturally achieving great success, the music performed consisting entirely of his own compositions. His orchestral suite, "Peer Gynt" (op. 46), is probably the most popular of his compositions. On Nov. 4, 1897, the Philharmonic Society of London gave a grand concert in honour of Grieg, who came over specially to conduct his compositions, with which the programme was almost filled. Unfortunately, at the last moment, an acute attack of bronchitis prevented Grieg from attending the Queen's Hall, and his place was taken by Sir A. C. Mackenzie. Among his best-known works may be mentioned: "Tableaux Poétiques," "Humoresques Pièces Lyriques," "Morceaux Symphoniques," besides choruses for female voices, sonatas, songs, and two operas, "Sigur Jorsalfar" and "Peer Gynt." M. Grieg is regarded by his fellow-countrymen as chief, with Svendsen, of the Scandinavian school. In June 1891 he was elected correspondent of the Institut de France. M. Grieg prides himself on his cosmopolitanism, which he attributes to his European travels. His personality is described as "most charming," and pretty pictures of the simplicity and sweetness of his home-life are to be found in contemporary journals. He lives in a beautiful house—whose building he himself superintended, on the shore of a typical Norwegian fjord—an ideal spot for a composer so susceptible of the mystic influence of the poetry of nature. On the confines of the grounds of his house he has had built a little sanctum sanctorum, where he works alone. This interesting place, the birthplace of much of the finest of contemporary music, is fitted up with everything dear to the heart of M. Grieg: the scores of Wagner, Grieg's favourite books, his small piano, and many other treasures which the eye of the guest would never see. Grieg spends ten months of the year in the warm cities of mid-Europe, as he suffers a great deal from chills. During the two months of Norwegian summer M. Grieg buries himself in his retreat on the Hardanger Fjord for holiday-making and composition. He has long given up teaching, and lives a quiet country life when in Central Europe.

GRIFFITH, The Hon. Sir Samuel Walker, G.C.M.G., Chief-Justice of Queensland, was born June 21, 1845, at Merthyr-Tydfil, Wales, and is of Welsh descent. He is the second son of Rev. Edward Griffith. He arrived in Australia in 1854, and was educated at Mr. Robert Horniman's School, Sydney; at the High School (Presbyterian), West Maitland, N.S.W.; and at the University of Sydney, where he took the degree of B.A., 1863

(first class in classics and mathematics); M.A., 1870; Mort Travelling Fellow, 1865. He was called to the Queensland Bar in October 1867; was made Q.C. in 1876, and was also member of the Bars of New South Wales and Victoria. He was elected to the Legislative Assembly of Queensland in March 1872, and continued a member until his appointment to the Bench. He was Attorney-General of Queensland from August 1874 to December 1878; Secretary for Public Instruction, January 1876 to January 1879; Secretary for Public Works, September 1878 to January 1879; Leader of the Opposition, 1879 to 1883; and refused a seat on the Bench of the Supreme Court of Queensland, 1879. He was Premier of Queensland, November 1883 to June 1888, holding from time to time the offices of Colonial Secretary and Secretary of Public Instruction, Colonial Secretary only, Chief Secretary, and Chief Secretary and Treasurer. He was the leader of the Opposition, 1888-90. He attended the Sydney Convention of November-December 1883, at which the Constitution of the Federal Council of Australasia was framed, and he took considerable part in framing it. He was a member of the Federal Council from its inception in 1885; re-appointed in 1888 and 1891; Chairman of Standing Committee of F.C., 1887-88; President, 1888, 1891, and 1893. He attended the Colonial Conference of 1887 in London, as a representative of Queensland; attended the Federation Conference in Melbourne, February 1890, as a delegate from Queensland; was a delegate to represent Queensland at the Federation Convention to frame a Federal Constitution for Australasia, and was appointed Vice-President of the Convention. He was also Chairman of the Constitutional Committee, and a principal framer of the Constitution adopted by the Convention. He has presided over the Federal Council in 1888, 1891, 1893. He was for many years the leader of the anti-servile labour party in Queensland, and of the Liberal party in Parliament. In 1890 he formed, with Sir Thomas McIlwraith, a coalition Government, accepting the offices of Chief Secretary, Attorney-General, and Premier. He remained in office till March 1893, when he was appointed Chief-Justice, the Legislature having, with a view to his appointment, raised the salary of that office to £3500 at the instance of the leader of the Opposition. In 1892, at his instance, the Legislature removed the prohibition then existing against the introduction of Polynesian labour, the sugar industry in Queensland then being in a very critical condition, and white labour not being available to carry on the work. The result was an immediate revival of the industry, which has since been in a prosperous condition. He has written articles in the Centennial Magazine (Sydney), and other papers on social questions relating to the unequal distribution of the products of labour. Throughout his career he was engaged in active practice at the Queensland Bar, of which he was for many years the recognised leader. He was created K.C.M.G. in 1886-87; G.C.M.G., 1895. Sir Samuel W. Griffith married, in 1870, Julia Janet, daughter of James Thomson, Esq. (formerly Commissioner of Crown Lands, Maitland, N.S.W.), and has issue. Address: Merthyr, Brisbane.

GRIFFITHS, Major Arthur George Frederick, second son of Lieut.-Col. John Griffiths, formerly of the 6th Royal Warwickshire Regiment, was born at Poona, in India, on Dec. 9, 1838. He was educated at King William's College, Isle of Man, and entered the army in February 1855. He served in the Crimea with the 63rd (now the Manchester) Regiment, was present at the siege and fall of Sebastopol, and gained the Crimean medal. After performing the duties of Brigade-Major at Gibraltar from 1864 to 1870, he retired from the army in the latter year, and obtained an appointment in the Prison Service. After filling the office of Deputy-Governor of Chatham, Millbank, and Wormwood Scrubs Prisons, he was, in 1878, made one of Her Majesty's Inspectors of Prisons, a post which he still holds. He is the author of: "Memorials of Millbank," 1875; "Chronicles of Newgate," 1883; "Secrets of the Prison House," 1894; "The Wellington Memorial," and "Wellington and Waterloo," 1898; and the following novels: "Lola," 1876; "Fast and Loose," 1886; "The Wrong Road," 1888; "The Rome Express," 1897. Major Griffiths gained the Czar's gold medal in the international competition for an essay on John Howard, and he was the representative of England at the last Congress of Criminal Anthropology at Geneva in 1896. He married the daughter of Richard Reilly. Addresses: 12 Onslow Square, W.; and the Athenæum.

GRIGGS, John William, United States Attorney-General, was born at Newton, New Jersey, July 10, 1849. He was educated in his native town, and at Lafayette College, where he graduated in 1868; was admitted to the Bar in 1871, and began the practice of the law at Paterson the same year. He was a member of the Lower House of the New Jersey Legislature, 1876-77; was elected a State Senator in 1882, and re-elected in 1884. He was President of the State Senate in 1885, was elected Governor of New Jersey in 1895, and resigned that office in Jan. 1898, to become Attorney-General of the United States, under President McKinley, and as successor to Hon. Joseph McKim.

GRILLO, Marquise del, nee Adelaide Ristori, tragic actress, born Cividale, in Friuli, in 1821, being the child of a poor actor, was trained at a very early age for the stage. She appears to have risen through a long series of struggles to the eminence she ultimately attained. Having accepted in 1853 an engagement in Paris, she sought the favour of a French audience as an interpreter of the tragic muse at the very time Rachel was in the zenith of her fame. Her appearance at such a period was regarded by the French as an open challenge to contest the supremacy of their tragic queen, and they assembled much less disposed to criticise than to applaud. The genius of Ristori, however, triumphed, and from that moment her position has been unassailed. Her reception in England was equally enthusiastic, and she appeared in Spain in 1857, in Holland in 1860, in Russia in 1861, at Constantinople in 1864, in the United States and other parts of the world, with success. William I. of Prussia gave her the medal in science and in arts in 1862. Amongst her most famous characters are those of Medea, Lady Macbeth, Fazio, Phædra, Deborah, Judith, Francesca da Riviera, and Camilla. After an absence of fifteen years, Madame Ristori again appeared in London, June 11, 1873, and on November 8 in that year she took her farewell of the English stage at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester. She appeared again, however, on a few occasions in the year 1892, and acted Lady Macbeth with all her old distinction, if with some lack of fire. In 1887 she published "Études et Souvenirs." She is married to the Marquis Capranica del Grillo.

GRIMSTON, Mrs. Kendal. See KENDAL, MRS.

GRIMSTON, William Hunter Kendal. See KENDAL, WILLIAM HUNTER.

GRIMTHORPE, Lord, Edmund Beckett Denison (afterwards Sir Edmund Beckett, Bart.), Q.C., LL.D., J.P., son of Sir Edmund Beckett, Bart., and Maria, daughter of William Beverley of Beverley, was born at Carlton Hall, near Newark, May 12, 1816, and was educated at Doncaster, Eton, and Trinity College, Cambridge, of which he was

He graduated B.A. and 30th in 1838; was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn, 1841, and became Q.C. In 1863 he received the degree of D. In 1877 was appointed Chancellor-General of York Province. He was for many years the Parliamentary Bar, and re-1881. In 1886 he was created a Baron. He has always interested himself in architecture, and has designed, restored no small number of churches and houses, including all the churches at St. Alban's Cathedral since those at Lincoln's Inn, of which he was Benchman, and the great West-1880. He is President of the British Horological Institute, and of the Protestant Churchmen's Society, and is the author of the following: "Lectures on Church Building"; "Life of Bishop Lonsdale" (1869); "A Treatise on the Law of Building," 2nd edit., 1880; the Revised New Testament Bible (1880) (meaning that it should not, 1882; "Astronomy without Instruments," 7th edit., 1883; "Treatise on Watches, and Bells," 7th edit., 1883; "The History of St. Alban's Cathedral and its Vicarage," 2nd edit., 1890; "Origin of the Church of Nature," 2nd edit., 1880, of which the Times wrote, "It is long since met with a book which contains so clear and vigorous reasoning on so much in so short a compass"; and "The History of Hume and Huxley on the S.P.C.K.," 2nd edit., 1884; numerous pamphlets and reviews on questions of ecclesiastical law and a multitude of controversial letters in on various subjects, legal, social, architectural, and theological. He was for long practically the leading authority on all the Inns. On the death of Mr. Spencer Walpole in May 1898 he became the 10th Baron. He married, in 1845, Fanny, daughter of the Bishop of Lichfield (Dr. Charles). Addresses: Batch Wood, St. Albans; 5 Queen Anne Street, W.; and 10, Grosvenor Street, W.

GROVE, George, actor, was born Sept. 9, 1847, and is the eldest son of George Grossmith, a journalist and well-known lecturer. He was educated at the North London Collegiate School, and in 1866 joined his father as a reporter for the Times at Bow Street Court. Here, as Charles Dickens noticed, he doubtless had abundant opportunities for studying humour and comedy in their most pronounced form. He had himself a great natural mimicry, and in 1870 appeared as an entertainer after the manner of John Parry, whose performance used mainly to consist of burlesques, monologues, singing in different voices, and rapid changes of costume. In 1877 began his famous career as an actor of Gilbert and Sullivan opera, for in that year he appeared in "The Sorcerer" at the Opera Comique. At this theatre and at the Savoy he afterwards played eight principal parts in Gilbert and Sullivan's pieces, making his greatest creations as the Admiral in "Pinafore," and as "Bunthorne" in "Patience." In 1889 he began a series of tours as an entertainer, and gave single-handed humorous and musical recitals both here and in America. He has published "A Society Clown," which is autobiographical, and "The Diary of a Nobody," written in conjunction with Weedon Grossmith. He has composed and written more than a hundred humorous and satirical songs and sketches, as well as "Cups and Saucers." The music for "Haste to the Wedding" (libretto by Gilbert) is from his pen, as also that for "Uncle Samuel." Address: 28 Dorset Square, N.W.

GROSSMITH, Weedon, actor and artist, brother of George Grossmith, began life as an art student at the Royal Academy Schools, and has exhibited frequently at the Royal Academy and Grosvenor. He is part-author with George Grossmith of "The Diary of a Nobody," and has contributed to Punch and the Art Journal. He wrote the play "Commission," and has taken the leading part in it, and in "The Pantomime Rehearsal" and "The New Boy." He has also played as Jacques Strop to Sir Henry Irving's Robert Macaire, and in "The Money Lender" and "Cabinet Minister." From 1894-96 he was lessee and manager of the Vaudeville Theatre. He married, in 1895, May, daughter of Dr. Palfrey, Brook Street, and granddaughter of J. Lever of Guy's Hospital. Address: Old House, Canonbury.

GROVE, Major-General Sir Coleridge, K.C.B., was born at Wandsworth on Sept. 26, 1839, and is the second son of the late Right Hon. Sir W. R. Grove, who died in 1896, and Emma, daughter of the late John Powles. He was educated at a private school, and at Balliol College, Oxford, where he was Exhibitioner, and was in the first class, Mathematical Mods., and in the Final School of Mathematics (B.A.). He entered the army, in 1863, as Ensign of the 15th Foot, now known as the East York Regiment. He was promoted Lieutenant in 1866, Captain in 1871, Major in 1881, and Colonel in 1888. General Grove has held many staff appointments, and is now Military Secretary to the Commander-in-Chief at Head-quarters. In the Egyptian campaign of 1882 he was Deputy-Assistant Adjutant-General of the Headquarters Staff, and was mentioned in despatches, receiving the Brevet of Lieutenant-Colonel and the Osmanieh of the Fourth Class. He was employed on special service in the Soudan expedition of 1884, and held various appointments, among them that of Assistant Adjutant-General for boat service on the Nile. He was also commandant at Gemai. In October 1885 he went to Gibraltar as Assistant Quarter-master-General, but vacated that appointment in February 1886, when he became Private Secretary to the Secretary of State for War. He was created a C.B. in 1887, K.C.B. in 1898, and attained the rank of Major-General in July 1896. Address: Wellington Court, Albert Gate, S.W.

GROVE, Sir George, C.B., D.C.L., LL.D., second son of Thomas Grove, born at Clapham, Surrey, on Aug. 13, 1820, was educated as a civil engineer. In 1841 he erected the first cast-iron lighthouse constructed, on Morant Point, Jamaica; and in 1844 a similar tower on Gibbs Hill, Bermuda. On his return to England he joined the staff of the late Mr. Robert Stephenson, by whom he was employed on the works of the Chester and Holyhead Railway and the Britannia Bridge. In 1850 he succeeded Mr. Scott Russell as Secretary to the Society of Arts, and on the formation of the Crystal Palace Company in 1852 was appointed its secretary, a position he occupied till the end of 1873. After this he became a member of the Board of Direction of the Company, and retained his seat until 1878. He was at one time associated with the house of Macmillan & Co., publishers, and edited Macmillan's Magazine for several years. On the suggestion of Dr. Stanley, the then Dean of Westminster, he became one of the principal contributors to the "Dictionary of the Bible," edited by Dr. William Smith, and took an active part in the formation of the Palestine Exploration Fund, under the patronage of her Majesty. He is also editor of "The Dictionary of Music and Musicians (A.D. 1450-1886)." Some of the principal biographies—amongst them Beethoven, Mendelssohn, and Schubert—are from his pen. The University of Durham conferred on Mr. Grove (June 26, 1875) the honorary degree of D.C.L., in recognition of his services to literature. His analyses of classical orchestral music for the Saturday Concerts at the Crystal Palace, and his zeal as a propagandist of good music, are well known. Early in 1882 he was appointed by the Prince of Wales to be Director of the Royal Academy of Music at Kensington, but resigned that post in November 1894, and was succeeded by Dr. Hubert Parry. Sir George is one of the literary executors of the late Dean of Westminster, with whom he visited the United States in 1881. He was knighted by the Queen on May 24, 1883, and received the Companionship of the Bath in 1886. He was married to Harriet, daughter of Rev. Charles Bradley. Addresses: Sydenham, S.E.; and Athenaeum.

GROVE, Thomas Newcomb, J.P., founder, proprietor, and editor of the New Review, is the son of the late Captain Edward Grove, Elizabeth, daughter of Colonel J. Watts. He was educated privately at Oriel College, Oxford, where he obtained double honours, 1879-80, and sat the Bar, passing all his examinations in the Inner Temple. He founded the Review, and edited it from its commencement till 1894. After unsuccessfully contesting Winchester in 1886, he was elected for West Ham (North) in 1892, and retained that constituency until 1895. He has travelled extensively on the Continent, in Asia, and in Africa. He was married in 1889, to Kate Sara, daughter of James Sibley. Addresses: 11 Hans Place, S.W.; and Berry Down, Havant, Hants.

GROVES, Charles Edward, the son of Charles Groves, of which family he was born there on March 4, 1841, was educated at the College. He was brought up under the late Dr. Wilson, an alumnus of the Royal College of Chemistry (Royal College of Mines), under Dr. A. W. Holden, to whom he was afterwards private secretary, and then assistant in the Laboratory of the College. In 1862 he went as a student to Dr. Stenhouse, with whom he remained until his death in 1880. In 1880 he was appointed Lecturer in Practical Chemistry at Guy's Hospital, where he subsequently became Senior Lecturer in Chemistry, and also Lecturer in Dental Metallurgy. In 1885 consulting chemist to the Conservators of the River Thames. In 1878 he became sub-editor of the Journal of the Chemical Society, and on the death of Mr. H. Watts, in 1884, succeeded him as editor of the journal. He was a Fellow of the Chemical Society, and of the Royal Society in 1881. He was one of the founders of the Institute of Chemistry, of which he was for many years Registrar and Secretary. He is the author of several important works: Dr. Calvert's "Dyeing and Calico Printing,"

Miller's Chemistry; Part II., In Chemistry," 1878; and (in con- with Dr. Armstrong) of Part III., Chemistry," 1880; and "Fuel," the first volume of Groves' and Chemical Technology," the second of which, "Lighting," was pub- 1895. He is also the sole author, author with his friend, the late house, of numerous papers on Chemistry," being the dis- f tetrabromide of carbon of Beta- none, and of the corresponding e, the last two belonging to classes ounds hitherto unknown. Ad- 2 Kennington Road, S.E.

3B, Sir Howard, F.R.S., was privately, and at Trinity College, He is the head of a Dublin manu- f astronomical instruments, and acts for these instruments to the nd also to foreign governments. ved the Cunningham Gold Medal was Hon. Secretary of the Royal ocity from 1889 to 1893; and has e-President of the Royal Dublin ince 1893. Sir H. Grubb is the f numerous papers on scientific Address: 51 Kenilworth Square, IDY, Sydney, dramatist, was nchester, March 23, 1848, and is on of the late Alderman Charles rundy, ex-Mayor of Manchester. at Owens College, now the Vicer- versity, he was called to the Bar elmas 1869. He is author and or of the following and other l operettas: "A Little Change" et), 1872; "Mammon" (Strand), he Snowball" (Strand), 1879; ur Bound" (Prince of Wales's), he Vicar of Bray" (Globe), 1882; ss of Fashion" (Globe), 1883; en's Favourite" (Olympic), 1883; lver Shield" (Strand), 1885; Princess's), 1886; "The Bells of e" (Adelphi), 1887; "The Ara- ts" (Globe), 1887; "The Pompa- laymarket), 1888; "The Union Adelphi), 1888; "Mamma" 1888; "A White Lie" (Court), Pair of Spectacles" (Garrick), a Village Priest" (Haymarket), A Fool's Paradise" (Garrick), Haddon Hall" (Savoy), 1892; the Wind" (Comedy), 1893; Jew" (Garrick), 1894; "A Bunch s" (Haymarket), 1894; "The n" (Comedy), 1894; "Slaves uing" (Garrick), 1894; "The f These" (Garrick), 1896; "A of Convenience" (Haymarket), he Silver Key" (Her Majesty's), 1897. Addresses: Winter Lodge, Addison Road, Kensington; and 5 Beach Houses, Margate.

GUBERNATIS, Count Angelo de, an Italian author, born at Turin, April 7, 1840, was educated in the University of Turin, where he received the degree of Doctor of Philology. He was appointed in 1860 Professor of Rhetoric in the Gymnasium of Chieri, near Turin; was sent in 1862, at the expense of the Government, to Berlin, where he studied under Professors Bopp and Weber; became Extraordinary Professor of Sanscrit in the University of Florence (Istituto di Studi Superiori) in 1863, and Ordinary Professor in 1869. Signor De Gubernatis has obtained celebrity as a dramatist, a lyric poet, a journalist, a critic, an Orientalist, and a mythologist. He made his début with his tragedy entitled "Pere delle Vigne." The principal character was sustained by the celebrated actor Ernesto Rossi, and the piece proved a great success. Afterwards he published the following dramas in verse: "La Morte di Catone," "Romolo," 1874; "Il Rè Nala," "Il Rè Dasarata," "Mâyâ," "Romolo Augustolo," and "Savitri: Idillio Drammatico Indiano," 1878. He has founded five journals: L'Italia Letteraria, 1862; La Civiltà Italiana, 1869; La Rivista Orientale, 1867; La Rivista Europea, 1869; and the Bollettino Italiano degli Studi Orientali, 1876. He is the Italian correspondent of the Athenæum and of the Contemporary Review of London, of the International Review of New York, of the Deutsche Rundschau of Berlin, and of the Wietsnik Europy of St. Petersburg. Among his scientific works the following deserve special mention: "Piccolo Enciclopedia Indiana," Florence, 1867; "Fonti vediche dell' Epopea," Florence, 1867; "Memoria sui Viaggiatori Italiani nelle Indie Orientali," Florence, 1867; "Storia comparata degli Usi Nuziali Indo-Europei," Milan, 1869; "Storia comparati degli Usi Funebri e Natalizii," Milan, 1877; "Zoological Mythology: or The Legends of Animals," 2 vols., London, 1872, translated into German, Leipzig, 1873; and into French, Paris, 1874; "Letture sopra la Mitologia Vedica," Florence, 1874; "Ricordi biografici," Florence, 1873; "Storia dei Viaggiatori Italiani nelle Indie," Leghorn, 1875; "Matériaux pour servir à l'Histoire des Études Orientales en Italie," Paris and Florence, 1876; and "Mythologie des Plantes," 2 vols. Paris, 1878. He is General Secretary of the Italian Oriental Academy. In May 1878 he delivered in the Taylor Institute at Oxford a series of three lectures on the life and works of Manzoni. They were published at Florence in 1879, under the title of "Alessandro Manzoni: Studio Biografico." He acted as General Secretary to the Congress of Orientalists held at Florence in September 1878. In the same year he began publishing a biographical dictionary of contemporary litterateurs, of which a revised edition was published in French between 1888 and 1891.

GUESDE, Jules Basile, French Socialist, was born in Paris, Nov. 11, 1845, and at first was a translator for the Ministry of the Interior. He then entered journalism, and advocated the most advanced views. During the war of 1870 he was at Marseilles, editing a paper called Les Droits de l'Homme, and was condemned to five years' imprisonment, which he evaded by escaping to Switzerland. He spent some years in that country and in Italy, only returning to France after the amnesty of 1880. He married one of the daughters of Karl Marx, and with him enunciated the doctrine of collectivism, whose aim is to do away with patriotism, replacing it by internationalism. In 1893 he was elected member for Roubaix, and in 1894 advocated a minimum wage for agricultural labourers. During the same session he took up much of the time of the House, laying down collectivist doctrines, which, however, were never adopted. His works consist of popular pamphlets on collectivism.

GUILBERT, Yvette. See SCHILLER, MADAME.

GUILDFORD, Bishop of. See SUMNER, THE RIGHT REV. GEORGE HENRY.

GUILLAIN, M., French statesman, passed through the École Polytechnique and adopted engineering as his profession, in which he has attained some eminence. M. Guillaïn was formerly Inspector-General of Roads and Bridges, and afterwards was appointed to the headship of a Department at the Ministry of Public Works. He was returned, in 1896, at a by-election for Dunkirk. In October 1898 he attained ministerial rank as Minister for the Colonies in M. Dupuy's government.

GUILLAUME, Jean Baptiste Claude Eugène, Hon. R.A., a distinguished French sculptor, was born at Montbard, Côte d'Or, Feb. 3, 1822, and after passing through the usual course of studies in the College of Dijon, went to Paris to become a pupil of Pradier at the École des Beaux-Arts, where he obtained the Prix de Rome in 1845. On the reorganisation of the École des Beaux-Arts at the close of 1873, M. Guillaïn was appointed to a Professorship; twelve months later was nominated tutor of that Institution. He was a member of the Institute and promoted to the rank of Officer of the Legion of Honour in 1867; and elected a member of the Royal Academy of Fine Arts on December 15, 1869. This artist is familiar to those visitors at the International Exhibition of 1875 who noticed "The Tomb of the Duke of Burgundy," which was suggested by the double of the great brethren placed as on one side by side. This is now in the Louvre, together with his "Anacreon statue of Napoleon I., which was shown at the French Universal Exhibition of 1875, attracted great attention. Amongst the productions of his chisel are: "Finding his Father's Sword on a Tree," "Anacreon's Guests," a bas-relief of M. Hittorff in the Universal Exhibition of 1889; "The Lives of St. Clotilde and St. Valérie," bas-reliefs, in the new wing of the Louvre; the "Monument to the late M. de Darbois," at Rheims; and a bust of the seigneur Darbois. He was sent to Rome in 1891 as head of the French Art Commission, having in 1887 been appointed Professor of Drawing at the École Polytechnique. His Paris address is 3 Rue Jean B.

GUINNESS, The Rev. Dr. Grattan, D.D., born August 18, 1815, Dublin, is the son of Captain John Guinness, H.E.I.C.S., and grandson of John Guinness, of Beaumont, co. Dub. He was educated at private schools, and at New College, London; ordained, as an undenominational Evangelist, in 1840, and became a preacher of the Gospel both in Britain and Ireland, in America and the Continent. He is the Fourth Director of the East London Institute for Home and Foreign Missions, Harley Bow, London, E., which has sent out 500 missionaries into all parts of the world. Dr. Grattan Guinness is the author of "The Approaching End of the World, viewed in the Light of History, Prophecy, and Science," a work which has passed through ten editions; "The Last Days"; "Romanism and Reformation"; "The Divine Philosophy of the World's History," and other works. Address: Harley House, Bow, London, E.

GUINNESS, Mrs. H. Grace, of the above, daughter of Edm. M. FitzGerald, and granddaughter of John FitzGerald, of Upper Merrion Square, Dublin, born in April 1831, and married in 1851. She is one of the earliest women members of the Gospel (members of the ted); Secretary of the above institute; and Secretary of the Inland Mission on the Congo; and joint author of the above works, and author of "Life of Mrs. Henry Denig," "World of Central Africa"; "The Regions Beyond," &c.

Georges, M.D., was born June 6, 1859; commenced his studies in 1877; and has worked under the direction of Professors Bouchard. He obtained his M.D. in 1889; and soon after became Chef de clinique des maladies nerveuses, at the Salpêtrière. He has written many articles, and has assisted the late Professor "Leçons sur les maladies nerveuses"; is secretary to the "Archives de Neurologie," and the "Nouvelle Iconographie médicale." His Paris address is 35 rue de la Harpe.

The Right Hon. William Q.C., Speaker of the House of Commons, was born in London on August 1, 1803, the second son of James Q.C., of Great Malvern. He was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, and in 1826 was senior in the Moral Sciences. During his University career he was President of the Union. He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1830, and practised on the Northern Circuit; in 1837 he was Recorder of his county, and was Recorder of Wigan, and sat as Liberal for Carlisle in 1845, when he was elected to the House of Commons. In 1865 he married Miss Walford, eldest daughter of the late Lord Walford. Addresses: Speaker's Office, Westminster, S.W.; and Athol House, Grosvenor Gardens, W.

Archibald Clavering, was born in Liverpool, Oct. 25, 1853, about five years of age he came to California by his parents, in February 1853. He was educated in England and partly in the United States, receiving the degree of Ph.B. in 1874 from the University of California, San Francisco. In 1874 he followed his profession as a professor of geology and civil engineering, in and other western parts of the United States. He early showed a talent for geology; and, during his college course, while following his profession, wrote several plays, the first of which, produced at the California Theatre, under the name of "Cuba," and another at the Grand Opera House, San Francisco, under the title of "Our Reporter." In 1874 he became a stockbroker in San Francisco, operating until 1877, when he went to New York, intending to make literature his occupation. His first play, which was produced in New York at the Union Square Theatre, August 1889, was "Two Nights in Rome." In February 1890, "Fresh, the American," was played at the Park Theatre. Since then he has had a number of plays performed, among them "Courage," "After the Opera," "The Wall Street Bandit," "Prince Karl," "The Deacon's Daughter," and his own dramatisation of his first story, "Mr. Barnes of New York," published in 1887. This proved a great success as a novel, and has since been published in several different languages, and by four or five English publishing houses. His second novel, "Mr. Potter of Texas," was published in 1888, and has been as successful as its predecessor. Since then he has issued "That Frenchman," 1889; "Miss Nobody of Nowhere," 1890; "Small Boys in Big Boots," 1890; "Miss Dividends," 1892; "Baron Montez of Panama and Paris," 1893; "The King's Stockbroker," and "A Princess of Paris," 1894; "The First of the English," "The Ladies' Juggernaut," and "Her Senator," 1895; "The Love Adventures of Al-Mansur," 1896; and "Bob Covington," 1897. His dramatisation of his novel, "Mr. Potter of Texas," met with marked success in the United States. Mr. Gunter is perhaps the only author who has successfully carried on the business of publishing his own works.

GÜNTHER, Albert Charles Lewis Gotthilf, M.A., Ph.D., M.D., F.R.S., born at Esslingen, Würtemberg, October 3, 1830, and educated at the Universities of Tübingen, Berlin, and Bonn, entered the service of the Trustees of the British Museum in 1857, and was appointed Keeper of the Department of Zoology in 1875; since that time he has devoted himself exclusively to the administration of the extensive collections under his charge. Dr. Günther, who is a member of many academies and learned societies at home and abroad, has published: "Die Fische des Neckars," Stuttgart, 1853; "Medicinische Zoologie," Stuttgart, 1858; "Catalogue of Colubrine Snakes in the Collection of the British Museum," London, 1858; "Catalogue of the Batrachia Salientia in the Collection of the British Museum," 1859; "The Reptiles of British India," 1864; "Catalogues of Fishes," vols. i.-viii., London, 1859-70; "The Fishes of the South Seas," Hamburg, 1873-78; "The Gigantic Land Tortoises, Living and Extinct," London, 1877; "An Introduction to the Study of Fishes," Edin., 1880; the Reports on the "Shore Fishes," "Deep-Sea Fishes," and "Pelagic Fishes," in the "Voyage of H.M.S. Challenger," 1887-88; and numerous papers in the Philosophical Transactions, the Proceedings of the Zoological and Linnean Societies, and other periodicals. He is the founder of the "Record of Zoological Literature," of which he has edited the first six volumes, 1864-70; and co-editor of the "Annals and Magazine of Natural History." The Royal Society awarded to him, in 1878, one of its Royal Medals for his merits in advancing zoological science, and especially for his herpetological and ichthyological researches. Dr. Günther retired from the Natural History Museum in 1895 under the age limit. He introduced into the galleries those groups, copied from life, illustrating the habits of animals, which have been such an attraction to visitors.

GUTHRIE, James Cargill, was born Aug. 27, 1814, at Airnefoul farm, in the parish of Glamis, Forfarshire. He was appointed in 1868 Principal Librarian to the Dundee Free Library, the first institution of the kind in Scotland established under the Free Libraries Act. He is the author of numerous poems and popular Scotch songs, and some anthems and hymns, which have been set to music by Dr. Spark and other composers.

GUTHRIE, Thomas Anstey (who publishes under the name of F. Anstey), was born Aug. 8, 1856, at Kensington, and is the eldest son of Thomas Austen Guthrie. He was educated at a private school, and at King's College School, Strand. He matriculated at Trinity Hall, Cambridge, in 1875; took his degree in the Law Tripos, 1879; and was called to the Bar by the Benchers of the Middle Temple, 1880. He read in chambers with a conveyancer and equity draughtsman, but never practised as a barrister. He published short stories in various magazines between 1878-81. His first book, "Vice Versa," appeared in 1882, and achieved an immense success, running through many editions within the year of publication. It was also dramatised and performed on the London and provincial stage for many nights. It was followed in 1883 by "The Giant's Robe"; "The Black Poodle," and other stories, 1884; "The Tinted Venus," 1885; "The Fallen Idol," 1886; "The Pariah," 1889; "Voces Populi," reprinted from Punch; "The Travelling Companions"; "Under the Rose"; "Lyre and Lancet" (Punch); "The Statement of Stella Maberley"; and, in 1897, "Baboo Jabberjee, B.A." (Punch).

GUTHRIE, William, was born Culbourn, Stranraer, N.B., 1833; son of the late George Guthrie Appleby and Ernambrie Hewat at Glasgow and Edinburgh; and was admitted an advocate of the Scotch Bar in 1861. Mr. Guthrie was appointed one of the Commissioners of the Truck Commission Act, in 1871; Registrar of Friendly Societies in Scotland from October 1869 to 1874; and Sheriff-Substitute of Glasgow, January 1874. He edited the Journal of Jurisprudence (Glasgow), from 1866 to 1874; and the Reporters of Court of Session, from 1871 to 1874. He published a translation of Savigny's "Modern Roman Law," vol. vi, and edition of Erskine's "Principles of Scots Law," 1870 (2nd edition), and editions of Bell's "Principles of Law of Scotland," 1871 and 1876; "of Trade Unions in England and Scotland," 1873; "Select Cases of the Sheriff Courts of Scotland," 1875.

GUYOT, Yves, French statesman and writer, was born at Dinan, St. Malo, and was educated at Rennes. He came to Paris in 1867, took to journalism, and became one of the contributors of Le Figaro at its foundation. During the 1870s he was instrumental in saving the Archives Nationales, and the Comptes des Arts et Métiers. He was elected to the Municipal Council of Paris in 1870, and became one of its most active members. In 1876 he organised the celebration of the centenary of Voltaire, and was a member of the International Congress of Genoa to abolish the system of prostitution. In the 1880s he started a campaign against the police in La Lanterne, and was imprisoned for six months, about the resignation of the Minister of the Interior, M. de Marcère (1879). In 1881 he was elected to the Chamber of Deputies for the Seine, and in 1882 he was Minister of Public Instruction. He was noted for being presiding over the opening of any building or railway out of France, which gained him the nickname of the "Wanderer." He is one of the few Ministers who never accepted the Legion of Honour. His chief works are: "L'Empire," 1875; "L'Enfer," 1875; "La Prostitution," 1881; "Les Vierges à Londres," 1885, and "Drôle," 1884.

me, née Marie Emma Lap-particularly known as Madame an singer, was born of n parentage, at Chambly, n 1851. She was educated of the Sacred Heart at her first musical training father, who was himself a
 . In 1864 he removed to where her singing in the cted much attention. A was sent to Europe for the nstruction which she could merica, and under the care afitte, was two years in e studied with the famous hen became a pupil of the mpetri at Milan. Several study followed, till at last, ade her début at Messina e of Albani, adopted out of the city where her musical t recognised. Immediately sang at Malta, and then, in 1871-72, at the theatre of La ence. Her crowning effort non" of Ambrose Thomas, nned in four theatres in ich, in Madame Albani's
 d the complete success parts identified with her . When her fame was Italy she appeared at the pera, London, in 1872, and been a great favourite both r and the United States.
 urg, Paris, Berlin, and most an capitals she has been qual enthusiasm, and she is y one of the most popular world. In 1883 she made a nited States, and in May ode written by Tennyson
 ; of the Colonial Exhibition adame Albani, before leav-in October 1890, sang at e the Queen and the Royal ich occasion her Majesty o give Madame Albani a re containing portraits of e Royal Family at the time

In May 1893 she sang at the Imperial Institute, and of 1894 again sang at Bal-s singing in opera, Madame lied specially oratorio sing-
 ; now acknowledged to be o singer in England, and is our principal festivals. In married to Mr. Ernest Gye, manager. Addresses: 16 outh Kensington; and Old lmoral.

See MARTEL DE JANVILLE,

H

HAAG, Carl, R.W.S., F.R.I., Court
 Painter to H.R.H. the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, eldest son of Herr Christopher Wilhelm Haag, born at Erlangen, in Bavaria, on April 20, 1820, began his artistic education at the Academy of Nuremberg in 1837, afterwards continuing it at Munich and Rome. In 1847 he settled in this country, and his admiration for the perfection of English water-colour painting induced him to abandon oil, and adopt water-colour in preference.
 In 1850 he was elected member of the Royal Society of Painters in Water-Colours. He has been a constant contributor to the Exhibitions of that Society, the subjects of his earlier pictures being chiefly from the Tyrol, Dalmatia, and Montenegro. In 1858 the reigning Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha conferred upon him the honorary title of Hofmaler; he was introduced at the Court of Queen Victoria by the late Prince of Leiningen, and her Majesty gave him many commissions for sketches of life in the Highlands of Scotland, and also for important pictures, such as "The Royal Family ascending Loch-na-Gar"; "Evening at Balmoral—the Stags brought Home"; "The Queen and Prince Consort fording Pool
 Tarff"; and others, which were exhibited, and have since been engraved. He then travelled in Greece, Egypt, Syria, and Palestine, painting important views of Athens, Baalbek, Palmyra, and many of the Holy Places in Jerusalem, among them
 "The Ancient Vestibule beneath the Temple Area"; "The Golden Gateway"; and "The Holy Rock in the so-called Mosque of Omar"; most of which were finished on the spot. His chief aim, however, was to study the life of the Bedaween tribes, and the scenes of different deserts, for which purpose he made long stays among these nomadic hordes, learning their mode of life, their manners and customs, and has since painted a series of pictures illustrative of Arab life, the best known of which are "Aghile Agha receiving the visit of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and suite in his Encampment near Mount Tabor"; "The tribe of the Anazeh Bedaween departing from Palmyra"; "A Bivouac in the Desert"; "The Arrival at a Well in the Desert"; "Preparing the Evening Meal"; "Desert Hospitality"; "Happiness in the Desert"; "A Bedaween's Devotion"; "Danger in the Desert"; "On the Alert"; "Ready for Defence"; "A Caravan of Bedaween
 Encamping near the Sphinx of Ghizeh against an approaching Sandstorm"; and "La Mah il Allah," 1889. A special exhibition of Mr. C. Haag's works was held at the Goupil Galleries in Bond Street, 1885. He is an honorary member of the Royal Society of British Artists in London, and a Membre Honoraire de la Société Royale Belge des Aquarellistes of Brussels. He received the Royal Bavarian Cross of Merit in 1872. In 1874 he became an Officer of the Order of the Medjidieh; in 1878 a Knight of the Legion of Honour of France; in 1887 a Knight-Commander of the Saxe-Coburg-Gotha Family Order; in 1893 he was decorated with the Saxe-Coburg-Gotha Cross of Merit in Art and Science, and in 1897 the Jubilee Medal. In 1866 he married Ida, the only daughter of General Buettner of Laneburg, Hanover, by whom he has three sons and one daughter. Addresses: Ida Villa, Lyndhurst Road, Hampstead, N.W.; Roter Turm, Oberwesel.

HABBERTON, John, was born in Brooklyn, New York, in 1842. At the age of eight years he was taken to the West, where he was educated chiefly in the common schools of Southern Illinois. From 1859 until he entered the army in 1862 he was connected with the publishing house of Harper Brothers, New York. He was literary editor of the Christian Union from 1873 to 1876, and since then has been an editorial writer on the New York Herald. His first literary work was a series of sketches of Western life. This was followed, in 1877, by "Helen's Babies," of which nearly a quarter of a million copies have been sold in the United States, besides large editions in England and the colonies, and translations into French, German, Spanish, Italian, Danish, Swedish, and Bohemian. He has since written "The Barton Experiment," 1876; "The Jericho Road," "Other People's Children," "The Scripture Club of Valley Rest," and "Some Folks," 1877; "The Crew of the Sam Weller," "The Worst Boy in Town," 1879; "Just One Day," 1880; "Who was Paul Grayson?" 1883; "Bowsham Puzzle," and "George Washington," 1884; "Brue-ton's Bayou," 1887; "Country Luck," 1888; "All He Knew," "Well Out of It," and "Couldn't Say No," 1889; "Out at Twinnett's," 1890; "The Chautauquans," 1891; "A Lucky Lover," 1892; "Trif and Trixy," 1897. He also published in 1875 a series of selections from the "Spectator," comprising "The Roger de Coverley Papers"; and in 1878 "Selections from the Tatler, Guardian, and Freeholder"; and wrote, in conjunction with Charles L. Norton, "Canoeing in Kanuckia," 1878. His only dramatic work, "Cracon Crankett," has been played more than 500 times.

HABERSHON, Samuel, was educated at Cambridge, took his M.A. degree in 1883. Bartholomew's and Vienna, M. M.D. 1887, M.R.C.S. Eng. 1884, Lond. 1891. His career at Bartholomew's was distinguished, he has been Bentley Prizeman in 1883, a Scholar and Gold Medallist in 1884. He is a member of the Royal Med. Chir. Society and Medical Society of London, at important appointments as physician to various hospitals. Outside the hospital he has for some years been known of the oculists, and latterly as the medical attendant, of the late Sir W. E. Gladstone, at whose death was present. He has contributed chiefly on phthisis, to the learned journals. Address: 70 Brook Street, Grosvenor Square, W.

HACKER, Arthur, A.R.A., is the son of Mr. Edward Hacker, formerly an engraver. He was born in London, 25, 1858, and educated at St. George's College, and afterwards in Paris. On his return to London he commenced the study of art, gaining admission to the Royal Schools with his first drawing of an antique. In 1878 he exhibited his first picture at the Royal Academy, and since then has been a constant exhibitor. In 1881 he was twenty-one when he went to Paris, where he entered the studio of M. Bonnat. In France he painted "Her Dearest Legacy," which was exhibited at the Salon, and a year later "The Relics of the Brave." This was the first of a series of cottage interiors, the most notable of which are "The Mother," "The Story," "The Fisherman," "The Cradle Song," and "The Prayer." In 1881 he travelled in Spain, and spent some time in the subject now changed, and "Pelagia and Philammon," "The of Babylon," "Persephone," "The Christ and the Magdalen," "The nunciation" (bought by the Chamberlain), "Syrinx," "Circe," and the "Eight Gods." In February 1894 Mr. Hacker was elected an A.R.A. In 1895 he exhibited at the Royal Academy a series of portraits of the Hon. Mrs. and of John T. Brunner, Esq. In 1896, "The Cloister or the Weave portrait of F. A. Newdigate, 1897. In 1897 "And there was a Girl in Egypt," "The Sea Maiden," and a portrait of Miss Beatrice Delmé Radcliffe, who has the distinction of having seen her work in public galleries. Addresses: 10, South Hampstead, N.W.; 10, Cavendish Buildings, Old Cavendish Street, W.

Sir Francis Seymour, E., was born Sept. 16, 1818, Street, London, and educated at College and at the Sorbonne, the son of Charles Thomas Edinburgh. He became in 1847, and in 1857 a Fellow, of College of Surgeons of England. His official Jury Report on Surgical Anatomy drawn up by Mr. Haden, was his last document in which the subject of Ovariectomy (till then unmentioned) was recommended. His valuable letters, contributed by the Times, under the title of "The Art of Etching," in January, May, and August, brought about considerable success in the practices pursued by engravers and cemetery companies, in condemning cremation, and in favour of interment founded on medical and sanitary considerations, and ever since been successfully followed at Woking. Sir Seymour is the author of certain art publications for their object to restore the painter-engraver, and to stop the usurpation of his place in the Academy by the copyists, and failing in that object, to the creation of a society, the Royal Society, for the cultivation of that art. Of this Seymour Haden is naturally the author, while his own contributions to the art it represents have been considerable, and consist: (1) Of a work (in French) entitled L'Eau Forte, published in London in 1865 and 1866; (2) a number of engraved plates which have been catalogued by Sir William R. Drake, under the title of "The Etched Works of Francis Seymour Haden," together with others catalogued after his death by M. Beraldi of Paris. He was a member of the Athenæum, and was a member of the London Fine Arts Clubs, in the latter of which latter he had a large share. His most influential of his literary works, after the three letters referred to, have been a paper on "The Incentive to Cremation" at the Church Congress at Brighton in 1893, and a paper on "The Art of Etching and Engraving Fine Arts," and to be reproduced in the Royal Academy of Art at the Society of Arts in May 1894. Seymour Haden received the R.S.A. in 1894. In 1847 he married Dasha Delano, daughter of John Delano, U.S.A. Addresses: Woodhouse, Alresford, Hants; and HADING, Madame Jane, née Jeanette Hadingue, was born at Marseilles, Nov. 25, 1859. At the age of three she played Blanche de Cailus in "Le Bossu," her father at the same time playing the leading character. Some years later she was sent to the Marseilles Conservatoire, where she won considerable distinction. On leaving she entered upon an engagement at the Algiers Theatre, and when but fourteen played Zanetto in "Le Passant," Stefano in "Chef d'œuvre inconnu," the blind girl in "Les Deux Orphélins," and Pedro in "Giroflé Girofla." From Algiers she went to Cairo, to perform at the Khedival Theatre, where she performed in "La Fille de Madame Angot." She returned to Marseilles in 1876, and for a time devoted herself to drama and comedy, but the lyric stage again attracted her, and she went to Paris. At the Palais Royal she played "La Chaste Suzanne," and at the Renaissance, in 1879, she was the original Jolie Persane and Belle Lurette, and the heroine in "Héloïse and Abelard," and "L'Œil Crevé" (1881). At the Gymnase in 1883 she again appeared in comedy as Paulette in Gyp's "Autour du Mariage." The piece was a failure, but Madame Hading made a great personal success. In December 1883 she was the original Claire de Beaulieu in "Le Maître de Forges," and her impersonation of this part confirmed her success. In January 1885 she appeared in this character in London, at the Royalty Theatre. In 1889, in company with M. Coquelin, Madame Hading made an American tour. On her return to Paris she appeared at the Vaudeville in the "Comtesse Romani," by Dumas fils, and in Lemaitre's "Député Leveau." She then fulfilled a short engagement at the Port-Saint-Martin, where she appeared as Faustine in the play of that name by Count Tziewuski. Returning to the Vaudeville she played in a brilliant revival of M. Sardou's "Nos Intimes" (1891), and contributed to the success of M. Lavedan's "Prince d'Aurec" in June 1892. She afterwards joined the Français, and in 1894 came to London and played in "Les Effrontés." In December 1895 she appeared at the Gymnase in Sardou's "Marcelle." Paris address: 9 Boulevard de la Saussaie, Neuilly.

HAECKEL, Ernst, a celebrated German naturalist and writer, was born at Potsdam, Feb. 16, 1834, and studied medicine and Science at Würzburg, Berlin, and Vienna. In 1859 he went to Italy, and studied zoology at Naples and Messina, returning in 1861 to Jena, where, after further studies, he was appointed Professor of Zoology. Between 1860 and 1875 he travelled over the greater part of

Worcester, Massachusetts, from 1846 to 1856. Since that time he has been pastor of the South Congregational Church, Boston. He has published a large number of books, amongst which are: "The Rosary," 1848; "Margaret Percival in America," 1848; "Sketches of Christian History," 1850; "Letters on Irish Immigration," 1852; "Kansas and Nebraska," 1854; "The Man without a Country," 1861; "The President's Words," 1865; "Sybaris and other Homes," 1871; "Puritan Politics in England and New England," 1869; "Ingham Papers," 1869; "Christmas Eve and Christmas Day," 1874; and "His Level Best, and other Stories," 1870; "Ups and Downs," 1871; "Working-men's Homes," and "In His Name," 1874; "Our New Crusade," and "One Hundred Years Ago," 1875; "Philip Nolan's Friends," 1876; "Back to Back," 1877; "The Bible and its Revision," several volumes of sermons, and "Crusoe in New York," 1880; "Our Christmas in a Palace," 1884; "Seven Spanish Cities," 1883; "Fortunes of Rachel," 1884; "Boys' Heroes," and "What is the American People?" 1885; "Easter," a volume of sermons, 1886; "Life of George Washington Studied Anew," 1887; "How They Lived in Hampton," "My Friend the Boss," "Mr. Tangier's Vacations," "Tom Torrey's Tariff Talks," "Red and White," and "Naval History of the American Revolution" (in the Narrative and Critical History of America), 1888; "Four and Five," 1891; "Popular Life of Christopher Columbus," 1891; "Biography of James Freeman Clarke," 1891; "Story of Massachusetts," 1891; "Sybil Knox," 1892; "East and West," 1892; "A New England Boyhood," 1893; "For Fifty Years" (poems), 1893; and (with E. E. Hale, jun.) "Franklin in France," 1887-88; "If Jesus Came to Boston," 1895; "Constructive Rhetoric," 1896; "Susan's Escort and others," 1897. He has edited a series of "Stories" of the War, Sea, Adventure, Discovery, and Invention, 1880-85; "Lights of Two Centuries," 1887; "The Arabian Nights," 1888; and "Sunday School Stories on the Golden Texts," 1889; and, in conjunction with his sister, has written several volumes describing "A Family Flight" through France, Germany, &c., 1881-85, and one telling "The Story of Spain," 1886. Mr. Hale has been a frequent contributor to periodicals, was editor of the Christian Examiner, the founder and editor of Old and New, and is now the editor of Lend a Hand.

HALE, Eugene, United States Senator, was born at Turner, Oxford County, Maine, June 9, 1836, received an academic education and studied law, and was admitted to the Bar in 1857. He was for nine years County Attorney of Cook County; was a Member of the Legislature of Maine, 1867, 1868, and 1869; elected to the Forty-first, Forty-second, Forty-third, Forty-fourth, and Forty-fifth Congress; received the degree of LL.D. from Bates College, Colby University, Bowdoin College; was elected to the United States Senate and took his seat March 4, 1881; was re-elected in 1891. He is Chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs of the U.S. Senate.

HALES, Professor John W. M.A., F.S.A., was born at Ashby Zouch, Leicestershire, Oct. 5, 1839, is the son of William Hales and Elizabeth Atherstone. He was educated at G. High School and University of Cambridge Grammar School, and Cambridge University. He was elected Fellow of King's College in 1860, called to the Bar in 1861, appointed Professor of English Literature at King's College, London, in December 1877, succeeding to the vacant by Dr. Brewer. He co-edited "The Percy Folio Manuscript," 1867-68; wrote on "The Teaching of English" in Farrar's "Essays on Education," 1867; edited "Long English Poems," 1872, and Milton's "pagitica," 1874; was one of the general editors of the "London English Classics"; and has contributed various papers on English Literature to the Cornhill Magazine, the Quarterly Macmillan's Magazine, the Fortnightly Review, the Academy, the Athenaeum, the Magazine, the Contemporary, the Nineteenth Century; some of which have been collected into 2 volumes, viz., "Shakspeare's Essays and Notes," published in 1881; "Folia Litteraria," published in 1882. Prof. Hales was appointed Lecturer in English at the University of London, in 1889, and again in 1891. Rev. Prof. Skeat and he were Joint Examiners for the English part of the Medieval and Modern Tripos, established at Cambridge in 1886. He has also been for the Universities of Wales and New Zealand. In 1889 he was appointed Lecturer in English Literature at Trinity College, Cambridge, and in 1892. He is the general editor of the Hand-books of English Literature published by Messrs. Bell, which have been written by Dr. Garnett, Prof. Skeat, Prof. Hugh Walker, and others. He married in 1867 Henrietta, daughter of Honour Judge Trafford, formerly of Trington Hall, Cheshire. Address: 10, Piccadilly, London, W.

HALEVY, Ludovic, French novelist and dramatic author, the son of Halévy and nephew of the composer, was born at Paris, July 1, 1834, and received his education at the Lycée Louis le Grand. He entered the service of the Government, and from 1852 to 1855 was employed in the Secretary's office of the Minister of State. He was chief of the department for Algeria and the Colonies, and in 1861 he was appointed to edit the proceedings of the Corps Législatif. This position he refused to devote himself to the drama. M. Halévy has, since 1855, written the librettos of a large number of the most popular operettas, many of them in collaboration with M. Henri Meilhac, at first under pseudonym, and then under his own name after his resignation. The most famous of these, for which Jacques Offenbach wrote the music, were "La Belle Églaise" (Variétés) 1865; "Barbe Bleue" 1866; "La Grande-Duchesse de Gêrolstein" (1867); "La Périchole" (1868); "Le Petit Duc" (1878), for which Lecocq wrote the music. His comedies include: "Les Reunis de Panurge" (1863); "Froufrou," written for Aimée Desclée at the Gymnase, since, one of Madame Bernhardt's successes, and played at the Comédie Française (1892). It is to these brilliant sketches, as well as to his dramas, that he owes his election to the French Academy, his reception at which (M. Pailleron pronouncing the speech of welcome, December 1, 1884), was one of the most memorable of recent times. As a novelist, M. Halévy is also eminent. We may mention "L'Abbé Jonstantin" (1882), which was dramatised after running through more than 150 editions; "L'Invasion," recollections of the war (1872); "La Famille Cardinal" (1883); "Criquette" (1883); "Notes et Souvenirs," "Deux Mariages" (1883); "Princesse" (1886); and a collection of stories, "Kariari" (1892). He was made an officer of the Legion of Honour in July 1890. Paris address: 22 Rue de Douai.

HALIBURTON, Lord, Arthur Laurence Haliburton, G.C.B., J.P., D.L., was born at Windsor, Nova Scotia, on Sept. 26, 1832, and is the youngest son of Mr. Justice Haliburton and his wife Louisa, daughter of Captain Neville, of the Royal Horse Guards and 19th Light Dragoons. He was educated at King's College School, Windsor, Nova Scotia, and was called to the Bar, in his colony, in 1855. From 1855 to 1870 he served on the Commissariat Staff of the army, in the Crimean campaign, in Canada, and in London. In 1870 he became Assistant-Director of Supplies and Transport, and Director of the same in 1878. In 1888 he was appointed Assistant Under-Secretary of State for War, and was Permanent Under-Secretary from 1895 to 1897.

He was raised to the peerage in May 1898. He married Mariana, daughter of Leo Schusta, and widow of Sir William Dickenson Clay, Bart., 1877. Addresses: 57 Lowndes Square, S.W.; and Athenæum.

HALIBURTON, Robert Grant, Q.C., Canadian littérateur and man of science, was born at Windsor, Nova Scotia, June 3, 1831; was educated at King's College, Windsor, graduating in 1852 with the degree of A.M., and in 1876 receiving the degree of D.C.L. from the same college. He was called to the Bar in 1853, and was made a Q.C. in 1876 in Nova Scotia, and in 1878 by the Dominion Government. He removed to Ottawa in 1877. He has written and lectured extensively in England and elsewhere on the general subject of "A United Empire," and his views have received much attention. Continued ill-health compelled him in 1881 to give up his law practice in Canada and to spend the winters in warmer climates. Since 1881 he has devoted his attention chiefly to scientific investigation. In 1887-88 he discovered a pigmy race in Northern Africa, and he has given much time to investigating the subject and to similar survivals in the Pyrenees and in America. In this field he is a pioneer, and advances the idea that the history of mankind begins with a "Dwarf Era." He has published many papers on this and other scientific subjects.

HALL, The Right Hon. Sir Charles, K.C.M.G., Q.C., M.P., Recorder of the City of London, was born in 1843, and is the son of the late Vice-Chancellor Sir C. Hall. He was educated at Harrow and Trinity College, Cambridge (B.A. 1865, M.A. 1868), was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn in 1866, and became a Bencher of the Middle Temple in 1884. From 1877 to 1892 he was Attorney-General to the Prince of Wales. He represented West Cambridgeshire in Parliament from 1885 to 1892, when he was elected in the Conservative interest to represent the Holborn Division of Finsbury, for which he now sits. In 1892, also, he was appointed Recorder of the City of London. He was made K.C.M.G. in 1890, and P.C. at New Year, 1899. Addresses: 2 Mount Street, Berkeley Square, W.; and Recorder's Chambers, Guildhall, E.C.

HALL, Edwin Thomas, F.R.I.B.A., F.S.I., architect, was born in Suffolk in 1861, and is the second son of George Hall, architect and surveyor. He was educated at the South Kensington School of Art, and subsequently entered the office of J. Fogarty, F.R.I.B.A., M.Inst.C.E. He began to practice on his own account in 1876, and has built churches, mission halls, mansions, and public buildings, including fever hospitals and infirmaries. The head offices of the Metropolitan Asylums Board, on the Victoria Embankment, are from his designs. He has written many essays and papers, and has drafted a bill (1893) for codifying and amending the Buildings Acts of the metropolis. Mr. Hall is architect to the British Home for Incurables, to the Royal Naval School, &c. Addresses: 57 Moorgate Street, E.C.; and Hillcote, West Dulwich, S.E.

HALL, Granville Stanley, Ph.D., was born at Ashfield, Mass., May 6, 1846. He graduated at Williams College in 1867, and subsequently studied at Berlin, Bonn, Heidelberg, and Leipzig. From 1872 to 1876 he was Professor of Psychology in Antioch College (Ohio); in 1876 and again in 1881-82 he became Lecturer on Psychology at Harvard; and in 1882 he became Professor of that subject in the Johns Hopkins University at Baltimore. On the establishment of Clark University at Worcester, Mass., in 1888, Professor Hall was made its President. The degree of Ph.D. was conferred upon him by Harvard in 1876. In addition to extensive contributions to periodicals on psychological and educational topics, he edits the American Journal of Psychology, the Pedagogical Seminary, and is the author of "Aspects of German Culture," 1881; (with John M. Mansfield) of "Hints towards a Select and Descriptive Bibliography of Education," 1886; "The Contents of Children's Minds on entering School," 1891; and "The Story of a Sand Pile," 1897.

HALL, The Rev. Newman, D.D., LL.B., is fourth son of the late Mr. John Vine Hall, and brother of Captain J. V. Hall, who commanded the Great Eastern steamship on her first voyage across the Atlantic. Born at Maidstone, May 22, 1816, he was educated at Totteridge and at Highbury College, and graduated B.A. at the London University. In 1855 he took the degree of LL.B., and won the law scholarship. He was appointed minister of the Albion Congregational Church, Hull, in 1842, and remained at that post till 1854, when he succeeded the Rev. James Sherman as minister of Surrey Chapel, known as Rowland Hill's Chapel, in the Blackfriars Road, London. When the civil war in the United States broke out, he advocated the Northern cause in the interests of Union and Freedom. He afterwards made two extensive tours in the United States for the purpose of allaying the bitter feeling towards Great Britain, and of promoting international good-will. "Lincoln Tower," 220 feet high, adjoining "Christ Church" in Westminster Bridge Road, was built in commemoration of Abraham Lincoln, from funds subscribed by American and English. The church itself, erected chiefly by his congregation when that of the old chapel in the Blackfriars expired, is one of the chief ecclesiastical modern structures in London, in thirteenth century Gothic; it is seated for 2000 sons. The total cost, including the site, was £63,000, mostly obtained by Newman Hall's efforts; in token of the congregation have erected in the church an alabaster pulpit of great beauty. Newman Hall has written numerous original treatises, one of which, "Come to Jesus," has reached a circulation of nearly three millions, in upward of twenty languages. He has written "It is I"; "Follow Jesus"; "An Answer to Fear"; "Short Memoir of Rev. Rowland Hill"; "Homeward Bound"; "The Church of the Forum and the Vatican, or The Church and Sketches during an Easter Pilgrimage to Rome" (1854, new edit., 1859); a volume of devotional poetry, "Pilgrim Songs in Cloud and Sun," 1871; also "Mountain Musings"; also on "Prayer: its Reasonableness and Efficacy," 1875; and several small works on teetotalism, of which he has been an ardent advocate during forty years. He has compiled from Scripture a volume of devotion, entitled "Prayer and Praise in Words," and has edited an autobiography of his father, entitled "Conflict and Victory." A later work is an 8vo volume, "The Lord's Prayer; others are the same, or Leaves of Healing from the Garden of Grief," and "Lyrics of Life." He married in 1880 Harriette, daughter of E. S. Knipe, of Water Newton, Hampshire. Address: Vine House, West Heath, N.W.

HALLÉ, Lady, née Wilhelmine Néruda, violinist, was born May 1840, at Brünn, in Moravia, where her father was organist of the Cathedral. She was a pupil of Jansa, and made her first appearance at Vienna in 1844, and came to London in 1848 to play, with the Philharmonic, a concerto of Beethoven. After this she returned to the Continent and passed several years in travelling, chiefly in Russia. In 1864 she came to Paris, and played at the Pasdeloup concerts, the Conservatoire, and elsewhere. In the same year she married Norman, a Swedish musician. (Oct. 17, 1869, Madame Norman-Néruda played at the Philharmonic in London in the winter took the first violin part in a series of Monday Popular Concerts. At that time she has been in England each winter and spring, playing in the Popular Concerts, the Philharmonic,

, and especially at the recitals of the Sir Charles Hallé, to whom she married in 1888. He died in 1895. Houses: 19 Holland Park, W.; and Mayes Lane, Manchester.

HALLETT, Holt Samuel, M. Inst. F.R.G.S., is the son of the late Mr. Charles Perham Luxmoore Hallett, Fellow of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, an eminent barrister of the Chancery Bar, and representative of an ancient west-country family.

Mr. Holt Hallett was born on June 1, 1841, and educated at the Charterhouse and at Kensington Grammar School, where he was a private pupil of the Rev. Dr. Frost. He qualified for his profession under the late Mr. William Baker, Engineer-in-Chief of the London and Western Railway. Having gained extensive experience, and carried out, as Engineer, extensive works in Lancashire and Weshire, in 1868 he was offered the post of Resident Engineer on the Mersey and the Docks, then about to be constructed, but accepted in preference an appointment under the Government of India. During the eleven years that Mr. Hallett was in Government service in charge of various large divisions in British Burmah, one of which, the Eastern Division, included the whole of the British frontier neighbourhoods of the Shan States. For some time during his service in this Division he had one of his assistants Mr. Archibald Alison. The acquaintance and friendship of these gentlemen gave rise to the subject, now before the public, for the connection of India and China by a railway, and to the valuable explorations and surveys carried out by these intrepid men in China, Siam, and the Shan States to prove the practicability of their project. They succeeded in tracing out a route for the railway; and one of the stations of their line, that between Mandalay and Mandalay, has been commanded by the Government of India; and the section, that between Sagay and Mandalay, is now in hand. The construction of the whole system advocated by Mr. Hallett, 790 miles in length, is now generally approved by the Governments concerned and the mercantile community to be merely a matter of time. The Siamese Government having the portions of the line in its territory surveyed by Sir John Clarke's syndicate, and the survey is nearing completion. The thanks of the Home and Eastern Chambers of Commerce have been accorded to Mr. Holt Hallett and his colleague. Mr. Hallett's A Thousand Miles on an Elephant through the Shan States, gives an account of his travels through Indo-China in search of the best route for the railway. In 1887 he received the silver medal of the Society of Arts for his paper on "New Markets and the Extension of Railways of India and Burmah."

HALLIBURTON, William Dobson, M.D., B.Sc., F.R.S., son of Thomas Halliburton, Esq., of Upper Norwood, was born in London on June 21, 1860. He received his education first privately and subsequently at University College School, under the head-mastership, first of T. Hewitt Key and then of H. W. Eve. He left school in July 1877, carrying with him the principal senior prizes, and in the following October entered University College, first as a science student and subsequently as a student of medicine. Here he obtained many class distinctions, and academical honours at London University examinations. He graduated as B.Sc. in 1879, as M.B. in 1883, and M.D. in 1884. At University College Hospital he filled several posts, including that of House Physician. He did not, however, become a practitioner of medicine, but devoted his attention to physiology, a subject to which he was originally attracted by the teachings of Professors Burdon Sanderson and Schäfer. In 1883 he was appointed Sharpey Physiological Scholar at University College, and two years later received from the Council of University College the Science Research Medal, and the title of Fellow of University College. In 1887 he became Assistant Professor of Physiology in the same institution, a post which he resigned when, in 1890, he was appointed to the chair of Physiology at King's College, London, in succession to Professor Gerald Yeo. This appointment he now holds. He was also for twelve years Lecturer on Physiology at the London School of Medicine for Women; this post he resigned in December 1897 on account of the pressure of his other duties. He either is or has been recently an examiner in Physiology for the Universities of London, Oxford, Cambridge, Victoria, Glasgow, and Aberdeen, and at the Royal Colleges of Surgeons and Physicians, England, and the Royal Veterinary College. Among other honours received by him may be mentioned the Fellowship of the Royal Society, to which he was elected, at the early age of thirty, in 1891, the Fellowship of the Royal College of Physicians (1892), and the post of Goulstonian lecturer at the same college (1893). He has published, in the Proceedings of the Royal Society, and in the Journal of Physiology, a large number of researches, especially in the realm of Chemical Physiology, where he is best known by his work on the proteids of blood, milk, and various organs of the body, on the coagulation of the blood, and on the chemistry of muscle. He has also written two books; one, a "Text-book of Chemical Physiology," was published by Messrs. Longmans in 1891, and the other, a students' handbook, entitled "Essentials of Chemical Physiology," was issued by the same firm in 1893 (a third edition of the latter was issued in 1899). Both these works have been translated into German. He is the editor of the fourteenth edition of Kirkes' "Physiology" (John Murray, 1896; 15th edition, 1899). This edition was practically entirely rewritten. He also wrote the articles on General Chemical Physiology in Professor Schäfer's Text-book of Physiology published by Pentland in 1898. In 1886 he married Anne, daughter of James Dawe. Address: 9 Ridgmount Gardens, W.C.

HALLIDAY, Sir Frederick James, K.C.B., son of Thomas Halliday, Esq., of Ewell, Surrey, was born in 1806, and having been educated at St. Paul's School and at Haileybury College, entered the civil service of the East India Company in 1825. He held several civil, political, and legislative posts; and in December 1853 was appointed one of the Supreme Council of India. In 1854 he was made, by Lord Dalhousie, Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, which post he held through the trying period of the Indian Mutiny, when he was reported by Lord Canning to have been "the right hand of the Government." For the energy, resolution, and administrative ability which he displayed in that office he received the thanks of the Houses of Parliament, and was created in 1860 a K.C.B. (Civil Division). In 1868 he was elected a member of the Council of India, and retired at the close of 1886. Address: 21 Bolton Gardens, S.W.

HALSBURY, Earl of, The Right Hon. Hardinge Stanley Giffard, M.A., J.P., F.R.S., D.C.L., Lord High Chancellor of England, born in London, September 3, 1825, is the third son of the late Stanley Lees Giffard, Esq., LL.D., barrister-at-law, and Susanna, daughter of the late Frank Moran. He was educated at Merton College, Oxford, where he took the degree of B.A. in 1852, and M.A. in 1855. He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1850, and joined the North Wales and Chester Circuit. He also had a very large junior practice at the Central Criminal Court and the Middlesex Sessions, and he was for several years a junior prosecuting Counsel to the Treasury. He became Queen's Counsel in 1865, and a Bencher of the Inner Temple. In 1873 he was appointed Chairman of the Carmarthenshire Quarter Sessions. In Disraeli's administration in 1873 he made Solicitor-General. He twice tested Cardiff in the Conservative but did not succeed in getting a seat in 1877, when he was returned for Luton, and sat in the House of Commons that borough until his elevation to peerage in 1885, when he was created Baron Halsbury, and appointed Lord Chancellor. He was Lord Chancellor a short interval (January to July) from 1885 to August 1892, when he succeeded by Lord Herschell, and reappointed in 1895. He was one of the leading counsel in the Tichborne case before his elevation he was engaged in most of the important cases of his time. He is Constable of Launceston Castle. In 1881 was treasurer of his Inn, attainment to high judicial office, a remarkable exception to the axiom of the English Bar, that no criminal practitioner ever reaches the Woolsack. In July 1894 Oxford University bestowed upon Lord Halsbury the hon. degree of D.C.L. He was appointed High Steward of the University in 1896. He is Senior Grand Warden of English Freemasons. Married (1), in 1852, Caroline, daughter of C. O. Humphreys, and (2), in 1874, Wilmina, daughter of Henry Woodfall Stanmore, Middlesex. Addresses: Elmore Gardens, S.W.; Woodlands, Stanmore, Middlesex, &c.; and Athel-

HAMILTON and BRAND Duke of, Alfred Douglas Douglas Hamilton, Premier Peer of Scotland, Hereditary Keeper of Holyrood Palace, sitting in the House of Peers as Duke of Brandon, was born on March 6, 1825, succeeded to the title in 1895. He has been a Lieutenant in the Royal Artillery. The 12th Duke, whom he succeeded, pointed trustees to the estates, which amount to 157,400 acres. His father was Percy S. D. Hamilton, a cousin of the Duke. Address: 23 Princes Gate, S.W.; Ha Palace, Lanarkshire, &c.

HAMILTON, Lord Claud was born in Middlesex on Feb. 20, 1825, and is the second son of the 1st Duke of Abercorn and Lady Louisa Russell, daughter of the Duke of Bedford. He was educated at Harrow, entered the Grenadier Guards in 1842, and re-joined in 1867, in which year he was appointed Colonel of the 5th Battalion of the Buffs (Inniskilling Fusiliers). In 1892 he was appointed Hon. Colonel to the staff of the Queen. He has been thrice M.P., having represented Londonderry from 1865 to 1869, and King's Lynn from 1869 to 1880, and from 1880 to 1888. He was Lord of the Treasury in 1868. Lord Claud Hamilton is Chairman of the Great Eastern Railway. In 1878 he married Caro, daughter of the late Edward Chandos Radbourne Hall, Derby, and Lady his wife. Address: 55 St. Ermine's Mans, Westminster, S.W.

HAMILTON, Gail. See DODGE, ABIGAIL.

HAMILTON, The Right Hon. George Francis, M.P., Secretary of State for India, is the third son of Duke of Abercorn, by Lady Louisa, daughter of John, 6th Duke of Bedford. He was born at Brighton in 1845, and received his education at Harrow. In 1864 he was appointed Ensign in the Rifle Brigade, and in 1868 was promoted Lieutenant in the Middlesex Guards. At the general election of December 1868 he contested the County of Middlesex in the Conservative interest, and was returned at the head of the poll. This decisive Conservative victory occasioned great surprise in political circles, as Middlesex had previously been regarded as one of the most invulnerable strongholds of the Liberal party.

At the general election of February 1874 Lord George Hamilton again stood at the head of the poll. Since then he has sat in the House of Commons as a Conservative member for the Ealing division of Middlesex. On the formation of Disraeli's administration in February 1874 his lordship was nominated to the post of Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for India; and he was appointed Vice-President of the Committee of Council on Education, April 4, in succession to Viscount Sandon. On the latter occasion he was sworn of the Privy Council. He went out of office with his party in April 1880. On the formation of the Gladstone Government he was made First Lord of the Admiralty in June 1885 to February 1886, under Salisbury's first administration, and the same post in the second Salisbury administration, 1886 till August 1892. In June 1888 he made a speech in Glasgow, in which he gave a very favourable account of the state of the navy, but during his country tour he witnessed the adoption of a practical commencement of the largest and most comprehensive scheme of new construction that has ever been put forward by a British First Lord of the Admiralty. Lord George Hamilton's resolutions were adopted by the Commons in April, and in May the Naval Defence Bill was passed. Various newspaper articles and statements in the House by Lord Charles Beresford and others had created a sort of panic in the public mind, and consequently Lord G. Hamilton's programme met with little opposition. £21,500,000 were voted for the navy, £10,000,000 to be taken from the Consolidated Fund in seven years, and the remainder from five years' navy estimates. The scheme provided for the construction and equipment of 10 first-class battleships, 9 first-class cruisers, 33 smaller cruisers, and 18 torpedo gunboats, the whole programme to be completed in four and a half years. In Lord Salisbury's third administration, which came into power in 1895, Lord George Hamilton was selected as the Secretary of State for India. Since his appointment to that office India has passed through very troublous times, and great credit is due to Lord George for the ability and judgment he displayed in the performance of his duties. He encountered a good deal of opposition in the House to his resolution of July 2, 1896, that the costs of the Indian troops sent to Egypt for the Nile expedition should be charged to India. Towards the end of 1896, owing chiefly to a great scarcity of grain, a terrible famine raged throughout India. The Lord Mayor at once opened a fund for the relief of the natives, and in a very few weeks Lord George Hamilton was enabled to send over half a million to relieve the distress. The famine was succeeded by a frontier war of exceptional length and bitterness, in which the Afridis, a very warlike tribe, figured prominently. In 1894 Lord George Hamilton was elected Chairman of the London School Board, and held the appointment for a year. He is also an Elder Brother of Trinity House, and was appointed Captain of Deal Castle in March 1899, in succession to the late Lord Herschell. He married in 1871 Lady Maud Caroline, youngest daughter of the 3rd Earl of Harewood. Addresses: 17 Montagu Street, Portman Square, W.; and Athenæum.

HAMMOND, William Alexander, M.D., born at Annapolis, Maryland, Aug. 28, 1828, graduated M.D. in the University of New York in 1848, and in June 1849 entered the Medical Service of the United States Army as Assistant-Surgeon, in which he remained till 1860, having attained the Staff rank of Captain. In 1860 he was appointed Professor of Anatomy and Physiology in the University of Maryland. At the commencement of the civil war he resigned his professorship, and re-entered the army almost at the bottom of the list of Assistant-Surgeons, having, of course, lost his previous rank by his resignation. But on the reorganisation of the Medical Bureau in April 1862, he was, at the earnest solicitation of the Sanitary Commission and the General-in-Chief of the army, appointed Surgeon-General of the army, with the rank of Brigadier-General. He retained this position until 1864, when he was dismissed from the service on the ground of irregularities in the award of contracts. This sentence was reversed by the President and Congress in 1878, after full investigation, and he was restored to his full rank and, at his own request, placed on the retired list. On his dismissal from the army in 1864 he was appointed Professor in the College of Physicians and Surgeons; shortly afterwards in the Bellevue Hospital Medical College, New York, and Physician-in-Chief to the New York State Hospital for Diseases of the Nervous System; and subsequently was connected with the medical department of the University of New York. In 1882 he became Professor of Mental and Nervous Diseases in the New York Post Graduate Medical School. He was also the editor of the Journal of Psychological Medicine, and has published "Military Hygiene," 1863; "Physiological Memoirs," 1863; "Venereal Diseases," 1864; "Wakefulness," 1865; "Insanity in its Medico-Legal Relations," 1866; "Sleep, and its Nervous Derangements," 1869; "The Physics and Physiology of Spiritualism," 1870; "Medico-Legal Study of the Case of Daniel M'Farland," 1870; "A Treatise on Diseases of the Nervous System," 1871; "Insanity in its Relations to Crime," 1873; "Spinal Irritation," 1877; "Over Mental Work, and Emotional Disturbances," and "Cerebral Hyperæmia," 1878; "Fasting Girls," 1879; "Certain Forms of Nervous Derangement," 1881; "Insanity in its Medical Relations," 1883; and "Sexual Impotence in the Male," 1886. He has also published the following novels: "Lal," and "Dr. Grattan," 1884; "Mr. Oldmixon," and "A Strong-Minded Woman," 1885; "On the Susquehanna," 1886. In 1889 he removed to Washington, where he now resides.

HAMPDEN, Viscount, Henry Robert Brand, G.C.M.G., D.L., J.P., late Governor and Commander-in-Chief of New South Wales, is the son of the first Viscount, who was the Speaker of the House of Commons from 1872 to 1884. He was born on May 2, 1841, and was educated at Rugby. He entered the Coldstream Guards, and retired with the rank of Captain. From 1865 to 1873 he was M.P. for Herts, and sat for Stroud in 1874, and from 1880 to 1885 and 1885 to 1886. From 1883 to 1895 he was Surveyor-General of Ordnance. He succeeded his father in 1892, is a J.P. for Herts and Sussex, and appointed Governor-General of New Wales in 1895. He retired from Governorship in January 1899, and succeeded by Earl Beauchamp. Married, in 1868, Susan, daughter of George Cavendish. Addresses: Government House, Sydney, New South Wales; The Hoo, Welwyn, Herts; and The Royston.

HAMPTON, Hon. Wade, was born at Charleston, S.C., March 25, 1830, was graduated from the University of South Carolina, and subsequently a member of the State Legislature. Though opposed to secession, he joined the Confederate army at the outbreak of the Civil War as a private, and before the close had risen to the rank of Major-General. From 1877 to 1879 he was Governor of South Carolina, and from 1891 he was U.S. Senator from South Carolina. In March 1893 he was appointed by President Cleveland U.S. Commissioner of Railroads, and held the office till HAMUD BIN MAHOMED, Sultan of Zanzibar, was placed on the throne by Great Britain in 1890. On the sudden death of the late Sultan Hamud bin Thwain, in August 1896, Said bin Hamud, a member of the reigning family, fled to the Palace and held it with a small force of armed followers. He proclaimed himself Sultan, but was not recognized, and having refused to leave the Palace it was found necessary to use force to compel his submission. On the bombardment of half-an-hour from British warships in the harbour, Khaleel bin Hamud, the German Consul, whence he had eventually departed to Germany, Africa, where he remained. Hamud bin Mahomed, in April 1897, issued a decree which had for its object the abolition of slavery, and the compensation of the owners. By the end of the year 1897 the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society discovered this law to be a mere letter.

HANBURY, Sir James K.C.B., F.R.C.S., son of the late Samuel Hanbury, was born in 1821, received his education at Trinity College, Dublin, where he took the degree of Bachelor of Medicine in 1853. He was a member of the Royal College of Surgeons of England in 1859. Immediately after graduating at Dublin, he entered the medical department of the army, and became Surgeon in 1863, Surgeon-Major in 1873, Brigadier-Surgeon in 1877, and Deputy-Surgeon-General in 1881. He served with distinction in Chir-merica; was principal medical of a division during the Afghan gns of 1878-79 and 1879-80; and as principal medical officer under General Sir Frederick Roberts on asion of his celebrated march from to Kandahar. For these services he ated a Companion of the Bath, and d the war medal and bronze star. ust 1882 he was specially selected ompany Sir Garnet Wolseley as al medical officer of the Egyptian on, with the local rank of Surgeon- . At the close of the campaign created a Knight Commander of ler of the Bath, and Fellow of the ollege of Surgeons, Ireland (honoris in 1883. He was principal medical at Gibraltar from 1887 to 1888, and n-General of the Forces in the : Presidency from 1888 to 1892. He ired. In 1886 he married Emily, or of the late J. Anderson of Cox- Hall, Northumberland, and widow nel Carter, C.B. Address: Army vy Club.

HANBURY, The Rt. Hon. Robert M.P., is the only son of Robert ry, of Bodehall House, Tamworth, is born on Feb. 24, 1845. He was ed at Rugby and Corpus Christi , Oxford, where he was in the class Lit. Hum. in 1868. In e was elected Conservative member worth, and represented that con- y until 1878, when he became r for North Staffordshire. From ll 1885 he was out of Parliament, the latter year he was returned to use of Commons as Conservative r for Preston, a borough which he tinuously represented since. He ointed Financial Secretary to the ry in 1895, and in the same year orn a member of the Privy Council. nbury is a Deputy Lieutenant, and ce of the Peace, for the counties of Stafford, and Warwick, and is Hon. l of the 5th Lincs. Artillery Volun- He was married in 1884 to Ellen, or of Lieut.-Col. Knott Hamilton. llam Hall, Ashbourne, Derby-

HANNAY, James Lennox, M.A., Metropolitan Police Magistrate, is est son of John Hannay, and was n Sept. 20, 1826. He was educated ly, and at St. John's College, Cam- where he graduated in 1851. He lled to the Bar at the Inner Temple , and was formerly Counsel to the rates of the West Riding of York- and also Recorder of Pontefract. 1 Mr. Hannay was appointed a Metropolitan Police Magistrate at the Worship Street Court, and in 1888 he was transferred to Marlborough Street Court. Address: 113 St. George's Square, S.W.

HANOTAUX, Gabriel, French states- man and man of letters, was born on Nov. 19, 1853, at a small village on the outskirts of St. Quintin, at Beaurevoir. His father was a solicitor, and Gabriel was, from the first, destined to enter his father's profes- sion. He was duly articled to a Paris solicitor, but the fascinations of the study of politics and of history, and the allure- ments of the beaux arts, killed whatever of the lawyer he might have inherited from his father. However, out of respect to his father, he commenced the study of civil law. He followed, on his own account, the "Cours de l'École des Chartes," and, soon afterwards, was ap- pointed Keeper of the Ancient Manu- scripts. Thence he went to the École des Hautes Études, no longer as a pupil, but as Maître de Conférences. About this time he secured, through his friend and relation, Henri Martin, the historian, an introduc- tion to the conductors of La République Française, a journal then inspired by Gam- betta, at that time President of the Chamber. This first essay in journalism, as in the case of many another, opened up the road to fame. It happened one day, we are told, that Gambetta chanced to read, in the "Variétés" column of the paper, an article on the sixteenth century, written by young Gabriel Hanotau. Im- mensely struck by the style and verve, Gambetta sought out the writer, and after a conversation which will be remembered by M. Hanotau to his dying hour, offered the scribe an appointment in the Affaires Étrangères. Thus entered on his native sphere the most distinguished French Ministre d'Affaires Étrangères of modern times. The ambitious young man chose the Ancient Record Office, where he was put in charge of the historic portion, and, later on, Gambetta made his protégé a member of his Cabinet. On M. Challe- mel-Lacour succeeding to the Ministry, M. Hanotau occupied the same position, and again under M. Jules Ferry, who appointed him his Chef de Cabinet. When the Ferry Ministry fell, he was sent as Conseiller d'Ambassade to Constantinople, but returned the following year on being elected Deputy for the Département de l'Aisne. During this Parliament he occupied himself with certain diplomatic and military questions, and became a declared enemy of Boulang- ism. Defeated in the 1889 elections by Count Caffarelli, a Royalist, on the second ballot for Vervins, M. Hanotau re-entered upon his connection with the Qual d'Orsay, becoming Director of the Consulate and Leaving the political aspect of this distinguished Minister, we find in M. Hanotaux a loyal Frenchman who upholds the highest traditions of his country. His reputation as a man of letters is, of itself, sufficient to ensure that memory of him which will remain hereafter. He might, perhaps, be called the John Morley of France, uniting, as he does, high literary excellence with capable government of men and affairs. His chef-d'œuvre, "Histoire du Cardinal de Richelieu," has become a classic. On March 21, 1898, M. Hanotaux was received as a Membre de l'Académie, and his address on his predecessor, M. Chaulmel-Lacour, takes high rank in contemporary literature. An eminent English newspaper, commenting on the occasion, said: "As a statesman no less than as a man of letters he does honour to the choice of the Academy. At a time when public life across the Channel is not so rich as at some former periods in men with the gifts and the training of statesmen, France has the lished "Vom musikalischen Leben" 1869: "Aus dem Concerte der modernen Oper." 1871: "Leben der Gegenwart"

HANSON, Sir R
LL.D., J.P., D.L., was born Jan. 31, 1840, is the son of Samuel Hanson, and head of the firm of Samuel Hanson & Co., grocers, in Botolph Claydon. He has been connected with Billingsgate for 144 years. He was born in the same house as his grandfather. He was educated at Goulbourn's and Bishop's Cleeve, and at Trinity College, Cambridge. He received the usual degrees of 1887 the honorary doctorate conferred on him by the University of Cambridge on a visit to Australia in 1887.

knighted with his colleague, on the occasion of the visit of the Queen to Forest. Subsequently he was a member of the London School Board for years; and in 1889 was elected a member of the London County Council. Past Master of the Shipwrights' Company; Master of the Merchant Taylors' Company; a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries; and was sometime Chairman of the Council of the London Chamber of Commerce. He is the Honorary Colonel of the 1st Battalion Royal Fusiliers (City of London Militia), and is also a Commander of the Crown of Oak of the Order of St. John. He is in politics a Conservative. In September 1886 Sir Reginald was elected Lord Mayor of London for the year 1886-87, the Jubilee year, and was created a Baronet on the occasion of the Queen's visit to the Mansion House in 1887. The last old Rugby scholar to be Lord Mayor was Sir W. Plomer, who held the office in 1781. Sir Reginald was born in 1866, a daughter of the late Sir John Bingley, of Stanhope Park, Middlesex. Addresses: 4 Bryanston Square, W. 1; 47 Bolton Lane, E.C.

HARCOURT, A. G. V. See VERNON-HART, A. G.

HARCOURT, The Right Hon. Sir George Granville Venables (1827-1905), M.P., LL.D., F.R.S., second son of the late William Vernon Harcourt, and nephew of a former Archbishop of York. Born on Oct. 14, 1827, was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, of which he was a member, and graduated in high honours in 1847. He won first-class honours in Classical Tripos (for Optime). He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1854, and went to the Bench in 1858. He was unsuccessful in his candidature for the Kirkcaldy Burghs in 1858. Mr. Harcourt was appointed a Queen's Counsel in 1861; and was returned to the House of Commons for the city of Oxford, in the general election of 1868. He was elected in 1871 Professor of International Law in the University of Cambridge, March 2, 1871, and he was a member of the Royal Commission for amending the Neutrality Laws, and of the Royal Commission for the Naturalisation Laws. He was appointed Solicitor-General in November 1873, on which occasion he was created a Baronet, and he held that office until the death of Mr. Gladstone's administration in the following February. When Gladstone returned to power in May 1874, Sir W. Harcourt was nominated Secretary of State for the Home Department. On his going down to Oxford for the general election on that occasion he was defeated, polling only 2681 votes against 2735 recorded in favour of his Conservative antagonist, Mr. A. W. Hall. At this juncture, the late Mr. Plimsoll, M.P. for Derby, very generously accepted the Chiltern Hundreds, whereupon Sir W. Harcourt was elected one of the representatives of that borough in his stead. Sir W. Harcourt was presented with the freedom of the city of Glasgow, Oct. 25, 1881. He went out of office with his party in June 1885; but on the return of the Liberals to power in January 1886, he was made Chancellor of the Exchequer, and reappointed to this post in 1892. He was re-elected for Derby at both the general elections (1885 and 1886), and again in 1892. In 1895 he was defeated at Derby, greatly to the surprise of all parties. His poll on this occasion amounted to 6785, while of his two successful opponents, Mr. H. H. Bemrose polled 7907, and Mr. Geoffrey Drage, 7076. A seat was now found for him in Monmouthshire West, a mining constituency, which he now represents. Sir William has identified himself with the affairs of the Principality, and in August 1897 presided over one of the sessions of the National Eisteddfod at Newport, when he made a noteworthy speech upon Wales and the Welsh as represented by this their best-known institution. He was an active member of the Royal Commission appointed to inquire into the Jameson Raid, and has recently (July to October 1898) been engaged in controversy, both in Parliament and in the press, on the subject of the Ritualistic pretensions of a certain section of the clergy, his protests being chiefly made to the Archbishop of Canterbury. His speech in the House of Commons on the occasion of the death of the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone was one of the most impressive orations delivered at the time. He was one of the pall-bearers at that statesman's funeral. In December 1898, in a letter to Mr. John Morley, Sir William Harcourt made the announcement that he, perhaps, intended retiring from the leadership of the Liberal party of the House of Commons. "The hypothetical form of certain sentences in the Harcourt-Morley correspondence," to quote the Times' leading article of Dec. 15, 1898, "led some to suppose that the great tactician had merely made a tactical move, and that a vote of confidence would replace matters on their old footing." But subsequent correspondence between Sir William and his supporters showed plainly enough that his retirement from the leadership had been decided upon irrevocably. He now sits as a private member. He is famous as a Parliamentary debater, and was one of the future leaders of the Liberal party. Mr. Gladstone retired.

posters. Address : Oakhurst, Park, W.

Iza Duffus, only daughter of Duffus Hardy, and of the same Duffus Hardy, was educated at home, and began writing very early age. Sketches and she have appeared in Tinsley's London Society, Belgravia, and Wells's Magazine. Amongst the ones she has published are: "Aunt Alice," 1890 (2nd edit., 1894); "Only a Love Story," "Aunt Alice," "Love, Honour, and Obey," "Diamonds?" "The Love that is," "and "Love in Idleness"; these being stories of American life accompanied her mother to the States. She has produced two volumes of poetic Reminiscences, "Between the Mountains," and "Oranges and Alligators" being an account of life in the orange-groves of South Florida. "Woman's Loyalty" was published in 1893, and "In the Springtime of

Thomas, J.P., novelist, was born in 1840, at a secluded homestead in Dorset, and educated in the same place. He was destined for the architecture, and in his seventeenth year he became an ecclesiastical architect practising in the county. He devoted the greater part of his career, during the ensuing four years, to classical and theological literature, and continued to read with two like tastes. On taking up his abode in London, Mr. Hardy allied himself with the modern school of Gothic architecture, and acquired additional experience under Sir Arthur Blomfield, Bart., son of the late Bishop of Exeter, while entering as a draughtsman in modern languages at King's College. His first literary performance was an essay on "Coloured Brick and Architectural Ornament," which received the gold medal of the Institute of Architects in 1863; he also was in the same year Sir W. Tite's architectural design. He then turned to literature, confining his attention to the history of architecture, and writing his lately published "The History of Architecture," but at last tried his hand on fiction called "Desperate Remedies," which was published in 1871, and was praised and condemned. In 1872 he published the rural tale entitled "The Greenwood Tree," and in 1873 "The Blue Eyes," both of which were received. These were followed, in Nihil Magazine for 1874, by his first-known novel, "Far from the

Madding Crowd," dramatised and acted in a modified form at the Globe Theatre in 1882. He has written also "The Hand of Ethelberta, a Comedy in Chapters," 1876; "The Return of the Native," 1878; "The Trumpet-Major," 1880; "A Laodicean," 1881; "Two on a Tower," 1882; "The Mayor of Casterbridge," 1886; "The Woodlanders," 1886-7; "Wessex Tales," 1888; "A Group of Noble Dames," 1891; "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," the same year (one of the most extensively read and keenly discussed of recent novels); "Life's Little Ironies," 1894; and "Jude the Obscure," 1894-5, a story which drew upon the author a violent personal attack from some quarters; but it did not hinder the general recognition of "Jude" by the best critics and readers as a sincere and unbiased exhibition of some new phases of human life, and by many as a novel of distinctly sound teaching. In 1897 was reprinted his imaginative story published serially in 1892, entitled "The Well-Beloved, a Sketch of a Temperament," in which love is shown as a subjective phenomenon, the Platonic idea of typical beauty, exemplified in no real personality, being the supposed object of affection. A short play, based on one of his Wessex tales, and entitled "The Three Wayfarers," was written and produced by him in 1893, and a dramatic version of "Tess" has been performed with great success in America. Many of these novels have been published simultaneously in England, America, Australia, and India, and have been translated into Continental languages. The majority have a picturesque country district, spoken of as "Wessex," as their common scene, this being an application peculiar to the author of the ancient name to the modern life and conditions of the West of England. In the autumn of 1894 Messrs. Elkin Matthews and John Lane published "The Art of Thomas Hardy" by Lionel Johnson, which contains some hitherto unpublished pieces by the novelist. Mr. Hardy's "Poems" were published in 1898. Mr. Hardy married, in 1874, Emma Lavina, daughter of J. Atterson Gifford, Esq., and niece of the late Archdeacon of London. Address : Athenæum.

HARDY, William John, F.S.A., is the second son of Sir William Hardy, formerly Deputy Keeper of the Public Records, and was born in London on Sept. 29, 1857. He was educated privately, and received a training from his father as a record searcher and translator. He is an Inspector under the Historical MSS. Commission, and has edited the "Calendar of State Papers, William and Mary" (Rolls Series). He is the author of: "Hand-writings of the Kings and Queens of England," 1893; "Book Plates," 1893 (and 2nd edit., 1897); "Lighthouses, their History and Romance," 1895, &c. Mr. Hardy has been the editor, since its foundation in 1895, of Middlesex and Hertfordshire Notes and Queries, an archaeological journal which has met with great success, and is shortly to be merged into the Home Counties Magazine, under the same editorship, and with the same objects. He has been a Member of the Council of the Society of Antiquaries on three separate occasions, viz., 1887-89, 1891-93, and 1895-97. Address: Milton Cottage, St. Albans, Herts.

HARE, Augustus John Outhbert, the youngest and now the only surviving son of Francis George Hare and Anne Frances Paul, his wife, was born at the Villa Strozzi, in Rome, March 13, 1834, and was adopted, as an infant, by the widow of his uncle, Augustus William Hare. He was educated at Harrow, and at University College, Oxford. He has published "Epitaphs for Country Churchyards," 1856; "Murray's Handbook for Berks, Bucks, and Oxfordshire," 1860; "A Winter at Mentone," 1861; "Murray's Handbook for Durham and Northumberland," 1863; "Walks in Rome," 1870; "Wanderings in Spain," 1872; "Memorials of a Quiet Life," 1872; "Days near Rome," 1874; "Cities of Northern and Central Italy," 1875; "Walks in London," 1877; "Life and Letters of Baroness Bunsen," 1879; and "Cities of Southern Italy and Sicily," 1882; "Sketches of Holland and Scandinavia," 1885; "Studies in Russia," 1885; "Paris," and "Days near Paris," 1887; "South-Eastern France," and "South-Western France," 1890; "The Story of Two Noble Lives," 1893; "Sussex," 1894; "Life and Letters of Maria Edgeworth," 1894; "North-Western France," 1895; "The Gurneys of Earlham," 1895; "The Story of My Life" (vols. i., ii., and iii.), 1896; "The Riviéras," 1897. Mr. Hare resided formerly at his family home of Hurstmonceaux, but now lives on his small property of Holmhurst, near Hastings. He has received the Order of St. Olaf from the King of Sweden and Norway. Permanent addresses: Holmhurst, St. Leonard's-on-Sea; and Athenæum.

HARE, John, was born in London on May 16, 1844, and was educated at Giggewick Grammar School, Yorkshire. His first appearance on the stage took place at the Prince of Wales' Theatre, Liverpool, and in 1875 he became manager of the Court Theatre, remaining in that position for four years. During that period he produced "Olivia," "The House of Darnley," "The Scrap of Paper," "The Ladies'

Battle," "The Queen's Shilling," "New Men and Old Acres." In 1888 he was engaged in a partnership with Mr. Kendal at St. Theatre, and amongst his productions those nine years mention should be made of "The Falcon," "Still War Deep," "The Money-Spinner," "The Squire," "The Hobby-Horse," "The master." In 1889 Mr. Hare undertook management of the Garrick Theatre between that date and 1895 thereupon the stage of this recently built "The Profligate"; a translation of the well-known French play Tosca, in which the title part was by Mrs. Bernard Beere, and that of by Mr. Forbes Robertson; "A Spectacles," "A Fool's Paradise," "Diplomacy," and "Money." Notorious Mrs. Ebb-smith," and "Bountiful." From 1897 up to the time, the Globe Theatre, of which lessee and manager, has been the Mr. Hare's triumphs, and he has produced "A Bachelor's Romance Master," and "The Gay Lord" (1899). Mr. Hare has toured in and has there met with the same success which has always his efforts in this country. ing is quiet and natural, but forcible, and he may perhaps be as the first of living English actors from the polished and modern point of the Theatre Français. Mr. Gilbert Hare, is also a young great promise, and has played in his father's productions. Address: Crescent, Portland Place, W.

HARLEY, Rev. Robert, Oxford, F.R.S., F.R.A.S., a mathematician, was born at Liverpool on Jan. 1. He is the third son of the Robert Harley. In his fourth year he developed a taste for mathematics. His progress in the study was so rapid that before he was sixteen he was a mathematical master in a school at Seacombe, near Liverpool. Twelve months he returned to his father's house as an assistant in the school at Blackheath, where he had received the chief part of his education. He then became a contributor to various mathematical journals. In 1846 he answered a question relating to the general quintic which had been proposed in and Gentleman's Diary by the Rev. James Cockle, M.A., F.R.S. Justice of Queensland. The answer he was brought into notice with the proposer, and the ship which originated led to a journey which have not been without Norwich and at Edinburgh he acted as Secretary of Section A; and at the meetings at Bradford and at Bath he was appointed a Vice-President of the same Section. In November 1886 the University of Oxford conferred upon him the degree of M.A., honoris causa. He is the author of numerous papers, chiefly on questions in pure Mathematics or Symbolic Logic, published in the transactions of learned bodies and in journals devoted to mathematics or philosophy, inter alia, "On the Method of Symmetric Products," "On Circular Functions," "The Theory of Quintics," "The Theory of the Transcendental Solution of Algebraic Equations," "Differential Resolvents," "George Boole, F.R.S., a Biography and an Exposition," "Boole's Laws of Thought," "The Stanhope Demonstrator; an Instrument for performing Logical Operations," "Sir James Cockle's Criticoids," "The Explicit Form of the Complete Cubic Differential Resolvent," and "The Umlbral Notation." Addresses: Rosslyn, Westbourne Road, Forest Hill, S.E.; and Athenæum.

HARMSWORTH, Alfred Charles W., principal proprietor of the Daily Mail, Evening News, and other journals, was born July 15, 1865, at Chapelizod, co. Dublin, being the eldest son of the late Alfred Harmsworth, barrister-at-law, Middle Temple. He was educated at Stamford Grammar School, Lincolnshire, and in 1882 he began work in the office of the Illustrated London News, as editor of one of Sir W. Ingram's journals. Amongst his journalistic ventures may be mentioned the originating of Answers in 1888, the purchase of the Evening News in 1894, the founding of the Daily Mail in 1896, and the publication in July 1898 of Harmsworth's Magazine, issued at the unprecedentedly low price of 3d. He contested Portsmouth in the Unionist interest in 1895. Mr. Harmsworth's name is well known in connection with the Arctic Expedition of 1894, which he equipped, and which sailed under the command of Mr. F. G. Jackson. He is married to Mary Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Robert Milner, of Kidlington, Oxon. Addresses: 36 Berkeley Square, W.; Elmwood, St. Peter's, Kent.

HARPER, William Rainey, Ph.D., D.D., American educator, was born at New Concord, Ohio, July 26, 1856, and was graduated from Muskingum College, Ohio, in 1870. From 1875 to 1876 he was Principal of Masonic College, Macon, Tenn.; 1876-80, instructor in Denison University; 1879-86, Professor of Hebrew in the (Chicago) Baptist Theol. Seminary;

HARRADEN, Beatrice, novelist, was born at Hampstead on Jan. 24, 1864, and is the youngest daughter of Samuel Harraden and Rosalie, his wife. She was educated at Dresden, at Cheltenham College for Ladies, and at Queen's and Bedford Colleges, London. She is a B.A. of London University, and has travelled and pursued her studies on the Continent and in the United States. She came into notice with her first book of stories,

HARRIS, Frank, was born 14, 1856, in Galway, Ireland.

h blood, his father and mother both ng from Pembrokeshire. His father worked himself up from cabin-boy to ommand of a revenue cutter, and is ght by his son to have been a man of ordinary energy and ability. Thanks father's self-sacrifice and economy mother died when Frank was a mere y, Frank Harris was taught in com- ely good schools—at the Royal ution, Belfast, and afterwards in the mar School, Ruabon. In his fifteenth however, he took the bit in his teeth smigrated to Canada. Doing odd f work he made his way westwards uebec to Chicago (he was in Chicago the great fire), and afterwards came hor in Lawrence, Kansas. He at- the State University for a couple rs, and profited greatly by the teach- of B. C. Smith, at that time the pro- of Greek, whose memory he still es as that of the noblest man it has een his good fortune to meet, as one of the wisest and most learned. s Smith who taught Harris "what ure and art mean, and the value in f what endures." In Lawrence, too, Harris studied law, and was ad- d to the Bar in 1876. In the same he resolved to continue his education, with that purpose returned to Europe went first to the University of Paris. e he learned nothing except some rn French literature. In 1878 he and the University of Heidelberg, and from there to Göttingen and after- to Berlin. In 1880 he went to e and studied in Athens for nearly a

In 1881 he came to London and got : immediately on the Spectator. A later he accepted the editorship of Evening News, then on its last legs. as than three years he increased the ation of the Evening News from about a day to 70,000, and was then offered itorship of the Fortnightly Review. dited the Fortnightly from 1888 to and then bought the Saturday Re- which he edited till November 1898. eft the Saturday in order to devote elf to literature. In 1893 he had ished with Messrs. Heinemann a me of western stories, entitled "Elder lin, and other Tales," and we under- d that a volume of his criticism, under le "The True Shakespeare," will be and in the spring of 1899, as well as econd volume of stories. Address : shurst, Roehampton Vale, S.W.

HARRIS, Sir George David, was in 1827. He was at one time in the omatic Service, was a member of lament in and member of the Execu- Council of the Bahamas (1861), and

Captain of the Nassau Marine Artillery. He has represented South Paddington as Moderate member of the London County Council since 1895. In 1888 he received the honour of knighthood. He married, in 1864, Eliza Harriet, daughter of the Hon. Hy. Adderley, Bahamas. Address : 32 Inverness Terrace, Kensington Gardens, W.

HARRIS, Lord George Robert Canning Harris, G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., D.L., J.P., was born at St. Ann's, Trinidad, Feb. 3, 1851, and is the son of the third Baron and of a daughter of the Ven. George Cummins, Archdeacon of Trinidad. He was educated at Eton and at Christ Church, Oxford, where he took his B.A. degree in 1874. He is J.P. and D.L. for Kent, and Deputy-Chairman of the East Kent Quarter Sessions. In Lord Salisbury's Government of 1885 he was Under-Secretary for India, and from 1886-89 he held the post of Under-Secretary for War. He is a celebrated cricketer; has long been captain of the Kent County Club; and has taken an eleven to Australia. He was Governor of Bombay from February 1890 to 1895, when he was appointed Lord-in-Waiting to the Queen. Addresses : 6 Oxford Square, W.; and Belmont, Faversham, Kent.

HARRIS, Henry Percy, L.C.C., was born Sept. 8, 1856, being the only son of Sir George David Harris, J.P. He was educated at Eton and at Christ Church, Oxford, graduating B.A. in 1880, and became a barrister at Lincoln's Inn in 1881. He has been London County Councillor for North Paddington from 1892, and was elected Deputy-Chairman of the London County Council in March 1898. Addresses : 13 Old Square, Lincoln's Inn ; 32 Inverness Terrace, Paddington.

HARRIS, Joel Chandler, American writer, was born at Eatonton, Ga., Dec. 8, 1848. His early education was limited to a brief attendance at a local school, and, at the age of 12, he was apprenticed to a printer. His fondness for books enabled him to overcome the deficiencies of his schooling, and he soon rose from the printer's case to an editorial desk. He was employed on various papers in Macon, New Orleans, Forsyth, and Savannah until 1876, when he went to Atlanta (Ga.), and secured an engagement on the Constitution, of which he was in 1890 and still is in 1899 the principal editor. It was his negro dialect stories, contributed to the Constitution, that first drew public attention to him, and that have won for him his literary reputation. In addition to his editorial labours, he has been a frequent writer for American magazines, and has also published "Uncle Remus, his Songs and his Sayings," 1880; "Nights with Uncle Remus," 1883; "Mingo and Other Sketches," 1884; "Free Joe," 1887; "Daddy Jake the Runaway," 1889; "Balaam and his Master, and other Stories," 1892; "Little Mr. Thimblefinger and his Queer Country," 1894; "Sister Jane," 1896; and "Aaron in the Wild-woods," 1897. A "Life of Henry W. Grady," his predecessor as editor of the Constitution, and a popular Southern speaker, was published by him in 1890.

HARRIS, Rear-Admiral Sir Robert Hastings, K.C.M.G., eldest son of the late Captain Robert Harris, R.N., and Priscilla, daughter of the late Captain Thomas Pewmddicke of the Scots Guards, was born at Portsmouth on Oct. 12, 1843. He was educated at the Royal Naval School, Newcross, and entered the navy in January 1856. He was promoted Lieutenant in March 1863, and obtained Commander's rank in June 1870 by a haul-down vacancy. He became a Captain in December 1879, and for three years was Aide-de-camp to the Queen. He was appointed Inspector of Boys' Training Ships in September 1889, and in June 1893 he hoisted a broad pennant in H.M.S. Active as Commodore of the Training Squadron, and was promoted Rear-Admiral in January 1895. In May of the following year he became second in command of the Mediterranean Fleet, with his flag in H.M.S. Revenge. Sir Robert Harris was appointed in charge of the British Squadron which was despatched to Crete during the crisis of 1897. Most of the conferences between the Admirals of the International Fleet which had assembled in Cretan waters were held on board his flagship, and in consideration of his services throughout the crisis Sir Robert was created a K.C.M.G. In May 1898 he was chosen to succeed Admiral Sir Harry Rawson in the command of the South African Squadron. Sir Robert issued a revised edition of Captain Alston's Seamanship in 1871, and he is also the author of "Maritime Power and its Probable Application in War."

HARRISON, The Hon. Benjamin, LL.D., twenty-third President of the United States, grandson of the ninth President, was born at North Bend, Ohio, Aug. 20, 1833. He graduated from Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, in 1852, studied law and began its practice in Indianapolis, Ind. (1854), where he has since resided. The first official position held by him was that of crier in the Federal Court at Indianapolis, to which he was appointed shortly after his removal to that city. In

1860 he was elected, by the Republican party, reporter of the Indiana Supreme Court, but resigned the office in 1861 to enter the Union Army in the Civil War. He assisted in raising the 76th Indiana Regiment, of which he was made colonel when it went to the field. During the war his regiment was chiefly engaged in the West, guarding railways against guerilla warfare. In January 1864 Harrison was placed in command of a brigade, and made the campaign from Chattanooga to Atlanta with Gen. H. V. S. His first engagement of importance was that of Resaca, May 14, 1864. Subsequently he took part in the capture of Cassville, the actions at New Hope and at Golgotha Church, and in the capture of Kenesaw Mountain and Peach Creek. "For ability and manifest courage and gallantry in command of the troops the brevet of brigadier-general of volunteers was subsequently conferred on him, to date from Jan. 23, 1865. He mustered out (June 1865) at the close of the war, he returned to Indianapolis, resumed the duties of the office of reporter, to which he had been re-elected in 1864. At the expiration of his term he declined another re-nomination, and took up again the practice of his profession. Though actively interested in the presidential canvasses of 1868 and 1872, he did not hold any official position, nor was he a candidate for any office, until in 1876 he accepted the Republican nomination for governor of his State, but this was unfavourable to his party, and he was not elected. In 1879 President Garfield appointed him a member of the Mississippi River Commission, and in the following year he was made chairman of the Delegation to the Republican National Convention at Chicago, which nominated Mr. Garfield for the Presidency. He was a prominent speaker in the campaign for Mr. Garfield, and on the election of the latter was offered a portfolio in the cabinet, but he declined it. On March 1, 1881, he took his seat in the United States Senate, to which the legislature of Indiana had previously elected him for a term of six years. While a member of the body he spoke frequently, and was known as an advocate of protective duties, of a reform in the civil service, and of a restoration of the American flag. He was again a delegate of his party to the National Convention in 1884, and his name was there mentioned in connection with the Presidency, as indeed it had been at the preceding Convention. At the Chicago Convention (1888) he was among the leading candidates from the start, and his name was tendered the nomination, which he accepted on a platform

aintenance of the protective tariff. This became the controlling issue in the ensuing contest between Mr. Cleveland (renominated by the Democratic party) and himself, and the result was a Republican victory and the election of Mr. Harrison, who was accordingly inaugurated President on March 4, 1889, for a term of four years. In 1892 he was nominated by his party for re-election, and was again opposed by Mr. Cleveland, who, for the third time, was the Democratic party's choice for President. The campaign, as in 1888, was conducted mainly on the tariff question, which was till 1896 (when the silver question came uppermost) the principal political issue before the American people. Owing to the unpopularity of what is known as the M'Kinley Bill (a protective tariff measure passed by Congress and approved by Mr. Harrison in 1890), the Republican party was defeated, and at the end of his term of office in March 1893 Mr. Harrison left Washington, and returned to his home in Indianapolis and resumed his practice of the law. In 1897 he published "This Country of Ours." The degree of LL.D. was conferred upon him by Miami University and the College of New Jersey in June 1889.

HARRISON, Clifford, reciter, was born in London in 1857. His father, William Harrison, was a celebrated tenor, and lost a large fortune in endeavouring to establish English opera in London. Mr. Clifford Harrison entered the theatrical profession when quite young, and resigned it to go to College (St. John's, Cambridge). He, however, relinquished the University career, and returned to the stage. He gave his first public recital at St. George's Hall in 1877, and since then he has held his position in London as a most popular entertainer. His series of recitals (Steinway Hall) are the longest by far on record, lasting as a rule for thirty weeks out of each year, and his repertory consists of some 400 pieces. His health has unfortunately forced him to resign provincial and colonial tours. He is a draughtsman in black and white, and held an exhibition of his drawings in 1898. He has published the following works in verse and prose: "In Hours of Leisure," "On the Common Chords," "Stray Records," "The Lute of Apollo," "Notes on the Margins," and "Lines in Pleasant Places." Address: 29 St. George's Square, S.W.

HARRISON, Frederic, M.A., was born in London, Oct. 18, 1831, being the eldest son of Frederic Harrison, Esq., of London, by Jane, only daughter of the late Alexander Brice, Esq., of Belfast.

He was educated at King's College School, London; was elected Scholar of Wadham College, Oxford, 1848; and took the degree of B.A., 1853 (when he was in the first class in Lit. Hum.). After residing for some time as Fellow and Tutor of his College at Oxford, he was called to the Bar in 1858. He has since practised as a Conveyancer, and in the Courts of Equity. Mr. Harrison was a member of the Royal Commission upon Trade Unions, 1867-69; Secretary to the Royal Commission for the Digest of the Law, 1869-70; and in 1877 was appointed by the Council of Legal Education, Professor of Jurisprudence and International Law, which office he held until 1889. He has given much attention to the questions and institutions relating to working-men. He was one of the founders of the Positivist School in 1870, and also of Newton Hall in 1881. He is the author of some articles in the Westminster Review between 1860 and 1864, of numerous essays in the Fortnightly Review from 1865, in the Nineteenth Century from its commencement, the Contemporary Review from 1875, in Cosmopolis and in the Forum of New York, 1890-94. He has published "The Meaning of History," 1862; "Order and Progress," 1875; an English translation of "Social Statics, or the Abstract Theory of Human Order," being vol. ii. of Comte's "Positive Polity," 1875; "The Choice of Books, and other Literary Pieces," 1886; "Oliver Cromwell," 1888; "Annals of an Old Manor House," 1893; "Historical Pieces," 1894; "Early Victorian Literature," 1896; and "William the Silent," 1897. Mr. Harrison was the editor, and in part the author, of "The New Calendar of Great Men," 1892, a collection of 558 biographies of worthies of all nations and ages. He is a follower of Auguste Comte, whose philosophical, social, and religious doctrines he has presented in various articles, lectures, and published addresses. Mr. Harrison has been since 1880 President of the English Positivist Committee, and has given continuous courses of Lectures in Newton Hall, many of which have been published separately. He has also been a constant writer in the Positivist Review, edited by Professor Beesly, from January 1893. Mr. Harrison has declined to enter Parliament, except that at the general election of 1886 he stood for the University of London against Sir John Lubbock, and was defeated by 1314 votes against 516. In February 1889 he was elected an Alderman by the London County Council, and resigned that office in October 1893. Mr. Frederic Harrison is at present identified with the movement for erecting a fitting memorial to King Alfred on the occasion of that monarch's approaching editorial. He has written some notable articles and letters in the Times and other leading journals on this subject. In 1870 he married Ethel Bertha, only daughter of William Harrison, Esq., of Craven Hill Gardens. Addresses: 35 Westbourne Terrace, W.; and Athenæum.

HARRISON, Miss Jane Ellen. Hon. L.L.D. Aberdeen. Hon. D.Litt. Durham. was born Sept. 9, 1850. Her father, of whom she is the third daughter, was Mr. Charles Harrison, of Cottingham, near Hull. She was for a time educated privately under a governess in a village near Scarborough, and at the age of thirteen began to learn Greek. Subsequently she passed the Cambridge Higher Local Examinations, and won their Language Scholarship. She continued her education at Cheltenham, where she studied mathematics and science, and, after passing most honourably several examinations at Newnham, where she spent three years, was informally examined in 1879 by the Examiners of the Classical Tripos and declared by them to have attained the honours standard. At Cambridge, and afterwards at the British Museum, Miss Harrison studied Greek vase-painting and marbles under Professor Colvin, and, during a tour through Europe, she visited and carefully inspected every important collection of Greek sculpture. On her return from her first residence abroad Miss Harrison, in 1882, was invited to form classes for the study of Greek sculpture and the minor classical antiquities at the British Museum, which were formed and continued until 1887. At the Museum some thirty auditors only could listen to her as she conducted her party round the Greek Galleries, but at South Kensington her audiences were large. She has lectured on Greek art, and especially on Greek vase-painting, at many public schools and ladies' colleges, at Toynbee Hall, at the Midland Institute, Birmingham, for the University Extension Society, and for the Association for the Higher Education of Women. She is Staff Lecturer on Classical Archaeology to the Oxford University Extension, and a Corresponding Member of the K. K. Arch. Instit. of Berlin. In 1890 she was appointed member of the Committee of the British School of Archaeology at Athens, and from 1889 to 1896 was a member of the Council of the Hellenic Society. Her works include: "Myths of the Odyssey in Art and Literature," 1882; "Introductory Studies in Greek Art," 1885; "Mythology and Monuments of Ancient Athens" (jointly with Mrs. A. W. Verrall), 1890; and "Greek Vase-Painting" (jointly with Mr. D. S. MacColl), 1891. Address: 37 Barkston Gardens, S.W.

HARRISON, Mary St. Ledger publishes as "Lucas Malet," was of Eversley Rectory, on June 4, 1822, the youngest daughter of the late G. Kingsley, and Frances, daughter of G. Grenfell, of Taplow. The accomplished novelist was educated at home and under father's guidance, and afterwards at Slade School and at University College London. In 1876 she married W. Harrison, Rector of Clovelly, who died in 1897. She has travelled much, especially in India and Ceylon. Her novels are: "Lorimer, a Sketch in Black and White," 1882; "Colonel Enderby's Wife," 1887; "Little Peter," 1887; "A Confession," 1888; "The Wages of Sin," a powerful book, the scene of which is her native Clovelly, 1891; "The Cat and a Modern Grotesque," 1896. Address: Bellingham Mansions, Kensington.

HARRISON, Reginald, F.R.C.S. eldest son of the late Rev. Thomas Harrison, of Stafford, was educated at School and St. Bartholomew's Hospital, became Member of the Royal College of Surgeons of England in 1859, and a Fellow of the College in 1866. He is Surgeon at St. Peter's Hospital, London; Member of the Council of the Royal College of Surgeons of England, Vice-President of the Medical and Chirurgical Society, Member Medical Society, State of New York; Hon. Fellow American Medical Association, and of Chicago Acad. Medicine, &c., and lately Vice-President and Hunterian Professor of Pathology and Surgery at the Royal College of Surgeons, President of the Medical Society of London, Surgeon to the Liverpool Royal Infirmary, Lecturer on Surgery in the University, and Examiner in Surgery at the University of Durham. He is author of "The Surgical Disorders of the Thoracic Organs," four editions; the art. "On the Stone and Surgical Diseases of the Bladder and Kidneys, vol. i.;" "Twentieth Century International Cyclopaedia" (New York), 1895; the Lettsonian Lectures before the Medical Society of London, 1888; the Presidential Address of the Liverpool Medical Society, 1881, on "The Ambulance in Civil Practice of various other contributions to medical literature. Address: 6 Lower Grosvenor Street, Portman Square, W.

HARRISON, General Sir R. K.C.B., C.M.G., son of the Rev. B. Harrison, rector of Beaumont, Essex, was born on May 26, 1837. He was educated at Eton, and entered the army as a Lieutenant of Royal Engineers in 1855, promoted Captain 1862, Major 1864, and Colonel 1874. He first saw war as Harrison in the Crimea. He went through the Indian Mutiny, and was present at many actions, including the siege and capture of Lucknow, and, as Staff Officer to the Commanding Royal Engineer, took part in the Trans-Gogra Campaign. In 1860 he went to China and was present at the siege and capture of the Taku Forts. He was attached to the Quartermaster-General's Staff at the advance on and surrender of Peking. He was mentioned in despatches, and received the Brevet of Major and a medal with two clasps. Sir Richard Harrison accompanied Sir W. Ferriero on a special mission to Canada and the United States during the war of 1863-64, and upon returning to England was appointed Brigade-Major of Royal Engineers at Chatham. In 1879 he went to South Africa and took part in the Zulu War. He was appointed Senior Royal Engineer at Headquarters, and was also on the Staff at the battle of Ulundi. For services he was created a C.B. During Boer agitation he was in command of a flying column and also commanded the troops in the Transvaal during the operations against Sekukuni, and was several times mentioned in despatches. In 1881 he was employed at Aldershot, and the following year went to Egypt as Assistant Adjutant-General. He served Chief Staff Officer on the lines of communication throughout the campaign and was present at the action of El Magfar and the battle of Tel-el-Kebir. He was again mentioned in despatches, and was awarded a C.M.G. and the Osmanieh of the third class. Sir Richard Harrison also served in the Sudan Expedition of 1885, taking part in the Nile Expedition. He was Colonel of the Staff and had charge of the line of communication. He was promoted Major-General in July 1888, and the following year was appointed Governor of the Royal Military Academy. He received a K.C.B. shortly after. As Lieut.-General he commanded the Western District (the Devonport Command) from October 1893 to October 1895. In 1897 he was chosen to be temporary Quartermaster-General of the Forces pending the arrival from India of Sir George White. General Sir Richard Harrison married, in 1870, Amy Sophia, daughter of Colonel J. O'Brien. Address: Hawley Hill, Blackwater.

HARRISON, The Right Rev. William Thomas, D.D., Bishop of Glasgow and Galloway, is the youngest son of the Rev. T. T. Harrison, M.A., rector of Thorpe Morieux, Suffolk. He was born on September 22, 1837, and was educated at Marlborough College and Trinity College, Cambridge. He was curate at the Parish Church, Great Yarmouth, 1861-68; rector of Thorpe Morieux, 1868-75; vicar of Christ Church, Luton, 1875-83; vicar of St. James's, Bury St. Edmunds, 1883-88; and rural dean of Luton; and subsequently (1888) rural dean of Thingoe. He was consecrated Bishop in 1888. He is an Hon. Canon of Ely. He married, in 1890, Elizabeth Colvin, daughter of Col. John Colvin, C.B. Address: 25 Burnbank Gardens, Glasgow.

HARROWBY, Earl of, The Right Hon. Dudley Francis Stuart Ryder, D.L., J.P., D.C.L., is the eldest son of the late Earl of Harrowby, K.G., by Lady Frances Stuart, fourth daughter of the late Marquis of Bute. He was born at Brighton, Jan. 16, 1831, and received his education at Harrow and at Christ Church, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. in 1852. After leaving the University he accompanied the present Earl of Carnarvon on a journey to the East, visiting the sites of Nineveh and Babylon, and exploring the country between Mesopotamia, the Black Sea, and Persia. He served as Captain in the 2nd Staffordshire Militia when that regiment was called out for garrison duty at the time of the Crimean War and the Indian Mutiny. In 1856 he was elected M.P. for Lichfield, which city he represented as Viscount Sandon till 1859; and for some time he was Private Secretary to Mr. Labouchere at the Colonial Office, 1856-8. He unsuccessfully contested Stafford in 1860. Viscount Sandon was first elected for Liverpool in January 1868, and was elected three times for the borough. At the general election in February 1874, his lordship was returned for that borough at the head of the poll, no fewer than 20,206 votes having been recorded in his favour—the largest number given to any candidate in the United Kingdom. He came into Parliament as a supporter of Lord Palmerston, but gave up his connection with that party and his seat in the House of Commons on account of Lord John Russell becoming a member of Lord Palmerston's Government, and has been ever since a steady supporter of the Conservative party. At one time he took an active part in the private business of the House of Commons, and served on several select committees, including those on the Euphrates Valley, Hudson's Bay, and the Diplomatic and Consular Services; and he was also a member of the secret committee appointed to inquire into the Westmeath Ribbon outrages. His name was associated with the Parochial Councils Bill, which he brought forward in two sessions, with the object of giving to the laity a larger share in the management of Church affairs. His lordship took a leading part, conjointly with Mr. W. H. Smith, in founding the "Bishop of London's Fund," and took an active share in all the details of its management for about nine years. To the first London School Board he was returned for Westminster (1870), and he presided over the statistical committee appointed by that body to investigate the educational wants of the metropolis. In February 1874 he was appointed Vice-President of the Council of Education, and for four years he represented that Department in the House of Commons. He brought in the Education Act of 1876 and various Revised Codes. In 1877, when the office of Chief Secretary for Ireland became vacant, and a second time in 1878, the Earl of Beaconsfield offered it, with a seat in the Cabinet, to Viscount Sandon, who, however, for family reasons refused it on both occasions; but shortly afterwards his lordship accepted the post of President of the Board of Trade, with a seat in the Cabinet, vacant by the resignation of Mr. Adderley, who was raised to the House of Peers, April 1878. Viscount Sandon went out of office with his colleagues in April 1880. He succeeded to the title of Earl of Harrowby on the death of his father (Nov. 19, 1882). He was appointed Lord Privy Seal in the Marquis of Salisbury's Government in 1885, and went out of office with his colleagues in February 1886. He was appointed a member of the Royal Commission on Education in 1886, and served on it for nearly three years of its existence. He became President of the British and Foreign Bible Society in 1886. In 1888 he was elected as one of the representatives of the Diocese of Lichfield in the first House of Laymen. He was elected a member of the first County Council for Staffordshire in 1888, and has been its chairman from the commencement. He has given special attention to colonial matters, and to questions affecting the empire generally, speaking frequently on these subjects in both the House of Commons and House of Lords, and also to subjects affecting the religious, social, and material progress of the working-classes. He married, in 1861, Lady Mary Frances Cecil, eldest daughter of the second Marquis of Exeter. Addresses: 44 Grosvenor Square, W.; Sandon Hall, Staffs., &c.; and Athenæum.

HART, Heber Leonidas, LL.D., barrister-at-law, was born March 31, 1865, at Clapham, and is the son of Mr. Percy Hart. He graduated in 1886 in the University of London as Bachelor of Laws, having been placed first in First-Class Honours in Jurisprudence and Roman Law, and also obtaining Honours in Common Law and Equity; he took the degree of Doctor of Laws in 1893, being the only successful candidate out of seven. He was called to the Bar at the Middle Temple in 1887, joined the South-Eastern Circuit in 1887 to 1890, he was leader of the Liberal party in the Putney Parliament for years after 1889 he was Chairman of Putney and Roehampton Liberal Association; and for several years he was President of the Borough of Wandsworth Liberal and Radical Association. At an annual general meeting of the Bar Mr. Hart seconded a motion, which effected the formation of the present General Council of the Bar. In 1894 and subsequent years he took a leading part in forming the London University Reform Committee, and is still one of the most active advocates of the maintenance of the existing work of the University. Imperial and Impartial Examination; he is, moreover, a member of a committee of 13 members of Council upon the subject of the reconstruction of the University. He contested the Thanet at the general election of 1895, and South Islington at the election of 1895; was in 1895 elected first Honorary Fellow of the Ancient Institute of the United Kingdom, a member of the Committee and Sub-Committee of the Eighty Club. He is the author of "Women's Suffrage National Danger," 1889; and "Relating to Auctioneers," 1895. Address: The Pines, Putney Hill, S.W.; 6 Smith Building, Temple, E.C.

HART, James McDougal, painter, was born at Kilmarnock, in 1828. When a child he went to America and lived at New York. In 1851 he went to London and studied painting for about a year. He returned to Albany in 1853, removed to New York City, and has since resided. He was elected Academician in 1859. His pictures are admired for their harmony of color and quiet peacefulness of tone. Pictures known among them are: "Montezuma the Adirondacks," "A Summer's Day at Berkshire," "The Dove at the Brookside," "Peaceful Evening," "Coming out of the Shade," "March," "Among Friends," "The Weather," "Indian Summer," "Misty Morning." Two of his pictures—"In the Autumn Woods" and "The Dove at the Brookside"—were exhibited at the position of 1889, for which he won a bronze medal.

HARTE, Francis Bret, was born at Albany, New York, Aug. 25, 1825.

California in 1854, and was successively miner, school-teacher, expressman, printer, and finally editor of a paper.

In 1864 he was appointed editor of the United States Branch in San Francisco, holding the office until 1866.

He contributed many poems to periodicals, and in 1868, on the establishment of the Overland Monthly, he became its editor, and contributed it several notable tales and poems.

In 1869 appeared in it his poem "The Heathen Chinese," which suddenly made him famous. In 1870 he went to the Eastern States, and his residence first in New York, and then in Boston. He was appointed United States Consul at Creffield, from which he was transferred to New York in March 1880, where he remained until 1885. Since then he has resided in London.

His works, most of which have appeared in periodicals, include "The Heathen Chinese," 1869; "Poems," 1870; "Roaring Camp, and other Poems," 1870; "East and West Poems," 1871; "The Poetical Works," illustrated, 1871; "The Echoes of the Hills," 1872; "Echoes of the Hills," 1874; "Tales of the West," 1875; "Gabriel Conroy," and "Sandy Bar," 1876; "Thank-you," 1877; "Story of a Mine," 1878; "The Table Mountain and other Poems," 1879; "Flip and Found at the Fair," 1882; "In the Carquinez," 1883; "On the Frontier," 1884; "The Green Sedge," and "Maruja," 1885; "The Pirate Isle," 1886; "A Million Rough and Ready," 1887; "The Crusade of the Excelsior," 1888; "A Phyllis of the Sierras," 1889; "The Redwood Camp," and "The of North Liberty," 1888; and "The Heritage of Dedlow," 1889; "A Waif of the Plains," and "The Golden Gate," 1890; "A Green Springs," and "Sally," 1892; "Susy," 1893; "The Bell-Angel's," and "A Protégé of the Devil's," 1894; "Clarence," and "Follow of the Hills," 1895; "Luck and Other Stories," 1896; "The Artisans," 1897; and "Stories in the Shade," 1899. Address: 74 Gate, W.

HARTING, James Edmund, F.L.S., eldest son of the late James Vincent Harting, in the county of Middlesex, was born on April 29, 1841. He was educated at Downside College, near Bath, and at the University of London, where he graduated in 1869, and the following year passed the first examination for the degree of B.A. He followed the profession of a solicitor until 1878, when he retired from practice. Being from youth devoted to the study of zoology, and more especially ornithology, he began in 1866 to publish the results of his observations, and since that date he has written several works, of which the titles and dates are given below, as well as numerous papers in the Proceedings and Transactions of scientific societies and in journals devoted to natural history. In January 1871 he began to edit the natural history columns of the Field, which he has continued to do ever since; he was editor of the Zoologist for about twenty years from 1877 to 1896. Elected a Fellow of the Zoological Society in 1864, and a Fellow of the Linnean Society in 1868, he has served on the Council of the latter, and on various committees of the former society and of the British Association for many years. He took an active part in procuring the passing of the Sea Birds Preservation Act, 1869, and drafted the Bill for the Protection of Wild Fowl, which was passed in 1872; and in 1873 he was examined before a Select Committee of the House of Commons, appointed to take evidence on this subject with a view to further legislation. Elected an hon. member of several county Natural History Societies, he was in 1882 awarded a first-class silver medal of the Société d'Acclimatation de France "for scientific publications." In January 1888 he was appointed Librarian to the Linnean Society, with an official residence at Burlington House. In 1889 he went to Paris as special correspondent of the Field to report on guns and rifles at the Paris Exhibition, and to Thessaly in 1893 for the Board of Agriculture to report on the vole plague. The titles of his works are: "The Birds of Middlesex: a Contribution towards the Natural History of the County," 1866; "The Ornithology of Shakespeare critically examined, explained, and illustrated," 1871; "A Handbook of British Birds," 1872; "Our Summer Migrants," 1875; a new edition of White's "Natural History of Selborne," 1875; another edition, with additional "Letters of White," 1876; "Rambles in Search of Shells," 1876; "Ostriches and Ostrich Farming," 1879; "Rodd's Birds of Cornwall, edited with an Introduction, Appendix, and Memoir of the Author," 1880; "British Animals Extinct within Historic Times," 1880; "Glimpses of Bird Life," 1880; "Essays on Sport and Natural History," 1883; "A Perfect Booke for Keping of Spar-hawkes or Goshawks: Printed for the first time from the Original MS. of 1575, with an Introduction and Glossary," 1886; "Bert's Treatise of Hawks: for the first time Reprinted from the Original of 1619, with an Introduction," 1891; "Bibliotheca Accipitraria: a Bibliography of Falconry, with Illustrations," 1891; "Walton's Angler," Tercentary edition, 1893; "Hints on the Management of Hawks," 2nd edit., 1898. In 1868 he married Elizabeth, daughter of James M. Lynch, of co. Kildare and co. Dublin. Address: Linnean Society, Burlington House, W.

HARTMANN, Alfred, a Swiss author, was born Jan. 1, 1814, in the castle of Thunstetten, near Langenthal, in the canton of Berne, and attended from 1827 to 1831 the schools of Solothurn. After the latter date he studied law in the universities of Munich, Heidelberg, and Berlin. During a prolonged visit to Paris, however, he lost all taste for jurisprudence, and devoted himself to literary pursuits. On returning to his native country he permanently fixed his residence at Solothurn, where he formed a close friendship with the well-known painter Disteli, and where (from 1845) he published a comic periodical called Postheiri. But Hartmann became best known through his Helvetic romance, "Meister Putsch und seine Gesellen," 1858; and, in the department of biography, by his sketch of his friend "Martin Disteli," 1861; "H. J. von Staal," 1861; "Galerie berühmter Schweizer," 2 vols., 1863-71; and "Hory, Kanzler-Denkwürdigkeiten," 1876. Among his other works may be mentioned "Kiltabendsgeschichten, 1853-55; "Erzählungen aus der Schweiz," 1863; "Junker und Bürger," 1865; "Schweizer-novellen," 1877; "Neue Schweizernovellen," and "Fortunat," 1879.

HARTMANN, Karl Robert Eduard von, philosopher, was born in Berlin, on Feb. 23, 1842. He entered the Prussian army in 1858; but lameness obliged him to leave the service in 1865, and he took to literature as a profession. His first work, "Philosophie des Unbewussten" (The Philosophy of the Unconscious) at once raised him to fame. It was published in 1869, and in thirteen years passed through nine editions. An English translation, in three volumes, is published in Trübner's English and Foreign Philosophical Library. This has been followed by "Phänomenologie des sittlichen Bewusstseins," 1878; "Zur Geschichte und Begründung des Pessimismus," 1880 (2nd edit., 1892); "Das religiöse Bewusstsein der Menschheit im Stufengange seiner Entwicklung," 1881; "Philosophie des Schönen," 1887; "Des Grund-problems der Erkenntnistheorie," 1889; "Die Geisterhypothese des Spiritismus," 1891; besides numerous less important works. In 1893 he published a criticism of Kant. He is a pessimist as regards the inevitable of existence, but an optimist in so far as he believes in evolutionary progress.

HASTINGS, Thomas Samuel was born at Utica, N. Y., Aug. 28, 1822. He graduated at Hamilton College, ton, N. Y., in 1848, and at the Theological Seminary, N. Y. City, in 1852. He was pastor of Presbyterian churches in Mendham, N. J., in 1852-56, and in New York City in 1856-82. He then became Professor of Sacred Rhetoric in the Theological Seminary, of which in 1887 he was made the President, succeeding the late Dr. R. D. Hitchcock, who died in 1887. The degree of D. D. was conferred upon him by the University of the City of New York in 1865, and that of the College of New Jersey, in conjunction with his father, by the "Church Melodies," published in 1887. He retired from the Presidency of the Theological Seminary in 1897.

HATTON, G. R., editor of the Daily Mercury, is the brother of Joseph Hatton, and was born at Chesterfield on Jan. 1, 1850. He adopted journalism as a profession, and was successively in the offices of Lincolnshire Chronicle, the Dorset Chronicle, and various other provincial newspapers, and at the age of twenty became connected with the Westminster Telegraph. He remained on this staff for a year, when he became editor of the Daily Mercury. He probably has the record as the youngest editor of a newspaper. After a year he left this paper to become chief leader-writer of the Sheffield Independent, his colleagues sending him with a diamond ring on his departure from Plymouth. In 1881 Hatton became connected with the Star, Sun, and Morning Leader, columns of which he has written many biographies. He is indeed best known as a biographer. The paper of which he was started by him as long ago as 1869 under the slightly different title of Biograph. It is a magazine devoted to biography, and was one of the earliest to appear of its kind. The number contained some important information obtained from Mr. Hatton respecting his political career, which once brought the magazine in notice. Shortly afterwards Mr. Hatton bought Colburn's New Monthly Magazine. Mr. Hatton has written many poems, of which some have been set to music by such composers as Lo and Sir Frederic Gore-Ouseley, as well as a series of papers on "The Life of Eliot in Derbyshire," published in 1891 by Ward, Lock, & Co.

d Smithers, 4 & 5 Royal Arcade, Street, W.

HATTON, Joseph, born at Andover, 1819, is the eldest son of the late Augustus Hatton, founder of the Times, one of the first penny papers, for which his son began to work in early age. He first came to London in 1868 to edit and reconstruct Fun's Magazine, which he continued some years with a staff that included Tom Taylor, Shirley Brooks, and others. He has written on, "The Druid," "Luke Limam Jordan, Blanchard Jerrold, well-known writers. For many years he was the special correspondent in the New York Times. He has held various positions for the Sydney Herald, New South Wales, and Zeitung in Berlin; and has intensions with more than one great newspaper. His "Cigarette Smoking After-Dinner Smoking," a selection of high-class journals published abroad. He has written for many magazines, has contributed articles to the Illustrated London News has been professionally associated with the Standard and the Graphic. His "Journalistic London" shows an intimate knowledge of London and its methods. He has frequently visited the Atlantic; once on a mission to the Standard, during which time he was in the Irish question and described the situation in one of the longest articles ever despatched by cable, the one of President Garfield. He has been associated with the Rev. M. Harvey in the "History of Newfoundland," in which he is well known in the Eastern Hemisphere as author of "The New Ceylon," a volume on North Borneo; and at the time, through the death of a man in those regions, he has given the world the story and work of which is perpetuated in Borneo the story of a mountain near the death, Mount Hatton. Mr. Hatton is even better known as a distinguished miscellaneous writer than as a novelist though he has edited several papers in London and the country. His literary works in fiction are "Clytie," "The Don," "Three Recruits," "The Girl at Sandwich," "The Queen of the Valley of Poppies," "By the Czar," "The Princess Mazarin," "The Great Seal," "The Girl of Jenop Blythe," "The Dag of Cross," and "The Vicar," which had already been translated into German, has appeared in Sweden the success of "By Order" in that language. This latter work was prohibited by the Russian censor from circulation in Russia on account of its tragic exposition of the rising against the Jews in Southern Russia. Among his miscellaneous works are "Irving's Impressions of America," "Toole's Reminiscences," "To-day in America," "Captured by Cannibals," "Old Lamps and New," "Cigarette Papers," "In Jest and Earnest," "The Gay World," "The Abbey Murder," and "John Needham's Double." A dramatic version of the latter story, with Mr. E. S. Willard in the dual rôle of John Needham and Joseph Norbury, has been played in America, as also a version of "The Scarlet Letter," under the direction of Mr. Richard Mansfield. Mr. Hatton is also the author of two other plays, the first, "The Prince and the Pauper," written for his youngest daughter, Miss Bessie Hatton, who has made a great artistic success in the dual rôle; and the second, the newest version of "Jack Sheppard," commissioned by Mr. Weedon Grossmith, whose professional reputation has been greatly enhanced by his impersonation of Mr. Hatton's realistic young scamp, a courageous and successful protest against the exaggerated heroism hitherto associated with the Jack Sheppard of fiction. Distinction was given to a "record" first night at the Pavilion Theatre by the presence of Sir Henry Irving, when the play was received with the greatest enthusiasm. Address: 49 Grove End Road, N.W.

HATZFELDT-WILDENBURG, Count von, German Ambassador at the Court of St. James's, was born in 1831, and specially educated for diplomacy. In 1862 he was secretary to Prince Bismarck when Ambassador in Paris, and was always one of his favourites since. In 1874 he became Ambassador at Madrid, then at Constantinople, being recalled in 1883 to Berlin to act as Minister of Foreign Affairs. In 1888 he was appointed to his present post in succession to Count Münster. He married the daughter of Mr. Charles Moulton, of New York, was divorced from her in 1886, and re-married in 1888, in order that their daughter might marry Prince Maximilian of Hohenlohe. Address: 9 Carlton House Terrace, S.W.

HAUPTMANN, Gerhardt, German poet and dramatist, was born at Salzbrunn in Silesia, Nov. 15, 1862, where his father kept a railway inn. He made an early reputation among German authors by his mingled Wertherism and pessimism, interweaving the national traditions with those of the newer Scandinavian school. He acquired great notoriety in France by the efforts of a small society, called "L'Œuvre," directed by M. Lugné-Poë, whose aims were to popularise the Scandinavian drama, especially Ibsen and Strindberg. His first work, "Les Tisserands," did not attract much attention; but when "Le Théâtre de l'Œuvre" attempted to produce "Les Âmes Solitaires," translated by M. Alexandre Cohen, in December 1893, it was forbidden by the censor on account of its anarchist tendencies. In January 1894 a question in the House by M. Vigné d'Octon gave this play more advertisement than any representation could have given it. A few days later was given his dream-poem of "Hannele Mattern," translated by M. Jean Thorel. One of his last works is another pessimist dream-poem, "Die Versunkene Glocke," which was translated in the Contemporary Review in March 1898. In the same year he published "Fuhrman Henschel," a play in Silesian dialect, which has been evidently inspired by his surroundings in boyhood. His religious drama "Christus" was recently (1898) to be produced in Berlin. His very remarkable dramas still await a hearing in London.

HAUSSONVILLE, Comte d', Gabriel Paul Othenin de Cléron, French writer, was born at Gury-le-Châtel on Sept. 21, 1843, and is the son of Comte Joseph d'Haussonville, a French Academician. He studied law in Paris, and completed his political and economic studies by travels in Europe and America. Directly after the war of 1870 he became a candidate for the National Assembly, and was elected member for his native department of the Seine et Marne. He sat with the Right Centre, and, although calling himself a republican, always voted with the monarchists. He failed to be re-elected in 1876 and 1877, and did not again present himself. In 1891, when M. Bocher retired from his unofficial position of representative of the House of Orleans in France, the Comte d'Haussonville was chosen by the Comte de Paris as his successor. He went on a campaign throughout the provinces, and endeavoured by his speeches to infuse life into the despairing remnant of supporters of the monarchy. In 1888 he was elected the successor of M. Caro in the French Academy. His chief works are: "Sainte-Beuve, sa Vie et ses Œuvres," 1875; "Les Établissements pénitentiaires en France," 1875, a work crowned by the Academy; "Études Biographiques et Littéraires," 1879; "Le Salon de Madame Necker," 1882; "À travers les États Unis: Souvenirs de Voyage," 1883; and "Madame de La Fayette," 1891, in the Great Writers series. He is the mouthpiece by which his chief, the Duc d'Orléans, addresses the French people.

HAVELOCK, Sir Arthur E. G.C.M.C., G.C.I.E., Governor of India, was born in 1844, and is the third son of the late Lieut.-Colonel W. Havelock. He entered the army in 1862 (as a lieutenant), and retired with the rank of Major in 1877. He was Secretary to the Government of Mauritius, 1873-74; Chief Commissioner of the Seychelles, 1874-75; 1879-80; Colonial Secretary and General of Fiji, 1875-76; Pres. of Nevis, 1877-78; Administrator of Lucia, 1878-79; Governor of the Western Settlements in 1881, in which year he was sent on a mission to Paris to negotiate the settlement of certain questions at issue between Great Britain and France with regard to territory in West Africa. In the same year he was appointed Majesty's Consul for Liberia, and negotiated a boundary treaty between Liberia and Sierra Leone. In December 1881 he was appointed Governor of Trinidad, but he resigned for that of Natal in 1890. He was Governor of Ceylon in 1895 he was promoted to his present post. He married in 1871 Anne, daughter of the late Sir W. Norris, Bart., Government House, Madras.

HAWEIS, The Rev. Reginald, M.A., was born at Surrey, April 3, 1838, being the third son of the Rev. J. O. W. Haweis, M.A., of Slaughtam, Sussex, and a Prebendary of Chichester Cathedral. His mother was Mary Davis Haweis. He received his education at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. (B.A. 1859; M.A. 1864). He was appointed curate of St. Peter's Church, Green; next, in 1863, curate of the church of the Less, Westminster; then, in 1864, Stepney; and, in 1866, incumbent of St. James's, Marylebone. He was at the time the youngest incumbent of a church, and the prospect before him, as a churchman, was far from cheering, for the congregation was insignificant, and the church itself greatly in need of re-education. Owing to Mr. Haweis's labours, both as a preacher and as a manager of business, that his church of the most crowded in London, and of great interest in the Italian under Garibaldi, and was present at the siege of Capua, where he narrowly escaped. He afterwards wrote, at his request, a memoir of Garibaldi; and a memoir of Garibaldi; frequently wrote, at his request, a memoir of his life for Cassell's. He has done much important work as a journalist; was one of the earliest writers on the Echo, has contributed at different times to the Quarterly Review, Pall Mall Gazette, &c.

or a year he acted as editor Magazine. Mr. Haweis has staid himself in the question open-air spaces for the people, and much to do with the plant-lisused London churchyards spaces; he has, besides, been ocate of the opening of mu-alleries on Sundays. When he displayed a wonderful violin playing, and was a great violinist Oury, himself f Paganini. He has lectured f Institution on violins and

He is the author of "Music "Thoughts for the Times," Season," "Current Coin," the Air," "Pet, or Pastimes s," a book for children ; shes," a cremation prelude ; humorists," a series of lectures re Royal Institution; "Home-mn ; "Unsectarian Family "Christ and Christianity," The Broad Church; or What and "The Dead Pulpit," ne 1893 he published his Morell Mackenzie." During Exposition he visited the f Religions, and lectured at in the U.S.A. on "Music and 1894 he passed two months c coast, drawing enormous : at Trinity Church, Fran-hen passed through British d Canada, and visited the d Fiji Islands. He accepted gagement from R. S. Smythe, , and passed through Austra-nd, and Tasmania, preaching nial Cathedrals to crowded . In 1896 Mr. Haweis re-e of his American and Aus-es to London audiences at Hall, by request. In 1897 was called to Rome for the o re-deliver his lectures on Garibaldi. He married, on ent to St. James's, Maryle-., daughter of the late T. M. -known painter. This lady, ll-known authoress, died in ss : 31 Devonshire Street, W.

2, John A., United States is a native of New York, and the Naval Academy in 1858 ; Mediterranean Sea for two ade Lieutenant in 1861, and orth Atlantic Squadron and Gulf of Mexico, where he par-e naval action in Mobile, Aug. was made Lieutenant-Com-h 3, 1865 ; was in command , in 1866-67 ; was Instructor Academy 1868 to 1879, except a period of three years 1872 to 1875, when he was connected with the Coast Survey ; was made a Commander in 1872, and Cap-tain in 1884. In 1881 to 1884 he was at the Washington Navy Yard, and for four years following a member of the Naval Advisory Board. In May 1895 he became Commodore, and in June 1896 he took charge of the European station, returning home in 1898 on the outbreak of the war with Spain. He is the inventor of a marine auto-mobile torpedo which is favourably regarded by experts.

HAWKINS, Anthony Hope, M.A., the second son of the Rev. E. C. Hawkins, vicar of St. Bride's, Fleet Street, was born at Clapton on Feb. 9, 1863, and was edu-cated at Marlborough, and Balliol College, Oxford, of which he was elected a scholar. After taking first-class honours in both Classical Moderations and in the Final School of Lit. Hum., he was called to the Bar at the Middle Temple in 1887, and practised on the London and Midland Circuit until 1894, when he ceased to pursue the legal profession. In 1892 he un-successfully contested South Bucks in the Liberal interest. His career as a novelist has, up to the present, been a brilliant one, and of his published works there may be mentioned : "A Man of Mark," 1890 ; "Father Stafford," 1891 ; "Mr. Witt's Widow," 1892 ; "Half a Hero," 1893 : "The Prisoner of Zenda," 1894 ; "The Dolly Dialogues," and "The God in the Car," 1894 ; "The Chronicles of Count Antonio," 1895 ; "The Heart of Princess Osra," 1896 ; "Phroso," 1897 ; "Simon Dale," 1898. His novel, "The Prisoner of Zenda," was adapted for the stage in 1896, and had a most successful run at the St. James's Theatre under the management of Mr. George Alexander. The scene of this novel is laid in "Ruritania," an amalgam of the small Independent States of Southern Germany before 1870 and of the Danubian Principalities, which as a romantic inven-tion may be paralleled with Mr. Thomas Hardy's "Wessex." He was elected a member of the Athenæum under Rule 2 in February 1899. Address : 16 Bucking-ham Street, Strand, W.C. ; and Athenæum.

HAWKINS, Frederick, son of the late William Hamilton Hawkins, of the Times, was born in 1849, and from an early age has been connected with literature and journalism. His first work was a biography in two volumes of Edmund Kean, brought out in 1869. He assisted in establishing the Theatre, one of the few periodicals exclusively devoted to the literature and art of the stage. Begun in 1877 as a weekly newspaper, it appeared in the following year as a monthly review and magazine, and at the end of 1879 was sold by its original proprietors to Mr. Clement Scott. Mr. Hawkins had edited it from the outset. His "Annals of the French Stage from its Origin to the Death of Racine," came out towards the close of 1884. In 1888 Mr. Hawkins produced a continuation of the history to the Revolution period, under the title of "The French Stage in the Eighteenth Century." Mr. Hawkins acted as dramatic critic for the Times during the last illness of Mr. Oxford, and has for some time been a member of the editorial staff of that journal.

HAWKINS, The Hon. Sir Henry (Baron Brampton), late Judge of the High Court of Justice (Queen's Bench Division), son of John Hawkins, Esq., of Hitchin, Herts, by Susanah, daughter of Theed Pearse, Esq., of Bedford, was born at Hitchin, Sept. 14, 1817, and educated at Bedford School. Adopting the law as his profession, he entered the Middle Temple, and was a very diligent special pleader before his call to the Bar in 1843. After a year or two he rapidly acquired a very large practice as a junior. He attached himself to the Old Home Circuit, and after he obtained his silk gown in 1858, he was for many years one of its leaders. He also became a Bencher of the Middle Temple. As a junior, Mr. Hawkins was one of the counsel (with Serjeant Byles) for Sir John Dean Paul in 1855; and (with Mr. Edwin James) for Simon Bernard, who was tried as accessory to the conspiracy against the life of the Emperor Napoleon, in 1858. After he became a Queen's Counsel he was engaged in nearly every important case that came before the Superior Courts. He was associated with the late Lord Chief-Justice Bovill in the great Roupell cases against the claims advanced upon the evidence of Mr. Roupell. In the famous convent case, "Saurin v. Star," tried in 1869, Mr. Hawkins led for the defence; and he was leading counsel for Mr. W. H. Smith, whose seat for Westminster he successfully defended before Mr. Baron Martin. He was associated with the present Lord Coleridge in the first Tichborne trial, when he particularly distinguished himself by his exhaustive cross-examination of Mr. Baigent. In the prosecution of the Claimant for perjury, Mr. Hawkins led for the Crown, and the skill he displayed in this trial—one of the most protracted and the most remarkable in the annals of jurisprudence—greatly increased his reputation as an advocate. In the Probate Court Mr. Hawkins led the case in support of the will of the late Lord St. Leonards, which he established both before the Judge Ordinary and the Appeal. The Gladstone and T. cases were among his victories before the Divorce Court. Mr. Hawkins was in numerous election petitions; engaged for many years in every compensation case; acted for the Government in the purchase of lands for the Defences, for the Royal Commission for the purchase of the site for the new Courts, for the City of London, and the Metropolitan Board of Works in the purchase of property required for the Viaduct, the Thames Embankment, and various new streets; and was a counsel for, and held the general office of, the Jockey Club, of which he was a member. He was appointed a Judge of the High Court of Justice (Queen's Bench Division), Nov. 3, 1876, and transferred to the Exchequer Division, where he held the honour of knighthood. He took his seat on the Bench in December, after having been a Judge for twenty-two years. Early in 1880 he was raised to the peerage as Baron Brampton, in the county of Essex. By his express desire no public notice was made to his retirement at the Criminal Court, where during twenty years he has presided over the most important and celebrated cases of distinguished ability. His keen and famous sense of humour and his diminution to the moment of his retirement, and his last summing-up, a protracted case, was delivered with and with his accustomed masterly and detail. The elevation to the office of a puisne judge at the time of his retirement has only been twice during the Queen's reign, viz., of Baron Parke (Lord Wensleydale) and Lord Field. On being made a Lord of Appeal, and to take the labours of the Judicial Committee, he married Miss Jane Louisa Reynolds, the late Henry Francis Reynolds, of Hulme, Lancashire. Address: 10, Grosvenor Street, Park Lane, W.; and at

HAWLEY, Hon. Joseph, an American journalist and statesman, born at Stewartsville, N. J., Oct. 31, 1826. A.B. (Hamilton College), 1847. His parents were originally from Connecticut, and when he was a few years of age they returned to New York, where he studied law and became a lawyer in Hartford (1850), but returned to New York in 1857 for journalism, and associated himself with the Evening Post, an established Republican paper. The Civil War broke out, and he was a citizen of his State to voluntand Lieutenant and afterwards Captain Conn. Infantry, rising before the war to the rank of Brigadier-General and brevet Major-General. He was elected Governor of Connecticut. He served one term, to 1867, and resumed journalism. He was a Vice-Elector and President of the San Francisco National Convention at Chicago, 1868; and has been a Delegate to the National Convention held in 1872, 1876, and 1880; a Member of Congress in 1873-77 and 1881; President of the Centennial Exposition in 1876; and since 1881 has been a U. S. Senator from Connecticut, his term expiring in 1899. He is the chief editor of the Hartford Courant, which the Press was consolidated in

HAWTHORNE, Julian, son of the novelist, Nathaniel Hawthorne, at Boston, Massachusetts, June 27, 1839. He was prepared for college at Andover, Massachusetts, and entered Harvard University in 1857, where he remained until 1861, but he took no degree. He then joined the Scientific School to study civil engineering, but left it to go to Germany, in October 1868. He spent two years at the Technische Hochschule in Dresden, still studying engineering. In the summer of 1870 he returned to the United States, intending to resume his studies at Dresden in the autumn; but the Franco-German war interfered with his plans, and he joined the staff of hydrographic engineers in the New York Dock Department under Gen. McClellan, to which he remained attached until the summer of 1872. During 1871 he contributed a number of short stories and pieces to various American magazines, and they met with so much success that he determined to give up engineering for literature. He returned to Europe in 1872, and after a short stay in England, proceeded to Dresden, where he remained two years, during which he published in England and America at least two novels, "Bressant," 1873, and "Almásy," 1874. In September 1874 he returned to Dresden and settled at Twickenham, Surrey, in 1875, he published in the Contemporary Review, and afterwards in book form in England and America, "Saxon Tales." His novel of "Garth" was published in 1877. From 1875 until October 1877 he remained in or near London, writing and publishing "The Laughing Mill," a collection of short stories previously contributed to English magazines; "Archimedes," a novelette; "Ellice," another collection of short stories; "Prince Saroni's Wife," also a collection of tales; and "Yellow-Cap," a collection of stories, none of which have appeared in America. His novel, "Sebastian Strome," was published both in England and in America in 1880; and two other novels appeared afterwards serially, "Fortune's Fool" and "Dust." In 1882 Mr. Hawthorne went to the United States, and is now residing at Sag Harbor, L.I. While in England he wrote considerably for the periodicals, and for two years was connected with the staff of the Spectator. Since 1882 have appeared "Nathaniel Hawthorne and his Wife, a Biography," and several novels and short stories. He was literary editor of the New York World in 1885. In the summer of 1889 he visited Europe in connection with a delegation of fifty American working-men, sent to examine the condition in Europe of the industries which they represented at home.

HAWTREY, Charles Henry, is the fourth son of the Rev. T. W. Hawtreys, of Slough, and grandson of the late Provost of Eton, and was born at Eton in 1858, where his father was an assistant-master. He was educated at Eton and Pembroke College, Oxford. On leaving the University, he adopted the dramatic profession, and at the age of twenty-three appeared in "The Colonel," and some years afterwards adapted from the German the comedy or farce which, under its title of "The Private Secretary," has been one of the great successes of the English stage, having been performed no fewer than 844 consecutive times. "Jane," another very successful piece, is among other plays from his pen. Mr. Hawtreys is lessee of the Comedy and Avenue Theatres. Address: 114 Victoria Street, S.W.

HAY, George, R.S.A., was born in Leith Walk, Edinburgh, and educated at the High Schools of Leith and Edinburgh. He was elected an Associate of the Royal Scottish Academy in 1869; an Academician in 1876; and was unanimously elected to the Secretaryship of the Academy, Nov. 9, 1881, in the place of the late William Brodie, R.S.A. At an early age he showed indications of his future skill as an artist. He studied modelling in the School of Art, and drawing and painting from the antique in the Board of Trustees' Gallery of Casts. At the age of seventeen he was induced to enter the architectural profession; but after some years he abandoned it for the more congenial one of the artist. Among his pictures are: "A Barber's Shop in the Time of Elizabeth," 1863; "A Street Incident in the Sixteenth Century," 1864; "The Jacobite in Hiding," 1865; "Shopping in the Sixteenth Century," 1867; "Devotional Art," 1867; "Richie Monipplies in Fleet Street," 1868; "Tea-tattle," 1871; "A Visit to the Spaewife," 1872; "Caleb Balderstone's Ruse," 1874, engraved; "The Haunted Room," 1875; "The Warrant," 1875; "In Days of Yore," 1877; "The Spinners," 1879; "Secret Aid in '45," 1881; "Morning Practice," 1882; "Prodigious!" 1883; "Here's to the King, sirs, ye ken wha I mean, sirs," 1884; "Escaped," 1884; "A Summer Stroll," 1886; "When Friends meet, Hearts warm," 1888; "Waiting at the Well," 1890; "Roland Græme exchanging the Keys: Lochleven Castle," 1895; "Allan Fairford and Father Buonaventure at Fairladies," 1896; and "The Presence Chamber," 1897. Address: 7 Ravelston Terrace, Edinburgh.

HAY, Sir James Shaw, K.C.M.G., Governor of Barbadoes, was born in 1838, and married (3) the grand-daughter of Lord Cockburn in 1894. After having served in the 89th Regiment he became Administrator of the Gambia in 1886, and Governor of Sierra Leone in 1888, while in 1892 he was appointed to his present post. In 1889 he was created a K.C.M.G. Club: Constitutional.

HAY, Hon. Colonel John, late American Ambassador to Great Britain, journalist and author, third son of Charles Hay and Helen Leonard, was born at Salem, Indiana, Oct. 8, 1838, and graduated at Brown University, 1858. He was admitted to the Bar in Springfield, Illinois, in 1861, but almost immediately went to Washington as Assistant Secretary to President Lincoln, and subsequently was his Adjutant and Aide-de-Camp. During the Civil War he served for a time under Generals Hunter and Gillmore, attaining the rank of Colonel and Assistant Adjutant-General. From 1865 to 1867 he was Secretary of Legation in Paris, and from that time to 1868 was Chargé d'Affaires at Vienna. He was appointed Secretary of Legation in Madrid in 1869, where he remained until 1870, when he returned to the United States, and became one of the editors of the New York Tribune. This position he resigned in 1876, upon his removal to Cleveland, Ohio; but he has continued occasionally to contribute to its columns to the present time. During the absence of the editor, Mr. Whitelaw Reid, in Europe, from April to November 1881, Colonel Hay returned to New York to take entire editorial charge of the Tribune. While on the Tribune he obtained considerable celebrity by his dialect poems of "Jim Bludsoe," "Little Breeches," &c.; which were afterwards published in book form under the title of "Pike County Ballads," 1871. In the same year he also issued "Castilian Days," a series of sketches of Spanish life and character. From 1872 he was Assistant-Secretary of State, represented the United States at the International Sanitary Congress at Washington in 1881, and was a member of that body. He was subsequently engaged (in collaboration with Nicolay) in writing a Life of Lincoln, which was published in the Century, from 1886 to 1890, printed in 1890, with extensive notes in 10 vols. 8vo, by the Century the same year he published his "Poems." He took an active part in a campaign of 1896 which resulted in the election of President McKinley, and was appointed in March 1897 American Ambassador to England. He retired from the Ambassadorship, after representing his country with conspicuous popularity, in September 1899, and was subsequently appointed United States Secretary of State. Col. Hay married in 1874, Miss Clara Stone, eldest daughter of Amasa Stone, Esq., of Cleveland, an eminent railway constructor and philanthropist. His winter residence is in Washington, D.C., and his summer home is at Fells, Newbury, N.H. London address: Carlton House Terrace, W.

HAY, The Right Hon. Sir Charles Dalrymple, Bart., D.C.L., F.R.S., D.L., Admiral, Vice-President of the Institution of Naval Architects, eldest son of the late Sir Charles Dalrymple Hay, Bart., of Park Wigtownshire, by his first wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Lieut.-Gen. Sir John Maxwell of Springkell, Dumfriesshire, born Feb. 11, 1821, and educated at Rugby. Entering the navy in 1837, he served in 1835 and 1836 on the Good Hope station, where he was associated with the seamen and marines in the defence of Fort Elizabeth in the Kaffir war, and was present at the capture of five slavers in the river Benue, West Coast of Africa. He then served on the Channel Squadron on the North coast of Spain, on the South American Station, Pacific station; and in 1840-41 on operations on the Syrian coast. He was at the capture of Beyrout and was specially gazetted for gallantry in the boat attack on Tortosa. He served in the East Indies and was flag-lieutenant with Admiral Thomas Cochrane in the operations in Borneo in 1845-46. He commanded the Wolverine and Columbine in China, a senior officer in the operations against the pirate fleet of Chinapoo, which was destroyed with the squadron under his orders in Bias Bay, on Sept. 26, 1849; and with the same squadleet of Shap'ng'tzai in the on Oct. 20 and 21, 1849. e thanks of the Admiralty ion for these services; and edged by the merchants in ks and a service of plate. d H.M.S. Hannibal in the iterranean Seas during the 1854-56, and took part in Kertch and Kinburn, and dment and fall of Sebas- manded the Indus in North he West Indies from 1857 s one of the Greenwich nission in 1860-61; and the Iron Plate Committee 1864. He succeeded his Baronet, March 19, 1861; 1862 for Wakefield in the terest; lost his seat at the on in July 1865; was de- erton the same year, and r 1866 for Stamford, which e represented till the general il 1880, when he was an un- didate; but in July of that returned for the Wigtown e represented till 1885. a Rear-admiral, and was retired list of that rank

He was a Lord of the n June 1866 to Dec. 1868, three war medals and the th class. He is the author : List and its Prospects"; efences"; "The Reward of g suggestions in reference n Colonies, 1862; a "Memo- compulsory retirement from avy," 1870; "Remarks on e Captain," 1871; "Ashanti Coast, and what we know h," 1874; "Suppression of e China Sea," 1889; and my Logbooks," 1898. Sir , in 1847, the Hon. Eliza daughter of William John, pier. Addresses: 108 St. re, S.W.; and Craigenveoch,

J, The Rev. Henry, M.A., Aldingham, Lancashire, and f Carlisle, was born in Lon- 1823, and entered Merchant ol in 1832, whence, after hief prizes in Greek verse se, he proceeded as scholar ollege, Oxford, in 1841. He low of his College in 1844, ollowing year was placed in ss both in classics and in

He then came to London, ssively curate at St. Luke's, d at St. James's, Piccadilly, Bishop of London, Dr. Jackson, was rector, and in 1853-55 one of the Assistant-Masters at the Charterhouse. In 1854 he was appointed Assistant Preacher at the Temple Church, and in the follow- ing year head-master of St. Olave's Gram- mar School, Southwark. Subsequently he became head-master of Cheltenham Gram- mar School, and in 1868 of St. Andrew's College, Bradfield. When Dr. Temple was promoted to the See of Exeter, Dr. Hayman was elected his successor as head-master of Rugby School, Nov. 20, 1869, a post which he retained until 1874, when Mr. Disraeli appointed Dr. Hayman to the Crown Rectory of Aldingham, Lan- cashire, where he has since resided. Dr. Hayman's published works consist of oc- casional essays contributed to the Satur- day Review; also to the Christian Remem- brancer, and more lately to the Church Quarterly, Edinburgh, Dublin, National, Fortnightly, British Quarterly, Contem- porary, and other Reviews, the Cornhill, St. James's, Temple Bar, and Clergyman's magazines, the Churchman, Antiquary, Bibliotheca Sacra (U. S. of America), and other serials; also of a volume of selec- tions from the above, entitled "Why We Suffer and other Essays," 1889. He is a member of the Cambridge Philological Society, and has contributed several papers to its Journal and Transactions. He is the author of "Exercises in Greek and Latin Verse Composition"; numerous articles in the "Dictionary of the Bible" edited by Sir W. Smith, and has since published in three volumes an edition of Homer's Odyssey; and "Rugby School Sermons," with an introductory Essay "On the In- dwelling of the Holy Spirit," 1875; also in poetry, "The Lay of the Seven Oars," and "A Fragment of the Iason Legend." In 1884 he became Hon. Canon of Carlisle, and in 1885 was one of the first elected Proctors for the new Archdeaconry of Furness, a post which he has since re- signed. He is well known as a Lecturer on Church Defence, against Infidelity, and on a Mosaic Pentateuch, in most of the dioceses of the Northern Province. He married in 1855, Matilda Julia, daughter of George Westby, of Whitehall and Mow- breck Lane. Address: Rectory, Alding- ham, Ulverston, Lancs.

HAYNE, The Right Hon. Charles Seale. See SEALE-HAYNE, THE RIGHT HON. CHARLES.

HAYTER, The Right Hon. Sir Arthur Divett, Bart., M.A., J.P., is the only son of the late Right Hon. Sir William Goodenough Hayter, Q.C., and Anne, daughter of William Pulsford, Linslade Manor, Bucks, and was born on Aug. 19, 1835. He was educated at Eton, and at

," an exposure of Orange methods, "A Word for Ireland," being a history of the Irish Question. In November 1886 he was elected for North Monaghan so for South Derry, and sat for the first time after the rejection of the Home Rule Bill. He was defeated in South Derry in 1886, but in February 1887 was elected for North Longford. In 1895 he was elected for Louth, N. He was the "accused persons" charged before the Special Commission, 1888-90. In September 1890 he took a leading part with Mr. Parnell, and was one of the founders of the Dublin National Press (the organ of the Irish Party), which was amalgamated with the Freeman's Journal on that paper adopting the policy of a majority of Irish members in March 1892. He is one of the leaders of the nationalist Irish party. He married in 1887, Erin Kate, daughter of T. D. Sullivan, M.P. Address: 1 Mountjoy Square, Dublin.

HEARD, The Rev. William Augustus, M.A., Head-master of Fettes College, Edinburgh, born in 1847, and is the second son of John Heard, of Manchester. He was educated at Trinity College, Oxford, of which he was a scholar from 1866 to 1871. Took a first class in Moderations, and a second class in Lit. Hum. in 1870, and graduated B.A. in 1871; M.A. in 1873. Took orders in 1885, and was ordained in 1886. From 1885 to 1889 he was assistant-master at Westminster School, and in 1890 was appointed to the headship of Fettes College, the Scottish School for English lads. Address: Fettes College, Edinburgh.

HEATH, Christopher, F.R.C.S., Past President of the Royal College of Surgeons in England, was born in London on March 13, 1835, and educated at King's College, London. He was appointed Assistant-Professor and Lecturer on Anatomy at the Westminster Hospital in 1862; Assistant-Professor and Teacher of Operative Surgery at University College Hospital in 1866; a Professor of Clinical Surgery, and then on to University College Hospital in 1875; Fellow of King's College and Consulting Surgeon to the Dental Hospital; Member of Council of the Royal College of Surgeons in 1881, and of the Court of Governors in 1883. He was Examiner in Anatomy at the Royal College of Surgeons in 1875-80; and Examiner for Surgical Sciences at the Universities of Cambridge, Oxford, and London, and at the Royal College of Physicians, and President of the Medical Society of London, 1889-91; twice President of the Royal College of Surgeons, 1895-96. He was given

Hon. LL.D. Montreal, 1897. He is the author of "A Course of Operative Surgery," illustrated, 2nd edit., 1884; "Manual of Minor Surgery," 11th edit., 1897; "Practical Anatomy," 8th edit., 1893; "Injuries and Diseases of the Jaws" (Jacksonian Prize Essay), 4th edit., 1894; "Students' Guide to Surgical Diagnosis," 2nd edit., 1883; editor of "A Dictionary of Practical Surgery," by various British Hospital Surgeons, 1886, and various contributions to the Transactions of learned societies. Address: 36 Cavendish Square, W.

HEATH, Francis George, was born at Totnes, Devonshire, on Jan. 15, 1843, and was educated at Taunton. In 1862 he entered the Civil Service as a Higher Division clerk in the Customs Department, and he now occupies the position of Surveyor in the outdoor branch of the same service. For many years he has taken an active part in promoting, and supporting movements for the preservation and extension of open spaces, chiefly in and around the metropolis. In 1872 he secured the enlargement of Victoria Park, by the addition to it of 24½ acres at a cost of £24,500. He also laboured assiduously, from 1872 to 1878, in furtherance of the movement which resulted in the preservation of Epping Forest. The unique bit of woodland known as Burnham Beeches was, in 1879, rescued by the Corporation of London upon his suggestion. In 1880 he succeeded in defeating the attempt made jointly by the Corporation and the Great Eastern Railway Company to disfigure Epping Forest by the construction of a Chingford and High Beech Railway. In 1890 he commenced an active movement which resulted in the establishment in this country of the "Letter Express" system. In the same year he was returned at the head of the poll in a contest for a directorship of the Customs Fund. Towards the end of 1892 he commenced a movement to bring about an earlier opening to the public of the Botanical Gardens at Kew, and his efforts resulted last year (1898) in the earlier opening of these gardens. Mr. Heath is the founder of the "Imperial Press," which is designed to promote the unity and prosperity of the British race in all parts of the world, and is also the editor of the "Imperial Library," a collection of volumes following the same object. He is the author of: "The Romance of Peasant Life," 1872; "The English Peasantry," 1874; "The Fern Paradise," 1875; "The Fern World," 1877; "Our Woodland Trees," 1878; "Burnham Beeches," 1879; new edition of Gilpin's "Forest Scenery," 1879; "Peasant Life in the West of England," 1880; "My Garden Wild," 1881; "Where to find ipal from 1883 to 1889. In 1889 he was appointed Principal. He was Classical Moderator 1885, 1886, and 1891. He became of the Hebdomadal Council in 1888. Brasenose College, Oxford.

MR. Annie Alexander, "Mrs.," novelist, was born in Dublin in 1858 she married Mr. Alexander in Bagdad and London. She was in Dublin and in France. Her novels are: "The Wooing O't," "The Best of Enemies," "Which Shall It Be?" "Barbara: Lady's Maid and 'By Woman's Wit,'" and numerous novels. Address: 10 Warrington V.

MR. Sir James, K.C.M.G., was born in 1834. He was educated at Edinburgh University, where he took the M.D. in 1856. From 1857 to 1860 he was as Dr. Hector to the Palliser to the Rocky Mountains. He was appointed to Sir Roderick in 1860 and contributed to the "Geography and Ethnology of New Zealand" a report "On the Settlement of the Central British North America." He has been in New Zealand, and is Director of the Geological Survey and Chancellor of the University of that colony. His contributions to scientific journals both in New Zealand and in Europe are numerous, chiefly with the Geology and Ethnology of the colony. He was K.C.M.G. in 1887, and married the daughter of Sir D. Munro, M.D., in 1888. Address: Wellington, New Zealand.

MR. Sven Anders, Norwegian explorer and architect, was born at Trondheim, Feb. 19, 1865, and is the son of the architect of that city. He studied at the universities of Upsala, Halle; and made a journey to Persia and Mesopotamia in 1889. In 1890 he was a member of the expedition to the Shah from the King of Persia, and then journeyed through Persia and Turkestan. From 1893 to 1895 he journeyed right through Asia from Peking over the Pamir plateau. He published an account of his travels, which appeared in an English translation, "The Pamir Plateau," and is an honorary member of the Royal Societies Club.

MR. Right Rev. John Cuthbert, Roman Catholic Bishop of Morpeth, was born at Morpeth, April 15, 1841, the son of Edward Anthony

Hedley, M.D., and of Mary Ann (née Davidson) his wife. He was educated at Morpeth Grammar School, and St. Lawrence's College, Ampleforth, near York. He entered the congregation of English Benedictines, at the same College, in 1854, was ordained in 1862, and held the Professorship of Divinity at the central Benedictine Home of Studies, St. Michael's Priory, Hereford, from 1862 to 1873. Consecrated on Sept. 29, 1873, Bishop of Cesaropolis, and appointed coadjutor to Bishop Thomas Brown, he succeeded the latter in 1881 as Bishop of Newport. He has published two volumes of sermons, viz., "Our Divine Saviour," and "The Christian Inheritance," and a "Retreat." Address: Bishop's House, Llanishen, Cardiff.

HEFNER - ALTENECK, Jacob Heinrich von, a German writer on art, was born at Aschaffenburg, May 20, 1811; went through a complete course of artistic education, and then devoted himself to the diligent study of the history of art, particularly during the Mediaeval period. In 1853 he became Conservator of the Royal Vereinigten Sammlungen at Munich; Member of the Royal Bavarian Academy of Sciences (1855); Honourable Member of the Royal Bavarian Academy of Arts; and in 1863 he was appointed Conservator of the royal collection of prints and drawings. In 1868 he was nominated Conservator-General of the artistic monuments of Bavaria, and Director of the Bavarian National Museum. Among his publications may be mentioned: "Trachten des Christlichen Mittelalters nach gleichzeitigen Kunstdenkmälern," 1840-54; "Kunstwerke und Geräthschaften des Mittelalters und der Renaissance," 1848-55; "Hans Burgkmaiers Turnierbuch. Nach Maximilian I. Anordnung," 1853; "Die Burg Tannenberg und ihre Ausgrabungen," 1850; "Eisenwerke oder Ornamentik der Schmiedekunst des Mittelalters und der Renaissance," 1861-86; "Serrurerie, ou les Ouvrages en Fer forgé du moyen-âge et de la Renaissance," 1870; "Die Kunstkammer Seiner Königlichen Hoheit des Fürsten Carl Anton von Hohenzollern," 1866-68; "Trachten, Kunstwerke und Geräthschaften," 1879-90; "Werke deutscher Goldschmiedekunst des 16. Jahrhunderts," 1890; "Entwürfe deutscher Meister für Prachtrüstungen der Könige von Frankreich," 1865; "Original-Zeichnungen deutscher Meister des sechzehnten Jahrhunderts," 1889; "Ornamente der Holzsculptur von 1450-1820, aus dem Bayerischen National-Museum," 1881; "Kunstschätze aus dem Bayerischen National-Museum," "Werke Deutscher Goldschmiedekunst des 16ten Jahrh.," 1890, &c.

to contest the West Derby Liverpool at the general election as a supporter of Mr. Gladstone's policy, but was defeated. He was an alternative candidate, Lord Claud Hamilton. Again, at the general election he was selected by the Liberals of the North to contest that of St. Leonards to contest that of St. Leonards, but with Lord Hamilton. On the formation of the Ministry in 1892, Mr. Hemsley was appointed Solicitor-General for the North office he held until the Ministry in 1895, and on his resignation he was sworn in as a member of Her Majesty's Privy Council.

At the general election of 1895 he entered the lists, and was elected to Parliament as member for the North, as a Gladstonian Home Rule. His entry into Parliament was an active part in supporting Home Rule, especially those more connected with Ireland, such as Mr. Parnell, the Local Government Bill, &c. He and the late Sir Frank Bland occupied for some time the position of sitting on the front Bench as actual Solicitors-General and Ireland respectively. The consequence of the delay in their successors in office. Mr. Bland married Augusta, daughter of the late Sir Francis Stanhope, son of the Earl of Harrington. This lady died in 1899. His addresses are: 1, Square, Dublin; and Clifton Hill, co. Dublin.

LEY, William Botting, F.R.S., botanist, was born Dec. 29, 1833, Hoathley, Sussex. His father was a gardener and nurseryman, and he was at the early age of ten years training for the same walk in which he had a taste for botany, he came into the office of Mrs. Eardley Hall, a well-known botanist. William Borrer, a well-known botanist, is day; and through her influence William Hooker he entered the office of the Kew Herbarium in 1860. In 1863 he received his regular appointment in that office, which he was compelled to resign in consequence of his health failing; but after many vicissitudes returned to Kew again in 1874. There he gained a living by his popular articles for horticultural and botanical publications; his first important work being an adaptation of his own treatise on plants suitable for cultivation. But through the assistance of the authorities at Kew, he soon obtained a regular employment, and he has been actively engaged in botanical science. He is the author of numerous contributions to botanical science, including translations and summaries from various languages; but his principal works are the botany of the Challenger Expedition, dealing with Insular Floras, the Botany of Salvin, and Godman's magnificent "Biologia Centralis-Americana"; the Botany of Afghanistan, in conjunction with Dr. Aitchison; and the "Index Floræ Sinensis," which is still in progress. In 1875 Mr. Hemsley was elected an Associate of the Linnean Society of London, and in the same year he was appointed Lindley Librarian to the Royal Horticultural Society. In 1876 he was appointed Lecturer on Botany at St. Mary's Hospital, a post he soon resigned. In 1883 he was appointed Assistant for India in the Kew Herbarium, and in 1890 he was promoted to the post of Principal Assistant and Acting Librarian, a position which he still occupies. His later published work chiefly relates to insular floras, including Lord Howe Island, the Tonga Islands, the Solomon Islands, Christmas Island, and a general review of the literature bearing on the subject. He has also worked out the botanical collections made by most of the recent British and American explorers in Tibet. He was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1889, and of the Linnean Society in 1896, and is at the present time a member of the Council of the latter Society. Address: Herbarium, Kew Gardens.

HEMY, Charles Napier, A.R.A., R.S.W., born at Newcastle-on-Tyne, May 24, 1841, is the eldest son of the late Henri Frederick Hemy, a well-known musician and composer. Educated at Dr. Bruce's Academy, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and Ushaw College, Durham, he developed an early taste for drawing and painting, and as a boy studied at the Newcastle-on-Tyne School of Art. After leaving Ushaw College he went to sea, but speedily abandoned that career. He went to France, intending to become a "religious," but discovered his true vocation to be painting. Ultimately settling in London, he at the age of twenty-four made a reputation by pictures of Clovelly, and began to be known at R.A. and other exhibitions. At twenty-six he went to study at Antwerp Academy of Painting, remaining three years there under Baron Henri Leys. Here he was selected to do some paintings for Antwerp Cathedral, and his drawings made at the Academy were retained as models for the students. Baron Leys dying, Mr. Hemy refused to remain in Antwerp, and abandoned the Cathedral commission. He returned to London, which remained his place of residence until 1881, when he removed to Falmouth and built Churchfield, where he still resides. In Falmouth Harbour he keeps the Van der Meer, a sea-going house-boat and studio, on board of which many of his most important pictures have been painted direct from nature. At twenty-eight he painted his first picture in the manner of Baron Leys, and continued to paint in this style for some time. Gradually abandoning his Antwerp manner, and devoting himself almost entirely to marine subjects, he developed a style of so marked an individuality that it has placed him at the head of a school of painters. The following are his most important pictures: "Evening Grey," 1866 (this early attempt made Baron Leys his friend); "Girl decorating an altar of Our Lady on a Feast day, sixteenth century"; "The Limehouse Barge Builders"; "Shields Harbour"; "Blackwall"; "Saved," 1880; "Vespers, Oporto"; "Grey Venice"; "Homeward"; "Smelt Net"; "Silent Adieu"; "Trammel Net"; "Our Boat"; "Pilchards" (bought for Chantrey Bequest, 1897); "Lost," 1897; and "Wreckage." The following pictures have been reproduced as etchings: "Saved" (photogravure); "Silent Adieu"; "Trammel Net"; "Homeward." He was elected A.R.A. in February 1898, having previously, in June 1897, become R.S.W. Address: Churchfield, Falmouth.

HENDERSON, The Very Rev. William George, D.D., D.C.L., was born in 1819, and is the son of Admiral George Henderson, of Harbridge, Hants. He entered Wadham College, Oxford, in 1836, but was elected a demy of Magdalen in the same year, and retained that post for ten years, when he became Fellow of his College (1846-52). During his College career he gained the following distinctions: The Latin Verse Prize in 1839, The Latin Essay in 1842, the Ellerton Prize in 1843. In 1840 he took a second class in the Final School of Mathematics. He took his B.A. in 1840, M.A. in 1843, became D.C.L. in 1853, and D.D. in 1882. He was Proctor of the University in 1850. From 1852 to 1862 he was Head-master of the Victoria College, Jersey, and from 1862 to 1884 he was Head-master of Leeds Grammar School. In 1884 he became Dean of Carlisle. He married the daughter of J. Dalzell, of Lingo, Fifeshire. Address: The Deanery, Carlisle.

HENEAGE, Admiral Sir Algernon Charles Fieschi, K.C.B., is the son of Charles F. Heneage, Esq., of the 1st Life Guards, and Gentleman Usher of the Privy Chamber, by the Honourable Louise, daughter of the 3rd Lord Graves. He was born in March 1833, entering the navy in 1845. He served in H.M.S. Hastings during the operations in Burmah, and awarded the Burmese medal. In 1857 a Lieutenant of H.M.S. St. Jean and Algernon took part in the Russian the Baltic, and was present at the of Bomarsund. In the following proceeded to the Black Sea, and close of the war he received the Crimean (with Sebastopol clas Turkish medals. In 1861 he was pr Commander, and Captain in 1867 while holding the latter rank w recipient of a Good Service Pension became a Rear-Admiral in 1864 the following year was appointed in-command of the Channel Squadron. Sir Algernon proceeded to the Pacific as Commander-in-Chief on that station in 1887, and in 1892 he hoisted his Vice-Admiral at the Nore. He created a K.C.B. on the Queen's birthday in 1894. The Royal Humane Society conferred upon him their silver medal for saving the life of a boy at Sierra Leone in 1861. Admiral Heneage is married to Louise, daughter of Sir Edmund Alport Bart. Address: 22 South Eaton Place.

HENEAGE, Lord, The Right Edward Henry, eldest son of George Fieschi Heneage, Esq., of an ancient Lincolnshire family, was born London, March 29, 1840, and educated at Eton. He accepted a commission in the 1st Life Guards in 1857, after six years' service, and returned in 1864 to the family estates. He was returned as a Liberal for Lincoln, but unsuccessfully contested Great Lincoln in 1874, but gained the seat in 1885, and was again returned in 1885, 1893. He has always been considered among Liberal members for his interest in agricultural and social questions; and it was probably for this reason that, on the formation of Gladstone's Government in 1868, he was appointed Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, with the Vice-President of the Committee of Agriculture, but he resigned in April 1886, on a disagreement with Mr. Gladstone over the Corn Bill. Lord Heneage is High Sheriff of the Borough of Grimsby, and is also Trade Commissioner of the Humberside servancy. He was created Baron Heneage in 1896. He married, in 1864, Lady Cecilia, daughter of the late Lord Alington. Address: Hainton Hall, Lincoln.

HENLEY, William Ernest, critic, dramatist, and editor, was born at Gloucester on Aug. 23, 1849, and died at the same city. In his early life he suffered much from ill-health, and his book, "In Hospital: Rhymes and

3. was a record of experiences in the Old nary, Edinburgh, from 1873 to 1875. was the opening section of his "Book nses," which attained to a fourth ion in 1893. In 1875 he began writing the London magazines, and in 1877 one of the founders as well as the or of London. In this journal much s early verse appeared. He was after- s appointed editor of the Magazine of and in 1889 of the Scots Observer, sh, under the new title of the National over, he directed until 1894. To these ls, as well as to the Athenæum and Friday Review, he has contributed many cal articles, a selection of which was ished in 1890 under the title of "Views Reviews" (2nd edit., 1892). In colation with the late R. L. Stevenson ublished a volume of plays (1893), -hich "Beau Austin" was previously 3 at the Haymarket Theatre. In appeared his second volume of as, "The Song of the Sword," of h a second edition appeared in 1893. e same date belongs "London Volun- s." These verses mark a new depart- in Mr. Henley's style. Both volumes orporated in the "Poems" of 1898, h set forth the author's verse as he es it to be known. Mr. Henley was one time interested in old French ical forms, and many of his lighter y pieces are in triolet and other metres. ave also from his pen "A Catalogue ench and Dutch Pictures at the Edin- ga Exhibition" (1887). He is editing ries of "Tudor Translations"—North, rio, Underdowne, Holland, and others; he produced a collection of "Verses Englishmen," entitled "Lyra Heroica"; a Mr. Charles Whibley, an anthology of lish prose; and by himself, an antho- of "English Lyrics" (1897). In aboration with Mr. T. F. Henderson he ed "The Centenary Burns" (4 vols., 1-97), with a terminal essay on the , Genius, and Achievement of Burns, which the Academy awarded him one ts prizes in 1898, and is at present igned on an edition (12 vols.; vol. i.) of the prose and verse of Byron. 893 Mr. Henley received the honour he LL.D. degree at the St. Andrews versity. He was editor of the New ew from the beginning of 1885 till its action at the end of 1897.

HENNER, Jean Jacques, a French ter, noted for his Rembrandt-like ts, born at Bernwiller, Alsace, March 829, was a pupil of Drölling and Picot, in 1848 entered the École des Beaux-. At the end of two years ill-health pelled him to return home; but he was mitted in 1858, and gained a prize for his "Adam et Eve retrouvant le corps d'Abel." After this he went to Rome, studied under Hipp, and painted four pic- tures for the Musée de Colmar, one of which, "Jeune Baigneur endormi," was exhibited at the Salon of 1863, together with a fine portrait of Victor Schnetz. "La Chaste Suzanne," 1865, was pur- chased by the Government, and is now in the Luxembourg. "Alsacienne," 1870, one of his best-known pictures, was presented, in 1872, to M. Gambetta by a committee of Alsatian ladies. His later works are: "Madeleine dans le Désert," and "Le bon Samaritain," 1874; "Le Christ Mort," 1878; "Eglogue" and "Jésus au Tom- beau," 1879; "Saint Jérôme," 1881; "Herodiade," 1887; "Saint Sébastien," 1888; "Prière" and "Martyre," 1889; "Mélancolie," 1890; "Piété" and "Pleur- euses," 1891, &c. M. Henner has obtained numerous medals at the Salon; was decorated with the Legion of Honour in 1873, and was made an Officer in 1878. He was elected a member of the Académie des Beaux-Arts in succession to Cabanel in 1889.

HENNESSY, Professor Henry, F.R.S., M.R.I.A., second son of John Hennessy, of Ballyhennessy, was born on March 19, 1826, in Cork, where he received an excellent school training in mathe- matics and languages; but the disabilities regarding higher education for those who were not members of the lately disestab- lished Church of Ireland prevented him from entering the University. He had thus to pursue the study of the higher parts of mathematics unaided, and at such intervals as his professional work as an assistant engineer permitted. Before at- taining to any position of a public nature he had commenced his career as a labourer in scientific investigation. The total amount of published matter which he has achieved amounts to more than eighty original papers, which have appeared in British and foreign scientific journals, the Reports of the British Association, the Pro- ceedings and Transactions of the Royal Irish Academy and the Royal Society, and the Comptes Rendus of the Paris Academy of Sciences. In 1851 his "Researches on Terrestrial Physics" appeared in the Transactions of the Royal Society, and in this memoir, as well as others communi- cated to the Institute of France and to the Royal Irish Academy during subsequent years, he has investigated several questions regarding the figure and structure of the earth and planets. From the first he held to the view of the fluid origin of these bodies, and he has always maintained that all the facts regarding the earth which come under our notice are best explained by the existence of fluid matter at a high temperature enclosed within its crust. He has also written papers on Climatology, which have appeared in various publications, including those of the bodies above mentioned. He claims to have proved laws of temperature distribution in islands, and to have deduced consequences of general application from the physical properties of water. Long before the present tendency to develop inland navigation, Mr. Hennessy published essays in some of the engineering journals, in which he advocated improvements and extensions in canal and river navigation. Besides his scientific papers, Mr. Hennessy is author of pamphlets relating to education, and, among others, of one relating to the study of science, a considerable portion of which has been reprinted in an Appendix to the Duke of Devonshire's Commission on Scientific Instruction. He has contributed to the discussion on international weights and measures by some publications, and by the proposal of a new standard derived from the earth's polar axis, which was soon afterwards advocated by Sir John Herschel. A series of weights and measures constructed from this standard were made under Prof. Hennessy's superintendence. These are now in the College of Science, Dublin, together with a number of instruments and models of machinery, executed by metal-workers in Ireland. Some of these were designed by Prof. Hennessy, and they were intended to promote technical education and skilled industries. With reference to other industries, Prof. Hennessy prepared a report in 1870 on the temperature of the waters surrounding the British Isles, for a Commission of Inquiry into Irish Fisheries, and he afterwards applied some of his meteorological deductions to questions relating to Agriculture. In 1855, on the invitation of Cardinal Newman, he became Professor of Physics in the Roman Catholic University of Ireland; and in 1874 he was appointed by the Duke of Richmond to the Professorship of Applied Mathematics in the Royal College of Science. In this office he occupied himself with inquiries in Hydraulics and Mechanism, some of which have appeared in the publications of the Royal Society. He was Dean of the Royal College of Science in 1880 and 1888. He was elected an F.R.S. in 1858, and has been Vice-President of the Royal Irish Society. He is married to Rosa, the youngest daughter of Hayden Corri. Address: Maison Schlageter, Clarens, Vaud, Switzerland.

HENNIKER, Lord, Sir John Major Henniker-Major, Bart., D.L., J.P., F.S.A., Knight of Justice of St. John of Jerusalem, Lieut.-Governor of the Isle of Man, was born on Nov. 7, 1842, and is son of the fourth baron, and Anne, daughter of Sir Edward Kerrie. He was educated at Eton and at Trinity College, Cambridge (M.A. 1869), and was Conservative M.P. for East Devon from 1866 to 1870, and has been M.P. for Dorset since 1870. He was waiting at various times between 1870 and 1893, and was re-appointed in 1893. He was appointed Lieut.-Governor of the Isle of Man in 1896. He married Alice Mary Cuffe, only daughter of the late Earl of Desart, in 1864; she died in 1893. Address: Government House, Douglas, Isle of Man, &c.

HENNIQUE, Léon, French dramatist, was born in the Isle of Guadeloupe, November 4, 1851, and began his literary career as a disciple of Victor Hugo and Émile Zola. His first works "La Bataille de France" (1878), and "Elisabeth Courtenay" (1879), exaggerated the style of his master, but he also contributed to the famous "Le roman expérimental de Médan," and was conspicuous for his naturalistic depiction of most details. His other novels are: "Le roman de M. Hébert," 1883; "Père et fils," 1884; and "Un Caractère," 1889. He has also written for the theatre "Pierrot seigneur" (1887), a pantomime, in collaboration with Victor Hugo; "Esther Brantès," play (1887), Théâtre Libre in 1887, as was the Duc d'Enghien, 1888. "Le roman de M. Hébert" was a dramatised version of Zola's tales, and was played at the Odéon in 1887. M. Hennique has been connected for some years with the Théâtre de l'Arsenal, and was with the Legion of Honour in 1893. Paris address is 22 Rue d'Artois.

HENRY OF BATTENBERG, Prince, See BEATRICE, PRINCESS.

HENSCHEL, George, musician, born at Breslau on Feb. 18, 1818, of Polish descent. He was educated at the Magdalen College in his native city, and at the Royal Conservatorium in Berlin. In 1862, as a child of twelve, he made his first appearance as a pianist. He later he sang in public for the first time. In 1877 he came to England at the invitation of the Monday popular concert in England the following year, and was appointed Professor at the Royal Academy of Music in succession to Jenny Lind. He was appointed, in America, first conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and started the well-known Loeb Concerts which are associated with his name and which in 1893 he set on foot the Henschel Society. His marriage with Lillian Jane singer, in 1881, marks the beginning of a famous musical partnership. Mr. and Mrs. Henschel gave vocal recitals in the United States and in most European capitals till 1884, since which time they have constantly appeared on the concert platform. Mr. Henschel has composed over a hundred songs, besides piano, vocal studies, a comic opera, &c.

He has also composed a "Miserere" which was performed at the Haymarket in 1894, and the music for Mr. Tree's revival of "The Merry Wives of Windsor" at the Haymarket in 1891. 5 Bedford Gardens, N. Kensington.

H. George Alfred, was born at Cambridge, Cambridgeshire, Dec. 8, 1846, educated at Westminster School and at St. John's College, Cambridge. He left the school to go out to the Crimea in the 10th Hussars. Returning in 1855, he was promoted to the rank of Captain. He was sent out to organise the hospitals of the Crimea. At the end of the war he returned, and had charge first of the hospitals at the Portsmouth. He resigned his commission, and for several years was occupied in literary work in Wales, Italy, &c. He was then appointed to the staff of the Standard. As a special correspondent of the Standard he witnessed the Italian war; was with Garibaldi in his campaign in the Tyrol; at the opening of the Suez Canal; with the Abyssinian expedition to Magdala, and the Ashanti war to Coomassie. He also went to France during the Franco-German war, and the siege of Paris, and was likewise present at the Parisian insurrection. He went to the Standard at the time of the Egyptian Expedition, and on his return from the mining regions of the United States, California, Nevada, Utah, and on. He accompanied the Prince of Wales on his tour through India, and was with the Turkish army in the Turkish war. Mr. Henty is the author of "The Secret," "All But Lost," "The March to Magdala," "The March to Coomassie," "Out of the Marches," "The Young Frenchman," "The Young Colonist," and a number of other books for boys, of a historical character. Among his recent works may be mentioned "The Double," "A Woman of the South," "The Queen's Cup," "Colonel Secret," 1898. Address: 1, W.C.

HERBERT, Hon. Hilary A., American, was born at Lawrenceville,

